Unemployment Rate Continues To Decline

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration is sounding more confident about reducing unemployment this year than about checking inflation.

With the Labor Department's April job report due out today, government economists say there could be some further improvement in the unemployment rate following a two-tenths of 1 per cent drop in March.

Both the factory layoff rate and the number of Americans collecting jobless benefits have declined since then, and the experts say this was likely to be reflected in the April report.

In March, the jobless rate dropped to 7.3 per cent from 7.5 per cent in February as the economy rebounded after the harsh winter. It marked a return to the level in January before weather-related energy shortages disrupted production.

Congress recently passed a $4 billion public works jobs bill that is awaiting President Carter's signature. A major part of his economic stimulus program, it would make the money available to local governments for construction projects and is expected to create at least 150,000 jobs.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal predicted this week that the administration's goal of reducing joblessness below 7 per cent by year-end "is going to be achieved ahead of schedule."

The inflation outlook is less certain. Wholesale prices, the Labor Department reported Thursday, soared 1.1 per cent in April for the third big consecutive monthly jump.

Food and fuel prices were the major culprits, signaling bigger grocery and utility bills ahead for consumers. Farm prices rose 3.4 per cent last month, while fuel prices increase 1.8 per cent.

The big wholesale price hikes have been matched at the retail level, with consumer prices rising at a 10 per cent annual rate during the first three months of the year.

Bert Lance, director of the Office of Management and Budget, attributed part of the April increase to the continuing effects of the winter weather and the drought in the West.

Lance expressed hope that the price trend will be reversed, but said it's too soon to judge whether inflation is accelerating.

Other administration experts found comfort in the fact that the rate of increase in industrial prices, regarded as a more sensitive measure of inflation than volatile farm prices, did not pick up. Industrial prices climbed six-tenths of 1 per cent in April after an eight-tenths of 1 per cent jump in March.

The nation's improving job picture contrasts with reports of accelerating inflation. The Labor Department reported Thursday that wholesale prices last month rose another 1.1 per cent, an annual rate of more than 13 per cent.

While administration officials are concerned over inflation, they are more confident about reducing unemployment. Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal predicted earlier this week that the administration's goal of reducing joblessness below 7 per cent by year-end "is going to be achieved ahead of schedule."

Joblessness had fallen from its 1975 recession high of 9 per cent to a low in 1976 of 7.3 per cent last May, but climbed to a year's high of 8 per cent during the "pause" between the recovery and the recession.

Town Hall Meeting To Involve Citizens

'No Smoking' Signs May Become Part Of State's Fabric Stores

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - If the Texas Senate has its way, no longer can a Texas man of the house puff a cigarette while he shops for a pair of socks.

Or the lady of the house sneak a smoke between trying on dresses.

Senators decided Thursday by voice vote to extend the state "No Smoking" law to include all Texas department stores, discount stores, dress shops, and any firm selling clothing or fabrics.

Last minute amendments left some grocery stores and nursing homes in the smoking zone. However, any supermarket that sells clothing or fabrics would come under the Senate version, which now goes to the House.

"This is just an extension of the no smoking bill we passed last session which covers public schools, elevators, movies, libraries, hospitals and public buses," said Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston, the sponsor. "My bill covers any retail establishment where dry goods are sold."

Ogg said a number of cities already have the no smoking ban for clothing stores, mostly at the request of store owners.

Approved and sent to the House a bill that would allow any person to demand and get a copy of any personal record that a state agency might have on him. The person would have the right to correct the record if it was in error.

— Sent to the House a bill that would license marriage and family counselors, who operate for pay. A new state licensing board would be created to hold and conduct examinations and issue annual certificates. Ordained ministers, priests, rabbis, physicians and attorneys would be exempt, unless they charged a fee for counseling. Still another bill was sent to the House that would license other professional counselors, affecting mostly school counselors.

Approved 27-1 and sent to the House a measure giving widows a $200,000 state inheritance tax exemption and giving underage orphans a $5,000 a year exemption on inheritances.

Cancer Society Slates Bike-A-Thon Saturday

The Annual American Cancer Society (ACS) Bike-A-Thon will take place Saturday beginning at 9:30 a.m. in the Sugarland Mall parking lot and winding up around noon at the West Central Elementary School.

Persons riding in the Bike-A-Thon will be earning donations for the Annual ACS Crusade by securing sponsors, who will pledge so much money per mile their rider completes along the 20-mile course.

