

White House Says Involvement Could Be 'Essential Linchpin'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The White House, seeking support for President Reagan's offer to send up to 1,000 American combat troops to Lebanon, says the action could be the "essential linchpin" in resolving the crisis between Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

"The United States has pledged to do all it can do to bring peace and stability to the Middle East, and we must keep that pledge," Reagan said Tuesday during a meeting with state and local officials.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said congressional reaction to Reagan's offer was "generally good," despite reservations expressed by some members of Congress.

Because the troops would be armed, Speakes said the administration would comply with the War Powers Act and notify Congress in advance.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. said he would withhold definitive judgment until he learned more about it.

Committee, said the risks seemed too high and many questions remained to be answered before he could endorse it.

Speakes said Reagan had told him: "If a brief, limited involvement of U.S. personnel is what it takes, I believe we must do it."

Administration officials stressed no troops would be sent unless requested by the Lebanese government and negotiated as part of an overall resolution to the crisis.

But they said Reagan was willing to pledge such a force for special U.S. envoy Philip Habib to use as a bargaining chip in his 3-week-old negotiations in Lebanon.

While there never could be an absolute guarantee of safety for American troops, Speakes said, "We believe the safety will be preserved, protected because all parties will agree to U.S. participation before the commitment is made."

of such a force would be "to assist the Lebanese armed forces in overseeing the orderly and safe departure from Beirut of armed (PLO) personnel and to assist in the transition to the Lebanese authority in Beirut."

A White House official, who did not wish to be identified, said it was risky to estimate how long American forces would remain if they were sent, but he suggested it wouldn't be longer than 30 days.

"What we are talking about is tentative, short-term to insure the safe passage of the armed forces out of Lebanon," the official said. Speakes said U.S. ships could be used for the evacuation.

As to whether the Israelis and Syrians would be required to withdraw along with the PLO guerrillas, the official said: "That is part of the overall goal we are seeking. U.S. troops will not be involved until the whole package is put together."

Getting Ready

County courthouse employees Fred Mulkey (left) and Jack Nunley helped deliver 3,000 pounds of cheese in 30-pound cases to social services director Earlene Cook's office this morning in preparation for the giveaway set to begin at 9 a.m. Thursday. Frosty's Meat Market has stored the dairy product free of charge for the county for several days. (Brand Photo).

Surplus Cheese To Be Distributed

Distribution of 3,000 pounds of federal surplus cheese to needy citizens of the county will begin Thursday at 9 a.m. at the courthouse.

Applicants should report to the Deaf Smith County Social Services offices, Room 101 and 101A, it was announced by Earlene Cook, county social services director.

Mrs. Cook had told county commissioners last week that there was a need for distribution of the surplus cheese here, but she felt it should be restricted to county citizens.

The social services worker said there had been problems in previous distributions on policing the program, due to ambiguities in the qualification process. Many people picked up cheese in several counties.

Commissioners agreed to allow the county social service office to handle the distribution, but asked that those signing applications be sufficiently warned they will be prosecuted for filing false statements.

Recipients will be required to fill out a form which will include the total average household income, and any sources of welfare or assistance income.

Mrs. Cook said eligible families will receive one 5-pound block for a household of one through four, or two 5-pound blocks for families of five or more.

Distribution of the cheese will be based on the application information and a social service worker's interview with the applicant.

False statements on the application, with intent to deceive, could be punishable by a fine up to $2,000, a jail term up to one year, or both.

Calls Plan Ridiculous

PLO Laughs Off U.S. Troops Offer

By The Associated Press

Israeli tanks, warships and artillery pounded the besieged PLO stronghold in west Beirut without letup today and waves of fighter-bombers thundered in at dawn on mock air raids. The PLO denounced as "ridiculous" President Reagan's offer to send U.S. Marines to evacuate the trapped guerrillas.

Police said at least 22 people were killed and 38 wounded in west Beirut neighborhoods in heavy fighting that continued throughout the night after shattering the fifth Israeli-Palestinian cease-fire at sundown Tuesday.

Israeli gunners on land and at sea poured shell fire on Moslem-held west Beirut. Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas responded with Katyusha rockets and mortar rounds aimed at the Israeli positions in the hills around the Lebanese capital and near the presidential palace in suburban Baabda.

A police spokesman said no damage was reported from Baabda, where U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib has been trying for three weeks to strike a deal to end the Israeli siege that followed Israel's June 6 invasion of Lebanon.

In Beirut, clouds of smoke engulfed parts of the beleaguered Moslem sector and fire engines battled blazes in several buildings.

Israeli jets roared in on one mock dive-bombing attack after another, shattering the sound barrier and driving west Beirut residents into basements and bomb shelters. No actual bombing or strafing was observed or officially reported, however.

Supplies of electricity, water and food were choked off for a fourth straight day to the 8,000 guerrillas and nearly 500,000 civilians believed trapped in the western neighborhoods of the Lebanese capital. Israel has been tightening the blockade since Saturday on the "Green Line" that divides west Beirut from the Christian-controlled eastern sector.

Women and children carrying plastic cans on their heads were seen scurrying through garbage-filled streets searching for water. There was no meat, fruit or vegetables in the city and milk and egg supplies were dwindling rapidly, correspondents in Beirut reported.

Despite its angry rejection of Reagan's offer, the PLO leadership left the door open for some American presence in Lebanon, and the White House said the president's proposal could be the "essential linchpin" to end the bloody Israeli-PLO stalemate.

Reagan said in Los Angeles that he had agreed "in principle" last Friday to send as many as 1,000 combat troops to Lebanon, although the Lebanese government has made no official request for such aid.

The president gave few details and said without elaborating that there were "certain conditions" attached to his offer.

Pentagon officials in Washington said three U.S. Navy amphibious ships left the Italian port of Taranto on Monday and could bring together an 1,800-man Marine battalion to evacuate the Palestinians by sea with the aid of ships from the U.S. 6th Fleet.

Reagan Calls Flat Rate Tax Tempting

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Reagan, declaring that American taxpayers are "pretty fed up" with the complexities of paying Uncle Sam, says a flat rate income tax for all citizens is "a very tempting thing."

