Ya'll Come!

Things could get sticky if you miss the Hereford Chamber Singers' Annual Spring Concert Sunday at the high school auditorium. Member Joe D. Rogers put across his point at a dress rehearsal for the musical Sunday night. The Chamber Singers will be performing a variety of numbers during the concert, entitled "Country Sounds." Singers Will Present 'Country Sounds' Show

The Hereford Chamber Singers will present their annual Spring Concert beginning at 4 p.m. Sunday, May 17 at the Hereford High School Auditorium. This year's concert is entitled "Country Sounds," and will include a number of popular country tunes.

Tickets for this year's concert are on sale for $2 each, and are available from any local Beta Sigma Phi member as well as at both local banks.

The guest director for the concert is Bob Stice, a member of the Chamber Singers, who will be leaving Hereford soon to move to Houston. Stice is also currently the music director at the First Baptist Church of Hereford.

Songs included in the concert this year are "Paint Your Wagon," "I Can't Stop Loving You," "All The Gold In California," "Are You Lonesome Tonight," and "Another Somebody Done Somebody Wrong Song."

Soloists include Gene Streun, Jan Waiser, Theresa Vines, and Ray Jenkins. Streun will perform "Just A Closer Walk," while Waiser will perform "On The Rebound-Hang On."

Vines will sing "Country Girl," while Jenkins will delight the crowd with "Fiddle Faddle" on his fiddle.

The Bob Stice Quartet, composed of Stice, Waiser, Joyce Allred and Joe D. Rogers, will sing "All The Gold In California," and "Thank You World." In addition, the Chamber Singers' Mens' and Women's Chorus will perform.

The concert will conclude with the entire cast singing "Old Joe Clark."

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan wants to sharply cut Social Security benefits for Americans who retire early, offer more incentives for people who work past age 65 and reduce the tax burden for workers who pay into the system, administration sources say.

Reagan's plan, being revealed today by Health and Human Services Secretary

Richard S. Schweiker, is a far-reaching set of proposals designed to save the destitute system from possible bankruptcy.

Highlights of the package to be submitted to Congress, as outlined by White House sources who asked not to be identified, included:

—More than doubling the penalty for people who retire before age 65. Instead of getting 80 percent of full Social Security benefits at 62, they would get only 55 percent.

—Abolishing limits on how much people between the ages of 65 and 72 can earn without losing benefits.

—Keeping the minimum age for full benefits at 65, instead of 68 as proposed by the House Ways and Means subcommittee on Social Security.

—Lowering Social Security tax rates on 114 million workers now paying into the system. Although no figures were available, sources said a 7.05 percent payroll tax scheduled to take effect in 1985 would be pared somewhat and taxes would be reduced from current 6.65 percent levels by 1990.

—Delaying for three months the July 1982 cost-of-living adjustment for the nation's 36 million Social Security beneficiaries to save about $4.5 billion. The 11.2 percent increase due this July would not be affected, and deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan would honor his pledge not to reduce Social Security pensions for those already retired.

For Sheriff's Office

County Okays Phone System

By BOB NIGH
MANAGING EDITOR
The Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Office will soon have an updated telephone system after county fathers decided to purchase a new communications system for the Sheriff Monday at their regular meeting.

After meeting with chief deputy Dean Butcher, the commissioners agreed to purchase a "Dialog" telephone system from Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

The new system, which will cost $692.50 to install with a monthly charge of $170.75, will double the number of lines the Sheriff's Office now has with three lines to be added, along with a 10-button master set.

In other action the court set June 8 as the date to conduct public hearings on the county budget and the county revenue sharing budget, raised the salaries of Summer mow hands, accepted a Criminal Justice Grant for the district attorney's office, and decided to recognize some local people who helped put the county tax appraisal district office in shape.

And, in a special called meeting following the regular session Monday morning, the commissioners leased four new radar units for the Department of Public Safety from Decatur Electronics of Decatur, Illinois.

According to regulations, the commissioners will conduct public hearings on the county budget and revenue sharing budget on June 8. Those budgets must be filed with the office of State Comptroller Bob Bullock by July 15.

Upon a recommendation by Commissioner Austin Rose, the court agreed to raise the wage of Summer mow hands from $3.50 per hour to $4 per hour for this year. Rose commented that it has been difficult in the past to keep hands on for the entire Summer at a 40-hour week, when they can find employment on local farms or ranches with more work hours.

Almost $6,000 in grants from the Federal Government and the State of Texas for the operation of the district attorney's office were accepted by the commissioners. This is the fourth year of the program, which provides assistance for personnel and equipment for that office.

A grant for $598 came from the U.S. Government, while $5,383 came from the State of Texas. The county has contributed $8,972 toward that office's operation for the period involved, April 1 to September 30 of this year.

Deaf Smith County Tax Appraisal District Chief Appraiser Fred Fox was at the meeting Monday, requesting some recognition for local school teachers, representatives and students who helped renovate the new office for the district at the Old central School building.

"The district plans to hold an open house within the next 10 days or so, and we felt that it would be nice to recognize those who worked hard to get us in the new office," Fox

Republican Senate Now Pondering Budget Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican-controlled Senate, set to deliver a budget plan giving President Reagan virtually everything he wants, is saving room for his full three-year tax cut and sweeping aside moves to make more drastic spending reductions.

Senate leaders expected a final vote on the non-binding, $699.1 billion budget resolution this evening. Several Democrats, including Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, were expected to join a virtually solid Republican majority in approving the plan, which envisions a deficit of $48.8 billion next year and a balanced budget in 1984.

Reagan, who gained overwhelming House approval of a similar spending blueprint last week, was looking ahead to the next major phase of the battle — specific cuts by individual committees to fit the president's outline.

Several Republican House members who met with Reagan at the White House on Monday quoted him as indicating he would veto bills that exceed his budget targets.

"He said he was sticking to his economic plan in total and his pen was ready to veto items that exceed his budget," said Rep. Edward J. Derwinski, R-Ill. "He said he vetoed many bills as governor (of California) and it was not something he was a stranger to."

Rep. Bill Frenzel, R-Minn., quoted the president as saying he "might be inclined" to use his veto, but added, "I'm sure he will use that authority with great care."

During deliberations Monday, the Senate voted 74-14 to reject an amendment by Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., to accommodate a much smaller tax cut than Reagan's proposal for a 30 percent, across-the-board reduction.

The tax vote does not guarantee that the president's proposal will be enacted, but it does make room for it in the budget if Congress decides to go along.

Hollings, a strong supporter of Reagan's call for budget cuts, argued against the president's tax plan, calling it "highly inflationary" and "calculated for disaster."

He proposed a cut of $21.4 billion next year, compared with Reagan's $53.9 billion package, and smaller reductions in 1983 and 1984 than the president wants. The $32.5 billion left over for 1982 would have been used to cut the projected deficit.

Both plans would allow business to write off their equipment costs more rapidly than they now may, and Hollings would have cut the corporate tax rate as well, beginning in 1983.

Hollings would defer all personal tax cuts until 1983.

Earlier Monday, the Senate voted overwhelmingly against a move by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., to double Reagan's spending cuts and erase next year's projected deficit.

The vote to table, and thus kill, the amendment was 81-13.

The Proxmire proposal would have ordered Congress

Under New Plan

State Senators May Oppose Each Other

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — At least two state senators, and maybe four, would have to oppose each other in 1982 if the Senate's latest redistricting plans are adopted.

But there would be no paired incumbents in the next race for Congress, under plans issued Monday by staffs of both House and Senate redistricting committees.

"It was easy with congressmen," said Sen. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso, chairman of the Senate redistricting committee, "because we have three new seats" (because of the 1980 census)."

Or not so easy, if you listen to Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, chairman of the House redistricting committee.

Von Dohlen was asked about Dallas-area district boundaries that appear to place Congressman Jim Mattox, Democrat, in a sure-fire Republican district taking in the booming bedroom community of Plano.

"If you want to cut a minority district, there is no way you can save two clearly Democratic Dallas County seats," he said.

U.S. Rep. Martin Frost, D-Dallas, would be in a district that is 65 percent black and Mexican-American under the plan written by the House committee staff.

The new Dallas-area district takes in the Mid-Cities area of Grand Prairie and Arlington. Under the House staff plan, Houston would get a new district, and Harris County would dominate an additional district that also includes Montgomery, Waller, Austin and Fort Bend counties.

"We believe every citizen in the state has had a chance to tell us how he thinks Senate and congressional district lines should be drawn," Santiesteban told a crowded Senate chamber as the committee, which includes all senators, met to receive staff reports.

A Senate subcommittee will hear proposed changes Saturday in the staff's con-

Clayton's Water Trust Attacked

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Sierra Club lawyer has suggested Speaker Bill Clayton's proposal to create a water trust fund is nothing more than an attempt to take care of West Texas farmers.

"I'm not disagreeing that we may have to bail out West Texas farmers, but if we're going to bail them out let's do it up front," Stuart Henry of Austin told the Senate Finance Committee on Monday.

"The proposal before you doesn't talk about importing water to West Texas at all, but it sure as dickens accommodates it," said Henry.

Clayton, a West Texas farmer, said comments that his proposal to create water and "rainy day" trust funds would result in a tax increase are "hokey."

He testified for 20 minutes in support of his proposed constitutional amendment to channel all of the treasury surplus each biennium into two special funds.

Half would go for water, and the other half would be set aside for a "rainy day" that could be used for higher

Alien Schooling Bill Approved

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A bill repealing Texas' law that denies free public schooling to children of illegal aliens has gained preliminary approval in the House.

The measure advanced Monday, 78-59, with a final vote expected today. Passage would send the measure to the Senate, where a similar bill was approved by a committee last week, 7-4.

education or any number of things as the Legislature saw fit," said Clayton.

The committee listened to 2½ hours of testimony and recessed without voting because it lacked a quorum.

"This is a unique opportunity once again for Texas to capture the lead among states," said Clayton.

Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, said, however, in 20 years as a legislator "I've never seen a Texas water plan that didn't ultimately involve taking water from East Texas and sending it to West Texas, and I ain't going to be for that in any form, shape or fashion."

