Recollections

Grant Hanna, left, of Hereford, shares a laugh with Italian visitors during dedication ceremonies on Sunday at the chapel at the site of the Hereford POW Camp. Hanna was a mess sergeant at the camp, and the guests from Italy were among the over 7,000 prisoner who had been held at the camp. They returned to the area to dedicate the refurbishing of the chapel the prisoners had built while imprisoned here. The chapel was built as a memorial to five POWs who died while being held here.

POW chapel dedicated

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

For years the chapel at the Hereford Prisoner of War Camp south of here had stood as one of two reminders of what had been a prison for over 7,000 Italian prisoners during and after World War II.

It had also been a place where some persons had honed the sights of their firearms, and where vandals had carved their names and initials.

On Sunday the fully-restored chapel, minus the nicks, carvings and bullet pock-marks and restored to its original condition, was rededicated in ceremonies sponsored by the Castro County Historical Commission.

Also on hand were 22 former Italian prisoners of war and representatives of POWs. Some of the POWs were the ones who had built the chapel in 1945 as part of a small cemetery for five of their comrades who had died while imprisoned here.

It was rededicated Sunday not for what it was, but for what the Americans, Italians and others hope it will be: a symbol of peace.

"You came here 45 years ago as our enemy. Today you come bonded in friendship and peace," said Hereford Mayor Wes Fisher in his welcoming remarks. "This chapel will forever stand in memory of your brave comrades who died here, and to remind us of what happened."

"Let this chapel stand as a reminder to us to create an enduring peace," said

Dimmitt Mayor Wayne Collins in his remarks. "... Let this chapel be a beacon to leaders everywhere ... that tyranny and brutality cannot and will not be tolerated."

Aurelio Manzoni, one of the former POWs who was making his second trip to the chapel site, echoed the words of the mayors in accepting the restored chapel.

He spoke of how Americans and Italians had been enemies in "a war which I have always called our civil war," Manzoni said. "We hope this achievement will remain for many years to represent the friendship between our nations."

The POWs and other visitors were visibly moved by the restoration. Some of the Italians visiting on Sunday had visited the site in April 1988, when a concrete apron had been poured around the base of the chapel to prevent further erosion to the building's foundation but little else had been done. Others hadn't seen the chapel since their return to Italy.

In the past few weeks, volunteers have worked constantly to restore the chapel to its almost-new condition.

Charles Schlabs, who now owns the land on which the chapel and other remains of the POW are located, and his employees have constructed a washed-pebble walkway and a fence surrounding the chapel.

The fence is made of steel posts that look much like the posts that surrounded the camp. At the top, however, the fence ells outside, not inside. While that's to help keep out those who don't belong inside, the outward ells also serve as a symbol of freedom.

The fence is made of barbed wire that originally surrounded the camp.

Other volunteers, most representing the Castro County Historical Commission, and Eddie Guffee of the Llano Estacado Museum at Wayland Baptist University in Plainview have done most of the other restoration work.

Plexiglass windows have been put back in the original windows, framed in wood painted the same color as the original frames. The doors are also replicas of the originals.

Inside the chapel, a bas-relief sculpture has been restored by Candace Keller, director of the art department at Wayland. The original sculpture was done by Renaldi Rimini, a private when he was captured in North Africa. Rimini became a famed sculptor in Italy before his death.

A new wooden cross is on the wall above the altar. The cross was made of the same type of wood and is an exact replica of the cross that was originally hung there by the POWs.

A new addition that will go inside the chapel is a replica of a 14th Century Italian artwork, presented by the former POWs.

Outside the chapel are two flagpoles on which the American and Italian flags were posted by cadets of the Hereford Civil Air Patrol.

"This is so beautiful," said one of the former POWs through an interpreter. As he fought back tears, he stood in front of the chapel and stared, the first time he had seen the chapel since his repatriation in 1946. "I thank the people who did this. We built this little place in memory of our comrades. It is just beautiful."

"They didn't want to leave the Panhandle and leave their five comrades buried on the plains without some kind of marker," said Guffee.

Another addition outside the chapel, unveiled by the Italians on Sunday, is a marble marker with the names of the five POWs who died here, including Lt. Evaristo Fava, Pvt. Innocente Orvelli, Capt. Renzo Banzi, Sgt. Giulio Zomboni and Cpl. Pierluigi Berticelli.

Although it was known for many years that there bodies had been disinterred, it was thought their remains had been sent to Italy for reburial there. When it was learned that was not the case, authorities searched for years before discovering that the bodies had been reinterred in a military cemetery in El Reno, Okla.

The former POWs were to remain in the area through today. On Monday night, they saw the musical drama Texas at Palo Duro Canyon State Park. Today, they have been visiting sites around Hereford, including a feedyard, the county museum, and other places, and were treated to lunch at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

City hears EDC report

By SAM WALLER
Brand Staff Writer

The Hereford City Commission on Monday night heard a report on the progress of the Hereford Area Economical Development Committee.

Commissioner Bud Eades, who also serves as the volunteer director for the EDC, told the commission the EDC is targeting food-related businesses in its efforts to bring more industry to the area.

"We have made proposals to four food-related firms who are considering moving to Hereford," Eades said. He added that he planned to attend a three-day food fair in Chicago on behalf of the EDC. More than 200 food processing firms are expected to attend.

Eades said the main objective of the EDC was to establish a "food park" around the old Swift plant, now owned by Garth Merrick, and on the nearby Reinauer property.

The area would need improved waste disposal facilities, Eades reported, but up to 60 percent of the needed funding could be provided from government grants for economic development.

After Eades' presentation, EDC chairman John Perrin gave a report on the group's financial standing.

Perrin said the EDC had been pledged $48,000 by both the city and Deaf Smith County and had a total income of $81,073 through the end of May with total expenses of $31,614 for the same period.

Perrin said that left the EDC with a balance of $49,459 with another $19,111 to be received from the county.

Perrin pointed out that the EDC's operating expenses, which have been running about $2,000 a month, are lower than expected because Eades is serving in a volunteer capacity. Most comparable bodies have a salaried, full-time executive director.

Mike Carr, executive vice president of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, told the Commission the EDC and the Chamber have complimented one another in their efforts to attract new businesses.

"But economic development does not start and stop with the Chamber of Commerce and the EDC," Carr said. "Local residents need to be involved."

Carr also gave a report from the Chamber's Beautification Committee, updating the commissioners on efforts to make the city more attractive.

In other business, the Commission decided to cancel the scheduled July 3 meeting because of the Fourth of July holiday.

6 inducted into CHOF

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Six persons were inducted into the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center on Saturday as part of the CHOF's annual festivities.

Past and present honorees were feted at the annual Reunion supper on Friday, a luncheon on Saturday afternoon where the 1989 honorees were installed into the CHOF, the Rhinestone Roundup on Saturday night and a farewell breakfast on Sunday morning.

