

Sandstrom's Wife Guarded

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP)—Shawnee County Dist. Atty. Gene Olander was expected to file today a first degree murder charge against Milda J. Sandstrom, wife of Topeka broadcast executive Thad M. Sandstrom, who was shot to death early Tuesday in the estranged couple's home here.

Olander told a news conference late Tuesday he would seek the first degree murder conviction on the basis of evidence indicating an apparent murder and attempted suicide. Conviction would carry a life sentence with eligibility for parole after 15 years.

Mrs. Sandstrom, 53, a native of Tulsa, Okla., was placed under police guard at Stormont-Vail Hospital here pending her arrest on a murder warrant, expected within two more days.

She was in satisfactory condition after being treated for an overdose of pills, the type and quantity of which Olander said he had not been able to determine.

Meanwhile, funeral services were scheduled for 10 a.m. Friday in Topeka's First Presbyterian Church for Sandstrom, 51. Burial will be in Memorial Park Cemetery in Kansas City, Kan., where Sandstrom was born Oct. 11, 1925.

Sandstrom had filed for divorce Monday, alleging incompatibility. The couple had been married 24 years and had no children.

Olander said Sandstrom died of two gunshot wounds to the back of his head, apparently as he lay asleep in bed.

A friend and business associate of the Sandstroms, Paul Winders, found the couple after being called to the home by Mrs. Sandstrom, Olander said. A police report quoted Winders as saying Mrs. Sandstrom told him in the telephone conversation, "I won't see you again."

The district attorney said Sandstrom was found in a pool of blood on a bed in a first floor bedroom, with Mrs. Sandstrom lying next to him. He said a .32 caliber revolver was found on the bed, next to her hand.

She was thought at first to be dead also, Olander said, but when an ambulance arrived at the home, she was found to be alive and was rushed to the hospital.

There were no signs of a struggle, Olander said.

Olander said Mrs. Sandstrom was visiting her father in Wynnewood, Okla., Monday when she was notified by a "mutual friend" of her and her husband that the divorce petition had been filed.

The district attorney said Mrs. Sandstrom was notified about 5 p.m. Monday, and apparently drove alone in an automobile to Topeka that night.

He said a window pane on a kitchen door of the Sandstrom home was broken to gain entrance, apparently to unhook a chain safety lock on the inside of the door.

The home was equipped with a modern alarm system furnished by a Topeka company of which Sandstrom was president. The firm's manager, Joe Hornor, would only say that Mrs. Sandstrom was familiar with the alarm system, and that it could be deactivated by anyone reaching the control mechanism inside the house within 30 seconds.

Olander said his office still was attempting to learn when and where the revolver believed to be the murder weapon was purchased. He said it was not thought to have been a family possession.

The district attorney said he had not received a statement from Mrs. Sandstrom, because she was at first incapable of giving a voluntary statement because of the pills she had taken, and she later retained an attorney who advised her against making any statement.

Twisters Accompany South Plains Storm

A menacing thunderstorm system which formed in the South Plains late yesterday spawned several tornadoes before passing over the eastern portion of Deaf Smith County last night without inflicting damage or depositing moisture.

At one time, a major portion of the Panhandle was under a menacing thunderstorm and tornado watch.

The storm initially formed in the Lamb and Bailey County area and moved in a northeasterly direction.

A twister struck the Three Way community in south Bailey County at about 8:30 last night, inflicting heavy damage to school buildings, nearby apartments and a mobile home.

Another house in the Maple community, near the school also was hit, but no serious injuries were reported.

A tornado touched down three miles south of Morton less than an hour later, but no damage was reported.

Funnels also were reported near the communities of Littlefield and Sudan, but no damage was reported in Lamb County.

Late last night, a tornado was reported at Lubbock in the vicinity of 34th Street and the West Loop, but apparently was never confirmed in that tornado-conscious city.

Lightning from the boiling thunderstorms was visible on the southern horizon.

Meier Getting Close To World Stall Mark

AUSTIN (AP)—A weary Sen. Bill Meier talked toward a world filibuster record today after fellow Texas senators forced him to continue his protest of a bill prohibiting firms from listing workers who file injury claims.

Meier, D-Eulesis, who began his numbing talkathon at 3:30 p.m. Monday, edged past the 34-hour mark at 1:30 a.m. The acknowledged world mark was set in 1972 by former Sen. Mike McKool of Dallas, who rasped on for 42 hours and 33 minutes.

Early today the red-eyed, unshaven Meier told colleagues that he was "a little tired, but feeling fine" and said he planned to go for the world mark.

House members showed little interest in Meier's exhausting overnight efforts, as they entered the seventh day of debate on a $15.7 billion budget bill.

In an unusual midnight session, the Senate went through some parliamentary maneuvering that forced Meier, 36, to continue his filibuster, the first extended one since McKool's performance.

The midnight deadline carried the Senate into today, which is reserved for debate on House bills. Since Meier is speaking against a Senate measure, senators had to vote 21-2 to continue consideration of Sen. Ray Farabee's bill.

That forced Meier to continue droning on, reading related cases from more than 70 law books stacked at his side and answering lengthy and sometimes ridiculous questions from friendly senators.

He wore blue house slippers to ease the strain of hours on his feet and slumped only slightly, unlike many who filibuster. His resonant voice, aided on occasion by a faulty microphone, remained strong as he spoke to a virtually empty Senate chamber for the second straight night. A bouquet of red roses from his wife was on his desk.

Meier took only one five-minute break Tuesday afternoon to empty a urine collection bag attached to his leg. The Senate clerk routinely referred bills while he was gone.

McKool said in Dallas Tuesday night, "Records are made to be broken. I've only followed him in the papers, but I'm glad that it is a Texas senator doing it."

Texans Worried Over Carter Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Carter administration does not want the power to take intrastate gas—the industrial backbone of Texas and other producing states—and send it to heat Northern homes, according to Administration energy adviser James R. Schlesinger.

But, several Texans who have been reading the fine print of the president's energy proposal may tend to disagree with Schlesinger.

The fine print is important because practically all Texas industries and utilities rely on natural gas for fuel. Under federal allocation rules, industries and utilities take a back seat to homeowners and small businesses.

If the federal allocation system were extended to intrastate gas supplies, there could be widespread winter layoffs in Texas as gas to fuel Texas boilers is diverted to Northern furnaces.

