Heavy Rainfall Blitzes Hereford Area

Flooding Death Toll At Least 15

BANDERA, Tex. (AP) - Flood-ravaged residents of the Central Texas Hill Country awakened to more rain this morning as the death toll from the two-day torrent reached at least 15.

Kerrville policeman Bill Fackelman said that scattered reports came in "all night long" about deaths and missing persons. "We've got nine bodies out of Bandera, four out of Comfort and two out of Center Point," Fackelman said. He said at least nine persons were missing from Center Point and Comfort.

Overnight rains up to 12 inches added to 20-inch amounts that fell beginning early Wednesday morning.

Hundreds of persons were evacuated from low-lying residences and several summer camps along the swollen Guadalupe and Medina Rivers.

Waters began receding late Wednesday and many evacuees returned to their homes, only to be moved again this morning.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe has asked that all three counties be declared disaster areas and made eligible for emergency assistance funds and programs. Ironically, the area has recently been plagued by drought.

Two persons were hospitalized after receiving "major injuries" in the Bandera County flooding along the Medina River, deputies said.

Entrances to the LBJ Ranch near Stonewall, Texas, were blocked by the raging floodwaters of the Pedernales River. Rising waters failed to reach the house, but came within feet of the stone fence circling the family cemetery where the late President Lyndon B. Johnson is buried.

Heavy rains in the area Tuesday and Wednesday turned several normally placid rivers into surging death traps. In a 48-hour period ending late Wednesday night, Kerrville had received 22 inches of rain.

The Medina River reached a record flood stage, cresting at 45 feet. The previous record was 43 feet set in 1919. The usual level of the river is 10 feet. Weather forecasters said the crest on the spillway at the Medina Dam would likely reach five feet over the top.

Widespread flooding is expected from below the dam to the confluence with the San Antonio River, which was expected to crest near 44 feet where the normal level is 20 feet.

Kerrville, located on the Guadalupe River about 25 miles north of Bandera, resembled a war zone as National Guard troops, Army and state police helicopters [See FLOODING, Page 2]

New Building Starts Hit Lull in July

Construction starts hit a lull in July, with 24 permits issued for new buildings worth $297,600.

That compared with June's yearly high of $813,500, which included 25 permits.

The 1978 building total now stands at $3,491,680.

There were only nine permits issued for new single-family residences last month. John Craig Builders had two new-residence permits for houses of $23,900 each and two for $23,800 each to lead the way in July building starts.

Other permits issued in July were to Acencion Ramirez, move-in residence, $1,500; W.H. Walser, storage, $150; Hereford Independent School District, add on to science building, $10,500; Bill Cango, storage, $400; Flores Ramirez, carport, $500; Lloyd Sharp, covered porch, $3,000; Dallas Phillips, alter and repair store, $500; Marvin Sinclair, single-family residence, $26,000; Torbio Gaitan, addition to residence, $1,100; Jimmy N. Victor, storage and garage, $5,000; Leroy Smithers, add on residence, $5,500; Lloyd Thomas, garage, $1,500 and Estevan Banegas, add room in attic, $500.

Other permits were issued to Greg Rodriguez, single-family residence, $48,800; Enamancia Barrientez, move off residence, no value; Enamancia Barrientez, move in mobile home, $18,000; Lois Clinard, addition to residence, $7,000; and Edwin Bridges, three single-family residences, $29,500, $29,900 and $27,400.

House Finally Approves Relief

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - After two failures, the House finally has approved a package of constitutional amendments to ease property taxes, and Gov. Dolph Briscoe says a legislative consensus is developing.

The House approved the measure HJRI 113-20 Wednesday night, and Senators could vote today on whether to accept it or send it to a conference committee.

It will take a two-thirds vote in each chamber to send the final product to the voters for a decision at the Nov. 7 election.

Speaker Bill Clayton said he hoped the House could vote today on another part of the compromise that won approval of the constitutional amendments - a $450 million promise by the state to reimburse school districts for revenue lost to property tax relief.

Another key tax relief measure was on its way to a final vote. House-Senate conferees approved Wednesday a bill abolishing the 4 percent state sales tax on gas and electric bills and raising the inheritance exemption from $25,000 per heir to $200,000 per estate.

The tax-exempt portion of an estate would rise to $300,000 in 1985.

Clayton, who promoted the special session on tax relief after Californians cut their own taxes through Proposition 13, bargained and persuaded to salvage the constitutional amendments.

Some said his prestige was at stake

Parade Blanks Now Available

Entry blanks for participation in the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame All-Girls Rodeo Parade Aug. 26 are available at the Hall of Fame in the lower floor of the Deaf Smith County Library.

The parade will begin at 2 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 25, according to parade chairman Harold Wheeler.

The rodeo is scheduled for the nights of Aug. 25-27.

after the House twice refused to produce the 100 votes needed to send the package to the Senate.

"I am confident" that through the legislative process, which at times is slow and cumbersome, members of the Legislature will send to the people of Texas and to my desk a series of proposals in which they can take pride," Briscoe said in a statement after the House voted Wednesday night.

"It appears a consensus is building in the Legislature, and I am pleased to see such a consensus develop," he said.

Clayton gained some liberals and lost only a few conservatives in the compromising that brought success to his constitutional amendments package.

A major change added language requiring the Legislature to establish statewide standards for appraising real estate for taxation and creating countywide appraisal offices.

Yantis Appointment Rejected To Governor's Disappointment

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Sen. Bill Moore, D-Bryan, ignored one of the Senate's most cherished traditions Wednesday, but his colleagues went against him in rejecting Hugh Yantis' appointment as chairman of the state insurance board.

The Senate voted 27-1 against Yantis as a courtesy to Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, who said Yantis had become a "temporary consumer crusader" in an effort to win last-minute Senate support.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe said he thought Yantis had "well served the interests of the state and its citizens. I regret that his nomination was not confirmed."

Senators voted 23-5 to confirm Briscoe's appointment of former Sen. Dorsey Hardeman to the Texas Water Commission, although Sen. A.R. Schwartz described Hardeman as a liar and a schemer "who did evil right here in this Senate."

Traditionally, senators automatically "bust" an appointee if his hometown senator opposes him. Only Moore flouted the tradition by voting for Yantis. He described Yantis "as one of the best appointments a governor of Texas has made in many years."

"He didn't let the environmentalists run him out of the Capitol - that's why the senator from Travis doesn't like him, that's all," said Moore, referring to Yantis' previous career with the Water quality board.

Moore said senatorial courtesy "went out the window" when Doggett was elected, because so many state appointees live in Doggett's district that he can dictate virtually all important state jobs.

Doggett hoped to avoid a vote on Yantis so the Senate could reject him in 1979, with Briscoe's successor appointing a replacement.

Perryton Grand Jury Doesn't Indict Officers for Shooting

PERRYTON (AP) - An Ochiltree County grand jury returned no indictments Wednesday in the police shooting death of a 25-year-old Mexican-American man.

Paul Martinez, 25, of Canyon, died early Tuesday after he was shot with a shotgun and a .357-magnum pistol.

Two officers who fired the fatal shots said Martinez was shot while trying to flee from the officers, according to police reports.

A dozen witnesses, mostly police officers, testified before the grand jury Wednesday.

The late summer dreams of local grain farmers came true here early today as a thunderstorm front moved into the Deaf Smith County area and unloaded timely moisture in sufficient quantity to allow many agriculturalists to give their hard-pressed irrigation wells a few days off.

And, to add icing to the cake, the rainfall that soared to accumulations as high as three inches in the early morning downpour, is just the medicine the doctor ordered for dealing with a worrisome buildup in the spider mite population in local grain fields.

Showers ranged the width of the county, falling on irrigated and dryland farms alike, and giving a much-needed late season boost to corn, grain sorghum and sugar beet crops.

Cool, humid weather, which is expected to persist in the area for at least another day or two may cause problems for the minor acreage of cotton here, and wet fields may delay the potato harvest for a brief time, but the savings in irrigation water and the natural gas required to pump it is more than a fair trade in the minds of most local farmers.

The rainfall began in the wee hours of the morning after thunderheads built to the north during much of Wednesday evening. High winds accompanied the early morning downpour.

According to The Brand's correspondent at Stateline, several sheep drowned at the Johnny Rucker ranch, located 25 miles south of Farwell. The Ruckers reported that their 5-inch capacity rain gauge was overflowing after the gully-washer.

On the Herschel Hughes farm, also near the New Mexico border, 3.75 inches of rain uprooted several fruit trees. The storm, which reached the Stateline area around 10 p.m., dumped rain mixed with hail, which reportedly caused some roof damage.

Much of the farmland to the immediate north of the city received at least two inches of moisture.

Reports of 2.50 inches of rainfall were received from Pioneer Fertilizer at Milo Center and the Hereford Grain Corporation's Farmer's Corner facility.

A two inch report was received from a farm five miles west of the Ford community, and the Raymond Schlabs farm five miles north of Hereford also recorded two inches of precipitation. Mrs. Schlabs reported that all of the wells with the exception of one were shut down on her husband's farm today following the timely rainfall.

Westway Fertilizer reported 1.50 inches of rain at that community, and a spokesman for the firm stated that the report was only an estimate, indicating that accumulations might have been more.

"I couldn't say exactly. Our gauge out here is broken. But one thing for sure. The corn looks good and this is really going to help our spider mite problem," he stated.

The rainfall tapered off slightly in the Hereford area with KPAN radio logging a moisture accumulation of 1.20 inches for

PUC Says Okay To Hike, Experiment

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Fewer local calls could mean more dollars saved for roughly 1.4 million residential customers of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. under the company's newest rate order.

In an "experiment" involving 15 cities, the Texas Public Utility Commission Wednesday ordered Bell to provide optional "lifeline" rates at approximately 40 percent less than standard monthly charges.

"The utility consumers of Texas have had a pretty rough going in the last few years," Commissioner Alan Erwin said, "and I really believe this order is the first real, true hope for substantive relief on utility bills that they've ever had."

The commission granted an overall $124.5 million annual rate increase, compared to Bell's requested $214.3 million.

"We're sorry the commission did not see fit to agree with our request," said Bell attorney Jon Dee Lawrence.

"I'm a little surprised to see that lifeline rates. It's an opportunity to see if there's a demand for this that's broad enough to justify its implementation," he said. "It was good to make it on a trial basis on a limited number of exchanges."

Lawrence said the company would probably decide next week whether to appeal the rate order in court. Bell recently lost a Texas Supreme Court appeal of its first, $57.8 million rate increase granted by the commission.

Only the 15 cities involved are

Bell Apologizes For Omissions In Local Books

Some rural residents in Deaf Smith County this week told The Brand they were upset at Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. for leaving their exchanges out of the 1978 directories, which were distributed beginning last weekend.

The Brand told Bell of the complaints, and Bell apologized to the affected telephone customers.

The locations omitted from beside customers' names include Frio, Westway, Milo Center, Dawn and Summerfield.

Bell officials stated that the omissions occurred during the conversion to a new computerized cold type composition system used in publishing the new directories.

"During the changeover from the old to the new system, the town names were omitted," the company stated in a press release, which added: "Telephone numbers seem to be as accurate as ever."

The release stated: "We regret the errors and we are now correcting them in our files. When next year's Hereford phone book is published, we will add in the names of the towns. Our assistance operators do have records that show the town name and they will be able to consult those records when giving out numbers."

Bell issued the press release after The Brand drew it to the company's attention that the towns had been omitted.

House Votes To Halt Assistance to Syria

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House wants to wipe out U.S. economic aid to Syria in the next fiscal year to protest what one congressman calls massive shelling of defenseless civilians in Lebanon.

Lawmakers voted 280-103 Wednesday night to eliminate the $90 million aid program for Syria after rejecting an earlier call for a $45 million cut and pleas by others in the House to withhold punitive action altogether.

In other key votes involving U.S. foreign policy, the House:

Approved 229-180 a move to end this country's participation in a United Nations trade embargo against Rhodesia. To ensure the embargo is lifted, the Rhodesian interim government must keep a promise to hold free elections by year's end.

Voted initially to halt U.S. arms shipments to Chile, and then reversed itself after strenuous objections from the Justice Department. The proposed cutoff was designed to force Chile to extradite three men indicted here for the murder of Orlando Letelier, a former Chilean ambassador to the United States.

The vote on Syrian aid was part of a $7.3 billion foreign assistance bill, while the Rhodesian and Chilean amendments were attached to a $1 billion foreign military aid authorization. Both measures are headed for House-Senate conference committees.

Arab Gunmen Kill PLO Representative

PARIS (AP) - Two Arab gunmen assassinated the Palestine Liberation Organization representative in his Paris office today and wounded two other persons before releasing hostages and surrendering to police, officials said.

The PLO representative, Izzeddin Qalac, died from 16 bullets that smashed into his body, police said. He had been in Paris as the PLO representative since 1972 and was known as a supporter of PLO chief Yasser Arafat in his struggle against Iraqi-backed extremists who reject any idea of negotiations with Israel. An anonymous telephone caller told the French news agency Agence France-Presse that the strike was mounted by the Rejection Front of Stateless Palestinian Arabs, a previously unheard of group.

The caller claimed responsibility for Monday's attack on the Iraqi Embassy as well as the operation at the PLO offices, which are in the same elegant building as the Arab League.

