Precinct struggle continues

By SHAWN COCKRUM
Staff Writer

Deaf Smith County Commissioners continued Monday to struggle over the issue of developing new precinct lines in order to comply with a new law that is due to go into effect Jan. 1, 1986.

In Monday's meeting, commissioners heard from Deaf Smith County Clerk David Ruland as he proposed to combine the less-populated and divide the over-populated precincts. Ruland's proposal would combine Precincts 9 and Precinct 4, Precincts 6 and 10, and part of Precinct 1 and 7.

To comply with new state law

The new laws, which will not be enforced until July 1986 states that there shall be no precinct with more than 2,000 registered voters. Currently both Precincts 1 and 2 exceed that limit. In order to save money for the county, the commissioners feel that the county should keep the same number of ballot boxes - hence the combining of districts.

Ruland's proposal would also call for the division of Precinct 2. Precinct 2 now consists of most of the city of Hereford and extends northwest into the county. Currently all voters in Precinct 2 vote at the Deaf Smith County courthouse, the proposal would state that half of the voters report to the courthouse, and the rest of the precinct would vote at Tierra Blanca school. Ruland's proposal would also divide precinct five, which also consists of part of the city of Hereford. Voters in that district currently vote at the community center, the proposal would call for another ballot to be placed at Bluebonnet School.

The commissioners elected to have Ruland call for a public meeting concerning the matter.

Ruland stated that the new law will not be enforced until July, but the commission feels that the county should be aware that changes will occur in the future.

In other business the commission: Accepted a bid from Blue Cross-Blue Shield to insure the employees of the county. The bid is approximately $100 less per month than last year's bid.

Amended the 1984-85 budget to allow for overtime salary adjustments, phone bills and supplies for the jail.

Appointed Troy Don Moore to fill the vacancy as a third member of a grievance committee.

Voted to allow Westar Transmission Company to bury two gas line monitoring units near county roads. The unit would be buried three feet below ground level. A meter would extend from the ground in order for workers to continue to check the gas lines for problems without digging up the line.

Local couple praying to hear from earthquake victim

By CINDY SMITH
Staff Writer

"There's nothing we can do but pray," said Melda Don Juan.

Her husband, Gabriel and his sister Francis, who is a senior at Hereford High School, are waiting patiently to find out if their sister, Esther Don Juan, who lives in a colony in the affected area of the Mexico earthquake is alive.

Don Juan was sitting in his recliner watching a soap opera on Channel 13 when the notice of the earthquake came across the screen.

"I didn't worry about it then," he said, "because Mexico has had other quakes and it didn't look so bad."

That evening around 6 p.m., a bulletin interrupted a movie with more news of the earthquake.

This time the news was serious. "It showed the awful destruction and I noticed that one of the colonies that my sister lives in was on the list," said Don Juan.

"Hon, I don't know what's going on," Don Juan told his wife then. "Everything is falling apart."

"As long as we have faith, everything will be all right," replied his wife.

The news bulletin lasted an hour and showed the colonies that Don Juan's sister lives in.

Don Juan has been able, however, to contact his mother in Rio Verde which is located about 300 miles from Mexico City.

"They felt the tremors of the earthquake," he said, "telephone poles were falling down ... The quake did cause damage in San Luis Potosi."

"I'm going to keep trying to find out if she's okay. I have several cousins and an aunt that live in that area," he added. "We pray every night that she'll be all right..."

Wayne White, a local ham operator, is helping the local Red Cross make contacts in Mexico.

He was giving a demonstration in electronics with his radio in class at Hereford High School when the earthquake hit. White was copying teletype on a computer when the station disappeared. The class didn't realize what they were hearing until the news of the Mexico earthquake was televised.

White, also emergency coordinator with a ham radio club, received a call Saturday morning requesting help in locating victims in Mexico.

White said he had worked several calls and is willing to work other calls as necessary by using the International Red Cross channels and other priority channels.

Commissioner must take test, too

By JERI CURTIS
Managing Editor

State commissioner of education Dr. William Kirby assured Hereford educators and parents Monday night that he, too, will be taking the teacher competency test next spring since it was mandatory as part of House Bill 72 and Texas' school reform.

However, Betty Volkman, president of the hosting Hereford Educators Association, queried whether Gov. Mark White would also be taking the test.

Kirby said that likely not, but the state's First Lady probably would to keep her certification.

The competency test, which has caused anxiety among teachers and sprouted seminars in preparation for it, is simply being used to cull out teachers who are not literate, Kirby said.

"If there are 10,000 teachers who can't read and write, no wonder we have problems in the schools," he told the crowd of about 100.

Kirby emphasized that the test won't be to determine who is a good teacher.

He added that with the test came better working conditions, including a duty free lunch.

Much of the teacher frustration over the reform bill has been through no or poor communication from the state education department to the teachers, Kirby admitted.

He gave an example of some teachers who had conceived time lines for teaching essential elements to be extremely rigid. When the clock showed the time was up for one subject, the teachers dropped everything and changed subjects. Kirby said the revision called for weekly time requirements and flexibility, although even the original law didn't intend for time lines to be so rigid.

Another misunderstanding Kirby noted was that essential elements had to be detailed in lesson plans as a state requirement.

"Essential elements haven't changed," he told teachers who had been teaching "five, ten or fifteen years."

