City forced to replace gasoline tank

By ANDREA HOOTEN
Staff Writer

The City of Hereford is forced to replace a 5-year-old underground gasoline storage tank at McKinley and New York avenues because the Texas Water Commission originally said the tank seeped gasoline into a water well adjacent to it.

The Hereford City Commission voted at its meeting Monday to accept bids for a new $5,000 storage tank costing $43 more than having the current tank installed again.

City manager Darwin McGill said re-installing the present tank would be cost-prohibitive.

"We knew when the Water Commission made us dig up the tank, we couldn't put it back. We'd have to recast the tank and redo the fittings which would end up costing us just about as much as getting an entirely new one."

Residents of the Coneway Subdivision first noticed a peculiar, crude oil taste in their water this April.

When the Water Commission and the State Health Department found traces of ethylbenzene (ingredient of gasoline) in the water, the Commission forced the city to excavate the 1,500-gallon tank or dig test holes which would cost $12,000 to $15,000.

"We even filled the gasoline tank up to the top and let it sit for a week, and the level it didn't drop a bit," said Ted Coleman, water production superintendent. "This thing was only 5 years old and I don't see how it could have leaked anywhere. The leaks might be coming from the (underground gasoline) tanks across the highway (U.S. Highway 60) that belong to Taylor Food Mart, Brandon and Clark, Southwestern Public Service or Warner Seed."

The two closer water wells to the New York Avenue well are about half a mile away. McGill said the contaminated water well feeding the Coneway Subdivision was immediately emptied and refilled with water from 14 uncontaminated wells.

"This is the only well where we've had problems," said McGill. "We check our wells each week (on a rotation basis, 30 in all), but it wasn't the testing that found what we think is crude in the water—it was the residents. Fortunately, it was not one of our better wells."

As for the excavated gasoline tank, the city will either use it as an overhead storage tank near the city incinerator or dismember it.

Coleman said he was anxious for the Water Commission to find the leak.

"Hopefully we can get this leak located because we have two other water wells across the draw at the country club that might get contaminated if the (Water) Commission waits too long," Coleman said.

At the city commission meeting, Commissioner Paul Hamilton said he feared the city would be liable not only for any leaking of the city's own underground gasoline tanks but for those abandoned underground gasoline tanks once belonging to private businesses.

In other business, the city commission:

--Voted to grant a 2-year, 100 percent building tax abatement to Whiteface Ford Lincoln Mercury.

--Elected to stay with the city's current Texas Municipal League workman's compensation insurance and with Lone Star Agency insurance for property and liability insurance.

--Voted to alter the wording to read "museums and churches" instead of "nonprofit organizations" concerning organizations being able to place signs off the premises.

--Voted to change a two-family district to a mobile home district at 438 Mable Street.

Lemme tell ya, Santa

Dozens of youngsters surround Santa Claus as they wait to see him at the Christmas Tree Lighting ceremonies Monday night at the Deaf Smith County Courthouse in Hereford. The event was sponsored by the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

CSF can help 'abandoned' family

Mrs. A and her family of four children face dismal prospects this holiday season. They were abandoned by their husband and father earlier this year.

Now, they are without a car, and the only income the family is realizing is the paycheck brought home by a 14-year-old son, who works at a local grocery. One of Mrs. A's young sons is deaf.

Mrs. A is asking for help with food and clothing for her family so their holiday might be a little bit brighter.

The caring and sharing expressed by local residents through the Christmas Stocking Fund can help meet the needs of Mrs. A and many other families this Yule season. Proceeds from CSF are used to help alleviate some of the hunger and need confronting the less fortunate of Hereford and Deaf Smith County during the holiday period.

The assistance CSF can extend is limited to the amount local residents donate to support its efforts. A CSF spokesman says applications for assistance are numerous this year, and those needs can be met only so far as the CSF budget can be stretched.

Deadline to apply for assistance from CSF is 5 p.m. Friday, and the number of applications has already hit the 300 mark. Applications must be made in person at the county Red Cross office, 224 S. Main.

Tax-deductible contributions to CSF may be dropped by the offices of The Hereford Brand, 313 Lee St., or mailed to CSF, Box 673, Hereford. Anonymous contributions should be so designated. The Brand will periodically print a list of donors.

Band will play at White House

The Hereford High School Mighty Maroon Band will perform on the lawn of the White House and participate in ceremonies at Arlington National Cemetery during a tour of Washington, D.C., on June 8-12, 1989.

"This is a trip that will never be forgotten," said James Macclasky, band director. "The long bus ride (30 hours) is a major disadvantage, but we can make that fun, too."

The band will perform on the White House lawn for persons waiting to tour the White House. Usually, persons waiting to tour the White House are seated on a grandstand, and the band will perform for them. The performance was arranged by the National Park Service.

Macclasky said he hopes the band will be able to have a member place a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington.

Between now and the June trip, the band will hold several fund raisers so members can defray some of the trip's expenses. The $350 cost for the trip includes all meals, lodgings, transportation and admission to events.

All members of the band and their parents are welcome on the trip. The band will also visit the National Air and Space Museum, the Library of Congress, the Federal Bureau of Investigation headquarters and many of Washington's monuments.

Other directors include Mike Bryant, Tammy Summersgill, Don Summersgill, Cindy Rogers and Jan Walser.

Farm survey says conditions worsen

WASHINGTON (AP)--Most Midwestern and Southern farmers believe economic times on the farm have grown worse in recent years and don't want the government to cut spending for farm programs—a view that seems certain to run head-on into harsh budget realities.

A survey released last week by Rural Voice, a non-profit policy group created by Senate Agriculture Committee Chairman Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., found that three out of four farmers believe the government is spending the right amount or too little on farm subsidies.