This year's inductees included Western Heritage honorees Hildred Goodwine, a painter from Yarnell, Ariz., Norma Sanders, the first female auctioneer, of Texico, N.M., and Georgie Sicking of Fallon, Nev., the CHOF's first woman cowboy poet; and Cowgirl honorees, the late Vaughn Krieg of Oklahoma and Colorado, the late Ruth Roach Salmon of Nocona, and Joan Wells of Lincoln, Neb., the CHOF's first trick rope artist to be inducted.

At the luncheon, Kim Moore and Mark Luchsinger read biographies of each of the honorees as a slide presentation depicting their lives flashed on a screen behind them. Each of the honorees was formally inducted by CHOF President Margaret Formby.

Each was also presented with special gifts by Boyd Foster of Arrowhead Mills; Donna West, president of the women's division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce; Chamber President Rocky Lee; and Hereford Mayor Wes Fisher.

The luncheon guests were also treated to original poetry from Mrs. Sicking and by Rhonda Coy Sedgwick, a 1977 Cowgirl honoree.

A portrait of Faye Blackstone, a 1982 Cowgirl honoree, was unveiled at the luncheon. The portrait was painted by Joe Venus of Sandy, Utah, and is on the cover of the 1989 edition of Sidesaddle magazine.

Bill Allen, CHOF board chairman, was the master of ceremonies at the luncheon.

A large crowd attended the annual Rhinestone Roundup on Saturday night at the CHOF. A variety of goods were purchased during live and silent auctions, and the crowd was treated by live music by Sandy Walden and Obsession and a trick rope demonstration by Wells.

WT survey: A&M's top choice

A proposed merger between West Texas State University and the Texas A&M system could be introduced during the upcoming special session, according to State Rep. John Smithee.

"I'm really waiting to see what the board of regents wants," Smithee said last week. "If the board of regents tells me to file a bill, I will." He said it appears that if there is a merger, it will be with A&M.

Eighty-five percent of the Panhandle residents responding to a recent survey favor the merger of WTSU with another university, according to Jim Matthews of the Panhandle Area Alliance. He announced Thursday the results of the survey mailed and placed in area newspapers.

Citizen opinion is one of the factors to be considered as WT regents decide whether a merger would have more benefits than drawbacks. The survey did not ask which university would be favored in a merger.

When asked to rate the academic quality of WTSU, 45 percent of the respondents rated it as average and 31 percent as high. Half of the respondents said there is a need for more research at WTSU.

Eighty-six percent strongly agreed that a high quality university is vital and significant to the culture and lifestyle of the region. Seventy-nine percent strongly agreed that WTSU is vital and significant to the region's economic growth and development.

Asked if WTSU is vital to the pride of the region, 72 percent strongly agreed and 21 percent agreed. Only 4 percent disagreed and 1.4 percent strongly disagreed.

When asked to rate overall support for the proposed merger, 61 percent strongly agreed, 23 percent agreed, 5 percent disagreed and 9 percent strongly disagreed.

REP. SMITHEE

Results of the WT merger survey

- 85 percent of respondents feel WT should merge with another university.
- 86 percent felt WT was 'vital and significant' to the region's culture.
- 93 percent said WT was vital to the pride of the region.
- 76 percent said the university's academics were 'average' or 'high.'
- 79 percent said WT would be important in economic development.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:

We will miss Harold Sanders Jr. He never scored any touchdowns nor a basket in the last seconds. He didn't have an basehit, but he did have one "grand slam" . . . his faith and actions in God.

The faith he exhibited was of clean morals, and a strong belief in God that will carry his family through more trials in this life. Our youth could learn from Junior's example of Godly devotion. Peer pressure did not motivate him; he stood strong on his faith but this didn't take away friends of all races. Junior's faith was evident to all of us. He believed in the Lord's Prayer and in the words, "let Your kingdom come and Thy will be done on earth . . ." Only then will true peace come for all.

Harold's ministry, or service to others--especially to his family--will be missed but not forgotten. He knew exactly what the future holds for all men.

We all loved Harold Sanders Jr.
Sincerely,
Jesse Grijalva family

Lawmakers are back in session

AUSTIN (AP) - Legislators returned to the Capitol today for a 30-day special session on workers' compensation reform, a problem so knotty that the full overtime period likely will be needed to unravel it, a key lawmaker says.

"I would be amazed if it takes less than 30 days," said Rep. Richard Smith, R-Bryan, author of the House's workers' comp bill.

The session was to begin at 2 p.m. today, having been called by Gov. Bill Clements even before the 1989 Legislature's regular session ended May 29.

The highly controversial system for paying benefits for workers who suffer injuries or death on the job is under attack from all quarters.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, June 20, the 171st day of 1989. There are 194 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On June 20, 1963, the United States and Soviet Union signed an agreement to set up a hot line between the two superpowers.

On this date: In 1632, the English Crown granted the second Lord Baltimore settlement rights to an area surrounding Chesapeake Bay, most of which would later become Maryland.

In 1756, in India, a group of British soldiers was captured and imprisoned in a suffocating cell that became known as the Black Hole of Calcutta. Most of the men died.

In 1782, Congress approved the Great Seal of the United States. In 1791, King Louis XVI of France attempted to flee the country, but was caught.

In 1837, Queen Victoria ascended the British throne following the death of her uncle, King William IV.

In 1833, West Virginia became the 35th state. In 1893, children's rhymes notwithstanding, a jury in New Bedford, Mass., found Lizzie Borden innocent of the ax murders of her father and stepmother.

In 1947, President Harry S. Truman vetoed the Taft-Hartley Act, but was immediately overridden by the House of Representatives. (The Senate voted to override June 23.)

In 1947, reputed gangster Benjamin "Bugsy" Siegel was shot dead at a mansion in Beverly Hills, Calif.

In 1948, the variety series "Toast of the Town," hosted by Ed Sullivan, premiered on CBS-TV.

In 1967, boxer Muhammad Ali was convicted in Houston of violating Selective Service laws by refusing to be drafted. (Ali's conviction was ultimately overturned by the U.S. Supreme Court.)

In 1977, oil began flowing through the recently completed trans-Alaskan pipeline from Prudhoe Bay. (The first crude arrived in Valdez, some 800 miles to the south, 38 days later.)

Ten years ago: In a scene captured on videotape and shown worldwide, ABC News correspondent Bill Stewart was shot to death in Managua, Nicaragua, by a member of President Anastasio Somoza's national guard.

Five years ago: A sharply divided House of Representatives adopted an immigration bill designed to discourage foreigners from breaching U.S. borders while granting amnesty to millions of illegal aliens who met certain conditions.

One year ago: The U.S. Supreme Court unanimously upheld a New York City law making it illegal for private clubs to generally exclude women and minorities.

Today's birthdays: Guitarist Chet Atkins is 65. Singer-songwriter Brian Wilson is 47. Singer Anne Murray is 44. Actress Candy Clark is 42. Singer Cyndi Lauper is 36. Rock musician John Taylor is 29.

Thought for today: "History, in general, only informs us what bad government is." - Thomas Jefferson (1743-1826).

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDER: I am a 21-year-old girl who was dating a great guy. He is 27, sophisticated, fun to be with, and I felt so lucky to be going out with him.