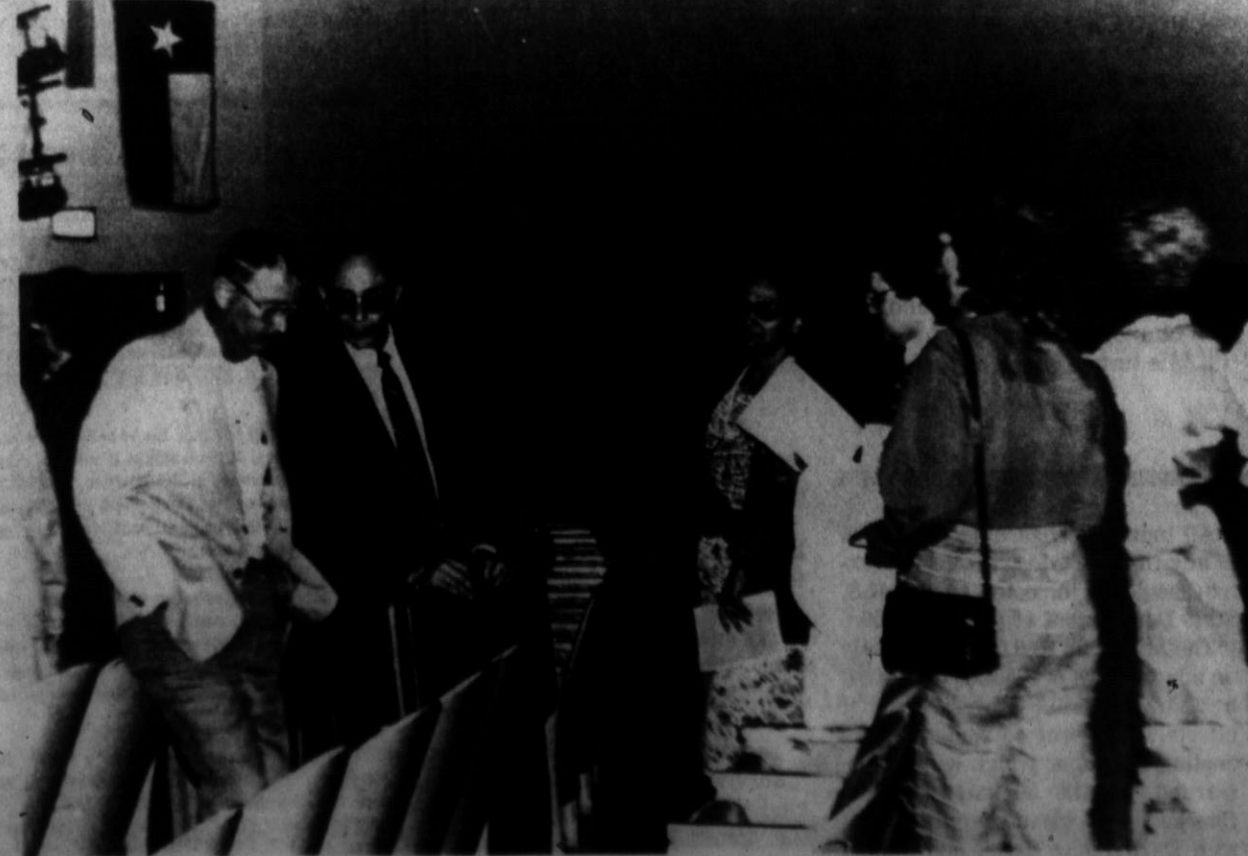

"Yes, you know what they are, you've seen them," he said. "Our people need to understand lesson plans. Lesson plans are your business, they're not ours."

Kirby said some of the burdens were not caused by the administrations or by the law, but by overzealous workshop leaders who went beyond the intent of the law.

Inconsistencies in career ladder choices throughout the state will be resolved next year, Kirby said. Approximately 11,000 appraisers are being trained to do that job so that teachers can be evaluated on the same basis.