Intrastate gas is produced in one state and shipped to another, it has been under federal control for more than 20 years. Intrastate gas is produced and used in the same state. It is not controlled, it sells for a higher price, and it is more plentiful.

Concerned about the prospect of federal control of intrastate supplies, Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., asked Schlesinger about it during Tuesday's Senate committee hearing on the Carter energy package.

"We have no intention of mandating that gas should go here or there," Schlesinger reassured him.

He's 86, Dying; Medicaid Stopped

GREENVILLE, Tex. (AP)—Riley Walker is getting tired of state and federal bureaucrats passing the buck with his letters.

His stepfather, Joe Grubbs, is in a nursing home with terminal cancer. When Grubbs turned 87 on April 1, his present from the state government was a notice that his Medicaid payments were being cancelled.

"I haven't said anything to him about it," said Grubbs' stepson, Riley Walker. "It's embarrassing to me to have to tell him that after 68 years on the job the state won't help him."

Walker said he is paying what the state now refuses to pay. But he's outraged of the system. His anger and frustration have been compounded by a series of fruitless telephone calls and letters to state and federal "buck passers."

"My first letter went to President Carter," he said. "After, all, he said he was going to clean up the welfare mess. But I haven't heard anything yet."

Grubbs and his wife of 33 years, Mary Ellen, entered the nursing home under doctor's orders last January.

Social Security pays Grubbs $423.70 per month. His wife drew $193.93. Their combined income averaged about $60 less than the individual maximum of $390 allowed for Medicaid recipients.

Two months ago, Mary Ellen died. She was 72. Grief-stricken, Grubbs readied himself to join her. The cancer in his lungs had already withered his 6-foot-7, 270-pound frame to a shadowy 160 pounds. Walker said Tuesday the doctors told him his stepfather might live another 60 to 90 days. No more.

According to the Medicaid rules, Grubbs deducts $20 from his Social Security check for incidentals. The rest goes to the nursing home, which in turn, bills the state for the remainder of the monthly medical and housing costs—about $650 in Grubbs' case.

"If my father had been a wino and not worked at all, hell, they would have paid everything and kept him in the finest," he said bitterly.

"My father's ready to die now, but even after he's gone I'm going to continue to fight. Why there must be hundreds of old people out there living in squatter's huts because of this," Walker said.

The next letter went to U.S. Rep. Ray Roberts. Walker said Roberts replied it was a state, not a federal problem.

Meanwhile, Rep. Bob Krueger, D-Tex., was pouring through the bill the White House sent to Congress. His attention was drawn to a few paragraphs in section 416.

That section would extend the federal emergency gas power for another year. When the original emergency bill was passed last February, Krueger worked very hard to make sure that it only allowed the President to allocate gas from "interstate" pipelines.

Looking at the wording that would extend that authority, Krueger discovered the bill would give the President power to allocate gas from all pipelines, intrastate and interstate.

"If Mr. Schlesinger is saying that there is no allocation authority in the bill, then he either is unfamiliar with the language or someone has made a mistake in drafting. If the former, he might wish to correct his testimony. If the latter, then he might wish to amend the bill," Krueger said.

Schlesinger's aides may have left the "interstate" out of the bill and failed to tell him about it, Krueger speculated.

The allocation authority in the bill would only last through next winter, and it would not be usable unless the President declared a natural gas emergency. But the bill contains no firm definition of an emergency.

Too Hot To Handle

The Hereford Volunteer Fire Department used hand extinguishers in an attempt to smother a pit fire during a practice drill Tuesday night at the fire field, southwest of Hereford. The fire, which was set beneath the shell of a truck, was too large for the extinguishers, however, and had to be doused with water. Another drill, using water, is scheduled for Tuesday, May 10, at the fire field. The men's and women's pumper teams will practice for the area volunteer fire department convention May 14 in Amarillo, at 7 p.m. today at the Hereford State Bank. Brutal Murder Spurs Renewed Hunt For Man

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

The murder of a 19-year-old woman who was expecting her first child has once again spurred Panhandle lawmen to intensify their search for a knife-wielding rapist who has terrorized victims in Hereford, Canyon and Amarillo.

MRS. ABBE Rodgers Hamilton was viciously stabbed and slashed numerous times at her home on the southwestern edge of the Borger city limits between 8 and 9:30 a.m. yesterday.

Her husband, "Buzz" Hamilton found his wife's partially-clad body lying in the bedroom, and reported the death at 9:45 a.m.

The victim's legs were bound with linen napkins.

Hamilton told law enforcement officials that he left home about 8 a.m. to pick up some lumber being used to enlarge the home, and discovered his wife's body when he returned.

MRS. HAMILTON was six months pregnant.

An autopsy was ordered in the case, and Sheriff Lon Blackmon of Borger reported that he has no way of knowing if Mrs. Hamilton was sexually assaulted, as the autopsy results may not be available for several days.

A lead concerning a black man has caused area lawmen to speculate that Mrs. Hamilton's attacker may be the so-called "Travelling Rapist," who has already assaulted women in Amarillo, Canyon and Hereford.

Sheriff Blackmon said his officers are checking into a report that a black man was seen by a neighbor as he ran from the Hamilton home yesterday morning.

The black man seen outside the Borger home was described as over six feet tall.

LAW ENFORCEMENT officials also made plaster casts of tire impressions near the Borger home, and are currently searching for a new model cream color or white car which may have belonged to the killer.

Tuesday's incident called to mind the brutal assault of a 21 year old Hereford woman which occurred in her home, almost eight months to the day prior to the Borger murder.

In that morning attack, the victim had remained at home, because she was not feeling well.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says if you can't do what you like, try liking what you do.

Think of what others ought to be like, then start being like that yourself.

THE MID-PLAINS Pioneer Association has scheduled its annual reunion here May 28. It was announced this week by Jimmie Alford, president. Letters have gone out to members and plans are being made for the program of events.

LEST SOMEONE forget, this is National Music Week, Respect for Law Week, National Family Week, National Baby Week, and National Be Kind to Animals Week. And, if you get tired from celebrating all these special weeks, you might look forward to next week—Let's Go Fishing Week. If you'd prefer a more isolated rest, it's also National Hospital Week (8-14), and National Nursing Home Week.

UNBELIEVABLE as it may seem, we're already into May and the many activities of school during its final weeks. Honor grads will soon be named at Hereford High School. When the dirt was kicking up in March, it seemed May and the welcome showers might never come—yet here we are into one of our better months with Mother's Day and graduation time just around the corner!