"We don't want a land of exile any more, but the promised land of Mohammed," said the caller, who identified himself as the front's commander.

"We are going to strike all over France. This is only the beginning. We will put France into flames, and its pro-Jewish, pro-American regime."

Tax-Relief Shift Called Unacceptable

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration, trying to reshape a $16.2 billion House tax cut bill, is off to an unpromising start with its last minute efforts to shift tax relief back to lower-income brackets and decrease planned cuts in capital gains taxation.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, President Carter's tax envoy, took the proposed changes to Capitol Hill on Tuesday where Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, called the proposals unacceptable. Ullman's panel has written the tax plan now being considered in the House.

But the chairman said discussions were continuing on a possible Treasury Department-Ways and Means Committee compromise to permit consideration, at least, of the amendments in the House.

That procedure is considered unusual because the House traditionally, when considering tax measures, takes up only proposed floor amendments already considered and rejected by the Ways and Means Committee.

Up to now, Ullman said, he has no plans to ease pressure for passage of his committee's bill with no provisions for the Carter amendments.

Although exact details of the administration plan have not been worked out, Blumenthal's discussions showed concern for:

-Directing individual tax relief to families with incomes below $40,000.

-Cutting back capital gains reductions by boosting from 10 percent to 15 percent the committee's proposed "Alternative minimum tax."

Austin Negotiators Give Nod To Repeal

AUSTIN (AP) - House and Senate negotiators decided Wednesday on a compromise that would return $542 million to Texas taxpayers through repeal of utilities sales taxes and inheritance tax exemptions.

The final decision to approve the conference committee report will be up to the House and the Senate.

The Senate bill would have saved taxpayers $496 million over the next three years while the House bill took $750 million out of state revenue.

The repeal of the state four-cent sales tax on gas and electric bill was valued at $491 million, while increasing the inheritance tax exemptions for estates was placed at $51 million.

The bill would increase the inheritance tax exemption from $25,000 to $200,000 per estate in 1978, to $250,000 in 1982 and $300,000 in 1985.

The final decision Wednesday was to remove a provision in the House bill that would have allowed "mom and pop stores," small independent firms, to take advantage of the exemption.

Rep. Joe Wyatt, D-Victoria, said the provision would cost the state another $250 million in revenue. Statistics showed the proposed exemption would affect 83 percent of all sales tax collections made now on utilities paid by commercial consumers. The House conferees voted 3-2 in its removal and the Senate 4-1.

The compromise bill would remove the one-cent local sales tax on utility bills unless the governing body of cities or local districts vote to keep the levy.

Police Report

Patty Owens, 619 Star, reported to Hereford police that between 10:30 p.m. Wednesday and 1 a.m. today someone stole a hanging planter from her front porch.

She said the planter was worth $15.

A clerk at Allsup's No. 113, 15th and Ave. H, reported that someone took $5 worth of gas and left without paying.

Deaf Smith County Juvenile Probation Office reported Wednesday that someone last week shot out a headlight on a 1976 Chevrolet owned by the office with a BB gun.

C.E. Leasure Tuesday reported that someone broke the windshields on a pickup and wrecker while they were parked at 120 Witherspoon.

Landing Ship Used To Aid Fleeing Vietnam People

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent

Somewhere in the South China Sea, a converted Navy landing ship waits to do the job no government wants.

A fishing boat arrives crowded with Vietnamese fleeing their homeland. Now the crew aboard the old Navy vessel goes to work. A sick child is treated. Food is given.

The tiny fishing boat then sails on, becoming just a speck on the western horizon bound for any place that will let its passengers land. And on the mercy ship they debate whether the little craft and its human cargo will make it.

"Officially, we couldn't tell them what direction to take, or even point them the right way," explains W. Stanley Mooneyham, president of World Vision International, the humanitarian organization that chartered the landing ship to use as a floating aid center for Vietnamese boat people fleeing across the South China Sea.

"The neighboring countries barely tolerate our activities because they are unhappy about accepting the refugees. There seems to be a conspiracy against the boat people. It is ludicrous that human life is held so cheaply," Mooneyham said in an interview after returning from Southeast Asia.

Since the World Vision ship began its $50,000-a-month mercy mission in early July, President Carter has permitted flag carriers to pick up Vietnamese refugees found in distress at sea. Ship owners are being assured that the United States will take the responsibility for their resettlement. No refugees are known to have been picked up yet.

Mooneyham said this was one step toward "changing the inhumanity that since 1975 has encouraged international shipping to pass by Vietnamese refugees without helping them, actions unique in the history of western civilization."

Much more is needed, he asserted, "because we know large numbers of refugees are drowning at sea." Accurate figures on human losses are not available because the boat people set out in secrecy.

But eyewitness reports from surviving boat people suggest that up to 50 percent drown. Some of the 1,800 refugees who arrived in Malaysia one recent week reported that 200 of their number drowned en route.

Since the end of the Vietnam War in 1975 a total of 40,000 boat refugees have landed in Thailand, Malaysia, the Philippines, Indonesia and Australia, most of them in the past 12 months. There are 21,000 waiting in camps for resettlement, and the flow continues unabated.

Mooneyham said that when he broached his idea for a mercy ship in January and February "all five governments in the area, the United States and the United Nations officially said, 'God, don't give them enough gas to get to Australia.'"

Mooneyham said, "I got the feeling that the more we saved, the bigger the problem for the world. But I knew the boat people were not vicious people. They just wanted to live in freedom."

World Vision, a Christian charity that gets its money from donations, located an old World War II Navy landing ship that had been used to haul supplies between Singapore, Saigon and Hong Kong.

The organization leased it and added portable living units to provide a first aid clinic and living quarters for two Chinese nurses, an Indian doctor, an American captain - Burt Singleton, from Palos Verdes, Calif. - and a crew of nine.

A mechanic and an interpreter rounded out the ship's complement, and it has been roaming the South China Sea about 100 miles off Vietnam, traveling a course known to be favored by the boat people.

"We have family food packs aboard with 10 days supply, charcoal braziers, and gasoline," Mooneyham said. "When the boats leave Vietnam they are as lightly supplied as possible because of the risk of detection."

"We give the sick first aid, and we provide a compass for ships that need it."

Officials were concerned about the mercy mission because most Asian points barred vessels arriving with Vietnamese refugees. "We will pick up people if we have to," said Mooneyham, but so far they have gotten by with aid and assistance to the boats they encountered at sea.

Mooneyham said, "What we need to do is internationalize this problem. I believe America has a unique and specific responsibility to these debris of the war, but so does mankind. To abandon these boat people now is an unconscionable act."

SBA Programs Reauthorized

WASHINGTON (AP) - Labor Department officials, caught off guard by a Senate vote to free many small businesses from safety and health regulations, say the move would deprive millions of workers of their "fundamental human rights."

But backers of the proposal, adopted Wednesday as the Senate vote reauthorize Small Business Administration programs, say it will ease the regulatory burden small businesses must bear.

"I think it's very tragic and somewhat shortsighted," Occupational Safety and Health Administration spokesman Frank Greer said after the vote.

"It would seem it is a basic denial of fundamental human rights to deny workers protection because they work in small businesses."

But Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., who voted for the provision, said it was necessary because "very small businesses don't have...the wherewithal and the auditors and everything else to go along with these particular regulations."

The proposal, sponsored by Sen. Dewey Bartlett, R-Okla., would mean that businesses with 10 workers or less in a non-hazardous industry would no longer be subject to inspection by OSHA officials.

Labor Department officials said the change would affect about 10 million workers.

Precise figures on the number of businesses that would be exempt were unavailable. But Tom Wasinger, an aide to Bartlett, estimated that more than two million firms would no longer be subject to OSHA jurisdiction.

Wasinger said small wholesale and retail operations, as well as real estate offices, insurance companies and financial institutions were the types of businesses that would be exempt.

Small construction companies, mining operations and manufacturing firms still would be subject to inspections, he said.

The amendment was approved on a voice vote after opponents failed, 42-51, to table the provision.

Hill Charges Cut Illegal

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Attorney General John Hill said Wednesday that one attempt of the 1977 Legislature to lower taxes on recreational areas for condominiums and residential developments was unconstitutional.

However, he said another move of the same legislature to let deed restrictions on such property affect tax values was legal.

The opinion was asked by Harris County Attorney Joe Resweber, concerning assessment of property owned by non-profit associations for the use and benefit of their members. He said a typical situation was where owners of a residential subdivision or condominium complex provided a common recreation area. The common areas are held in the name of a nonprofit tenants' association which maintains the facilities and assess membership fees.

The attorney general said one provision called for assessment on a "nominal value" in respect to all property taxes for the total properties. He said this was illegal because the constitution says that market value is the only standard to use in evaluating property.

The provision "which requires that property be assessed at market value but that certain deed restrictions be considered, is constitutional," the attorney general said.

Flooding

and scores of police deposited stunned refugees at evacuation centers. Telephone communications were severely hampered in the stricken areas.

Jim Robinson, the DPS spokesman, said all youth camps along the rampaging Guadalupe River were warned at daybreak to evacuate or move to higher ground. He said all children at the Guadalupe River camps were believed safe and accounted for.

Robinson said camps along the swollen Medina River in Bandera County also had been evacuated, although deputies were unsure if everyone had been reached in time.

Children rescued from the Serendip Camp on the Medina River were taken to the Pipe Creek Volunteer Fire Department. Refugees from Camp Bandera were taken to a church in Bandera.

Late Wednesday night, National Guardsmen forded a stream late Wednesday night to rescue 156 girls from the isolated Herman-Scott camp. The girls were taken to a high school in Comfort where they were reunited with their families.

More than 150 evacuees crammed into the VA Hospital at Kerrville or into the city's municipal auditorium. A preliminary survey of the Kendall County area showed about 400 persons were left homeless and were being sheltered in emergency shelters.

In Medina, police reported the Medina River was flowing through downtown buildings. In Bandera, residents were calling it the worst flood since 1900. As floodwaters began receding, many residents returned to their homes to find they had lost everything.

In both communities, Army helicopters plucked people out of trees and off rooftops. Floodwaters peeled back the asphalt on roads and tossed cars and uprooted trees in the path of rescuers.

In Comfort, police said the Guadalupe River was seven feet deep over much of the town. The local football stadium was under five feet of water. As the flood began to recede about noon, cars and trucks were standing on end, tangled in lifeless power lines. Appliances floated downriver.

Identification was available on only seven of the eight confirmed dead late Wednesday night.

The body of Jose Antonio Morales, 76, was found in his home in Comfort, and officers identified another victim found in the town of 1,500 as 28-year-old Timothy Klemstein.

The bodies of two elderly women were recovered near Bandera. They were identified as Mrs. King Buchanan, believed to be in her 60s, and Bertha Louise Baum, 80, of Abilene. Officers said Mrs. Baum had been camping in the area.

In Center Point, between Comfort and Kerrville, four more bodies were recovered, including that of an unidentified boy believed to be about 12 years old.

the city. The Holly Sugar Corporation's Hereford plant measured 1.37 inches of rainfall, and the Charles Schlabs farm just south of the city recorded 1.20 inches.

Rainfall dropped off rapidly to the south, with the Easter community receiving only .50 inches of moisture, according to a spokesman for Easter Grain. The spokesman pointed out that crops "look good" in the Easter area however, and even a light shower will help in dealing with the spider mite problem.

Rainfall was scattered in the vicinity of the Dawn community to the east of Hereford.

While only a trace of moisture was reported at Dawn proper, the Robert Strain farm five miles northwest of Dawn received 1.50 inches of precipitation.

Dryland operators on the sprawling wheat spreads to the west of the city were happy to see rainfall that will help store up moisture for the planting of this year's crop.

Mrs. Bill Page reported that .85 inches of rain fell at her husband's farm at the Bootleg community this morning, and combined with the accumulation from a light shower that fell there on Monday, the downpour brought the week's moisture total to 1.25 inches.

"We heard reports of one inch to the north and west of us, and we know everyone is real glad to get the moisture," Mrs. Page stated.

Near the New Mexico border, the Clint

Homfeld farm 47 miles northwest of Hereford received .70 inches of rain, to add to a trace that fell there earlier this week.

"This is going to help the dryland milo crop out here, which has been holding on real well on the little soil moisture that has been available. The rain will also help to store up moisture in the fields which have been in summer fallow," she related.

Showers and thunderstorms are expected to continue likely throughout the remainder of the evening, becoming scattered tomorrow.

Refreshingly cooler temperatures are expected to prevail throughout West Texas tonight, with today's high expected to reach only 75.

Telephone Rates

equipped to record the number of outgoing calls from a single phone number. Bell will be given six months to implement the new measured service rates in these areas with customers having the alternative to remain under the standard monthly service charge.

Here's how the lifeline rate would work:

Customers could make 25 local calls for a flat fee and any additional calls would cost eight cents each.

The lifeline flat rate would vary according to size of the city, ranging from $5.00 in Houston to $3.70 in San Benito. Other areas slated for the new rates are Amarillo, Corpus Christi, Dallas, Galveston, Fort Worth, Harlingen, Lubbock, San Antonio, Wichita Falls, Tyler, Midland and Beaumont.

A measured rate customer could return to a standard monthly fee if he found his bills were actually higher. However, any change in rates would be subject to a service charge order fee, similar to charges for changing phone equipment.