Reagan, addressing a group of legislators and local officials from 13 Western states, conceded Tuesday that the proposal of a flat rate tax has alarmed charities and educational institutions. They fear their sources of contributions will dry up if tax deductions for such donations are eliminated.

"I was concerned about that," the president said, "but the more I think about it, we're the most generous people on Earth. I don't think that people would quit giving what they give simply because you've changed the system of taxation."

Reagan suggested further study of the idea, saying, "it's a very tempting thing." A flat rate tax would set a fixed percentage of income that would be paid by every citizen, and eliminate various deductions.

Reagan and his wife, Nancy, were returning to their secluded Santa Barbara ranch today following their two-night stay in Los Angeles, which was capped with a private birthday party for the first lady Tuesday night at the home of friends.

In his speech to government officials, Reagan said he senses "more resistance to the income tax in America today, not from the amount of it, but from the complexity of trying to figure what the amount should be."

"The people are pretty fed up with something so complex that even the government has to warn that their own agents cannot be depended on to give you sound advice as to what your tax burden should be," Reagan said.

The president noted that he recently received figures from the Treasury Department

Hance Says Farmers Facing Bankruptcy

DIMMITT, Texas (AP) — Half of the farmers in many areas of Texas devastated by June hail and thunderstorms will be forced to declare bankruptcy unless they receive federal disaster aid, U.S. Rep. Kent Hance says.

Hance met Tuesday with farmers at a Dimmitt town meeting, near Lubbock.

He said "three out of every 10 farmers will go out of business" even if U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block implements a federal relief program for Texas farmers.

The Lubbock Democrat said he and other congressmen would be meeting with Block to seek the financial support.

"I am very optimistic that Block will approve the disaster designation. The money is already in the budget for it, so there will not have to be a new appropriation for it," he said.

Hance was the latest in a series of politicians and farm group leaders to call for federal assistance for cotton, wheat and sorghum grain farmers whose crops were ravaged last month by rain, hail and scattered tornadoes.

Perez Joins Brand Staff

Lonnie Perez, former advertising manager with the Lamb County Leader-News in Littlefield, has joined the ad staff of The Hereford Brand.

Perez, 20, was associated with the Littlefield newspaper for a year and a half. A native of Spade, located east of Littlefield, Perez graduated from Spade High School and attended Weatherford College before returning to Littlefield to work with the paper.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Perez, still reside near Spade, where his father operates a farm. Perez was a member of Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Littlefield. He is single.

Mauri Montgomery, who assumes the post of ad director next week, announced the addition of Perez to The Brand ad staff.

Gene Bigham, who has headed the ad department since October, 1980, recently resigned to accept a general manager's job with a Central Texas weekly newspaper. His resignation is effective Friday, July 9.

Other members of the advertising staff are Randy Quick and Pamela Melugin.

Rep. Kent Hance should be commended for holding his "Town Hall" meetings around the district. We're sure he would rather have spent time with his family Monday, but Hance held meetings here and in Friona.

Hance gives an overview of Congressional activity at the meetings, then opens the floor to questions. It is refreshing to hear frank and forthright answers, even though they may not be pleasing.

The 19th District Representative still has a gloomy report on the agricultural situation. Hance says 3 out of 10 farmers will go out of business this year, even if the disaster payments are approved. He adds that it could be 5 out of 10 if no disaster relief payments are made.

Hance plans to resurrect the Farm Crisis Bill that died in committee recently. He said he was amazed at the stance of the American Farm Bureau Federation, which lobbied against the bill.

"The Farm Bureau said farmers weren't smart enough to have their own referendum. Since the Farm Bureau has always advocated local control, I was amazed at their stance," Hance said.

Back in the early 1900's, ranchers and farmers, who wanted the best in saddles and harness and collars may have chosen those with the label "Hereford Brand". It was a registered trademark used by the L. Frank Saddlery Co.

Lester Wagner, manager of Hereford Parts & Supply, ran across this tidbit of information while reading a book, "Horse, Next to Woman, God's Greatest Gift to Man." The book is a history of the Straus-Frank Company, which evolved from L. Frank Saddlery.

The company started in San Antonio as a supplier to the saddlery trade in 1880, moved into the parts business with the evolution of the automotive industry and became a major automotive parts distributor.

MS Patients 'Must Be Positive'

BY SANDY PANKEY Staff Writer

"Ninety percent of the battle a multiple sclerosis patient faces depends on a positive attitude. They must learn to accept themselves and know their own capabilities," says Raymond Morrison, 48, of Westway.

Morrison, who moved back to the Hereford area in October of 1981, from Dallas, was diagnosed as having MS in May of 1980.

Because of his disease, Morrison has taken a personal interest in the Beef-a-thon which will benefit the MS Society. It is slated to be aired on Channel 10 from 1-5:30 p.m. July 25.

Panhandle merchants will donate items and local feedyards will contribute beef to be auctioned during the televised program. Approximately 40 percent of the money collected will go to research and the remainder will stay in the local area to be used to defray patients' medical expenses, purchase wheelchairs, beds, etc., and help provide transportation to various MS functions.

Since the MS Society is not funded by any other organization, there are only two paid employees in Amarillo who travel throughout the Panhandle area. Their function is to visit MS patients in their own environment, whether it is in their homes or nursing facilities and to assist in helping raise funds for the society.

Morrison explains that there are more people in the last five years that have been diagnosed as having MS than in previous years.

Although multiple sclerosis is now considered a major health problem, the general public knows little about the disease.

It was estimated that in 1980, there were 500,000 known cases of MS in the United States alone. It attacks people from the ages of 20 to 40.

Some of the symptoms of the disease may include vision problems, partial or complete paralysis, weakness or tiredness, loss of coordination, numbness and

Minor Quake Rocks California Desert

LUCERNE VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — A mild earthquake rocked the California desert early today, but caused no reported damage, officials said.

The tremor registered 3.2 on the Richter scale, according to Clyde Campbell, a warning controller for the state Office of Emergency Services in Sacramento. The quake, at 1:44 a.m., was centered about 20 miles east of Lucerne Valley, near Sugar Loaf Mountain in San Bernardino County.

"That's way out in the desert and there'd be very few people around who would feel it," Campbell said.