The course will wind through Hereford, staying away from major thoroughfares as much as possible. Three rest stops will be stationed along the course, with Fellowship of Christian Athlete members to serve refreshments to the riders.

There is no age limit on the participants, and we would like to have as many adults as possible." Bike-A-Thon chairman Jerry Coker said.

Two prizes are being offered to the riders who collect the largest donation through their sponsors. The top money collector will get his or her choice of a Schwinn 10-speed bicycle or a Kawasaki Motocross Bicycle, with the runner up to get the bike left over.

Registration for the Bike-A-Thon begins at the Sugarland Mall parking lot at 9 a.m. Saturday. "Parents must sign a release for their children to ride," Coker said.

The goal established for the Bike-A-Thon by the local ACS Board of Directors is $5,000 nearly half of the $13,500 total goal set by the board.

Carter's Reception Warm In Trip To England

WASHINGTON England (AP) - Jimmy Carter, making the first overseas visit of his presidency, basked in a welcome of cheers and flags in northeast England today and saw George Washington's ancestral home before heading into the hard bargaining of a weekend economic summit.

The warm-hearted people of the cradle of British industry made Carter an honorary "Geordie" - the nickname for England's northerners - and waved American and Confederate flags in 20-deep ranks along the road as Carter rode into this old town.

"Everything always happens in London. We're absolutely thrilled that the president of the United States wants to come and visit us here," said June Thompson, echoing the enthusiasm voiced by thousands of others.

"He's a real nice chap, he is - a gentleman," declared glassblower Norman Davidson, 43, after making a large chemical flask for Carter's edification at a branch of the U.S.-owned Corning Glass Co. in nearby Sunderland.

Carter stood in the din and 100-degree heat of the furnace room for the demonstration and then moved outside to receive a souvenir blown glass sculpture of St. George and the Dragon.

From the grim factory area Carter and British Prime Minister James Callaghan drove to this quaint village to visit Old Hall, the manor house where the ancestors of America's first president lived from 1183 to 1613.

Callaghan and his wife, Audrey, had greeted the President after Air Force One brought him from London for a 4-1/2-hour visit to nearby Newcastle, a coal and shipbuilding center and sister City of Atlanta, Ga.

For his day in the country, Carter donned a special blue suit whose pinstripes were the tiny initials "J.C." in vertical rows. It was made from cashmere wool cloth given to Carter by Callaghan - another J.C. - during a recent visit to the United States.

As several thousand of the curious craned their necks for a look, Carter planted a ceremonial tree in the Washington town common. A little boy presented him with a miner's lamp - a symbol of one of this area's main industries.

Later, as the two leaders departed for London and their weekend talks with the leaders of Canada, Japan, West Germany, France, Italy and representatives of the European Common Market, rain began to fall on what had been a sunny spring day after four days of clouds.

The most thorough security precautions ever arranged in the area were not apparent to the eye as Carter stopped several times to shake hands with residents who yelled greetings and reached out for him.

Lord Mayor Hugh White of Newcastle told Carter at a massive ceremonial gathering: "Mr. President, sir, you are a Geordian. You have now become a Geordie." Northerners are called Geordies because they supported King George II, the George after whom Georgia is named, in England's 18th century Jacobean wars.

The President, who is staying at the U.S. ambassador's residence in London, on Thursday moved some of his top advisers, including Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal.

FAITH REMINDS GOOD CITIZENS TO OBEY THE LAW

ince religion teaches us to respect the rights and property of others, the good citizens of our free society will gladly obey the laws of the land, which were established to ensure the observance of those very tenets. We are well aware that these laws are working to protect our freedom, not to curtail it; and if it should ever become necessary to change or abolish a law, we can avail ourselves of the legal procedure that has been provided for the purpose. However, this is a rare occurrence, because most of our laws are in accordance with the basic rules of human conduct, as set forth in the Bible and taught by every Church denomination. By attending your own, you will learn the background for the fine system of laws to which you owe your freedom.

The law is the last result of human wisdom acting upon human experience for the benefit of the public.

Parents Of Students Claim T-Shirts Okay

COPPELL, Tex. (AP) - The parents of two boys suspended from school for wearing t-shirts with pictures of television star Farrah Fawcett-Majors say they will wear the shirts again after the suspension is lifted.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Woolery of Coppel, a small Dallas County community, said their sons Keith, 12, and Wayne, 9, were suspended for wearing shirts the principal called vulgar and inappropriate.