Clayton said his proposal to set aside money for Texas' future water needs "is just as much for East Texas as it is West Texas and just as much for North Texas as it is for South Texas."

Herbert Grubb, director of planning and development for the Department of Water Resources, estimated it would cost Texas nearly $32 billion over the next 20 years to pay for water projects the state would need.

"Water right now is hot stuff," said Edward "Ned" Fritz, chairman of the Texas Committee on Natural Resources, but he added: "The way problems change, we don't know what the next problem will be in this biennium, much less the decade."

Fritz said Clayton's proposal would "kill all chances of future tax decreases" and "would require future tax increases on the state level, and encourage them on the local level."

U.S. District Judge Woodrow Seals of Houston held the 1975 law unconstitutional last year, and the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans upheld his decision.

The U.S. Supreme Court has granted Attorney General Mark White's request for a hearing on Texas' appeal of Seals' ruling.

A Texas Education Agency survey in October indicated that after Seals struck down the Texas law, about 11,000 children of undocumented workers, mainly from Mexico, enrolled in school.

IRA Hunger Striker

Hughes, Near Death

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — IRA hunger striker Francis Hughes is blind, nearly deaf and slipping in and out of coma as he nears death on his 59th day without food, his family said today.

Spokesmen for Protestant and Roman Catholic militants said the all-out sectarian warfare that was predicted — but did not develop — after the death last week of another Irish Republican Army hunger striker, Bobby Sands, could break out if Hughes dies.

Violence flared overnight as Hughes' condition deteriorated. Dozens of Molotov cocktails were hurled at security forces in Londonderry during the night and police said they returned fire when snipers attacked in the Roman Catholic Creggan district.

In Belfast, where police and army patrols were attacked with more than 1,500 Molotov cocktails last week, security forces said they found a storage hut containing 12 crates of bottles, a gallon of hydrochloric acid, gasoline, funnels and cloth twisted into wicks — all for making acid and gasoline bombs.

Earlier, the Belfast Brigade of the IRA's militant "Provisional" wing claimed responsibility for a sniper attack Monday on British troops escorting a Post Office cash shipment in west Belfast's Ballymurphy district.

One soldier was seriously wounded and another slightly hurt in the shooting, police said.

The Belfast Brigade also urged residents of Catholic areas to keep their children away from army vehicles.

"Over recent days active service units have had to cancel operations due to young children playing near the vehicles," the brigade said in a statement.

Meanwhile, the 25-year-old Hughes, serving a life term for the murder of a British officer in a March 1978 shootout, was reported by members of his family to be approaching death.

Houston Phones

Ripped Off

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston thieves are ripping off more pay telephones than their counterparts in any city other than New York, said Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. officials who are offering a $1,000 reward in an effort to end the phone booth hijacking the Bayou City.

"The losses suffered by our company are at epidemic proportions," said William Ray, the general security manager for the telephone company.

In 1980, Ray said 774 of Houston's 22,000 coin-operated telephones were destroyed and replaced at a cost of $750,000.

So far this year, Ray said 200 phones have been ripped from booths at a cost of $200,000.

Ray said the reward would be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of a pay-phone pilferer.

A New York telephone company spokesman said more than 1,000 of that city's 67,000 pay phones had to be replaced last year at a cost of $1.4 million.

TIA Claims Stock

Purchase Financing

DENVER (AP) — Texas International Airlines has commitments for the financing it needs to buy all of the Continental Airlines stock now publicly owned for $13 a share, the Houston-based carrier said Monday.

TIA already holds some 7.4 million shares, or 48.5 percent, of Continental's common stock. The proposed purchase would involve $104 million for approximately eight million shares of stock.

Philip Bakes, senior vice president of Texas Air Inc., parent of TIA, handed two acquisition proposals to Continental President A.L. Feldman on May 6, before the Continental stockholders meeting in Denver.

In one proposal, the Texas company offered to buy the remaining Continental stock at $13 a share. That plan included a limited equity offering for current Continental shareholders who wanted to retain an equity interest in the company.

Under the second plan, Continental stockholders would be offered a tax-free stock trade in which they would trade their stock for stock in the merger airline. That new stock would be worth $14 a share, TIA officials said.

Both plans were contingent upon TIA's obtaining financing commitments for the purchase.

To Spread over 3 Years

Conservative Democrats Plan Smaller Compromise Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conservative Democrats who helped push President Reagan's budget cuts through the House are now trying to lay the groundwork for a compromise tax cut smaller than the administration wants but still spread over three years.

The numerous variations of a three-year plan under study by members of the Conservative Democratic Forum all fall short of the 30 percent reduction in personal income tax rates that Reagan insists is needed to revitalize economic expansion.

Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas, who has been drafting alternative tax bills for the 47-member conservative group, said a 25 percent cut over three years — 5 percent in the first year and 10 percent in each of the next two years — "is the maximum our people will consider."

With political momentum on its side following last week's passage of a Reagan-inspired budget plan by the Democratic-controlled House, the administration has been unwilling so far to move off of the president's tax plan. Instead, Reagan aides merely have expressed a willingness to listen to alternatives.

"I suspect that we have momentum with us now," Treasury Secretary Donald

T. Regan told a group of financial analysts Monday. "He (the president) need not give ground....I would suspect that by staying firm on this one as we did on the budget cuts, we again will carry the day."

Regan said the administration is insisting on a three-year tax cut, but would consider alternatives to the make-up of the president's plan "if there is a better one out there."

Norman Ture, an undersecretary of the Treasury for tax policy, said the administration is unwilling to compromise now because Congress keeps moving closer toward Regan's position.

The chances for the president's plan "look awfully good to me," Ture said. "But if you can't get what you want, you see what you can get."

He said the administration is willing to look at any tax plan "that has a great big cut in marginal rates," whether all in one year or spread out over three years.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, has proposed a one-year tax cut totaling about $40 billion — $14 billion less than Reagan wants in the first year of his plan. Rostenkowski's proposal also would give more tax relief to lower- and middle-income Americans than the Reagan plan, which would apply evenly to all income groups.

The administration has rejected the Rostenkowski plan as unacceptable.

A spokesman for the conservative House Democrats said most members of the group oppose Reagan's plan as too severe and support a more modest tax reduction instead. But they also favor the three-year approach, Hance said.

Diesel Spill Causes

Traffic Hazard Here

A diesel fuel spill caused a traffic hazard and a mess through Hereford around 9:30 p.m. Monday when a truck blew a crossover line between tanks and spilled the fuel along North Highway 385 and down Park Avenue to the intersection of Highway 60.

According to Assistant Fire Chief Mike Watts, the spill caused a hazard to traffic, and necessitated a wash down by the fire department and sanding by the state highway department.

The truck driver was apparently unaware of the incident until he was stopped and notified of it by a unit of the Hereford Police Department.

According to Watts there was little danger of the fuel catching fire, but the slickened roads could have contributed to traffic accidents.

Obituaries

WILLIAM BILL GRIFFIN

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday in Rix Chapel for William Bill Griffin, 78, of 506 Union Street. The Rev. Prentiss Smith will conduct the services, assisted by the Rev. Gary Bandy, pastor of Greenwood Baptist Church. Burial will be in West Park Cemetery under direction of Rix Funeral Home.

Mr. Griffin died Sunday at 7 p.m. in High Plains Baptist Hospital in Amarillo after a lengthy illness.

Born March 11, 1903 in Johnson County, Mr. Griffin resided in Hereford for 27 years moving here from Borger. He was a retired welder and a Baptist.

He married Carmel Carmichael Nov. 16, 1926 in Sayre, Okla.

He is survived by the widow; two sons, Meryle of Sublette, Kans., and Mickey of Friona; three daughters, Melba Bayless of Calif., Billie Ruth Swaffar and Marilyn Douglas both of Odessa; two brothers, R.F. Griffin of Borger and M.T. Griffin of Lubbock; a sister, Lillie Wakefield of Borger; 18 grandchildren and 21 great-grandchildren.

WESLEY FRANK REZNIK

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Wednesday for Wesley Frank Reznik, 63, of Dumas in Saint's Peter and Paul Catholic Church in Dumas. The Rev. Gary Sides, pastor, will officiate. Burial will be in Dumas Cemetery under the direction of Morrison Funeral Home in Dumas.

Mr. Reznik was the brother of local resident, Mrs. Cecilia Vasek.

Mr. Reznik died Sunday at his home north of Dumas after a short illness.

A farmer, Mr. Reznik was born July 14, 1917 in Ennis, Tex. He married Mary Kosarek, and was a member of the Saint's Peter and Paul Catholic Church.

Additional survivors include the widow; two sons, Robert of Dumas and Richard of Waco; two daughters, Mrs. Dorothy Perkins of Beeville and Mrs. Lillian Kwast of Dallas; three brothers, Al of Lubbock, George and Ray, both of Dallas; and six grandchildren.

ALTON J. NICHOLSON

Funeral services for Alton J. Nicholson, 72, of Amherst, will be held at 4 p.m. Wednesday, May 13 at the First Methodist Church of Amherst under the direction of Hammond Funeral Home. The Rev. Phil McClendon, pastor, will officiate. Interment will follow at Rest Lawn Memorial Park in Hereford.

Mr. Nicholson died Monday at St. Mary's Hospital in Lubbock.

He was a former resident of Hereford, having farmed here from 1953-1960.

His wife Carmelita preceded him in death in January of 1981.

Survivors include his mother, Mrs. G.C. Nicholson of Amherst; three sisters, Doris Mixon and Verlea Edwards of Amherst, and Geraldine Ferrell of Amarillo; and several nieces and nephews.

28 Traffic Citations, 4 Vandalisms Reported

Hereford Police were busy on the streets over the weekend, issuing 17 traffic citations, and arresting two persons for driving while intoxicated. The log kept pace on Monday as well, with 11 citations issued.

The HPD also investigated four vandalism reports through Monday, had two burglary reports, one automobile reported stolen, and looked into a domestic quarrel.

Officers answered a call to the Tierra Blanca Motel over the weekend, where someone had put an oil and dirt mixture in an automobile gas tank.

Roy Herrera, 601 Blevins, reported that a tire had been slashed on his vehicle, while Mrs. Phyllis Bradshaw, told police someone had broken a window at her home on Ave. K.