Commission chairman George Cowden said the regulatory agency avoided calling the new rate structure "lifeline" because he said that term implies a subsidized service.

"Lifeline has so many connotations and its considered not cost-bases," Cowden said.

"We don't want to mislead people that this is a service supported by other services as opposed to bring cost-based." The new rate method is the first such experiment in Texas, although experimental rate orders govern smaller parts of Southwestern Bell's operation in other states.

Among the largest discrepancies between Bell's request and the increase granted by the commissions was in basic local service charges, which Bell wanted to increase by $76.4 million. The commission granted no increase in standard local charges.

However, customers will pay $31.7 million more in gross receipts charge in the new order.

Crash Hay Have Killed GOP

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) - An aircraft believed to have been carrying Richard Obenshain, the Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate in Virginia, crashed near here late Wednesday night. Police said all three persons aboard were killed.

Police said the bodies on the twin-engine Piper Seneca plane were badly burned, making identification difficult.

But an aide to Obenshain, John Marshall, said "I'm afraid it's pretty well confirmed" that Obenshain was one of those killed.

Marshall said the identification numbers on the plane matched those of the aircraft in which Obenshain was returning to Richmond from Winchester, where he had made a campaign appearance Wednesday.

The plane was due to land at the Chesterfield County airport outside Richmond at 10 p.m., and crashed in a wooded area at 11:10 p.m. about 1 1/2 miles southwest of the airport, police said.

Others believed to have been on the plane were not immediately identified.

Obenshain, 49, was a former co-chairman of the Republican National Committee. He was running against Democrat Andrew Miller for the Senate seat being vacated by retiring Republican Sen. William Scott.

He won the Republican nomination here June 3 on the sixth ballot at the state GOP convention, defeating former Navy Secretary John Warner, husband of actress Elizabeth Taylor, and former Gov. Linwood Holton.

A lawyer by profession, Obenshain had been active in the Republican party since 1960 and once served as state party chairman.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights

by Lyndell Williams

AUSTIN—A preliminary report by the Sunset Advisory Commission staff has recommended major reorganization of the State Bar of Texas.

The report concluded the Bar should operate as a private professional group rather than a state agency.

Also recommended by Sunset staffers is transfer of the Bar headquarters, the Texas Law Center near the capitol, to the state and placement under the Board of Control for use by appellate courts and administrative offices of the judiciary.

Other conclusions of the tentative report:

—Bar restrictions on lawyer advertising are too tight.

—Complaints against erring attorneys should be centralized rather than handled by 40 local grievance committees which may be subject to "local bias and cronyism."

—The Bar failed to seek bids on office furniture, fund depository, equipment rental, printing and office space lease.

—Specialization programs for lawyers are too restrictive and limit competition.

—The Bar has tended to oppose legislation making it more accountable for its money and easing restrictions on getting into the profession.

"The major portion of the State Bar's efforts and resources go to areas other than those concerned with the regulation of attorneys," the report stated.

All licensed lawyers now must be members of the State Bar of Texas. The Sunset Commission staff report suggested licensing and discipline of lawyers should be performed under direct supervision of the State Supreme Court and an administrative agency.

Poison Danger

Cattlemen received warnings not to allow herds to graze in drought-stricken pastures due to threat of prussic acid poisoning there.

Texas Veterinary Medical Association cautioned that 300 cattle valued at $250,000 were lost to the poison—a type of cyanide that occurs in plants hard hit by drought.

Cattlemen also were warned about milo fields that failed to "make" due to drought and about pastures of Johnson grass, sudan or common sorghums which suffered from long-standing dry conditions.

The association said rain showers compounded the problem.

Cattlemen were advised to wait two or three weeks before letting cattle graze on new growth and to let hay lie at least five days after cutting so the cyanide gas can dissipate before baling. Feeding of hay to cattle before they are released in new pastures may dilute effect of excessive amounts of prussic acid, the association said.

Airports Aided

Texas Aeronautics Commission approved airport aid program grants for Alice and Austin, and granted Metroflight Airlines' request to suspend its scheduled air service to Greenville temporarily.

The commission cleared a $75,000 grant to Austin for airport entrance roads and parking and $50,000 to Alice to acquire land.

The city of Mineola requested cancellation of a grant to build a new airport because officials were unable to acquire necessary matching funds.

Metroflight said the Greenville stop did not generate enough money to support continued service.

Courts Speak

In a setback for Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's rate increase request, Texas Supreme Court backed the Public Utility Commission's system of telephone and electric charge setting.

Adult sons and daughters are not entitled to share in civil service retirement benefits earned by their father's second wife, the Supreme Court concluded.

The Third Court of Civil Appeals turned down an allegation that trustees of a school district in Bell County "bribed" voters over 65 by granting homestead exemptions before a bond election.

The state has no right to appeal an order temporarily committing a person to a mental hospital, the Third Court of Civil Appeals said.

Upholding an intermediate court, the State Supreme Court left standing an order reversing a $1 million invasion of privacy judgment for fired Southwestern Bell official James H. Ashley who claimed the company tapped his telephone.

Yantis Writes Governor

On the eve of his consideration of confirmation by the State Senate, Hugh C. Yantis, Jr. in a letter to Gov. Briscoe, included excerpts from a random selection of the more than 100 letters of support received during the past few months.

Yantis, who was appointed chairman of the State Board of Insurance by Gov. Briscoe almost one year ago, pointed out that during his tenure insurance industry requests for rate increases totaled $319 million, while the SBI granted increases totaling $33.1 million—a difference of $285.9 million.

As background information, Yantis said "this is $45 million more in dollars than was 'saved' by the Public Utility Commission when it lowered the Southwestern Bell Telephone request from $298.3 million.

Short Snorts

Applications for permits to drill oil and gas tests in the state totalled 10,641 for the first half of 1978, compared with a decline from 12,364 during the same period last year.

Texas Farmworkers Union staged a hunger strike at the capitol after Gov. Dolph Briscoe turned down their request to call on the special legislative session to give farm workers collective bargaining rights.

A district court disbarred Ramsey Ramior Muniz, twice a Raza Unida Party candidate for governor, as a result of marijuana convictions for which he is serving prison time.

A $2.2 million capital improvements public transportation program for Laredo has been certified for federal approval by the State Highway and Public Transportation Commission.

Maurice Beckham of Austin will head the Department of Public Safety Inspection and Planning Division. Dennis R. Vickery of Laredo will be commander of the South Texas Border Stepped-up Enforcement Program combatting drug smuggling.

Independent bankers charged in a federal court lawsuit federal credit unions in Texas are illegally performing a banking function.

'Poster Day' Set Friday for Rodeo

National Cowgirl Hall of Fame All-Girl Rodeo general chairman Jim Tucker has announced that Friday will be "Poster Hereford Day," when those connected with the rodeo will kick off promotions for the event.

The rodeo will be held Aug. 25-27 at the local Riders' Club Arena.

According to Tucker, a delegation will meet at the Cowgirl Hall of Fame at 1 p.m. Friday, and disperse to hang posters advertising the rodeo around town.

Joining in on the promotion are National Cowgirl Hall of Fame board members, the rodeo committee, members of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce board and chamber womens' division directors.

Approximately 300 posters have been donated to the rodeo committee this year by the Lee Rider Company. The bright orange posters feature a traditional rodeo scene and contain all the necessary information about the rodeo.

Lee Rider also sent the committee two street banners and other promotional material. In addition to the Lee Rider posters, a local printing firm has prepared 5,000 posters concerning the two rodeo dances set for

Aug. 25-26 and the opening night "McDonald's Night" feature on Friday, Aug. 25.

A delegation from the local rodeo committee also will be going to Dalhart this weekend to promote the Hereford rodeo at the 42nd Annual XIT Rodeo and Reunion.

The National Cowgirl Hall of Fame will have an entry in the XIT Rodeo Parade Saturday.

No Action Taken By Russians

MOSCOW (AP) - Soviet authorities took no action against two U.S. correspondents whose newspapers defied Wednesday's deadline to publish court-ordered retractions of articles ruled slanderous.

"I haven't heard a thing," said Craig R. Whitney of The New York Times who was found guilty July 18 along with Harold D. Piper of The Baltimore Sun. Piper is vacationing in the United States until Aug. 14.

Whitney, who recently returned from vacation, said he hoped the entire matter would be dropped by Soviet authorities.

Whitney and Piper were convicted of "crudely slandering" Soviet television in articles they wrote quoting relatives of Georgian dissident Zviad Gamsakhurdia casting doubt on the authenticity of his televised confession.

Gamsakhurdia testified that the confession was authentic and that the reporters' stories were incorrect.

Both Whitney and Piper refused to take part in the court proceedings, arguing that the case was "tantamount to censorship."

Totie Fields Dies after Numerous Setbacks

LAS VEGAS Nev. (AP) — Comedian Totie Fields, who had been making a comeback after a leg amputation, two heart attacks and breast cancer, died Wednesday.

The once-rotund nightclub and television entertainer who had brought laughter to millions was 48.

Miss Fields, chosen by her colleagues as Entertainer of the Year in January, died of an apparent heart attack the day before she was to open at the Sahara Hotel. When she received the award at Caesar's Palace, another Las Vegas Strip hotel, she said: "I don't want anyone feeling sorry for me."

She was dead when she arrived at Sunrise Hospital in a private ambulance, said hospital spokeswoman Rena Lees.

Dick Mayne, chief deputy Clark County coroner, said,

"the apparent cause of death is a heart attack. However, we are conferring on her past medical history with the battery of doctors who have treated her."

Television talk show host Mike Douglas said Miss Fields, who appeared on "The Mike Douglas Show" 125 times, was "a close, professional friend.... Her great courage in dealing with her many health problems in recent years will always stand out as an example to everyone."

She entered St. Joseph Hospital in Stamford, Conn., more than two years ago for minor surgery. While there, she developed phlebitis in her left leg.

She was taken to Columbia Presbyterian Hospital in New York for vascular surgery, and her left leg was amputated above the knee on April 21, 1976.

She returned to Los Angeles for therapy, and while there, she suffered two heart attacks.

While in the hospital she insisted on being flown to Las Vegas for the wedding of her daughter.

"My daughter was married at the end of my bed in a full wedding gown. I was so sedated all the time, it's one of the few things I can't remember," she recalled.

On Oct. 25, 1977, while she was hospitalized in Los Angeles for exhaustion, Miss Fields had a cancerous right breast removed.

Miss Fields' manager, Howard Henderstein, said well-wishers sent more than half a million pieces of mail to the entertainer at that time.

Miss Fields once said, "I must do clubs. That's where I get my feeling for this business."

She got her first break in 1963 when Ed Sullivan caught her act at New York's Copacabana. He booked her on his CBS show and she made more than 40 appearances.

Much of her humor was directed at her rolly polly appearance. She once donned an ostrich feather gown "that every fat woman dreams of buying but wouldn't dare."

She lost 80 pounds while hospitalized. She said, "They put me in a crib with two sides and cut my leg off. How did I get to a refrigerator?"

GOP Crane Tosses Hat in Presidential Ring

WASHINGTON (AP) - Conservative Republican Philip M. Crane entered the 1980 presidential race Wednesday with a promise to liberate the American people from "confiscatory taxation and excessive regulation."

At a news conference in a room across a hall from the Senate chamber, the Illinois congressman said his candidacy was "a commitment to the future. A restoration of the American dream to its proper custodian, the American people."

"A commitment that as a free people liberated from excessive government, we can achieve and together embark on the greatest and most exciting, productive century, our country has ever known," Crane said.

He thus became the first announced candidate of either major party for the 1980 nomination.

Crane said the nation's leaders "appear filled with self-doubts about the future. Our institutions are working to deny individual fulfillment through confiscatory taxation and excessive regulation."

In making an early leap into the 1980 campaign, Crane said he was taking a lesson from the political success of Jimmy Carter in 1976.

"If we learned nothing else from Jimmy, it's that an early declaration is beneficial to your candidacy," Crane told reporters days before his announcement.

"There can be only one nominee and I think I'm the front-runner as soon as I make my declaration," said Crane, who scheduled a news conference today to make it official.

While technically correct, Crane also is aware that he's bucking Ronald Reagan's powerful appeal among conservatives. Reagan is expected to make one more run for the White House.

Those who discount Crane's candidacy might recall 1974 when Carter - then the sure former governor of Georgia - was having trouble convincing people he had a chance for the nomination, which he said he wanted on Dec. 12 of that year.

As chairman of the American Conservative Union, Crane has built a constituency in the right wing of the Republican Party during campaigns to defeat the Panama Canal treaties, to cut federal spending and to take tougher stands in U.S. negotiations with the Soviet Union.

But that same constituency is considered overwhelmingly loyal to Reagan.

One Reagan supporter, who asked not to be identified, said he was certain the former California governor would run and "I don't think Phil's candidacy will have much impact on the decision one way or the other...."

"Phil is likely to take the real hard right with him and that would probably push Reagan closer to the center. That could be a plus for Reagan."

At 47, Crane is 20 years younger than Reagan, a fact which could be the biggest silent issue in his campaign. While Crane publicly minimizes age as an issue, the fact remains that Reagan would be 69 at the time of the 1980 Republican convention.

Samuel de Champlain arrived at Tadoussac, Quebec, in 1603.

