Due to Sparsity of Rainfall

'Keeping Powder Dry' is No Problem

By JIM STEIERT
Managing Editor

Since mid-1980 local farmers have had to worry little about "keeping their powder dry."

The sparsity of rainfall proved a real problem for local agriculture during the crop growing season of 1980 and with rainfall at least in the predictions for today, local agriculturalists have to be hoping that precipitation is a bit more abundant this year.

Forecasters were giving the area a 20 percent chance of rainfall today, and although those odds are short, they beat no chance at all in the opinion of many producers here.

The condition of the county's wheat crop is varied at this time, according to John Fuston, Deaf Smith County ASCS executive director, although subsoil moisture for the wheat crop is growing short in all areas.

"Our wheat that was planted behind wheat last year is not in real bad shape, but it's not in real good shape either. Wheat on summer-fallowed land still looks good. The light snows and rains we had in the final months of 1980 left moisture that is down six or eight inches, and that's what the wheat is living on. We don't have a lot of deep moisture," stated Fuston.

Good supplies of subsoil moisture can carry a dryland wheat crop through prolonged dry periods as the crop roots down and reaches into the moisture storehouse, but that reservoir is currently in need of replenishing.

Precipitation for 1980 fell well below the normal amount expected here, according to Fuston.

Although it's difficult to tell what the weather will hold in store for the county in the way of moisture in 1981, dry spells usually run in patterns and local farmers may find they won't have to worry about their powder growing overly damp this year either.

"Most people would likely say our normal rainfall is about 18 inches, but I think we could say 20 inches isn't too far from wrong. If we say we have a normal rainfall total of 20 inches annually, we were seven or eight inches below normal in 1980," stated Fuston.

That shortfall was evident in the yields of crops such as corn and vegetables during 1980 as the amount of produce hauled from local fields was down significantly--mostly due to heat and lack of moisture.

Fuston pointed out that the new year isn't necessarily off to a drouthy start, however.

"Our winter months are traditionally rather dry, other than some snow. We weren't really any drier than normal during the final couple of months of 1980. May and June are our big months of rainfall, along with August and September," he explained.

"We're in need of some rain here now to replenish the subsoil moisture level. We still have a good stand of wheat in most places and it is growing. All we need is some additional moisture and we'll be in pretty good shape," Fuston commented.

Light rain was forecast for most of Texas today as the day dawned with overcast conditions prevailing.

ANNUAL RAINFALL REPORT

Carter Still Hoping For Hostage Settlement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although terming prospects of a breakthrough "very small," the Carter administration says it is still possible to reach a settlement on freeing the American hostages in Iran before President-elect Ronald Reagan takes office.

Negotiations have intensified in the past two days with an exchange of messages between Washington and Tehran and Wednesday night's hastily arranged departure of Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher for Algeria.

Christopher, the chief American negotiator, was to meet with Algerian Foreign Minister Mohammed Benyahia in Algiers today to elaborate on a U.S. message sent to Iran Tuesday night in response to Iranian questions about the American position.

Standing in sub-freezing temperatures at Andrews Air Force Base before setting out for Algiers for the third time in two months, Christopher departed from the usual State Department position of refusing to characterize prospects for a settlement.

"Nothing would please me more than to say we are on the verge of an imminent breakthrough," he told reporters. "I can't conscientiously say that."

"But I can say that the process is continuing and the distance between us, which is still measured in very large numbers, seems to be narrowing somewhat. I emphasize seems to be."

Only a few hours before, State Department spokesman John Trantner said the administration was "neither more optimistic nor pessimistic" about a settlement.

But he added: "I don't think we would be sitting here working on transmitting messages through the Algerians to Iran if we didn't think it was possible in this administration. We certainly do think it is possible. We always have thought it was possible."

Christopher conceded that "serious problems remain. Communications are difficult. Time is running out."

"But no one in my position could rest well unless he went to the limit of his personal endurance in trying to find a solution," he said.

A senior American official said earlier that prospects for the breakthrough before Reagan's inauguration Jan. 20 are "very small indeed."

The official, who asked not to be identified, also elaborated on the exchange of notes Tuesday between the United States and Iran. He said some officials inferred from the Iranian message a softening of Iran's terms for ending the crisis but added that no such change was explicit in the communication.

Although Christopher did not explain the basis for saying a solution to the crisis is closer, other sources had said Tuesday night the United States and Iran had reached agreement on some "basic principles." They said Iran also seemed prepared to revise its demand for $24 billion in financial guarantees as its price for freeing the hostages.

Where's Moisture Headed?

John Fuston, Deaf Smith County ASCS executive director shows off a graph on rainfall trends in Deaf Smith County dating from the 1800's to the present. The chart currently shows the county to be in a down trend in precipitation, following a brief uptrend in 1977-78. The mid-chart area reflects 20-year cycles of peak precipitation periods. Although the area was due for another peak in moisture conditions in 1980, according to the 20-year cycle, the area encountered sub-normal precipitation instead. With some luck and cooperation from the elements, the precipitation graph may show a climb for 1981. (Brand photo by Mauri Montgomery)

Reagan Seeks More Budget Cut Ideas

Two Arrested On Theft Charges

Police arrested two men on a charge of theft yesterday. Ruben Dominguez, 210 Higgins, and Randy Whitaker, 205 W. 7th, age 21, were arrested for theft in charges relating to an October burglary of Stan Knox Music. Police are looking for a possible runaway girl who didn't return from school yesterday.

Sandra Silerio, 108 Hereford Calle, was reported missing by her parents at about 6 p.m.

When last seen, Silerio, a slender long-haired blond, was wearing a white shirt, yellow skirt, blue jean jacket and brown sandals.

Alicia Hernandez, 910 Schley, told police that someone removed coins and personal items valued at $100 from her car trunk.

Wilma Johnson, 1024 S. Main, reported the theft of a CB radio from her car. The radio, valued at $80, was taken from the car parked on South 25 Mile Avenue.

Police issued 8 traffic citations Wednesday.

the president-elect found his first comprehensive briefing by his new economic advisers "very interesting."

"He wanted more information from us and instructed us to come back with alternatives for him, which we will be doing over the next several weeks," Regan said.

David Stockman, Reagan's budget director-designate, said the economic prospects are "far worse today than we thought even in October." He said the job of bringing federal spending under control "is going to be even greater than we expected."

Stockman declined to reveal what plans are being considered but said there would be a "comprehensive and sweeping program" that included tax cuts, reductions in federal spending in the fiscal 1981 budget and "regulatory changes of major scope to remove some of the burden from the economy."

He added that the Reagan administration is still committed to a 2 percent spending cut in fiscal 1981 and to cutting taxes 30 percent over the next three years.

Regan hosted a dinner for incoming Cabinet officials Wednesday night. Earlier in the day, he filled the last vacant department job by selecting Terrel Bell, a former U.S. commissioner for education, to be secretary of the Department of Education.

In a trip to Capitol Hill to promote good relations with Democratic senators, Regan also announced he had asked Mike Mansfield, the former Senate Democratic leader from Montana, to remain as U.S. ambassador to Japan. Mansfield accepted immediately, Regan said.

Foreman Remaining Controversial; Block Vows Pro-Farm Attitude

WASHINGTON (AP) — Carol Tucker Foreman, who some critics charge personifies a desertion of farmers by the Agriculture Department in favor of consumers, is remaining controversial to the end of her days in office.

Ms. Foreman, who was named assistant secretary of agriculture for food and consumer services four years ago, was unveiling a new 32-page government booklet today called "Ideas for Better Eating."

About 100,000 copies have been printed at an estimated cost of $26,600, officials said.

The booklet includes "menu suggestions and recipes to help Americans make better use of the dietary guidelines" published by the government a year ago.

Those guidelines, although not recommending a ban on any particular food item, stirred controversies over their validity, including conflicts among some experts over the relationship between heart disease and cholesterol.

Questions also have been raised in Congress and elsewhere about whether the government should recommend what people should eat.

At Tuesday's Senate Agriculture Committee hearing on John R. Block's nomination to be agriculture secretary, Block said he thought people "are pretty good at figuring out what to eat and what they should eat for themselves" so long as poisonous foods are kept off the market.

Block also triggered laughter when he mentioned hogs in the same context of human eating habits.

"You can provide protein and grain to a hog and he'll balance his ration," Block observed. "He'll eat about the right amount of protein to go along with the grain. He won't overeat on the grain. And people surely are as smart as a hog."

Jayroe will serve as liaison member from the executive committee to membership and public relations committees.

Jayroe served as vice-president for the region during 1980, and he will be installed as a national director for the TAR in Las Vegas at the end of this month.

Mall Has New Landlords

Hereford's Sugarland Mall has new landlords, it was learned here yesterday after legal documents were filed with the county clerk's office.

According to the general warranty deed, the new owners of the property are Pak Fan Siu and Edward C.M. Wong of Carson, Calif. Previous owner was the Sugarland Company, a Dallas-based corporation.

Mel Robinson, who operates Sugarland Drug and is current president of Sugarland Mall Association, said Wednesday that merchants were aware of the transfer of ownership of the property but "we have had no

Man Shakes Up Market

NEW YORK (AP) — His critics call him a "clown" and a "Wizard of Oz type," but few people can shake up the stock market the way Joseph E. Granville can. If there was any doubt about that, it was removed on Wednesday, after the Holly Hill, Fla., investment adviser recommended in his telephone "early warning service" that subscribers dump all the stocks they owned. As the market opened, it was inundated with sell orders that forced trading delays in more than 100 stocks. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had soared past the 1,000 level Tuesday to its highest closing level in more than four years, abruptly turned around and plummeted.

By mid-afternoon Wednesday, the Dow was down more than 30 points. Even after a modest rally before the close, the Dow still showed a 23.80-point loss, to 980.99, wiping out a large portion of the nearly 41-point gain it had built up in the first three trading days of 1981.

Trading volume reached record levels of 92.89 million shares at the New York Stock Exchange, eclipsing the previous high of 84.08 million last Nov. 5, and 15.76 million shares at the American Stock Exchange.

Granville was not shy about taking responsibility for the drop. Reached by The Associated Press late Wednesday, he said it could be "totally traced" to him.

Hours before, the legions of investors and stockbrokers who make up his avid following — the "Granville groups," as one Wall Street refers to them — had spread the word through the investment world.

He had recommended to his telephone subscribers that they sell out all their stock holdings, and even go short — sell stock borrowed from brokers, in hopes of profiting from price declines — on those stocks that had gained the most ground in recent months. Many people clearly followed his advice.

By any standard of the established order on Wall Street, Granville is a maverick. His weekly market letter, which at last report had some 11,000 readers at a price of $250 a year, is regularly peppered with jibes at orthodox economists and money managers.

They are, in his description, "bagholders" — losers in the investment game. For most of the year, Granville takes his message on the road in "shows," usually sponsored by local brokers, across the country and abroad. Between now and the end of February, he has dates in such diverse places as Garden Grove, Calif.; Dayton, Ohio; and Vancouver, British Columbia.

In these appearances, Granville fills his presentations with exotic showmanship — jokes, ringing bells, puppets, plus a musical composition of his own called "The Bagholder Blues."

Because of this, even one Wall Street analyst who professes to admire some of Granville's work in analyzing the market describes him as "a snake-oil salesman. He can mesmerize an audience like an evangelist."

Many Wall Streeters also bridle at his practice of suddenly shifting opinions on the market outlook. When he helped touch off a 30.72-point jump in the Dow Jones industrials last April 22 with a buy recommendation to his "early warning" subscribers, critics point out, those who received only his regular letter still had his previous negative views.

At present, they add, the most recent issue of the letter, dated Jan. 3, is emphatically bullish. "Straight up," it is titled. It advises new subscribers to "do some aggressive new buying. The market is signaling a sharp upswing ahead."