A dispatcher for the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department in nearby Victorville said the sheriff's office had gotten no calls about the quake and no damage had been reported.

Lucerne Valley is about 80 miles northeast of Los Angeles.

In Palm Springs, to the south, police dispatcher Dave Johnson said, "We received a couple of calls, but nothing major. It must have been a very, very minor tremor."

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. Thus a reading of 7.5 reflects an earthquake 10 times stronger than one of 6.5.

African Diplomats Lacking Information

MOSCOW (AP) — African diplomats complained today that Soviet authorities failed to notify them about the crash of an Aeroflot jetliner near Moscow they said killed all 90 people aboard, including many of their countrymen.

The Ilyushin-62 crashed in darkness with at least one of its four engines ablaze soon after taking off from Sheremetyevo International Airport, 18 miles northwest of Moscow, Western airlines representatives here said.

The jet, which crashed about six miles from the airport, was headed for Dakar, Senegal and Freetown, Sierra Leone, according to Soviet authorities. Their two-paragraph statement, issued by the official Tass news agency 17 hours after the crash, said only that the plane went down and gave its destination.

Spokesmen for the Senegal and Sierra Leone embassies in Moscow said this morning that they first heard about the crash from students who had gone to the airport to see friends off, and that Soviet officials had not contacted them about the disaster.

Probe Continues

In Murder Of Gunsmith

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Police investigators were continuing their search for a person who shot a gunsmith in the back of the head and then used a flammable liquid and gunpowder to set the dead man's house on fire.

Firefighters found the burned body of Stanley Wallace Carlson on Tuesday in the bedroom of his Lubbock home, Peace Justice L.J. Blalack said.

The home had been ransacked and then sprinkled with gunpowder and a flammable liquid, authorities said.

Police and fire spokesmen said late Tuesday night that no new clues had turned up in the investigation.

Carlson's body was found gagged with a red bandana and with one wrist bound with a rope, police said. Marks on the other wrist indicated his hands had been tied behind him.

A pistol was found in an adjacent room, but police have not yet determined whether it was the murder weapon. Investigators said it was not immediately known if anything was missing from the house.

Arson investigator Jim Vaughn told police the room where the body was found appeared to have been saturated with a flammable liquid.

A five-gallon can that still contained some flammable liquid was found, and gunpowder was dumped on a workroom floor, a kitchen floor and counters, investigators said.

Firefighters were called to the scene early Tuesday because of an explosion and fire at the house. A wall in the back bedroom was blown out about two feet by the blast, and it took about 30 minutes to bring the fire under control, authorities said.

Auto Sales, T-Bills Decline

By The Associated Press

Analysts backed off earlier predictions of a recovery in the U.S. auto industry following reports that end-of-June car sales had plummeted 17.8 percent to their lowest daily rate in 24 years.

Meanwhile, Treasury bill yields declined Tuesday, and the steel industry reported it had operated at less than half its capacity during the first week of July.

The automakers also said Tuesday that sales for the full month of June were down 12.8 percent after sales had risen in May.

New car sales for the June 21-30 period totaled 159,587, down from 172,683 in the same period a year ago. The daily rate of 17,732 was the worst since 1958, when 17,777 were sold each day.

Monthly sales were 451,430, down from 517,815, the automakers said.

Analysts had called last December the low point, and subsequently described the industry as in a state of gradual recovery.

Import sales in June also were down, by 1.2 percent from 197,777 to 195,468. However, the imports accounted for 30.2 percent of the market in June, their highest share since January when they had 31 percent.

General Motors Corp. is expected to show the largest profit, with quarterly earnings of $450 million to $500 million, analysts said. Analysts expect Ford Motor Co. to post second-quarter earnings of $90 million to $120 million, and Chrysler to garner $50 to $100 million.

In other economic news, President Reagan said that even though charities fear reduced contributions, the concept of a no-deductions, flat-rate income tax system is "very tempting."

He told a group of legislators and local officials in Los Angeles that he did not think people would quit giving simply because we changed the system of taxation."

Beginning today, in accounts linked to federal securities:

—Savings and loan associations and banks may pay as much as 13.232 percent interest on $10,000-minimum six-month money market certificates, down from 13.669 percent.

—S&Ls may pay as much as 12.806 percent interest and commercial banks as much as 12.556 percent on $7,500-minimum three-month certificates, down from last week's 13.269 percent and 13.019 percent.

In addition, S&Ls may pay as much as 14.8 percent and commercial banks as much as 14.55 percent interest on 2½-year "small-saver" certificates. Those rates change again on July 13.

High Winds, Thunderstorms Batter Northern Plains

By The Associated Press

Winds gusting to 100 mph flipped autos, trucks and small airplanes, blew down trees and towers, and injured scores of people as thunderstorms and tornadoes roared across the northern Plains.

The line of storms swept into Illinois early today, washing out roads with up to 5 inches of rain. Three youths nearly drowned when they were swept down a storm sewer.

One man in Sioux Falls, S.D., was in critical condition with a chest injury, and dozens more were treated for minor injuries, mostly cuts from flying glass on Tuesday, officials said. At least 18 people in Wisconsin were injured, none critically, including a woman and her 21-year-old son, whose house trailer was overturned near Watertown in the central part of the state.

"It was just straight winds," said meteorologist Mike Weiland of Sioux Falls. "It can produce damage like a tornado, but there's no turning of winds like a tornado." Tornadoes touched down in Iowa and Minnesota, destroying a cattle shed and a silo and extensively damaging two barns and a farm shed in northern Iowa.

Winds gusting up to 100 mph blew down a transmission tower for radio station WIXK and damaged 60 trailers at the Wall Street Village trailer park in New Richmond, Wis., near the Minnesota state line. Some of the trailers were moved 100 feet or more off their foundations.

At least a dozen funnel clouds were sighted over central Minnesota but there were no reports of injury or property damage. Thunderstorms were scattered over central and southern Minnesota into west-central Wisconsin and north-central Iowa following record high temperatures on Monday.

In Illinois, up to 5 inches of rain pounded Monmouth and Galesburg in about 90 minutes, authorities said. Two Galesburg police officers swallowed water and were reported in serious condition after rescuing three boys who were swept down a storm sewer around midnight.