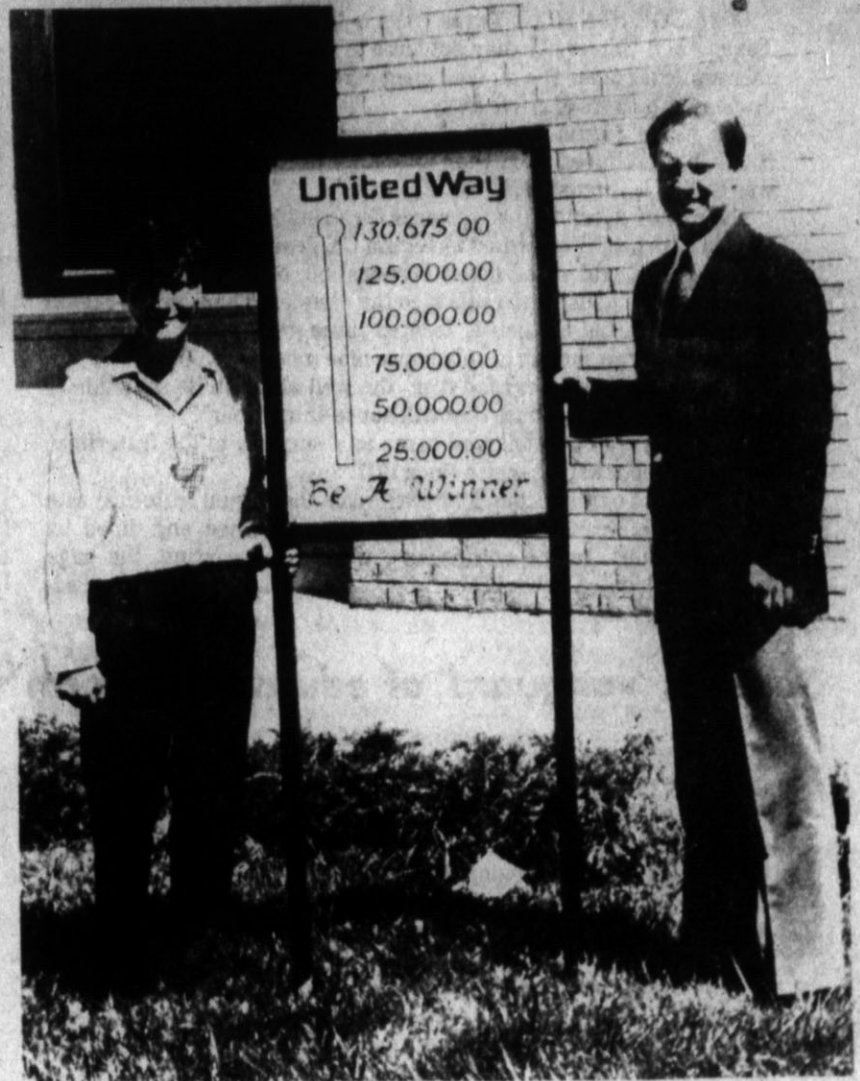

Paperwork, also a hot topic among teachers, should be trimmed to "eliminate any unnecessary burdens," Kirby said, by finding the minimum amount necessary.

Communication with teachers, not just administration, is now a goal of the state education department. Kirby said the agency will be sending teachers a newsletter-type communique which previously went only to administrations.

United Way Board Up

Carol Sue LeGate and Roger Eades look over the United Way report board which has been placed at the post office. The campaign to raise $130,625 for 10 participating agencies is now underway, with the drive scheduled to end Nov. 2. Eades is this year's campaign chairman and Mrs. LeGate is publicity chairman.

UW reports first week's gain

The United Way of Deaf Smith County has launched its annual funding campaign for 10 agencies, and the first report meeting Monday revealed that $12,644 had been contributed the first week.

"Be a Winner" is the theme of this year's drive, and volunteer officers and directors emphasized Monday that the success of the community-wide campaign depends on all citizens giving a fair share.

Roger Eades, campaign chairman, urged companies and individuals to welcome the volunteer workers and help them make the drive a success. He said officers stressed the importance of the employee division. "We must contact employees and urge them to consider payroll deductions—perhaps a small amount each month that would not be missed."

This year's goal is $130,625 and the campaign is scheduled to end Nov. 2. A volunteer is scheduled to contact each business during the campaign and solicit a business and employee gift at the same time. Volunteers are available to show a United Way movie, "To Be A Winner", starring John Madden, for those who desire to view the informative film.

The United Way of Deaf Smith County funds 10 agencies and Bill Harris, president of UW this year, urged contributors to remember that a gift to the United Way is 10 gifts in one. "Each individual must make the decision on how much to give. For those who have not been involved, consider two cents of an hour's pay for a year, or $41.60. Whatever you decide to give will be appreciated and will make all of us winners," said Harris.

Agencies of the United Way are: Big Brothers/Big Sisters, Camp Fire Inc., Boy Scouts, Family Services, Red Cross, Salvation Army, Senior Citizens, YMCA, Children's Rehab Center and Hi Plains Epilepsy Foundation.

Oil well found behind fraternity house

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — The Sigma Chi fraternity at Texas A&M University may not have to worry about collecting dues this semester since the oil well discovered in their back yard is producing 300 barrels of crude daily.

The Aggie Sigma Chi No. 1, located 500 yards behind the frat house, has produced more than $50,000 for the group's coffers since it was drilled in August 1984.

The money doesn't all go towards throwing keg parties. Instead it goes to a corporation formed by Sigma Chi graduates.

This group, called the house corporation, owns the 11-acre compound and the house and rents it to the chapter. There are 95 Sigma Chi members, but the house, located three miles south of the A&M campus, is large enough to only house nine members.

Much of the money earned from the well also will be set aside to buy a new fraternity house that will house 42 members.

The discovery of the oil well came as a surprise to the fraternity, which has occupied the house since 1977.

The start of drilling coincided with rush, the annual fraternity rite of autumn in which incoming freshmen are wined and dined by various groups. In the competitive world of recruiting, the huge drilling rig located behind the frat house gave the Sigma Chis an advantage, they say.

South is 'vanguard' of education reform

AUSTIN (AP) — The South, once known for its poor public schools, is now at the "vanguard" of education reform, according to Kentucky Gov. Martha Layne Collins.

"We know where we ranked in the past. Today, that is history," she told the Southern Regional Education Board here Monday.

Kentucky is one of several Southern states that have approved sweeping, and sometimes costly, education reforms. It's paid off, she said.

"The South is at the vanguard of education reform," said Ms. Collins.

The Kentucky reform package, approved this year, carried a $310 million price tag.

"In the South, we've got education on the right track, we've got it moving," said Ms. Collins.