At the same time, outgoing Agriculture Secretary Richard Lyng predicted that as much as $3 billion of the current $13 billion farm program cost will have to be cut next year as part of the $30 billion or so in cuts needed to help the government reach its deficit-reduction target.

Farm programs and defense spending are the most frequently cited targets for cuts when Congress returns next month.

The survey of 270 farmers, conducted in August and released at a Capitol Hill news conference last week, found that while they believe government spending on farm programs should not be cut, nearly three out of five believe the government makes poor use of the money it does spend on farmers.

Atlantis zooming back to Earth

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Atlantis' astronauts zoomed toward Earth "happy and healthy" today to end a secret four-day military mission during which they reportedly deployed a radar satellite to spy on the Soviet Union.

The shuttle and its five travelers were on course to ignite re-entry rockets for a fiery hourlong dash through the atmosphere. Landing was scheduled for 5:36 p.m. CST on a dry lakebed at Edwards Air Force Base in California's Mojave Desert.

Because of the military nature of the mission, the public wasn't allowed to watch the landing from the base. More than 400,000 spectators were there in October to cheer Discovery's return from the first post-Challenger shuttle flight.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Air Force Monday broke three days of silence on the Atlantis mission to give a 24-hour notice of the planned landing.

"The crew is doing well and is making preparations for landing," the agencies said in a brief statement. They also said the weather outlook at Edwards was good and that a slow leak detected before launch in a landing gear tire was not a concern for touchdown.

"Things are going super," Rear Adm. Richard Truly, a former astronaut in charge of the space shuttle program, said in an interview. "The crew is happy and healthy. The orbiter has done real well. It's been very clean."

"This was one of our most important missions," Truly said.

Peggy Railey's family gets $16 million in case

Minister didn't dispute charges

DALLAS (AP) The "other woman" in the Walker Railey saga says she and the former Dallas minister were "serious" and "long-term" lovers, but insists the romance did not figure in the savage 1987 attack on Railey's wife.

Lucy Papillon, 46, a Dallas psychologist, testified Monday she and Railey discussed marriage and that he mentioned divorce, but she maintained the scenario did not include the attempted murder of Peggy Railey.

State District Judge John Whittington ended the unusual civil proceedings Monday evening by awarding Mrs. Railey's family $16 million in actual and punitive damages from Railey.

It was a hollow and mostly symbolic victory, since Railey claims he's broke and maybe even jobless.

Railey, 41, the key figure in a drama featured this year in ABC's 20/20 program, did not attend the trial nor did he dispute the charges contained in the lawsuit.

At the same time, the nationally known minister has denied the near fatal choking of his wife and has never been charged.

He claims he returned to the couple's custom-built Lake Highlands home shortly after midnight April 21, 1987, and found his wife near death on the garage floor.

Police and prosecutors have proof that Railey, then the senior pastor of the mainstream First United Methodist Church, lied about his activities that night but admit there is no evidence to link him to the attack.

He reportedly is living in San Francisco and the current status of his affair with Ms. Papillon is unknown despite rumors that the romance has cooled in recent months.

Ms. Papillon, the daughter of a former Methodist bishop, and once a member of Railey's flock, was not required Monday to testify about the relationship beyond April 1988.

But she confirmed the thrust of reports leaked last year from a grand jury appearance in which she was tied romantically to Railey long before and after the attack on Mrs. Railey.

Responding to questions from plaintiff attorney Bill Arnold, the striking blonde witness said their affair began in June 1986 and that it accelerated in the months leading up to the springtime 1987 assault.

Arnold quoted liberally from a sworn deposition he took from Ms. Papillon last May but the witness replied mostly with a simply "yes" or "no."

She said she frequently accompanied Railey on his travels, and once joined him for a rendezvous in London.

In the days immediately prior to the attack on Peggy Railey, she said, she visited Railey at the North Dallas Doubletree Inn three or four times. But she denied that the intensified affair led up to an attempt to dispose of Railey's wife.

She indicated Railey's relationship with his wife was functional at best and said rather obliquely, that until their extramarital affair, "He did not know what he did not have."

"Arnold sought to show that a divorce would have jeopardized if not ended Railey's chances of becoming a bishop, the pinnacle of leadership in the Methodist hierarchy."

Mrs. Papillon said she could not respond to that.

She conceded, however, that Railey was "stressed out" when he came to her home the night of April 21. She said he was there from 7:30 until 8:45 when he told her he was returning to Southern Methodist University to resume his studies at the campus libraries.

Investigators maintain an intruder using a wire or cord attacked Mrs. Railey sometime between 8:30 and 11 p.m.

After the attack on Mrs. Railey, Ms. Papillon said she saw Railey three times at the hospital where he was staying to be near his wife, then informed him she was flying to San Francisco to see another man.

"That wasn't true, but I told him that," she said.

It was apparently two days later that Railey locked himself in his hospital suite and attempted suicide with an overdose of prescription drugs.

While in San Francisco, she apparently told FBI agents she was not romantically involved with Railey, but indicated she later told them the truth.

The lovers continued their affair after the suicide attempt and when Railey fled to San Francisco in late 1987, she joined him there on several occasions.

They found an apartment near San Francisco Bay and shared the costs of furnishing it. Ms. Papillon said. But she later returned to Dallas to resume her psychotherapy practice.

Asked Railey's whereabouts today, she replied:

"I choose not to answer that."

At the close of Monday's proceedings, Judge Whittington ruled that Railey should pay roughly $8 million for his wife's lost earnings, medical expenses, mental anguish and physical suffering and disfigurement.

He assessed an equal amount as punitive damages.

"We were very pleased with the judge's verdict," said Arnold, who conceded that Railey's financial status seems hardly conducive to such a ruling.

"I don't know how much money he has or how much money he will have in the future...but I'm going to do my very best to see that whatever it is goes to Peggy Railey's medical expenses."