SMALL SIGN in a Texas Panhandle cafe explains its credit policy. "Heh! We're in our credit manager. If you want credit, talk to Helen Wate."

ONE DAY next year, you could drive up to a service station, fill it up, and boost all our gasoline taxes by a nickel a gallon. You won't mean to do it, and no one will know who you are or where you are. But, one gallon of gas, pumped in one gasoline station, would be the one that triggered the punishment tax President Carter proposes to levy if consumption exceeds government targets.

One year's excess consumption would mean a five-cent tax increase the next Jan. 15, which would become as infamous as income tax day. Carter says the tax will not happen if Americans heed his call to conserve. But the odds are pretty good that the standby tax would be imposed.

People who waited in line for hours to buy gasoline a little more than four years ago aren't likely to become dedicated conservationists to avoid a five-cent-a-year tax hike, not even one that could go as high as 50 cents a gallon in the next decade. And, folks in this part of the country didn't have to wait in line much the first go-around.

He did take statements from Winders and a hospital employee who he declined to identify, however, Olander said.

Olander said her attorney was Robert D. Hecht, former Shawnee County attorney and now a prominent local defense attorney.

Sandstrom, a 1943 graduate of Wyandotte High School in Kansas City, Kan., and a 1948 graduate of Washburn University here with a degree in history, began work for Stauffer Publications in 1949 as manager of station KSEK in Pittsburg, Kan.

He became manager of Stauffer's WIBW stations in Topeka in 1957, and later became vice president for broadcasting of the company. In that position, he was in charge of operations at WIBW, KRNT in Des Moines, KGNC in Amarillo, Tex., KSOE in Arkansas City, Kan., KGFF in Shawnee, Okla., and KGBX in Springfield, Mo.

WIBW went on the air 50 years ago this month, and is presently observing that anniversary.

Sandstrom was a member of the Associated Press Broadcasters Board and a nominee for first vice president. He had served as president of the CBS Radio Affiliates Board.

He was named Kansas broadcaster of the year three times, and was well known locally for his incisive weekly broadcast editorials.

Sandstrom also was active in local and state Chamber of Commerce work here and in Pittsburg, and served on regional and state health planning councils.

The Sandstroms were married Jan. 1, 1953, at Tulsa. They met when she went to work at KSEK in the early 1950s.

Mrs. Sandstrom is a native of Tulsa, attended schools there and served in the Women's Army Corps during World War II.

Sen. Walter Meigden, R-Houston, once gave Meier a breather by asking him a question that took nearly two hours.

At one point Sen. Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, spouted comical nonsense for about 30 minutes before asking Meier, "Senator, under this amendment would Cool Papa Bell, who used to play in the old Negro leagues, still hold the record as the fastest baseball player to ever live?"

Meier zeroed in on a provision in the bill blocking such organizations as the non-profit Industrial Foundation of the South from checking the files of the Industrial Accident Board for claims filed by injured workers.

"This is a meteoric bill," he said of the measure by Farabee, D-Wichita Falls. "It came through so fast we nearly missed it."

Farabee and others claim the foundation could use the files to compile "blacklists." Meier, who says he once did some legal work for the foundation, has noted, however, that "blacklists" are illegal.

Broadcast Tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) - With Watergate controversy back in the news, former President Richard M. Nixon is ending his silence on the scandal that drove him in disgrace from the nation's highest office 33 months ago.

Nixon's first post-resignation interview will be broadcast over 155 television and 730 radio stations tonight at 7:30 EDT in most areas.

The 64-year-old Nixon, who resigned exactly 1,000 days ago, reportedly is receiving a minimum of $600,000 and a share of the show's profits, giving him more than $1 million for answering the questions posed by British interviewer David Frost.

If the anxious producers of tonight's 90-minute interview are to be believed, the broadcast still holds some Watergate surprises despite advance disclosures.

Texas Surplus Huge

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Horseplay comes naturally to Texas legislators, so cow-calls and a mechanical monkey clanging away on a representatives' chair were not surprising.

What might surprise their brother legislators in other states is the misery that the clowning masks in a lawmaking body that enjoys a $1 billion treasury surplus.

Taxes based on soaring oil and gas prices and Sunbelt economic growth built the surplus. It also enabled Comptroller Bob Bullock to predict that 1978-79 revenue will exceed current spending by $2 billion.

The surplus, plus the $2 billion projected tax growth, led to the oft-repeated but false notion that Texas has a $3 billion surplus.

Wood Convicted

DALLAS (AP) - After nearly eight hours of deliberation a Dallas jury Tuesday convicted Randal Dale Adams, 28, of the Thanksgiving murder of policeman Robert Wood.

Adams displayed no emotion as the jury foreman announced the verdict. His mother, Mildred Adams, sobbed in the half-empty Criminal District Court No. 2.

The jury adjourned for lunch immediately after the noon announcement. Testimony in the punishment phase of the trial was to begin after the recess. Adams faces life imprisonment or the death penalty for the murder of the Dallas policeman.

A black male estimated to be in his 30's came into the bedroom of the woman's home, woke her and displayed a knife, threatening to kill her if she did not remain silent.

THE WOMAN'S arms and legs were bound with washrags and string, and she was raped and stabbed repeatedly about the head.

That attack occurred sometime between 9 and 9:30 a.m., and the victim was discovered by a neighbor shortly after 11 a.m.

The most severe damage in the evening of storms was reported at Three Way, where a recon-ditioned barracks used for apartments, an agriculture building and a newly-installed football scoreboard valued at $2,000 were destroyed.

A twister near the Lorenzo community destroyed a 20x50 foot barn, an overhead

Adair Says Drilling Mistake Wasn't Reason For Blowout

HOUSTON (AP) - Red Adair said the blowout on the offshore drilling rig in the North Sea "wasn't any big deal and nobody could blame a drilling mistake for the thing."

Adair, whose given name is Paul, a name nobody uses for him anymore, said Tuesday there had been a lot "worse blowouts. I came in over the area in a helicopter and I didn't see any giant oil slick. I saw some oil on the water, but nothing to get terrified about."

Adair, who admits to being somewhere on the other side of 60 years of age, has been fighting oil fires and blowouts since 1939.

Since all the publicity over the North Sea blowout on a Phillips Petroleum Co. rig, Adair has been the center of attention. He admits he finds this as uncomfortable as the snappy brown suit and matching shirt and tie he wore for a Tuesday news conference at the Offshore Technology Conference in Houston.