Improved education will give the South "its share of the new and better jobs," she added.

In a speech at the Capitol, Texas Gov. Mark White told the board that education reform can be tough to push through legislatures.

"I was almost overwhelmed to think that people wouldn't immediately adopt it ... just raise their hand, vote aye and let's go," said White.

City wants Statue of Liberty auctioned

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — City officials battling the federal government over more than $940,000 in unpaid water bills for the Statue of Liberty say if they don't get satisfaction they'll try to foreclose and auction it off.

"God, it would be the greatest auction to see," Mayor Anthony Cucci said Monday.

But Cucci admitted, "We really do not want to sell the Statue of Liberty. What we do want is almost a million dollars. I'm going after it."

George Berkclacy, a spokesman for the U.S. Department of Interior, which operates the island through the National Park Service, rose to the defense of Lady Liberty, saying no entity can foreclose on federal property.

"We'd like to find the guy who buys the statue and see if we could sell him the Brooklyn Bridge," said Berkclacy.

Satellite links Red Cross organizations

ROTTERDAM, N.Y. (AP) — The satellite that took the first color photographs of Earth from space is linking Red Cross officials in Washington, D.C., and Mexico City, where long-distance telephone service was wrecked during last week's earthquakes.

Mexican Red Cross officials are bouncing their transmissions from the roof of a hospital off NASA's ATS-3 satellite to a General Electric Co. receiving station on a hilltop about 20 miles east of Albany.

A telephone call is made to the American Red Cross in Washington, and officials in both countries then speak directly, with GE communications experts acting as operators for the satellite-aided calls.

The Washington portions of the conversations go back along the same path.

In all, the voices travel nearly 90,000 miles to complete a call between two points about 1,600 miles apart.

Since 1967, the ATS-3 satellite, about the size of a 55-gallon drum, has been in orbit 22,300 miles above the equator south of El Paso, Texas.

The link with Mexico City was established Saturday through GE's Radio Optical Observatory, a cinderblock building crammed with radio transmitting and receiving equipment.

Hispanics make biggest gain in SAT

NEW YORK (AP) — The biggest gain in scores on the Scholastic Aptitude Test in two decades was based on strong performances by college-bound minority students, especially Hispanics, but some results received unfavorable interpretations.

The average 1985 SAT scores, announced by The College Board on Monday, climbed a combined nine points to 906 — up five points on the verbal portion to 431 and four points in math to 475. It was the biggest jump since 1963.

College Board president George Hanford and Secretary of Education William J. Bennett hailed the gains as evidence that the non-sense reforms schools have adopted in the 1970s and 1980s are beginning to pay off.

Bennett called the results "further evidence that American secondary education is on the mend."

About 1 million students take the exam, administered by the private company.

Although minority students showed the largest gains, not all of the figures were seen in a positive light.

Puerto Rican students scored the largest gains of any ethnic group. Verbal scores rose 10 points to 368, and math scores rose four points to 409.

Mexican-Americans also improved sharply, up six to 382 in verbal, and up six to 426 in the math portion.

Average SAT scores among black students rose three points in the math section to 376 and up four points in the verbal to 346. It left blacks still trailing the national average combined math-verbal score by 184 points.

Subconscious may effect work

LUBBOCK — Personal background and subconscious loyalties may affect work production and behavior more than material motivational rewards, according to a Texas Tech University management professor.

Joseph P. Yaney said, "We have found that many individuals may score well in management training and then not be able to actually perform some of their job functions because of familial-implanted expectations or behaviors."

Yaney cited an instance of a management trainee who scored well in classes that included sections on how to delegate. But, because of old fears and roles learned in childhood, the employee would never delegate work.

"What happened is that employee was the third child in the family and had learned that he was rewarded only for personal effort, not for being a member of a team," Yaney said. "Because that behavior was so strongly ingrained as a child, the employee was unable to break the pattern as an adult."

Yaney, along with Dr. Charles E. Shields and Kae Hentges of the Texas Tech Health Sciences Center Department of Family Medicine, is researching how these family-learned motivational factors affect work-place performance.

Texan flies flags of 19 countries

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Hal Yeager Jr. is a real flagwaver.

Yeager is so serious about his flag-waving that every day for the past two years — weather permitting — he has raised the banner of some country or special observance onto the 25-foot flagpole in his yard.

"I like the way it looks when a flag waves. I just enjoy it. And I enjoy color — lots of color. This is the only hobby I've ever had that's kept me home," Yeager said.

Yeager's collection includes the flags of 19 foreign countries and five states, nine special observance flags and two religious flags. He began his colorful hobby, however, with only two flags.

"I first started off with the Texas and American flags. Then the Danish squadron in the NATO group presented the Maverick Club (of which Yeager is a member) with a Danish flag, and I ended up with it. I couldn't properly entertain the other NATO groups and not fly their flags, so it just kind of kept growing from there," Yeager said.

Yeager erected the $300 aluminum flagpole in his yard two years ago, and has flown one of his flags every day since.

He chose aluminum because, he said, "It's prettier than an ordinary pole, and it doesn't wear out the flag as much."

He buys the 4-by-6 foot flag at a cost of $35 each from the J. Hugh Campbell Co. in Dallas, where he says he is on a first-name basis with the employees.