Macias Sanity A Question

FORT WORTH (AP) - When the body of a nude woman, sliced in half, was discovered Feb. 27, a medical examiner said dryly: "Whoever did it has to be nuts."

It was perhaps a prophetic statement, for the murder trial of Rafael George Macias, 21, an Indiana airman, may become a classic duel between one psychiatric viewpoint and another.

Macias, who doctors say fantasizes himself to be an astronaut, told one psychiatrist "I have no guilt feeling at this time so I must not be guilty."

The son of a prominent South Bend heart surgeon, Macias is to stand trial July 11 for the grisly slaying of Julia Adams, 20, a go-go dancer from Texarkana, Ark.

Two men hunting auto parts discovered the body stuffed inside a sealed wooden crate at a dump ground here.

At the time, Macias, stationed at Carswell AFB here, listed his home address as South Bend, Ind.

Gold is so ductile that one ounce of it can be drawn out into a wire 35 miles long.

held under $100,000 bond. Det. L.P. Fowler said Macias gave offices a statement in which he told of strangling the young woman during an argument about her dating other men.

According to the statement, Fowler said, Macias placed the body in a closet at his apartment overnight, then used a hacksaw to sever the body to fit in the box.

Ten days after his arrest, Macias was freed on bond posted by an Arlington bondsman.

Since then, Macias has submitted to extensive psychiatric tests not only by state and defense psychiatrists, but also by doctors at Shepard AFB in Wichita Falls.

The young airman, who turned 21 last Friday, appeared in state District Court Judge F.E. Winters' courtroom here Monday carrying a copy of the novel "War and Peace." Judge Winters reset a trial date for July 11 and permitted a new defense lawyer, Kerry Fitzgerald of Dallas, to enter the case.

Attempts to discuss the case with Macias' lawyers have been unsuccessful. Fitzgerald's secretary says her boss "is too busy to talk with you."

person to be innocent. "It would be up to the defense to prove insanity, but the law requires separate juries for the two issues."

On the competence and sanity issues, the state is expected to rely heavily on the findings of Dr. John P. Methner, a psychiatrist appointed by the court.

Methner said in a sworn statement filed in the district clerk's office that he examined Macias a total of 10 hours over a five-day period late last month.

"The patient understands right from wrong and the general nature of the legal proceedings," Methner said, adding that he believes him competent to assist his counsel.

Neighbors heard the noise, called police and Macias was arrested.

The girl's family chose not to press charges and South Bend authorities agreed not to prosecute Macias if he would submit to psychiatric treatment.

News accounts indicate he consulted with a psychiatrist but the outcome is unknown.

Asked about the Fort Worth slaying, the young airman's mother said simply, "He went berserk."

guilt feeling at this time so I must not be guilty."

He said the airman's main fantasy is to be an astronaut, that his IQ is "average, plus" and that his life style suggests "a loner, withdrawn... with no marked drive or life goal, with poor socialization, especially in the heterosexual area."

Methner's report touches on a 1974 incident in which Macias threatened the only known girlfriend he ever had, a high school girl in South Bend.

According to police records, he broke into the girl's home and threatened her with a pellet gun. When the girl's family came to her aid, he threatened to kill them, brandishing a steak knife and cutting a telephone cord.

Neighbors heard the noise, called police and Macias was arrested.

Churches Speak Out Against Nuclear Tests

CINCINNATI (AP) - Underground atomic tests should be eliminated and the United States should seek an investigation of human rights violations in other countries through the United Nations, the National Council of Churches says.

The stands were taken in resolutions supported at the council's policymaking Board of Governors meeting here.

A ban of underground testing, said Rev. Don Wilson of the council's nuclear test committee, would "eliminate the possibility of testing weaponry while saying it is for peaceful purposes when in fact it is not."

The board said the United States should seek investigations of violations of Human rights and fight political moves to expel members from the United Nations.

Rabbi A. James Rudin, attending as a fraternal delegate from the American Jewish Committee in New York said the resolution would "contribute to an atmosphere that will put an end to an early date to the vigilante tactics and lynch mob mentality which anti-Israel forces have created in recent years at the U.N. and among its specialized agencies."

