Welcome home, soldier

Sgt. Abel Rodriguez, left, is greeted by Nolan Grady at Wednesday's meeting of the Hereford Lions Club. Rodriguez spoke to the club Wednesday about his experiences in Saudi Arabia

Soldier: roads key in winning in Gulf

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Hereford native Sgt. Abel Rodriguez may not have had a role in Operation Desert Storm that will be glamorized in a movie someday, but without him and his compatriots, the war would not have been won so quickly and completely. Rodriguez, who returned to the United States last week (and saw his son, born in February, for the first time), served in an engineering battalion responsible for building roads in Saudi Arabia and, later, into Iraq within 13 miles of the Euphrates River. Some of the roads were eight lanes wide, and some of the lanes were as wide as 100 feet, Rodriguez told the Hereford Lions club on Wednesday.

"We were responsible for building and upgrading main supply routes," Rodriguez said. "Without the main supply routes, there would be no beans or bullets at the front."

Often times, there would be a convoy immediately behind the road-making equipment, following the newly-made road (each was named after a state) to a new site on the front.

The battalion was also responsible for clearing sites and helping build pads for helicopters, hospitals, phones and other communications, and other needs of the huge Allied force of over 500,000.

During his time "in country" (in Saudi Arabia and Iraq) from Oct. 29 to April 15, he spent much of his time in a tent when he wasn't working. While in his quarters he had to deal with "food that didn't compare to the worst you can imagine" at times. Often, the battalion did not have the infamous MREs, but had food supplied by Saudi Arabia that didn't meet up with even the low MRE standards.

The battalion didn't have to deal with last summer's 130-degree desert heat, but did have to face rain and cold in Saudi Arabia and Iraq. All along, there were flies and mosquitoes.

"The flies were pretty stupid; you'd flick them with your finger and they wouldn't move," Rodriguez said. "Sometimes you'd be swatting flies, holding a can of food and trying to eat all at the same time."

The battalion was able to take a shower many days, but because of limited water took "navy" showers: get yourself wet, turn off the water, soap up, then turn on the water just long enough to rinse yourself off.

"And there was always so much dust in the air that you would be just as dirty after a shower as you were before," Rodriguez said. "The only difference was you smelled better."

Much of his time, even during arduous tasks, was spent wearing the cumbersome chemical suits because of the continuing fear that Saddam Hussein would unleash his dreaded arsenal. Sometimes, the personnel at the very front faced the threat of artillery, but the unit had to deal more with mines than with other threats.

When roads were built, Rodriguez explained, specialized equipment was used to clear a small path before the rest of the company came through the area.

Rodriguez said some engineering companies will be in the Middle East through August, but he is unsure what they will be doing. On one thing he was clear, though.

"They're (Iraq) in trouble, Saddam Hussein's in trouble."

Paper project meeting tonight

A public meeting to discuss a project on making paper out of milo stubble will be held tonight at the Bull Barn, and all interested citizens are invited to attend.

John Sherrod, chairman of the industrial development committee of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, said a presentation on the benefits of the project and its impact on the economy will be given at the meeting, beginning at 8 p.m.

A $14,000 grant to complete a study on the project has been received from the Texas Department of Agriculture, but the grant must be matched by local funds. Sherrod pointed out that the involvement and support of county and area citizens is vital to the project.

"All of the money contributed to the project will be used for research and to produce a sample run of paper. No funds will be used for salaries," said Sherrod. He said the industrial committee hopes to raise more than $14,000 for the project "to show what we can accomplish on our own and to arouse enthusiasm for other industrial development programs."

Making paper from milo and other farm crop residue is a proven process. The local study was initiated about two years ago by Ken Rogers, former industrial development committee chairman. It could provide a very large economic benefit for this area, says Rogers, including additional income to farmers, savings on water, and providing more jobs.

Daniels will lead aging conference

The Texas Joint Conference on Aging will be held Sunday through Wednesday at the Civic Center Complex in Amarillo. Professionals in the field of aging and health, as well as volunteers and many seniors, will attend the event which focuses on issues related to older adults in Texas.

Margie Daniels, executive director of Hereford Senior Citizens Association, will be conference chairman.

A choice of five conference sessions will kick off the four-day event. Sunday sessions, from 1 to 4 p.m., include programs on adult day care, resources for seniors, the statewide medicare waiver and shortfalls, transportation, and a public forum on building a better health care system.

The Texas Senior Spelling Bee competition will also be conducted Sunday beginning at 1 p.m. Marie Stringer of Hereford qualified for the state bee. The public forum and the bee are free and open to anyone interested in attending.

Other workshops are scheduled and Doug Manning of Hereford, well-known speaker and author, will address the Tuesday evening banquet. The luncheon on Monday, April 29, features Kenneth Wyatt of Tulia, artist, speaker and author.

The conference is co-sponsored by the American Association of Retired Persons, Texas Department on Aging, the Texas Association of Area Agencies on Aging, the Texas Association of Nutrition and Aging Services Programs, and the Texas Association of Senior Centers.

WT mismanagement may cost $2.5 million according to auditor

AUSTIN (AP) - A financial investigation of West Texas State University has shown that the school may have lost $2.5 million through apparent mismanagement, according to a report by the state auditor.

In a report issued Wednesday, State Auditor Lawrence Alwin said West Texas State lost the opportunity to increase its endowment by up to $2.5 million.

The university, prompted by heavy athletic department losses, also used funds restricted for other purposes to finance operations of the university's auxiliary enterprises since 1988, Alwin said.

He said both matters had been reported to appropriate authorities.

The auditor's office said it started investigating West Texas State after receiving information that the university had lost $200,000 on an investment in Mesa Limited Partnership, T. Boone Pickens' oil and gas company.

That charge proved inaccurate, the auditor said. But the report criticized the way university endowment fund transactions were handled while Pickens was chairman of the university board of regents and Ed Roach was president.

The school was merged into the Texas A&M University System on Sept. 1, 1990.

The endowment transactions "appear to have been handled almost exclusively by the board chairman and the president," the report said.

"The type of 'arm's length' relationship which should be maintained between a donor and the university did not exist," it said.

Mesa President Paul Cain issued a statement challenging the report.

The company "stands by its donations and is proud of the university's efforts to maximize the value of those charitable gifts," he said.