"First I acquired the flags of all the NATO countries. Then I got one for Sweden because Betty (his wife) and her parents are Swedes. Then I got flags for France, Mexico, Australia, Iceland and all the Nordic countries. Then as an afterthought I got a birthday flag, a smile face, a Christian flag, a Christmas flag and several other holiday flags," he said.

To make sure he's flying the appropriate flag for a particular holiday or occasion, Yeager keeps a handmade calendar of each country's national or special holidays. Foreign personnel at Shepard Air Force Base keep him informed about dates on which to fly their countries' flags, he said.

His hobby is an expensive one — he joked that he couldn't reveal in front of his wife how much he has spent on the collection. But he said he believes it is worthwhile because the trend seems to be spreading.

Yeager said he doesn't know when he'll call his collection complete, but he does know which flag he wants next.

"The one I want now is the flag of Chile, and the reason is because it looks so much like the Texas flag. I bet I could fly it a week before anyone would notice it wasn't," he said with a grin.

But even with all the flags he owns, there are some blank dates on his calendar on which he can fly any flag he chooses. On those days he chooses from one of his two favorites.

"I'm really partial to Old Glory and Texas. I still get goose bumps when I see them waving," he said.

Attorney to use beating as defense

DONNA, Texas (AP) — One day last spring, Nivio Sanchez gave his wife, Sylvia, $180 to buy Easter clothes for their two daughters.

The woman, however, used most of the money to buy a .22-caliber pistol and bullets, eight of which she emptied into her husband while he sat outside a bar.

Ms. Sanchez will go on trial for her husband's murder next month, and her attorney, state Rep. Juan Hinojosa, believes his client will go free. After years of enduring physical abuse from her husband, Ms. Sanchez snapped, Hinojosa said.

He will use the "battered women's syndrome" in defending the 28-year-old woman.

"By the time you reach that stage where you take this type of action, you've already gone to the police to no avail; you've gone to relatives to no avail; you've gone to the courts to no avail," Hinojosa said.

"You are in a helpless situation where you have no other recourse but to defend yourself."

The attorney said Ms. Sanchez had been abused for seven years, but the situation could not have been remedied by a divorce.

"There is a misconception among the public, especially among people who have not experienced the battered women's syndrome or do not find themselves in a situation where they are beaten violently by their husbands or boyfriends," Hinojosa said.

"It is not that simple as getting up and walking away from the situation ... There are children involved. The economic situation does not allow the woman the independence to go out on her own ... She doesn't have any place to go," he said.

Jury selection in Ms. Sanchez's trial is scheduled to begin Oct. 28 in the Hidalgo County Courthouse in Edinburg. Assistant District Attorney Iris Aguilar, who is prosecuting the case, declined to discuss it.

Hinojosa said the state is looking at the case as premeditated murder.

He said Nivio Sanchez physically abused his wife around April 1 and that Ms. Sanchez had to wrestle a knife away from him.

On April 5, Good Friday, Ms. Sanchez wanted to buy clothes for her two daughters for Easter Sunday. Her husband gave her $180, and went to a bar, Hinojosa said.

On Saturday morning, Nivio Sanchez said that before the day was over, "he was going to do something to her that she wasn't going to forget," Hinojosa said.

The woman, remembering the money she was given the day before, went to a hardware store and purchased a .22-caliber pistol and bullets. That night she went to the bar her husband frequented. He was sitting with another couple in a car outside the bar. He laughed at her when she showed up with the gun, Hinojosa said.

"He said, 'I'm going to take the gun away from you and shoot you with it,' and then that's when she fired," Hinojosa said.

One bullet missed, the other eight didn't. She waited for police to arrest her.

Hinojosa said the case has similarities to another real-life domestic murder made into a television movie, "The Burning Bed," in which an abused woman set her husband on fire while he slept.

A local support group for battered women, Mujeres Unidas Women United, has helped set up a defense fund for Ms. Sanchez, Hinojosa said.

The defense at her trial will rest on experts' testimony that years of abuse caused Ms. Sanchez to snap, he said.

"The battered women's syndrome has been used as a defense and has been accepted by other courts in other states," Hinojosa said. "And what we're trying to do is establish that a woman who can prove that she was beaten violently by a husband or boyfriend, and was in a state of mind of what we identified as the battered women's syndrome, can assert self-defense if she kills her husband or boyfriend."

Billy Martin: No more Mr. Nice Guy

BALTIMORE (AP) — From now on, vows Billy Martin, it's no more Mr. Nice Guy.

"No more peacemaking," said the embattled manager of the New York Yankees. "If I see a fight, I'll go up to my room."

Martin contends his latest off-the-field escapade, a knockdown, drag-out fistfight with New York pitcher Ed Whitson just after midnight Saturday, started only because he tried to be a peacemaker.

The on-again, off-again fight raged from the hotel bar — where Martin was also involved in a shoving match with a patron on Friday night — to the lobby and out onto a parking lot before ending with a shouting session in a third-floor hallway.

Players and members of the media tried to intervene, but witnesses said Whitson kept breaking free and then the 57-year-old Martin would again tangle with his 30-year-old adversary.

At one point, Martin was heard to shout: "I'm going to kill you." A security guard at the Cross Keys Hotel, which the Yanks use during their trips to Baltimore, called the battle "one of the most brutal fights I've ever seen."