Police officers Fred Foster, 40, and John Woolsey, 23, swallowed "a bunch of water down the wrong pipe," said a spokesman at Cottage Hospital. The three rescued youths were not identified.

Three roads and a bridge were washed out in Marshall County in northern Illinois, said sheriff's dispatcher John Otto.

Several power outages also were reported in the Chicago area as lightning struck utility lines on the city's South Side and in northern and northwestern suburbs.

The storms dumped more than 1.5 inches of rain in the Des Moines, Burlington and Cedar Rapids areas of Iowa. Flash flood watches were in effect through the night for some areas.

On Tuesday, the directors of the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission asked Gov. Bill Clements to have a 25-county Panhandle area declared a disaster area because of the storm damage.

The chairman of the Panhandle commission said the group was concerned that attention would be focused on farmers in the South Plains region, which recently was toured by a federal task force surveying the damage.

C. Ralph Blodgett, mayor of Spearman, Texas, said the group approved the resolution in an emergency session because members "just wanted to let him (Clements) know we support his efforts." Clements and several Texas congressmen have asked Block and President Reagan to enact a disaster relief payment program for Texas farmers.

"This is a sad plight that farmers have in this area. What the farmers need is not just money to replant. It is money to survive," Blodgett said. Cotton farmers in many areas of the state say they face bankruptcy because their crops were destroyed and no time remains in the growing season to replant, he said.

Bull

became well known in many nations. In Cuba, an agent sold more harness and collars than saddles, since the harness was in great demand for the planting and harvesting of sugar cane. Saddles and harness carrying the "Hereford Brand" label became known there as "the mark of the Toro."

The trademark was registered in 1908, just seven years after The Hereford Brand newspaper was founded. The saddlery company reached its peak by World War I providing many saddles and harnesses for the U.S. Army. With the auto becoming an increasingly important factor, Straus-Frank went into the automotive business in 1917.

mental symptoms such as memory loss, euphoria, depression and irritability. Approximately two-thirds of all MS patients have a period of mild or moderate acute symptoms lasting three to six weeks with gradual recovery of function which may or may not be complete.

As far as speaking to the MS patient and their families, I think rap sessions are a great asset in coping with any illness. It's a chance to get things off of your chest. To be able to expose one's fears and anxieties to someone that can relate is a tremendous relief," continues Morrison.

his five children. They include Melany, 20; Raymond Jr., 19; Joe, 16; Angel 12, and Mandy, nine. "One of the hardest adjustments is not being able to work. As an MS patient, I tire easily and have a very low heat tolerance. I have to rest frequently, realize what my own limitations are, and, of course, stay on a proper diet," he said.

In recalling when he first may have had symptoms of MS, Morrison says that as early as 1965 he began having trouble with his left arm. "It just went to sleep. My physician speculated that it might be a blocked nerve and suggested that I see a neurologist."

This disease is not contagious and the only treatment for it consists basically of avoiding stress, heat, and exposure to infection, limiting physical exercise and maintaining a proper diet.

Besides, by helping another person, it also helps me. You know the old cliché, "if it helps but one person..." well, that's how I feel. It's also very good therapy for me as well. It takes my mind off of my own worries."

"At the time I was farming at Wildorado and had no medical insurance. I just couldn't see spending $75 to $100 a day on tests. About a week later, I regained the use of my arm."

"Cancer and muscular dystrophy seem to be more common, therefore, campaigns for these diseases have received more publicity and consequently have raised much needed money," states Morrison.

Morrison, who is a great believer in a positive attitude admits that there are still times of depression. "Dr. Livingstone, my physician who diagnosed me as having MS at Medical City Hospital in Dallas, told me that the power of positive thinking was a necessity."

"The symptoms did not appear again until about six months before I was diagnosed in 1980. I felt light headed, tired and my legs were very weak."

As with any fund raising campaign, celebrities are greatly instrumental in collecting donations. Walt Garrison, former Dallas Cowboy fullback and now a rodeo star, has assisted with the Dallas rodeo for the last three years which has collected $150,000 to benefit the MS Society.

"When he told me I had MS, I looked at him and said I have a baby girl that I want to see get her high school diploma and hopefully see her walk down the aisle to receive her college degree," recalls Morrison.

"I was working as a housing inspector for HUD in Garland at the time. I went to get into the city car and fell down. My legs just gave out on me," remembers Morrison.

Other celebrities helping the nationwide campaign include Richard Queen, one of the Iranian hostages; Donna Fargo, popular country-western singer; and Frank Sinatra, campaign chairman.

"I then went to my private physician where he pricked my fingertips and arm with a pin but found I had no muscle contraction. It was then that I was hospitalized and later diagnosed."

"I want to be involved in the MS cause from start to finish. If someone needs me, all they have to do is pick up the phone and call me anytime night or day. I have been down that road, and I know how comforting it is just to talk to someone," states Morrison.

Morrison, who will assist in collecting donated items from local merchants during the campaign, also wants to speak to individuals, families and civic organizations concerning this disease.

"It is certainly normal to have a certain amount of self-pity. The emotional trauma is tremendous but I just keep my mind occupied. Since I cannot actively work because of the side effects that result from fatigue, I try to acquaint myself with new people and different activities," explains Morrison. "I'm currently working on my family tree."

ment showing that out of 4,112 Americans with $1 million-a-year income or higher, "about 40 of them used the simplified form this year." He suggested this showed taxpayers at all levels want to simplify the system of reporting income.

"Certainly we've got to find some way to simplify the tax-paying," the president said. Reagan sought support from the bipartisan gathering for his "new federalism" program of switching responsibility for some social programs to the states. Reagan insisted the poor have not suffered from his social program cutbacks, which he claimed were offset by a drop in inflation. He said a family of four with a $15,000 annual income received "about a $1,000 raise" due to decreased inflation.

With the government officials and later while visiting a senior citizens home, Reagan renewed his commitment to keeping Social Security payments flowing to those who now receive them.

Car Salesman Sick Of Labels

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a car salesman who is sick and tired of being labeled a chiseler, a crook and a sharpie.

The results of the Gallup Poll you ran in your column a few weeks ago showed the car salesman was the least-trusted person in the United States. That really burned me up.