"Mesa disagrees with the statement that university officials lost the opportunity to increase the donations by as much as $2.5 million. In reality, the university gained more than $1.3 million through its aggressive pursuit of corporate funding," Cain said.

According to the auditor's report, the university purchased Mesa stock equal to a $500,000 matching grant from Mesa and a $100,000 personal matching gift Pickens gave in late 1987.

But the school failed to raise the necessary matching funds and began refunding the money to Pickens and Mesa - plus capital gains and dividends - in September 1988, the report said.

Four days after the university's original stock purchase, Roach and his family bought 20,000 Mesa shares through the same Dallas broker the university had used, paying 50 cents less per share, the report said.

Roach sold his stock in August 1989, three days before reports were published that Mesa had a $13.4 million quarterly loss. He realized a capital gain of more than $15,000, the report said.

But the university held its interest until seven months later, when the shares sold for more than $4 less. West Texas State lost $105,744, the report said.

Had the university sold on the same day as Roach, it would have gained $139,705, the report said.

Judge rejects $100 million, fine too low

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) - Exxon's proposed $1 billion settlement of the nation's worst oil spill has been placed in doubt by a judge's ruling that a $100 million criminal fine isn't enough punishment.

Under a plan announced last month, Exxon agreed to pay fines of $50 million each to the federal and state government. The company also agreed to pay $900 million as part of a separate settlement of civil claims to clean up Alaska's shoreline.

But U.S. District Judge H. Russel Holland ruled Wednesday that the $100 million in fines was not enough to deter future oil spills.

"The fines which were proposed to me were simply not adequate," said Holland who added that he had studied federal sentencing guidelines in reaching his decision. "There is no question that the Exxon Valdez oil spill was off the chart."

With Holland's rejection of the criminal fine, Exxon could withdraw from the $900 million civil settlement.

The company also pleaded guilty to four misdemeanor pollution charges in exchange for the dropping of felony counts as part of the agreement, and Holland gave Exxon until May 24 to decide if it would withdraw those pleas.

The Justice Department said it would go to trial on the criminal charges if the pleas are withdrawn.

Exxon spokesman Joe Tucker said Wednesday the company had no immediate comment.

"I don't think anybody suspected this would happen," said Sen. Pat Rodey, D-Anchorage and a member of a panel that helped work out the

Pickens attacks Japanese practices

WASHINGTON (AP) - Still another Japanese import, corporate collusion, has reached the United States, says T. Boone Pickens, Texas oil tycoon and staunch critic of business, Japanese-style.

Pickens told a Congressional panel Wednesday that the same business customs frustrating his own efforts to operate in Japan are now "flourishing in our own backyard."

"Keiretsu," the Japanese name for anti-competitive collusion among companies, is highly developed in the Japanese automobile industry, he said, and "I have little doubt that these Japanese automakers are using the same techniques here in the United States."

Several hundred Japanese auto parts makers have followed Toyota, Honda, Nissan and other Japanese car factories to set up business in the six-state area of Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee, he testified to the House of Representatives subcommittee on commerce and competitiveness.

Pickens said he has helped organize a nonprofit think tank, Mid-America Project, that is documenting foreign investment in the region, including anti-competitive links between suppliers and manufacturers and "the dramatic and systematic assault of the Japanese auto manufacturers and suppliers on the U.S. market at a time when the same markets in Japan have been closed to U.S. automobiles and parts suppliers."

Trade union organizations in 40 states support the Mid-America Project, and it will release its findings shortly, he said.

A spokeswoman for the U.S. Justice Department's anti-trust division said she would check into what investigation or surveillance, if any, the government has undertaken in connection with auto parts procurement.

Pickens also criticized as "woefully inadequate" Japanese efforts against keiretsu, bid-rigging, price cartels and other anti-competitive practices within Japan that were promised in the U.S.-Japanese survey of structural obstacles to trade.

He said the Japan Fair Trade Commission issued guidelines that "exempt traditional keiretsu from any additional scrutiny" because they assume that wrongdoing occurs only when the keiretsu "parent" owns more than 50 percent of its subsidiary.

Pickens said his own well-publicized case proves that keiretsu parents control their subsidiaries without owning them. Pickens has complained bitterly that Koito Manufacturing Co., Toyota Motors' auto lighting supplier, allows Toyota to control it and denies him a directorship even though he is its largest stockholder, with 26 percent of Koito stock compared to 19 percent owned by Toyota.

"The keiretsu system (is) so entrenched and powerful that Japanese officials are certainly reluctant to pursue the Toyotas and Nissans of the corporate world," Pickens said.

If the new guidelines represent a Japanese concession, he said, "we have fallen into the same old trap of a series of ... negotiations while the Japanese continue to protect their own markets and increase their share of other markets throughout the world."

Pickens testified in support of legislation for a tough new trade law that would require the government to investigate and consider trade sanctions against any country accused of unfair trade, or accounting for more than 15 percent of the U.S. trade deficit. Japan would be a guaranteed target.

Behind Japan's success, there is no economic miracle, "just a rigged system, and the American people need not fear the economic myth of Japan any longer," Pickens asserted. The proposed legislation "is exactly the type of tool necessary to negotiate effectively with the Japanese," he said.

Commerce Undersecretary J. Michael Farren earlier told the panel the Bush administration was taking no position for or against the legislation. But he indicated it was unwanted, declaring that existing laws provide "enough tools" that are more flexible, and the administration was aggressively using them.

Farren said an annual report on U.S. and Japanese structural reforms is due next month, and "if and when" Japan implements its policy commitments, "we expect to see a positive impact on our exports" and better balanced trade.

Karnival Krazy will feature goods at country store

Theresa Artho, left, chairman, and Irene Reinart look over one of the items to be offered for sale at the country store at the Carnival Krazy to be held Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. at St. Anthony's School. Carnival Krazy will feature the store, games, food and an auction, and is open to the public.

Insurance rates increase

AUSTIN (AP) - Personal automobile insurance rates will go up a statewide average 8.7 percent under an increase approved by the State Board of Insurance.

The new rate package, which also would boost commercial auto rates 15.5 percent, is scheduled to go into effect July 15.

Ms. Koriath said she wanted to have the audit on the insurance industry data before approving a rate change.