By gametime Sunday, Martin had reported to Memorial Stadium with a broken ulna bone in his right forearm. Whitson had been sent home, and the Yankees' management had launched a fact-finding mission to determine the facts.

Yankee owner George Steinbrenner, reached by telephone in Florida, told the New York Times that he had dispatched General Manager Clyde King and vice president Woody Woodward to investigate the incident.

Martin contended that when he tried to head off a budding fight between Whitson and another bar patron, the pitcher suddenly turned on him.

"Some guy came over and said get over there quick, Whitson's in trouble," Martin said. "Whitson had this guy stood up and straightened up as if he was going to hit him. I said, 'Hey, Ed, don't get into trouble now. You don't need it.' He turned on me and went crazy."

Local DAR Chapter welcomes professor

Dr. Duane Guy was guest speaker at the Los Ciboleros Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution meeting held Thursday afternoon in Deaf Smith County Library Heritage Room.

Regent, Violet Reinauer, presided. After the opening ritual, the Pledge to the Flag to the United States of America was recited; the National Anthem was sung; and the American's creed was recited.

The Preamble to the Constitution was read by Mildred Drake, chairman of Constitution Week, who then introduced Dr. Guy, history professor.

Dr. Guy received Ph.D. from the University of Kansas in 1964. He currently holds the position as head of the history department at West Texas State University in Canyon. He was appointed to that position in 1967. He is also editor of "Panhandle Plains Historical Review."

The speaker's subject was "The Bicentennial of the Constitution of the United States of America." He said, "of the 55 men who drafted the Constitution at the Convention in Philadelphia in May 1787, some of whom were very prominent such as George Washington and Benjamin Franklin, James Madison from Virginia was a key figure. He was a giant intellect, a student of history and political science and a graduate of Princeton, he had a clear vision of what was needed for a Constitution and presented his plan. It was modified and finally adopted. Thus, Madison is called the 'Father of the Constitution.'" It was Benjamin Franklin who said, "God governs the affairs of men."

of the United States of America. Washington said, "It appears to me little short of a miracle." It is the oldest Constitution in the world and has proved both stable and flexible.

After the convention, through the efforts of George Mason, the Bill of Rights, or the first 10 amendments, officially became a part of the constitution on Dec. 25, 1791.

Ruth Newsom, chairman of the American History Month Essay Contest, announced the topic of the contest of 1985-86 would be "Prominent Signers of the Constitution—George Washington, Benjamin Franklin, James Madison and Alexander Hamilton."

Students in the fifth through eighth grades in public, private and parochial schools may compete. Deadline for the Chapter to receive essays from schools is Dec. 17, 1986.

Yearbooks were distributed by Kathryn Ruga, vice-regent, and program chairman. Also, Mrs. John Carrol Lantz was voted as a new member.

It was announced that the regent has been invited to speak at St. Anthony's School at 2 p.m. Thursday.

Oilers start slow in first three NFL games

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers have a common thread that connects their first three National Football League games this season — slow starts.

The Oilers fell behind Miami in their opener but charged back to win. They sputtered against Washington and rallied to a near victory.

They started slowly again Sunday against the Pittsburgh Steelers and the wheels came off.

The Oilers fell behind 17-0 at the half and lost 20-0.

Oiler Coach Hugh Campbell said that one area he won't consider as the problem is enthusiasm.

"Emotion hasn't been a problem for us," Campbell said. "On Sunday, we were outplayed but it wasn't because we were lackadaisical about it."

The Oilers, 3-13 last season, reverted to 1984 form against the Steelers, gaining only eight first downs, 134 total yards of offense. It was Houston's first shutout in 122 games.

"Obviously, we'd all like to start strong, end strong and play strong in the middle," Campbell said. "We forced them to punt the first time and had them third and 16 the second time when (Louis) Lipps made that great catch to give them a first down."

The Oilers reached the Pittsburgh one in the second quarter but failed to score and quarterback Warren Moon fumbled on fourth down that preserved the shutout and gave Pittsburgh a 17-0 halftime lead.

"I don't think that was the turning point in the game but it was disappointing that we had a chance to get back in the game and get a score on the board, and couldn't do it," Campbell said.

The Oilers lost to Washington 16-13 in a game that had two touchdowns called back on calls NFL officials later admitted were incorrect.

"All my feelings are right now is that we have a lot to do and I'm anxious to get to working toward another game," Campbell said. "It's frustrating when you move the ball and don't score."

The Oilers play the Dallas Cowboys, 2-1, in the Astrodome Sunday.

"They're a great football team with a great coach," Campbell said. "They are a team we'd like to play well against for obvious reasons."

Oiler wide receiver Tim Smith had definite feelings about the two losses.

"This is a different kind of loss than last week's at Washington," Smith said. "Last week, we felt we won. This week, we didn't play well enough to win."

Campbell said the two losses should not affect the morale of the team because it is so young despite comments from fans who fear another 3-13 season.

"I think this team's young enough that it (criticism) doesn't hammer them into the ground," he said. "When those comments come up, I'm sure it's not a joy to hear. I'm sure they don't appreciate it."

Starting offensive tackle Harvey Salem saw his first playing time of the season after recovering from a knee injury in training camp. Starting offensive guard Dean Steinkuhler, out since last season with a knee injury, is expected to play against the Cowboys.