Once he had answered all the questions about the work he and his men had performed in the North Sea, Adair retreated to a camper near the exhibit hall, slipped off his tie, unbuttoned his shirt and kicked off his shoes.

Damn, my neck is raw from that tie," he said.

He took a sip of scotch and water and said criticism of the Phillips Co. for not having proper safety equipment available on and near the rig was unfounded.

"Listen they evacuated 100 or so men in the dark of the night after the blowout and there wasn't even one mashed finger. I'd call that pretty good," he said.

Adair, short and stocky at 5-foot-6-inches and some 170 pounds, was stopped often as he twisted his way through the thousands of persons viewing the conference exhibits. He had to stop and pose for a picture with a couple of Norwegian cuties. He shook a score or more hands.

Adair admitted the blowout might lead to the development of better equipment and result in an increase in safety training programs.

Asked how much the Phillips Co. had paid for his work in stopping the flow of 7 million gallons of oil into the North Sea, Adair said:

"Haven't sent them a bill yet. Best as I can remember we haven't sent out bills for the last six blowouts. We'll get around to it some day."

Neil Cooper, agent broker for First Realty, had the following to say about the company's selection to represent HFL in Hereford.

"We shall be better able to follow our policy of dedicated total service to our clients. Our appointment as the exclusive HFL representative means we have joined a country-wide network of the best real estate companies in the business. We can thus fulfill our pledge to provide those extra services which have built our reputation and given us a strong host of friends."

Other benefits of the HFL program include a industry relocation program, management and sales training seminars, home trade-in plan, home buyer aids, inter-area referral network, and equity buying.

Prosecution Not Working

TUSCON, Ariz. (AP) - Prosecution of major drug dealers in northern Mexico using information gathered in the United States is not working out, U.S. drug officials say.

After several convictions early in the program started two years ago, it has stalled, due partly to a large turnover among prosecutors south of the border, officials said.

"The Mexicans got rid of a bunch of prosecutors who knew how to do these things and wanted to do them," said a Tucson agent for the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA).

The program, called Janus, allowed U.S. narcotics agencies to provide information about major drug smugglers operating in Mexico. Although the Americans could not prosecute them, the information could be used to prosecute south of the border, officials said.

Most of the early success was at the hands of Jorge Omar Villalobos.

Ann Landers Rape Victim Advises

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The subject I'm about to deal with is very difficult to discuss in print but I'll do my best. It's rape.

The only way I can describe the experience is to say it is the worst thing (this side of murder) that can happen to a woman. The emotional scars are far from healed but after intensive therapy and several karate lessons, I am beginning to feel human again.

At first I didn't want anyone to know -- especially my parents. They are very conservative people, especially when it comes to sex. You might say they live in another age. I was afraid my mother would consider me a whore and my father would say I was ruined beyond redemption. He is deeply religious and views every catastrophe as a punishment from God.

I feel angry, violated, humiliated and degraded. I am also furious that a dirty, low-down, good-for-nothing scum robbed me of my virginity, which meant nothing to him and everything to me. Please tell all females who read your column that they can do a few things to protect themselves.

1. Walk in pairs on well-lit streets if you must be out at night.

2. Don't walk near buildings. Rapists often lurk in doorways and alcoves. Walk near the street.

3. Take karate lessons. This will give you confidence and may even save your life.

4. If you get raped in spite of all the precautions, contact your local Rape Crisis Center at once. They can give you the kind of help and emotional support you need.

I know because I have -- Been There In Ohio DEAR OHIO: Thank you for an informative and courageous letter. You've done your good deed for the day.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Do people dream about their past? What I mean is, if a person dreams about something does it mean it has already happened?

My wife talks in her sleep almost every night. If she is reciting from memory, I'm going to have a long talk with her.

I've read a few articles on dreams and decided I'd better check with you before I hassle her about a few things that may NOT have happened. Thanks, Mom. -- Gotta Know

DEAR GOTTA: Some people dream about things they WISH would happen. Does this make you feel better or worse? You're welcome. And I'm not your mother.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My friend is 16 years old. Lisa flunked her driver's test. She lied to her folks (said she passed) and takes the car anyway.

The girl is really a rotten driver. The only thing she knows how to do is turn the radio on, get the car started, steer it and stop it. I am afraid to drive with her but I don't want to hurt her feelings. Can you give me some advice? -- No Name

DEAR N.M.: Your life is more important than the liar's feelings. Tell Lisa you refuse to ride with her until she learns how to drive and has a license to prove she has earned the right to be behind the wheel.

Prepare Equipment Now For Home Canning Work

COLLEGE STATION--It's "inventory time" for proper home-canning equipment--an absolute "must" for safe, high quality home-canned foods, Sally Coble, foods and nutrition specialist, says.

Mrs. Coble is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

She recommends the following guides for proper home canning equipment:

Use any large kettle with straight sides, a tight-fitting lid and a rack to keep jars off the bottom of the kettle. Kettles should be deep enough to hold jars upright and permit the water to boil gently one to two inches over the jar tops. The boiling water bath is recommended for canning fruits, fruit juices, tomatoes, rhubarb, and pickled vegetables.

Pressure canner Pressure canners are necessary for processing all meats and non-acid vegetable in order to prevent spoilage due to botulin toxin. These canners are equipped with a dial or weighted gauge--the dial gauge should be tested yearly. Also, make sure the canner is airtight by replacing hardened gaskets.

American Swims River Handcuffed To Escape From Mexican Prison

EAGLE PASS, Tex. (AP) - An Albuquerque, N.M., man escaped from the Piedras Negras prison in Mexico across the border from Eagle Pass Tuesday by swimming across the Rio Grande with prison guards in close pursuit.

David Driscoll, 28, told The Associated Press in a telephone interview he had been held in the border city prison for nearly 13 months after he was picked up in Merida in Southern Mexico.

Driscoll said he escaped early in the morning when he jumped out of a truck taking him to a city hospital to have his blood checked.

"I am diabetic," he said. "They were taking me to a hospital and I just jumped out and ran about half a mile to the river. I just jumped in and swam across and turned myself in to a U.S. border patrolman. I told him I was a U.S. citizen. I was glad to see those blue eyes."

He said he was still handcuffed when he swam across the river.

The patrolman told newsmen he spotted Driscoll shortly after the New Mexico swam to the U.S. side of the river.