"The public as well as the board needs to be confident in the data the board uses to set rates. The law promulgates us to set a rate; we must know that the data is correct," she said.

Richards issued a statement, saying she was disappointed in the rate increase but pleased the board will conduct an audit and look at the rates again this fall.

Saxton, who will step down from the board May 1 after coming under fire from Richards, agreed that the audit needs to be done, but that a decision on auto insurance rates couldn't be delayed further.

The board first started considering the rate increase in January, but delayed a decision while a Richards-appointed team conducted a brief review of the data submitted by the insurance industry when it recommended a 29.1 percent increase. The review concluded a more in-depth audit was necessary.

"We've wasted 90 days already," Saxton said. "We need to do something on the rates."

The increases will boost premiums statewide $422 million, which includes $362 million for personal insurance and $60 million for commercial policies.

The new rates will vary from county to county. State insurance officials said it will take several days to calculate the changes for each county.

Last week, Reynolds tried three times to increase auto rates, but each time Ms. Koriath voted against him. Saxton did not attend that meeting.

Gorbachev fends off stiff rivals

MOSCOW (AP) - In a bold political stroke, President Mikhail S. Gorbachev has struck a deal with his chief reformist rival and fended off a bid by hard-line Communists to force him from power.

Gorbachev said Wednesday that the accord, secretly hammered out in his country home with Russian leader Boris N. Yeltsin and the heads of eight other republics, will get his reforms back on track.

The Soviet leader unveiled the agreement, which speeds reform but calls for an end to strikes, just hours before Wednesday's start of a two-day Communist Party Central Committee meeting in which hard-liners sought his ouster.

In the process, he again demonstrated the political skills that brought him from a minor post in the provinces to the top of the party and have allowed him to survive six years of turbulent reforms.

His deft maneuvering impressed even his critics.

"He can handle the situation and the agenda, and is in tune with his listeners. He's a good tactician," Central Committee member Alexei Prigarin, a leader of the hard-line Marxist Platform faction, said in an interview.

Both the left and the right are demanding his resignation from one or both of his posts as party leader and president - as are thousands of striking coal miners and other workers angered over the economy's worsening condition.

"Already, not just in words but in deeds, attempts are being made to push the country off the path of reform ... threatening to destroy our state or return it to the past, to a slightly dressed-up totalitarian regime," Gorbachev said in a forceful speech at the Central Committee session, according to the Tass news agency.

Edington to speak at church

As part of the First Presbyterian Church's centennial celebration being observed, Dr. Andrew Edington of Kerrville, Texas will be speaking at the church Sunday and Monday, April 28-29.

The public is invited to hear Dr. Edington Sunday at the following times: 9:30 a.m., the Adult Sunday School Class; 10:30 a.m., the Sunday worship service; and 6 p.m., the youth group meeting in which all local youth are invited to attend. He will also speak during the 7:30 p.m. worship service Monday. Two receptions have been planned, at noon Sunday, and immediately following Monday's service.

Dr. Edington has served for 22 years as president of Schreiner College. He is currently president emeritus of the school and is a sought-after speaker and Bible teacher.

He is the author of The Word Made Fresh which contains all of the books of the Bible in two volumes. He wrote the new version of the Bible to help students better understand the Bible by using wit, wisdom and humor.

Leadership seminar set

The fourth annual Texas Panhandle Hugh O'Brian Leadership Seminar will be held Friday and Saturday at the Bishops Quarterman Conference Center in Amarillo.

The seminar recognizes the outstanding sophomore students in over 100 area high schools. The outstanding sophomore student from Hereford High School is Matthew Parker.

In 1958, Hugh O'Brian was inspired by Dr. Albert Schweitzer to establish the youth foundation believing that America's most valuable resource is its youth and the most important thing in education is to make young people think for themselves.

Today there are over 84 seminars in 11 countries to recognize the outstanding sophomore students and to bring them together with community and business leaders to discuss present and future issues, using an informal question and answer format.

Media, agriculture, medicine, volunteerism and politics are examples of the areas in which students will face a panel of professionals in their respective fields and have the chance to share on a one-to-one critical and current issues, insights to their professions and ideas often not learned from a book.

In addition to interacting with panelists, the seminars goals are to provide the opportunity to explore America's incentive system and the democratic process and recognize leadership potential in high school sophomores.

Plant sale Saturday

Daylilies, irises and violets will be among the plants that will be for sale from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. Saturday at the Hereford Garden Center, located at the corner of Park Ave. and N. Main. The center's grounds are maintained by members of the Bud to Blossom Garden Club. According to Phyllis Brown, garden club president, all proceeds will be used to preserve the center. Anyone wishing to donate bulbs or plants from their yards may call 364-1804 or 364-4171 to have them picked up.

Manpower inadequacies cause of concern

According to a newly released Gallup survey, 94 percent of academic leaders see a risk that the U.S. will lose its leadership position in biomedical research. The large majority of the experts believe Japan poses the most serious threat, with 93 percent of industry R&D leaders citing Japan as the country most likely to overturn U.S. leadership in the field.

The findings were recently presented by the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association Foundation as part of what it calls a "call to action" to assure continued American preeminence in the life science.

The Gallup survey was conducted among three important sectors of the American biomedical research community: academia, industry, and current National Institutes of Health grant holders. General agreement prevailed among the three groups about a real risk of losing our nation's leadership, and what is threatening it.

According to Donald N. Langenberg, Ph.D., Chairman of the American Association for the Advancement of Science:

"It gets down to the simple question of where you want technological superiority to reside. If it's America, we need to strengthen our educational and research efforts, because the cause of what's likely to be our scientific decline is at our doorstep now."

The causes cited by national experts at a conference in Washington, D.C., as well as the respondents of the Gallup survey, are:

- * Reduced math and science skills of our secondary school graduates.
- * Established scientific investigators needing to spend one-third of their time seeking scant grant opportunities instead of doing research.

- * Young investigators abandoning research for better-paying, more-secure jobs.
- * The "graying" of our scientific community, in which attrition seriously depletes our senior scientific manpower.
- * Our college-age population is shrinking, with many talented students disinterested in pursuing careers in university-based research.
- * Women and racial and ethnic minorities need to become better represented in the sciences, as these groups are projected to comprise a much larger segment of the overall workforce in the next decade.
- * Projections of sharply increased demand for highly qualified researchers in the near future.