He invited me to go to San Francisco for the weekend. I couldn't get off work and felt awful about it. He said, "I'll bring you back something nice." Well, what he brought back was herpes.

I am so furious I feel like screaming. Of course I have stopped seeing him, but I am afraid to go out with anyone else. I would rather die than give somebody what that "great guy" gave me.

A really sweet fellow who works in this office has asked me out, but I'm scared to get involved. My whole life seems wrecked. I'm angry and depressed and feel as if I'm not worthy of a decent man. I know this is a terrible attitude for a 21-year-old. Can you help me--Typhoid Mary in Amarillo, Tex.

DEAR AMARILLO: You don't say anything about seeing a doctor. This is an absolute must. Don't attempt to treat yourself.

If misery loves company, you have plenty. There are now about 40 million Americans with genital herpes. About 500,000 new cases occur each year.

Herpes cases range from mild to miserable. Mental attitude can be an enormous factor in how it affects you. Almost as bad as the physical discomfort is the damage to self-esteem. Too often it is viewed as the modern-day leprosy. This need not be.

Please contact an organization called Herpes Resource Center (HRC). This is a nonprofit organization that gives the latest information on herpes. There are about 90 local "HELP" support groups in 38 states, Canada, and Australia. The group meetings are completely confidential. You can call the Herpes Hotline, (415) 328-7710, Monday through Friday from noon until 4:30 p.m. Pacific Time. If the phones are jammed, write HRC, P.O. Box 13827L, Research Triangle Park, N.C. 27709. And please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with 45 cents return postage.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When my husband and I dine out, our miniature poodle, Sherri, anxiously awaits the doggie bag we bring home.

Recently, upon returning from dinner, I put the remainder of my Hungarian goulash into Sherri's dish and began to straighten up the kitchen.

Seconds later Sherri began to go through all sorts of strange contortions. I could see that she was in agony. I suddenly realized that my adorable pet was choking on a piece of meat.

I was panic-stricken. Would she die right in front of my eyes? What could I do to save her?

I am a teacher who was trained to use the Heimlich Maneuver. Would it work on an animal? I had nothing to lose. I sat on the floor, put Sherri upright in my lap and pressed below the breastbone. On the third try the meat flew out. She appeared to be fine. Five minutes later she was pestering me to play ball.

If it worked for Sherri, it should work for other pets. Please share this with your readers.--J.H., Collinsville, Conn.

DEAR J.H.: With pleasure. Here it is; thanks for writing.

DEAR READERS: The author of that lovely essay, "Just a Nurse's Aide," has surfaced. He is George M. Molloy of Vero Beach, Fla. Thanks, George, for letting us know.

The flying fish, when pursued by enemies, can soar above the water from two to 15 seconds and cover distances of 45 to 200 yards.

BE FAIR WITH SELF
By Bob Wear

It is generally taught that we should be kind, understanding, wholesomely tolerant, patient and forbearing in our attitudes toward others. Accepting these conclusions, it seems appropriate that the self be considered, too.

If the conclusion is justified regarding our attitudes toward others, it is also justified in our attitudes toward self. We must be fair with self.

Most of us live under considerable pressure, but we must not add to this condition by assuming an unjustified and unreasonable spirit of harshness in our self expectations. Of course, no one recommends softness or lack of wise self discipline. It is not a life of ease or a life of irresponsible behavior that is recommended. It is right, however, to be fair with self.

It is right that we should do our best in the management and direction of self; but even this maximum effort must be accompanied with a constant determination to be fair with self. We will fall short sometimes; we will fail. Even so, this unhappy experience must be viewed with kindness, patience and wholesome acceptance. Otherwise, we are being unfair with self, and this is never justified.

"Beyond wholesome discipline, be gentle with yourself. You are a child of the universe no less than the trees and the stars; you have a right to be here."--Anon. Anything less than this manner of consideration is unfair to the self.

If we expect things of ourselves which are obviously beyond our reach, and continue efforts to do things that we cannot possibly do, we are being unreasonable and cruel with ourselves. It is very important that we treat the self with kindness, justice, and the wisest possible feeling of understanding; because this is fair.

Fairness with self includes recognition and acceptance of limitations, and the sensible recognition of our possibilities.

TAXES

On Monday June 12th, your county commissioners voted unanimously to propose a 7.999% increase in county taxes. If this increase had exceeded 8.00%, taxpayers would have had the option to call for a rollback election.

You, as a registered voter, have an opportunity to voice your concerns in regard to this proposal during a public hearing June 26th, 1989 at 6 p.m. in the Commissioner's Courtroom of the Deaf Smith County Courthouse.

what we feel is a totally unwarranted

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am trying to lose weight and am thinking of using exercise rather than diet. Some of my friends say that exercise will not cause you to lose weight, that you have to diet. Are they right? If I can lose weight with exercise, how much exercise should I do? How many miles would I have to walk to lose a pound? Is running better than walking to lose weight?

I'd like to lose about 10 pounds and firm up my body so I'll look better and feel better.

DEAR READER: Exercise for most healthy people is the best way to lose weight. You lose calories from your body through your skin as heat. Exercise stimulates the heat-loss mechanism in your brain and the heat begins to come out through your skin. If you exercise vigorously enough, the brain turns on your evaporative cooling mechanism to lose calories; this is the sweating mechanism.

No. You don't have to go on a severe calorie-restricted diet, but you need to eat a sensible balanced diet without an excess of calories, and the exercise will help you adjust to what you should weigh.

For an average adult it takes about 60 more calories to walk a mile than if you sat still the same length of time. Since there are 3,500 calories in a pound of body fat, that means you have to walk about 60 miles to use the calories in one pound of body fat. Don't let that stop you. If you walk just two miles a day, that would use the calories in about 12 pounds of fat in a year's time. And that is a slow, healthy way to lose fat.

I have discussed how you can use exercise to lose weight in Special Report 74, Exercise to Control Body Fat, which I'm sending you. Others who want this report can send $1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/74, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

Since most people can walk farther than they can run, walking is often the best exercise to eliminate the most calories. You might use 90 calories running a mile, but how many miles can you run? It is more likely that you could walk two miles and use 120 calories.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My mother passed away very suddenly. The doctor said an autopsy revealed the cause of death was a mesenteric infarction. There was nothing that could have prevented it and there is no test to detect it — a one-in-a-million accident. Is there anything more you can tell me, and is it as uncommon as they claim?

DEAR READER: It certainly is uncommon, but it happens. Your mother had an obstruction of the arteries that supply the intestines.

There are three major arteries that originate from the front of the abdominal aorta and supply oxygenated blood to the intestinal tract and abdominal organs. You can have disease of these arteries just as you develop disease of the arteries to the heart. Because the arteries overlap in supplying the intestine, a person may have considerable disease and not have any symptoms. Others have pain in the abdomen after eating, called abdominal angina. Your abdominal organs need increased blood flow after eating for digestion. When it cannot be provided, abdominal pain occurs.