Driscoll said he had been charged with possession of marijuana, but that originally he was picked up and charged with helping a group of 13 American citizens escape from the Piedras Negras prison on March 12, 1977.

Two Dallas men later admitted they had organized the raid on the prison.

Maverick County Sheriff Tom Bowles said Driscoll "was a lucky man swimming that wide river while still handcuffed. He was born again today."

Driscoll was brought to the sheriff's office for questioning and Bowles said he would be released unless there are any charges pending against him.

"He's still dripping," the sheriff said.

Driscoll said he was arrested in Merida along with two other friends.

"They first accused me of having engineered the jail breakout. I was tortured and they made me sign a confession. I don't even know what I confessed to. They took me to Mexico City and then sent me to Piedras Negras and I was charged with possession of marijuana. I was never tried or sentenced."

Driscoll said he knew one of the men who escaped from the Piedras Negras prison because he had gone to law school with him.

Driscoll, who said he was arrested when he had one month to go before finishing law school at the University of New Mexico, said his stay in Mexican prisons, "made me appreciate our legal system more."

Pot Distorts Feelings Says Group

TORONTO (AP) - Marijuana smokers who think a joint puts them in closer touch with other people's feelings are victims of the weed's distorting powers, a study indicates.

In a test of warmth, empathy and genuineness, the stoned persons seemed "phonier" than those who did not smoke marijuana, a research team reported Monday.

A few people, however, became more communicative, although the psychiatrists couldn't say why.

The research team headed by Dr. David S. Janowski of the University of California at San Diego is among the first, he said, to explore interpersonal effects of marijuana. Other studies have tested what happens to intellectual powers and mood under the drug's influence - but not its alteration of friendship or marriage, for instance.

"One of the reasons we chose marijuana," Janowski told a session of the American Psychiatric Association's 130th Annual Meeting, "is that some therapists told us their patients would say, 'Gee, Doc, why don't you get high with us and see what it's like. You would be so much warmer and more empathetic and communicative.'"

Janowski matched 20 male mental health workers - all occasional marijuana users - with 20 females who would play the role of troubled partners. Only males can be given marijuana experimentally under federal guidelines.

Each couple held a 25-minute interview, with the woman talking about a difficult time in her life and the man attempting to be helpful. Later, the male "therapist" smoked a cigarette, which in half the cases was marijuana and in the other half an inactive substitute, and a second 25-minute interview was held.

After each talk, both partners filled out questionnaires designed to measure traits such as genuineness, warmth, empathy, acceptance of the other person.

Bring any design and we decorate any cake to match it.

Purse-Snatching Was Just The Beginning

DALLAS (AP) - He's out there somewhere, waiting. She's sure of it. His words still wake her up at night in a cold sweat.

"Just give me a reason to kill you."

Call her Sally. She's 25 and she's afraid. It's been that way since she first saw "him" at a darkened bus stop last June. "Ma'am do you know about the buses?" he asked.

Without another word, the man lunged, knocking her to the ground and grabbing her purse. Sally lay bleeding on the dirty sidewalk. It took 12 stitches to close the wound in her hand.

The nightmare had just begun.

Two days later, he called. "I have your purse, and I'm going to bring it back." Then, came a note stuck to her apartment door. "I will return in my own time." The note was signed, "Destiny."

At 2 a.m. 13 days later, Sally bolted awake to a voice she knew too well. He was in bed with her.

"I'm back," he whispered hoarsely. "I keep my promises."

Sally said she started to fight, but the man drew a knife and held it to her throat. Before he left, Sally said she was raped twice and beaten unconscious. When her father saw her battered and bloody at the hospital after the attack, the 60-year-old geologist said, it was the first time he had cried in 35 years.

In the 10 months that followed, both father and daughter would shed many tears of frustration at the police's inability to find the attacker, and their skepticism that the same man is following the girl.

Since the rape, Sally said the rapist has left red carnations at her door. Another time, she found a photograph of a cemetery. More recently, chicken livers and gizzards were splashed against her door leaving a bloody reminder that he was still out there - watching, waiting.

University Park Police Sgt. Ray Fletcher said there's no evidence that the calls, the blood and the carnations came from her attacker. His superior, Capt. D.H. Milliken agreed.

"We're limited in what we can do with what we've got," said Milliken. "Suppose they are related. Does that really help us solve the rape or the robbery?"

So Sally is leaving the Dallas area. She will change her identity and try to start over. She admits it won't be easy, but the alternative is a life of constant fear.

"When I leave, he'll find someone else to hound," she said. "It's so bizarre, sometimes I sit back and can't believe it all happened. I keep waiting to wake up."

Grand Jury Indicts Odessa City Editor

ODESSA, Tex. (AP) - An indictment accusing John Sliney, city editor of the Odessa American newspaper, of attempted bribery has been returned by an Ector County grand jury.

In the indictment returned Tuesday, Sliney is accused of attempting to bribe Jimmy Edwards, a candidate for county attorney, last year. It alleges that Sliney agreed to confer a benefit on Edwards, a public servant, with the intent to influence him. Edwards did run for the office, but was defeated in a runoff election.

The indictment specifically claims Sliney attempted to persuade Edwards to withdraw himself as a candidate for county attorney.

District Court Judge R.L. McKim set bond on Sliney, who was to be arrested today, at $5,000. The charge against Sliney is a third degree felony, punishable by a maximum of 10 years in prison and a fine.

The grand jury also issued a report saying that Sliney had contacted a member of the grand jury commission and made an effort to have certain people named to the Ector County grand jury. The report claims that Olin Ashley, managing editor of the newspaper, was aware that Sliney had made the contacts.

Also in the report was a statement from the grand jury saying they had evidence that there has been "considerable illegal gambling" involving an unnamed Odessa American reporter.

The grand jury report also said that Ashley was notified Tuesday that the grand jury was in session if he would like to appear. They said Ashley, declined to appear.

Ashley, contacted at his home Tuesday night, had no comment on the indictment of Sliney or any portion of the grand jury report.

Dist. Atty. John Green earlier had sent a letter to Lyle DeBolt, publisher of the Odessa American saying he was conducting an investigation into what he described as "wrongdoings" by the newspaper. The letter also mentioned the claims of "illegal gambling" at the newspaper.

Green said he would likely ask that another prosecutor handle Sliney's trial.

Carter bites the hand . . .

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — There's more trouble looming between the Carter administration and organized labor, which is rapidly coming to regard the new Democratic president as a wolf in sheep's clothing.