Mrs. Railey, now 40, is in a Tyler nursing home in what doctors describe as a persistent vegetative state from which she is not expected to recover.

A physician testified that Peggy Railey will require an estimated $4.3 million in medical treatment during the next 30 years. And Peggy's mother, as the final witness, said her insurance policy expires in September, 1989.

"We do not know what we'll do after that," she said.

The Hereford Rotary Club donated $1,000 in Nunley's name to the Polio Plus Project, aimed to stamp out polio in all third-world nations. Nunley also received the award because of 31 years of perfect attendance. Nunley is one of only three persons in the Hereford Rotary Club to be awarded.

Elizabeth Dole considered strong candidate for top position in Bush Cabinet

WASHINGTON (AP)—President-elect George Bush has yet to name a woman to a senior post but he was meeting today with Cabinet veteran Elizabeth Dole, considered a strong candidate for a top job in the new administration.

Bush and Mrs. Dole, the former transportation secretary and wife of Senate minority leader Bob Dole of Kansas, were having breakfast at Bush's office.

The vice president was having lunch today with Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., the House Ways and Means Committee Chairman, and was also meeting with leaders of disability groups and boning up for his part in Wednesday's meeting with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev in New York.

Bush met Monday with 10 university presidents led by Benno Schmidt Jr., president of Bush's alma mater, Yale.

"We recognize that we have a friend of education in the White House. We're excited and grateful for that," Schmidt told Bush.

The academic leaders, including presidents from Cornell, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the universities of California, Michigan, Tennessee, and Texas at Austin, said they stressed the federal role in ensuring access to higher education and the need to support scientific research on campuses. They also expressed concern about the nation's shortage of scientists and engineers.

Schmidt said Bush, in turn, "stressed the limits on federal resources and the need to make hard choices about the federal budget to bring the deficit under control."

Bush's personnel chief, Chase Untermeyer, said last week that the president-elect had repeatedly instructed aides to find more women and minority candidates for top posts.

One post reportedly being considered for Mrs. Dole, a former Federal Trade commissioner and White House aide, is ambassador to the United Nations, but transition sources denied over the weekend that she had already landed that position.

Mrs. Dole, a Harvard-trained lawyer from Salisbury, N.C., quit Reagan's Cabinet in late 1987 to campaign full-time for her husband in his failed attempt to gain the GOP presidential nomination.

Mrs. Dole later campaigned extensively for Bush. Former Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, is still thought to have the inside track for defense secretary, possibly with Norman Augustine, the president of Martin Marietta Corp., in the No. 2 slot at the Pentagon.

Gorbachev to talk arms control during US visit

MOSCOW (AP) In New York this week, President Mikhail S. Gorbachev is expected to put a moderate face on Soviet foreign policy and show himself eager for arms control progress with the new U.S. administration.

In several reports on the eve of the Soviet leader's departure, official media emphasized the new style of Soviet diplomacy and the need for speedy progress on arms control issues when President-elect Bush takes office in January.

Gorbachev was to arrive in New York this afternoon and have lunch with Bush and President Reagan on Wednesday. During his trip he will also address the United Nations, visit Cuba and Great Britain.

The official Tass news agency said Monday that New York is expected to become a "horn honking" urban paralysis of Americans seeking to get a glimpse of the Soviet leader as thousands of Christmas shoppers pack the streets.

In a front page report from New York, the government newspaper Izvestia pointedly told its readers that Gorbachev's behavior at the U.N. will differ markedly from Nikita S. Khrushchev's shoe-thumping in 1960.

Izvestia, without naming Khrushchev, recalled "how our leader looked then in the hall of the General Assembly, how he jumped up from place, trying to interrupt speakers he didn't like, pounded his fist on the table (and not only his fist)."

But it was the need for more progress on arms control that Tass stressed. It sounded an optimistic note, saying four summits between Gorbachev and Reagan leading to a treaty signed a year ago eliminating medium and shorter range nuclear missiles had built a "strong and solid" foundation for U.S.-Soviet relations.

It said there certainly would be future problems, but expressed confidence the two sides could work through them.

"It is perfectly natural that the new administration will need some time to get its bearings in the complexity of domestic and international problems. But it is very important now to drag out this period. Marking time in international affairs, especially in the domain of arms limitation and reduction, is tantamount not only to loss of time, but to backsliding," Tass said.

In New York, Soviet officials would not release details of Gorbachev's schedule, but said he wanted "to take as many bites as possible out of the Big Apple."

Andrei Grachev, an official of the communist Party Central Committee's Ideology Department said the schedule would be a "Christmas surprise."

But New York police said Gorbachev and his wife, Raisa, would visit the Observation Deck of the World Trade Center on Wednesday and drive past the Stock Exchange and through the Broadway area.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have always applauded your advice to readers who want to get out of miserable relationships, but I could never do it myself. Invariably I reverted to the same old pattern and chose the same trap I had escaped from.

I am a co-dependent, which means I am addicted to people with addictions. The addiction can be alcohol, drugs, sex, gambling, compulsive talking, spending money or any other kind of compulsive behavior. All these people seem perfectly normal when you meet them, but soon you learn that they are hooked on something. If you're wise, you run in the opposite direction.

It was always easier for me to focus on friends who had problems than to face my own. I never had the slightest idea why I continued to hang out with these crippled chickens. I now know that I needed someone to blame for all the things in my life that went wrong.

When I was finally able to admit to a close friend that my life was a mess and my level of self-esteem was zero, she did me the biggest favor of my life.

She introduced me to two groups that have helped me regain my self-respect—Co-Dependents Anonymous and Emotions Anonymous. Both are based on the 12-step principles of Alcoholics Anonymous and have shown me that there is a better way to live.

Nine months after joining and attending two meetings a week, I feel an incredible sense of freedom and, for the first time, a sense of personal worth.