The arteries may be suddenly occluded also, causing death of the intestinal area supplied by the occluded artery or arteries. It is difficult or impossible to diagnose or to anticipate. Once too much of the bowel is infarcted, there is little or nothing that can be done.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Uncle Hugo is 94 years old, is active and drives a car. He had a heart attack 30 years ago. His problem is involuntary muscle contractions while asleep. His leg and shoulder jump for about two or three hours or until he gets out of bed and starts to walk. This happens about every seven to 10 days. His blood pressure and all other functions are normal. He does all his own cooking and eats only natural foods, fruits, vegetables, wheat and lamb. His medications include Lasix, Pronestyl and Coumadin. Your help would be appreciated.

DEAR READER: Uncle Hugo is a lucky man. His medications indicate that he does have heart trouble and takes medicine to help prevent the accumulation of fluid, heart irregularities and to decrease the risk of blood clot formation.

I can't be sure from your description what is happening when he goes to bed. Restless legs might fit, but with the shoulder involvement and the "jerks" you may simply be describing myoclonic jerks. Both are more annoying than harmful and are often signs of an overactive nervous system. Some people with such symptoms improve by avoiding caffeine. A muscle stretching routine before going to bed might help. Tegretol (carbamazepine) and muscle relaxants such as Liorsal are sometimes prescribed for restless legs and clonazepam (Klonopin) for myoclonic jerks.

Low levels of sodium and potassium could be a factor and might be related to the Lasix which he needs.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

These days, actor Dennis Quaid is responding to her and she said she likes it.

"It's so precious to us. I don't mind telling people we're in love 'cause that's true," said Ryan, who has appeared in "Top Gun," "Presidio," and "When Harry Met Sally."

Two former Italian prisoners of war who returned to Hereford on Sunday stand next to a marble monument to stand at the chapel at the old POW camp. The monument is dedicated to the memory of five Italians who died while at the Hereford camp.

Senior meeting scheduled

A second meeting of senior parents will be held Monday, June 26, at 7:30 p.m. at Sirlain Stockade.

All interested parents of Hereford High School seniors are invited to attend. Senior class officers who will be present include the president, vice president, and secretary.

The group will be served a meal at 6:45 p.m. prior to the meeting.

The purpose of the meeting is to make plans for fundraisers for next year's prom and banquet.

Senior parents and officers held their first meeting June 12 at Sirlain Stockade and discussed potential themes for the prom and banquet.

Like Boston, New Jersey had a "tea party" during the mounting friction between the colonies and Great Britain. At Greenwich, near Delaware Bay, men in Indian costumes burned a shipload of tea from England in 1774.

Weight loss can be a gain

Losing excess pounds can be a gain in the fight against heart disease.

Together, diseases of the heart and blood vessels, are America's number one killer. But monitoring your weight is a good defense, according to the American Heart Association.

Nearly 66 million people--more than one in four Americans--have some form of heart or blood vessel disease, such as high blood pressure, coronary heart disease, stroke or rheumatic heart disease.

Obesity, 30 percent or more over ideal body weight, is linked to coronary heart disease mainly because of its influence on blood pressure, blood cholesterol and diabetes.

Obesity is also unhealthy because the excess pounds put added strain on the heart.

It's important to check with a physician before deciding to lose weight because he or she can tell if weight loss is necessary and, if so, the best way to do it.

If a diet is necessary, a doctor or dietician can help select a well-balanced, nutritious eating plan and approve an exercise program.

Avoid fad diets. They don't work and can be dangerous. Successful dieters acquire new eating habits, primarily through behavioral changes. They soon learn to eat when they are hungry and not out of habit.

Food selection and preparation play big roles in weight loss. The American Heart Association suggests buying meats with the least amount of visible fat and baking or broiling instead of frying.

Avoid high-fat meats such as bologna, frankfurters, salami and bacon.

To cut cholesterol, reduce your consumption of liver, tongue, kidneys, sweetbreads, heart and brains. Egg consumption should be limited to three egg yolks a week, including those used in cooking.

Remove fat from meat juices before adding them to stews, soups and gravy. Removing the skin from poultry before cooking reduces the fat content.

By monitoring their eating habits, most people can lose one to two pounds a week, which is considered ideal.

Most women can shed an average of one to two pounds a week by consuming 1,200-1,500 calories a day. Men can usually lose at this same rate by consuming 1,500-1,800 calories a day.

To lose one pound, you must burn 3,500 calories more than you take in. If you reduce your caloric intake by 500 calories per day for seven days, you can shed a pound a week.

After you reach your goal, you must stabilize your weight. To do so, increase your caloric intake by approximately 50 or 100 calories a day for the first week. Weigh yourself. Add another 50 to 100 calories a day the following weeks until your weight stabilizes.

Weigh yourself weekly. If you're three to five pounds above your ideal weight, eat less or exercise more (or both) until you lose those extra pounds.

If your goal is to avoid gaining weight, multiply your weight by 15 calories. The total is the average number of calories you burn in one day if you are moderately active. If you consume this amount of calories per day, you can maintain your weight.

If you're sedentary or get very little exercise, multiply your weight by 13 instead of 15. Less active people burn fewer calories.

Let your weight loss be a gain in the battle against heart disease.

Pour vanilla on a bit of cotton and put it in the refrigerator to eliminate unpleasant odors there.

Accent on Health

Recent sporadic rains, coupled with the early onset of hot weather in Texas, have created a weather hazard usually expected later in the year--heat stress, or hyperthermia.

Even people accustomed to the Texas climate sometimes fail to realize the dangers posed by the combination of high humidity and heat. The affect of humid heat can be most dangerous for the very young, the elderly, and persons already weakened by illness.

Dr. Clift Price, associate commissioner for personal health services at the Texas Department of Health (TDH) said a recent report shows that in an average year, 200 people in the U.S. die as a result of hot weather.

The report stated that overall mortality rates increase dramatically during severe weather. The National Center for Health Statistics has calculated that since an extreme heat wave was the unique factor during the summer of 1980, when mortality rates jumped sharply, as many as 1,700 deaths nationally may have been heat related.

Dr. Price said that high temperature alone is physically tolerable to most people, but in combination with humidity, it can cause a person's cooling mechanism, perspiration, to work overtime. "If one fails to replace the fluids and salts lost through perspiration, dehydration can follow," he said.

Symptoms of dehydration are muscle cramps, nausea, dizziness, headache, and low blood pressure. If fluids are not replaced, heat stroke can ensue, causing sudden weakness, severe headache, loss of consciousness, brain damage, and death if the victim is not quickly treated.

"To avoid danger of overheating," Dr. Price said, "people should dress in light-colored, loose-fitting clothing. They should drink more than their normal intake of water, and be sure to have water available if they need it. They also need good ventilation, and perhaps as important as anything else, they should take stock of their own physical conditions.

"Persons with heart or respiratory problems, and those taking certain medications, are especially at risk," he said.

Dr. Price said that in recent years, meteorologists have begun using the term, "heat stress index," referring to the relationship between temperature and humidity.