Neurologist needed

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My mother died four months ago. Today, my 78-year-old father made a pass at me. I quickly set him straight, told him to keep his hands to himself and if he tried any more funny stuff, it would be the end of our relationship. I also suggested that he seek professional help. He apologized and said I was probably right about his needing help.

Ann, I am 40, married with three children of my own. I am the youngest of three — the one my parents depended on to take care of them. Through the years, I had a very close relationship with my mother. My relationship with Dad was not as close, but I respected and loved him.

Right now I am hurt and disillusioned. Please tell me if this sort of thing happens frequently. Also ask your experts if there is anything else I need to do to ensure that this doesn't happen to any other female members of the family. Thanks, Ann. I read you all the time.—NO NAME, NO CITY

DEAR N.N.N.C.: If your father has never done this sort of thing before, there is a possibility that his mind may be impaired.

By all means see that he goes to a neurologist and is checked thoroughly. If the doctor finds no evidence of an organic or aging problem, recommend to your father that he get counseling.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I like the way you admit it when you are wrong. Recently you were proven right. Will you forgo modesty and print the enclosed editorial? It appeared in the Chicago SunTimes—LOVE YOU IN DECATUR

DEAR LOVE: With pleasure. Thanks for sending it on. The Hug, Again

"Some months ago, readers of Ann Landers' column—great, leaping numbers of readers—turned marital mythology topsy-turvy.

"Young and old, they chose the Tender Hug over The Act, and by a whopping margin.

"Now, if there were any doubters, Ann's findings are confirmed. A formal, academic study published in Psychology Today magazine sought to determine the ingredients of a happy marriage and the responses paralleled those of Ann's readers. The Act was well down the list of essential ingredients for both men and women.

The No. 1 factor? Friendship, of course.

"Friendship implies sharing, and sharing and friendship taken together lead almost inevitably to the Tender Hug. And, of course, the Tender Hug leads to sharing and friendship. It's a natural cycle. "Have a nice day."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a most embarrassing problem. My underarms perspire something terrible. I don't just sweat. I drop. I have tried every deodorant and anti-perspirant on the market with no success. I have read several books looking for a solution but have found no help. Please come to my rescue.—ALL WET IN GROVER CITY, CALIF.

DEAR G.C.: I repeat: A good dermatologist who has the patience to work with you and experiment with a combination of substances can solve the problem. Find him or her.

Can drugs be a friend in time of stress? If you keep your head together can they be of help? Ann Landers' all-new booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope," separates the fact from the fiction. Get it today. For each booklet ordered, send $2.00, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

STATE-LOCAL REVENUE FROM FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

(Source: Commerce Clearing House)

NEA GRAPHIC

In the 1980s, the percentage of state-local revenue accounted for by U.S. aid has been decreasing. By 1986, the federal percentage is expected to reach its lowest point since the 1960s.

Ten inches of snow fell in parts of New England on June 6, 1816, beginning "the year in which there was no summer."