Prop 13 brought 'em out

By Martha Angie and Robert Walters
WASHINGTON (NEA) - Proposition 13 may not do much for government services in California, but it was a real tonic for the voter apathy that has plagued the electorate there and elsewhere in the nation in recent years.
Although less than half the 1978 primary elections have been held so far and turnout data from them is still incomplete, it looks as though tax-slashing Prop 13 had real pulling power.
While voter turnouts in most other states continued their steady decline from previous elections, the pattern was broken in California.
Nearly 60 percent of registered voters, and 34.7 percent of the state's voting age population, trooped to the polls June 6 to pull the lever for or against a massive property tax reduction, according to a preliminary analysis by the Committee for the Study of the American Electorate, which tracks turnout trends nationwide.
In both categories, that represents a significant increase over turnout for the 1974 primary in California, the last held in a non-presidential year, although it is roughly comparable to the 1970 turnout.
What makes California look like a paragon of voter participation is the record in other big states this year. In Ohio, for instance, only 15.5 percent of the voting age population went to the polls for this year's primaries, compared with 22.8 percent four years ago. In Illinois, the figure was 14.5 percent this year and 19.7 percent in 1974. In New Jersey, it was a dismal 11.5 this year versus 18 percent four years ago.
In Iowa and Texas, turnout was actually up slightly over 1974, but they were exceptions to the general trend — and not as dramatic as California.

It's too soon to predict whether voter-initiated tax propositions that will be appearing on general election ballots in a number of states will have the same salutary effect on turnout as Prop 13 in California, but the possibility clearly exists.
"Voters are smart," says political analyst Richard Scammon. "When there's something really interesting on the ballot, they come out and vote. When it's just a bunch of handbombs, they don't."
"It's a wonderful dilemma for the liberals, who believe in popular government until it produces a result they don't like."

Educators go activist
The rapidly growing political activism of teachers and other tax-paid educators may help explain some of the resistance in state legislatures to spending cutbacks and tax reduction schemes like Prop 13.
Educators now constitute the second largest occupational group in state legislatures (lawyers remain firmly in first place), according to figures from the Insurance Information Institute quoted in the latest bulletin of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities.
Educators occupy 9 percent of all state legislative seats in the country this year, compared with 3 percent in 1966.

Bad news for the popularity polls
Despite efforts by the Carter administration to downplay bad news on the economic front, voices of doom and gloom keep pumping out pessimistic forecasts.
On Capitol Hill, the influential Joint Economics Committee is preparing its annual midyear report and the picture it will paint is by no means rosy. Committee economists foresee continued high inflation, even if food prices come down slightly, and an upward drift in the unemployment rate — which has been the only bright spot in the economic picture this year.
None of which is likely to improve Carter's standing in the opinion polls, nor enhance the re-election prospects of House members and senators who are up this year.

Padres Sweep LA To Continue Streak

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

For years they've been waiting for the Los Angeles Dodgers and San Diego Padres to develop a real rivalry in Southern California.

Well, they've finally got one. The Padres, longtime palsies to their powerful neighbors to the north, are no longer playing that role these days.

They've won a club-record nine straight games, including a four-game sweep of the Dodgers that culminated with Wednesday night's 2-1 victory.

Elsewhere in the National League, Cincinnati whipped the Atlanta Braves 6-2; San Francisco stopped the Houston Astros 4-2; the Philadelphia Phillies beat the New York Mets 8-6; the Pittsburgh Pirates blanked the Montreal Expos 3-0 and the Chicago Cubs edged the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2.

Winning pitcher Bob Owchinko and relief ace Rolie Fingers combined to hold Los Angeles to just five hits. The victory, before a sellout crowd of 46,751 at San Diego Stadium, gave Owchinko only his second career victory over the Dodgers. Losing pitcher Tommy John surrendered just seven hits.

Reds 6, Braves 2
Pete Rose doubled, singled twice and hit a home run in his first four times at-bat and Tom Seaver hurled a three-hitter to lead Cincinnati over Atlanta. Rose, whose National League record-tying hitting streak ended at 44 games against the Braves Tuesday night, led off the game with a double. He then singled home a run in the second and led off the fourth with a single before sending a drive over the right field fence in the sixth for his fifth homer of the season.

"I guess," said Rose with a grin, "I proved I can hit with the pressure off."

Giants 4, Astros 2
Terry Whitfield swatted a three-run homer as San Francisco snapped Houston's eight-game winning streak.

Whitfield's fourth-inning blast, his eighth homer of the season, followed a walk to Darrell Evans and a single by Willie McCovey off loser Tom Dixon, 5-8.

John Montefusco, 8-4, gained his first victory since June 25.

Phillies 8, Mets 6
Garry Maddox drove in four runs, three with his ninth home run that capped a five-run second inning, and Philadelphia hung on to beat New York.

The Phillies gained an 8-0 lead in the first five innings and escaped with the victory despite a five-run rally by the Mets in the eighth featuring Lee

Mazzilli's two-run homer.

Pirates 3, Expos 0
Bruce Kison and Kent Tekulve combined on a three-hitter and Phil Garner hit a solo home run as Pittsburgh beat Montreal.

Kison struck out seven batters, including the side in the sixth, and walked only two before needing ninth-inning relief help from Tekulve, who notched his 18th save. Kison reportedly was developing a blister on his pitching hand.

Loser Dan Schatzeder, 4-3, gave up six hits, including Garner's homer, and walked two batters in 7 1/2 innings.

Cubs 3, Cardinals 2
Mike Vail's two-run triple in the first inning backed the seven-hit pitching of Mike Krukow and Bruce Sutter, leading Chicago over St. Louis.

It marked the Cubs' 11th triumph in as many meetings with the Cardinals this season.

Staubach Says Slate May Take Its Toll

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) - Dallas Cowboys quarterback Roger Staubach says the newly expanded 16-game National Football League schedule will take its toll on players, but adds that he doesn't want to miss any of the contests.

"It figures to increase the aches and pains of everyone," Staubach said, resting in his room on the campus of California Lutheran College, where the Super Bowl champion Cowboys are training for their 1978 preseason opener against the San Francisco 49ers Saturday night in Texas Stadium.

"But you want to play every week in this game," added Staubach, regarded by many as the premier quarterback in football. "I can see taking a breather if we got far enough ahead."

Staubach has no qualms about his backup, Danny White, who was a star in the World Football League before coming

Nicklaus Likes PGA Greens

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) - The greens are groomed for speed in golf's 60th PGA Championship. Jack Nicklaus will drink to that.

"The faster the better. Anytime you have fast slick greens you eliminate an awful lot of fellows," said Nicklaus, who sipped cold orange juice after Wednesday's final practice round.

But Wadkins wasn't toasting the putting surfaces at Oakmont Country Club, where championship play begins today.

"I got here, saw the greens, and decided I wasn't going to have any drinks or coffee all week," said Wadkins, the defending PGA champ who's failed to make the cut in eight of 20 tournaments this year.

"It's just going to be a case of how good your nerves are, and I figure I'll need all the help I can get," added Wadkins, who was to play in a threesome with Nicklaus and U.S. Open titlist Andy North.

Nicklaus, coming off consecutive victories at the British Open and the Philadelphia Classic, is bidding for his fifth PGA title. That would tie him with Walter Hagen for the all-time lead.

After playing here two days last week, Nicklaus skipped all but the final practice round this week.

to Dallas three years ago.

"Danny definitely is capable of coming in if I'm hurt," said Staubach. "And he needs more playing time as he matures."

Missing from the line will be a familiar figure for 13 seasons at tackle for the Cowboys. Ralph Neely finally retired after the Super Bowl victory over Denver last January.

"Although Ralph will be missed, we are lucky because Rayfield Wright looks healthy again," noted Staubach. "Rayfield missed the whole 1977 season with an injury. But he's looked good so far in practice."

Pat Donovan, who stepped in for Wright last year, also figures to be in the starting lineup, according to Staubach.

"And Andy Frederick, who had a good rookie year in 1977, is a solid backup," said the 36-year-old quarterback. "So without belittling Neely at all, I think we're in good shape at tackle."

Staubach thinks that experience will make the offensive line as strong or stronger than last year.

"We're not going to be relying on so many rookies this season," he noted. "That should be a plus for us."

He believes in depth as he approaches the 1978 season.

"I think depth is important to every team, more so this year because of the 16-game regular season schedule. The teams without depth figure to be hurt."

Staubach is aiming for the opening regular season game against the tough Baltimore Colts. It's a Monday night affair, Sept. 4, at Texas Stadium.

"Our schedule appears to be tougher this year," he said. "Besides Baltimore, we're going to be playing Los Angeles, Miami, and Minnesota outside our division."

Will the Cowboys have anything new to throw at their opponents?

"Well, nothing as noticeable as the shotgun," he said, laughing. "That's something people can see and recognize."

Boston Edges Yanks In Suspended Game

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - It all depends on your point of view, so the Boston Red Sox acted like they won Wednesday night's game while the New York Yankees wore the mien of losers.

The scoreboard, however, read 5-5 when play was halted after 14 innings at 1:16 a.m. today. The game will be completed before tonight's regularly scheduled contest.

The Red Sox, who have been slumping of late, felt like winners because they trailed 5-0 after three innings, caught up with two runs in the fourth, two in the sixth and one in the eighth and survived New York threats in the 12th and 14th.

And the Yankees felt like losers because they helped the Red Sox rally by contributing three wild pitches and a pair of bases-loaded walks and wasting a 12-7 hit advantage.

Don Zimmer, whose Red Sox have dropped 11 of their last 14 games and have seen their American League East lead shrink from 10 games on July 8 to 4 1/2 over the Milwaukee Brewers - the Yankees trail by 6 1/2 and the Baltimore Orioles are 7 1/2 out - isn't about to throw back anything these days.

In other AL action, the Orioles edged Milwaukee 6-5 in the completion of Monday night's suspended game, but the Brewers took the regularly scheduled contest 5-3; the Cleveland Indians downed the Kansas City Royals 5-2; the California Angels trounced the Oakland A's 8-2 and the Seattle Mariners defeated the Minnesota Twins 3-1.

Gary Gurgemeier, Bill Campbell and Dick Drago held the Yankees to six hits and no runs over the last 11 innings. Rich Gossage allowed two hits and was charged with one run in seven innings and Sparky Lyle hurled two scoreless innings.

"The way we hit tonight, I'd have to say I'm happy to be tied," said Zimmer, whose suddenly impotent sluggers managed only seven hits and haven't homered in six games.

"We didn't exactly knock the ball all over the place."

The game was held up for 35 minutes in the top of the eighth and again for 18 minutes after 12 innings.

Orioles 6-3, Brewers 5-5
Larry Hise and Sal Bando blasted home runs and Mike Caldwell notched his seventh straight victory as Milwaukee defeated Baltimore, beating Jim Palmer for the first time in 11 outings.

Prior to the regularly scheduled games, a two-out, 10th-inning single by Mike Anderson gave the Orioles a 6-5 victory in the completion of a contest suspended after nine innings by a local curfew Monday night.

Caldwell, 14-5, allowed solo homers to Ken Singleton and Doug DeCinces before needing relief help in the ninth from Larry Sorensen, who gained his first save.

Mariners 3, Twins 1
Jim Colborn fired a six-hitter and designated hitter Bob Robertson blasted a two-run homer in the sixth inning as Seattle defeated Minnesota.

Juan Bernhardt had an RBI single as Colborn chalked up his third victory in 12 decisions. Minnesota's only run scored in the fourth on Butch Wynegar's sacrifice fly.

Angels 8, A's 2
Lyman Bostock backed Don Aase's four-hit pitching with a solo home run, two sacrifice flies and an RBI single as California defeated Oakland and moved within three games of first-place Kansas City in the AL West.

Bostock hit his third home run of the season in the sixth inning, had sacrifice flies in the third and seventh and a run-scoring single in a three-run eighth.

Indians 5, Royals 2
John Grubb smashed a home run and Tom Verzer added a run-scoring double to highlight a four-run sixth inning as Cleveland swept a three-game series from Kansas City.

The Royals picked up runs on Clint Hurdle's bases-loaded walk in the first and Al Cowens' run-scoring grounder.

Cowboys' Kicker Asks for Trade

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) - Dallas placekicker Efran Herrera, who is being fined $500 each day he is absent from the Cowboys' training camp, has asked the team to trade him.

Herrera, who already owes the Super Bowl champion Cowboys $6,500 for his absence so far in camp, told reporters Wednesday the team has failed to offer him a salary commensurate with his standing as the top kicker in the National Football League.

"At this time, I'd like to be traded," said Herrera. "If they don't think as highly of me as I think of myself, it's time to move on."

"It's gone too far. I don't think they have any plans for me here. Maybe it's time to move to another team which appreciates me more than the Cowboys."

Herrera was believed asking a salary of about $80,000. The Cowboys have offered an estimated salary of $45,000.

Herrera said there is no way he would report to camp without a new contract, but said he doesn't want to retire.

Tex Schramm, president and general manager of the Cowboys, said that if the Cowboys can accommodate Herrera and at the same time benefit the team through a trade, it would do so.

The Cowboy position is that Herrera is under contract for an additional year, his option year, and is in violation of that contract.