Marjorie Hays, 804 Union, reported that several items, including a garden hose, sprinkler, and toys had been taken in a break-in at her garage, while a vehicle was reported stolen from the Bull Barn, and later found about one mile away. Police do have a juvenile suspect in the car theft.

Deloris Powers, 506 Star, reported Monday that thieves had entered her house sometime between 7:30 and 10:15 p.m. Friday, and had taken about $25 worth of meat from a freezer.

And, Alicia Gonzales, 328 Lake, told police that a window had been broken at that residence Monday night.

Victim Number 27 Discovered

ATLANTA (AP) — The body of a black teen-ager found early today in a wooded area east of Atlanta was identified as that of 17-year-old William Barrett, who had been reported missing during the night, police said.

"We are going on the assumption that the child was murdered," said Chuck Johnson, DeKalb County police spokesman.

Johnson said he expected the case to be turned over to a special Atlanta police task force investigating the deaths of 26 other young blacks since July 1979. Members of the task force were called to the scene when the body was discovered.

"We believe it is related," Johnson said. "It certainly fits the profile of the other" slayings. The cause of Barrett's death was not immediately known, but the case was being treating as a homicide, he said.

An autopsy was scheduled for later today.

A missing persons report on Barrett was received almost simultaneously with the report that his body had been found, police said.

"A rough guess would be that he had been dead approximately three hours," Johnson said, adding that the body was "not decomposed at all."

He declined to release details of where the youth was last seen, what clothing was found on the body and whether there were any obvious signs of the cause of death. "We're afraid that if lots of details about the youth are released, it will jeopardize our investigation," Johnson said.

sales taxes and gasoline taxes."

He said 70 percent of the state's 1,100 school districts would not be affected by his bill.

The Legislative Budget Board said Luna's bill would not cost the state any money, but Rep. Milton Fox, R-Houston, said it would cost $2,400 to $2,500 per year for each child.

"Passage of this bill is going to put the state of Texas on record as saying it is not necessary to be a citizen of this state or a legal resident of this state to begin to gather the benefits that accrue to legal residents of this state," Fox said.

Rep. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, said there was a move afoot in Congress to provide federal money for educating children of undocumented workers, on the theory that lax enforcement of immigration laws permitted them to enter the United States.

"But the impetus for that funding dies with the passage of your bill," McFarland told Luna.

Luna replied that he felt "enough political pressure could be brought on Congress" to get federal funding.

Rep. Chris Semos, D-Dallas, said it was "more fiscally conservative" to educate illegal alien children than to pay them welfare and unemployment adults.

would Sens. John Luedom of Dallas and Dee Travis of Garland, both Republicans.

Plan 2 for senatorial redistricting would pair incumbent Sens. Mengden and Mike Richards, also a Houston Republican. The plan would give Dallas and Tarrant counties six districts and Harris County five.

Sen. Pete Snelson, D-Midland, whose subcommittee helped draw up the two senatorial district plans said there was "ample room for change I hope all 31 Senate members will be happy but if they are not I hope we can make the majority of them happy."

Under Plan 1 for senatorial redistricting there would be six districts with a majority of their population in Harris county and five for Dallas and Tarrant counties. Sens. Jack Ogg, Democrat, and Walter Mengden, Republican, would have to run against each other as referred to as "senatorial districts."

The House committee will hear opinions about its congressional remap tonight.

"We (the committee as a whole) will meet again Tuesday and hopefully send the bills to the House by Tuesday," Santiesfeban said.

sirens. The county had already approved up to $5,000 for the installation, but were informed that the additional expense was needed to pay for the changing out of transformers on some of the units in question.

Following the regular meeting, the commissioners decided to lease four radar units during a brief special called meeting. The four units, which will be leased for 24 months, will cost the county $24.26 per month, about $15 per month cheaper than the old units. The county also got a $3,000 credit for the old units on a trade in.

All four commissioners as well as County Judge Glen Nelson and County Auditor Alex Schroeter were present at the meeting.

Involved in the work at the tax office were several students in the Electrical Trades and Building Trades classes from Hereford High School. They were under the direction of Rex Manley, and Ed Warren. Also involved were numerous others, including HHS Vocational Education Director Kenneth Helms, and Byron Terrell.

The commissioners agreed to give special recognition to those mentioned and any others who were involved in the project at the office's open house.

The county fathers also approved an additional expense of $842 Monday to be paid as the county's obligation for the installation of new tornado

The administration also is reportedly considering cuts in survivors' benefits for widows and other economy measures in the $140 billion Social Security program, which could run out of cash in late 1982 or in 1983.

The proposed penalties for early retirement are aimed at reversing a decades-long trend and saving Social Security more than $17 billion between 1982 and 1986.

About 1.6 million workers retire on Social Security each year, and agency officials say at least 60 percent are under age 65.

Congress made it possible for workers to draw benefits at age 62, starting in 1961.

Before then, government statistics indicate, about three-fourths of men between 62 and 64 years old were working; by 1975, that had dropped to less than 59 percent.

When Social Security started paying benefits in 1940, almost 60 percent of men between the ages of 65 and 69 were working. That was down to 44 percent by 1960 and 32 percent by 1975.

Social Security benefits now are reduced $1 for each $2 earned above $5,500 a year by people 65 through 71. There is no reduction for workers 72 or older.

The Reagan proposal would phase out all earnings restrictions by 1986 for everyone over 65, the sources said.

to make cuts in unspecified areas to bring the budget into balance two years ahead of Reagan's schedule.

Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, argued that Proxmire's plan "makes utter shambles of all the work we do."

In other action, the Senate rejected two attempts to cut $200 million for water projects, once to trim the federal deficit and once to shift the money to mass transit and student loan programs.

Overall, the Senate budget plan calls for spending $10.3 billion more and leaving a deficit $17.8 billion higher than a similar measure adopted by the Democratic-controlled House last week. The differences will be worked out by House and Senate negotiators, and Reagan's allies hope to have the final version passed by both houses by the end of the week.

While both the House and the Senate budget resolutions are generally non-binding, both include instructions to individual committees to chop more than $36 billion next year from basic legislation governing federal programs. The committees decide precisely where and how to cut.

The Cost of Living—Longer

Most businesses measure their success with numbers; medical services measure their success in well-being. How much is it worth to live more comfortably — longer?

You are well aware of the higher costs of hospitalization; they are reported on most any evening's six-o'clock news.

You hear allegations of unnecessary surgery and substantiation for the inflationary effects of third-party payment.

Hospital administrators have been so long on the defensive that they are punchy.

All they know to do is to cut costs wherever they can and hope the six-o'clock news may mention that.

But the bottom-line is not how much it costs; the bottom line is you, your health and your prospects for continued health.

And when all the negatives have been ventilated...

When all hearsay about surgical boo-boos and mismedication and lazy nursing and impersonal tedium has been ventilated...

The American system of health care, for all its faults, remains the best in THIS world.

Since 1900 our nation's population has multiplied three times. The number of Americans 65 and older has multiplied eight times.

In 1900 only 29 percent of Americans lived past 75; today 40 percent do.

Yes, longevity is expensive. Over the past 10 years, 95 percent of the increase in hospital patient days — 95 percent of the increase — has been people 65 and older.

Granted, public money for the elderly is a factor in that...

But let's try for this purpose to ignore "factors and concern ourselves with "results."

In August of 1963 President John Kennedy's infant son, Patrick, stricken with infant respiratory - distress syndrome, lived only two days.

Boston Childrens Hospital Medical Center did the best it could — but the baby died.

Today a baby suffering that same syndrome would get days — maybe weeks — of intensive care, special respirators and techniques unknown in 1963.

Today the bill might be 20 times more but it's likely the baby would live.

I don't know how much is too much to pay for those fancy machines in fancy hospitals are investing.

Tell me how much a baby's life is worth — tell me how much a year or years of anybody's life is worth — and we'll have a standard for comparison.

But the condemnation of the high costs of healing are hypocritical — when more than half of every health-care dollar goes to treat illnesses that are self-inflicted.

Sixty cents of every health-care dollar treats diseases related to alcohol and tobacco.

Count venereal disease and it's 60 cents!

If Americans had the self-discipline, they have the medical facilities right now to add another 20 years to their lives.

And yet, despite our intemperance, the American system of health care has increased your likely years of life itself — from 47 in 1900 to more than 73 today.

In 80 years modern health care has added to yours half a lifetime!

How much is that worth?

4-H'ers Receive Honors at Roundup

By PENNY CRIBBS
County Extension Agent

With high hopes, twenty 4-H'ers loaded posters, easels, projectors and parents in vehicles of all sizes and shapes, and traveled to

West Texas State University recently. Upon arrival, the groups separated, each going to their designated contest areas. With hearts beating rapidly and posters under arm, they registered in the categories to which they would present their method demonstrations! And each Deaf Smith County 4-H'er did just that! They got up there and told them about everything from exercise to poisonous snakes. Each did a fantastic job and were rewarded that afternoon with a ribbon and applause!

These twenty 4-H'ers represented Deaf Smith County well, and we should each be proud of their accomplishments.

Those participating, and their awards were: Juniors - Dale West - Family Resource Management - 1st place; Kandi Sparkman and Andrea Wall - Health - 2nd place; Leslie Conkwright and Sandra Strafuss - Horticulture Production and Marketing - 2nd place; Scott Robbins and Chris Urbanczyk - Home Environment Educational Activity - 3rd place; Tim Tone and Kyle Andrews - Safety and Accident Prevention - 3rd place. Seniors - Robin Conkwright - Health - 1st place; Valerie and Jason Andrews - Sheep - 1st place; Tonya Savage - Home & Family Life Educational Activity - 2nd place; Glenna West, Becky Hughes, Kathy Morrison, Michelle Hughes, Sheri Jones, Crystal Finley and Chad Stephan - Share-The-Fun - 3rd place.

The first and second place winners in the senior division will progress to the state competition at Texas A&M University, Bryan, TX. The 4-H'ers will spend the week of June 1-5 there at A&M.