I want everyone out there to know that they no longer have to be doormats, martyrs or people pleasers. Nor do they have to pump up their egos by hanging out with folks who are inadequate, confused and needy. If you see yourself in the letter, do yourself a favor and write to: Emotions Anonymous, P.O. DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last Sunday, at a church social, several of us were discussing an acquaintance who had just had a 10 pound baby boy. A woman in the group, whom I did not know, turned to me and asked, "And when is your happy event going to take place?" I said, "Excuse me?" She replied, "When is your baby due?" I told her I was not pregnant. She was embarrassed and my day was ruined.

Ann, I should tell you that this has happened before. I am about 20 pounds overweight and it is all in front. I am 37 years old and not married.

Am I thin-skinned? Should I be able to laugh it off? Comment, please.—NYC

DEAR NYC: Your salvation could be a style-wise woman in the dress department of your favorite store. You need to wear clothes that conceal your stomach. Such outfits are available. Find them.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Why do they refer to a left-handed person as a "southpaw"? They don't call a right-handed person a "northpaw." Ask your smart readers. I'll bet somebody knows.—R.M., New Hartford, Conn.

DEAR SMART READERS: How about it? Share your wisdom, please.

DEAR READERS: Here's my gem for the day: for people who are bored hearing about "Mensa" (those brilliant folks with out-of-this-world IQs), there is now "Densa," formed by J.D. Stewart of Rochester, N.Y., an employee of Eastman Kodak. This is a society for anyone who scores in the bottom 98 percent of a test that starts with "Who is buried in Grant's tomb?"

What are the signs of alcoholism? How can you tell if someone you love is an alcoholic? "Alcoholism: How to recognize it, How to Deal With It, How to Conquer It" will give you the answers. White votive candles in crystal surrounded the arrangement.

Hostesses included Detten, Kay Pagett, Ann Meyer, Clara Reinart, Denise Marnell, Gwen Hacker, Judith Andrews, Marian Yosten, Nedra Robinson, Dorothy Brownlow, Gerry Schlabs, Nancy Pactzold, Oleta Diller, Elizabeth Vogel, Jo Ann Jesko, Elizabeth Jesko, Oleta Hoffman, Mary Schlabs, Delores McCuistian, and Yvonne Simpson.

The couple plans to wed Dec. 16.

CLOTHED IN WHITE

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — The word "candidate," one that aspires to or is nominated or qualified for an office, came into the English language in about 1600.

"Webster's Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary" says it is from a Latin word meaning "clothed in white," from the tradition in ancient Rome of candidates for an office wearing white togas as a symbol of purity.

Candidates may not always be candid, but "candid" too can be traced back to the Latin word for white. Sometimes a candidate is an "incumbent," the present holder of the office. "Incumbent" was added to the English vocabulary in the 15th century.

HHS cagers to open 1988-89 district play

Hereford's Lady Whitefaces opened their District 1-4A schedule a week ago when they traveled to Levelland to face the state's top-ranked Loboettes.

They resume district play tonight and hope for much better results when they host Dumas.

The Lady Whitefaces rebounded from the loss to Levelland by going to the championship finals of the Orange and Black Classic in Clayton, N.M. last weekend. Hereford lost in the finals to Clayton, 55-52. Stacy White led Hereford with 16 points in the finals, while Cande Robbins and Carmen Brockman each hit nine points.

In the first game at Clayton, Hereford beat Texline, 54-31. Robbins had 16 points, Brockman 15 points and Shantel Cornelius 9. White and Susan Bell each had four assists.

In the second round, Hereford downed Liberal, 53-44. Robbins had 14 points, Cornelius had 11, and Brockman added 8. Robbins had five steals, while Bell and Brienna Townsend each had four assists.

Hereford is now 5-7 on the year. The Lady Whitefaces will try to even their district mark at 1-1 against the Demonettes, who are 2-3 on the season and 1-0 in District 1-4A.

"It should be a great girls basketball game," said Hereford coach Frank Belcher. "they don't like us and we don't like them."

"We've probably played against better post people than (April) Garrett, and some other people are better than theirs, but they are a very, very scrappy ballclub."

"They play a 2-3 zone, and they'll press us some, but we've seen it all by now."

"We need to get off to a better start and have a stronger finish. Through 12 games, our opponents are outscoring us 123-107 in the first quarter and 169-141 in the fourth quarter."

"Our fourth quarter against good teams is killing us. It hurt us against Big Spring and against Dimmitt. We've had chances to win games, and playing better at the end is a key for us."

Herd cagers host Dumas in opener

The Hereford Whitefaces will open their 1988-89 District 1-4A basketball season at 8 p.m. today at Whiteface Gym against Dumas.

The Whitefaces, 1-3, won their first game of the season on Saturday against tough El Paso Socorro in the Amarillo Invitational Tournament.

The Whitefaces shot just 18 percent from the field in a 74-40 loss to Amarillo High in Friday night's first round, then lost to Odessa, 73-46, in the consolation semifinals Saturday morning.

In Saturday afternoon's game, Hereford carried a 10-point lead into the fourth quarter and won, 67-60.

"We learned something against Amarillo High that will help us all season," said Hereford coach Mike Fields. "We were only down 10 points going into the fourth quarter on Saturday morning against Odessa" before Odessa went on a spree to win going away.

"Socorro won this tournament last year, and they beat Taseosa in amarillo in the area playoffs last year," Fields said.

"I don't know that much about Dumas," Fields said. "Randall beat them in the finals of the Dumas tournament last weekend, but Dumas beat Spearman by 40, so they must have something."

8th Graders win tourney

The Hereford Maroon A eighth grade team won first place in the Hereford Boys Junior High tournament on Saturday with a 45-25 win over Dimmitt in the championship game.

Richard Sanderson led Hereford in the finals with 24 points, including four three-point goals.