"His union bargained an agreement which provided for him becoming a free agent and offering his services on the market," said Schramm. "Our position is he should fulfill his contract and the union agreement."

Meanwhile Wednesday, Cowboy Head Coach Tom Landry told a morning news conference he would start the 1978 preseason with the same lineups that opened Super Bowl XII in New Orleans last Jan. 15, with the exception of offensive tackle Ralph Neely, who has retired.

Neely's place at left tackle will be taken in Saturday's Texas Stadium opener against the San Francisco 49ers by Pat Donovan, who played right tackle a year ago in place of the injured Rayfield Wright.

Wright, attempting a comeback at age 33, thus becomes the only lineup change as he moves in a right tackle.

Three Cowboys have been declared out of Saturday's game by team doctors. They are veteran running back Charles Young knee, tackle Jim Eidson neck and rookie defensive back Kenny Randle shoulder.

Eidson and Randle were flown back to Dallas Wednesday to be further examined.

Doubtful for Saturday's game is second-year fullback Larry Brinson, suffering from a groin injury. Dave Stalls is listed as questionable while flanker Golden Richards is considered probable.

Richards suffered a bruised left leg in Wednesday's workouts.

Landry said no players would play more than two quarters Saturday and that linebacker Thomas Henderson, recovering from a spring bout with hepatitis, would not play more than a few minutes. With Henderson's backup, Mike Hegman, listed as probable with a lower back ailment, second-year man Guy Brown is expected to see considerable action at the strongside linebacker spot.

Woman Rolls WIBC Record

DALLAS (AP) - Dallas-bound Pat Costello shattered a 10-year-old Women's International Bowling Congress record Tuesday by firing a three-game set of 863 during her final qualifying round in the Women's Professional Bowling Association Metroplex Open.

She moved from 24th to 1st among the qualifiers, with only one squad remaining Tuesday. Match play among the 24 finalists was to start Tuesday night.

The record was within a block in which Costello missed a six-game record by only 12 pins.

Her 863 came on consecutive games of 298, 266 and 299. She left the 4 and 5 pins to spoil her try for a perfect 300 in the first game and left a 10-pin on her last shot in the third game. Costello followed with games of 239, 226 and 224 for a six-game total of 1552, 12 pins off the record of 1564 held by Betty Morris, who is also competing here.

The 863 supplanted Bev Orner's 818 record set in the 1968-69 season.

Costello will move from California to Dallas next month, and she said it "really did" feel good bowling so well in her future hometown. "Last night I was having a hard time feeling the ball," Costello said. "But I just played around and it worked. Today I moved my feet a little right on the approach and I never had to move all the way across the house."

Full NFL Slate on Tap

By The Associated Press
Tom Landry doesn't expect the Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys to make any changes this season. But kicker Efran Herrera is making that a hard promise to keep.

"I can't think of anything radical we might do," Landry said Wednesday during a break in training at Cowboys' National Football League camp at California Lutheran College. "Certainly we're not going to stand still but the changes we do make will be subtle."

Herrera is not being subtle. The Mexican place-kicker asked the Cowboys to trade him, saying the team hasn't offered a salary commensurate with his standing as the top kicker in the NFL.

"I'd like to be traded," Herrera said. "If they don't think as highly of me as I think of myself, it's time to move on."

Herrera, who is being fined $500 per day for each day he misses camp and currently owes $6,500, said: "It's gone too far. I don't think they have any plans for me. Maybe it's time to move to another team which appreciates me more than the Cowboys."

Herrera was believed asking a salary of about $800,000. The Cowboys have offered an estimated $45,000.

The Cowboys and the rest of NFL open their preseason this weekend. San Diego faces Seattle on Friday. On Saturday, it's San Francisco at Dallas; Cincinnati at Tampa Bay; Oakland at Chicago; Kansas City at Green Bay; Washington at Minnesota; Philadelphia vs New Orleans in Mexico City, Mexico; New England at Los Angeles; St. Louis at Miami; Pittsburgh at Baltimore; Denver at Houston and Buffalo at Detroit. In an off-the-field settlement, Los Angeles County's Chief Attorney John Larson said he has concluded that neither the county nor the Los Angeles Coliseum Commission could prohibit the Rams from keeping the Los Angeles designation after their move to Anaheim in 1980.

Meanwhile, the Colts and Lydell Mitchell have still failed to come to contract terms and the running back missed his 12th day of camp. He is being fined $500 for each day he misses the training sessions.

In other training camp activity, a bolt of lightning struck the north goal posts at the New Orleans Saints ran through a passing drill. Coach Dick Nolan halted the practice 15 minutes ahead of time.

In the Falcons' camp at Greenville, S.C., wide receiver

Alfred Jenkins fractured a small bone in his right hand and is listed as questionable for the Atlanta's opener Monday with the New York Jets.

Chicago signed free agent center Jon Morris. The Bears did not disclose the terms of length of the 15-year veteran's contract.

The Detroit Lions acquired defensive lineman Dave Gallagher and running back Marsh White from the New York Giants for future draft consideration.

ST. LOUIS (AP) - An official grievance has been filed against the St. Louis Cardinals by a lawyer for unsigned rookie Johnny Barefield.

Monetary damages and free agent status for Barefield are requested, attorney Greg Lustig said. Lustig alleged that the Cards have violated the collective bargaining agreement in their dealings with Barefield, a second-round draftee from Texas A&I.

DALLAS (AP) - Sharon Powers carries a 15-pin lead into today's qualifying rounds of the $25,000 Women's Professional Bowlers Association Metroplex Open here.

Powers, a federal employee in Denver, Colo., averaged 223 to lead last year's winner, Donna Adamek of Montevia, Calif.

New Ball Game

It was a new ball game recently in Las Vegas for Rick Barry (left), forward for the Houston Rockets, and Deacon Jones (above), former defensive lineman for the Los Angeles Rams. Barry exchanged his basketball and Jones his football for tennis gear at a sports celebrity tournament. Barry and partner Bob Klein, tight end for the San Diego Chargers, won the competition, sponsored annually by Dewar's.

Rose Continues Jabs at Garber

ATLANTA (AP) - A telegram was waiting for Atlanta Braves pitcher Gene Garber when he arrived at Atlanta Stadium on Wednesday.

It was from Cincinnati, and the bearded relief ace was ready for a verbal attack after striking out Pete Rose in the ninth inning Tuesday night to end a hitting streak, that had stretched to 44 games.

"It said, 'Thank you for getting him out. He deserved it,'" Garber said.

Rose repeated Wednesday some of his criticism of Garber for throwing him changeups rather than challenging him, but Garber declined to comment on Rose's remarks.

"I could understand him saying those things after the game because that was in the heat of the battle," said the Braves' right-hander, who retired Rose twice in the final three innings to earn his 13th save since coming to Atlanta in a trade with Philadelphia.

"I wish he had gotten a hit but not at my expense," Garber said. "I've got a family to feed and that's my job, to get people out. I threw him changeups because that was what I was getting over the plate and I certainly didn't want to walk him in that situation."

"I'd be happy to say he continued his hitting streak off me if I gave 100 percent and he hit it," he added. "What really is a shame is it had gotten down to one at-bat, when he had five. I still can't believe 44. That's phenomenal. I don't think I have 44 hits in my life."

Rose also faced rookie Larry McWilliams three times - walking, lining out to the 24-year-old left-hander and grounding out to shortstop.

McWilliams said no one had sent him messages of any kind.

"There was no hate mail," he said. "There hasn't been time for it to get here from Cincinnati."

"I didn't know how to react to helping spoil the guy's record," he said. "I really did kind of want to see him break the record, but not against us."

Rose, the scrappy Cincinnati

Reds' third baseman, said Wednesday he believed he could have gotten a hit off McWilliams had the youngster stayed in the game.

"I thought I would hit Garber, too," he said. "He's not the best reliever in baseball. He probably doesn't think I'm the best hitter in baseball."

"I'm not saying anything about him bearing down. I just said he should challenge somebody. I had one pitch to swing at that was a strike. Most guys in baseball just challenge a guy in that situation. He was just trying to in-and-out, up-and-down."

Anticipation of Baby Meaningful to Teacher

By DIANNE BANNER
Brand Staff Writer

Mrs. Bob "Bud" Adams, 106 Beach, is the mother of two attractive girls, and is expecting another child during the fall. Like any expectant mother, Mrs. Adams only hopes for a healthy child. Her family, on the other hand, wants a boy.

Since the bouyant woman will be busy teaching her first grade class at Northwest Elementary school, her daughters have more than willingly volunteered to help when the baby comes.

"It was a big surprise when I discovered there would be another child. I'll have one in college, one in braces, and one in diapers," she chortled. "I'll have to start all over!"

Terri, 17, graduated this summer from Hereford High School. She will be attending Amarillo College. Her 11-year-old sister, Loree, will be at Northwest where her mother teaches. She is a sixth grader.

Mrs. Adams enjoys her teaching job at the elementary school and said that she "wouldn't trade jobs with anyone else in the world."

"Teaching a class of first grade children is the most challenging and most rewarding job. I take them from scratch and see so much progress. Children that age are eager to please," she said.

"My husband would like for me to quit teaching, but I just can't see sitting at home all day. I love my job too much."

He is employed by Zapata Oil, as a driller.

Mrs. Adams belongs to professional organizations such as National Educators Association, (NEA) and Texas State Teachers Association, (TSTA).

Mrs. Adams has taught for 18 years. She took her undergraduate training at Abilene Christian College and received her Master's degree at West Texas State University.

Before her marriage to Adams, she was Susan Crismon. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W.M. Crismon reside in Seminole where she was raised.

"I love living in Hereford. It is a good place to live and to raise your children. I can't imagine living in a big place. We have a good school system here. And there are plenty recreational activities for the kids to do, but just like any other place, they get accustomed to what's around and get bored," she said.

Mrs. Adams enjoys crafts. She keeps herself busy with knitting, crocheting, macrame, making latch hook rugs, sewing and numerous other hand crafts.

"When I come home from school and need to unwind, I go straight to the back room and start sewing. And, I can't stand to sit and watch T.V. To me, that is the most boring and wasteful thing. I have to be doing something constructive, but I could sit down and read all night," she said.

A close-knit family, the Adams enjoy family vacations and following the "Herd" during basketball and football season.

"My two daughters are complete opposites. Loree loves the outdoors and animals. Terri is my cook, she does most of the cooking and is a great cook. I like to cook for special occasions, but this day-to-day cooking is a drag!" she laughed.

"Surely nobody eats out as much as we do!"

Recipes shared by Mrs. Adams are:

CORN CASSEROLE

MIX: 1-16 oz. can cream style corn
1 C. Bisquick
1 egg
2 Tbsp. salad oil
1/2 cup milk
Spread half of mixture in greased 8 x 8 pan. Cover with 1 can green chilies and Monterey Jack cheese. Pour on remaining mixture. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 min.

COMPANY'S COMING

Beat 3 egg whites until foamy.
Add 1/2 tsp. cream of tartar, continuing beating, gradually adding 1 cup sugar, until whites are stiff. Add 1 cup chopped pecans and 18 soda crackers rolled fine, and 1 tsp. vanilla. Put in greased baking dish and bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. When cool, top with whipped cream into which 1 jar of pineapple preserves have been added. Top with coconut and refrigerate overnight.

Proceeds of the dance will be given to St. Joseph's Catholic Church in the San Jose community. Whichever queen's candidate raises the most funds for the church will be crowned.

Graffiti Madness

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The graffiti in and around the city seems to be the work of someone from another planet. It's always bold writing, either done with paint or a thick marker, and looks as though it is a message of some kind. No matter where I see this nutty stuff, it all looks similar -- yet no one seems to know who does it.

Graffiti shows up on sides of buildings, walls, on sidewalks, in tunnels and across commercial billboards. I've even seen it on the ceilings of buses and trains. Often the ceilings are too high to be done without a ladder. Why is it that nobody ever sees these kooks painting and printing?

Do you have any knowledge concerning this weird practice? -- Curious In Upper Darby

DEAR CURIOUS: No, I don't -- and I, too, have wondered who the graffiti freaks are and how they manage to "decorate" the city unobserved. It is against the law to deface public property or conveyances.

If anyone out there can give me the lowdown, I'll print it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have read your advice in today's column to the wife of the man with the "terrible temper." You advised her to "ignore him and let him wear himself out." Your advice is all wet. Let me share a personal experience.

I, too, am married to a man with a "terrible temper."

Although never physically violent, he always had a rotten mouth. I, also, make lists of things not to say and do in an effort to keep all hell from breaking loose.

Over the years, doctors, psychologists, counselors and ministers advised me to "ignore him." So I suffered dutifully through a nervous stomach, skin problems and gall bladder attacks. My doctor said all my illnesses were brought on by chronic emotional stress.

My husband never "wore himself out." Small wonder. His temper outbursts serve as excellent primal scream therapy. He feels great. I'm the one who is upset and sick all the time.

The results, after nearly 40 years of marriage, are as follows: Our children all left home as soon as they could legally do so. They seldom call, much less visit. Our oldest son's self-esteem was damaged so badly that he has been in psychiatric treatment for ten years. We have no friends. My husband's foul temper alienated everybody. Our neighbors hate us. He yells at them, too. Now that he is retired, he criticizes me day and night, over everything from poor TV reception to the dinner menu. Everything I do irritates him.