All contribute to what William F. Raub, Ph.D., Acting Director of the National Institutes of Health terms: "An issue worthy of being a top priority on the national science and education agendas."

The diminished quality and motivation of secondary school graduates in math and science was a cause of significant concern among the academic leaders surveyed, 90 percent of whom believe the U.S. secondary system (K-12) is excelled by Japan's.

In addition to sharp increases in manpower demand projected during the next decade, the experts agree that supplementation of the U.S. workforce by foreign nationals is not a sound long-term solution. Dr. Raub called for increased attention to the training of women and racial and ethnic minorities in this country.

As Dr. Raub explains: "The future workforce will be comprised of a much larger segment of women and other minorities. These groups have been historically under represented in research, and continue to be. The disparity between supply and demand will increase unless we take proactive measures to get these sectors better represented. They constitute a tremendous latent potential."

The Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association Foundation has provided more than 1,400 biomedical research grants to university-based scientists since it was established in 1965. It is the philanthropic arm of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association, which is comprised of America's leading research-based pharmaceutical companies.

PATCH GARDEN HOSE

Dear Heloise: Don't throw away a garden hose that has sprung a leak. You can easily repair it using a rubber patch and some adhesive tape. Here's how: Sand the area around the holes lightly with fine sandpaper. You don't have to buy patches — you can cut some from an old rubber tube. Before applying, sand the patch lightly too.

Apply contact cement to both surfaces, let dry to the touch then press firmly over the hole. To keep the patch in place, wrap black electrical tape around it. — John Bradley, Miami, Fla.

CAT CARRIER

Dear Heloise: Last week I had to take my cat to the veterinarian. While I was there I noticed a little kitten in a homemade carrier. The woman had tied two small plastic mesh laundry baskets together, one over the other.

It was perfect! It held the kitten securely and it had plenty of room to move around. — Doris Bradley, Syracuse, N.Y.

That does make a terrific carrying case for cats and puppies. It's especially good because air circulates easily. — Heloise

Dykes' speech highlights Red Raider Day

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

Spike speaks

Texas Tech football coach Spike Dykes spoke to Red Raider fans and boosters Wednesday at the Hereford Country Club as part of Red Raider Day.

If Spike Dykes is as fine a coach as he is an entertainer, the Red Raiders will play in the Cotton Bowl this year.

The Texas Tech football coach spoke to about 75 Raider fans and boosters Wednesday at the Hereford Country Club as part of Red Raider Day in Hereford. He punctuated good news about next year's football team with good lines that kept the crowd chuckling.

He started with some bad news about Brad Smith, in case anyone there didn't already know, he said. Smith, a former Hereford defensive end who went to play at Tech, was advised by doctors not to play football again after a neck injury.

"We were very disappointed," Dykes said. "We think he's a guy who could have made a difference for us."

The rest of the evening was reserved for displays of Dykes' wit.

He defended Tech's most recent recruiting class--one that has been judged by the "experts" as being of low quality. He said recruiting analyst Max Emfinger of Houston rated

Tech's class seventh in the conference.

"O! Max is a genius," Dykes said. "He went to Baylor. He's a genius."

Dykes spoke of the players Tech got that the recruiting analysts don't know about or don't consider--like Shawn Stewart of Farwell.

"We think he's going to be a great player," Dykes said. "Emfinger doesn't know who Stewart is. He doesn't know where Farwell is."

Other players that fall into this category are Alfred Montez, a quarterback from tiny Granada, Colo., where they play eight-man football; and Derrel Mitchell, a wide receiver who was originally recruited by Miami, played two years at Joliet Junior College in Illinois and is now at Tech.

Dykes praised the spring punting work of Mark Bounds, a transfer from West Texas State's defunct football program.

"He can kick it out of sight," Dykes said. "I just don't know if we can cover it. I know--the kid that's been kicking--we can cover him."

Punting problems were probably the biggest cause of last year's loss to Ohio State in Columbus. The punter Dykes sent on the field was playing in his first college game--in front of 92,000 Buckeye fans--and Dykes blamed the punting coach for not preparing him better.

"I should have fired the punting coach in Columbus," he said, "but I didn't know how to fire myself. My wife wouldn't let me; she said 'Give him another chance.'"

Another topic Dykes hit on was tough schedules. Aside from Ohio State, the Raiders' non-conference opponents included Miami, which drubbed Tech 45-10.

Athletic Director T. Jones, who spoke briefly before Dykes, said he had scheduled future games with such schools as Nebraska, Oklahoma, Louisiana State, Colorado and even Miami.

"Spike tells the press it's my schedule and I say it's his," Jones said.

Dykes said he would like a break from the powerhouses.

"T. says he talking to Clemson," Dykes said. "I'm trying to get him to talk to Eastern New Mexico, New Mexico State--get our schedule set up. I feel like I'm a dart board."

This season's non-conference opponents are Cal State-Fullerton, Oregon and Wyoming.

Dykes seemed happy with the people he'll put up against those schools. He spoke of returning stars such as free safety Tracy Saul, middle linebacker Matt Wingo, offensive lineman Charlie Biggers, wide receiver Rodney Blackshear, running back Anthony Lynn and his two quarterbacks with experience, Jamie Gill and Robert Hall.

He said that though the defense was changed to a 3-4 alignment from a 4-3, it's not like the 3-4 is completely foreign.

"We ran that defense last year," he said. "We just didn't call it that."

"(The 3-4) looks good. It fits our personnel great," he said.

He also said the spring emergence of a pair of cornerbacks, Tony Brown and Donny Brooks, has been a pleasant surprise.

He closed by thanking his and the team's supporters. He said that even though the team finished 4-7, there were more people at the games, and they were more enthusiastic.

Earlier, Jones commented on the recent change in basketball coaches. He apologized for one thing: "I do feel the process went on too long," he said.

He called James Dickey an excellent basketball coach, saying he had all the traits that made Gerald Myers a good coach and a good man: integrity, morals, leadership and character.

Myers is in administration for a year, Jones said, after which he will decide if he wants to continue coaching.

Jones reported on the success of spring sports at Tech, particularly the 1991 baseball team. He said they have had to close the gates at the baseball stadium three times recently because they just couldn't fit anyone else in.