4-H'ers Take Honors

Twenty local 4-H'ers recently traveled to West Texas State University to participate in District Roundup. Those 20 4-H'ers brought home with them several awards including two first and one second place. Those receiving these awards were (left to right) Dale West, Robin Conkwright and Tonya Savage. West won first place in the family resource management. Robin won first in the health division and Tonya won a second place award in home and family life educational activity.

Attend District Roundup

In the senior division of the District Roundup, Valerie and Jason Andrews won first place with their method demonstration "A Lamb, Is A Lamb, Is A Lamb." The roundup was held at West Texas State University. Accompanying the two 4-H'ers were 18 fellow 4-H'ers who also participated in the district roundup.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Musical Drama 'Texas' to Open June 17

When the 16th season of the musical drama, "Texas" opens on June 17, veterans will be playing most of the lead roles. They will be sparked by a new Kate, Nancy Jane Ewing, a vivacious, striking drama major from the University of Oklahoma.

A resident of Purcell, Okla., she has played major roles at the University and also at the Norman Community Playhouse. To these roles she not only brings her drama training, but her knowledge of human nature gained in the winning of a degree in Sociology at the same University.

Ms. Ewing's interest and experience include work with set and prop and costume crews, some management experience, and work in modern dance, ballet, gymnastics and archery.

Sharon Lindemann Day will return to play Elsie. Since she appeared so gracefully in 1979, she has finished her BA at West Texas State University, spent a semester at North Texas State and filled professional acting engagements. She recently married Ted Day, one of the coaches at West Texas State. They live in Canyon.

Her latest engagement was with the Country Squire Dinner Theatre playing "Not Now, Darling." She brings experience in many productions to her interpretation and was recognized as Miss Irish Rose, Miss WTSU, and Lion's Club district queen. While in school she received scholarships from the Canyon Study Club and the Friends of Fine Arts.

Danny Alford will return to play Calvin, to the pleasure of those who enjoyed him so much last year. Among his experiences are a tour of Ireland with "Godspell," appearances with the Plainview Community Theatre and numerous college productions at Wayland Baptist University. He received the Samuel French Award for his interpretation of the title role in "Luther."

Alford is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Doyle Alford of Littlefield who were stationed at Boys' Ranch during his high school years.

Jerry Williams returns to the Pioneer Amphitheatre for the 14th season in his role of Tuck. He is a favorite of Panhandle audiences and has delighted "TEXAS" viewers with his warmth and understanding in this rich and comic part. A teacher and consultant at the Amarillo Speech and Hearing Center, Williams works in the summer as potter, appraiser and auctioneer. He has appeared in numerous plays at the Country Squire Dinner Theatre in Amarillo.

Williams is the son of Pauline Williams and lives in Canyon.

Mickey Best is coming back as Dave Newberry. After graduating from Southwestern Oklahoma State with a degree in Speech, Theatre and Psychology, he accepted a graduate assistantship at the University of Oklahoma where he has been adding directly to his other skills. He has played more than 10 musicals, seven one-acts, and 15 major shows, and has received recognition as one of the Young Men of America in 1980, and Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

Best played Jim Bowie during the opening season of Paul Green's "Lone Star" in Galveston. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C.W. Best of Cushing and his home town is Dunca, Okla.

For the sixth season, Lois Kirkpatrick Hull will play Aunt Anna. Daughter of two people who met while studying opera in Italy, Mrs. Hull inherited a fine voice and a love of music. She is the granddaughter of one of the women who fought to preserve the Alamo, and has carried on the family tradition of community responsibility by serving as president of the South Randall County Hospital Board. She was in charge during the construction of the Palo Duro Hospital. She has just finished terms as president of the Lone Star Ballet Inc. and the Friends of the Library at West Texas State University. She is the mother of four children who live with their families in Austin, Texas, San Antonio, Texas, Rock Springs, Wyoming, and Michigan.

Last is Uncle Henry, one of the key figures in the show, who acts as Master of Ceremonies in addition to carrying his own role as cattleman and first settler in the area. This is the third year in which David Yurik will carry the role. A graduate of Lubbock Christian College, he has appeared in many Community Theatre and Dinner Theatre productions there and in Amarillo and played the villain in summer melodrama for several years.

A native of Almira, Washington, he is manager of the Radio Shack in Canyon.

To see these actors and the tremendous production, "TEXAS," write "TEXAS" Box 268, Canyon, Texas 79015 or call 806-656-2181. It is well to make reservations as far in advance as possible.

Whitehouse." The dolls were clothed in their historic wedding gowns made by Mrs. Reeves. As each was presented she told interesting facts about their background and wedding.

In conclusion of the luncheon, Connie Gilbert presented each mother and mother-in-law with a hand painted wooden spoon and told an anonymous amusing story about each.

Guests attending were Mmes. Nell Culpepper, Coy Tice, Gloria Smith, Leta Campbell, Eloise Dixon, Billie Blain, Estell Brazzil, Mary Gilbert, Dean Bradley, June Dearing, Frances Frazier, Betty Jo Carlson, Kathryn Vineyard, Thelma Jones, Tommy Savage and Reba Hale.

Members present were Connie Gilbert, Gale Blain, Cara Dearing, Ann Kemp, Shirley Carlson, Marilyn Culpepper, Karen Smith, Brenda Campbell, Kathy Haney, Tonya Savage, outstanding future homemaker, and advisor Mrs. Beryl Burelsmith.

Young Homemakers Observe Mother's Day with Luncheon

In observance of Mother's Day, the members of Hereford Young Homemakers honored their mothers and mother-in-laws Saturday with a salad luncheon held at Hereford State Bank.

After the meal which included various salads, homemade bread and dessert, the members and guest were entertained by Mrs. Glen Reeves Sr. of Friona.

She presented a program entitled "The 16 Brides of the

Ann Landers

Dead at Seventeen, Again

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I clipped this column from the Williamsport Sun-Gazette in 1977. The way kids in our town drive makes me think that articles should be printed again. Please, Ann, one more time. - I Learned From You

DEAR LEARN: The column you want to see again is the second most often requested by teenagers. The first is the Drug and Sex Test. (Next week I'll run the 1981 version.) Here's the one you want:

DEAD AT SEVENTEEN

Agony claws my mind. I am a statistic. When I first got here I felt very much alone. I was overwhelmed with grief, and I expected to find sympathy.

I found no sympathy. I saw only thousands of others whose bodies were as badly mangled as mine. I was given a number and placed in a category. The category was called "Traffic Fatalities."

The day I died was an ordinary school day. How I wish I had taken the bus! But I was too cool for the bus. I remember how I wheeled the car out of Mom. "Special favor," I pleaded. "All the kids drive." When the 2:50 bell rang, I threw my books in the locker. I was free until 8:40 tomorrow morning! I ran to the parking lot - excited at the thought of driving a car and being my own boss. Free!

It doesn't matter how the accident happened. I was goofing off - going too fast. Taking crazy chances. But I was enjoying my freedom and having fun. The last thing I remember was passing an old lady who seemed to be going awfully slow. I heard a deafening crash and felt a terrific jolt. Glass and steel flew everywhere. My whole body seemed to be turning inside out. I heard myself scream.

Suddenly, I awakened. It was very quiet. A police officer was standing over me. Then I saw a doctor. My body was mangled. I was saturated with blood. Pieces of jagged glass were sticking out all over. Strange that I couldn't feel anything. Hey, don't pull that sheet over my head. I can't be dead. I'm only 17. I've got a date tonight. I'm supposed to grow up and have a wonderful life. I haven't lived yet. I can't be dead.

Later I was placed in a drawer. My folks had to identify me. Why did they have to see me like this? Why did I have to look at Mom's eyes when she faced the most terrible ordeal of her life? Dad suddenly looked like an old man. He told the man in charge, "Yes - he is our son."

The funeral was a weird experience. I saw all my relatives and friends walk toward the casket. They passed by, one by one, and looked at me with the saddest eyes I've ever seen. Some of my buddies were crying. A few of the girls touched my hand and sobbed as they walked away.

Please - somebody - wake me up! Get me out of here. I can't bear to see Mom and Dad so broken up. My grandparents are so wracked with grief they can barely walk. My brother and sister are like zombies. They move like robots. In a daze. Everybody. No one can believe this. And I can't believe it, either.

Please, don't bury me! I'm not dead! I have a lot of living to do! I want to laugh and run again. I want to sing and dance. Please don't put me in the ground. I promise if you give me just one more chance, God, I'll be the most careful driver in the whole world. All I want is one more chance. Please, God, I'm only 17.

Is pot a drug? Can LSD and pills open new worlds for you? Stop guessing. Get the facts in Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered, send a dollar, plus a long, self-addressed stamped envelope (28 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

First Assembly of God Welcomes 'Master's Touch'

"Master's Touch," a summer music ministry group from Oral Roberts University in Tulsa, Okla., will be appearing at First Assembly of God, 606 E. 15th Street, on Wednesday and Thursday,

May 13-14 at 7:30 p.m. "Master's Touch," directed by Craig Statton, is an 11 member group. The group's purpose is to enable God to touch listeners through their music. "Master's Touch" will be traveling to 35 churches this summer throughout the Southern Rocky Mountain area, ministering in song and word.

"Master's Touch" is one of seven music groups being sent out by ORU this summer. Todd Pettygrove, a 1980 ORU graduate, is director of the music ministry program at ORU.

ORU is a private, nondenominational, Liberal arts institution which opened in 1965. Schools of Medicine, Dentistry, Business, Theology, and Law are in operation, as well as master's level courses in the Anna Vaughn School of Nursing. The City of Faith, a medical and research center, is under construction and scheduled to open this year.

Rev. Steven Bookout is pastor at First Assembly of God.

Two Local Residents To Receive Degrees

The graduating class of 1981 at Wayland Baptist College includes local resident Larry Don Landers and Julia L. Helms.

Landers, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy M. Landers of 205 Higgins, will be awarded the bachelor of science degree in Mathematics while Mrs. Helms will receive the bachelor of science degree in occupational education. She is the wife of Kenneth Helms, Hereford High School vocational administrator.

Wayland's 71st Spring

Commencement will be held in Plainview next Saturday, May 16 beginning at 10 a.m. in Harral Memorial Auditorium.