More is likely to be heard from his detractors in the days ahead, given the stunning impact his sell message had. But in the view of one veteran Wall Street analyst, Robert Stovall at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc.: "It's not Joe's fault that one guy can have such a remarkable impact on the market. It's the gullibility of a lot of investors who want simple answers to complicated questions."

Whether popular or not, the publicity-conscious Granville was obviously delighted with all the attention he was getting from reporters Wednesday.

The sell recommendation, he declared, would be proven correct within months. "Just watch how much more the market is going to go down over the next four to six weeks," he said.

Selection of Watt May Be Most Controversial

WASHINGTON (AP) — Not since Richard Nixon nominated Walter Hickel in 1969 has the selection of an interior secretary drawn as much fire as the man picked by Ronald Reagan.

Indeed, with the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee opening two days of hearings on the appointment, conservative Denver attorney James G. Watt may prove to be the most controversial of all Reagan's Cabinet choices.

Since Watt's selection was announced a month ago, many of the country's largest conservation groups — including the Audubon Society, the Sierra Club, Friends of the Earth and the Wilderness Society — have been trying to rally enough support in the Senate to block the nomination.

Environmental groups are trying to paint Watt as a man whose entire career makes him unsuited to act as chief custodian for the 700 million acres of parks, wilderness areas and other public land the Interior Department manages.

Watt, however, says he is an environmentalist who, like Ronald Reagan, is also worried about the country's energy needs. He says his fight has been against environmental extremists who want to halt all development.

Conservation groups focus their criticism on Watt's role the past three years as head and chief legal officer of Mountain States Legal Foundation. The 10-attorney foundation has specialized in fighting a variety of environmental regulations proposed by the Interior Department and other government agencies.

Conservation groups charge that the foundation's board of directors and chief contributors read like a Who's Who of Western mining, oil, timber and real estate interests.

They contend that under Watt's leadership, the foundation became one of the foremost advocacy groups for private exploitation of public lands.

Watt, who served six years in the Interior Department during the Nixon and Ford administrations, is no stranger to controversy.

His nomination as a member of the Federal Power Commission in 1975 ran into brief trouble when it was disclosed that while he was at the Interior Department he had awarded two consulting contracts totaling $60,140 to a close friend without competitive bids.

At the power commission, he was called on the carpet in 1977 by a House oversight committee whose members said Watt had put undue pressure on commission staffers who opposed him.

National Briefs

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — What is billed as the nation's first program to treat cancer patients with a homemade supply of interferon has been launched at Lansing's Sparrow Hospital.

Hospital President Karl Neumann called the plan to supplement the treatment of up to 50 patients with interferon "one of the most exciting programs we have undertaken."

Fewer than 20 hospitals and research programs around the nation use interferon experimentally, he said. Scientists believe the substance may stop cancer cells from growing without affecting healthy cells.

ATLANTA (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted four officials of subcontracting companies on charges of conspiring to take almost $1 million in an alleged kickback and fraud scheme in connection with construction at Atlanta's new airport terminal.

The 11-count indictment was returned Tuesday against officials of some companies that did work for Dobbs-Paschal Midfield Corp. on the $240 million concessions contract for the terminal.

The indictment, resulting from an FBI investigation prompted by the company, said the defendants agreed to add false names to the work rolls and to add a phony 10 percent cleanup charge to bills submitted to Dobbs-Paschal.

ATLANTA (AP) — An Ohio company which allegedly promised to donate a some proceeds from the sales of Martin Luther King Jr. busts to the King Center for Social Change is being sued for $1 million by Coretta Scott King.

In addition to seeking damages, the suit seeks to halt the sale of the $30 busts by American Heritage Products. It contends Mrs. King never gave the company or B&S Sales Inc. permission to use the center's name for advertising purposes and contends no contributions were received.

Attorney James Ruppert said about 200 plastic busts were sold and that the company doesn't plan to sell any more.

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP) — Authorities are trying to determine the cause of an accident that killed a 30-year crane operator in Los Angeles Harbor.

Two 100-foot-high cranes were pulling at an 18-ton rudder that had been cut off a gutted Navy cruiser when the accident occurred Wednesday, authorities said. The operator of the second crane said the hook on an I-beam used to suspend the rudder between the two cranes broke off and the rudder swung into the man's rig, toppling it into the water.

Killed was John Leon Branstetter, 62, of Torrance, a crane operator with the National Metal and Steel Co.

Automobile Insurance In Texas too Much?

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A national consumer group says Texans might be paying $222.3 million a year too much for their automobile insurance.

The estimate came Wednesday from the Washington-based National Consumer Organization, whose president, Robert Hunter, was to testify today before the State Insurance Board.

The board is conducting hearings on the extent to which it should apply insurance company investment profits toward holding down premiums charged for auto, home and other kinds of property and casualty insurance.

NICO said in a statement that if Texas rates did recognize, dollar-for-dollar, the insurers' investment income, they would total as much as $222.3 million a year less.

Auto premiums in Texas total more than $1 billion a year.

"We have received hundreds of letters from Texas consumers. They are tired of paying out a huge portion of their income for insurance, while the companies are making such huge profits," Hunter said in a statement.

In September, the board denied an 18 percent auto rate increase recommended by its staff because of record insurance company profits from investing policyholder premiums.

Joe Eddins, vice-president and actuary of Maryland Casualty, suggested that insurers — taken as a group — would not make a profit if it were not for investments.

He presented the results of a study made by A.M. Best Co. that showed stockholder-owned insurers operating in Texas lost $3.1 billion between 1970 and 1979 from writing insurance but made $25.4 billion, before taxes, from investments. The Best study showed underwriting losses in six of the 10 years but investment losses in only two.

Sam Winters, attorney for the Texas Insurance Advisory Association, an organization of property insurers, predicted "disastrous" results from "tinkering" with investment income.

He said that just as the board has never been able to predict underwriting losses accurately, neither would it be able to predict investment income.

Missing 14-Year-Old Added to List of Cases

ATLANTA (AP) — The case of a missing 14-year-old black child has been officially added to the cases of 15 other missing and murdered children being investigated by a special police task force, Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown said today.

Lubie "Chuck" Geter was reported missing Sunday, one day after his brother dropped him at a shopping center where he planned to sell car deodorizers, authorities said.

The case originally was turned over to the Atlanta police missing persons' bureau rather than the missing children's task force, but Brown said the task force officially entered the case late Tuesday.

The commissioner cautioned reporters at a news conference, however, that "we should not assume there is a relationship between this case and other cases."

Brown defended the decision not to turn the case over to the task force earlier. He said about 1,700 people are reported missing in Atlanta each year, and 80 percent of them are located within the first 24 hours.

Officials said Geter fit the description of the other missing and slain children being investigated by the task force. All were black and between the ages of 7 and 15.

Eleven of the children have turned up dead during the past 18 months. Four others remain missing.

Hunt Billionaires Buying Canadian Mineral Properties

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — Money from the billionaire Hunt brothers of Texas is gushing into Western Canada.

Nelson Bunker, William and Lamar Hunt invested $93 million in Western Canadian mineral properties in a buying binge this week and New York bankers say the brothers have been given the go-ahead to purchase holdings in "at least a half a dozen mining ventures."

This week's buying involved three Western Canadian mining concerns, but a spokesman for Hunt Energy Corp. of Dallas would not confirm or deny that other approved acquisitions also involve Canadian properties.

The Vancouver-based Inver group said it sold royalty interests in two of its mining properties Tuesday to Procan Exploration Co., the Hunt brothers' Calgary-based partnership.

The same day, Cadillac Explorations Ltd. of Calgary said it sold Procan a 40 percent royalty interest in some of its mining claims and leases for $55 million.

The purchases came one day after the Hunts bought for $35 million a 50 percent royalty interest in certain mining claims and leases in the Northwest Territories owned by Terra Mining and Exploration Co.

A royalty interest is a percentage of net profit, as opposed to a working interest which gives the owner the right to put the mine into production.

Terra operates three high-grade silver mines in the Camsell River district near Great Bear Lake, 250 miles northwest of Yellowknife. The Silver Bear Mine and the North Mine (parallel vein systems about 440 yards apart) are wholly owned, while Norex Mine, about seven miles east, is 50 percent owned by Terra.

Alan Savage, president of Inver Resources, said Procan agreed to provide $1.5 million for exploration and development required at its Kelly Creek copper and silver property near Terrace in northwest British Columbia.

The Kelly Creek property is a joint venture between Inver Resources and Cathedral Minerals Ltd., which in turn is controlled by Inver.

Procan has also spent $1.75 million on a royalty interest in Imperial Metals and Power. Under the agreement, Imperial will core drill its Groundhog coalfield licenses to establish whether mineable reserves of thermal coal exist.

Before the Hunts embarked on their spending spree, they needed to get permission from Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York and First National Bank in Dallas under the terms of a $1.1 billion refinancing program to bail the brothers out of a disastrous foray into the silver market last year.

The Hunt brothers bought considerable amounts of silver in 1979, including a contract to buy 19 million ounces at $35 an ounce. But when the speculative market began to crumble, the Hunts failed to meet the margin calls.

President Reagan, Physically Fit

Inevitably, questions will persist about the physical health of a 69-year-old president.

He looks great, he walks young and he sounds keenly alert. But that's no longer sufficient for the X-ray eyes of the news media.

Mr. Reagan's personal physician would like to cite professional ethics and decline to discuss the well-being of his patient, but the new fashion of stripping naked all public officials would never allow that.

So Dr. John Reynolds has told all there is to tell: Our new president has hay fever, controls it with allergy shots.

He has some hearing loss in his right ear.

He has a chronically painful thumb on his right hand.

He underwent surgery for prostate stones in 1966; no recurrence.

He fell from a horse and broke his leg in 1949; healed.

He had a sore jaw in 1977; responded to cortisone; no problem since.

And that's it. Mr. Reagan endured the stress of the campaign with no problems. He did not even catch cold as most run-down campaigners do. He exercises every day; a form of calisthenics.

These revelations are certain to invite a deluge of suggestions concerning his health. He may even get one from me about that sore thumb.

Now — anybody 69 with a full head of brown hair can't be all good! But the next four years will take care of that.

On a related subject: Political cartoonists, attention. On President Reagan's Inauguration Day, why don't you publish a cartoon of the White House with a sign on the front lawn reading, "LIFEGUARD ON DUTY?"

He once was one, you know. He has promised that his first concern will be the rescue of our nation's economy. It needs it.

The Index of Leading Indicators improved only fractionally last month. Our dollars continue to shrink. Skyrocketing interest rates choke off home construction and car buying.

Permits for future construction declined this past month.

Contracts and orders for new plants and equipment, adjusted for inflation, are down.

January 20 we will have a new LIFEGUARD ON DUTY, for better or worse.

Three years hence he can claim credit for any turnaround in our economy — or he must take the blame for any failure.

This is going to sound isolationist; so be it.

Every candidate for as long as I can remember who has been elected president of the United States has almost immediately begun to imagine himself President of the World.

For this reason it was mighty reassuring to hear Mr. Reagan re-promise that his first priority would be the homefront.

Every Communist in the world could drop dead tomorrow and we could still drown in red ink. We've a LIFEGUARD ON DUTY — maybe just in the nick of time.

Committee Says State's Money is Being Wasted

By KEN HERMAN Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State agencies have acquired unwanted, money-wasting equipment because of problems in the commission that buys goods for state use, according to a House committee report.

The House General Investigating Committee issued an 11-page report Wednesday saying the Purchasing and General Services Commission has wasted state money when it tried to get a bargain.

Witnesses testified the commission made purchases on a bottom-line basis — the low bid was accepted even if it meant more money in the long run.

"We've had some real serious waste of funds and time," said Rep. Richard Slack, D-Pecos, committee chairman.

The report on the purchasing commission was one of two issued Wednesday by the committee. A separate report on San Antonio College called for audits of all junior colleges.