The Maroon A squad defeated Valleyview, 52-42, in the first round last Thursday, then downed Boys Ranch, 48-21, on Friday.

The Hereford White A eighth grade team won third place with a 36-17 win over Boys Ranch on Saturday morning. The team defeated Canyon, 37-33, in Thursday's first round, but fell to Dimmitt, 39-36, in Friday's semifinals.

In other eighth grade games, the Maroon B team lost to Dimmitt, 49-11, on Thursday, and fell to Canyon, 45-7, in the consolation semifinals on Friday. The White B team lost to Boys Ranch, 40-18, on Thursday, then lost to Valleyview, 78-7, on Friday night.

In the freshman section of the tournament, the Hereford Maroon squad fell to Canyon, 56-46, and to Plainview Red, 60-44.

Mark Krieghauser had 16 points and Leo Brown added 14 to lead the Maroon team against Canyon. Krieghauser and Brown each had 14 points in the Plainview game.

The Hereford 9th White team lost to Boys Ranch, 66-39, on Thursday, then lost on Friday to Plainview Blue, 36-33, on a last-second three-pointer.

John McBride had 14 points and Sean Smith added 10 in the Boys Ranch contest for Hereford. In the second game, McBride had 18 points while Tempe Abney added nine.

Did Shoeless Joe get a bum rap?

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Granted this is somewhat premature, since A. Bartlett Giamatti will not move into the baseball commissioner's office until April 1, but if he needs some food for thought over the long, cold winter, he might consider this one.

After 68 years in baseball purgatory, it may be time to take a look at reinstating Shoeless Joe Jackson.

Remember that in one of his first acts as commissioner, Peter Ueberroth welcomed Mickey Mantle and Willie Mays back into baseball's good graces. That was a widely applauded act, especially welcome in baseball's current penurious period, since it cost nothing.

Shoeless Joe might not generate the same headlines, but for Giamatti, an academian and historian by training, the case might be appealing. And the price of reinstatement would be the same as Mantle and Mays. Nothing.

Jackson was implicated in the 1919 Black Sox scandal, charged as one of eight Chicago players who took bribes to throw the World Series to the Cincinnati Reds. If Jackson was a fixer, he went about the task in a most peculiar manner, batting .375 as the Series' leading hitter and making no errors in the eight games against the Reds.

Fixer. The word suggests an evil, conniving, wiseguy. Jackson was none of those things. He was instead the quintessential innocent, an illiterate country boy, who depended on raw talent to excel. A fixer requires more guile than Jackson, who was unable to read or write, could have mustered. He was a lamb, consumed by the wolves who surrounded him.

"He got a bad rap," says Donald Gropman, author of Jackson's biography, "Say It Ain't So, Joe." "He was totally defamed by history. It comes down to whose word do you take, his, or admitted fixers who were granted immunity to testify? In any event, nobody ever placed him at any planning meeting for the fix."

There seems little question that funny business went on in the 1919 Series. It was so poorly executed that everybody there seemed to know something was going on. But were the villains in the piece the players who were promised payoffs — some were delivered, others were not — or owner Charles Comiskey, who treated his employees like so many field hands? In any event, Jackson appears to have been swept along in the rush to judgment.

Shoeless Joe steadfastly denied his involvement and, in fact, won partial clearance in a civil suit he filed against Comiskey for back wages in 1924. He was awarded two years of pay and the jury said it found him in no way involved in the fix.

If you were fixing the Series, though, Jackson would have been a good man to have on your side. He was arguably the most talented natural hitter of his time, compiling a career batting average of .356 for 13 major league seasons, topped by .408 in 1911, his first full year. Jackson did not, however, win the batting championship that rookie season, because Ty Cobb hit .420.

Gropman said Jackson's involvement with the fix was promoted by Chick Gandil, one of his teammates and an early conspirator. "To make it work, they had to have the best pitchers and the best hitters," he said. "They had the pitchers, Eddie Cicotte and Lefty Williams. Jackson and Eddie Collins were the best hitters."

Collins, though, was something of an outcast on the team, college educated and paid decently by Comiskey. So Jackson was the guy. "The gamblers believed he was in," Gropman said.

Was he really, though? Well, in the film version of Eliot Asniot's gripping account, "Eight Men Out," Cicotte is shown cutting off a throw to the plate, an apparent bonehead play that allowed a Cincinnati run to score.

The man who made the on-target throw that Cicotte felt obliged to intercept was Shoeless Joe Jackson.

Texas, Cubs make nine-player trade

ATLANTA (AP)—The Texas Rangers needed a hitter and liked Rafael Palmeiro. The Chicago Cubs wanted bullpen help and went after Mitch Williams.

And, after adding some left-handed pitchers, the teams Monday put together a nine-player trade that was baseball's biggest deal since 1980.

Palmeiro, the second-leading batter in the National League last season, joined pitchers Jamie Moyer and Drew Hall in going to Texas.

Williams, among the least hit relievers in the American League, went with pitchers Paul Kilgus and Steve Wilson, infielder Curtis Wilkerson and two minor leaguers to be named later to Chicago.

It was the biggest trade since the 1980 winter meetings when Texas and Seattle exchanged 11 players, among them Richie Zisk and Willie Horton. Four days before that, St. Louis and San Diego made an 11-player trade that included Rolie Fingers and Terry Kennedy.

"We were looking for an offensive player and we feel like we got our cake and can eat it too," Texas general manager Tom Grieve said after getting Palmeiro plus pitching.

Palmeiro expressed disappointment in the trade.

"I never expected this, not this early in my career, especially coming off a good year," Palmeiro said told WTVA television in Tupelo, Miss., his wife's hometown. "I really thought it wouldn't happen this year. I thought maybe two, three or four years down the road, but things happen and I just have to go on."