It would be very interesting to know how many respondents to that poll switched batteries or tires after a trade price was quoted - or neglected to divulge mechanical problems when trading in their used vehicles.

Ask around will you? The results of THAT poll would be very interesting. Please do a much-maligned group of hard-working people a favor and print this letter. -An Honest Car Salesman In Waukegan, N.Y.

DEAR HONEST: I am sure there are many honest car salesmen in the country. So why don't the people in the business do something to clean up their image? The ball is in their court and has been for quite some time.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 21-year-old addict who was released from a live-in drug abuse center after 36 days.

I fell in love with Joe, another addict who was there under court order. (I was a voluntary.) It is against the rules of the center to have sexual relations with other residents. We knew if we were ever caught we'd be thrown out, so we never actually had sex - but we talked about it a lot. I was sure we would end up in a mop closet or a utility room, so I told Joe we had better cool it and we did.

He said he loved me and when I left, he would leave, too. After 36 days I felt terrific and checked out. Joe did NOT leave with me as he promised. (Actually he is under court pressure to stay another three months, and he would have had to sneak out.)

The question: Should I wait another three months for Joe or should I go back in the bin to be with him? Or should I try to put him out of my mind and meet someone new? (P.S. I blew my sobriety after three days on the outside.) - Barefoot In Canoga Park

DEAR BAREFOOT: Your P.S. was one of the most important lines in your letter. I'm glad you added it. Go back to the rehab center and work at getting off the junk permanently. Resolve to stay out of the mop closets and plan on a straight life together. Good luck to you both.

DEAR ANN: I tell this story to everyone I meet, but I hope that by telling you, others will get the message.

A lady friend of mine got into her car to do some errands. She was in a hurry but had to stop for gas.

The young attendant asked her to step inside his office because something was wrong with her credit.

Reluctantly, she got out and followed him. Once inside he asked her if she was aware that a man was crouched down in the back seat of her car. My friend nearly fainted.

Moral: Check your back seat before you get into your car. These days it's easy for an experienced rapist or mugger to open a locked car and hide in the back seat. Spread the word, Ann - I Live In California

DEAR CALIFORNIA: Consider it spread - and thanks for the tip.

DON'T EXPECT TOO MUCH (by) Bob Wear

A WISE FRIEND gave some good advice to me a long time ago, as I began a very important work involving other people. My old and wise friend said, "Don't expect too much. You are hard on yourself in your expectations, but you must not expect too much of others." Of course, all of us know the value of having goals and aims and standards to attain; but do we know the harm that can be done if these are unjustified?

INFERIOR AND UNWORTHY standards and expectations are not recommended; neither are unreachable and impossible goals and aspirations recommended. Living, for us, will be best if we follow the pattern most suitable for us. We differ in so many ways, and these individual differences are significant and must be taken into account as we choose our life style.

WE MAY BE more capable than others, or we may not be; however, this is irrelevant. We can and we must perform according to our abilities; not according to the abilities of others. Therefore, our expectations for ourselves must be formed on the basis of our capabilities. We have very little to gain in measuring ourselves by others. In fact, this is usually a big mistake.

WE MUST NOT expect too much of others. This is often one of the difficulties in the husband-wife relationship. Parents often expect too much of their children. In fact, in all of the human relationships; expecting too much may be the biggest short-circuit of happiness. The only way life can be kept on a steady course is to keep our expectations in accord with reality and truth.

THE "BURN-OUT" about which more and more is being said is caused by expecting too much, by unjustified expectations, everything eventually goes wrong. There may be enough of everything for everybody involved, and there may be every right to a feeling of success and accomplishment, but, because expectations are faulty, all persons involved think that they are failing.

WE CAN KNOW the truth about what to expect. Knowing this we must adjust, with a spirit of good grace, our expectations to the facts as they are.

Today In History

By The Associated Press Today is Wednesday, July 7, the 188th day of 1982. There are 177 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On July 7, 1913, Britain's House of Commons passed the Irish Home Rule Bill.

Also on this date: In 1898, the United States annexed the island of Hawaii. In 1937, Japanese troops on maneuvers near Peking clashed with the Chinese at the Marco Polo Bridge, marking the start of the Sino-Japanese War.

In 1965, the Soviet Union urged the United States to reconsider a North Vietnamese formula to end the war in Vietnam.

In 1979, the United States and China signed a new trade agreement granting Peking most-favored-nation status.

Ten years ago: Military officials in Saigon reported that North Vietnamese troops fought off a South Vietnamese advance toward Quang Tri City and forced one South Vietnamese unit to retreat.

Five years ago: Five prisoners were killed and 71 others hurt when fire swept through a cell block at the federal prison at Danbury, Conn.

One year ago: President Reagan announced he would nominate Sandra Day O'Connor, an Arizona judge, to serve on the U.S. Supreme Court. She would become the first woman justice on the high court.

Today's birthdays: National Basketball Association Commissioner Larry O'Brien is 65. Fashion designer Pierre Cardin is 60. Former Beagle Ringo Starr is 42.

Thought for today: Nothing in life is to be feared. It is only to be understood. - Marie Curie, Polish-born physicist (1867-1934).

The odds are millions to one against a collision between a comet and the earth. But banging into a comet's nucleus - Halley's comet weighs 30 million tons - could be devastating. Some astronomers credit comets with causing the cataclysmic Siberian explosion in 1908.

FAME

Ask Kate

From Doris' dad to 'Dukes'

By Kate Woods
PYLE-DRIVER — Hope you can settle an argument. I say that dear old Uncle Jesse of "The Dukes of Hazzard" (Denver Pyle) played the father of Doris Day a long time ago in a TV serial. My memory is being questioned, however.

Pyle played Doris's dad for the first two seasons of "The Doris Day Show," which ran from 1968 to 1973 on CBS. His character was dropped when they moved Doris from her father's ranch to the big city to become a career woman in the true TV tradition of the '70s.

FREE TV — Was there ever a series made of the movie "Born Free"? I thought there was, but I can't remember who might have starred in it.

The popular 1966 film was made into a series in 1974 with Gary Collins and Diana Muldaur as George and Joy Adamson. The exploits of Elsa the Lion turned out to be less popular on TV and the series was yanked after three months.