Churches Speak Out Against Nuclear Tests

The board put off until November completion of a policy statement regarding exploitation in Africa, particularly South Africa.

The Rev. Clinton Marsh, chairperson of the Consultation on Africa, said many American stockholders profit from African exploitation, a "terrible scourge that should be removed from this earth."

Beer Can Mountains Began When Prohibition Ended

JIMTOWN, Mont. (AP) - Custer and his men were wiped out 30 miles west of here. A monument marks the place.

At this weebegone outpost on the Rosebud River another monument of sorts has been raised, gradually, over the years, commemorating wipeout after wipeout of the victors. Custer's last laugh?

This monument you have to see to believe. It is a pile of beer cans. No, it is a mountain range of beer cans. It ascends to altitudes of 15 feet, 20 feet, maybe higher in spots, and it sprawls over an acre of otherwise unproductive soil located precisely outside the northern Cheyenne Indian Reservation boundary line. A bacchanalian midden.

"When did that beer can pile begin? It began the day Prohibition ended," said Bob Edwards, proprietor of the Jimtown Bar. He also said there's more to the pile than meets the eye.

hole, a pretty good size hole, I'm told. A good part of it is underground.

"I'm the fifth owner of this joint. The first was a guy named Jim Ellison. That's how the place came to be Jimtown. It isn't a town. I guess you noticed this is the only thing here, this saloon. Isn't it the worst place you ever saw?"

"Anyhow, I've had other holes dug to keep the pile down. I had a Cat come in with a 10-foot blade and dig a long trench eight feet deep. That trench is full, and those cans were squashed flat.

"What's out back are just the cans that stay. More go out the front door. We had a cleanup drive once and somebody collected eight pickup loads just between here and Lame Deer."

Lame Deer, population 600, the only town on the Reservation, is four miles south of Jimtown, and yes, mercy yes, Jimtown is the worst place you ever saw.

The saloon is a battered wooden building bearing vague evidence that it once knew pain. Its windows are screened with steel, of prison thickness. The sign over the door, "Jimtown Bar," is riddled with more than 100 bullet holes. The equally ventilated mailbox is the third replacement in less than a year.

Edwards said, "They kept busting them over each other's head. Try picking up one of those trunks."

"I've run saloons on Skid Road in Seattle on the south side of Billings, seven saloons in Montana. None of them even came close to this joint. This is the absolute worst."

The different is that Jimtown is the first saloon outside the booze-free Reservation. Thirsty Cheyenne are its reason for being. Besides, it is the only saloon in a desolate place as there is on the map. Depart Jimtown in any direction and you drive two hours to the next oasis.

Gold Discs Are Mark Of Achievements In Recording

NEW YORK (AP) - Glenn Miller probably got the first one, in 1942 for "Chattanooga Choo Choo." But Perry Como's "Catch a Falling Star" was the first certified - March 14, 1958.

It's the Gold Record, that ever more common measure of achievement in the record business. And today there's even a Platinum Record, for doubling sales needed to win the golden variety.

"Some say it's not hard enough to get a Gold Record," says Henry Brief, the man who measures the best-sellers. "We awarded 204 Gold and Platinum Record awards last year, an all-time high. That's out of 10,000 records released - 10,000 - and that's too high?"

Brief is executive director of the Recording Industry Association of America, the only source of the official, certified Gold and Platinum Record. To a point, the RIAA is the industry's gauge of success at the sales counter.

"There's a difference between Gold Record awards and awards like the Grammy," Brief says, "and that's the fact there is nothing subjective about the Gold Record."

"In effect, it's a consumer award. It comes when the public plunks down cold, hard cash for a record. If there's no sale, there's no award."

Essentially, Gold Records are awarded when a single sells a million copies and when sales of an album or long-playing tape exceed 500,000. Double those figures and win a Platinum Record.

About 50 record companies belong to the RIAA, but anyone who makes and sells recordings, says Brief, can apply for a Gold Record. The association hires accountants to check the sales - not the giveaways or promos - and awards the winners.

The association, between 1958 and the end of last year, had awarded 1,915 Gold Records, well over half of them to albums. The Platinum Record award, begun last year, had 41 winners.

The list of winners is a recent history of the recording industry. Elvis Presley, Johnny Mathis, the Kingston Trio, Mitch Miller and Henry Mancini won several in the first five years. Then came the Beatles, with nine winners in 1964 alone. And so on through rock, hard rock and soul. Johnnie Taylor's "Disco Lady" was the first certified Platinum single, April 22, 1976.