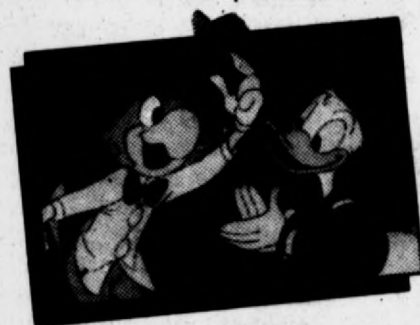

The heat stress index is a numerical table by which the National Weather Service rates the degree of discomfort a person may feel at a given temperature and humidity. Although the table does not allow for the variables of wind and shade, which can influence an individual's tolerance of heat and humidity, the index reading, like a thermometer reading, is useful in helping persons take needed precautions against hyperthermia.

A heat stress index of 105 is considered very dangerous.

The "finance charges" on bank credit cards and revolving credit accounts are simply the monthly rate, which multiplied by 12 yields the annual percentage rate.

Switzer steps down as Sooner grid mentor

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) - Just when it appeared he had survived months of turmoil, Barry Switzer resigned as football coach at Oklahoma.

Saying there was "too much water under the bridge," Switzer announced Monday he was walking away from the football program he guided to three national championships.

"I finally decided the time has come for new leadership," Switzer said.

"I received a great football program 16 years ago. I'm passing on a great football program."

In leaving after 16 years as Sooners coach, Switzer said he was frustrated by NCAA rules that do not "recognize the financial needs of young athletes."

Officials scheduled a news conference today to name a successor. A source close to the football program told The Associated Press that a leading candidate to replace Switzer was Gary Gibbs, who has been with the Sooners since 1975 and has been defensive coordinator since 1981.

Switzer said Monday he had asked that his successor come from the staff.

"I wanted that consideration, that we retain a winning staff and proven staff, that one of those lead and direct this program at the energy levels that I do not have today," he said.

Switzer had been under pressure since the school's football program was placed on three years' probation by the NCAA in December and after several players were charged early this year with crimes involving drugs, guns and sexual assault.

But Switzer had served notice he planned to remain as coach and talk of his leaving ebbed by the end of spring practice. His resignation caught some former and current players, as well as others in the coaching ranks, off guard.

"It came as a complete surprise," said Eddie Foster, an offensive lineman during Switzer's first year as head coach. "After the things that happened in the spring had cooled down, I thought Coach Switzer had put them behind him and would be here this fall."

"I will never coach at another institution. I will never coach at another college level. I promise you that," Switzer said.

He noted his record at Oklahoma and said "anything depletes and detracts from that anywhere I go."

"It's no fun anymore. I'm drained. I don't have the energy level to compete in this arena today," the 52-year-old Switzer said.

Switzer has had the top winning percentage among major college football coaches since 1982 and he has the fourth-highest winning percentage of all time. His teams won three national championships and 12 Big Eight Conference championships in 16 seasons.

Switzer said at one point he would be associated with football in the future and did not rule out the possibility of coaching in the professional ranks.

For the time being, Switzer said he would accept a special assignment with the Oklahoma athletic department. Neither athletic director Donnie Duncan nor Switzer would say what the new duties would be.

"I want this resignation to stand for something and I want it to serve as a public commitment on my part to join with other coaches around the country who are calling for changes in rules to permit universities to provide players with reasonable assistance, perhaps based on financial need as proposed by Dick Schultz, executive director of the NCAA," Switzer said.

"The time has come to change a system where coaches must choose between abiding by certain rules or acting like caring individuals. We made the rules and we can change them."

He said he was "not making excuses but simply giving an explanation when I say it was difficult to turn my back on these young men when they needed help. We have created a system that does not permit me or the program to buy a pair of shoes or a decent coat for a player whose family can't afford these basic necessities."

He said no one asked him to resign and that statement was supported by interim Oklahoma president David Swank and state regents.

Switzer finished with a 157-29-4 record, .844 winning percentage, and he won national championships in 1974, 1975 and 1985.

Baltimore sinks Mariners, 9-5

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

The biggest surprise about the Baltimore Orioles this season might be that they've played so poorly against the Seattle Mariners.

The Orioles reversed the trend Monday night as Cal Ripken and Mickey Tettleton hit consecutive home runs at the Kingdome in a 9-5 victory.

Baltimore leads the American League East with a 38-28 record, but is just 2-5 versus the Mariners, who are 32-38. Last year, when the Orioles' 54-107 mark was the worst in baseball, they had a winning record against only one team - Seattle.

"We just got knocked around tonight," Mariners manager Jim Lefebvre said. "They're playing very good baseball right now. They're at the top of their game."

Ripken's three-run homer put Baltimore ahead and Tettleton followed with his league-leading 17th home run as the Orioles scored seven times in the seventh inning. Baltimore finished with 14 hits and won its fourth straight game.

In other games, Detroit defeated Oakland 6-4, Milwaukee beat Minnesota 11-8, Toronto downed California 8-1 and Chicago bopped Boston 8-2.

Tettleton had never hit more than 11 home runs in a season. But this year, the unusual has become the usual in Baltimore.

"I can't explain it," Tettleton said. "I've been lifting weights during the season and am just going out and getting good swings at the baseball."

Bob Milacki, 4-6, won despite giving up five runs on 11 hits in 7 2-3 innings. Mark Thurmond finished for his second save.

Mike Jackson, 2-2, took a 3-2 lead into the seventh but Steve Finley led off with a single, Phil Bradley walked and Ripken hit his seventh home run. After Tettleton homered, Craig Worthington hit an RBI single off Tom Niedenfuer and Billy Ripken had a two-run double that made it 9-3.

Tigers 6, Athletics 4
Scott Lusader drove in his first three runs of the season and Detroit beat Dave Stewart.

Stewart, 11-3, failed to become the first 12-game winner in the majors and lost for the first time in eight starts at home.

San Francisco edges Astros, 3-2

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Houston first baseman Glenn Davis thinks he knows the secret of the San Francisco Giants' success - and statistics bear out his theory.

"The Giants success is due to their getting the first couple of men in their lineup on base," he said after the Giants beat second-place Houston 3-2 Monday night for a two-game division lead. "That's what we have to do more of."

San Francisco has won 31 of 46 contests when it scores first in a game. That includes Monday night's game which was the 14th defeat in a one-run game for the Astros, who lead the majors with one-run contests at 34.

Second baseman Robby Thompson produced a 2-for-4 night for the Giants and has now hit safely in 11 of his last 12 games. He also increased his National League lead in triples with seven.

"I'm not over-analyzing my recent hitting surge," he said. "I'm just trying to let it flow. I'm feeling good at the plate. I'm trying to hit the ball hard at times but I just want to hit it square and not worry about where it's going to go or how far."

Thompson's first-inning triple drove in the Giants first run. Left fielder Kevin Mitchell then singled Thompson home for his major league leading 66th RBI.

Houston manager Art Howe had instructed starting pitcher Bob Knepper not to throw Mitchell a strike.

Former Gamecock coach admits supplying steroids

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) - Former South Carolina assistant football coach Jim Washburn said he and another assistant coach, Tom Gadd, arranged to get steroids for a player who was having problems gaining weight.