Children may grow out of temper tantrums. Adult men do not. Your correspondent should run like a rabbit, whatever the cost. I wish I had.

-- The Only Lady On The Tiger

DEAR LADY: When your doctors, psychologists, ministers and counselors advised you to "ignore" your husband's temper tantrums, they didn't mean pretend they don't exist. They are saying: "Understand why he behaves like an out-of-control four-year-old and don't let it get to you."

Obviously, you put on a cool front but underneath he got to you plenty. You should have had therapy, my dear. It might have helped you develop an impenetrable hide to protect you from the lunatic's rantings. Too bad none of those "experts" were able to deliver the message. Your life sounds hellish. Maybe it's not too late.

When a recipe calls for cocoa, use the unsweetened kind. Do not use an instant cocoa mix (unless it is called for), because it is usually a blend of cocoa, sugar, flavoring and sometimes nonfat dry milk.

A failproof way to melt chocolate is to place it in a double-boiler over water; cover and heat until the water bubbles, then remove the double boiler from the heat and let it stand, still covered, until the chocolate softens and you can stir it until it is smooth.

Embracing Lodge Creed

New Members Welcomed At Ceremony

In the absence of Noble Grand Blanche Williamson, Vice Grand Karrol Rettman presided at the regular session of Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228 Tuesday evening in IOOF Temple with 19 percent.

The main item of business was the induction of three new members. Sally Palmer was welcomed by card from Florence Rebekah Lodge, #250. Martha Bridges initiated her daughter, Joyce Lynnette Bridges and Brenda Edwards in the induction ceremony with Anna Conklin acting as Warden.

Other members of the induction team were Ursalee Jacobsen, Noble Grand; Faye Brownlow, chaplain; Verna Sowell, Vice Grand; Winnie Wiseman, Past Noble Grand; Bessie Lawrence, inside guardian; and Susie Curtsinger, musician. Acting as Supporters were Kattol Rettman, Glessie Shelton, Edna Mathews, Ada Hollabaugh and Gov. Larence.

It was announced that a District 5 meeting will convene here Aug. 8. Vansse Bishop will be the guest of honor and will present her report, accompanied by photographs of her recent trip to New York as a member of the United Nations Pilgrimage sponsored by IOOF. The Aug. 8th session will be an open meeting and interested persons are invited to attend. A "pot luck" supper is to be served.

Ursalee Jacobsen was hostess Tuesday evening. Others attending, not yet mentioned, were Frances Parker, Bessie Saulcy and Peggy Lemons.

Brother, Sister End 30-Year Separation

After a thirty-year separation, Annie Brashear of Hereford and her brother Karl Funk of Hamburg, Germany were reunited recently in an emotion-charged scene at an Oklahoma City air terminal.

There was "a lot of tears, hugging and loving," Mrs. Brashear recounted Tuesday afternoon as her brother, who does not speak English, listened attentively to an Americanized version of their story.

Mrs. Brashear had not seen her brother, Karl, since she left war-ravaged Germany in March of 1948 as the bride of a Hereford man, George Erceel Brashear. The Brashears made their home here, raising four children, Carol, Gene, Tommy and Steve. Meanwhile, her brother was also beginning a new life as Germany rebuilt and recovered from war.

Of Mrs. Brashear's six brothers and sisters, only three are known to survive (one brother is still missing from World War II). Her sister, Angela Stapp resides in Oklahoma City with her husband Eulis G. Mrs. Brashear's other brother, Joseph Funk, is living in Perl-Besch, Germany.

The Stapps came to Hereford last week with Mrs. Brashear, her brother and his family, including his wife, Ellen and their two children, Selke and Thomas. Accompanying the family was a young friend, Annette Arein, who visited in this country last year, was duly impressed and wanted to see more of the USA.

Karl Funk shares his young friend's admiration for the United States. With his sister translating, he said, "I really like it here and I plan to come back again." He was amazed by the vast expanses of open spaces, which is in sharp contrast to his homeland, where "there is a city every few meters."

While in Hereford, Funk and his family were treated to a grand tour of local industries, including the feedlots. He announced that he had never seen so many cows in his entire life.

Funk, who is a travel agent for entertainers (including the likes of singer Roy Clark) and his relatives will be making an excursion to Colorado Springs, Colo. before returning to Germany.

Women's Aglow To Introduce Speaker

Colleen Tyler of Levelland, who has resolved to "help other women mature in their walk with Jesus," will be speaking here Friday during a meeting of Women's Aglow Fellowship in Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room.

All interested women are invited to attend the covered dish luncheon, scheduled to begin at 11:30 a.m. tomorrow. Mrs. Tyler has given her Christian testimony to numerous Aglow chapters, prayer groups and Sunday School classes. She frequently discusses "the practical application of the Word."

She has been a member of Women's Aglow for two years and is currently serving as treasurer.

She and her husband Neil, who is an independent production consultant for the oil industry, attend Trinity church at Lubbock. They have three grown children and three granddaughters.

Attitudes Affect Nutrition

COLLEGE STATION - Positive, wholesome and healthy attitudes about food can prevent weight and health problems from childhood to adulthood.

Young children have sporadic eating habits just like adults, says Debby Johnson, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The Texas A&M University System.

Appetites tend to coincide with the child's age and stage of development. For example:

(1) The infant is growing fast and probably has a big appetite. (2) During the second year, growth as well as appetite slow down. A built-in mechanism tells the toddler when and what to eat, and this varies in time each day.

If a nutritious selection of foods is available, children will generally choose to eat what they need. This does not mean, however, that they will select a balanced diet out of an assortment of non-nutritious foods.

(3) Toddlers may get off on a "binge" and eat a lot of one particular food, such as peanut butter, for a while. This will not damage a child's health during a short period.

(4) Preschoolers ages 3 to 5 tend to have narrow food preferences. They may not want their food sprinkled with mushrooms or onions.

They stick to foods they are familiar with, so introduce new foods gradually and without pressure.

Never force a child to eat certain foods or demand a clean plate after each meal, the specialist advises.

Eating habits are formed in early childhood and carried into adulthood, she adds.

Water from the Dead Sea is seven to eight times as high in mineral content as seawater.

At Wits End
BY ERMA BOMBECK

Do you know how you can tell you're getting older?

When everyone around you gets younger. Getting old is discovering your priest smells like bubble gum, your lawyer is fighting acne, and your son's math teacher is wearing a training bra.

It's when an eight-year-old kid (who doesn't even own a sweatband) aces you in tennis. When a 16-year-old offers to parallel park your car for you when you fall apart in traffic. When a four-year-old takes the cap off a child-proof aspirin bottle for you.

It happened again last weekend when I was wandering through a department store and inadvertently found myself in the yard goods department.

It looked like Woodstock.

Young girls who couldn't have been in their teens were flipping through pattern books like they lived there. Slumping tiredly on a stool, I couldn't help but overhear their conversation.

"If it has no pattern repeat, you could get by with the 44-inch stuff and a quarter of a yard less. I made it last week in one evening." (I couldn't thread my needle in one evening.)

"There's a remnant over there I know Linda could get an entire pants suit out of."

"I'm not starting on anything until I finish the coat."

"If you can't get your size, get the next one and we'll alter the pattern."

Then a salesperson approached me. She wore braces and couldn't have been more than 12. "Could I help you with something?"

"Well, the truth is..."

"You need something easy? Here's a pattern with only five pieces."

"That many?" I asked. "Actually, I was looking for something rather simple."

"Look, if you have any problems with gussets or facings or handling the new fabrics, just bring it in and I'll help you with it." (Gussets? I thought you made gravy out of 'em at Thanksgiving.)

"That's terribly sweet of you," I said. "For starters, I'll have three yards of this crepe, a yard and a half of silk, and some corduroy for bedspreads."

I watched this child with pure respect as she added a row of fractions and came up with a total.

Call it pride. I didn't have the heart to tell her I don't sew.

Mexican-Americans Claim Tears, Anger Unify

By TERRY LEONARD
Associated Press Writer

Marches in Texas to protest alleged police brutality against Mexican-Americans have left a trail of tears and frustration. But Mexican-American leaders contend the anger and sorrow that spawns demonstrations is a unifying force in a drive for equal rights.

"A person who has been voiceless and powerless now has a feeling he is part of a movement whose time has come," said Ruben Sandoval, a San Antonio civil rights lawyer.

But some observers believe the movement lacks unity of purpose and the strategy necessary to attain equality in what they feel is a hostile society.

Ruben Bonilla, state director of the League of United Latin American Citizens, said Mexican-American leaders try to mobilize and unify on any possible issue. And he said the key is political power and the recognition of that power by the Establishment.

Hispanics, Bonilla said, will become the largest ethnic minority in America during the 1980s, and they are sending a message to astute politicians.

However, a Mexican-American political scientist at the University of Texas said that message has been dispatched to Washington time and time again and for three decades it has fallen on deaf ears.

"Politicians will continue to ignore that message until Mexican-Americans become united at the polls," said Dr. Armando Gutierrez.

Unless Mexican-Americans can convince politicians on all levels that they will no longer be a rubber-stamp Democratic vote they will never have real political power, he said.

"Politicians take the Mexican-American vote for granted. They court it during election years but when it's time for concessions they side with political conservatives who demonstrate a willingness to cross party lines to make a difference in an election," said Gutierrez.

President Carter is a case in point, said Gutierrez. He courted the Mexican-American vote when it was politically expedient. But now Mexican-Americans feel betrayed because they can get no real concessions from the administration, he said.

"Forgot politics," said Brownie Trevino, Dallas director of the American GI Forum. "We are not unified to the point we can exert influence on politicians from outside the Southwest. Before we gain real political power we must have a unified Hispanic movement that includes Cubans and Puerto Ricans on the East Coast." The ultimate goal of the movement, says Bonilla, is "to attain equality for Mexican-Americans in education and unemployment."

Other Mexican-American leaders agree with Bonilla. But they do not all agree on how these goals should be achieved.

Bonilla rejects the idea that the Hispanic community must change itself before it can expect to be an equal force in American society.

"I don't see it as necessary to give up any part of our culture or Spanish-speaking ability. Assimilation by birth is assimilation enough. It is our sacred right to preserve our culture," said Bonilla.

The real problem, he said, is the "Alamo mentality" in Texas. "People yelling at you to 'go back to Mexico,' or 'back across the river wetback.'"

Sandoval said there is no question the Mexican-American community must change. But he said the extent and responsibility of any change depends on both the "Establishment" and the Hispanic community.

"We can't seek rights and ask for something that we do not understand," said Sandoval. "We can assimilate, but do not ask us to obliterate our culture and our history."

Luciano Perez, Lubbock's director of human relations, said the Mexican-American community will change as a result of the "natural progression of life." He said "There is criticism within the Hispanic community that we are losing a lot of our culture to the Anglo world."

Perez thinks the essential aim to attaining equality is a need to achieve "financial and political independence."

He said the Mexican-American community needs to train its people and develop its own economy. He said it needs to build Mexican-American businesses that feed on other Mexican-American businesses and reduce its reliance on public money that is subject to cuts. "There is more than a hint of truth that Mexican-Americans have been discouraged from a lot of things, including economic development," said Perez.

Trevino said a large part of the responsibility for education and employment within the Mexican-American community falls on the Hispanic middle class. Which he said all too often is prejudiced against its own people.

"Mexican-American leaders agree that diversity within the movement has held back the cause of civil rights. But in the issue of police brutality they see key to drawing the broad-based support any civil rights movement needs."

"It touches everyone from the most affluent to the poorest," said Sandoval. "and the increased slaughter has only helped to motivate us more. What is the difference between police violence and being shot by some lunatic because of activism?"

Magazine Says Nixon In Plot

CHICAGO (AP) - Then-Vice President Richard M. Nixon, now-Chief Justice Warren Burger and one-time Howard Hughes aide Robert A. Maheu were part of a 1954 CIA plot to ruin the late Aristotle Onassis, according to the September issue of Playboy magazine.

An article by Jim Houghan excerpted from his forthcoming book, "Spooks," said the plot against Onassis came after the Greek shipping tycoon received permission from the late King Ibn Saud to carry Saudi Arabian oil in his ships.

Wednesday, Washington Post quotes Maheu as confirming the basic elements of the article in a phone interview from Las Vegas, Nev. But he denied Houghan's allegation that his actions were part of an international conspiracy, adding, "that's a crock."

Burger, who worked for the Justice Department at the time of the alleged plot, denied through a spokesman that he received intelligence reports on the anti-Onassis campaign.

Nixon could not be reached for comment and the CIA refused comment.

"I wouldn't take the assignment from Onassis' in-law and rival Stavros Niarchos until I cleared it with the outfit," Maheu was quoted as saying. The "outfit," he said, was the Central Intelligence Agency, which at the time paid him a $500 monthly retainer.

He said he reported his anti-Onassis activities regularly to the CIA. The CIA also helped his operatives in Rome, where derogatory stories about Onassis were given to a newspaper, he said.

Maheu also acknowledged briefing Nixon.

Houghan contends that the Jidda Agreement between King Saud and Onassis broke the monopoly control of Saudi oil shipment by the Arabian-American Oil Co., angering many American oil company executives as well as Niarchos.

The Lost Art of Barbecuing

My eyes, my nose and my palate keep remembering barbecue the way it used to be.