Carter's top economic advisers have reportedly turned thumbs down on legislation long sought by the maritime unions to require that 30 per cent of foreign oil headed for American refineries be shipped on U.S. flag carriers.

This "cargo preference" measure, a cherished goal of the shipping industry as well as maritime labor, was pocket-vetoed by President Ford in 1974 after heavy lobbying by the oil companies, which opposed the bill.

In retaliation, the maritime unions poured more than $150,000 into Jimmy Carter's primary campaign last year and vigorously supported his election over Ford.

The unions thought they had a firm commitment from Carter to back their cargo preference bill. But they are discovering, as others already have, that what Carter told them and what they thought they heard weren't always the same.

At a series of meetings with Carter during the campaign, maritime union leaders repeatedly emphasized the importance of the cargo preference bill to the merchant marine and to the U.S. shipbuilding industry. The cagey candidate responded with pledges of support for a "national cargo policy" that would assure U.S. ships access to a "fair share" of the maritime trade market.

Although Carter never explicitly endorsed the cargo preference bill itself, White House officials admit that he came pretty close to it and that his campaign promises to the maritime unions are making it awkward to oppose the legislation.

Nonetheless, Carter's economic advisers — like Ford's — are convinced the bill would drive up the cost of imported oil and contribute to inflation at a time when the economy simply can't afford the added pressure.

The only reason labor isn't publicly hollering "double-cross" is that so far, the administration has avoided taking a stand on the cargo preference measure.

The House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee has held five days of hearings on the bill over the past couple of months. On each occasion, administration witnesses were asked to testify — and on each occasion, they declined, saying the president needed more time to develop a policy position.

"We haven't reached any agreement within the administration as yet," one White House official told us, adding that an effort is under way to come up with some alternative proposals for strengthening the U.S. merchant marine.

Labor and its supporters on Capitol Hill insist they've already considered every possible alternative and found none that would be as effective as the cargo preference bill. But they concede their pet legislation will probably fail unless the president gives it his full support.

"So far, our meetings at the White House on the subject have been discouraging — to say the least," said one lobbyist for the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association, which last June held a $1,000-per-person fundraiser for Carter.

Organized labor has always had trouble persuading Congress to enact legislation that is of benefit primarily to its own members. That's one reason the common site picketing bill so dear to the building trades was defeated this year, and why repeal of 14-B, the right-to-work section of the Taft-Hartley Act, remains a distant dream.

But with Carter in the White House, in part because of labor's massive campaign effort on his behalf, the unions really thought Washington was going to become fat city for them. In what AFL-CIO Secretary-Treasurer Lane Kirkland has called a "triumph of hope over experience," they didn't expect a Democratic president to bite the hand that feeds without the slightest compunction.

Tony Likes Dallas' Class; If Enough Money Is There

BY DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP)- All Tony Dorsett wants is what Ricky Bell

Riders Win Six Trophies

Hereford trials riders came home with six trophies from the XII Trials held at Dalhart last Sunday, May 1. Two local riders, Greg Palmer and Carolyn Maupin, captured first place honors, while Hereford entrants also took three seconds and one third.

Palmer won the 12 and under class, while Chad Maupin and Russell Brownlow of Hereford finished second and third respectively.

Maupin won the powderpuff division, with Janice Brownlow taking second. In addition, Pat Maupin took a second place in the expert division.

got. And Tony knows because both All-Americans have the same agent.

Bell, the Southern California speedster who went to Tampa Bay Tuesday as National Football League's No. 1 draft choice, received a five-year contract ranging from $1.24 million to $1.5 million.

Dorsett, the Heisman Trophy winner from Pittsburgh, was snared by the powerful Dallas Cowboys after an exchange of draft choices with the expansion Seattle Seahawks.

Wearing what appeared to be a green and blue jogging suit, Dorsett made a quick flying trip to Dallas and he would play for the Cowboys if offered a contract similar to Bell's.

"I'd love to play for $1.5 million," said Dorsett. "But that's between my agent Mike Troup and the Cowboys."

Dorsett added "I hope we get an agreement soon so I can concentrate on getting ready for football season. I do feel I'm worth as much as anybody in professional football. I must be worth something for the Cowboys to sacrifice four draft choices."

Cowboy Gen. Mgr. Tex Schramm said the contract negotiations with Dorsett would be "agonizing."

"We will try to sign Tony at a figure commensurate with a player of his ability," said Schramm.

Dorsett produced an outpouring of media seldom rivaled by a sports figure in Dallas. Three television stations televised live his press conference live at Dallas-Fort Worth airport.

He was on two talk shows besides giving one-on-one interviews with writers and other radio station newsmen.

Dorsett held up a blue and white jersey with the No. 33 on it and said "I know who played in this jersey down here (Duane Thomas). Duane was Duane and had his own style."

"I'm a drastic difference from Thomas myself."

The outgoing Dorsett said "I'd like to get things settled so I can take some handoffs from Roger and Dodger (Cowboy quarterback Roger Staubach)."

Dorsett said he has always been impressed afar by the Dallas organization and said of Coach Tom Landry: "His actions speak louder than his words. The Cowboys know what they are doing and it all starts with the coach."

Dorsett said he would go to Canada if Dallas doesn't meet his demands but added "I like being affiliated with class. I prefer the NFL because you can get lost in the shuffle in Canada."

Townes' Attitude Bad In Beginning

HOUSTON (AP) - Missouri offensive tackle Morris Towns weighed 340 pounds prior to his junior year in high school, wasn't interested in anything and above all, didn't want to play football.

That's not a very auspicious beginning for someone who Tuesday was selected in the first round of the National Football League college draft by the Houston Oilers.

"Most of the kids were on the team and they kept trying to get me to try out," Towns said. "I finally got tired of saying no so I tried out but I really wasn't interested in doing anything."

Once out for the football team at St. Louis' Vashon High School, Towns' attitude didn't change immediately.

"I didn't like all that hitting and rough stuff," Towns laughed.

So whatever possessed Towns to drop 80 pounds by the start of his junior year, make all-state two years and go on to become a three year starter for the Missouri Tigers?

"Before my junior year I worked around at the school and I saw all these pictures on the wall of athletes who had gone to college on scholarships," Towns said. "I wanted to go to college and I knew my parents didn't have the money to send me so I decided to try to get a scholarship too."

Towns said it was only through his desire for a scholarship and the persistence of his coach, Paul Jones, that he became an outstanding player.