Meanwhile, a Maryland man pleaded guilty on Monday in a plea arrangement, leaving Gadd as the lone defendant remaining of the five men indicted two months ago in connection with the use and distribution of steroids by athletes and coaches at South Carolina.

Gadd's trial began Monday and was to resume today, with former South Carolina linebacker Carl Hill and ex-graduate assistant coach Mark Paulson expected to testify before U.S. District Judge G. Ross Anderson.

Washburn, who called Gadd a "a very good friend," testified he and Gadd helped obtain steroids for Hill, who played at South Carolina from 1984-86. Washburn said the two coaches were in a meeting room in mid-April 1984 at Williams-Brice Stadium when Hill walked in and brought up the subject of steroids.

"I think Carl was frustrated about his inability to gain weight, and he asked us about the possibility of using steroids," Washburn said during nearly two hours of testimony before the nine-woman, three-man jury. "We left it that if Carl was serious, for him to think about it - it was a serious matter - and if Carl indeed wanted to try steroids to come to us."

A few days later, Hill again

"He said that he had thought about it," Washburn said, "and he wanted to give steroids a try."

Washburn said the coaches also told Hill they would pay for the steroids, although he said he could not recall paying for the drugs. But one of Gadd's attorneys, Wells Dixon, read from a statement. Washburn gave authorities in April in which the former coach said he paid Paulson for the steroids.

Dixon also asked about statements Washburn made to authorities after a story on steroids at South Carolina appeared in Sports Illustrated. Washburn said then he knew of no players using steroids and had no information that any coaches had encouraged players to use steroids.

"I was dishonest in the statement," Washburn said.

Dixon also asked Washburn about his use of steroids. Washburn testified earlier Monday he had used steroids once - for about a month during his playing days at Gardner-Webb. But under questioning by Dixon, Washburn said he also experimented with steroids for a short time in 1986.

"I really felt we had a steroid problem on our football team," Washburn said. "It was hard to pinpoint who was using them, how many people were using them. But I knew there was a problem."

Washburn said he began taking steroids to see what affects they had on him, hoping he could then pick out players who might be using the drugs.

"I experimented with them for probably a week, trying to determine if I could tell if there were any behavior modifications or changes. After that, I realized it wasn't a very smart thing to do," Washburn said. "I figured you probably had to take them a long time to get any behavior changes or modifications."

Gadd, an assistant at South Carolina from 1982 to 1986, is charged with importing steroids into the state, encouraging players to use steroids and helping to monitor the use of the drugs. If convicted, Gadd could be imprisoned for two years and fined $101,000. Two other counts facing Gadd were quietly dropped by prosecutors before the trial.

In a surprise move, John L. Carter, 25, of Bethesda, Md.,

pleaded guilty to giving steroids to former Gamecock football player Tommy Chaikin. Three other counts were dropped, including charges Carter gave steroids to three other ex-Gamecock players.

A story co-written by Chaikin in Sports Illustrated led to the indictments of Carter, Gadd and three other ex-Gamecock coaches. In the magazine's Oct. 24 issue, Chaikin said he and other players, including about half the 1986 team, used steroids. Chaikin played for the school from 1983 to 1987.

Carter, who will be sentenced in four to six weeks, faces a maximum of two years in prison and $200,000 in fines under the plea bargain. Carter had faced 17 years in prison and $1.3 million in fines.

Lendl, Graf receive top seedings for Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - Ivan Lendl, coming off his first grass-court tournament triumph since he was a junior, has been seeded No. 1 for next week's Wimbledon tennis championships. But teenager Michael Chang, the first American in 34 years to win the French Open, was only No. 9.

"I don't think it will make any great difference," said Lendl, who is seeking the one Grand Slam title that has eluded him. "To win the title you have to keep winning, and that's what I hope to do."

Defending champion Steffi Graf of West Germany was the No. 1 seed in the women's draw by the All-England Lawn Tennis Club.

Lendl and Graf are ranked No. 1 in the world on the Association of Tennis Professional computer lists, and the women's seedings followed the rankings. Eight-time champion Martina Navratilova was seeded second, followed by Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina and three-time winner Chris Evert.

But the 17-year-old Chang, a winner in France, was the biggest loser in the men's seedings. Chang, unranked at Wimbledon last year and seeded 15th in the French Open solely on computer ranking, jumped to No. 6 on this week's ATP list but is seeded only No. 9 at Wimbledon, where he never has made it past the second round.

On the other hand, defending men's champion Stefan Edberg of Sweden got a break. He is ranked third by the ATP but got the No. 2 seed ahead of Boris Becker, a two-time champion and No. 2 on the ATP computer.

Sweden's Mats Wilander was seeded fourth, followed by John McEnroe, shooting for his fourth Wimbledon title. Jacob Hlasek of Switzerland, Miloslav Mecir of Czechoslovakia and Tim Mayotte, who has made it to at least the quarterfinals of eight grass-court Grand Slam tournaments.

Then came Chang, followed by Jimmy Connors, Brad Gilbert, Kevin Curren, Aaron Krickstein, Andrei Chesnokov of the Soviet Union, Sweden's Mikael Pernfors and Amos Mansdorf of Israel.

Behind Evert, the women's seeds are Zina Garrison, Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia, French Open champion Arantxa Sanchez of Spain, Pam Shriver, Natalia Zvereva of the Soviet Union, Jana Novotna of Czechoslovakia, Monica Seles of Yugoslavia, Mary Joe Fernandez, Canada's Helen Kelesi, Hana Mandlikova of Australia, Lori McNeil and Susan Sloane.

Rose files suit to halt hearing with Giamatti

CINCINNATI (AP) - Pete Rose wants a court in Cincinnati - not the commissioner of baseball - to decide whether he should be banned from baseball.

Lawyers for the Cincinnati Reds' manager filed a lawsuit in state court on Monday to block baseball Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti from deciding whether Rose bet on games involving his teams.

The 38-page lawsuit, accompanied by nearly 200 pages of exhibits, says Giamatti and his investigators have been "unfair and outrageous" in their probe of the gambling allegations against Rose.

The lawsuit also publicly confirms for the first time that Rose has been accused of betting on Reds' games, an offense that carries a lifetime ban under baseball's regulations. It said that Giamatti believes those allegations to be true.

Hamilton County Common Pleas Judge Norbert Nadel was assigned the lawsuit, which also asks for an order blocking Rose's hearing with Giamatti scheduled for next Monday in New York. Nadel didn't immediately schedule a hearing on Rose's request, choosing to wait until he had a chance to review the voluminous lawsuit.

Giamatti said he would fight Rose's request. He said the lawsuit was "wholly without merit," and added, "I trust the court will permit me to proceed with my hearing."

Rose contends that Giamatti has already made up his mind about the allegations, siding with bodybuilder Paul G. Janszen and bookmaker Ron Peters. Janszen claims he ran Rose's bets on Reds' games to Peters.