Grieve said it had not been determined whether Palmeiro would play first base or outfield. The Rangers have Pete O'Brien at first base and Oddibe McDowell, Pete Incaviglia, Ruben Sierra and Cecil Espy in the outfield.

Texas designated hitters batted .192 last season, the lowest ever for a team since the DH's inception in 1973.

Chicago's 3.84 earned run average was third-worst in the NL and its short relievers were not effective. Rich Gossage led the corps with 13 saves and had a 4.33 ERA.

"We wanted something to help our bullpen and everybody in baseball knows Mitch Williams has one of the best arms around," Cubs general manager Jim Frey said.

The Cubs felt fortunate to get someone they consider a stopper without having to trade shortstop Shawon Dunston. Several teams offered bullpen help in return for Dunston, with Montreal making Tim Burke available.

Williams, 24, was 2.7 with 18 saves and a 4.63 ERA. The left-hander pitched in 67 games and his 231 relief appearances in the last three seasons are the most in the AL.

Williams held opponents to a .203 batting average, the second-lowest among AL relievers with more than 50 innings. His problem has always been control. He has walked 220 in 274 2_3 major league innings.

Kilgus, 26 and left-handed, was 12_15 with a 4.15 ERA in his first full season with Texas. His three shutouts tied the team record for a left-hander and ranked him fifth in the league.

The Rangers, who earlier in the day acquired reserve infielder Bobby Meacham from the New York Yankees for Bob Brower, were able to make Wilkerson available. Wilderson batted a career-high .293 with 28 RBI in 17 games.

Elway fired by Stanford

STANFORD, Cal.(AP)—He was praised for his recruiting, but the team's inability to score when it got close to the goal line was Stanford University Coach Jack Elway's downfall.

Saying it was time for "new direction," Elway, whose Cardinals had lost four out of the last five seasons, was fired Monday afternoon.

The not-so-surprise announcement by Stanford Director of Athletics Andy Geiger came just two weeks after the Cardinal wrapped up a 3-6-2 season.

"This extremely difficult decision came after a very careful evaluation and review of every aspect of our football program," said Geiger in a prepared statement.

Speculation that Elway was on the way out was rampant in the final weeks, but the actual move caught many—including players—unprepared.

Starting halfback Charlie Young said he was not aware that Elway would be fired until the announcement was made.

The way of the decision was hardly unexpected.

The Cardinal had a chance of winning every game this season except the one against Notre Dame. It missed opportunities to beat two bowl-bound teams—USC and Washington State—when it failed to score after getting a first down at the 3-yard line in both those games.

Elway, who came from San Jose in 1984 after Paul Wiggin was fired following a 1-10 season, has been praised for his recruiting effort at Stanford, particularly the past three seasons. Every starting skill position player on offense returns next season, and five of them are sophomores or freshmen.

But Elway repeatedly was criticized during the season for Stanford's inability to score points after the team got close to the goal line.

While at Stanford, Elway compiled a 25-29-2 record. The Cardinal finished this season a disappointing 1-5-2 in the Pacific 10 Conference.

Elway also was head coach at San Jose State for five years and at California State University-Northridge for three years. His combined career record is 30-58-4.

Stanford said a search for Elway's successor would begin immediately.

The San Francisco Chronicle reported in early editions for Tuesday that Bob Stull, coach at Texas-El Paso, is considered a prime candidate for the job. Stull already is the leading contender for the coaching position at Missouri.

Stull has made no comment about wanting to come to Stanford if the job became vacant, as had been the rumor for more than a month. But his wife is from Sausalito and he was an assistant at Washington for 12 seasons.

Cardinal players expressed sympathy for their former coach. "I just feel bad for the coach. It's a bad moment for him," said defensive back Kevin Scott.

Elway did not show up at his Stanford office Monday, said a woman who answered the phone. He could not be reached for comment.

Elway's son, John, starting quarterback for the Denver Broncos, told KMGH television station in Denver that he hadn't had a chance yet to speak with his father and didn't want to make any comment until he had done that.

Chocolate Cannoli Pie nets prize money

Home economics teachers received an invitation early last fall to participate in the Keebler "World of Pies" contest with prizes to be awarded for original ethnic or regional recipes to both the students and their home economics departments.

Students and teachers responded with recipes reflecting their local environs and heritage. There were a number of entries from Hawaii with a heavy emphasis on such native grown delicacies as coconut and pineapple and one prize winner relied on a local Georgia crop—

COTULLA, Texas (AP) — Country music star George Strait could add another prize to his collection after bagging a whitetail deer with unusually large antlers.

"This is not just something you throw out in the garage for 20 years then you throw out with the trash. This is a trophy, it will be like a family heirloom someday," LaSalle County Sheriff Darwin Avant said Wednesday.

Strait shot a buck with 14-point antlers on Thanksgiving Day. The rack measured 18 inches across, officials said.

The animal was measured in LaSalle County, about 60 miles southwest of San Antonio, for the Los Casadores Trophy Whitetail Deer Contest, which continues through the end of the year.

"In my estimation, this will probably be the deer with the biggest rack that's killed in Texas this year," Avant said.

"The Star Spangled Banner," when it was first published, bore the title "The Defense of Fort McHenry."

peanuts. In late May, a panel of distinguished judges selected Dana Loparo, a senior at Notre Dame High School in Chardon, Ohio, as the Grand Prize winner. Dana's entry, a Chocolate Cannoli Pie, evolved from a special occasion cake that was made by her grandfather.

Working with the chocolate and ricotta cheese base, Dana adapted this family favorite to a modern version, using a chocolate-flavored Ready-Crust. The result was Chocolate Cannoli Pie and a $1500 scholarship for Dana and a check for $1000 for her school.

Dana, whose father owns a pizza restaurant, loves cooking but is using her scholarship money to enter nursing school this fall. Other winners indicated that they, too, will be using their winnings to begin college careers.