Red Raider Day started with a four-man scramble golf tournament at Pitman Municipal course. Three fourosomes tied for the lead at 61, and the winning team was determined by a scorecard playoff starting with the first hole.

The winners turned out to be Dave Workman, Dan McWhorter, Rodney Barrett and Steve Locke, the president of the Red Raider Club. Second place went to Dykes, Danny Haney, John Sherrod and Dave Hopper, the local chairman of the Red Raider Club. In third were Rick Roden, Ted McWhorter, Charles Cabbiness and John Paul Young, one of eight assistant football coaches who made the trip.

Two awards each were given for long drives and closest to the pin. Sherrod had the long drive on Hole No. 7, and Wade Boren had the long drive on No. 15. Roden won both of the closest to the pin awards, on No. 3 and No. 14.

Hereford track team members ready for regional tournament

Members of Hereford High School's track teams will compete Friday and Saturday in the Region 1-4A track meet at Angelo State University in San Angelo.

According to the schedule, which has all events in the afternoon and evening, the first Whitefaces to compete will be Christie Burkhart and Roxann Torres in the discus at 4 p.m. Friday.

At the same time, Leo Brown will long jump. Trainer Ed Morrow said Brown's knee, which was hurting, is fine now. Brown injured it triple jumping last Saturday, but he won't triple jump again until 2 p.m. Saturday. If he gets through the long jump and the 110-meter high hurdles without aggravating the knee, he will triple jump, Morrow said. His hurdles events will be at 6:30 Friday (preliminaries) and 6:45 Saturday (finals).

Teresa Castillo will be in the 3,200 run finals at 5:30 Friday, the 1,600 run finals at 7:50 Saturday, and in the 1,600 relay at 8:10 both days. Jayme

Moore, Jeannie Barrientez and Minerva Salazar also run in the 1,600 relay.

Barrientez will also compete in the 100 hurdles at 6:20 Friday and 6:30 Saturday. Moore is in the 300 hurdles at 7:35 Friday and 7:20 Saturday.

Mark Daniel will throw the discus at 6 Friday, and Stephen Banner is in the 400 run, at 7:20 Friday and 7:10 Saturday.

Of the two boys who were named alternates, only one will make the trip to San Angelo. Cody Page will go in case there is an opening in the shot put, Coach Ron Young said, but high jumper Sean Smith chose not to go.

If one of the two shot putters from District 1-4A cannot compete, Page will put at 7 p.m. Saturday.

Cremins may get Irish job

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) - The clamor of speculation is rising, but Georgia Tech basketball coach Bobby Cremins is keeping his silence.

Broadcast reports suggested that Cremins would be named Notre Dame basketball coach this week to replace Digger Phelps, who retired April 15 after 20 seasons.

Cremins, in Columbia, S.C., for his induction Thursday into the state's Athletic Hall of Fame, wouldn't talk about the Notre Dame job.

Asked about the Notre Dame job Wednesday at a reception for him, Cremins said: "This is a private party. I don't have any comment now."

ESPN reported Tuesday night that Cremins is the leading candidate to replace Phelps. Prime Ticket, a Southern California-based cable TV service, cited unidentified sources in reporting Cremins would be named today.

But Notre Dame athletic director Dick Rosenthal said the school probably won't name a coach this week.

Two of Phelps' former assistants emerged Wednesday as possible replacements.

John Shumate of Southern Methodist said he has accepted Notre Dame's invitation to discuss the job. The Dallas Morning News reported.

Ags' Lewis in rehab

CHICAGO (AP) - Chicago Bears coach Mike Ditka says sixth-round draft choice Darren Lewis of Texas A&M will be welcome at the Bears' rookie camp if he completes a drug treatment program.

"We're going to give Darren a chance to play football as long as his act is clean," Ditka told KHOU-TV on Wednesday in Houston, where he was playing in the Doug Sanders Celebrity Golf Tournament.

Lewis, a halfback known for his rushing abilities, was the only player who tested positive for cocaine at the NFL's scouting evaluations in February. The league sent all test results to each team, but Bears personnel director Bill Tobin said he never saw the letter.

"I'm not going to crucify the guy for one mistake," Ditka said. "Two mistakes and I start thinking he has a problem."

Lewis' agent, Gene Burrough, said Lewis had gone to a rehabilitation center in Houston.

"Darren has admitted himself into a 30-day program as a precaution. Darren did test positive, and we want to make sure it is a one-time occurrence or minor experimentation," Burrough said Wednesday.

"Darren said he experimented sometime after (his senior) season. We want the Bears to see a willingness on his part to help himself," Burrough said.

Kile has no-hitter for 6

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

On a team of no-names, here's a new one to know: Darryl Kile.

Kile made his first major league start a memorable one, holding Cincinnati hitless for six innings Wednesday night. But he was pulled after only 65 pitches and was long gone by the time Bill Doran singled in the ninth for the Reds' first hit.

By the time Houston finally won 1-0 in the 13th inning, Kile was wondering about what could have been, and manager Art Howe was defending the decision to remove him.

"I wanted to stay in the game and I wanted to win the game, but I haven't thrown that much in a long time so he did what he thought was best for me and the team," Kile said.

Said Howe: "It was tough but I didn't want to hurt him. He did his job and kept us in the game and I did my job, and that is to win the game."

The sparse crowd of 10,869 at the Astrodome booed Howe's strategy. They finally got to cheer when Ken Oberkfell singled with two outs in the 13th and runners on first and third.

Kile, 22, made an emergency start because Mark Portugal had a strained groin muscle. Kile struck out five, walked two and did not come close to giving up a hit.

Al Osuna relieved to start the seventh and pitched two hitless innings. Curt Schilling took over to begin the ninth and Doran, traded from Houston to the Reds last August, led off with a clean single to center.

Dwayne Henry (2-0) went the final two innings as four Houston pitchers allowed only three hits.

Jack Armstrong blanked Houston on five hits in eight innings. He struck out eight and walked one.

In the 13th, Rafael Ramirez singled with one out against Scott Scudder (0-1), Craig Biggio walked and Ken Caminiti grounded into a forceout at second base. Oberkfell followed with a soft liner that tipped off the glove of second baseman Mariano Duncan.

In other games, Chicago edged St. Louis 1-0, Los Angeles beat Atlanta 8-4, Pittsburgh downed Montreal 2-1, New York defeated Philadelphia 7-3 and San Francisco beat San Diego 6-1.