Committee members had to go behind closed doors to gather testimony about the purchasing problems. Officials from several agencies testified secretly because they feared retribution from the purchasing commission, according to the report.

Such retribution could take the form of "delayed or restrictive purchasing practices," the report said.

Lack of communication between the commission and agencies led to the commission's ignoring of specific equipment requests. Agencies wanting equipment that went with existing equipment got stuck with non-compatible supplies, the report said.

Slack and Jim Vollers, committee counsel, said it was impossible to determine how much state money was wasted.

Commission policies on renting office space also were criticized in the report. The commission, again ignoring agency requests, approved leasing office space "under circumstances wherein the cost of moving, reprinting of stationery, transferring communication equipment, and down-time to an existing state agency far exceeded any savings realized by a lower" lease cost.

"Rather than saving the state money by accepting the low bid, the ultimate cost to the state was greater," the report said.

Many of the problems cited in the report were also mentioned in a special audit done by the governor's office, which the commission already is implementing.

The governor's office also faulted the commission for unresponsiveness to state agency needs and called for some watering down of the competitive bidding system.

The report also cited complaints about the commission's handling of repairs to aircraft — "handled by the commission solely upon the basis of cost without consideration of previous performance."

The committee's only firm recommendation was for a committee to advise on the purchase of computers.

Slack said the investigation of SAC found "slovenly" inventory practices that led to missing equipment.

The committee recommended legislation requiring all junior colleges to appoint auditors to do annual audits. The only audits now required are "head counts" done by the state auditor to figure out how much state money the school gets.

Committee members also called for an amendment to the Texas Education Code requiring junior colleges to go through bidding procedures now mandatory at other schools.

Slack said there were "flagrant abuses" in purchasing at SAC.

Ann Landers

Rejected by Therapist

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a female, age 18, who started using drugs when I was 12 and engaged in sexual activities when I was 13. That isn't my problem. I have been straight for six months and am determined to stay that way.

For the last year I have been in a drug abuse program. I have also been seeing a private therapist and doing well. Six months ago I went a little nuts and shot myself in a suicide attempt. I was extremely self-destructive and clung to my therapist as a lifeline.

After I regained consciousness I tried to reach my therapist, but she refused to speak to me. I am deeply hurt by this rejection, and have been depressed ever since.

I still have a long way to go before I can face the world on my own, and I know I will never succeed unless I get back into therapy. But I find it hard to trust a therapist, since the one I did so well with turned her back on me and won't tell me why. I need your advice on how to pick up the pieces.--No Name In Motor City

DEAR MOTOR CITY: Accept the fact that your therapist has written you off. Move forward and don't look back or waste time and energy in search of "answers." Check with friends or family members who are in treatment. Get the names of therapists whose patients think well of them. Contact the county medical society and your own physician for names. Check the mental health facilities in your city.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was married to a wonderful man for 20 years. He was disabled for the last 10 years of our marriage but there never was a more loving husband or a better father. He died in 1979 and left me with three terrific kids.

Last year I met a very nice divorced man who has three children also. Four months ago we decided to live together. I didn't feel I was ready for marriage but I did enjoy his company. He was over here all the time and it made no financial sense to keep two places. We talked it over with the kids and they were all for it.

My "Love-In" is kind, considerate and thoughtful. We never fight. His children and mine are best friends. Everything sounds too good to be true? Well, wait a minute. This man has not contributed one penny to the household since the day he moved in. I am independent and don't need financial help--but I believe as a matter of principle he should carry his share of the load. How do I broach the subject without appearing petty?--Unbalanced In Appleton, Wis.

DEAR UNBALANCED: Too bad you didn't broach the subject before he moved in. Now it's a bit awkward. Simply tell the Last of the Big Spenders that he can no longer be a free guest in your home and from now on he must pay half the household expenses. Everything should be cut right down the middle. I wouldn't be surprised if he has been waiting for you to say something. So say it already and don't worry about appearing petty. If you don't say something you are a fool.

CONFIDENTIAL to What Can We Do?: Very little. She is of legal age. Some people know that fire is hot and it burns, but they must get their own blisters before the message soaks in. Too bad. How to--and how much? Find out with Ann Landers' new booklet, "How, What, and When to Tell Your Child About Sex." For your copy send 50 cents along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Another nice thing about your newspaper. The stories don't go all to pieces every time the neighbor turns on his power saw.

Top Realtor: Tough Market in 1981

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — With would-be customers priced out of the market, with new construction buried in an economic morass, with financing demanding a tax lawyer's agility, real estate people are having their problems.

But some of the industry's problems, according to a fellow who relies on some 34 years of critical observations, were brought on by itself.

"What problems?" William D. Patterson was asked. "Incompetence," said Patterson, who helped found and who now heads Delaware's largest Realtor, Patterson Schwartz, headquartered in the capital city of Wilmington. He expounded: "I told a real estate group a while ago that we aren't a profession and they got angry. We're not a profession. We're approaching a profession and we're making great strides, but we've got a way to go."

Patterson, it may surprise some to learn, is also an official of the National Association of Realtors. He is in fact the brand new president of its educational arm, the Realtors National Marketing Institute.

"If we have a theme for this year it's specialization and professionalism," he said. Education will be the vehicle. "Education and training is the bottom line in this business," he said. It will be proven again this year, he said. Perhaps as never before, he suggested.

"The real estate business is becoming more complex and competitive," he explained. "For the time being, and if mortgage rates stay at 14 or 15 percent, we'll need a lot of innovation or we won't see deals."

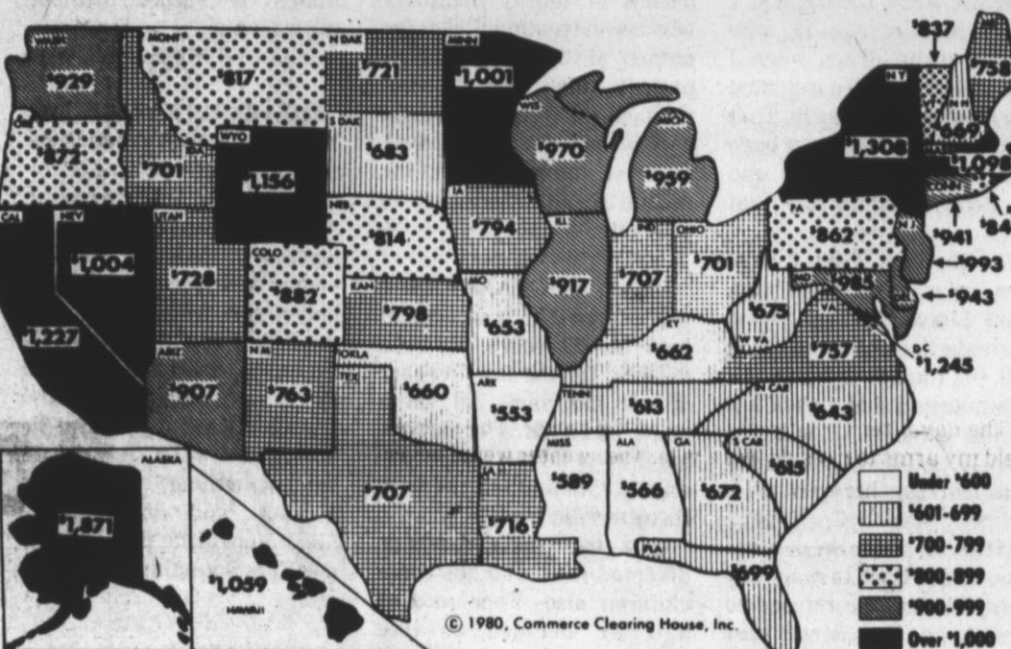

Patterson's job for the year — he'll be detached from his Wilmington office — is to spread word of the institute's many courses and books for, he says, "those seeking to be more than sales people."

It's a practice of many years, one that helped build his firm to 130 people grossing $100 million a year. All are employees rather than contractors, the latter being a loser alliance common to most firms. It allows him, he says, "to tell them what needs to be done."

During the difficult days he foresees for this year, and probably 1982 and 1983 as well, the well-trained, well-directed Realtor will get the business, says Patterson. He will, for example, know creative finance.

As practiced through much of 1980, creative financing means inducing the seller to take back a mortgage from the buyer. It can mean tax advantages for the seller. It can mean a steady, high-interest income.

The well trained agent or Realtor, said Patterson, "will qualify the buyer and have complete information on that person when he goes to the seller. He'll be able to advise on taxes. He'll know the seller's needs and his investment goals." In other words, he'll act professionally.

State-local per-capita taxes in fiscal 1978
AMERICANS PAID an average of $888 in taxes to state and local governments in fiscal 1978 — a jump of $75 per person from the previous period, notes a Commerce Clearing House report on the latest U.S. Census Bureau data. Per capita state-local tax burdens — which grew heavier in every state but Alaska — ranged from a high of $1,871 in that state to a low of $553 in Arkansas.

Seed Official Discusses Australia at Study Club

Geoffrey Thomas, Ph.D., Director of Research for WAC Seed Co., was guest speaker recently during the regular meeting of La Aflatus Estudio Club at the Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room.

Thomas, who presented a fascinating program on his native land, Australia, was quoted in saying... "Australians are fairly informal people like Texas, and the land mass is as big as the U.S.A."

"Australia is a very old country, geologically. The crime rate is safer and much less than the U.S.A.'s. Approximately 60-70,000 Americans live in Australia," Thomas said.

Thomas was introduced by Irene Markham.

The business meeting was opened with the reading of the club collect by the President, Aileen Montgomery. During the social hour, refreshments were served by the hostesses, Jennie Terrell and Mary Williamson.

The next meeting was scheduled for Jan. 20 at the home of Emily Suggs.

Other members present were Eva Gilliland, Madeline Bell, Della Stagner, Ora Morgan, Tresha Hale, Lucile Hughes, Allyne Johnson, Alberta Higgins, Pet Ott, Emily Suggs and Opal Elliston.

At Wits End By ERMA BOMBECK

Returning anything to a department store for adjustment is one of my favorite things. It ranks right there under getting three estimates on a crushed car door.

It isn't that the salespeople give you a bad time, it's just time-consuming.

On Christmas when I opened a box containing a blouse, a cardigan and slacks, I was flattered that my husband saw me as a 5-10, 36-pound girl.

"The pants have Cheryl Ties right on the pocket," he said proudly.

I weighed more than Cheryl Ties at my birth. "Maybe you could exchange them for a designer with a longer name and a bigger pocket," he said.

The day after Christmas I tried on the blouse. The sleeves held my arms to my side like a vise. The sweater would never button in this life.

Two days after Christmas, the department store set up special desks to handle the returns more efficiently. I took a second look at my outfit.

"How are you at handling stress, Cheryl?" I said in the closet to no one in particular. If I did without breakfast, didn't drink a glass of water in 36 hours, left the top gripper open, secured the zipper with a pin to keep it from easing on down, rolled up the legs and wore an overblouse, I could get by with it. I hung them in the closet and watched TV.

Four days after Christmas, my husband asked if I had returned my outfit. I took another look at the blouse. If I did arm circle exercises every morning for the next year, rolled up the sleeves, didn't button the two bottom buttons and didn't use my hands or shoulders to open doors, answer phones or drink coffee, I could wear it under a coat. I hung it up in the closet.

A few days ago, I ran across the box holding the Christmas sweater. I thought about returning it when I took another look at it. What the heck, if I hung it loosely over my shoulders and looped the arms under my chin and looked breathless like I'd just come off the "courts," it would fit like a glove. I took it out of the box, threw away the tags and sales slips and viewed my coordinated sports outfit that Barbie would have to wear a truss to get into.

Foolish? Maybe. On the other hand, there isn't a day goes by that I'll not look at that trio and quote a wise man who once said, "Some men see things as they are and say why. I dream of things that never were and say why not?"

Daughter Tells All in Book about Late Missionary Father

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Bob Pierce, founder of the Christian missionary agency World Vision in Monrovia, traveled the world aiding the starving, hopeless and war-ravaged.