"I owe him a lot," Towns said of Jones. "I guess he saw a lot more in me than I saw in myself."

The first thing he did was tell me I'd have to lose weight."

Towns continued his career at Missouri where he sat out his freshman year with a broken arm. Towns was switched from defensive tackle to offensive tackle at the start of his sophomore year and, despite missing spring practice, became a starter.

The Oilers, primarily interested in improving their offensive line with the draft, hope Towns and second draft choice George Reicher of Penn State, will give more protection for disgruntled quarterback Dan Pastorini.

Oiler offensive line coach Joe Bugel said the Oilers emphasized versatility in making their first two selections.

"We needed a big guy that could come in and play either guard or tackle," Bugel said.

'Anything Goes' Set Here Sunday

Fashioned after the concept of the television game "Anything Goes", a fun-filled night for some area church youth will be held Sunday afternoon in Veteran's Park.

The Town Youth, an organization of church youth, have set Sunday, May 8th, as the first of the competition matches. There will be teams at each meeting for the game of wacky events.

Softball Meeting Thursday

Representatives of teams or groups interested in joining a men's softball league have been requested to attend a meeting of the league in the Community Center at 7:30 p.m. Thursday evening, May 5.

According to Bob Wagner, spokesman for the league, discussion at the meeting will center on team entry fees, and the league schedule.

"Once again we will be needing some umpires, which we will pay," Wagner said. He added that interested umpires may call him at 364-5959 for information.

The league is expected to begin play later this month.

"Anything Goes--and Everybody's Invited" will be held each second Sunday of the month.

All senior high school youth are invited to participate this Sunday at 5 p.m. in Veteran's Park.

On The Right Track

While the La Plata freshman girls were the only local team to win a title at the PJHAL District Track Meet in Pampa last Saturday, a couple of Stanton boys made quite an impression themselves.

Belen Ramirez ran a scorching hot 53.2 out of the blocks in the 440 in the ninth grade division to set a new district mark in that event. In addition teammate Juan Flores raced to a 2:04.9 in the ninth grade 880, also setting a new district record.

Both of those times are very fast for the ninth grade, and would be good times in some high school competition, as a matter of fact.

day at 2:30 p.m. The B-A-4A finals will begin at 1 p.m. Saturday with the SWC finals to follow.

Mays will make his bid for the state 880 crown at 1:15 p.m. when the 4A half milers compete in their final race.

No preliminaries will be held in any events at the state high school meets since only eight competitors will be entered in each event.

-RAN- Former HHS standout long jumper George Fuller has guided the Ropesville Eagles to the District 5-B track title in his first year at the helm; a first also for the school.

Fuller, a 1971 graduate of HHS, will take his 440 Relay team to the state meet in Austin after the quartet won the event at the Region 1-B meet in Levelland last Saturday.

Fuller, the son of Mr. and Mrs. H.S. Fuller of Hereford, has been the Austin route previously, having represented the Herd at the state meet in the long jump.

Tiger Fans Cheer At Horton's Homecoming

BY FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer
Part of the scene was familiar. Big Willie Horton was spraying hits around Tiger Stadium.

But one difference was that he was wearing a Texas Ranger uniform. And another change of pace was that the fickle fans of Detroit were on his side.

"It's a funny thing," mused Detroit Manager Ralph Houk, "the fans who were cheering him tonight were probably the ones booing him here a few weeks ago."

The 33-year-old Horton, who began playing for Detroit in 1963 but was traded to Texas last month, had a terrific homecoming Tuesday night. He stroked four hits in leading the Rangers to a 13-0 joyride over his former teammates.

Horton had three singles and a double, scoring twice. The fans couldn't get enough of him, showering him with a standing ovation when he moved into the on-deck circle in the first.

He said he had tears in his eyes. "It was a great feeling," he said. "It's sad I have to come back against my old teammates. I tried not to look at them... I still have a lot of love there. I wish the guys the best after we leave here tomorrow."

In the rest of the American League action, the Chicago White Sox won the Kansas City Royals 8-4; the Seattle Mariners outslugged the Boston Red Sox 10-8; the Minnesota Twins edged the Cleveland Indians 4-3 in 10 innings; the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Toronto Blue Jays 6-2, and the New York Yankees crushed the California Angels 8-1.

Texas pitcher Bert Blyleven also had a return of sorts, taking the mound for the first time since incurring a three-game suspension for intentionally throwing at Kansas City's Darrell Porter.

The suspension was mostly symbolic, since it coincided with Blyleven's normal three days' rest. The star right-hander tossed a four-hitter and fanned 12 batters for his second shutout in a row.

Ken Henderson slugged a three-run homer in the first inning, stretching his hitting streak to 13 games. Henderson doubled in his fourth RBI of the game in the second inning, when the Rangers scored seven runs and tied a club record with nine hits. Bump Wills, who had a two-run homer in the ninth, had two singles in the second.

Brewers 6, Blue Jays 2
Rookie Barry Cort's feat of pitching a strong nine-hitter in his first major-league victory was topped only by his father George's activities.

"I must have smoked no, ate a package of cigarettes during the game," said George Cort, an unemployed house painter who flew to Toronto from his home in Tampa, Fla. "I think I was more nervous than he was."

Yankees 8, Angels 1
Bucky Dent's first major league grand-slam homer helped newcomer Mike Torrez win his first game as a Yankee.

Torrez, making his first appearance for New York since being obtained from Oakland last week, held the Angels to one hit over the first five innings. He left the game in the sixth with a blister.

LUBBOCK (AP)- Coach Bobby Moegle of Lubbock Monterey High School claimed his 501st victory Tuesday, making him the second on the list of alltime winning high school baseball coaches in the Lone Star state.

Moegle's baseball team swept a doubleheader from Plainview 6-4 and 5-4 for his 500th and 501st victories. That leaves him only 18 games behind retired coach Le Roy Ashmore of Houston Reagan, who quit work in 1969 after guiding his teams to 519 victories.

Moegle's teams won state titles in 1972 and 1974 and with their current 29-3 season record will be in the playoffs again this year.

Bill Could Turn Back Health Insurance Clock

AUSTIN (AP)- A bill passed by the Senate on Monday "turns back the clock to the days of small print and double talk in health insurance policies." State Insurance Board Chairman Joe Christie said.

The measure SB898 is now in the House, where it will be considered by the House Insurance Committee.