GANGSTER OF LOVE — Please tell me everything you can about Michael Nouri of "The Gangster Chronicles." Is he married?

I've got good news, and I've got bad news. He's not married, but he is very chummy with actress Diane Cannon. Career-wise he moved up the TV ranks from soaps. (Steve Kaslo on "Search for Tomorrow") to a made-for-TV movie, "Contract on Cherry Street" toplining Frank Sinatra, and finally his own series, "Cliffhangers," in which he played a very debonair Dracula. The role of Lucky Luciano on "The Gangster Chronicles" was next. Now he's starring on Broadway in "The Booths," a play about the famous and infamous members of the acting family.

BENGALS BOOSTER — I am an avid fan of Tom Selleck and "Magnum, P.I." But I've been wondering what the "B" stands for on Magnum's baseball cap. Is it Baltimore?

If the letter were in fact a "B" it might stand for Baltimore. But the letter is a "D," the Detroit Tigers' cap insignia.

Anti-Abortion Activist Nominated For Commission

WASHINGTON (AP) — As part of a clean sweep of the six-member U.S. Civil Rights Commission, President Reagan has nominated a 32-year-old anti-abortion activist who once called for abolition of the agency.

Congressional sources said close scrutiny will be given by liberal and moderate members of the Senate Judiciary Committee to Robert A. Destro, who just resigned as director of the Catholic League for Religious and Civil Rights in Milwaukee.

Reagan has either replaced or indicated his intention to replace five of the six members of the commission. Sources who asked not to be identified said the current chairman, Clarence Pendleton, has indicated that the president will also name a sixth member to take the place of Jill Ruckelshaus, an active Republican feminist.

The Catholic League Destro headed is a nationwide organization of 20,000 members whose main purpose is to urge reversal of the 1973 Supreme Court decision legalizing most abortions.

The civil rights commission is prohibited by law from investigating and issuing reports on the impact of abortion law on minorities. It was set up to study and publish reports on the progress or lack of progress by minorities in fighting discrimination.

In 1978, Destro testified before the same Senate Judiciary Committee and criticized the civil rights commission for failure to look into discrimination against Catholics and white ethnic groups like Poles and Italians.

Destro said the commission has a "pronounced animus toward religion and religious discrimination cases."

He said blacks, women and other "approved minorities" are well represented by organizations like the Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the National Organization for Women and don't need a federal commission.

Destro said the commission has failed to examine discrimination against Catholics and ethnic groups, and has therefore created a national impression that only blacks, Hispanics, Indians and women suffer from racial or sexual discrimination.

As a result, he said, "If it were to go out of existence today it would not be missed. Its functions...could well be carried out by interest groups such as the NAACP, NOW or any of the other special interest groups."

Asked later if he were urging that federal funds for the commission be cut off, Destro said, "Yes, that is accurate."

Only if the commission were to place heavy emphasis on white ethnic groups and religious discrimination should it be allowed to stay alive, Destro told the committee, which was then considering the commission budget for 1979.

"It has in effect turned into a government lobby for special interest groups," Destro said. "The law is designed for people not for interest groups."

Destro was reported traveling to take a new job as a law professor at Catholic University in Washington and could not be reached for comment.

'Overnight' News Never Conventional

NEW YORK (AP) — It was sometimes, outrageous and often offbeat. It occasionally went overboard. But it was never conventional or stuffy.

The first edition of "NBC News Overnight" offered some straight news, but also a good deal of amusing and bemusing news, treating stories with more respect than "Saturday Night Live" but less solemnity than the "Nightly News."

"NBC News Overnight," with co-anchors Lloyd Dobyns and Linda Ellerbee, was definitely a show for its timeslot and audience, which probably needs to be entertained more than informed.

Not only is viewership limited at 1:30 a.m. EDT, it probably doesn't consist of a lot of the white-collar business types who have breakfast with the 7 a.m. news, devour the Wall Street Journal, and begin the night with the 7 p.m. news.

In fact, Tuesday morning's inaugural broadcast didn't have a single business report or Dow Jones figure.

A recent Nielsen survey estimated that less than 10 percent of America's TV households, about 8 million, are watching television at 2 a.m. As Dobyns and Ms.

Ellerbee said in their promotional message:

"When most of the nation is asleep, we are not. If you're not, join us."

The hour-long, Tuesday-through-Saturday program is on too late to be an extension of the 11 o'clock local news, as is ABC's serious-minded, issue-oriented "Nightline."

In tone and appeal, "Overnight" is more an extension of its lead-in show, "Late Night with David Letterman."

One piece, noting that Tuesday was Nancy Reagan's birthday, noted there was a disagreement whether the first lady was 59 or 61. Then, it showed actress Nancy Davis Reagan from a farcical 1952 TV production.

New NBC News President Reuven Frank, who produced the whimsically innovative "Weekend" series in the mid-1970s, seemed to have his fingerprints all over "Overnight." It's a nonsense news broadcast that's fun to watch.

SMOKERS INTERNATIONAL National Differences in Smoking Patterns

Average Cigarette Consumption Per Year Per Person 15 and Over
SOURCES: American Cancer Society, British Tobacco Research Council

Smoking patterns vary widely from country to country, influenced by relative affluence, social acceptance and the role of tobacco in the economy among other factors. In general, individual consumption levels are highest in the developed countries. A British survey of cigarette smoking in selected countries over a 35-year period placed Canada highest in both average consumption and percentage increase, overtaking such other heavy-smoking countries as the United States, Britain and Ireland during the period.

Teachers Take Protests To Streets

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Public school teachers, snubbed by a vacationing President Reagan, are taking their protest against his administration's cuts in aid to public schools and support of tax breaks for private education to the streets.

Nearly 7,000 National Education Association delegates were planning to start the last day of their convention today with a one-mile march to dramatize their opposition to Reagan's policies.

The 1.6-million member NEA also was joining forces today with its archrival, the American Federation of Teachers, which is meeting in New York, to adopt a joint resolution attacking Reagan's plan to give tuition tax credits of up to $500 to parents who send a child to private school.

Reagan is making appearances in Los Angeles during a two-day stop on his California vacation, but the teachers' convention was not on his agenda. The teachers' march from Pershing Square to the Convention Center will not take them near Reagan's hotel, the Century Plaza.