But according to a book written by his daughter, the late Pierce left his family emotionally ravaged, and only managed a 4½-hour family reunion a few days before he died two years ago.

He was legally separated from his wife for 10 years; his oldest daughter committed suicide.

But Marilee Pierce Dunker of Thousand Oaks, his second daughter, feels she has emerged from the traumatic years victorious. Her book, "Man of Vision—Woman of Prayer," scrapes the veneer off the image of the wholesome, perfect Christian family.

And although Mrs. Dunker has been criticized by some people for sullyng her father's name, she believes the book is helpful to others in the same situation and she gives glory to God for allowing a "healing of family wounds" in the end.

"The fallacy in a lot of ministers' minds is that the demands of their work can justify neglect of family, body, health. They live unbalanced lives because their goals are noble and wonderful," said Mrs. Dunker.

Mrs. Dunker's book depicts Lorraine Pierce and her daughters, Sharon, Marilee and Robin, living in the limelight of a man whose commitment to serving humanity's needs blunted his ability to handle close interpersonal relationships at home.

Of the reconciliation at a family dinner just before Pierce's death, she said, "People might question: Was one night enough — 4½ hours as a family again? But the Lord gave us what our hearts cried out for. It was not that God was not capable of doing more, but whether Dad would have allowed it."

Still, Mrs. Dunker does not slacken her praise of her father's work in China, Korea and Vietnam. "The Bible says you can tell a person by his fruit. No one can question the kind of man he was: the 'fruit' of Dad's life lives on — Samaritan's Purse (a missionary relief organization now headed by Billy Graham's son) and Great Commission Films," which evolved into World Wide Films, and, of course, World Vision, which has become one of the most respected relief agencies in the world."

She believes her mother used the best defense weapon, prayer, that enabled her to survive. But "sometimes she would get in the car, roll the windows up and drive around screaming," said Mrs. Dunker. Her mother felt she couldn't talk to anyone about her problems because of her husband's eminence in the Christian community.

That is where Mrs. Dunker, now married with two children, believes her book may help, not only other women married to spiritual leaders, but those men themselves, who can learn from her father's mistakes.

As Term Nears End

JEFFERSONVILLE, Vt. (AP) — Some Pennsylvania college students decided they would really "cut the mustard" during a Vermont ski vacation.

So the students from Montgomery Community College in Blue Bell, Pa., roasted a 55-pound frankfurter Tuesday that brought "hot-dogging" skiers off the slopes for the feast.

Bob Yoder, the student who made the frankfurter last Friday, said he hopes it will set a new record as the world's largest hot dog. But he said he won't know for several months whether the frankfurter will win a place in the Guinness Book of World Records.

"Every year the college ski club comes up. So I thought if we really made it, everybody would remember this year's trip," Yoder said.

A bakery was commissioned to bake a special bun for the 4½-foot frank and fellow student Joe Jacobson built a special crate to transport it to Vermont for the feast.

ROSEBURG, Ore. (AP) — Sometimes being the manager of a restaurant means dealing with customers who start horsing around.

Police said Clifford Clinesmith of Oakland and Robert Gilbert of Roseburg galloped on horseback through the front door of Vip's Restaurant and past the cashier at about 8 p.m. Monday, police said.

The men went toward the restaurant's bar, but manager Kym Lore grabbed the bridles of the horses and backed them out the front door, police said.

The two men were not arrested, but Ms. Lore told police said she doesn't want the men, with their horses, to return.

APACHE JUNCTION, Ariz. (AP) — Ronald Reagan stood here.

That's the pitch of First Realty Auction Sales, the firm that auctioned the town of Navajo, Ariz., last month. This month, nearby Apacheland goes on the block.

Apacheland is a movie-set, old-west replica town where Reagan filmed the introductions, to several "Death Valley Days" TV segments in 1965. It also contains the hotel used by Richard Boone in his "Have Gun Will Travel" series, and the upstairs office used by "Doc" in "Gunsmoke".

But a 1969 fire caused about $600,000 damage and Apacheland has been used mostly for commercials since, said owner Sue Schilleman.

"The Ronald Reagan thing is pretty big," Ms. Schilleman, a real-estate broker and investor, said Tuesday in an interview. "There's somebody out there who wants to buy a town that Ronald Reagan used to be in."

On Memorial Day, the Code of Etiquette calls for the U.S. flag to fly half-staff until noon, then be raised to the peak.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says he intends to die and be buried in his hometown of Plains, Ga., and was described by Georgia congressmen today as very relaxed as his White House days dwindle to a final few.

The Georgia congressional delegation was invited to a farewell breakfast with Carter at the White House, and Rep. Bo Ginn, D-Ga., said he teased the president that at previous breakfasts they were served coffee and sweet rolls, but today they got ham and eggs.

"He's the most relaxed I have seen him in some time," Ginn said. "He plans to be very low key, at least for six months. He wants to spend some time with Rosalynn," his wife.

The congressmen said Carter was so willing to chat that they had to break up the meeting.

'Not Now, Darling' Opens at Amarillo

"Not Now, Darling," a comedy of mix-ups and merriment, is brightening the stage of Amarillo's Country Squire Dinner Theatre Tuesday through Sunday evenings through Feb. 7.

Appropriately for winter night scenes, the play is set in the exclusive show room for furs of the New York firm of Bodley, Bodley and Crouch. Always center stage are a variety of furs, creations of too-eager-to-please Arnold Crouch, played with such adroit hilarity by Rusty Fox of New York that audiences reward him with their warmest laughter and applause. Star of the fur-coat brigade is a mink that merrily and shamelessly changes ownership with the twinkling of an eye.

In addition to Fox, cast of "Not Now, Darling" includes these well-known dinner theater names: Charles Franklin, Pat Nesbit, Archie Dwyer, Dorothy McDonald, Martin McDonald, Maura Soden, and Rachel Bard. Sharon Lindemann of Amarillo makes her Country Squire debut in the show. The comedy, written by Ray Coney and John Chapman, is directed with a fine sense of timing by Larry Randolph of Los Angeles.

Buffet line at Country Squire, located at 1-40 and Grand, opens at 6:30 p.m., with show time at 8:15 p.m. On Sundays, doors open at 6 p.m., with comedy time at 7:30 p.m.

Work Continues On DSC History

Work is continuing on the Deaf Smith County History Book project being sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Historical Society.

As deadline nears for submitting family histories for the DS History book many local residents are hesitant in writing their histories, according to Kathryn Ruga, publicity chairman.

"Oh but I couldn't write a family history, I don't know how," seems to be the feeling of several people," she added.

Below are two examples for both oldtimers and newcomers to Hereford. Deadline for stories and pictures is Feb. 2. The public is encouraged to submit their histories as soon as possible.

Church to Hold Note-Burning Event

Temple Baptist Church, located at Avenue K and Forrest, will conduct a note-burning ceremony this Sunday during regular church services at 10:50 a.m.

B.L. Davis, Associate Missionary of Amarillo Baptist Association will be guest speaker at the ceremony, which will be a retirement of all debts incurred by the building of the church at a cost of $53,900.

Temple Baptist Church began as a mission of First Baptist Church in Hereford on Jan. 9, 1952, a recommendation from the deacons of First Baptist Church, "that the church appoint a committee to look into the matter of establishing a mission in the northeast section of the city," was the beginning of the present Temple Baptist Church.

On Jan. 6, 1952, a committee was appointed to investigate the possibility of beginning a mission. Those on the committee were Owen Stagner, chairman; D.C. Kinsey, Hollis Rainey, Mrs. Jewel Smith, and Mrs. Jack Kirksey.

After a census had been taken in the area, an estimated cost of the project was $10,000 to build and $400.00 per month to operate. On June 4, 1952, the site for the building was announced. The lots, part of the W.L. Braly farm, were located on Avenue K and Forest Avenue. The purchase of these lots was authorized and a new estimate of the cost of building was presented in the amount of approximately $14,000.

A new committee was appointed to proceed with building plans and methods of financing the project. On Sept. 10, 1952, a member of this new committee, reported to the church that a set of plans from the Sunday School Board had been secured. These plans had a long range program of a building to be constructed in four units. Pledges in the amount of $2,500 had already been received toward the mission project.

On Feb. 22, 1953, the pulpit committee brought a report recommending that First Baptist Church elect Rev. Russell Pogue of Friona as pastor of the mission. Rev. Pogue accepted the invitation and began his official work, March 1, 1953.

The Rev. Pogue was succeeded by Rev. Bob Lacewell of Vera Baptist Church, Vera; Rev. William A. Ware from First Baptist Church in Clayton, N.M.; Rev. Tommy Phelps from Inspiration Point Baptist Church in Fort Worth; Rev. John Devin from College Heights Baptist Church in Alamosa, Colo.; and present pastor, the Rev. J.L. Bozeman from First Baptist Church in Plains.

Eastside Baptist Chapel, and later, Temple Baptist Church, was dedicated March 22, 1953. By this time, a total of $16,000 had been given toward the project.

A name was chosen for the new church to be organized from Eastside Baptist Chapel. On Feb. 17, 1954, Mrs. R.N. Yarbrough submitted the name Temple Baptist Church. Eastside Baptist Chapel became Temple Baptist Church Feb. 21, 1954.

In May, 1954, a lot was leased at Plains Baptist Assembly for a future cabin. In February of 1955 plans for a building addition were received; and in September, 1955 groundbreaking for the building addition was held.

On Feb. 6, 1957, two lots north of the original church building were purchased and on June 10, 1959, plans for a new auditorium were approved.

Highlights of the church continued through 1979, including the cabin at Plains Baptist Assembly being sold, new parsonage at 311 Star purchased, purchasing of an organ, paving the north parking lot, plans for improvement of parsonage (drapes, carpet, general repairs), auditorium re-shingled, plans for addition of hallway north of main auditorium and completed, plans completed to purchase property east of auditorium (presently home of Education Director), bus purchased, and remodeling plans approved.

The note on the church of $53,900 was purchased on Feb. 1, 1966. Those volunteering to be responsible for the payment of this note include E.D. Sawyer, Gene Guynes, Mrs. Leonard Curtisinger, Mrs. Tommy Crawford, J.C. Simpson, James Welch, Jr., W.A. Lamm, Holland G. Cook, L.J. Matthews, Tommy Phelps, Vernon Inmon, W.E. Wells, Albert Ricketts, T.E. Clark, Charlie Calloway, J.R. Watson, R.N. Yarbrough, Donald R. Waters, Roy Boyd, Ross Wallace and Brice Glass.

Members of the church and any interested persons are encouraged to attend this note-burning ceremony Sunday morning at Temple Baptist Church.

P.E.O. Fund Raiser Termed Successful

Chapter F.O. of the P.E.O. sisterhood termed its recent fund-raising event a success and have planned to make the fund raiser an annual event.

In November the chapter sold Christmas wreaths, garlands, centerpieces and holly fresh from the Washington forests to raise money to help women further their education.

P.E.O. is a philanthropic and educational organization interested in bringing to women increased opportunities for higher education.

The sisterhood maintains four educational philanthropies including the P.E.O. Education Fund, which is a loan fund to assist women needing education beyond high school; International Peace Scholarship Program, which provides scholarships to foreign students to pursue graduate study in the United States and Canada; and Program for Continuing Education, which provides grants to women in the U.S. and Canada for purposeful educational goals.

In addition, the sisterhood maintains Coty Junior College for Women. It is an accredited two-year liberal arts college in Nevada, Mo.

Women who are interested in obtaining more information about the program are asked to contact Mary Cameron, president, at 364-0946 or Berta Ottesen, vice president, at 364-5587.

Legislature To Focus on Crime

EDITOR'S NOTE: Anti-crime bills are certain to take up much of the 1981 Legislature's time as Gov. Bill Clements has proposed an extensive package of proposals, and numerous legislators have indicated they want to get tough with criminals. This is one of a series of AP stories on matters before the Legislature.