Gibson's home run lifts Royals

By The Associated Press

It was Cleveland Stadium in April, not Dodger Stadium in October, but Kirk Gibson was still in his element.

Gibson's dramatic pinch-hit home run in the bottom of the ninth inning won Game 1 of the 1988 World Series and helped the Los Angeles Dodgers upset Oakland. On Wednesday night, his two-out, two-strike, two-run homer tied the game for the Kansas City Royals, who added two more runs in the 10th to beat the Cleveland Indians 4-2.

"Those are the kinds of situations I like," he said after hitting a home run for the fourth straight game, a career best.

Gibson, signed by the Royals as a free agent during the winter, hit the game-tying homer off one of Kansas City's least-favorite pitchers, Doug Jones, who entered the game with a career 1-0 record, 14 saves and an ERA of 0.67 against the Royals.

Jones retired the first two batters he faced, but Gibson hit a 1-2 changeup over the fence in right field for his sixth homer.

He didn't want to compare it to the more famous one he hit off Dennis Eckersley three years ago, but his new teammates still enjoyed it.

"I don't know if anybody else did, but I just kind of sensed it," Kansas City reliever Jeff Montgomery said.

In other American League games, it was California 9, Seattle 5; Minnesota 7, Oakland 4; Toronto 6, Boston 1; Baltimore 5, Chicago 1 and Texas 8, Milwaukee 2. The game between Detroit and the Yankees in New York was rained out.

Approved respirators protect home workers

Installing insulation, staining furniture or just painting an interior wall all have one thing in common, fumes or particles that can enter your lungs. Even wood dust caused by sanding or sawing is considered a hazard by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA).

So, to breathe easier when tackling a DIY project, buy and use an approved respirator. Around the house, comfort masks are acceptable for certain non-toxic activities. But,

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - A California company is suing Zsa Zsa Gabor, claiming she renegeed on a deal to take part in tourists' "fantasy" vacations because she had recently undergone plastic surgery.

The $1.1 million lawsuit filed Tuesday by Hollywood Fantasy Corp. claims Miss Gabor had agreed to act with tourists in San Antonio as part of a fantasy vacation experience. She was to be paid $10,000 plus expenses.

The lawsuit, filed in District Court, claims she canceled the appearances, scheduled for May 2-4, because she recently had plastic surgery and "didn't want anyone except her personal employees to know about it."

Hollywood Fantasy said it had to cancel the event and refund money to those who signed up.

Miss Gabor's publicist, Phil Paladino, called the lawsuit "unnecessary and ridiculous."

Under the contract, Miss Gabor could withdraw if she was offered a "significant" acting job during the same period and informed the company by April 15.

when working with materials that emit fumes or particles, use a respirator that is jointly approved by the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) and the Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA).

Both organizations approved several respirators made by 3M for the do-it-yourself. These include a sanding and fiberglass insulation respirator (#8654), a latex paint and odor respirator (#8656), a wood-working and welding respirator (#8660), and the Easi-Air brand dual cartridge paint and spray respirator (#7018 and #7019).

A respirator must be properly worn and maintained for it to be effective. Here are some tips to follow:

-If you have a history of respiratory problems, including asthma, check with your physician before using a respirator.

-Cartridge-type respirators come in several sizes. Buy the one that fits. Return any respirator that doesn't form a tight fit around your nose and mouth.

-Even while wearing a respirator, ventilate the work area. This reduces the chances of exposure to hazardous materials and increases the life of the respirator.

-Between uses, store a gas/vapor-approved respirator in an airtight container to extend the life of the charcoal filters. It also keeps the facepiece free of sawdust and other debris.

-A gas/vapor respirator has lost its effectiveness when you smell odors through it. Change cartridges in reusable masks and pitch disposables when they clog or wear out.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm one of those fools who is afraid to fly, but I find myself doing a lot of it because it's vital to my business.

Flying for me is so much easier when I get a captain who talks during the flight. I find it comforting just to hear his voice. He tells us where we are and identifies places of interest. He also lets us know when the ride will get a little bumpy and tells us not to worry about it.

When I get a pilot who says, "Prepare for takeoff" and Prepare for landing" and not a word in between, I wonder if maybe the plane is on automatic pilot and the crew is taking a nap or playing gin rummy.

Ann, tell those pilots that a lot of passengers appreciate reassurance when we're up there at 33,000 feet. Emphasize the need for communication. It makes the flight more pleasant and I sweat less. -- Phobic in Harrisburg

DEAR HARRISBURG: Here's your letter. I'm sure you speak for a lot of people, but you don't speak for everybody. Please read on:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'll come right to the point and hope you will print what I have to say. I sell sporting goods equipment. My job takes me all over the country. I travel 10 months out of the year and spend half of my life in planes.

Will you please tell the "wannabe" disc jockeys who fly those babies to stay off the public address system? They are tiresome and annoying. Those of us who want to sleep, read or do paperwork have the right not to be talked to death. Would you believe one pilot of a major airline actually sang?

Thanks for whatever you can do to protect the inalienable rights of passengers to enjoy peace and tranquility when we travel. -- Joe in San Francisco

DEAR JOE: Here's your letter. I, too, am a frequent flyer who enjoys peace and tranquility and I cannot remember the last time I encountered a gabby pilot. None ever sang.

Those of you who want to register a complaint will find the address of the airline's home office in the pocket of the seat ahead of you. If you want to say something complimentary about the service, that would be nice, too.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm writing to you because over the years I have followed your column and based many of my decisions on what you have written.

I'm a middle-aged law enforcement officer in Nevada. I live in a county where prostitution is legal. My problem is that I get no thrill when I'm with a legal prostitute, so I find myself drifting over to the big city across the county line where prostitution is against the law. I realize that this is illegal and probably unsafe, but it seems to be the only way I can get any satisfaction.

I have been married by after my divorce I had a very unhappy experience that soured me on serious relationships. Now I prefer to have sex with professionals and keep things strictly business.

Why am I like this? Going to the department doctor to find out might affect my job, so that's out. I really need to hear from you, Ann. -- Honest But Active in Nevada

DEAR HONEST: The answer is in the Bible, the book of Genesis. It's the story about the forbidden fruit. You sound like a nice guy who lacks confidence. Stop going to prostitutes. (Ever heard of AIDS?) Spend that money on counseling and get your act together.