In addition, home economics teachers mentioned they were pleased their students had an opportunity to show-case their creativity. According to one teacher, "this is such a positive experience for a young person; we always encourage our young people to spread their wings and try new options; when they are recognized their joy is infectious—and we love it, too!"

Some of the winning recipes follow:

Names In The News

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavyweight champion Mike Tyson and estranged actress wife, Robin Givens, slugging it out in divorce courts, were sued by a furrier who claims they owe him more than $92,000 for a sable coat for Givens' mother.

Jack-Paul Waltzer Inc. on Wednesday sued Tyson, Givens and Tyson Enterprises for the cost of a natural Russian golden sable coat they allegedly bought for Ruth Roper, Givens' mother.

According to court papers, Paul Waltzer took a sampling of coats to Tyson's Bernardville, N.J., estate on Sept. 30 so the boxer and Givens could pick one as "a surprise birthday gift" for Roper.

The $85,000 sable coat came to $92,012.50 with tax, but when Waltzer said he wasn't equipped to take a credit card, the couple offered to pay by check the next day.

However, on the day Waltzer said he showed up, the couple made an appearance on ABC's "20-20" in which Givens called Tyson a manic-depressive with "an extremely volatile temper." The boxer later

Hints from Heloise

DEAR READERS:
What wonderful inventions telephone bills are! Unfortunately, we have a bill each month to remind us of how easy it is to pick it up and call almost anywhere in the world.

The following are some helpful tips to help keep the phone bill to a reasonable minimum.
Many think it is better if you own your own telephone(s). There are many low-cost models to choose from and they will pay for themselves in less than a year, compared to the price one pays for renting them. Check dollar figures.

Many telephone companies have a special rate if you don't make many calls and it can be cheaper than the flat rate. Call your local phone company for the specifics, i.e. how many calls you can make, etc. If you are unsure how many calls you make in a month, place a sheet of paper next to the phone and keep track. This way you can tell if this service would benefit you or not. Many times the calls made over the set number are quite costly.

There are many extras that one can "subscribe" to, and these extras can add additional amounts to your regular phone bill. These costs should be reviewed every few months to make sure they meet your needs and are worth the added expense. Do you really use call forwarding? How many times?

Carefully compare the costs when choosing a long-distance company. Many times saving money with these services depends on how many long-distance calls you make and to where the calls are made.

Remember that the cheapest rates for long-distance calls are at night and on the weekends. The best and least expensive times to call are all day Saturday, Sunday until 5 p.m. and from 11 p.m. to 8 a.m. on weekdays. Also remember that calls between 9 and 11 p.m. are cheaper than those made during the day.

When you dial a wrong number on a long-distance call, always ask the operator for a credit. They are happy to oblige.

And last, check your monthly telephone bills to make sure only the calls you made are on the bill. If there is a number you don't recognize, call the phone company and they will try to identify it for you.

This was written in hopes that each reader found at least one of the tips helpful and that the tips will help you take a chip out of your monthly phone bill. — Heloise

CHEAP T-SHIRTS
Dear Heloise: Several months ago I bought four T-shirts that were on sale for $1 each. Now I know why they were so cheap. Soon after their first washing, they began to give off a very strong and unpleasant chemical odor.

I've washed them several times since then, using different detergents and fabric softeners, but the odor is still so bad that I have to keep the shirts sealed in a plastic bag to prevent the smell from permeating my other clothes.

Any help that you or your readers can give me will be greatly appreciated. — Lois V. Kobb, Mansfield, Ohio

Have you tried taking the shirts back to the place of purchase? Many times stores will refund your money and in turn send the item back to the manufacturer. If the store will not accept them, then bundle them together and send them back to the manufacturer yourself and ask for a refund.

Possibly consider taking the shirts to a local dry cleaner. He may be able to offer some help. Good luck! — Heloise reportedly flew into a rage, and the couple sued each other for divorce in October.

Waltzer said he still is waiting for the check and wants payment, with interest, plus court costs and legal fees.

Efforts to reach Tyson for comment were unsuccessful. Calls to his home went unanswered.

BUENA PARK, Calif. (AP) — Actor James Stewart unveiled a wax likeness of himself at the Movieland Wax Museum, calling the paraffin tribute "a great thrill."

The reproduction unveiled Wednesday depicts Stewart as he appeared in the 1954 Alfred Hitchcock classic "Rear Window," in which the actor's wheelchair-confined character witnesses a murder.

"Someone said, and I guess it's true, that 'What you were really playing in that picture was a peeping tom,'" the 80-year-old Stewart said. "That's exactly what I was doing."

"This is a great thrill for me and an honor to be part of this wax museum that has been part of the entertainment industry for many years."

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Mayor Sophie Masloff hasn't formally announced she is running for election next year, but she told actor Ed Asner anyway.

Asner, in Pittsburgh to perform in the Broadway-bound comedy "Born Yesterday," visited the mayor Tuesday in her office.

"I'm running for re-election next year. The (primary) election's in May," Masloff told the actor.

Then, apparently catching herself, the mayor added, "I'm not allowed to say that. One of these days, I'm going to tell the world."

The 70-year-old Democrat became mayor after Richard S. Caliguiri died in May. She recently scheduled, then canceled, formal announcement of her candidacy.

The sixth grade social studies class of the Nazarene Christian Academy recently presented reports on countries around the world. Along with an intense study of the government, economy, religion, terrain, Mother Nature made fruits sweet, juicy, and tempting. Then she improved on a good thing by inventing drying. And in the drying process, her fruit just got sweeter and sweeter.

She probably dried her first fruit on a tree under hot, tropical sunshine. Today's food processors still use the sun-drying technique, but now they also use forced hot air.

Either way, the process of drying fruit reduces the fruit's water content from 80 percent to between 15 and 35 percent. As a result, everything else left behind is concentrated.