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas' top lawmaker and Gov. Bill Clements have put the word out that they are going after the kingpins of crime during the 1981 Legislature.

Bills filed before the session indicate legislators also want criminals to keep their hands off youngsters and old folks.

The desire of Clements and Col. Jim Adams, director of the Department of Public Safety, to get a wiretap bill approved has focused most attention on that proposal, but it appears doomed.

Clements claims polls show Texans support tapping telephone lines if that is what it takes to shut down major drug traffickers, who have generated a $3 billion a year business in the state.

A wiretap bill passed the Senate in 1979, but never got a committee hearing in the House.

"We must enact a state wiretapping statute if we are to ever reach the upper echelon of the drug traffic in Texas — there are no two ways about it," says Clements.

His proposal would be limited to felony narcotics cases and, in response to wiretap critics, Clements maintains the bill would have enough safeguards to protect the privacy of law-abiding Texans.

"The people of Texas ought to fear the source of this request," says Executive Director John Duncan of the Texas Civil Liberties Union. "Bill Clements came out of the Department of Defense under the Nixon administration — a department that routinely violated the constitutional rights of Americans by spying on them."

Although a Clements aide says Speaker Bill Clayton has assured the governor he will remain "neutral" on wiretap, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby opposes the proposal and predicts it again will not clear the Senate. To stack the odds in his favor, Hobby is expected to appoint Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, another opponent of wiretap, as chairman of the committee that will consider the bill.

Adams said a proposal from the "War on Drugs" campaign by Dallas millionaire H. Ross Perot to seize illicit funds that have been invested in legal businesses is directed at crime bosses.

"We haven't seen the existence in Texas of an organized crime family," says Adams, a former FBI boss. "There are 26 such families, all headquartered in other states, but we are seeing their money coming into Texas motels and banks."

The Perot group proposes stiffer penalties, with no parole, for major drug dealers, greater penalties for selling narcotics to minors and outlawing "head shops" that sell drug paraphernalia.

Clements and Adams support a proposal to allow a defendant's voluntary oral confession to be used as trial evidence. Texas is the only state that does not allow such confessions to be introduced into evidence.

They also want the Legislature to make it clear that money seized in a drug search can be used by the agency responsible for the search in other drug-related law enforcement activities. Clements' "stand tough" anti-crime package includes other proposals that would:

— Permit juries to know how parole laws might affect a prison sentence.

— Close loopholes in a law that allows judges to grant probation after a person has been "shocked" with brief time in prison.

— Raise court fees to fund an $18 million grant program for law enforcement.

— Increase the maximum penalty for rape or sexual abuse of a child from 20 years in prison to life. The maximum penalty for indecency with a child would increase from 10 years to 20 years.

The tougher penalties, plus stronger enforcement, "should help deter some of the monsters who prey on innocent and helpless children," editorialized the Dallas Times Herald.

Rep. Gene Green, D-Houston, has filed a bill to make those pay extra who commit crimes against the handicapped or persons 65 or older.

THE ANCIENT CHINESE studied earthquakes with seismoscopes like this $15,000 replica, which is currently touring the United States as part of the Exhibition of the People's Republic. The urn features eight symmetrically attached dragons, each holding a pearl in its mouth. To indicate the direction of the earth's movement during a quake, the pearl was supposed to drop from the mouth of one dragon to the mouth of a toad positioned below. At least, that was the theory.

Cincinnati processed so many hogs in the early 1800s that it was called "Porkopolis."

Motorcycle Preach Gains Acceptance

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — After five years, Herb Shreve says the idea of a motorcycle-riding preacher finally is gaining acceptance. Shreve is the head of the Christian Motorcyclists Association, an organization of about 4,200 people who spread the Gospel and share Christian fellowship through motorcycling.

"Riding for the Son" is the CMA motto, referring to Christ as son of God.

The 47-year-old Hatfield resident got the idea for CMA when he attended a motorcycle rally and saw some activities he thought were less than Christian.

Shreve started attending the rallies and asking if he could preach or hand out Christian flyers.

Shreve founded CMA in 1975 and he and Rev. Tom Pitman, 51, of Marion, Ark., began conducting rallies of their own in 1976.

"These people are hungry for fellowship, so they come and we get a chance to preach to them," Pitman said.

Shreve has logged 40,000 motorcycle miles this year, traveling to the rallies. Pitman has logged another 35,000.

Pitman said the non-denominational, "born-again" organization has two goals. Most important is to "win people to Christ." The secondary goal is to "bring a good image back to biking."

Both Shreve and Pitman said that motorcyclists have suffered for years from the image that they are "hoodlums and outlaws."

"We have helped the image among the general public," Shreve said. "A lot of motorcyclists have found that it's more acceptable now."

"When people saw we weren't going to go away, they began to accept us," Shreve said.

Both evangelists say they can barely handle the speaking invitations.

Shreve said he spends March through October attending rallies and spreading the Gospel via motorcycle. During the winter months, he speaks at churches that invite him.

"My winter schedule is getting pretty hectic," he said. "It's getting busier every winter."

But Shreve admits the acceptance among regular churchgoers is not universal.

"There are still some that cannot relate Christianity and motorcycling at all," he said. "Some still disapprove."

Pitman said most of that disapproval comes from ministers.

"It's mostly from ministers who object to motorcycling," Pitman said. "We've raised a lot of eyebrows."

He said the objections also stem from the fact that the CMA is non-denominational.

"Preachers are pretty church-oriented, pretty denomination-oriented," he said. "We just go out in the name of Christ."

Both Shreve and Pitman were Baptist ministers before resigning their pastorates to devote all their time to the CMA. Both are paid from donations mailed in by CMA members and others. No money is collected at their services.

"My wife Shirley told me, 'The first month we don't make it, you'll have to get a job,'" he said. "I haven't gone to work yet."

LOVE'S LAST APPEAL...REJECTED!
Here are some of the story-illustrations Jesus gave to the people at that time:

"A man planted a vineyard and built a wall around it and dug a pit for pressing out the grape juice, and built a watchman's tower. Then he leased the farm to tenant farmers and went on a trip to a distant land.

At grape-picking time he sent one of his men to collect his share of the crop.

But the farmers beat up the man and sent him back empty-handed.

The owner then sent another of his men, who received the same treatment, only worse, for his head was seriously injured.

The next man he sent was killed, and later, others were either beaten or killed, until

There was only one left - his only son. He finally sent him, thinking they would surely give him their full respect.

But when the farmers saw him coming they said, 'He will own the farm when his father dies. Come on, let's kill him - and then the farm will be ours!'

So they caught him and murdered him and threw his body out of the vineyard.

What do you suppose the owner will do when he hears what happened? He will come and kill them all, and lease the vineyard to others.

Don't you remember reading this verse in the Scriptures? 'The Cornerstone - the most honored stone in the building - is a Rock the builders threw away!'