Senator Teel Bivins Reports

AUSTIN - I had a good deal of fun this week asking my colleagues in the Senate if they had a state championship girls' basketball team from any division. Most of them just gave me a blank look. A couple who follow high school basketball responded to my question with a smile and the answer, "Heck no, Senator, you've got them all." They are right. In what I believe is a first in the history of high school basketball, all five divisional state championships were won by teams from Senate District 31. The team members and the coaches from Nazareth, Tulla, Abernathy, Levelland and Amarillo Tascosa are to be heartily congratulated for their achievements.

In the 71st regular session, the following six special sessions and the first two months of the 72nd session, the debate over education has focused primarily on how we pay for it. Senate Bill 1 which passed in the sixth special session contained significant education reforms that were not struck down by the Supreme Court in the second Edgewood case. Though these reforms received little press, I feel strongly that they will go a long way toward returning control of our schools to parents, principals and teachers.

With the exception of Carter High School in Dallas, high school athletics have received little attention in the education debates during the last three years. I think this is due in large part to the fact that the system is working. Interscholastic athletics play a very valuable role in the education of those who are fortunate enough to participate. I say fortunate because not everyone has the ability to make the team. (I never did.) But for those who do there are invaluable lessons to be learned.

Volumes have been written on teamwork, discipline and goal setting. But participating in a team sport gives the student a learning medium far more vivid than most textbooks. Every girl on every one of these state championship teams can tell you the value of hard work otherwise known as practice, practice; discipline otherwise known as training, training and more training; and goal setting otherwise known as staying focused on winning one game at a time. These lessons will likely be remembered unlike those of world history and Latin verb conjugation. They will serve these girls well for the rest of their lives.

I introduced and passed in the Senate a resolution commemorating the accomplishment of each of these teams. Such a resolution is a way for the Texas Senate to give a pat on the back to the girls, the coaches and the schools that made these state championships happen. Education means many things to many people. The meaning and content of public education has been debated endlessly in the Texas Legislature. In my book, the vitally important lessons of team work, training, discipline and goal setting are an integral part of a quality education.

Summer food safety tips

Whether fried, grilled or part of a refreshing salad, chicken and turkey are summertime favorites. Yet summer's heat and hectic schedules cause many of us to take shortcuts when preparing poultry.

"Because we serve poultry so often this time of year, it's important that everyone understand the basic rules of preparing and handling poultry products," states Tom Hoes, director of research and quality of WLR Foods, Inc., one of the nation's leading poultry producers. He offers the following tips:

1. Keep fresh poultry cold. Do not allow these products to linger in the car after purchase. Keep them refrigerated below 40 degrees F.
2. Use fresh poultry within one to two days after purchase. Tightly wrap extra portions and freeze. Always thaw frozen poultry in the refrigerator.
3. Wash your hands before and after handling fresh poultry.
4. When cutting up chicken or turkey, make sure your cutting board and knife are clean. Wash all utensils and the cutting board with soap and very hot water immediately after use. Do not use the same cutting board for fresh produce or other foods that will be served.
5. Always be sure to marinate fresh chicken in the refrigerator; never leave it at room temperature. When using the marinade for basting grilled poultry, be sure it is thoroughly heated before serving.

6. Chicken and turkey should be cooked to an internal temperature of 180 degrees F. Juices should run clear without a trace of red.

7. When picnicking, keep chicken and turkey salads in thermal ice chests until ready to serve. If you are taking fresh poultry to grill on site, make sure it is kept well-chilled.

Dr. Hoes suggests preparing this recipe as a delicious test of your poultry handling knowledge:

GRILLED LEMON CHICKEN BREASTS

- 1/4 cup extra virgin olive oil
- 1/3 cup lemon juice
- 1 clove garlic, crushed
- 3 chicken breast halves split, skinned and boned
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 1/4 cup dry white wine
- 1 tablespoon seasoned salt

In shallow dish, combine olive oil, lemon juice and garlic. Add chicken breasts and turn to coat with marinade. Cover, refrigerate for two to three hours. In a non-aluminum pan, melt butter, wine, and seasoned salt. Remove chicken breasts from marinade and add marinade to butter sauce. Bring to boil. Remove from heat. Grill breasts over medium coals approximately five minutes per side. Baste frequently with butter and wine sauce.

How to start a school recycling program

Starting a school recycling program is a fun way to get children involved in conservation. School recycling programs help to teach children the importance of recycling and saving natural resources. Here are some suggestions for getting started:

* Form a recycling committee of people who are interested in starting a school program. The committee should include parents, students, teachers, school administrators and, if possible, a school custodian.

Public invited to plant sale

L'Allegra Study Club members will hold their annual benefit geranium sale from 4-6 p.m. Friday and beginning at 9 a.m. Saturday in the Atrium.

Proceeds will be used by the Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross to purchase mannequins for its CPR training classes and for other expenses.

Lodge to host PAOF

Hereford Rebekah Lodge 228 met Tuesday in regular session for the final preparations to host Panhandle Association of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs.

Visitors from lodges throughout the Panhandle and South Plains will be welcomed.

Noble Grand Jo Irlbeck presided with 21 members present. Ten visits to the sick, 48 cheer cards, eight dishes of food and one flower was reported.

Ursalee Jacobsen was hostess to Irlbeck, Faye Brownlow, Shirley Brown, Genevieve Lynn, Connie Ivey, Gene Ivey, Sadie Shaw, Ben Conklin, Anna Conklin, Dorothy Lundry, Susie Curtisinger, Lydia Hopson, Ocie Bolton, Tony Irlbeck, Mary Lou Weatherford, Erma Loving, Jim Loving, Stella Hershey, Leona Sowell and Verna Sowell.

* Decide what can be recycled. The easiest way is to dump a representative trash container on a tarp and make a list of the recyclable items. Ask the school custodian for additional ideas. Consult with the local recycling coordinator or department of public works to determine which items are recycled in your area, and whether recyclables must be sorted or can be mixed together ("commingled").

* Some common school recyclables include: white paper, cans, bottles, newspapers and corrugated boxes. Make sure to ask local recycling officials whether you can recycle plastic milk jugs, soda bottles, or juice boxes.