The staunchly anti-Reagan NEA invited the president last February to address its 120th annual convention.

The White House, in an April 23rd letter signed by presidential aide Gregory J. Newell, turned the NEA down, saying, "in view of the developments in his schedule, it is certain the president will be unable to add this engagement to his commitments."

NEA leaders, who have spent much of the past five days blasting Reagan's domestic and military policies, were basking in the snub.

A NEA publicity man was dispatched to the president's hotel to invite the White House press corps to cover the march, and Willard H. McGuire, president of the union, said, "The whole world knows where he is at any point in time, and he is in Los Angeles."

Democratic National Committee Chairman Charles Manatt was scheduled to speak to AFT delegates today in New York.

Albert Shanker, who was unopposed, won his fifth five-year term as AFT president on Monday, said AFT's director of public relations, Phyllis Franck.

A weighted vote, in which each delegate votes the number of members he represents, left Shanker with 311,807 ballots. No votes were cast against him, but representatives of 29,714 members did not mark their ballots and ballots representing 312 members were sequestered. Dissident union members criticized the vote since it was not by secret ballot, but some admitted Shanker would have won big anyway. Franck said today the vote was open so local members would know their wishes had been carried out.

Not all of the 564,000-member AFT's locals are represented at the convention, which runs through Wednesday.

The teachers gave California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. a standing ovation Monday after he accused Reagan of robbing public schools to pay for nuclear arms.

The NEA called for a new $4 billion federal school aid program patterned after the post-Sputnik drive to upgrade America's schools.

Ultra-High Temperature Milk Making Debut At World's Fair

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of consumers are getting their first taste of UHT milk at the World's Fair in Knoxville, Tenn., this summer, says the Agriculture Department.

The letters UHT stand for the ultra-high temperature at which whole milk is processed. After packaging, it can be stored on shelves anywhere at room temperature for up to six months.

The report — written by Stephanie Arnold and Tanya Roberts — said UHT milk offers convenience to consumers, eliminates expensive refrigerated storage for processors and trims refrigerated transportation costs.

Costs to consumers are 15 to 30 percent less than pasteurized milk in Germany but are greater in Britain, it said.

Although UHT milk has been available to Europeans for 20 years, it only recently has been introduced on the U.S. consumer market, according to a recent report by the department's Economic Research Service.

The UHT milk display at the World's Fair is sponsored by Dairymen, Inc., a regional milk marketing cooperative in the Southeast. The milk is from Dairymen's new plant in Savannah, Ga.

"In UHT processing, milk is heated to 280 degrees Fahrenheit for a few seconds to destroy bacteria and heat-resistant spores," the report said. "Then it is packaged in sterilized cartons made of layers of paperboard, foil and polyethylene to keep it sterile and out of light."

Currently, U.S. sales "are somewhat limited," with most going to Hawaii and Alaska, nursing homes and some recreational uses.

Ordinary pasteurized milk is heated to 161 degrees Fahrenheit for a minimum of 15 seconds and is packaged in plastic jugs or waxed cardboard containers.

After 14 to 20 days of refrigeration, the few surviving bacteria in pasteurized milk multiply enough to cause spoilage.

Modern UHT milk was developed in Europe, beginning in 1913 and through several stages thereafter. But one of the biggest breakthroughs occurred with the development of a separately sterilized container by a Swiss firm, Tetra Pak, which began marketing the milk in Europe in 1958.

"European market penetration of UHT milk was initially slow but has taken off dramatically during the last five years," the report said. "In Italy and Germany, half the milk sold in 1980 was UHT. But in Great Britain, mostly because of government regulations, UHT milk sales are only about 2 to 3 percent of gross sales for all milk."

Swine Isolation Reduces Risk

LUBBOCK—New swine breeding stock should be placed into isolation for 30 days before being introduced into the main herd, advises a swine specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

days of fenceline contact with only a few animals from the herd helps to immunize the animal against any active diseases in the main herd, Cohen said.

"Obviously, no producer is going to buy a sick animal for use in his main breeding herd," the swine specialist said. "However, most diseases have an incubation period from the time of exposure to actual demonstration of symptoms of a disease," he explained. The incubation period may range from one to 21 days, depending on the disease, he said. An animal might be exposed to a disease a short time before being sold at private treaty, or before it is transported to a show or a type conference at which it is subsequently sold and carried to another producer's operation, Cohen said. The animal might not demonstrate any symptoms of a disease in this time.

The 30-day isolation reduces the risk that a catastrophic disease might be introduced into the herd by the new animal, said Dr. Robert S. Cohen, the Extension specialist. Another 30

To meet animal health commission regulations, the specialist noted, most shows and type conferences only require an animal to have been tested within 30 days prior to a sale or exhibition. Exposure to a disease after the test sample is taken can result in an animal having a disease from which health papers indicate the animal is free.

The Extension specialist said new animals should be placed in an isolation pen reasonably close to the main herd, but where no direct contact can be made between animals in the main herd and those in isolation.

"Reasonably close" could be from 200 yards to half a mile, he said.

West German Farmers Meeting With GSPA

Five members of the Parliament of the Federal Republic of Germany will arrive in Lubbock tonight at the invitation of the Grain Sorghum Producers Association. All are farmers and members of the Agriculture Committee of West German Parliament.

will visit area grain and livestock producers with a particular interest in U.S. livestock feed regulations. They will discuss with the press and producers the import and export policies of the European Economic Community. Friday they will attend a livestock nutrition seminar at Texas Tech University.

Most swine diseases will have gone from exposure through incubation to demonstration of the disease and no longer be contagious for it in 30 days," Cohen said. While in isolation, the animals should be tested or retested for swine brucellosis and pseudorabies virus (PRV), he recommended. "It would be advisable to test for these two diseases early during isolation and retest toward the end of isolation, maintaining complete isolation until final test results have been received," he said.

New Animal Care Ideas Show Profitable Success

LUBBOCK—Cattle producers who keep abreast of new nutrition and feeding techniques could find their bank accounts swelling.

Dr. Rodney L. Preston, Thornton professor of animal science at Texas Tech University, said ranchers can boost profits by applying recent research in both cow-calf and feedlot phases of beef production.