Wayland Baptist College is a four-year, co-educational multi-purpose institution of arts and sciences presently in its 73rd year of operation. Dedicated to providing a quality education with a Christian orientation, the college will take on a new appearance beginning on June 1 when it officially becomes Wayland Baptist University.

at Tarleton. Ms. Willson is a freshman horse production major at TSU. She is a distinguished student at Tarleton. Ms. Willson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Willson, 234 Hickory.

At Wits End

By ERMA BOMBECK

For some reason, this country has suffered a "trust recession."

I see it in our attitudes toward the government, consumerism, and national institutions like the phone company and the six o'clock news.

I'm one of those people who want to believe everything I see and read. I want to believe Peter Pan can fly. Or that Chrysler will pay dividends next year, and that the woman who uses Oil of Olay and wears a 43 on her T-shirt is lying about her age.

I want to believe that my car will never be recalled, my prescription has been taken by someone other than a research monkey, and that my plumber will indeed show up on Friday, June 12 after lunch.

I want to believe, but I can't. Sometimes, I think I'm getting paranoid about people who have given me no reason whatsoever to doubt them, but I can't help it.

I never take my children to a pediatrician whose office goldfish have died.

I never leave my dog with a vet who says, "What seems to be her problem?" (The dog's name is Murray.)

I never trust a bank where all the fountain pens have been ripped off, or a restaurant with no garbage cans.

I don't trust people who say, "Trust me."

I don't accept drinks from a urologist with a sense of humor. I become very suspicious when a garage mechanic has clean fingernails or a doctor carries his instruments in his gym bag.

I wish I could go back to the way I used to be, but during the past ten years or so, there have been too many political bribes, too many broken warranties, too many broken promises and too many washer repairmen who have retired to Hilton Head on my service calls.

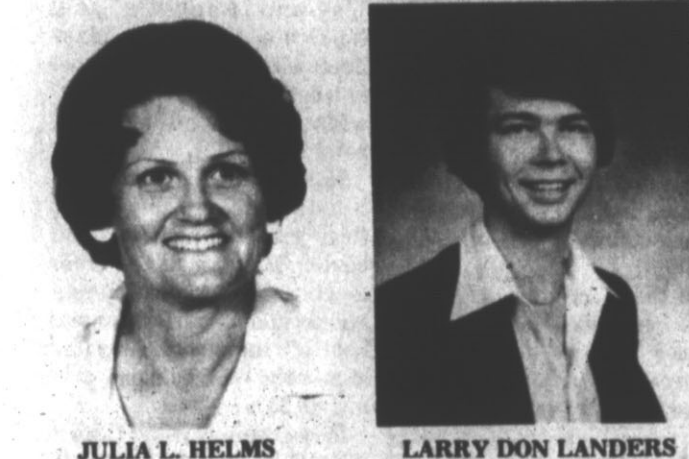

I even looked with suspicion on my husband the other day when he said to me, "Erna, you really look like you've shed a few pounds."

I looked at him closely. He was the man who drove an Edsel with a McGovern bumper sticker on it. Who wouldn't spring for an 8 1/2 percent loan ten years ago because houses were going down. Who bought Nehru jackets in five colors.

What the heck! You have to take a chance on people once in awhile!

PORK 'N EGG BRUNCH

- 1 lb. ground pork
 - 1/3 C. chopped onions
 - 1 beaten egg
 - 3/4 tsp. salt
 - 1/4 tsp. paprika
 - 1/2 tsp. pepper
 - 1/2 C. bread crumbs
 - 3 or 4 hard cooked eggs, peeled
 - 1/2 C. sliced mushrooms
 - Cherry tomatoes for garnish
- Place pork, onions, beaten egg, salt, paprika, pepper and bread crumbs in a bowl and blend together until well mixed. In a small loaf pan place half the pork loaf mixture. On top of the meat place the peeled hard cooked eggs, and to end. Cover with the remainder of the meat. Arrange meat so that it completely encloses eggs. Top the meat with crushed cornflake crumbs. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 20-30 minutes. Garnish with mushrooms and cherry tomatoes. Slice through loaf for serving. Serves 4-5.

Rev. Austell Burrus To Speak at Meeting

Rev. Austell Burrus is to speak at the Hereford Chapter of Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International meeting to be held May 16 in the Hereford High School Cafeteria, Ave. F and Union. A buffet supper will be served at 7:30 p.m. at the cost of $3.65 per person. The meeting begins at 7:45 p.m.

Rev. Burrus and his wife, Betty, live northwest of Stinet, where he is involved in farming. They have three children who are also active in farming.

He is a former basketball standout at West Texas State University. He is a church lay leader in the Stinet Methodist Church and serves as a Chapter President of the Borger Chapter of FGBMFI.

God became real in Burrus' life during a Lay Witness Mission in 1976. He testifies, "I realized God loved me. My outlook on life changed. Jesus became the Lord of my life. The dollar sign was pulled down and God was put in His rightful spot. Exciting things have happened in our lives through prayer and sharing with others. After the infilling of the Holy Spirit, a hard heart was transplanted by a soft and loving one. "Yes, Jesus is Lord."

Hereford men are invited to join FGBMFI at a prayer breakfast once a month for sharing and fellowship of men concerned about the community, who want a move of God throughout the land. They will meet at Dickie's Restaurant at 7 a.m. If there are any questions, contact Jonny Cloud, president at 364-1299; Leo Harper, vice president at 364-7339; Jack Chapman, secretary at 364-8059; or Jimmie Allred, treasurer at 364-3365.

County Agent Speaks On 'Recycling' Items

Deaf Smith County Agent Louise Walker, presented a program entitled "Recycle Your Wardrobe," to members of Wyche Extension Homemakers Club recently in the home of Louise Packard.

"To begin your sewing project, have sewing equipment well organized so you will not waste time looking for it," stated Mrs. Walker.

"The most popular type of recycling is patch work. Small scraps may be used together to make attractive, wearable clothing for children and adults," she added.

Mrs. Walker also stated that attractive home decorations can be easily made.

The business meeting was presided over by President

Clara Trowbridge. Virgie Duncan read a poem for the opening exercise, "Worthwhile."

Eleven members answered roll call by telling "what I have recycled or plan to recycle."

A report was given by the seven members attending the Pep meeting in Amarillo recently. Pet Ott have a report on parliamentary procedure: how to make a nomination and how to elect by a nominating committee.

Carol Odom gave the council report. She advised that recipes were to be turned in by May 18 for the council cook book, which is to be sold at the Tasting Bee in September. She also announced that 4-H sewing mothers were needed for the 4-H dress review.

Clara Trowbridge was presented with a birthday cake and members sang the birthday song before adjourning.

Refreshments were served to Clara Trowbridge, Argen Draper, Lorena Ward, Elizabeth Hellman, Louise Axe, Pet Ott, Virgie Duncan, Carol Odom, Beverly Brooke, and hostess Louise Packard.

Spring Fabrics Go Natural

COLLEGE STATION -- Natural and natural-looking fibers are an important trend for spring and summer fashions, along with natural-fiber blends, says Becky Saunders, a clothing specialist.

Mrs. Saunders, on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, says here's how the spring scene in natural-fiber fashions stacks up:

For spring, natural fibers are featured in becoming corals and aquas, along with basic neutrals in khaki, white, black or navy. Soft pastels are a pleasing change from past seasons, along with an increased emphasis on prints.

Fabric structures highlight the versatility of today's natural fibers. Choices range from sheers and lacy cotton knits to practical seersucker blends, silk-like shantung and linen suit weights.

Garment styles for spring and summer are softer and more feminine. Split and fuller skirts fall at mid-knee or just below. Blouses and double-breasted jackets, tiered skirts and long-waisted dresses are among featured details.

Whether you're buying or sewing natural fibers, plan your purchases carefully, Mrs. Saunders recommends.

Start by evaluating last season's wardrobe. First get rid of unwearables and then determine what you need - base these decisions on what voids exist in your wardrobe.

Select the best quality fabric and garment, you can afford.

Don't be misled by bargains or sales. Consider if the item is appealing enough to buy at full price.

In ready-mades, check the inner construction for a symmetrical and attractive outward appearance.

Also, check labels to determine ease and expense of care - along with the performance features of various finishes.

Select flattering styles and fabrics that feel and look terrific. If in doubt about a purchase, don't. Doubts often become disliked, seldom - or never-worn garments.

Here's one way to justify a new purchase: figure the cost per wearing. Just divide the total cost by the number of times you will wear the garment - the more times you wear it and enjoy it, the more times it's justified and the more times you will be glad you selected it.

Ryan Whiffs 11 in Astro Win; Rangers Whip Slumping K.C.

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Kansas City Royals, having lost 16 of 22 meetings with other American League teams and at their lowest point in nine years, hope their latest meeting may turn things around.

Catcher Jerry Grote called a players-only meeting Monday night following the Royals' 9-1 loss to the Texas Rangers. The setback was the Royals' ninth in 11 home games and dropped them 10 games below .500 for the first time since June 1972. The defending American League champs are last in the West Division, 13½ games behind the pacesetter Oakland A's.

"What was said in the meeting was for the players, not for the press," Grote said.

But shortstop U.L. Washington called the session "a pretty good idea. It wasn't yelling — it was to shake us up, get us together. Just calling the meeting was something that needed to be done. The point was to get everybody pulling together. But it was too short a meeting to get it all off our chests. That would have taken a couple of hours."

In the only other AL games, the Cleveland Indians downed the Chicago White Sox 3-1 and the Boston Red Sox edged the Toronto Blue Jays 7-6. Just two games were played in the National League, the Houston Astros blanking the Cincinnati Reds 5-0 and the Atlanta Braves nipping the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 in 10 innings.

Bump Wills rapped four hits and drove in three runs to lead Texas over the Royals, who have lost four games in a row. The Rangers got started with three runs in the third inning off Larry Gura, two coming home on a double by Buddy Bell. Wills singled a run home and scored in the fifth inning and added an RBI single in the sixth and an RBI double in the eighth.

"I understand the frustration they're going through," Wills said of the Royals' slump. "I've been there, being with the Texas Rangers for five years."