* Research who will pick up the recyclables. Many communities have municipal programs. Check with your local government, or look for a company that will haul the collection to a recycling center in the telephone directory under "recycling." Don't get discouraged if some haulers charge for removing your recyclables -- see if you can convince a company to donate its services to the school or reduce their fees in exchange for local publicity.

* Coordinate with teachers to designate a weekly recycling monitor in each classroom. The student monitor will make sure that recyclable materials are placed in the proper receptacles.

* If recyclables are source separated, place paper recycling bins next to trash cans in offices and classrooms, glass and can bins in cafeterias and teachers' lounges. Make sure the bins are clearly marked for each material being recycled.

* Make sure the bins meet your school's fire code. Stackable plastic bins are a safe alternative to cardboard boxes, and come in bright colors which are easily identified by children.

* Getting school children involved in recycling efforts is easy. Classes can keep track of how many trees the school has saved through recycling, or how many soda cans have been reused, with an award for the class that saves the most.

For a free list of the ways recycling saves energy and the environment, write to Tucker Houseware, Recycling Dept., 25 Tucker Drive, Leominster, Ma. 01453.

What expecting parents should expect from baby

Brown hair, blue eyes...and allergies? Your baby can inherit them all. In fact, according to Dr. William J. Davis, Director-Allergy, Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center, New York City, "for 80 percent of America's 40 million allergy-prone people, runny noses, itchy eyes and seasonal discomforts are inherited."

Although expecting parents can't change baby's genes, they can make changes in the environment which, ideally, will lessen baby's exposure to harmful indoor allergens. Limiting exposure can reduce the frequency and severity of allergic attacks. The following measures, combined with an awareness of family medical history, can help moms-and-dads-to-be make baby's first years, healthy years:

- Keep the room dust-free...remove unnecessary carpets, knick-knacks, heavy draperies and stuffed toys. These are dust collectors.
- Avoid feather pillows. They are breeding grounds for house dust mites, the primary trigger of allergy and asthma attacks.
- Avoid woolen bedding and clothing. These fabrics cannot be washed in water at high temperatures, so dust mites settle into them and never leave.
- Wash and rinse baby's bedding and clothing thoroughly (add an extra rinse cycle through the washer, without soap or fabric softener) to get rid of clinging pollens and dust mites.
- Use unscented and dye-free baby care products. Sensitivities to perfumed lotions and powders can provoke allergic reactions.
- If you have pets, bathe them frequently and keep them out of baby's room.

Clean vaporizers and humidifiers at least twice a week. They produce molds and create the moist environments in which dust mites thrive. Use distilled water instead of tap water. Allergy specialists advocate environmental control as the first step in effective allergy management. However, even the most stringent house keeping measures cannot prevent from developing allergies, particularly if runny noses and itchy eyes are common family traits. When baby is born, parents should observe his or her reactions to the environment and food. Often chronic runny noses and coughs are mistaken for colds. If symptoms arise and persist, discuss them with a pediatrician or an allergy specialist who can help determine the source of the problem and recommend safe, effective treatments.

MILLERSVILLE, Md. (AP) - Schoolchildren screamed and their teachers giggled and took pictures. The reason for all the excitement at Millersville Elementary School? Arnold Schwarzenegger. The body builder turned movie star is the chairman of the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports. He dropped by Wednesday to encourage students, teachers and administrators to shape up. Youth fitness "is in terrible shape, and it is deteriorating. It's going downhill at a very rapid rate," Schwarzenegger said.

NBA playoffs start tonight

By The Associated Press

Gerald Wilkins, who returns to the New York Knicks tonight after being sidelined for three weeks with a sprained ankle, has a nightmarish assignment in their first NBA playoff game against the Chicago Bulls.

Wilkins, not expected to start because of his long layoff, had only three days of practice to prepare for Michael Jordan, the leading scorer in playoff history.

"I always look forward to playing him," Wilkins said. "I accept it as a challenge. I have nothing to lose. Whenever I play him, I just try to play him physical and make him work."

Jordan has averaged 35.8 points in 53 career playoff games, a performance so dominant that he could go scoreless for 12 games and still be ranked ahead of the No. 2 career scorer, Jerry West, who averaged 29.1.

Tonight's game at Chicago is one of five best-of-5 first-round series openers - along with Philadelphia at Milwaukee, Golden State at San Antonio, Houston at the Los Angeles Lakers and Utah at Phoenix.

The other three series start Friday night with Indiana at Boston, Atlanta at Detroit and Seattle at Portland.

Jordan averaged 31.5 this season to win his fifth consecutive scoring title, and 30.0 in four victories over the Knicks. If Wilkins doesn't start, Jordan would be guarded by Trent Tucker, a solid defender but not as quick as Wilkins.

New York, the only losing team in the playoffs at 39-43, also needs more production from Patrick Ewing if it is to seriously challenge Chicago, the top-seeded team in the East with franchise-best 61-21 record. The Bulls also have won 13 consecutive games over the Knicks at Chicago Stadium.

Ewing, fifth in the NBA in scoring with a 26.6 average, managed just 20.3 in four games against the Bulls and went to the free-throw line just 13 times.

"You don't get fouls by shooting jumpers," Knicks coach John MacLeod said. "We want Patrick to take it to the hole. There are times for him to shoot the 15-footer, but primarily I want him in the low post. I'd like him to get 13 free throws in one game."

While Wilkins hopes to return from injury, two NBA superstars also enter the playoffs at less than full speed.

Charles Barkley of Philadelphia missed seven of the last 10 games with a strained ligament in his left knee. Boston's Larry Bird missed 22 games with a bad back and is reportedly set for surgery after the playoffs.

Philadelphia coach Jim Lynam said he won't force the issue with Barkley's tender knee.

"I'll have to play it by ear," Lynam said. "He won't play 48 minutes the first night."

Bird missed seven of Boston's last eight games and may sit out Friday's playoff opener against Indiana. The Boston Globe quoted an unidentified source as saying Bird had already agreed to surgery for a compressed nerve root.

Injuries also are a factor for Phoenix, where Kevin Johnson has a sore hamstring and has been battling allergies since last Sunday. Tom Chambers has been taking traction treatments for his ailing lower back and Dan Majerle still has recurring weakness in his right thigh.