Day-care worker charged with molesting children

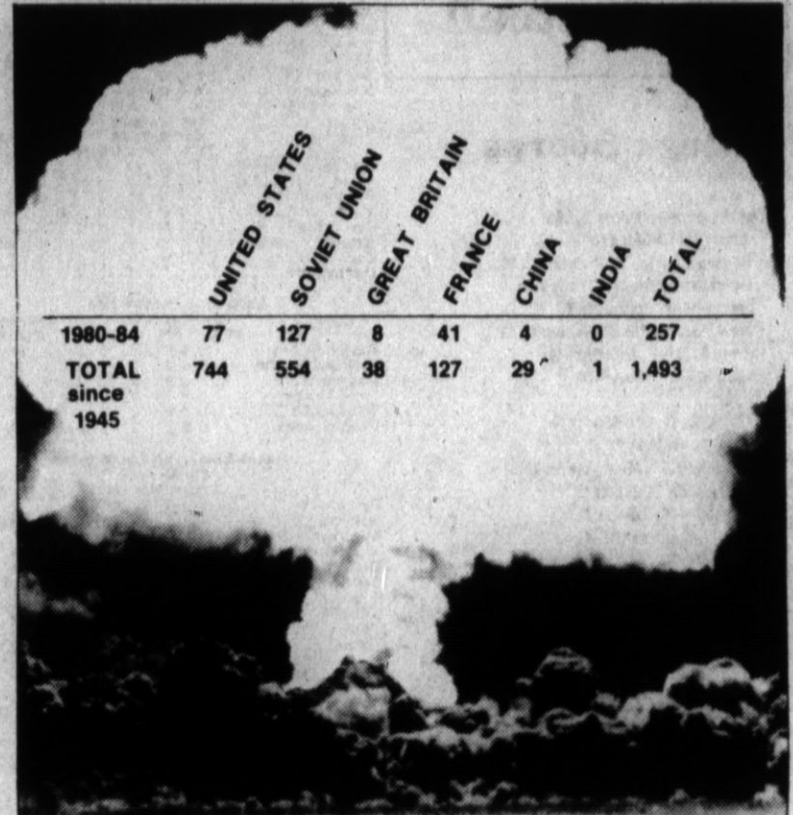

PARIS, Texas (AP) — A day-care center worker described by his mother as a "good, dependable boy" has been indicted on charges of sexually abusing seven preschool children attending the center. A Lamar County grand jury has charged Edward Wayne Sanders, 19, with 11 counts of sexually assaulting four girls and three boys, all under age 5 years. Sanders was an aide and janitor at the King's Daughters Day Care Center for about 18 months. Paris Police Chief Charles Whitley said more victims may be identified. "To say only (seven) children were involved would be a misstatement. It could be many more," Whitley told the Dallas Times Herald. "We're getting more information every day." Sharon Williams, the center's director, said she never noticed anything unusual in the behavior of the children. She said Sanders "was wonderful with the children. They all loved him." "I've cried until I can't cry anymore," she said. "Nobody knows better than me what problems this can cause when they grow up." Suspicions of abuse surfaced Sept. 5 when the mother of a 3-year-old noticed bruises on her daughter. The child said Sanders tried to have intercourse with her in a school bathroom, said Kerye Ashmore, assistant Lamar County district attorney. A hospital examination confirmed the child had been molested, the prosecutor said. Officials of the Texas Department of Human Resources have since interviewed about 33 children known to have had contact with Sanders since last spring, when the incidents allegedly began. At least seven children told investigators Sanders abused them while they were at the center, Whitley said. Sanders' mother insists her son is innocent. "He's a good, dependable boy" who is the victim of heresy, said Martha Sanders. "He didn't do those things." Sanders' references described the youth as pleasant, gentle and quiet. A criminal background check on Sanders turned up nothing.

NUCLEAR TESTS

The scores so far

(Source: Stockholm International Peace Research Institute) NEA GRAPHIC

In the 40 years of the atomic age, there have been about 1,500 nuclear test explosions — most of them underground. Devices are still tested at the rate of about one a week worldwide. However, the only major nuclear testing above ground in the 1980s has been carried out by France and China.

Index trading unsettles market

NEW YORK (AP) — If there is any such thing as a natural order in the stock market, many people say it has lately gotten out of whack. The tail is wagging the dog. The cart is pulling the horse. Whatever metaphor is used, the message is that stock prices are moving up and down as a result of forces unrelated to stock values. It all started with the introduction a few years back of options and futures contracts on stock-market indexes. When you buy an index future, you effectively place a bet that the index itself will rise before the delivery date specified in the contract. Index futures work just like similar contracts on pork bellies, plywood or platinum, except that a stock index isn't a physical commodity that can be delivered when it is time to settle a contract. To get around that problem, the rules call for payment to be made in cash. One important characteristic of futures is that they are free to fluctuate independently of the current market for the underlying commodity. If a stock index is at 100 today, the contract for December settlement isn't necessarily also at 100. It might be at 104, or 102, or even 98.

Come December, however, the futures contract's price will naturally tend to converge with the index itself, until the two meet by the delivery date. Once you understand these basic principles, how can you turn them to your financial benefit? Well, if you have enough chips to play with — at least a few million dollars worth — there is a strategy that involves little or no theoretical risk. Say the index is at 100, and the December future is at 103. You don't know, any more than the next person does, whether the stock market is going to rise or fall between now and December. But you do know that by December, the two numbers, now 3 points apart, will come together, whether the meeting point occurs at 75 or 150. So you sell a December contract at 103 and buy the current index at 100. Buy the current index? You can't do that. It isn't an entity that is available for sale or purchase. But, instead, you can buy a "basket" of individual stocks that make up the index. The whole thing has to be executed quickly to work right. So your buy orders for the stocks hit the market in a barrage, driving up stock prices briefly.

Suppose, then, that a few weeks from now the index is still at 100, while the December future has also fallen to 100. You square your position in the futures market by buying back the contract you sold earlier. A profit there. And you square your position in the stock market by selling the stocks you bought earlier — once again in a quick blast of orders that hits the trading floor hard. While your sell "program" is being conducted, stock prices briefly tumble, but you come out about even on the stock side of your maneuver. Now imagine that you are not alone in this activity — that several big brokerage houses are intensely pursuing the same tactics. At any unpredictable moment when their computers tell them a profit opportunity exists, they pile into the market with buy or sell programs. The result is periodic spells of freakish weather in the stock market. The question is whether that freakish weather might scare away the small investors who are supposed to give the market depth and strength and a measure of stability.

The Newspaper BIBLE

470 SOLDIERS TO ESCORT ONE INNOCENT PRISONER!
The commander called two of his officers and ordered, "Get 200 soldiers ready to leave for Caesarea at nine o'clock tonight! Take 200 spearmen and 70 mounted cavalry. Give Paul a horse to ride and get him safely to Governor Felix." Then he wrote this letter to the Governor: "From: Claudius Lysias To: His Excellency, Governor Felix. Greetings!
This man was seized by the Jews and they were killing him when I sent the soldiers to rescue him, for I learned that he was a Roman citizen. Then I took him to their Council to try to find out what he had done. I soon discovered it was something about their Jewish beliefs, certainly nothing worthy of imprisonment or death. But when I was informed of a plot to kill him, I decided to send him on to you and will tell his accusers to bring their charges before you."
So that night, as ordered, the soldiers took Paul to Antipatris. They returned to the armory the next morning, leaving him with the cavalry to take him on to Caesarea. When they arrived in Caesarea, they presented Paul and the letter to the governor. He read it and then asked Paul where he was from. "Cilicia," Paul answered. "I will hear your case fully when your accusers arrive," the governor told him, and ordered him kept in the prison at King Herod's palace. Acts 23:23-35