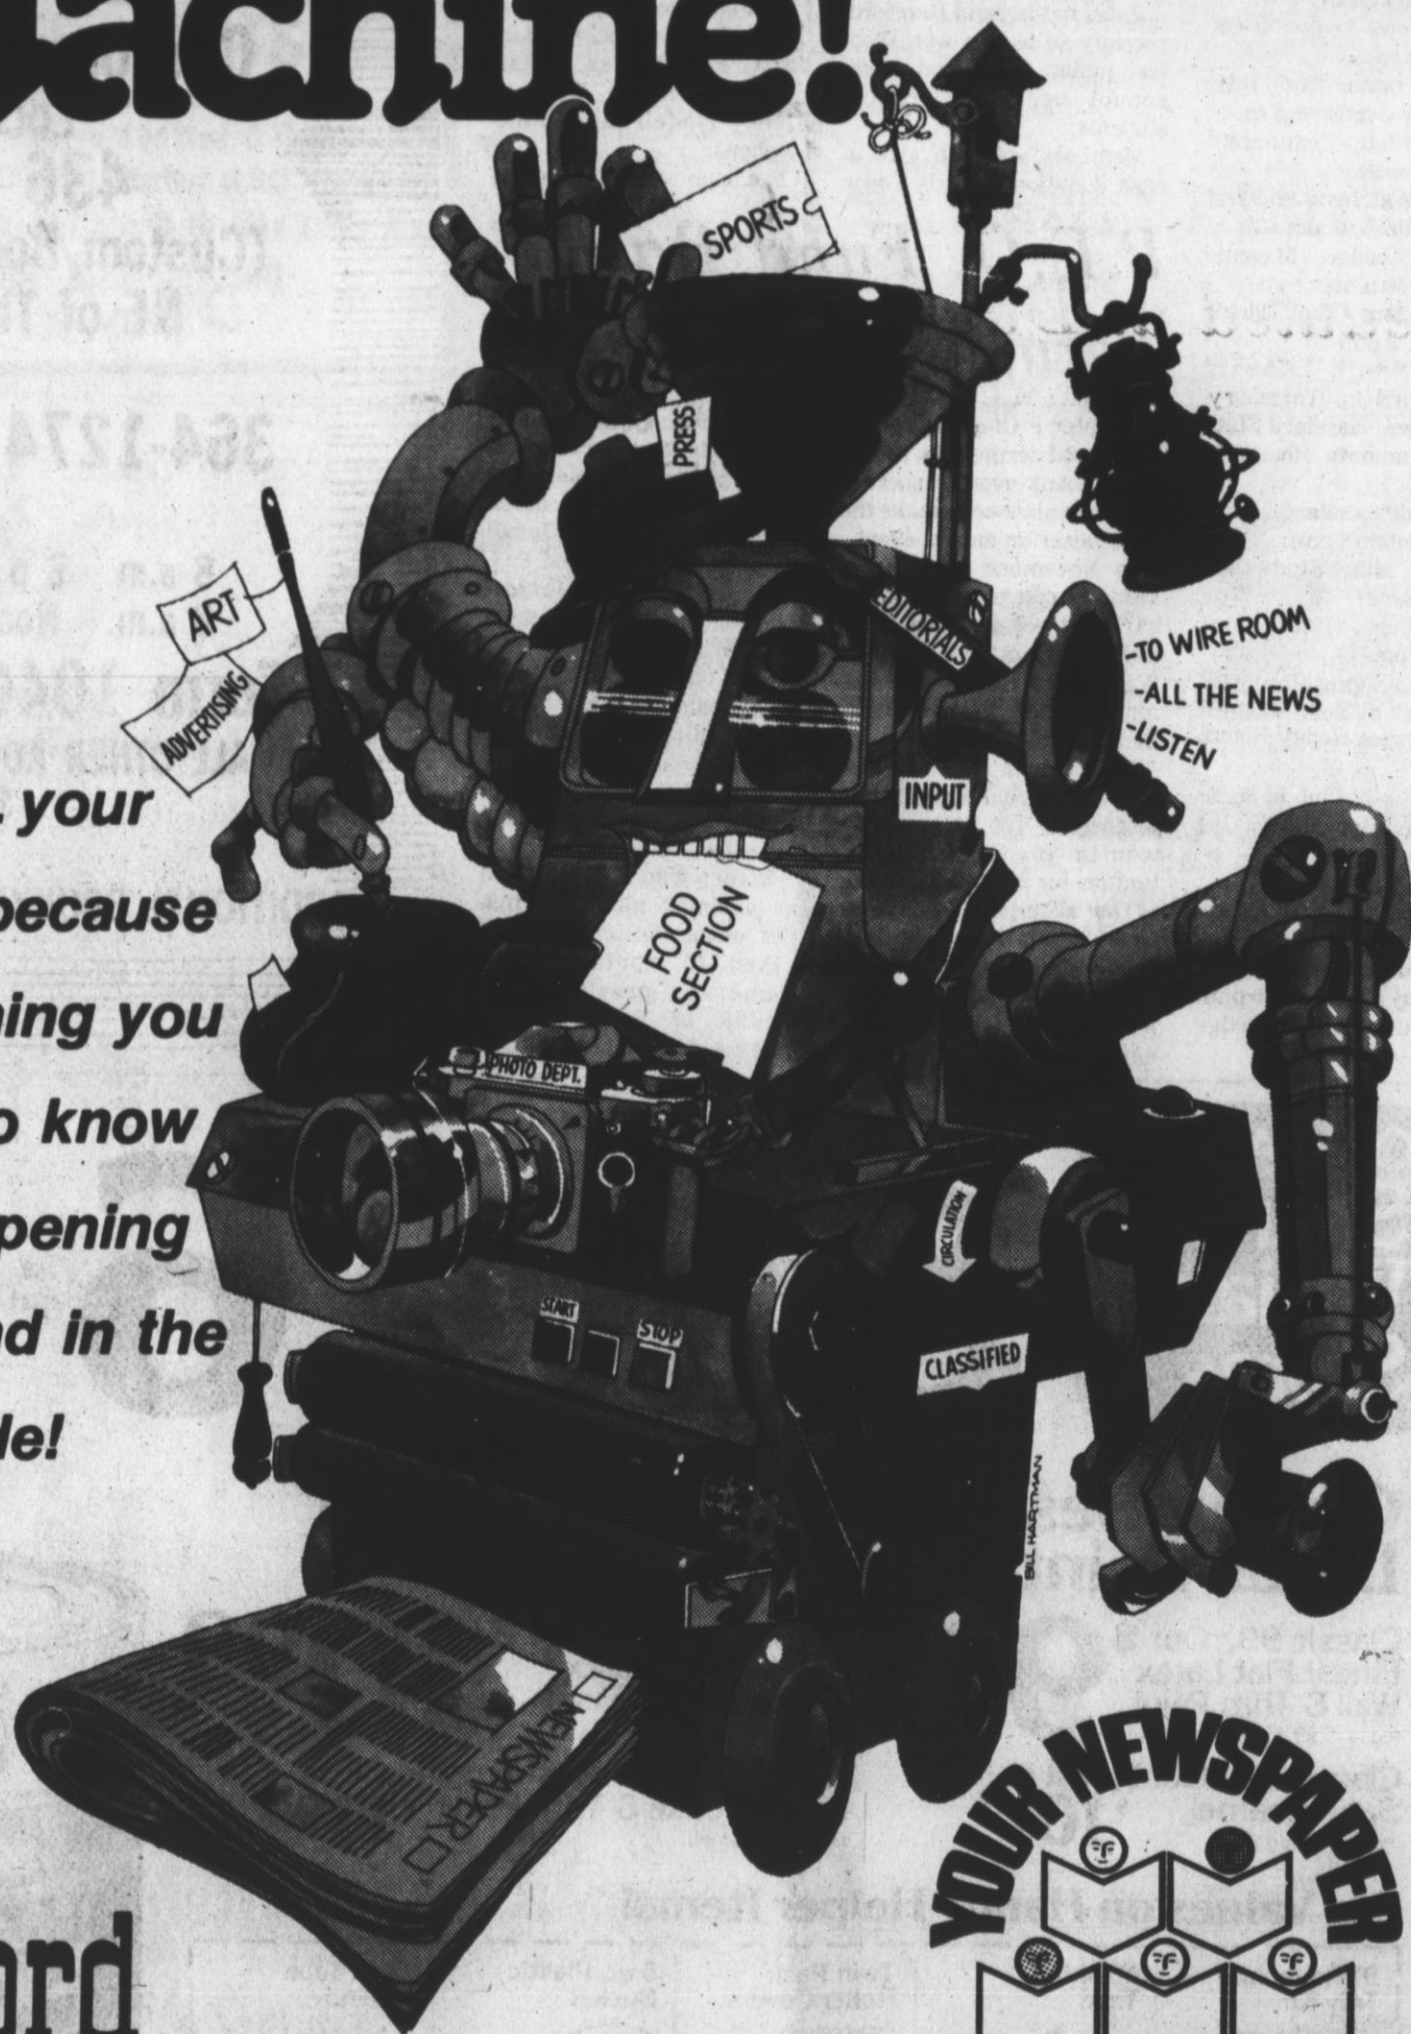

This is the Lord's doing and it is an amazing thing to see."

Brother May Succeed Brother as LULAC Head

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Tony Bonilla wants to become national president of the nation's oldest and largest Hispanic organization to carry on the programs begun by his brother two years ago. And Ruben Bonilla, prevented by the organization's constitution from seeking a third consecutive term, says he intends to take a "high profile" role to ensure continuity during his brother's administration. But the two Corpus Christi attorneys deny they are trying to establish a Bonilla "family dynasty" atop the League of United Latin American Citizens, a 52-year-old organization that boasts 100,000 members in 40 states and Puerto Rico. In addition, a third Bonilla brother, William, 48, was national president of the organization in 1974 and served as chairman of Project SER, a federally funded LULAC jobs program, during Ruben's national presidency. Tony, 34, served as national executive director during his brother's term and met with President Jose Lopez Portillo of Mexico as the LULAC liaison. Ruben Bonilla, 44, won the national presidency in a lively contest with incumbent Ed Pena, former head of federal Equal Employment Opportunity contract compliance, and during his two-year stint completed transforming LULAC from a primarily social organization to one active in pushing political solutions to Hispanic problems.

He said in the past, LULAC presidents had been parttime leaders of the organization and melted into obscurity at the end of their terms. He said he does not believe LULAC members want to return to the days of the "tamaleras," tamale parties, of the late 1960s and early 1970s.

Activists criticized LULAC as the "Mexican-American Country Club" until it emerged in a leadership role during the late 1970s.

"They didn't make that (family dynasty) accusation when the Kennedys participated at the highest level of government," Tony Bonilla said in a telephone interview from nearby Floresville Wednesday.

"I think the record will show that we (Bonillas) have delivered. We have contacts with key people in government on the national, state and local levels so we can get things done and the bottom line when you want to get something done is who do you know and what can you do," he said.

Ruben Bonilla said the idea of his brother running was to strengthen Ruben's "Agenda for Hispanic Equality," which seeks to prevent conservatives in the Ronald Reagan administration from dismantling equal opportunity hiring and other programs designed to help minorities.

He said recently boycotts and peaceful picketing might be necessary in coming years. "The announcement being made today is the earliest any person ever announced for LULAC national president in our 52-year history," Ruben Bonilla said said by telephone from Corpus Christi.

"The idea of the early announcement is to enable us to develop a strong organization and enable my administration to have a stronger foothold in dealing with the Reagan-Bush Administration and congressional offices across the country."

He said in the past, LULAC presidents had been parttime leaders of the organization and melted into obscurity at the end of their terms. He said he does not believe LULAC members want to return to the days of the "tamaleras," tamale parties, of the late 1960s and early 1970s.

"For years the Hispanic community has been called a sleeping giant," Tony Bonilla added. "I think Ruben has awakened the sleeping giant and gotten it to start walking. My ambition and goal is to get the sleeping giant to start running."

"Some people have billed the 1980s as the decade of the Hispanic. If that's supposed to have any meaning it's going to require greater political involvement at the highest level of government. It's going to require becoming politically sophisticated and more independence from the political parties."

The new LULAC president will be chosen during the national convention June 17-21 in Albuquerque, N.M.

House Committee Assignments Falling in Place

WASHINGTON (AP) — House committee assignments appear to be falling into place for Texas Democratic congressmen at the start of the 97th Congress.

The two freshmen Democrats from the state — Reps. Bill Patman of Ganado and Ralph Hall of Rockwall — snared the major committee assignments that were at the top of their lists.

Patman won the House Democratic Steering and Policy Committee's endorsement for a spot on the House Banking Committee, a position he was interested in because of his work on interest rates during his years in the Texas Senate.

Hall, whose district includes oil production areas in East Texas, was tabbed for a position on the House Energy and Commerce Committee.

The steering and policy committee's actions normally are endorsed by the full House Democratic Caucus, which meets later this month to formalize the committee assignments.

Some second-term Democrats from Texas also received the steering and policy committee's approval for changes in their committee assignments.

Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock would take the third seat on the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee traditionally held by a Texan until former Rep. Omar Burleson, an Abilene Democrat, retired in 1978.

Rep. Phil Gramm of College Station would receive a seat on the House Budget Committee, which limits its members to serving three two-year terms on the panel.

Rep. Marvin Leath of Marlin would move from the House Public Works Committee to the House Armed Services Committee, an important step for a congressman whose district includes the giant Fort Hood complex.

Texasans fared remarkably well two years ago when seven freshmen Democrats arrived in Washington and received committee assignments of their choice.

Gramm would take a leave of absence from the House Veterans Affairs Committee to fill the budget committee slot. His seat on the energy and commerce committee would not be affected.

"I have wanted this position since I've been in Congress," Gramm said. "I think that the key issue in the 97th Congress is going to be the budget."

Hance would have to give up both his committee assignments — on the House Agriculture Committee and the House Science and Technology Committee — to take the spot on the ways and means panel, considered among the most powerful committees in the House.

He said his top priorities as a ways and means member would be work on agricultural export policy and for the repeal or reduction of the "windfall" tax on domestic oil production.

Woman Awarded Judgement for Injuries

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A cleaning woman who suffered such severe injuries in a traffic collision that she said she felt "like an old hag" at 32 won a $1,039,500 judgment today in the Texas Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court affirmed lower court judgments awarding Marilyn Ansley damages from Armellini Express Lines of Florida and one of the company's semi-trailer drivers, William Duckett, as a result of a wreck in Montgomery County.

Near midnight on March 27, 1977, Mrs. Ansley's pickup truck hit the trailer at 45 mph as Duckett was trying to back it off Farm 149 into Green Acres Farm at Magnolia.

Court records show the cab was in the northbound lane, and the trailer was blocking the southbound lane in which Mrs. Ansley was traveling. Her pickup truck went partially underneath the trailer, and she was trapped there for an hour.

She said she thought the headlights of the jack-knifed semi-trailer were those of an approaching vehicle in the northbound lane.

Duckett testified that no warning devices had been placed on the road. He also said he did not blow his horn, flash his lights or try to pull the trailer out of the southbound lane when he saw the pickup approaching.

Mrs. Ansley, 32, suffered multiple facial fractures, a fractured left knee, right thigh and left arm. After an emergency tracheotomy, she was taken by helicopter to Hermann Hospital in Houston. She spent three months in the hospital — while her five children stayed "with different people" — and 2½ months in a wheelchair after she was released.

Two years after the wreck, she was still taking pain medication.

The Corpus Christi Court of Civil Appeals said Mrs. Ansley suffered "substantial disfigurement" to her face and body, and had not been able to work after the wreck. The court said she had been making $50 a day cleaning houses and offices.

The defendants submitted 116 points of alleged error, but the appeals court said the "crux of the complaints are obscured by numerous unfounded complaints which in effect would require this court to retry the entire case."

The Supreme Court said it could find no reversible error in lower court rulings awarding damages to Mrs. Ansley.

Meanwhile, another Grand Ole Opry veteran, Ernest Tubb, entered a hospital Wednesday for treatment of a mild case of pneumonia, his agent said.

Tubb, 66, was in satisfactory condition at Nashville's Baptist Hospital. Dick Shuey, Tubb's agent, said the country music singer had been sick with the flu for several days.

Names in the News

WAILUKU, Hawaii (AP) — Rock star John Graham McVie and his wife, Julie Ann, are free on bail after being charged by police with possession of cocaine.

McVie, 35, a member of the group Fleetwood Mac, and his 29-year-old wife were arrested two weeks ago after police, acting on a tip from Honolulu authorities, allegedly found 4.5 grams of cocaine, a small amount of marijuana and several guns at the couple's home on Maui.