Preston told participants of the National Beef Profit Conference in Denver last week that heifers should be fed to calve as two-year-olds.

Research shows overwhelming evidence that feed savings and increased total productivity can be made by heifers calving as two-year-olds rather than three-year-olds, he said.

Italian Soccer Coach Modest About His Role

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — Italy's Enzo Bearzot, hailed as a tactical genius by the press which has so frequently roasted him, is characteristically modest about his role in getting Italy into the World Cup soccer semifinals. Bearzot told reporters Tuesday that he deserved only a small share of credit for Italy's incredible 3-2 upset Sunday over Brazil, which was heavily favored to win the Cup.

Italy will play Poland Thursday in a semifinal match in this Mediterranean port city, while France and West Germany play in Seville. The winners meet in the championship game at Madrid Sunday.

The losers will play Saturday at Alicante for third place.

Coaches and players from other teams agree with most soccer writers here that Italy is in the semifinals mainly because of Bearzot's perfect tactical game-plan against Brazil.

"It was a lesson of tactics and strategy," wrote the Spanish daily Vanguardia. Helenio Herrera, former coach of Real Madrid and a lifetime foe of the Italian manager, had to admit it was "a master's game."

The victory must have been deeply satisfying to the 54-year-old Bearzot, who has labored since 1977 to overcome the negative style of Italian league soccer. In league play, one goal is often enough to win, and a lead is regarded as something to sit on.

Against Brazil, Italy attacked brilliantly at the South Americans' one weakness — a tendency to concentrate on scoring and forget about defense. Paolo Rossi scored all three of the Italian goals.

With stubborn stamina and patience, Bearzot has weathered the storms which rage around the Italian team.

"If the boat sinks, I'll be the only one to remain aboard until the end," he said as Italy struggled through the first round, with lackluster ties against Poland, Peru and Cameroon.

"I believe in what I am doing and I am in charge. You can talk of my failure at the end, not of the team's, if this will be the outcome of our Cup," he said.

In his three major tasks since he took over the Italian team in 1977 — the 1978 and 1982 Cups and the 1980 European Championship — he has succeeded in placing among the top four.

Off the field, Bearzot guards his family's privacy jealously. He is equally protective of his players, never blasting them or praising them publicly, never presuming to comment on their private lives.

"Unless it is something that can affect the team, everyone has the right to pursue and promote his own image as he pleases," he says.

He demands the same respect from the others.

Youth Soccer Signup Extended

Registration for the Hereford & Vicinity YMCA's youth soccer program has been extended through the end of this week according to Y director Weldon Knabe. The original deadline was last Saturday, but Knabe said a low turnout forced the extension of the signup period. Players may register for the league at the YMCA office at Sugarland Mall. Details of registration may be obtained there or by calling the Y at 364-6990. The league is open to boys and girls in grades 1-6.

"Participation is the name of the game in the YMCA youth soccer program," Knabe said. "Each youngster gets to play in each game."

Stress Fracture Sidelines Coe

LONDON (AP) — There's no question that mile record-holder Sebastian Coe will be out for awhile with a stress fracture above his right ankle.

But there is some question as to just when the British runner will return to action — in particular, whether Coe will be able to salvage the last of three scheduled races against archrival Steve Ovett.

That race is slated for Sept. 25 at Eugene, Ore. Coe refused Tuesday to rule out his participation in that race and other major track meets in the early fall.

"I've just got to be optimistic and hope I will be able to race when it most matters, in the European championships (in Athens) and the Commonwealth Games," said Coe. "It would mean I would be able to manage the mile against Steve (Ovett) in Oregon on Sept. 25 as well."

"But," Coe added, "I don't want to place myself on any time schedule at this stage."

The director of the Eugene meet, Jeff Hollister, said he doubted Coe will be ready for the race against Ovett. "The backlog of training is going to make it impossible for him (Coe) to run," Hollister said. "Coe has been forced to withdraw from a 3,000-meter race against Ovett at London's Crystal Palace on July 17. And it appears unlikely Coe and Ovett will be able to hook up as scheduled at Nice, France on Aug. 14, since a Swiss sports promoter is quoted by British newspapers as saying Coe has told him he won't compete in a Zurich meet four days after the Nice race.

Coe had already missed several recent meet with a muscle problem in his lower calf. His latest injury was first thought to be a sore shin. "I had no idea about the stress fracture until I went to the hospital," Coe said. "It is often the case that these things don't show up immediately."

Andy Norman, the manager of the English team for the Crystal Palace meet, said, "It is difficult to say how long Seb will be out of action."

Once Formidable Reds Faltering

By DENNIS D'AGOSTINO Associated Press Writer

The Cincinnati Reds spent much of the 1970s dominating the National League. They won six NL West titles, four pennants and two world championships. And they had baseball's best overall record last season.

Now, midway through season, the Reds are just another last-place team with a nine-game losing streak.

"It's almost incomprehensible that this kind of thing is taking place," said catcher Dave Van Gorder. "When you lose nine straight you feel like, 'Geez, what else can happen?'"

St. Louis' Steve Mura, 6-7, handed the Reds their ninth straight loss, beating them 3-1 Tuesday, pushing them deeper into the cellar in the West.

In other NL games, Philadelphia nipped San Francisco 3-2, San Diego defeated Montreal 5-1, Chicago topped Atlanta 7-2, Pittsburgh nipped Houston

1-0, and Los Angeles blasted New York 9-3.

The Reds' nine-game losing streak is their longest since they dropped 11 in a row in 1966. Tuesday's loss gave them a 31-49 record, and they trail first-place Atlanta by a whopping 18½ games.

"It's embarrassing having the record we have," said loser Charlie Leibrandt. "I'm sure every guy on this team looks at the morning newspaper and says, 'Why? Why is this happening?'"

The restructured Reds lost their 1981 starting outfield of George Foster, Dave Collins and Ken Griffey either to trades or free agency. Their 40-man spring training roster contained 18 players who had never seen action in a Cincinnati uniform.

The Cards, who lead the NL East by .002 over Philadelphia, batted around for three runs in the fourth off Leibrandt. The rally was highlighted by RBI hits by Gene Tenace and Mike Ramsey.