The lawsuit said Giamatti has shown "bias and prejudice," and should be prohibited from deciding Rose's fate. Instead, the lawsuit asks "that this court determine whether or not Pete Rose has bet on major league baseball, and in particular the Cincinnati Reds."

The lawsuit said Rose wants a trial by jury on the relevant issues. It also asks for punitive damages from Giamatti "in a sum sufficient to punish him for his unfair and outrageous conduct" in the case.

Peters, in an interview shown Monday on "CBS Evening News," said Rose bet $20,000 a day on baseball games between 1984 and 1987. Peters said that on July 7, 1987, Rose bet $17,500 on baseball games.

"He always bet on his team," Peters said. "He never bet against his team."

Contacted by The Associated Press Monday night, Peters declined to repeat the charges. A lawyer familiar with Peters' situation said Monday that the interview with CBS and another with Sports Illustrated had been given earlier with a specified release date.

"I was totally surprised they even aired it," Peters said of the CBS report.

Peters was sentenced last week to two years in jail after pleading guilty to charges of cocaine distribution and failing to report income from gambling and bookmaking.

Janszen was released from a halfway house in Cincinnati last week after serving four months for failing to report income from the sale of steroids.

Sun fades from El Paso bowl name

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - All college football bowl games eventually will go the way of the Sun Bowl and rename themselves after their corporate sponsors, the sports marketing consultant for John Hancock Financial Services says.

That's John Hancock as in the John Hancock Bowl, the new moniker for the 55-year-old football classic played in Sun Bowl Stadium.

The renaming is the Boston-based company's way of making sure its name gets in the newspapers, John Hancock sports marketing consultant Jack Mahoney said Monday at a news conference called to announce the switch.

For the past three years, John Hancock has paid about $1.5 million a game in purses, incentives and advertisements in sponsoring the Sun Bowl. In return, the game officially was called the John Hancock Sun Bowl, but most news outlets took the sponsor's name out as a matter of policy.

Mahoney said the company wasn't mentioned enough in national media to justify the expense. Calling the game the John Hancock Bowl will result in 10,000 to 15,000 mentions in news stories worth millions of dollars of advertising, company research showed.

"Economic reasons forced us into this," Mahoney said. "I honestly believe that within the year, every bowl game will be named after a sponsor. I think the next will be the Gator, and then down the line."

On Friday, the group that picks the teams and coordinates events surrounding the game changed its name from the Sun Bowl Association to the El Paso Sun Carnival Association.

The association had final say in changing the game's name, said Jimmy Rogers Jr., the association's liaison with John Hancock and CBS. Rogers said he believed John Hancock would not have continued sponsoring the game if the name had remained the Sun Bowl.

The association, John Hancock and CBS announced they have agreed on a five-year sponsorship and broadcast contract for the bowl, which CBS has broadcast every year since 1968.

El Paso sports columnists and a few letter-writers have grumbled about the name change, which had been expected for months. Len DeLuca of CBS Sports said Monday that opposition is of only local concern, and that viewers won't care what the game is called.

"The important thing is the matchup," he said. "That and the scheduling."

The bowl game has suffered the last couple of years because of competition with Santa Claus and with other football games. The 1987 game was played on Christmas and earned a 6 rating. Last year's game, a thriller played on Christmas Eve, fell at the same time as an NFL playoff game and earned a dismal 4.8 rating. John Hancock was expecting a double-digit rating, DeLuca said. This year's game will be played Dec. 30, and DeLuca appeared confident the ratings picture will improve.

Outside the hotel where the announcement was made, high school English teacher Johnny Molina held up a hand-lettered placard reading: "Death in the Afternoon: Sun Bowl Name Change." He held up numerous commemorative T-shirts from previous Sun Bowl games.

"I'm trying to show the logo that's been with us for 50 years is still good," Molina said. "It's a Texas tradition, a Sun Bowl tradition."

But Rogers said keeping the game alive is more important than tradition. The bowl would have been discontinued if the name had not been changed, he said.

"When I see what we get in return - five years of new life - the decision doesn't bother me at all," Rogers said.

Bandits take second at tourney

The Hereford Bandits girls softball team came out of the losers' bracket to finish second in the 16 and under division of the VFW Bullets Invitational '89 Softball Tournament held June 10 in Clovis, N.M.

After drawing a bye through the first round, the Bandits dropped their first game to the Lubbock Travelers, 4-2.

Kathy Hernandez provided much of the offense for the bandits, going 2 for 3 with a double and scoring one of the runs.

The Bandits moved through the bracket with wins of 7-5 over the Clovis Magic, 15-4 against the Clovis Expos and 15-8 over the Lubbock Raiders to qualify for a rematch with the Travelers.

Against the Magic, runs were provided by seven different players, with Clarissa Ramirez, Christie Burkhardt, Jeanette Flores, Tonya Castillo, Roxanne Torres, Rachel Martinez and Melissa Celaya crossing the plate.

The team broke lose in its next two games of the afternoon, plating a total of 30 runs. Clarissa Ramirez was a combined 4 for 8 with four runs scored, Vanessa Gonzales added three more runs, Michelle Brock totaled five hits and five runs, Claudia Ramirez added four of each, Burkhardt crossed the plate twice on three hits and Hernandez put up three runs and four hits.

Also scoring during the two-game outburst were Flores, Patricia Pacheco, Castillo Martinez, Teresa Berryman and Celaya with one apiece and Torres with three.

But the toll of having played four games in five hours was too much for the Bandits to overcome, as they fell to the Lubbock team, 14-2.

The Bandits tallied nine hits for the contest, but only Brock and Hernandez were able to touch all the bases.

Most childhood accidents can be prevented! Here are some measures that parents should take to protect children and to teach them safety.

Practice crossing the street with your child over and over again before the child is allowed to do so alone.
Teach your child to stop, look and listen at the curb and then look again from left to right to make sure the street is clear and to continue checking both directions until safely across the street. I still do this today.

We all know how much children love to ride bicycles, so get your child into the habit of wearing a bike helmet which can help prevent serious head injuries in a fall or collision.
The bicycle helmets may not be the "in" thing to some children or some parents might find them an added expense, but think of the child's safety first.

Always use safety belts and child safety seats. Make sure the child safety seats are installed properly and be a good example for your children by buckling your own seat belt as well as making sure they buckle theirs.

These and an abundance of other tips to help protect your child from injury are available in a booklet published by the Consumer Information Center of the U.S. General Service Administration titled Safe Kids are No Accident: How to Protect Your Child from Injury. For your copy

DRIVEWAY DILEMMA

Dear Heloise: Can you tell me how to get car oil and grease off of my cement driveway? It is unsightly and I would like to clean it. — Walter Salvatore, Staten Island, N.Y.

Sprinkle dry cement or cat-box
"gravel" over the area. Bags of dry cement can be found in hardware stores. Either one will help to absorb the grease. Try rubbing it in the area with a stiff broom.
Afterwards, just sweep it up.

If you use dry cement, leave some on any badly stained areas so it will blend in perfectly with the rest of the driveway and camouflage the area.