The association doesn't keep track of individual winners, but a quick check of the long list since 1958 shows 38 for the Beatles, 28 for Presley, 24 for Aretha Franklin and so on. Barbra Streisand has 18, Sinatra 14.

It's all in the name of good public relations. Recording artists count them, record companies display them.

And, says Brief, the system has been "of inestimable value in the last few years, with everyone interested in nostalgia. More and more record companies are going back to re-release their golden hits of the '50s and '60s."

Texas' Problem--Too Much Money

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Texas, as Texans like to claim, is different from other states. Like most other states, it has its problems with money.

But in the case of the Lone Star State, the problem is too much rather than not enough. A $1 billion state surplus plus the prospect of another $2 billion in unexpected revenue in the coming two years has prompted a battle among legislators over what to do with the windfall.

The conservative faction wants to cut taxes - which would reduce the projected surplus - but liberals say even a $3 billion surplus isn't enough to make up for lack of spending on social and other programs in the past.

"If we had addressed these problems all along and come up with this surplus, it would have been the kind of surplus you could bank or return to the taxpayer. We are now having to pay for what we have not done in the past," said John Bryant of Dallas, leader of House liberals.

On the conservative side, House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Joe Wyatt said: "The Texas level of spending has outgrown its tax base. We have more state employees per capita than New York, California, Michigan or any of the top 10 industrial states...I think we ought to reduce taxes because it is the most effective way to hold down spending."

The current $1 billion surplus was generated by higher prices on gasoline, heating oil and natural gas, which boosted tax revenues. The state taxes natural gas production at 7.5 per cent of value and oil production at 4.6 per cent. Texas also is gaining income as its share of the Sunbelt's economic and population boom.

Projections for the coming two years show that revenues for 1978-79 should exceed the current two-year budget by $2 billion, said state Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Despite the current and projected surpluses, legislators are working to cut the $15.7 billion two-year state budget so there will be money left over for tax cuts or increased social welfare programs. The legislature faces a May 30 deadline for adjournment.

Rural taxpayers want school tax relief, and teachers, who make up a powerful lobby that can't be ignored, want a pay raise. Among all states, Texas ranks near the bottom in child welfare payments and 32nd in teacher salaries. And liberals say there is a wide gap in educational quality between rich and poor school districts.

Teachers Suffer 'Combat Neurosis'

TORONTO, Canada (AP) - A psychiatrist reporting "combat neurosis" in inner city school teachers said Wednesday that school violence has not declined and officials have taken only token steps to ease the trauma on "battered teachers."

Dr. Alfred M. Bloch said that nationally some 63,000 serious injuries from physical assaults by students were reported in 1975-76 and that many more were never reported.

In addition to their physical injuries, "many psychological symptoms presented by these battered teachers are analogous to those observed in combat neurosis," Bloch said.

They included emotional tension, anxiety, nightmares, jumpiness, phobias and other psychological ills. Bloch said that, as in the case of soldiers under constant fear of attack, the tension is sometimes shown in physical symptoms such as high blood pressure, stomach trouble, backaches and headaches.

Bloch said that in California, where his studies were carried out, workers' compensation adjusters generally refuse claims for repairing psychic damage to assaulted teachers unless court action forces them to accept them.

In Los Angeles schools, where Bloch studied 253 assaults on teachers between 1971 and 1976, "the school district categorically denies that there has been psychological injury" to teachers, he said.

Despite his earlier report of the emotional aftereffects of beatings by students, the Los Angeles schools have made only "token efforts" to remedy the situation, Bloch said. That effort consisted of making a crisis intervention team available to victims of assaults. But even then, said Bloch, anything a teacher tells the teams' psychologist can be used against him if a lawsuit should arise.

Philadelphia schools have adopted one of Bloch's recommendations, that a student who beats a teacher be removed and put in a special school. In most cases, he said, "the student is suspended for two days and returns to the same classroom as a campus hero."

Bloch, an assistant professor of psychiatry at UCLA, reported his findings at the meeting of the American Psychiatric Association here.

Even more demoralizing than the assaults, Bloch said, is the all-too frequent advice school officials give teachers to keep quiet. He said this happens in about 70 per cent of the cases.

He said that such a lack of support from school administrators has caused some victims to quit teaching.