They are to be arraigned Jan. 16 on charges of possession of cocaine. Mrs. McVie is also charged with hindering prosecution by allegedly attempting to destroy evidence. McVie's bail was set at $1,000 and his wife's at $1,500. McVie, a British citizen, could face deportation proceedings if convicted.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music singer Marty Robbins is undergoing tests at St. Thomas Hospital to determine if surgery is needed following a heart attack.

Robbins' daughter, Janet Robinson, said Wednesday that her father complained of chest pains on New Year's Day and consulted a doctor who recommended that he be hospitalized. He was admitted to the hospital Monday.

"It was a minor heart attack," she said from her father's recording studio. "I don't know if they'll have to perform an operation. He'll probably be in the hospital for a week or two."

A hospital spokeswoman said the 55-year-old Grand Ole Opry star was in serious condition in the hospital's special care unit.

Robbins, best known for his million-seller "El Paso," underwent heart surgery in January 1970.

Meanwhile, another Grand Ole Opry veteran, Ernest Tubb, entered a hospital Wednesday for treatment of a mild case of pneumonia, his agent said.

Tubb, 66, was in satisfactory condition at Nashville's Baptist Hospital. Dick Shuey, Tubb's agent, said the country music singer had been sick with the flu for several days.

Washington Briefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Achieving an average fuel-economy standard of 40 miles per gallon for new U.S.-made cars by 1995 would add about $600 to purchase and maintenance costs but would cut fuel costs, a new report says.

The Congressional Budget Office report released Tuesday said fuel costs for driving 100,000 miles would be reduced by about $1,100, meaning a net savings of $500 per vehicle when the extra $600 purchase and maintenance costs are taken into account.

The report says attaining an average of 40 miles per gallon should be "technologically achievable" by 1995. A bill introduced in the Senate last year would have required U.S. automakers to boost the fuel economy of their new cars to that average by 1995.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government must use gasohol instead of gasoline whenever possible, according to an executive order issued by President Carter.

Gasohol is a blend of 90 percent gasoline and 10 percent fuel alcohol. Carter has endorsed use of the mixture as part of an overall effort to reduce dependence on imported oil.

The executive order, issued Tuesday, was advocated last October by several congressmen who said gasohol accounted for only 4 percent of the government's purchase of more than 340 million gallons of fuel for federal vehicles in 1979.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson says there were more gains in terms of black initiative and black input in the Carter administration than any administration in American history.

Jackson, head of Operation PUSH, made the remark Tuesday on White House grounds after a farewell lunch held by President Carter for national black leaders.

Sower's Sorority Meets Caprock

THE CAGE SEASON was barely tangible upon the last meeting between the Hereford varsity girls' basketball team and Amarillo Caprock - both crews knew only scanty stints on the wooden floors and both were respective nobodys.

Hereford, at that time, was sporting an even 1-1 mark following a 96-52 victory over Pampa, plus a less satisfying loss to Amarillo High. The wanting Caprock crew, on the other hand, was still searching for the first fleeting glimpse of victory after reluctantly accepting two straight opening season losses.

Mauri Montgomery

AND NOW, LONG AFTER the Amarillo team succumbed to a 68-32 HHS onslaught in the first conflict and two weeks shy of the pre-district season's close, the two squads are destined to pit their talents once more.

THE HEREFORD BRAND SPORTS

Page 12 A--The Hereford Brand--Thursday, January 8, 1981

They meet here Friday night in the La Plata Gymnasium at 7:45 p.m. under somewhat different circumstances - that conflicting common denominator coming namely as a 17-1 (AREA BASKETBALL TEAMS HELD HOSTAGE-DAY 60) mark on Hereford's part following a more recent win over Portales, and a contrasting 4-12 presentation by Caprock after a loss to Clovis.

"We played pretty well against them earlier in the season, but then that's sort of how it was last year," said Hereford coach Larry Sowers. "We played them equally as well in the first game last year and then they up to Hereford and played us to within six points in the second game. They can't be underestimated by either their record or our win over them earlier because they are a very capable club."

"But again, like I said, we played a good ball game against them previously- we jumped out to an early lead and they just couldn't overcome it."

SOWER'S SORORITY, teasing reappearing opponents into submissive defeats each week en route to a lofty 16-game winning streak, bounded to a 20-point (24-4) advantage over the beleaguered Amarillo cage squad by the time the first period terminated. And that weighty lead read ditto (40-20) before Caprock was permitted to rest at intermission.

"We were really hot in the first part of the game - Lori Albracht hit 6-6 right off the bat and most of the other girls were hitting with equal accord," he said of the earlier battle. "But considering Amarillo has improved and the fact we've been cutting a few of our games pretty close, we'll need to play a good game Friday. They (Caprock) haven't been playing bad, they just haven't been winning."

IN THE LAST AFFAIR between the two squads, All-District post Celene Felton (a 5-4 senior who averaged 10.9 points per outing a year ago) was held to a meager tally of four points while returning starter Melanie Mixon (5-6 sr. post) hit seven.

"Those two girls are the one's that seem to give everybody the most trouble, even though they didn't really create a problem for us last time - there again however, we had one of our more exceptional shooting outings this year and we were able to keep them away from the boards. They may be a lot more wise to our game this time," Sowers said.

And the potential of Amarillo's scoring lineup might be only added to by missing personnel on the Hereford roster according to the coach.

"We'll be without the services of Deborah Rogers, who's getting an ingrown toenail removed, and a couple of others who have been out due to illness - it won't be easy for that reason alone. Rogers has been one of our leading scorers the past few games and her absence will hurt. I don't think we've been full strength since the season began."

Yet even with the sickness that seemed to prevail over the HHS club's forecast each week and the narrow victories (five tilts) won by lacking two-point spreads, there was still that not-too-subtle and lingering 17-1 slate to be considered. The hefty margin of success stood by itself and was unmatched in girls' loop play with the exception of district rival Monterey (the Plainswomen are also welding a current 17-1 record).

THE OVERALL PICTURE was a textbook sampling of CAGE TEAMS HELD HOSTAGE - Sower's Sorority compiled its demands from week to week. Would Amarillo Caprock pay the ransom in game 18?

Hayes Named Defensive POY

NEW YORK (AP) - Cornerback Lester Hayes, whose 13 regular-season interceptions were a principal reason for the Oakland Raiders' return to the playoffs, was named today The Associated Press Defensive Player of the Year for the 1980 National Football League season.

Hayes came within one interception of tying the NFL's single-season record set in 1952 by Dick "Night Train" Lane when he played for the Los Angeles Rams.

He also has intercepted two passes in each of the Raiders' two playoff games, paving the way to victories over the Houston Oilers and Cleveland Browns and putting Oakland into the American Conference championship game, one step away from the Super Bowl.

Hayes, a four-year pro, received 26 of 84 votes cast by a nationwide panel.

Agent Worries Over Public Image

Campbell Hits Contract Dispute

HOUSTON (AP) - Earl Campbell's agent Witt Stewart worries that his client's public image will be painted as that of a spoiled and greedy pro football player in his current contract dispute with the Houston Oilers.

But there was nothing tarnished about Campbell's image in voting for The Associated Press Offensive Player of the Year. Campbell was the runaway winner, earning 43 of the 84 ballots cast by a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Cleveland quarterback Brian Sipe was a distant second, polling 26 votes. San Diego quarterback Dan Fouts got seven votes and Charger receiver John Jefferson had six. No other player got more than two votes.

"We didn't want to have a family feud or air our wash in the press," Stewart said of the contract stalemate. "It's hard for the fellow making $15,000 or $18,000 per year and paying $12 to see an Oiler game to understand that Earl wants more. We understand and respect that."

Stewart said Campbell, who wants a $1 million per year salary over six years, is only trying to protect his family.

"Running backs in the National Football League have a short career span," Stewart said. "Earl has been unhappy with his contract and he feels he has to make a stand for his family. If some people get upset, he hopes they understand."

Campbell, who would talk to The Associated Press only about his play, not his contract dispute, said his limits as a runner depended on his teammates.

"I don't start out each season to gain more yards than I did the year before," Campbell said. "More than anything else, what I do depends on the people I play with. As far as the record goes, it's something that just happens one day if God is willing."

Campbell said intends to work hard during the off-season because "I think there is more in me that hasn't been used yet. I don't think I've peaked yet. I've got more to give."

Stewart's attempts to renegotiate Campbell's contract were made easier by the Tyler Rose's 1980 performance. Campbell rushed a near-record 1,934 yards to win the National Football League rushing title for the third straight year.

After running 1,450 yards and 1,697 yards in his first two pro seasons, Campbell came within 70 yards of breaking O.J. Simpson's single season rushing record of 2,003, set in 1973.

Campbell declined comment on new Oiler Coach Ed Biles' plan to give him more rest next season by diversifying the Oiler offense.

Campbell rushed over 100 yards per game 10 times during the season and have 200-plus yards in four games, an NFL record. Campbell's 373 rushes also established a league standard.

eligible players at the end against the expansion club which had lost 18 straight road games.

"If it had gotten any worse, we might have had to forfeit. I've never seen an NBA club in that position," said Warriors Coach Al Attles.

The Warriors had only nine players in uniform for the game since forward Purvis Short has a sore knee and guard Sonny Parker was home with the flu.

Mavericks Edge Out Warriors

OAKLAND (AP) - It was a night to remember for the first-year Dallas Mavericks, partly because they got their sixth victory in 44 games but mostly because they enjoyed a big edge in manpower.

"I'll tell you, it got awfully physical out there," said Coach Dick Motta, whose team won 111-109 Wednesday night over the Golden State Warriors, one of nine National Basketball Association teams with a winning record.

The Warriors had only five

Over San Antonio

Dawkins Leads 76ers to Win

By The Associated Press
Darryl Dawkins was sick with a virus before gametime, his throat sore and the "color of a red apple." In fact, the Philadelphia 76er center wasn't even sure for a while if he would start against the San Antonio Spurs.

"I was taking medication to try to prevent it, but the germs were saying, 'We're comin,'" said the beefy Dawkins. "I couldn't stop them."

Dawkins couldn't stop himself from getting dressed, either — and eventually made the Spurs look sicker after helping the 76ers to a 135-102 National Basketball Association decision Wednesday night.

"Maybe those germs kept San Antonio away," quipped Dawkins, who hit seven of eight field-goal attempts and teamed with Julius Erving to help the 76ers take control early with a 35-point first quarter.

Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham pointed out that his team's 11 blocked shots, including four apiece by Erving and Caldwell Jones, were a key to the battle of NBA division leaders.

In other NBA action, it was Boston 108, Phoenix 90; Indiana 112, New Jersey 103; Kansas City 114, Houston 108; Utah 121, Denver 117; Dallas 111, Golden State 109 and Seattle 99, Detroit 94.

The 76ers, leaders of the Atlantic Division, boosted their NBA best record to 36-7. San Antonio, leader in the Midwest, now is 29-15.

Celtics 108, Suns 90
Larry Bird scored 24 points and Robert Parish 21 to lead Boston over Phoenix. All 11 Boston players scored as the Celtics boosted their record to 32-9 with their 16th victory in 17 starts at Boston Garden this season.

Phoenix, which leads the Pacific Division with a 34-10 record, lost for the second time in a week to the Celtics despite 23 points by Walter Davis.

Pacers 112, Nets 103
Seven players scored in double figures, led by Billy Knight's 21 points, as Indiana defeated New Jersey.

The Pacers, who led by as many as 12 points in the first half at 42-30, and by seven at halftime, 61-54, saw the Nets cut that halftime lead to a 75-75 tie with 5:56 remaining in the third period. But starting at that point, the Pacers outscored the Nets 18-2, led by Knight with eight and Mike Bantom with six to take a 93-77 lead at the end of the third quarter.

Kings 114, Rockets 108
Phil Ford tossed in 31 points, including 10 in the final five minutes, to guide Kansas City over Houston. The Kings also got 20 points from Reggie King and Scott Wedman enroute to beating Houston for the fifth straight time over the past two seasons.