Here's to clean-looking driveways! — Heloise

CHILDREN'S PARTY ART

Dear Heloise: I started a fun ice-breaker for children's parties when my children were quite young. I got a long piece of white shelf paper and taped it over wax paper. I then laid this out on a tiled area of my floor and put a tray with crayons next to it.

All the children at the birthday party were encouraged to write wishes for the birthday child. It was wonderful. The outgoing children would spend time composing and the shy children would have a chance to mix in easily with all the children without the competition of games. I continued doing this for my children's birthday parties until they became young adults.

After each party, I dated the birthday greeting art work, rolled it up and put it into empty cardboard wrapping paper rolls for storage and safekeeping. It has been great fun to take them out over the years and remember. — Sherry Baker, Pacific Palisades, Calif.

ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS STORY

"Everybody
Already Knows
My Store And What I Carry."
Sound Familiar?"

Advertising is news about the marketplace, if you don't advertise, you're telling consumers there's no news from your store. But your competition is fighting for the public's interest with regular ads; if you want to keep your share of the market, you need to be in the same arena, bidding for the business. You need to advertise in the newspaper. Plus, people move out of the area and new people move in. Advertise to bring new customers into the store. Sell your store and your service through newspaper advertising.

NOT CONVINCED?

Newspaper advertising is unlike any other media choice.
You're reaching a friendly, receptive audience with your advertising message. So receptive that they pay to have the paper delivered to their home. No wonder consumers consider newspapers the most believable advertising medium.

Newspaper advertising can help your business. It can increase sales and in a competitive market, it can give your business an edge over the other guy.

Don't tempt fate. Join the many successful businesses who know what works for them and what doesn't. Advertise in the newspaper and get results.

Voyager 2 finds giant spot on Neptune

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) - The Voyager 2 spacecraft has discovered a 6,200-mile-wide dark spot on Neptune, and scientists believe it's a giant storm similar to Earth's hurricanes and Jupiter's Great Red Spot.

The width is about one-fifth of Neptune's 30,700-mile diameter, just as the 16,000-mile-wide Great Red Spot is about one-fifth the size of Jupiter, said Andrew Ingersoll, a planetary scientist at the California Institute of Technology.

Voyager 2 was launched from Cape Canaveral in 1977, visited Jupiter in 1979, Saturn in 1981 and Uranus in 1986. Its twin, Voyager 1, explored Jupiter in 1979 and Saturn in 1980, and is now heading toward interplanetary space.

"I had gotten sort of discouraged from the Uranus encounter because Uranus was such a bland place," Ingersoll said Monday. "So I'm happy to see such action on Neptune."

The top Voyager scientist was similarly excited.

"It's huge!" Caltech physicist and vice president Edward Stone said of the dark spot.

While the robot probe is too far from Neptune to detect winds within the spot, the spot seems to be a hurricane-like storm system similar to the Great Red Spot, which has 250 mph winds, said Stone, chief scientist of the Voyager project for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Hurricanes on Earth are much smaller, measuring several hundred miles across. Unlike Earth's hurricanes, which break up after a week or two, Jupiter's Great Red Spot has remained intact at least since its discovery more than 350 years ago - a mystery scientists have yet to explain.

Stone said Neptune's dark spot became apparent in photographs taken by Voyager's television cameras in April, and faint hints of it can be seen in pictures made as early as January.

The absence of continents on giant gas planets such as Jupiter and Neptune may explain the persistence of the spots, Ingersoll said, adding that continents may help dissipate hurricanes on Earth.

Voyager 2 is due to make its closest approach to Neptune, the solar system's fourth-largest planet, at 9 p.m. PDT Aug. 24.

It will swoop 3,000 miles from the planet's north pole, by far the closest approach of any of the flybys during the spacecraft's "grand tour" of the giant, gaseous outer planets. Five hours later, it will pass 25,000 miles from Triton, one of two known Neptunian moons.

Voyager 2 today was 2.66 billion miles from Earth and 58.98 million miles from Neptune, speeding toward that planet at 42,216 mph, said Mary Beth Murrill, spokeswoman for NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Neptune's dark spot is about 25 to 30 degrees latitude in the planet's southern hemisphere, Ingersoll said.

Voyager 2 also discovered a much smaller, rapidly changing white spot - about half the size of the dark spot - at about 70 degrees south latitude, he said.

The dark spot's color isn't yet known because scientists haven't processed a complete set of pictures through different color filters, Ingersoll said. But Stone said it is darker than Neptune's surrounding skies, which are blue-green because of methane in its mostly hydrogen-helium atmosphere.

Jupiter's Great Red Spot is believed to get its color from organic chemicals or possibly sulfur or phosphorus trapped within it, said Ingersoll.

Light may affect body clock

WASHINGTON (AP) - Scientists in Boston are learning to treat jet lag, insomnia and other symptoms of a jangled body clock with carefully controlled doses of ordinary light.

Dr. Charles Czeisler and colleagues at the Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston reported today that they succeeded in consistently resetting the body clocks of test subjects using timed exposures to a light about as bright as the rising sun. Their account of the experiments was published in Science magazine.

Czeisler said the wake-rest cycles of the subjects could be moved forward or back with ease, but the changes lack the precision needed for a useful therapy for jet setters or for those with troubled sleep.

But, eventually, he said, the study will develop the techniques needed to use light to change the body clock and relieve the witing weariness many feel when their life style is out of phase with the sun.

Czeisler said the research proved conclusively that light can send a signal to the brain to reset the biological clock.

When such light shows up at the wrong time, it jumbles the body's wake-sleep cycle - called the circadian rhythm. Airline travelers know this disorder as jet lag, but it's also a problem for night shift workers and for thousands of people with sleep disorders, said Czeisler.

Many airline schedules aggravate jet lag, he said, because travelers are forced to cross many time zones in darkness and arrive at their destination just as the sun comes up.

"When you leave here to fly overnight to London, the flight arrives over there at 6 or 7 in the morning," he said. "When you go outside, you are getting an exposure to light that is resetting you in exactly the opposite direction than what you wish to be set. It is resetting you for Hawaii, instead of Europe."

To better understand the body clock, Czeisler and other investigators put 14 young men into a darkened laboratory free of any external time cues, and then exposed them to light from fluorescent lamps that mimicked the intensity of the dawning sun.

Why do car insurance premiums go up? One big reason is the soaring cost of medical care for auto accident victims. In 10 years, the price of hospital medical services went up 160%. Semi-private rooms went up 143%.

There are now over 5 million injury-causing accidents a year. Medical care for those accident victims comes out of everyone's premiums.

And as both the number of accidents and the cost of treating each victim go up, premiums get hit with a double increase.

At State Farm, we believe that ways must be found to keep these factors from forcing premiums to go up. Lower speed limits are one way to reduce deaths and lessen the number and severity of injuries. That's why we're still strongly behind the 55 mph speed limit. We also work with automakers and consumer groups to encourage the development of safety features. Our past work in this area helped lead to today's airbags and automatic safety belts.

State Farm is there, every day. Finding more ways to help protect our policyholders from the causes of rising premiums. So we can keep insurance affordable.