Astros 5, Reds 0
Houston Astros catcher Alan Ashby didn't envy Dave Collins.

All Ashby had to do was catch Nolan Ryan's fastballs and breaking pitches in a 5-0 victory Monday over the Cincinnati Reds. Collins had to try to hit them.

"I would hate to be a hitter up there, looking for either the fastball or the breaking ball," said Ashby, who walked to score one of three first-inning runs for the Astros.

Collins, the Reds' right fielder, was twice a strikeout victim as Ryan whiffed 11 batters. It was the 133rd time in his career that Ryan, 2-1, struck out 10 or more in a game.

"What did I think of him?" Collins said. "The same thing I always think about him: awesome."

Ryan said he'd had a better fastball earlier this season. "I didn't have a very good fastball in Pittsburgh or Chicago," Ryan said. "It was a little better tonight."

Ryan's 45th major league shutout didn't come easily. The Reds mounted scoring threats in the first, second, third and sixth innings, but Ryan's fastball bailed him out. Cincinnati stranded 11 baserunners.

The loss dropped the Reds deeper into third place with a 14-14 win-loss record. For Houston, it was a jubilant ending to an unexpectedly successful venture away from the Astrodome.

By taking 10 of 14 road games, the Astros climbed to within one game of the Reds and two games from .500.

The Astros' awakened offense saved them from the culinary disaster that Virdon feared. Art Howe extended his hitting streak to 11 games with two hits Monday, including an RBI single in the first inning. Terry Puhl, 1-for-4 Monday, has a nine-game streak. Cesar Cedeño, 2-for-3 with 1 RBI, batted .323 over his last 18 games. But leading the honor roll was slow-starting Jose Cruz, who drove in 17 runs and belted five homers on the road trip. His two-run blast in the fifth inning Monday off Mike LaCoss, 1-4, provided the Astros' final runs.

Indians 3, White Sox 1
Joe Charboneau, who hit 23 home runs last year as a rookie, slammed his first this season, a tie-breaking two-run shot in the seventh inning. Bert Blyleven picked up his fourth consecutive victory and also posted his fourth complete game, yielding four hits while striking out nine.

Red Sox 7, Blue Jays 6
Gary Allenson drove in five runs with a pair of singles and a double and Rick Miller tied a major league record with four doubles to pace Boston to its fifth straight victory. Miller and Allenson hit consecutive doubles to produce the winning run with two out in the ninth inning. Miller also had a single in a 5-for-5 game. Jorge Bell and Willie Upshaw homered for Toronto, which has dropped four in a row, all to Boston.

Braves 3, Pirates 2
Bruce Benedict drilled a run-scoring single with two out in the 10th inning to give Atlanta the victory. Benedict's hit off Kent Tekulve came after Chris Chambliss singled with one out and Glenn Hubbard drew a two-out walk. It was the ninth consecutive setback for Tekulve, who dropped his last seven decisions a year ago.

Herd Splits Pair In Season Finale

The Hereford Whiteface baseball team wound up season play by dividing a doubleheader here Saturday afternoon with the Coronado Mustangs.

Glenn Phibbs singled in the winning run in the bottom of the eighth inning to give Hereford a 3-2 victory in the opener, but the Mustangs came back to score a 16-4 decision in the second tilt.

Hereford ended the District 4-5A season with a 2-6 win-loss mark in the second half. The season record was 8-16.

The first seven-inning game was knotted at 2-2, and the Herd's Mike Mason held Coronado scoreless in the eighth. Norman Hill walked in the bottom of the frame, went to second on a single, and to third on another walk.

Glenn Phibbs then drove home the winning run with a single to center field. Hereford had taken to 2-0 lead in the fourth frame, but Coronado bounced back with a pair in the top of the seventh.

Mason went the route and gave up seven hits to the Mustangs. Hereford had five hits in the opener, one a double by Steve Bartels.

Coronado banged out 17 hits in the second game and had a nine-run inning in the second frame. Phibbs started for Hereford and was relieved by Matt Collier. Phibbs and Raymond Martinez slapped out doubles for Hereford in the losing cause.

Boys Third At Dumas Rodeo

Hereford High's boys' rodeo team placed third in Tri-State Rodeo competition at Dumas Saturday, but the Hereford team still ranks first in the overall season standings.

With only three rodeos remaining before the Tri-State finals in June, the HHS boys are holding on to first place with 289½ points. The HHS girls are in fifth place in the season standings with 79 points.

At Dumas Saturday, Brett Cunningham took second place in calf roping; Lee Washington placed third in steer wrestling and sixth in calf roping; Mike Butcher was third in bareback bronc riding, and Scott Wilcox captured fourth place in bull riding.

In the girls' division, Rita Ward captured fourth place in pole bending. Others who competed from Hereford were Jenness Self, Brent Self, Tony Wilcox, Robert Esqueda, Cliff McElhaney, Steve and Shawn McConnell, and Mark Urbanczyk.

The team travels to Gruver this weekend.

Mays Wins 800 Duel

Hereford's James Mays overcame high winds and Wayland Baptist's Joel Ngetich at Saturday's Texas Tech All-Comers track meet to win the 800-meter duel between the two brilliant runners.

Ngetich had the fastest collegiate time in the country this season, and he had beaten Mays on three other meetings. But Mays went out and forged an early lead and held off the strong finishing kick of the WBC runner to win in 1:47.33.

Mays' time was the fastest 800-meter ever run in the South Plains area, and the time will rank him within the top three runners in the nation this year.

It was Mays' last appearance on his home track at Texas Tech. He established a stadium and meet record to make his last appearance a memorable one.

BASEBALL
NEW YORK (AP) — Boston's Dwight Evans and Chicago's Rich Dotson were named co-winners of the American League Player of the Week award.

Evans hit .500 last week, going 12-for-24, including a double and three home runs. He scored 10 runs and drove in 10, including two game-winning RBIs. He was 8-for-12 with men on base.

Dotson pitched two complete-game shutouts for the White Sox last week, beating Cleveland 6-0 and Kansas City 3-0. He allowed 10 hits, walked seven and struck out 10 in the two games.

Baseball Strike Still Possibility

NEW YORK (AP) — Doug DeCinces summed up the progress of talks aimed at averting a major-league baseball strike with the same smoothness he displays around third base for the Baltimore Orioles.

"There hasn't been any movement on anything," DeCinces, the major-league player representative, said after a two-hour bargaining session with a federal mediator Monday.

The two primary negotiators — Ray Grebey for the owners and Marvin Miller for the players — were less blunt. But neither was declaring that baseball's second players strike in nine years, threatened for May 29, could be avoided.

Asked if anything could be assumed from the length of the first negotiating session in two weeks, Grebey replied: "You can draw whatever conclusions you like."

Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, said only that the two sides would meet again whenever called by Kenneth Moffett, the federal mediator. Moffett gave no indication when the next session would be held.

Earlier, Grebey had said he was "not optimistic" about averting a walkout, and Miller had asked: "Has anyone among the owners reassessed the need for what they are demanding?"

"We still have a long way to go," said DeCinces.

What the owners want is compensation for certain free agents lost in the re-entry draft, the only issue unresolved last spring when a last-minute compromise averted a strike.

A panel of players and owners was then unable to reach agreement on the issue and, on Feb. 19, the owners unilaterally implemented their compensation plan. Ten days later, the players said they would strike.

Gold Sox Lose, 5-4

By The Associated Press
Jack Upton's two-run homer in the 10th inning powered the Midland Cubs to a 10-8 Texas League baseball victory over the Tulsa Drillers Monday night.

In other Texas League action Shreveport edged Amarillo, 5-4, San Antonio beat Jackson, 10-2, and El Paso slipped past Arkansas, 4-3.

Tom O'Malley had a two-run double as the Shreveport Captains edged the Amarillo Gold Sox, 5-4. Joe Lansford accounted for all four Amarillo runs with two-run homers in the second and sixth innings.

Mark Dempsey, 5-0, was the winning pitcher, the loser was Troy Dickson, 2-3.

Cooney Kayoes Norton In 54-Second Barrage

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — At this rate, we may never find out if Gerry Cooney can take a punch.

Ken Norton landed precious few of them on the undefeated 24-year-old heavyweight before Cooney destroyed him in the first round of their scheduled 10-round heavyweight fight at Madison Square Garden Monday night.

Cooney spent just 54 seconds doing away with Norton, tearing into the former World Boxing Council champion with a savage, devastating shower of punches. The end came with Norton slumped in his own corner as referee Tony Perez waved Cooney away.

It was the 25th consecutive victory for the youngster from Huntington, N.Y., and set the stage for an almost certain WBC title shot against Mike Weaver. And promoter Don King was a ringside letting it be known that Cooney, the No. 1 ranked contender in both boxing divisions, could have a fight with Larry Holmes for the World Boxing Council version of the title.

For Norton, listed as 35 years old, it could mean the end of his career, once and for all.

Ironically, the quick knockout came four years to the night after Norton had devastated Duane Bobick in the same Garden ring. That fight took 58 seconds but Cooney was finished four seconds faster. The end came so quickly that Cooney remembered almost everything that happened in the fight.

"I hit him with a right hand to the jaw, a straight right," he said. "Then I dropped down to the body and caught him inside with two punches."

The lefts to the body left Norton grimacing, crouched in his corner.

"I heard him gasp," Cooney said. That's when he moved in for the kill, drilling Norton with six straight punches to the head.

"I got a little frightened," Cooney said. "I was hitting him and he was unconscious. I was afraid I might hurt him."

As Norton slumped under the storm of blows, referee Perez moved in and signalled the end of the fight. Later, the former champion reflected on what had happened.

"It's self-explanatory," he said. "I did not expect Gerry to come out that quick. He hit harder than I thought he would and quicker than I thought he would. He surprised me with everything he did. I just didn't expect it. He's a very talented fighter."

In the undercard, 20-year-old Marvis Frazier scored his fourth consecutive heavyweight victory, stopping Steve Zouski in the sixth round of their bout and Miguel Montilla stopped Domingo Ayala in the third round of their welterweight bout. In other prelims, Mike Fisher stopped Ron Huston in a light heavyweight fight, Jimmy Clark stopped Kid Samson in a heavyweight bout, Carlton Tillery outpointed Fred Brown and Phillip Brown and Mike Benning fought a six-round heavyweight draw.