Houston, paced by Moses Malone's 33 points, led 99-94 with 5:06 left in the game. But the Kings outscored the Rockets 20-9 as Ford hit four straight shots and two free throws.

Jazz 121, Nuggets 117
Adrian Dantley scored a career-high 51 points to lead Utah past Denver. Dantley, whose previous NBA high was 50 points, scored 27 in the first half as the Jazz took a 63-57 advantage and led virtually throughout the game.

But Alex English scored 10 straight points for Denver to help put the Nuggets ahead briefly on two occasions in the fourth quarter. Finally, after English paced Denver to a 111-111 tie, Dantley took over, scoring five points as the Jazz ran off nine straight and took a 120-111 lead with 1:43 to play.

Mavericks 111, Warriors 108
Guard Geoff Huston led Dallas with 24 points and forward Bill Robinson played an outstanding game under the backboards as the Mavericks beat short-handed Golden State.

The Warriors started the game with nine players because of injury and illness and finished with only five available, but almost pulled out a victory.

SuperSonics 99, Pistons 94
Jack Sikma scored 19 points in the second half as Seattle wiped out a 19-point deficit to defeat Detroit. The Sonics, down by 13 after three quarters, held Detroit scoreless over the first 6 1/2 minutes of the fourth period. In that stretch, Seattle outscored Detroit 14-0 as the Pistons missed all eight field goal attempts.

Seattle grabbed the lead for good on Bill Hanzlik's free throw with 4:30 to go in the game.

Up And Over

Hereford's Cathy Lane comes up over the back of a pursuing Dunbar Pantherette for two points in a conflict between the two teams earlier this year. The Whitefaces won that tilt and have since increased their climbing win slate to 17-1, as they prepare to meet Amarillo Caprock here Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the La Plata Gymnasium. Hereford formerly clipped the Caprock crew 68-32. (Brand photo by Mauri Montgomery)

Terappins Down North Carolina

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Maryland Terappins are rated No. 8 in the country, but it's tough to pull rank in the Atlantic Coast Conference — especially on the other team's court.

In few other leagues does the homecourt advantage mean as much. And North Carolina, rated No. 16 in America, had it Wednesday night.

"This game was extremely important for our young team," said North Carolina Coach Dean Smith. "They've got everybody back from the team that beat us last year and we're missing five of our top seven. This has to help us."

Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell, as expected, was not too happy with his team's performance.

"We had been down in the first half then we went from eight up to two down in 30 seconds, it seems like," he said. "Then we got in a lot of foul trouble and that really hurt us."

Driesell was not surprised that North Carolina went to its patented four-corners offense, its Great Equalizer, early in the second half.

"He's (Smith's) done that a lot in the past," Driesell said.

In other action involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 3 Virginia beat North Carolina State 63-55; No. 4 Kentucky stopped Auburn 79-66; No. 6 Wake Forest tripped Appalachian State 63-42; No. 9 Louisiana State whipped Vanderbilt 77-61; No. 13 Tennessee turned back Mississippi 73-68 and No. 20 Clemson outscored Georgia Tech 65-54.

Al Wood's second-half shooting and some clutch free throws down the stretch keyed the Tar Heel triumph. Wood wound up with a team-leading 22 points, while Albert King scored 21 for Maryland.

Ralph Sampson scored 24 points and Jeff Lamp had 17 to lead Virginia over North Carolina State. The victory was Virginia's second in the ACC this season without a loss and improved its overall record to 10-0. The Cavaliers have won 15 straight games going back to last season, the nation's longest winning streak for a college basketball team.

"Quite obviously, Ralph Sampson was the difference," said North Carolina State Coach Jim Valvano. "He's just a great basketball player. If you wanted to start a pro or college franchise today, Sampson is the starting point. He is the most valuable player in the world in that aspect."

The balanced scoring of Sam Bowie, Fred Cowan and Dirk Minniefield helped Kentucky beat Auburn. Kentucky led by five points at 58-53 with 7:18 remaining, then pulled away from the Tigers with solid defense and deadly free throw shooting.

Cowan scored 17 points, Bowie 15 and Minniefield 13 for the Wildcats.

"We almost lost it at one point, but building the lead back is a good sign this team is growing up," said Bowie, referring to the stage where Auburn had trimmed the Wildcats' lead to five points.

Clutch second-half shooting by Jim Johnstone and Danny Young led Wake Forest past Appalachian State. The Mountaineers remained close to Wake Forest throughout the first half by using a deliberate offense.

But then Johnstone took charge, pouring in nine of Wake Forest's first 16 points in the second half. As Appalachian started collapsing on Johnstone, Young began hitting. Young and Johnstone both wound up with 12 points.

Super sub Willie Simms tossed in 18 points and LSU's stingy defense forced repeated turnovers as the Tigers scored their 10th straight victory.

POLLY'S POINTERS
Polly Cramer

Gum on blouse

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY - I washed a blouse of my daughter's that had gum on it and wonder if anything will remove it now. Any suggestions would be appreciated. - MRS. D.B.

DEAR MRS. D.B. - You can always try and hope for the best. If there is much gum on the blouse, first rub it with ice and then roll it into a ball that can be lifted off. Sponge with carbon tetrachloride to loosen gum with the dull side of a buff. Repeat until all gum disappears, rinse and then rub thoroughly with a dry cloth. - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - Do tell E.B. she should try using carbon tetrachloride as it removed tar from a rug and chair of mine. I have also used it for removing gum from clothing. Buy this at the drug store. It is truly a magical aid. - D.T.

DEAR POLLY - Years ago my mother taught me the trick of using lard or vegetable shortening to remove tar. Put it on the spot and let rest for quite a while, then gently rub and then rinse with cold water. Repeat if all is not removed the first time. I have even used this on my London Fog raincoat with no greasy spot left. The same trick will remove oils. - AMELIA

DEAR POLLY - In my desk I keep several wooden snap clothespins that have written on them the names of the people with whom I regularly correspond. In these pins I 'file' clippings and little notes to remind me of things I want to ask or write in the next letter.

When I hard cook eggs to store for future use I scribble a bit with a crayon or pen on the shells so that I can always be sure which eggs are raw and which are cooked.

When I send cards to friends who are in the hospital or others who might have trouble opening an envelope, I fasten just the tip of the flap with a fancy seal or even a piece of plastic gummed tape so they are easier to open than when the flap is tucked inside the envelope or when it is sealed. - LOUISE

DEAR POLLY - My Pointer is for any mother who is moving her child from a crib into a bed. When my son was ready to sleep in a bed I looked all over for a twin-size bed with rails at the side but ended up with just an ordinary twin bed. When he would fall asleep, I lifted up the mattress on the side and put a pillow between the mattress and box spring - the other side was up against the wall. After a while the child will automatically sleep towards the far side of the bed. This really worked for us and is certainly cheaper than buying a special bed with rails. - AILENE

DEAR POLLY - I suggest that Lori place her wooden statue that has bugs in her freezer and leave it there for 48 hours. This works on most soft woods. Hope this saves Lori's statue and money. - KAY

DEAR READERS - I would certainly place the statue in a tightly fastened plastic bag or something else to be sure none of those bugs strayed out into the freezer. - POLLY

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Worry adds to symptoms?

DEAR DR. LAMB - When I was in the hospital for a disc operation, X-rays showed that I have gallstones. I never had any problems with them and never knew I had them. Now my doctors say I should have them operated on. I figured if they didn't bother me I wouldn't go to the hospital till they did. But lately I am feeling bloated and have an uncomfortable feeling below my right rib.

I read your column that said that keeping diseased gallbladders in the body is a poor decision. Please send me The Health Letter number 4-9 on gallstones and gallbladder disease. It may help me decide whether to be operated on.

DEAR READER - No one wants to have an unnecessary operation. Of course, if you are having symptoms from your gallbladder you may eliminate them with surgery. But I must warn you that many of these same symptoms you describe can be caused by a spastic colon or other digestive disturbances. These can also be related to nervous tension. I'm raising the question that now that you know you have gallstones you may be worried about it and this may have contributed to your symptoms.

Of course, severe symptoms that are definitely related to gallstones provide an adequate reason to have surgery. But many people do have silent stones - as in your case when your stones were first discovered. The two dangers here are a complication, such as an infected gallbladder or small stones that may lodge in the bile duct blocking off bile drainage from your liver.

The possibility of cancer of the gallbladder or biliary tree in association with gallstones is discussed in The Health Letter you have requested, and I am sending it to you.

Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. About one in a hundred people with untreated gallstones do develop cancer but we can't be sure the stones cause it. The decision also depends on your overall medical status. In older patients who have lots of other diseases, it is sometimes wise to avoid surgery. The risk of the surgery can be greater than the risks in leaving the gallbladder alone.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Please advise me if the vitamin, pangamate, described in the enclosed newspaper article would be of any benefit to me. I am 67 years of age and did have a heart attack almost a year ago and am at present under the care of a cardiologist. I was told my problem was a left blockage to the heart.

DEAR READER - Forget about pangamate. It is another one of those apricot pit products. It has a checkered past, even including connections with the Mafia in its marketing. It is not a vitamin. When the Food and Drug Administration started cracking down, Food Science, one of the marketers, dropped the term vitamin from its label. Recently in an article in Medical World News, Dr. Victor Herbert, a hematologist from New York Downstate Medical Center in Brooklyn, was quoted as saying one of these products (DMG) when mixed with saliva is mutagenic, meaning a 90 percent chance of its being carcinogenic.

DEAR DR. LAMB - About three months ago I began to notice strange ear noises. After having an audiogram and an examination by an ear doctor, I was told I had a hearing loss in the high frequency range. The doctor told me there was nothing that could be done about it, that it was a common complaint with aging. I'm 64. He said I would just have to tolerate it and live with it.

If you can imagine the sounds of bees buzzing, meat frying in the pan, water running, a snake hissing and loud pulsation noises happening all at once, that is what I am experiencing. I understand the word for this is tinnitus. Should I seek further advice? Can you help me in any way?

DEAR READER - Perhaps you should seek a second opinion. Ear noises may be caused from something simple, such as wax in the ears, which is probably not your case since you just had an examination. They can be caused by some medicines, including ordinary aspirin.

Sometimes they are associated with a hearing loss and if a suitable hearing aid is provided after careful matching with your special loss by an audiologist, it can eliminate the problem. The improvement in hearing makes you less aware of the annoying sounds.

Still others are not associated with a hearing loss and can be benefited by a tinnitus masker. This device provides constant sound to the ears that literally masks the annoying sounds. Not all audiologists are certified to dispense the tinnitus masker if it is needed.

The different things that might be done for people with ear noises are discussed in The Health Letter number 12-10, Help for Tinnitus - Noise or Ringing in the Ears. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have been experiencing a burning type pain on the left side of my chest for the past few years. I also find it difficult to breathe through my nose at times. I've had several complete checkups with EKGs but nothing is ever found wrong. Can you think of what may be causing these discomforts?

I'm 33 years old and have been a police officer for the past 10 years. I don't drink or smoke and never have. I don't drink excessive amounts of coffee or tea. I'm athletic, 5 feet 8 inches and 170 pounds.

There is a history of heart attacks within our family but not at a young age. Grandfather, at 73, and father, at 63, died of heart attacks.

DEAR READER - Chest pain from heart disease is usually neither burning nor sharp. It is more often a pressure or dull ache. Burning pains over the left chest are more likely to be related to anxiety-tension or muscle or skeletal problems.

Some doctors might think you have neurocirculatory asthenia, in view of your description and the absence of findings on your examination. That is a term used for symptoms of that nature noted in anxiety. They are sometimes seen in people who are exercising above their level of fitness - such as trying to train too fast.

Why don't you eliminate all coffee, tea and colas and try to relax a bit more and see if that helps. If not, you might want to investigate any psychological factors that may be causing you stress.