It repeals authority given the board in 1975 to issue standard definition for terms frequently manipulated in individual health policies and to set minimum benefits that policies must provide.

The bill, by Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, and Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, also weakens readability standards required by the 1975 legislation.

The board has issued standards that take full effect on Jan. 1, 1978.

Christie said the bill "turns loose on the public that small segment of the insurance industry which accounts for nine out of 10 complaints we receive. These complaints are from policyholders who find out when they file a claim that they have been hoodwinked by "fine print."

"This bill turns back the clock to the days of small print and doubletalk in health insurance policies. There is no reason why any fairminded insurance company would object to allowing the State Board of Insurance to make sure a policy-holder is getting his or her money's worth when they buy a health insurance policy," he said in a statement.

He challenged Parker's contention the standards would not permit a person to buy a policy with reduced benefits at a reduced premium- a Ford instead of a Cadillac. "This is an incorrect argument, because our rules merely require the insurance companies to warn the consumer that what they are buying is not a full-coverage policy," Christie said.

Carter Requests Ethics Guideline

WASHINGTON (AP)- President Carter asked Congress Tuesday to pass a new ethics law to "establish far-reaching safeguards against conflicts of interest and abuse of the public trust by government officials."

In a special message, Carter also announced his support for pending legislation to have, a specially empaneled court appoint a "temporary special prosecutor to handle cases of misconduct by high-ranking, executive branch officials" if such cases arise.

Finally, the President called for the creation of a new Office of Government Ethics in the Civil Service Commission, saying, "an effective oversight office is essential if strict ethical requirements are to be enforced throughout the government."

Carter, who will submit proposed legislation later, said his ethics bill would codify the standards required of his own appointees and extend their coverage to high-ranking career officials.

Under the administration plan, all policy-making employees would publicly disclose income, whether earned or from investments; gifts, including travel, lodging, food and entertainment; assets, liabilities and financial transactions, and positions held in business and professional organizations.

At present, policy-makers must file statements of financial interest, but they are not disclosed to the public.

Under the Carter bill, a person who leaves government would be barred by law from making informal as well as formal contacts with the agency that once employed him for a period of two years rather than the present one year if the matters involved in such contacts had been under his responsibility.

The legislation also would initiate what Carter termed "a

Pentagon Skeptical Of Soviet Laser Defenses

WASHINGTON (AP) - Pentagon officials are skeptical of a report which says recent technical breakthroughs soon may give the Soviet Union the ability to use energy beams to destroy missile warheads. The report, published by Aviation Week & Space Technology magazine, said that such an ability could upset the balance of power.

Senior U.S. defense officials said they do not believe Russia has achieved research breakthroughs with high-energy particle beams, capable of neutralizing U.S. missiles.

Based on all information now available to the U.S. military intelligence monitoring Soviet tests and "extremely young physicists" working with retired Maj. Gen. George Keegan Jr.

Keegan, chief of the Air Force intelligence until last January, has for several years tried to convince U.S. officials and top high-energy physicists that the Soviets are developing charged-particle beam antimissile weapons.

Keegan says influential American physicists are reluctant to accept his evidence because of the idea that if U.S. scientists can't produce such weapons, the Soviets can't either.

Senior physicists knowledgeable in military affairs admit such weapons are possible and that the Soviets are working on them. But they say the technology doesn't exist to make them practical.

Officials also say a beam antimissile system would have problems similar to those of a conventional system using interceptor missiles. These include extremely high costs and vulnerability of long-range radar needed to track warheads and sort out countermeasures.

The magazine report, extensively quoting unnamed military sources, said the Soviets were testing a new type of generator run by tiny nuclear explosions that could supply the enormous power needed for a beam system.

Other signs that beam weapons are nearing prototype testing, the report said, were mysterious physics experiments being conducted at a giant facility near Semipalatinsk, and a new test site at Azgir under direct control of the Soviet national air defense force.

Both the United States and the Soviet Union have programs testing high-power laser light beams for possible anti-missile use. But bad weather cuts the effectiveness of this approach. And enormous power is needed to run the lasers.

A U.S. program to use particle beams as weapons, called Project Seesaw, was closed down four years ago. Keegan says this project wasn't successful because it tried using electron beams, while the Soviets worked with other particles.

Epilepsy Technique Cures Hyperactivity

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - A toy train, a computer and biofeedback techniques that have helped epileptics avoid seizures are being used by a University of Tennessee psychologist to treat hyperactive children.

Hyperactivity is found in more than 5 per cent of all children between ages 6 and 12, according to estimates. Symptoms include a short attention span, constant running around, nonstop talking and breaking things.

In the past, hyperactivity has been treated with psychotherapy, traditional behavior modification methods and drugs such as Ritalin.

Dr. Joel Lubar, who pioneered work on biofeedback treatment for epileptics says the same technique may be a valid way of treating hyperactive children.

"It turns out that the same brain wave pattern that works for changing seizure thresholds in epileptics also is involved in motor activity movement," Lubar said. "For that reason we get a reduction of erratic motor behavior that you see in the hyperactive child."

Lubar said hyperactivity usually is caused by a low grade of brain damage present at birth or a delay in development of portions of the brain involved with processing sensory information.

"The sensory impressions that come into the brain don't have the impact they do in normal children," he said. "So the child becomes wild and unmanageable trying to get enough stimulation."

"It's the same thing as if a normal person was put in a room with very low light and no furniture and left there for hours and hours. He would pace around and eventually would start banging the walls."

A hyperactive child lives with that condition 24 hours a day, Lubar said. Biofeedback is used to increase the impact of stimuli coming into the brain.

The training consists of monitoring a child's brain waves with an electroencephalograph - EEG - and then letting the child observe the thought patterns that bring on abnormal behavior.

"The computer picks out the brain wave that is most important for the child to produce and transforms it into a very simple thing, like a tone or a light," Lubar said. "One thing we've used is a toy train. In order to make the train go fast, they have to sit still. If they move, the train stops."

"They're playing a kind of exciting thing against having to be quiet in order to enjoy it. That's just about the opposite situation you can develop for a hyperactive child. When they learn to do that, they become accustomed to slowing down."

The psychologist said more than 75 per cent of the 20 children with whom he has used the biofeedback technique in the past year have shown significant improvement in behavior and grades. Some also have been taken off medication.

Lubar and Dr. Leonard Miller, head of the Southeastern Biofeedback Institute here, also have begun using biofeedback techniques to treat children with learning disabilities.