★★★★★ ★★★★★ 'Gentleman Gerry' Hailed As New Dominant Force

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — Bring back Shirley Temple. Let's hear those lilting love songs of Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy. Drink a toast to mom, Kate Smith and apple pie.

Heavyweight boxing apparently is heading into a new and fresher era. No more baggadocio and bombast. No snarling and snapping, ugly names, taunts and insults. It's going to be so sweet that one can almost feel honey dripping down the ring posts.

The man who will set the tenor for the new age is a handsome, dimpled hero named Gerry Cooney, 24-year-old son of a former Brooklyn steelworker. His trainer is a pookish little man named Victor Valle who serenades his pupil with a modified rendition of Eddie Cantor's "Sonny Boy." Cooney is managed by two real estate men.

"I don't go around bragging how good I am. I like to go to the gym and work hard," said young Cooney after he demolished veteran Ken Norton in 54 seconds of a scheduled 10-round fight at New York's Madison Square Garden aimed at establishing a challenger for either of the two reigning heavyweight champions — Mike Weaver (WBA) or Larry Holmes (WBC).

If they witnessed the less than a minute of scientific destruction — and it's naive to believe they didn't, live or on cable TV — the two titleholders must have spent a sleepless night.

Gerry Cooney could be boxing's dominant force in the Decade of the Eighties.

He is awesome. Unleashed in the ring, he is a fierce gladiator who now has won every fight as a professional — 25 of them, 22 by knockouts and most, as in the case of Monday night's eyelash-blinker, ended before spectators had settled in their chairs.

He is also a big, good-natured kid — one of four brothers with two sisters — from suburban Huntington, Long Island, who likes to walk the streets of his village and swap pleasantries with the neighbors.

If Hollywood ever wanted to pick a fighter for a movie, it would use the Cooney mold — 6 feet, 5 inches tall, 225½ pounds, darkly good-looking with a cleft chin, dimples when he smiles — which is often — dark hair curling down his neck and brown, flashing eyes.

After his swift triumph over Norton he leapt around the ring, hands held high, waving to his wildly cheering and adoring public. He resembled a tyke who had just sighted a bike under the Christmas tree.

When reporters sought to get him to expand on his 54-second conquest of Norton, he interrupted the trend by saying:

"Norton is a great fighter. I think you should give a hand to Kenny Norton."

They already have dubbed him "Gentleman Gerry Cooney," borrowed from Gentleman Jim Corbett and Gentleman Gene Tunney, and "The Quiet Man" from a John Wayne movie about a boxer who retired to the Irish countryside.

Sitting back of Cooney on the interview dais was Cooney's pretty girl friend, Nancy Griesel, with a huge laced Valentine inscribed: "Gentleman Gerry Cooney... We Love You."

Everybody is going to love Gerry Cooney — the killer bull with the marshmallow heart.

NBA Playoff Series Will Resume Tonight

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Coach Bill Fitch walked from locker to locker, silently dropping a piece of paper in each one.

What the Celtics found in their cubicles after practice Monday were copies of a newspaper report. It was a statement made Sunday by Houston center Moses Malone after the Rockets tied their National Basketball Association championship series with Boston at two games each.

"I don't think they're all that good," it began. "I think we're a better team."

If Fitch was trying to incite his players to prove Malone wrong in tonight's fifth game here, the point was lost on Larry Bird.

"So what?" Boston's outstanding forward said of Malone's remarks.

"Guys just talk all the time. They can say what they want to," said Bird. "Words and talk don't get the job done. Playing basketball and scoring points and rebounding and going out and doing your best get it done."

The Celtics, 62-20 in the regular season, haven't been doing their best, and Bird has not been scoring points. Consequently, they have not done the job many people expected of them in the best-of-seven series with the underdog Rockets, who were 40-42.

Part of the credit for limiting Bird's scoring goes to Houston forward Robert Reid.

"He's done a good job," said Bird, last season's NBA rookie of the year. "There's no doubt about it, I'm not scoring. I'm not shooting the ball well, but everybody just looks at the scoring. I think I'm averaging about 18 (actually, 16) rebounds a game."

"When he keeps me under 10 points, five rebounds and three assists a game, that's when I'll start talking about how great he is."

"That's right," Reid said upon the Rockets' arrival here late Monday afternoon. "You're not going to completely stop Larry Bird."

"The two previous games, Larry said he was concentrating on rebounding. That's great. I hope this game he decides to concentrate on assists."

Bird has made just three of his 11 field goal attempts and scored eight points in each of the last two games, his first consecutive single-figure games of the season. His average of 13.3 points per game for the Houston series is below his 21.2 regular season mark and 25.5 average for his previous 11 playoff games this season.

But he has grabbed 64 rebounds in the four games with the Rockets, including 10 and 12 in his eight-point games Saturday and Sunday. He also had seven assists in Sunday's 91-86 loss in Houston.

After being walloped 94-71 Saturday, Houston slowed down the game Sunday. Boston will be out to set a faster tempo, which, said Celtics guard M.L. Carr, is generated by strong defense.

The NBA finalists, who are tied at 2-2, meet tonight.

YOU AUTO KNOW

By Don Henslee

Q. With inflation the way it is and the cost of everything going up faster than my paycheck, I've decided to start performing some of my own repairs on my 1974 Datsun. I'd like to know the basic tools I need. Remember, I can't afford to spend much.

A. You won't have to. The few basic items you will need for emergency repairs should cost less than $30. As you become more expert, you can add a few tools at a time. Start with jumper cables, flares, duct tape, wire, paper clips, tire inflator, plastic water bag, two or three assorted screw drivers, and adjustable pliers. Never be without these items in your car. They could keep you from being stranded on a dark and lonely road because of some little problem you could have fixed with the right tools.

The Hereford Kiwanis Club Bowling Team was awarded the second place trophy last week for their participation in the Texas-Oklahoma District Kiwanis Bowling Tournament in Dallas on April 25. The locals finished second in a field of 56 teams from throughout Texas and Oklahoma. Left to right are team members Mike Carr, Jimmy Rowton, Jim Simon, Jerry Hendricks and Kenneth Cook. Simon had the high series while Rowton took high game honors during the tournament. Weldon Scarbrough, District Kiwanis sports chairman, of Amarillo, made the presentation.

Indy 500 Lineup Controversial

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The motors at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway may be quieted by a wet track, but the sound of controversy can still be heard in Gasoline Alley.

The track was closed for the second straight day Monday by rain and cold temperatures. However, officials for the May 24 Indy 500 were busy trying to resolve questions about the lineup for qualifying attempts presented by three drivers.

Two of the three Whittington driving brothers, Don and Bill, along with rookie

Phil Caliva spent most of the day hoping to hear that their positions in the lineup for qualifying attempts had been improved.

The question of position becomes vital because it determines whether a driver can try for the pole position or if he even gets an opportunity to make a four-lap qualifying attempt.

Rules for the race guarantee every driver who drew for a qualifying position and took his place in line at the start of Saturday's time trials will have one chance to qualify for the pole of the race. Other drivers could guarantee themselves a chance to be among the 33-car fastest qualifiers by lining up behind those who drew for position.

As soon as there is a break in the line, with no one ready to make a qualifying attempt, all guarantees are over.

The Whittingtons drew for position, but their cars were not in line when qualifications began. Chief steward Tom Binford said that meant they had lost their guarantee to compete for the pole position. Caliva's situation was different. He did not draw for position, but said he had the car on the track and was ready to take his position behind the last driver going for the pole.

"There were about 30 people who can verify we were at the right spot at the right time," Caliva said Monday while awaiting word from race officials. "Someone made a mistake in recording. We didn't file a protest because we didn't know there was a question about our position until we saw it in the newspaper today."

QUOTE/UNQUOTE
What people are saying...
"Women despair because the men with whom they live and work don't take the issue seriously."
— Rev. Constance Parvey of the World Council of Churches, discussing a new study of sexual equality and religion.
"All it shows is that three out of 535 congressmen were formerly athletes."
— Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., denying there is a trend among voters to send ex-Bradley and Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., used to be basketball players; Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., was a football player. (The Magazine)
"I will stay in Rio. If it happens again, it happens again. What can I do?"
— Ronald Biggs, 51, a long-time fugitive from Britain in a $7.3 million train robbery. He returned to Brazil following an abortive kidnapping.
"I wouldn't wear some of those exaggerated performance costumes in real life. They're beautiful, but I'm modest and don't usually wear a bathing suit that revealing."
— Peggy Fleming, ice skater. (ABC-TV)

Press Says Tenth Level of Hell Found at TTU

ED'S NOTE: The medieval poet Dante says there are nine levels of Hell, but some modern-day journalists suggest they found a tenth level at Texas Tech University. Not so, contend angry students and Lubbock residents. They say those reporters stumbled into Paradise, not Purgatory.

Associated Press Writer

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Hell hath no fury, it is said, like a woman scorned. Probably not, but don't rule out Texas Tech University. As a group, officials, professors, students, alumni and supporters rank high on Fury's Top Ten.

Said one Texas Tech official, shamelessly quoting an agitated Hollywood figure: "We are mad as hell and we aren't going to take it any longer!"

The target of this collective fury is the national press, at least those newspapers and news magazines which sent reporters to Lubbock in the wake of the assassination attempt on President Reagan in Washington.

Most left unimpressed with Lubbock and its beloved university, and it is their observations that aroused

Texas tempers.

The investigative scribes came to town in quest of profile material on John Hinckley, the gunman who allegedly wounded Reagan and three others.

They found little of substance.

For some seven years, Hinckley popped in and out of Lubbock, sporadically attending classes at Texas Tech. But he left a meager legacy, mostly as a forgettable face in a crowd of 23,000 students. He ate lots of hamburgers, watched lots of television and read lots about Hitler.

"Hinckley's slide into darkness seemed to pick up speed once he entered Texas Tech...in the fall of 1973," said Newsweek.