Some future generation surviving on nutritious but sterile pills may not mind. But if some scholar of the future researching us should wonder about the lost art of barbecuing—may I leave this message for him.

Succulent, aromatic, juicy and beautiful barbecue is remembered from my childhood in Tulsa, Okla.

Black men, seeking to make cheap cuts of meat palatable, created this art form.

It involved swamp hickory smoke and a sauce made of tomatoes, peppers, condiments and magic.

Also, the first fast-food place in Salina, Kan., was a semi-outdoor shack where chicken was slow-cooked over charcoal.

Ralph Foster had a place staked out near Springfield, Mo., where the open-pit barbecue was classic.

And I recall a luau in Hawaii where the roast pig came close to tasting like barbecue should.

But there has been none since.

Now they take cheap meat and shred it or marinate it or roast it over hot rocks—and they drown it with catsup.

Much of the problem relates to government restrictions on "open burning." The Environmental Protection Agency has decided there is something evil and dangerous about the wonderful wo-1 smoke which caressed our lungs for generations.

Used to be I could jog past Russell's Barbecue on the edge of Thatcher Woods and inhale that deliciousness with such happy anticipation. Any more, the chimney is throttled. Russell's still calls it "barbecue" but smokeless barbecue is like a kiss on the forehead.

Memorial Day we have our traditional backyard outing at the Elmer Stammers, whatever is broiled is broiled over gas!

And gas barbecue is like a bech in church!

I'm told that some Southerners surreptitiously manage to gather and soak swamp hickory and that they bootleg real barbecue sauce and thus cook and baste brisket or ribs the way we used to. But they'll have to show me.

I've attended big shindigs in West Texas where they bury tons of meat wrapped in wet burlap over coals and underground overnight, but that's only because there are no ovens adequate for such large portions. It does not taste like the barbecue of my youth.

Perhaps after our taxpayers reassert their rights, our country boys will seek liberation from thawed and microwaved stuff and rediscover the lost art of barbecuing.

Until we do, the future will be that much less than the past.

Youth Wants To Donate Kidneys But Court To Make Decision

LAKE PLACID, Fla. (AP) - Darryl Wirick wants to donate one of his kidneys to his ailing twin, Darren. His parents are willing but have asked the courts to decide whether the 7-year-old boy can legally make such a decision.

"Darryl is a minor, and we don't have the right to make this decision," said his mother, Diane Wirick, 34. "The lawyers say they don't know of any other cases like this."

The Wiricks have filed a petition in Highlands County Court, seeking a ruling indicating "that the court understands that he's aware of what he's doing." Doctors say Darren needs a transplant, but they want to know what the Wiricks' rights and liabilities would be.

The petition asks for a ruling because "the life of Darren T. Wirick is in immediate and present danger because of complete kidney failure."

Mrs. Wirick said neither she nor her husband, Daniel, 36, were able to donate their kidneys to their sick son because of tissue incompatibility.

But Darryl, Darren's blond, blue-eyed twin, "would be ideal for the transplant," she said.

Darren had to have one kidney removed shortly after birth: the remaining kidney is failing, and he is being kept alive through use of a dialysis machine at the University of Florida's Shands Teaching Hospital.

Mrs. Wirick said physicians and psychologists have talked to the twins to determine whether the boys understand the situation.

"I think everyone is satisfied that both of the boys know just what is going to happen - at least as well as a 7-year-old can understand these things," she said.

She said psychologists told her that the physical and emotional well being of the healthy twin would be jeopardized more by the loss of his brother than the loss of a kidney.

"They get along super," says

Mrs. Wirick. "They're very close to each other. Maybe one will spend a night at someone's house and when he comes back, they're just so happy to see each other."

Mrs. Wirick said Darryl was recently talking to her about the proposed transplant operation.

"He said, 'I want Darren to have my right kidney. It's my best one. I write with my right hand and I throw a ball with my right hand. So, the right one has to be my best kidney.'"

The boy's father added, "When he told us that, we knew how much he wanted to help his brother."

Russian writer Alexander Pushkin was born in 1799.

Marketing Specialist Indicates Cattle Outlook Growing Cloudy

COLLEGE STATION — What is the cattle price outlook for the remainder of 1978?

Producers and consumers have watched cattle prices decline sharply and the market react violently during the past several weeks, notes Dr. Edward Uvacek, Jr., livestock marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Uvacek points out that fed cattle prices dropped from the $62 per hundredweight level of early June to the $50 level by mid-month. Feeder prices showed a similar drop.

"The sharp decline resulted from simultaneous reaction to several distinct factors: consumer resistance to high retail beef prices, weakness in the commodity futures market, increases in beef supplies, and the psychological effect of the government's announcement of increased allowable beef imports for the year," Uvacek explains.

Although some price recovery occurred in July, many producers are still concerned about the outlook for the remainder of 1978, Uvacek, also an associate professor in Texas A&M University's Department of Agricultural Economics, adds.

He points out that some forecasts, including that of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, look for further improvement in the third quarter of the year, with some weakness in the fourth quarter. The real key to their forecasts, however, is an estimated 7 percent decrease in beef production for the second half of the year. The USDA analysis places the average price of U.S. choice fed steers in Omaha during the July-September period at $55-$57 per hundredweight. Price predictions for similar cattle in the fourth quarter are $54-$56.

Uvacek's view of third quarter beef supplies is not quite as encouraging.

He expects only 2 percent less beef production and larger pork, broiler and turkey supplies.

"Total red meat and poultry production could be up 1 1/2 to 2 percent from a year ago. That would be the largest production of the year and undoubtedly would limit price recovery," he contends.

Fourth quarter estimates point toward a somewhat improved supply situation, Uvacek says.

"Recovery during that period seems highly likely," he believes.

The specialist's cattle price outlook includes these specific forecasts:

Amarillo choice fed cattle-price recovery foreseen during the early part of the July-September quarter. Increased pressure as the August-September period is approached. Lowest prices expected during either September or October, with recovery beyond that point on into 1979. The July-September price average should be about $49.50-$51.50 per hundredweight, and the October-December average is expected to be from $50-$52.

Amarillo choice feeder cattle-prices should follow almost exactly the same seasonal pattern as fed cattle. Larger marketings of feeder animals are likely just when feedlot losses are probable. Some price weakness is expected into the September-October period, with recovery after that. Choice 600 to 700-pound feeder steers should average $50-$52 per hundredweight in July-September, and $50.50-$52.50 per hundredweight in the final quarter of 1978.

Local Feeding Firm Buys Roswell Facility

ROSWELL, N.M. — Far Tex Feeders Inc., a custom cattle feeding firm headquartered in Hereford has purchased the 40,000 head Pecos Valley Feed Yard owned by Glover, Inc. here.

The purchase price was listed as $1,600,000 in debt assumption, notes and cash.

Dean Stallings, Far Tex president announced that the feed yard will continue to operate under the Pecos Valley name.

"The opening of the feed yard is in progress with cattle already in the yards. We hope to be in full operation shortly, and operating at capacity within 12 months," Stallings commented. According to Pecos Valley Feed Yard Manager Vic Munsey, the climate in the Roswell area is favorable to cattle feeding with roughage readily available.

"Local ranchers will not have to ship their cattle to the Panhandle to finish them for market," he stated.

The reopening of the feedyard is expected to prove significant for the Chaves County region of New Mexico. The yard, when fully activated, is expected to generate an investment in the area of $50 million on an annual basis, with an additional 35 jobs created.

Egg Producers Can Improve Economic Situation

COLLEGE STATION — With current low egg prices expected to last until at least mid-fall, Texas egg producers must make every effort to stay in the black. That's the word from a poultry specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Dr. Fred Thornberry says most producers can improve efficiency and cash flow in the weeks ahead by paying closer attention to a number of production practices.

"Because of the present economic situation, employees at all levels should understand that their job may depend on how efficiently or effectively they carry out duties," Thornberry says. More supervisory monitoring will pay off in reduced egg loss, shell damage and wasted feed, he contends.

Major savings can be accomplished by reducing feed waste. Thornberry says chicken houses should be checked closely for evidence of feed leakage or waste.

"Require employees to report problems promptly," he says. And as an added measure, control rodents with an effective rodenticide program.

Culling obvious non-layers from older flocks can reduce monthly feed requirements by at least five pounds per bird removed, the specialist says.

While striving to reduce feed waste, producers must also guard against undernourishing. "Lightweight pullets may need additional protein during the first three to four months of lay to attain satisfactory production and egg size," the specialist cautions.

"Don't reduce nutrients to minimal levels," Thornberry says. "In warm weather this is an invitation to disaster." Warm weather brings its own brand of problems to the producer who is striving to reduce costs. The specialist advises poultrymen to minimize heat stress problems. Checking fans for proper maintenance and evaporative cooling systems for deficiencies such as deteriorating pads and plugged nozzles can save money in the long run.

Insects and pests thrive in warm weather. Insecticide costs can be reduced by eliminating leaks and maximizing air movement across manure. This includes keeping vegetation short around open-type housing.

Producers should continue checking for and controlling mites and lice. Medium to heavy populations can reduce egg production from five to 12 percent.

Producers should also watch closely for low level, and chronic disease problems, obtaining a prompt diagnosis if a situation is suspected.

Bergland To Meet With Chinese

WASHINGTON (AP) — Before making his journey to Peking this fall, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland and two top aides are going to huddle "somewhere in the Midwest" with two dozen Chinese agricultural officials.

The officials extended a surprise invitation to Bergland to visit their country during a breakfast session with congressional leaders.

Chatting with reporters, Bergland said that the officials "gave us seven questions they wanted answered, everything from how much it costs to grow corn to the government's role in agriculture and how we finance it ... to how price supports work and how the extension programs work."

Bergland, chief economist Howard W. Hjort and Assistant Secretary Dale Hathaway will answer the questions in a "very frank question-and-answer session ... in a couple of weeks."

Holly Reports $410,000 Loss For First Quarter

COLORADO SPRINGS — Holly Sugar Corporation has reported an estimated loss of $410,000 or 26 cents a common share on sales of $40.9 million for the first quarter of its fiscal year ended June 30.

This compares with an estimated loss of $413,000 or 26 cents a share on sales of $41.9 million for the same period last year.

Provision for federal and state income taxes is a credit of $753,000 compared with a tax credit of $730,000 last year.

In a letter to stockholders, Chairman John B. Bunker explained that the months-long stalemate between the administration and the Congress over sugar legislation has not abated "despite intermittent flourishes of activity and the usual political bickering."

"The principal reason given for the administration's continued objection to the legislation pending both in the Senate and in the House is the spectre of inflation," Bunker said.

He pointed out that the logic of this position is "frightening" because "legislative inaction will produce the opposite result."

Bunker said that the United States' continued reliance on foreign imports for refined sugar would result in the decline of domestic production followed by the "inevitable rise in sugar prices as consumers become dependent on foreign supplies."

"The combination of larger trade deficits and higher consumer prices, which are the alternatives to corrective legislation, will certainly lead to significant inflation," Bunker said.

"It is tragically short-sighted to victimize the domestic sugarbeet industry and the consumer with delay and deception, when, in fact, government inaction lies at the heart of the problem," Bunker explained.

He reported that meetings have been held between Holly's management and Irwin L. Jacobs, a Minneapolis businessman who has offered to buy Holly's assets, and that Holly has retained the services of Merrill Lynch White Weld Capital Markets Group to evaluate the proposal and to advise Holly's directors on the fairness of the proposed transaction.

"The details of a form of agreement of purchase and sale suggested by Jacobs now are being negotiated," Bunker reported. He said that although discussions are proceeding on a timely basis, negotiations are in the early stage, and numerous details are yet to be worked out.

"Until these points are resolved and a definitive form of agreement is reached, neither the board nor its advisers will be in a position to make an evaluation upon which a recommendation to shareholders can be based," Bunker explained.

He said that, at present, it is not possible to predict when the transaction, assuming its ultimate advisability, would be consummated.

The scientists have been using a closed 200-cubic-foot vat to speed up fermentation by cooking the manure at 130 degrees. More methane is recovered that way, too, they said.

Manure Providing Protein Supplement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department scientists working with cattle manure have come up with a protein supplement that might be as good for sheep and cattle feed as alfalfa.

The research team in Clay Center, Neb., has found that the fermenting manure that produces methane gas leaves behind what it nicely calls "ant solids an effluent" — a mess that's 3 percent to 4 percent solids and about 60 percent crude protein.

Ronald L. Prior, a department nutritionist, said that the residue is dried and its substances separated with a centrifuge. That produces a cake that's about 17 percent protein, he said.

Further work is being done on procedures and machines, the department said, but so far the process appears practical only at large feedlots.

Cotton Council Filing Suit Over Dust Standards

LUBBOCK, Aug. 3 (Special) - The National Cotton Council is filing suit to challenge stringent new cotton dust standards recently issued by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

This was announced today by Ed Breihan, Council vice president and cotton cooperative executive from Lubbock. Breihan presided over a regional seminar at the South Park Inn here. The local seminar is one of four being conducted by the Council to acquaint industry members with the standards' compliance provisions.

Under OSHA's sweeping new standards, costly engineering controls must be in place by 1982 to reduce cotton dust levels to 0.2 milligrams per cubic meter of air in textile yarn manufacturing; 0.5 in warehouses, classing rooms, cottonseed oil mills, and waste industries; and 0.75 in weaving rooms.