"Academically, Texas Tech's reputation is modest, but its 23,000 students take pride in their parties."

That hardly endeared the magazine to Tech fans.

Nor did the Wall Street Journal, which characterized Tech as a "prosaic state-run university on the dusty flatlands of the Texas Panhandle."

Time described Lubbock as "dry and bleak" and confused Tech's nickname, Red Raiders, with the Scots of Highland Park, the Dallas suburb where Hinckley attended high school.

The Philadelphia Inquirer spoke of "the dust storms that plague the West Texas flatlands" and, say its critics, misquoted libelously and liberally from named and unnamed sources.

But most of the outrage was directed at the much maligned Washington Post, which, the students suggested, only flirted with the truth.

Said the Post, in its most controversial segment:

"A penchant for guns hardly strikes anyone as ominous in free-wheeling Lubbock, where some university students carry guns to class and the pistol-packing frontier Texas tradition runs deep and long."

That mightily offended the Lubbock citizenry, Tech's educational community and the fiercest campus newspaper, the University Daily.

They responded with a flurry of angry letters to editors at the offending publications, to the hometown Lubbock Avalanche-Journal and within the pages of the University Daily.

No one, least of all the students, would deny that guns in Texas are uncommon, or that many youngsters enjoy a fast friendship with Black Jack and Adolph Coors.

But, they grumbled, seldom do they tote guns or grape to class.

Jumping into the spirit of things, students took up arms in the form of water pistols and hauled the weapons and assorted beverage bottles into class.

They appeared in T-shirts depicting an armed Red Raider, a Jack Daniels bottle and a message: "Nowhere else but Texas Tech."

A second set of T-shirts bore the inscription "Texas Tech...show your guns." A pistol appeared to protrude from the waistband.

With tongue in cheek, collegiate journalist Kippie Hopper began a front page article thusly:

"In the dry and bleak prairie dog capital of the world thrives the Tech campus, where hell-raising students fight the wind and the dust with a notched six-shooter in one hand and a Jack Daniel's bottle in the other."

And letters poured forth in a mighty rush.

In one such, directed to the Post and printed in the University Daily, a lady named Jacquelyn Ormand suggested that "eager" reporters, "anxious to reveal the reason for Hinckley's deviant behavior" exploited the city and the university as a "scapegoat."

Tony Downey, a Tech student, observed:

"...Every geographical area of the country has its own mystique. In West Texas the legends of the six gun and hanging rope are as much a part of the local lore as the Minutemen are to New England or the Forty-Niners are to California."

"However, we seldom lynch anybody anymore. (In the case of certain irresponsible Eastern journalists who took a cheap shot at all West Texans by implying John Hinckley's dementia was nourished solely by his presence here, we might make an exception.)"

Declared Chino Chapa, editor of the Daily:

"The sensationalized, squalid stereotyping of West Texas, Lubbock and Tech has reached an all-time low. As almost any literate individual in the nation knows by now, Tech students walk into classrooms, dust themselves and their cowboy hats, take a swig of whiskey, sharpen their pencils by shooting the tips with the gun they carry and commence taking notes in one of our modest courses."

Chapa said "a horde of letters from a bunch of hacked off folks tends to do wonders."

On April 30, one month to the day after the shootings, the Washington Post published a corrective. It said in part:

"An article in the April 5 editions of the Washington Post presented an inaccurate depiction of Texas Tech University and the city in which the university is located, Lubbock. Texas Tech students do not carry guns to class, as the article stated, and the city itself is a quiet town with orderly and law-abiding citizens. There is no 'pistol-packing' tradition in Lubbock, as the article incorrectly implied."

Gangs on Decline, But Still Feared

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A half-dozen Mexican-American youths squat or stand under a shade tree, drinking from quarts of beer and shouting to friends who pass by. They say they are part of a social club, others say they are a street gang with criminal intent.

They see themselves as kings of all they survey. The youths are members of the Thunderbirds, who "run" their impoverished neighborhood.

The Thunderbirds, who range from early teens to the 30s, say their organization is a "social club," a group of friends looking for a good time and keeping order in their South Side barrio. The police see them as troublemakers — including some good kids who have fallen in with the wrong crowd and now are responsible for drug trafficking, theft and murder.

All agree the heyday of street gangs has passed. With roots in the Great Depression era, gangs reached their peak in the 1950s, when war between the gangs was common and police were kept busy investigating gang-related crimes.

Today, the size of the gangs has decreased and there are fewer "rumbles" — fights between rival gangs. But police who work in the barrios still dread summer, when the gang members are out of school and back on the street.

Asked about the coming summer, Patrolman Tony Munoz says matter-of-factly, "They're going to kill somebody."

"Summers are the most difficult time," agreed Patrolman Romero Gonzalez. "It's warm. Tempers flare a lot easier."

"As long as they're occupied and they're all in school, there's no problem," he said. "But they get a little fired up on booze or paint (sniffing) and they decide to mess each other up."

The Thunderbirds are one of several gangs under an umbrella group called Chicanos in Action or CIA. Also in the alliance are the Flaming Angels and the Blue Diamonds.

Their common enemies are the Mestizos, who occupy a separate area of the South Side neighborhood.

The South Side — a sprawling area of crumbling tenements and housing projects along the Mexican border — is the birthplace of gangs in El Paso.

Police say similar gangs of Mexican-Americans and Anglos have formed in other parts of the city in recent years because public housing has moved much of the Mexican-American population through the city. The dispersal is one cause of the declines of the gangs since the late 1950s, Munoz said.

"They broke up the gangs," he said. "The tough gangs of yesteryear are dying down. Neighborhood control has died completely. The unity among them has died. That's what kept them going."

A Thunderbird who would identify himself only with the nickname of Simasipa said, "Our people used to have a unity, man, but they're taking that away. They're destroying our neighborhood."

"Look over there, that's commercial property," said short, goateed youth. "A lot of people used to live right there. They moved them all out."

Some of the violence that marked the activities of the old gangs has been deterred by police storefront operations opened in gang neighborhoods, said Mayor Tom Westfall.

"I'm not saying it's correct because we still have some killings down there," Westfall said. "I don't think you're ever going to completely solve the problems with young gangs in a large city, but I think it's much better than it was."

But some of the older gang members believe the rivalry between the gangs is more dangerous now than it was during the 1950s.

"In the old days, they used knives, clubs and chains," said 32-year-old Bobby Mendez. "Now, they use guns."

Members are quick to show scars they suffered in the rumbles — red streaks from knife wounds, puckered holes that once were gunshot wounds.

"The police ain't going to do nothing," said a Thunderbird called El Negro. "If we get hit, we take care of it ourselves. We're nice most of the time, you know, but we can be tough, too."

Halbouty: Answer to Energy Crisis—Production, Production, Production

HOUSTON (AP) — The man who headed President Reagan's energy transition team says the answer to alleviating the nation's energy problem is "production, production, production."

"And when I refer to 'produce more and more,' I mean of all possible sources of energy, not just petroleum," said Michel T. Halbouty.

The Houston geologist, consultant and independent oil operator said he does not intend to minimize the importance of conservation measures.

"They are important and must be made a vital part of the whole effect, but production is the main key to supply our energy needs," he said.

"The basic guideline in establishing effective conservation programs should be to rely as much as possible on voluntary actions by the private sector, and to keep mandates to a minimum."

Halbouty said no mechanism better than the free market has yet been devised to order the use of resources over a period of time.

"I believe competitive market pricing will be the chief reliance for encouraging conservation and the effective use of oil and gas, as well as other fuels," he said.

"President Reagan's action to decontrol oil prices was the single greatest step for promotion of energy conservation ever taken in the United States."

Market pricing, he added, is the most effective way to bring about energy conservation throughout the economic system.

"It stimulates capital investments in energy-saving applications and directs available supplies of energy to the uses that have the highest value," he said.

"The keystone of this country's energy policy must be the use of the market system to decide who produces what, where and for whom. To substitute instead the fads of government bureaucrats is to condemn us to economic waste on a grand scale."

Halbouty said that in the world of changing tastes, technologies, and resource discoveries "the fanciful goals of so many barrels per day of this or that in such and such a year are the stuff of dreams, not reality."

"We do not know today which energy sources will prove cheapest or cleanest in 1995 but we do know how to find out. Let the producers compete in a free and open market and let the consumers choose the winners."

Halbouty said all unnecessary restraints which increase dependence on imports must be eliminated.

"Oil and gas policies should be aimed toward the best possible energy resource allocations," he said.

"It is fiscally unwise to spend $35 to import a barrel of oil if the same barrel of oil, or its equivalent in natural gas, can be produced and sold domestically for the same price. Every effort should be made to produce domestic energy. In that manner, American dollars remain in America and strengthen our entire economy."

During a recent speech marking the 20th anniversary of Chapman Engineers Inc., Halbouty said the United States is the world leader in energy technology and "it is time to put this technology to work to produce energy from other sources."

"We are 25 to 30 years late in applying our know-how to coal liquefaction, gasification, oil from shale, and tertiary resources," he said.

"This delay has not been because of lack of desires but from the myriad of regulations, controls, price squeezing and restraints imposed on our energy industrial complex by Washington."

Halbouty said former President Carter made a mistake by establishing the Synthetic Fuels Corp.

"A quasi-governmental company of this type is not needed and only becomes a hindrance to sound growth and progress," he said.

"The free market system should apply to synthetics as it should to all energy production. A proper tax structure and the removal of unnecessary and abusive environmental controls will generate enough interest with companies to develop a synthetic fuel industry without subsidies and handouts as would be provided by the Synthetic Fuel Corp."

Halbouty said the cost of producing from a new energy resource is always high as production is initiated but rapidly declines when experience and technology are acquired.

"Our energy sources have increased in number because since the 1973 oil embargo we have had to look for others than those which were in use," he said.

"We must develop and produce from those sources which we have in our energy portfolio, many of which have been brushed aside for decades because of governmental restraints and burdens."

Tierra del Fuego, meaning "Land of Fire," owes its name to Ferdinand Magellan. When the Portuguese circumnavigator discovered the archipelago at South America's southern tip in 1520, he named it after the Indian signal fires that dotted its coasts.