Breihan said the standards are "technologically and economically impossible" for some sectors and expressed grave concern about their effect on the cotton industry's future. He further stated that worker protection could be insured through more practical and less expensive methods.

"Unless some moderation is made by the courts -- or unless some technological breakthroughs occur soon in dust control -- the cost burden placed on cotton by the standards threatens our ability to compete in the domestic market."

While the standards will undergo judicial review as a result of suits brought by the Council and other industry segments, Breihan said compliance with some of the standards' administrative provisions is likely to be required as early as Sept. 4 of this year.

As outlined by seminar speakers, this year's timetable for compliance with these provisions is:

Sept. 4 -- posting of warning signs in all businesses covered by the standards;

Oct. 4 -- providing of respirators to workers;

Dec. 4 -- initiation of work practices, education, and training programs to minimize exposure to dust.

For 1979, the standards call for a March 4 completion date of first dust exposure monitoring with repeat tests every six months. By Sept. 4, 1979, medical surveillance must be started and written plans for meeting dust exposure limits solely through engineering controls must be completed.

Cotton gins, while not subject to dust exposure limits, will be required to meet certain administrative provisions. These include warning signs and initiation of work practices, education, and training programs by Sept. 4, 1978. One year later, gins are required to provide respirators and begin medical surveillance of workers.

Compliance provisions were explained in detail by Ted Wentworth, Federal Compress & Warehouse Co., Memphis; A.C. Miller, field representative, Mine Safety Appliances Co., Pittsburgh; Richard C. Ennis of Ennis, Lumsden & Boylston Associates, Chapel Hill, N.C.; Phillip J. Wakelyn, Council technologist, Memphis; and Preston Sasser, Cotton Incorporated, Raleigh, N.C.

Phillip C. Burnett, Council program coordinator, and Gaylon Booker, assistant director of economics and market research, reviewed the extensive case made by the Council and other groups against the 0.2 dust exposure limit which OSHA proposed in late 1976 for all cotton processing operations except harvesting. The effort involved developing studies on the standard's economic impact and technological aspects, coordinating testimony for more than 300 witnesses during six weeks of hearings, and numerous meetings with top Administration leaders concerning the regulations' inflationary effect on the nation's economy.

Booker said these efforts, made with the cooperation of all segments of the industry, did result in (1) different exposure limits being set for various segments; (2) exemption of gins from dust exposure limits; and (3) a nearly $2 billion reduction in the proposed standard's $3.2 billion price tag.

Despite these modifications, however, Burnett said a court challenge is necessary in view of the fact that the standards are still "far too stringent" and inflationary. He cited the standards as "a classic example of over-regulation and bureaucratic overkill."

The Council official said the standards are particularly excessive in view of the more cost-effective approaches available to achieve worker protection. These approaches, which could be accomplished at about one-sixth the cost of OSHA's standards, have been repeatedly pointed out by the cotton industry as well as by the Administration's economic advisors, Burnett added. The Council has given the cotton dust problem top priority since 1973. Current research efforts to find solutions to the problem are being funded at more than $4 million annually.

Additional details of USDA's planning for an all-risk crop insurance program were revealed at a recent meeting of USDA officials and producer representatives in Kansas City.

Meanwhile the odds are increasing against getting the proposed Federal Crop Protection Act (FCPA) passed and the program in operation before the disaster payment section of current law expires at the end of 1979. The House Agriculture Subcommittee heard Administration witnesses at a one-day hearing July 27 but hearings have not been scheduled before the full House Committee or the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said earlier that legislation needed to be passed in July of this year if insurance was to be available on 1980 crops, but it now appears unlikely that the FCPA can become law before next year.

The Administration plan calls for the FCPA to provide all-risk insurance to all producers of cotton, feed grains, wheat, sunflowers, soybeans, sugar beets and other crops of less importance on the High Plains. Coverage would be based on cost of production, as determined by USDA, and a 10 or 15-year average of actual yields.

Producers would have the option to cover 50 percent, 70 percent, or 90 percent of the average yield established for each farm. At the 50 percent level the farmer would be asked to pay about half the "true risk premium," and the government would bear the other half. Producers would pay about two-thirds of the true risk premium for 70 percent coverage and about 85 percent of the premium to insure 90 percent of production.

USDA gave two examples showing how the numbers would look for coverage on typical High Plains cotton farms, using the 52-cents per pound cost of production set by USDA for 1978.

The true risk premium, as figured by USDA on an irrigated yield of 490 pounds, would be $7.75. The producer would be asked to pay an estimated $3.70 and would have coverage on 245 pounds of production at 52 cents per pound or $127 per acre in the event of a total loss. A premium payment of $9.35 per acre would get coverage on 345 pounds or $179 per acre. For a $22.50 premium, 445 pounds of production would be insured and a total loss would bring $231 per acre indemnity.

A dryland farm, where the risk is greater, would pay $4.25 per acre premium for 50 percent coverage of a 270-pound yield, $10.65 premium for 70 percent, and $25.60 per acre for 90 percent coverage. Dollar indemnities after total loss, respectively, would be $70, $99 and $127.

Officials emphasize that these figures are tentative pending further cost calculations and Congressional action.

Abandoned Well Definition Expected from Water District

LUBBOCK -- One proposed rule amendment and one proposed new rule, both of major significance, will be on a heavily loaded agenda when the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1's Board of Directors hold their next monthly meeting August 7.

The board will consider amending Rule 1 (Definitions) to include a definition for an abandoned well site and will consider adopting a rule to provide a procedure for declaring a well site abandoned.

These proposals are being considered to give the board a set of guidelines to follow in cases where a well has apparently been abandoned, but has not been officially declared so, and a new application for a well has been submitted for a well near enough to the "abandoned" site that it would be in violation of the district's spacing requirements.

In other action the directors will consider cosponsoring a water conservation contest, will hear a staff report on a "Cost Analysis Study of Irrigation Ditch Losses," and will hear a progress report on "A Summary of Irrigation Practices and Techniques in the Southern High Plains of Texas" which is being compiled by District and Texas Department of Water Resources personnel.

Per-Head Fee System Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) - The grievances of four Arkansas livestock markets are forcing a change in the law regulating the fees they charge ranchers and farmers, but meanwhile they have "lost."

The Agriculture Department has ordered the four north-central Arkansas firms to start charging for their selling services by the head rather than according to the value of the animal.

The Supreme Court recently upheld the department in ruling that present law requires a per-head fee system. Legislation has been moving quickly through Congress since then to allow either method as long as the fees are fair and reasonable.

The meeting, which is open to the public, will be held at the District office at 2930 Avenue Q in Lubbock and will begin at 10:00 a.m.

A dollar is needed in 1978 to purchase what 60 cents bought in 1970. The Conference Board observes. Prices shot up by 56 percent between 1970 and 1977 and are likely to rise by about 6 percent this year.

Corn Saver Firm Opens At Dimmitt

DIMMITT - A firm which manufactures combine attachments for picking up fallen corn opened here recently.

The "Corn Saver Manufacturing Company" is located on the northern edge of this city on Highway 385. The firm is owned and was originated by Ernest Sammann of Dimmitt, who built the first "corn saver" in 1968 on his farm southwest of this city.

A second Dimmitt farmer, Wayne Jackson, assisted Sammann in developing the pickup attachment.

According to Sammann, the combine attachment was developed out of necessity after corn fell in area fields under the attacks of Southwestern corn borers and other insects.

The harvesting device designed by Sammann helps to salvage the fallen corn, and Sammann claims that upwards of 2,000 pounds per acre of grain can be salvaged.

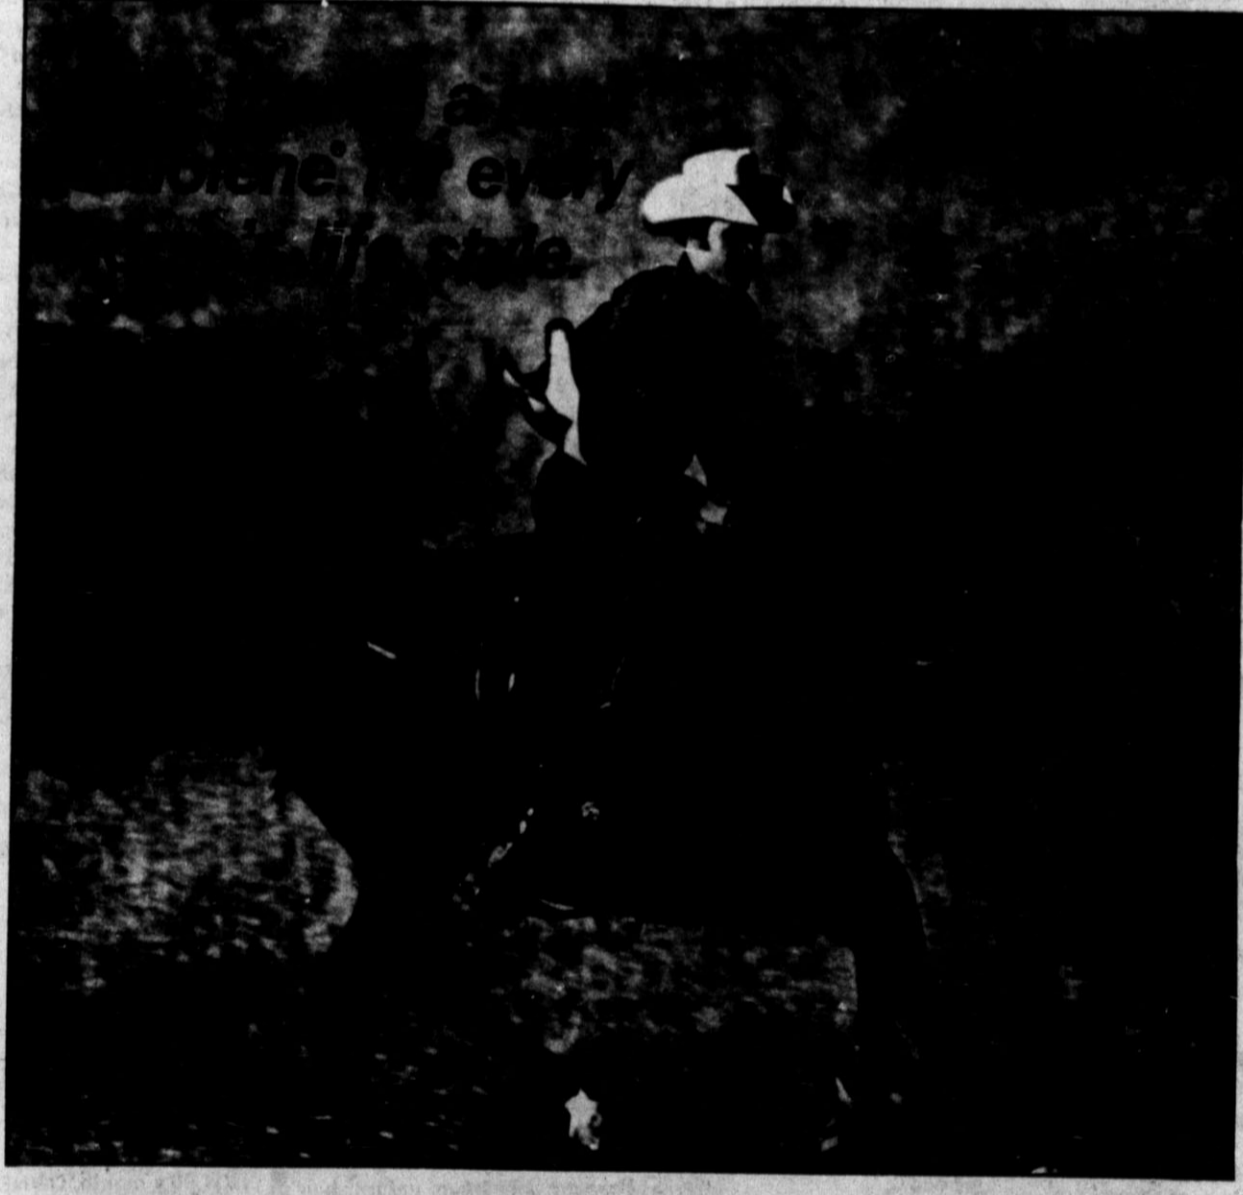

A total of 1,300 corn savers have been manufactured to date, and the devices have been sold to farmers in Tennessee, Illinois, Kansas, Oklahoma, Kentucky, California, Missouri and Texas.

Most of the devices are in use in the Panhandle and South Plains region of Texas.

The new plant here will manufacture corn savers in sizes ranging from 2-row to 8-row models, with prices ranging from $900 for the smallest to $2400 for the largest models. The devices are built to fit any combine corn header.

Peak manufacturing season for the area firm is normally July through December, with eight full time workers employed.

SPENDING MONEY
PARSIPPANY, N.J. (AP) —
Americans spend seven times as much on automobiles as on electricity for their homes.

Government statistics on how people spend their money show that 14.5 percent of income after taxes are paid in the United States is spent on buying, operating and maintaining cars, says William B. Murray, vice president of General Public Utilities Service Corp. On the other hand, he says, the cost of electricity for home use accounts for about two percent
after tax income.