Mother Nature was good to fruit. She gave it vitamins, minerals and plenty of fiber. She made fruit low in fat and cholesterol free.

However, dried fruit may contain as much as 70 percent sugar by weight, or more than many cookies and as much as some candies. As a result, you get a fair number of calories along with your minerals.

Some modern processors have also added sulfite preservatives to light colored fruit, such as apples, peaches, pears, apricots and golden raisins, to keep them from turning brown.

Asthmatics and other sulfite-sensitive people should be sure the dried fruit they are eating is sulfite free. The Food and Drug Administration requires that dried fruit which contains sulfites be clearly marked. Since dried fruits are among the most heavily sulfited foods on the market today, it is important to check.

On the whole though, dried fruits are a delicious way to satisfy a sweet tooth and gain some great nutritional bonuses. Just eat them in moderation and consider these fruits as a welcome Christmas gift.

mail fraud, the Postal Service has changed its rule on C.O.D. orders. In the past, consumers were required to pay the Postal Service for C.O.D. orders. The Postal Service would then pay the company that had shipped the merchandise.

The rule now allows the recipient of a C.O.D. package to pay the charges with a check made payable to the sender. Consumers can later stop payment on the check if they think the goods have been intentionally misrepresented. Keep in mind, some banks charge a fee for cancelled checks.

Of course, some mail order problems pop up when consumers fail to fill out order forms correctly. Don't forget to fill in your name and address! Also check for a cut-off date on orders-if you miss it, delivery may not be guaranteed in time for the holidays.

Keep a copy of the ad or brochure when you place an order. Also, jot down the date you placed the order and the number of your check or money order. Remember, never send cash through the mail.

Better Business Bureau's Tips for the consumer

SHOPPING BY MAIL

It won't be long before holiday shoppers descend on shopping malls and retail stores en masse. To avoid the rush, you may have decided to stay home and shop by mail. But before placing orders, be sure to follow some important shopping tips.

Don't be short-changed by con artists selling merchandise through the mail or over the telephone. While most mail order and telemarketing companies are legitimate, some fraudulent ones are only interested in making a fast buck. To protect yourself, check the company out with your Better Business Bureau before placing an order.

Watch out for exaggerated claims or unrealistically low prices for merchandise. Read catalog descriptions carefully - is it wood or plastic? Diamond or glass? Also, compare prices for similar products in your area.

ASK DR. LAMB

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am so discouraged. My 18-year-old son has developed the filthy habit of chewing tobacco. He is a handsome, healthy young man, but this habit ruins it all. He is very athletic and loves baseball. I think all those baseball players chewing tobacco is the real reason he chews.

I would like to know why baseball players chew, and I hope you will say something about how harmful it is. I realize that chewing may not be as dangerous as smoking, unless I lose control and become violent, but surely it can't be healthy.

DEAR READER: Baseball players have been chewing tobacco since the sport was first organized in 1845, originally to throw spit balls. Drs. Gregory Connolly, C. Tracy Orleans and Michael Kogan of the Massachusetts Department of Public Health recently reviewed this problem in baseball players. They point out that Babe Ruth, who dipped snuff, chewed tobacco and smoked tobacco, died at age 52 from throat cancer, while Honus Wagner, one of the most famous shortstops of all time and an outspoken critic of tobacco, died at age 81.

Chewing tobacco and snuff are significant hazards to the teeth and gums and can cause cancer of the mouth.

for 10 weeks. After a second operation, the pouch was removed along with part of his colon.

He still gets pain in his lower abdomen. What are the chances of this happening again? My son had to have a polyp removed from his lower rectum when he was 6. Is this related to diverticulosis in any way?

DEAR READER: Yes, diverticulosis does occur at an early age, but it is rare. It is usually said the incidence of diverticulosis increases after age 30 until half the people in the U.S. who reach 80 have these little pockets of the colon.

When diverticulosis occurs at an early age, it seems to be associated with more complications. It sounds like your husband had an infected diverticulum (pocket) and these can perforate. Such a complication is much like appendicitis and surgery may be required. Today, when possible, if surgery is required, the segment where the pockets are located is removed and the ends of the colon sutured together all in one operation. If that can't be done for some reason, a temporary colostomy is done, as in your husband's case.

Usually, the diverticula are in one segment of the colon. If this is removed, it is unlikely that a complication such as bleeding or perforation will occur again. But that doesn't mean discomfort will not occur. Many doctors think the discomfort is related to spasms of the colon that may have been a factor in causing the original diverticula.

Despite his young age, the management is the same as if it had occurred for the first time when he was 50. I have discussed this in my new Special Report 94, About Diverticulosis: Pockets of the Colon, which I am sending you. Others who want this report can send $1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/94, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

Your son's polyp is an entirely different problem and should have nothing to do with diverticulosis.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am a 58-year-old woman, and a few years ago I weighed 177 pounds. I went on a diet and got down to 110 pounds. Needless to say, the inside of my legs and my stomach are all flab. Is there any exercise I could do to tighten the muscles, or am I at an age where exercise would not work?

DEAR READER: Exercise is not likely to correct such a problem at any age if you lose 37 percent of your body weight. I am asked this question rather frequently. About 96 percent of the people who lose weight regain what they lost and often add more pounds. You might be one of the 5 percent who keeps the fat off. But that is the reason I usually don't recommend any drastic measures until a person has kept the excess weight off at least a year.

You cannot exercise the skin. Once it is stretched, it is like an over-stretched balloon. It never gets back to its original shape. If you are young, you may be lucky and the skin in time will undergo enough changes to take up some of the slack. You can tighten up your muscles, but that "flab" is probably skin, not muscle or fat.

What's left? Exercise can increase the size of your muscles under the skin, and that helps, but you can't expect to develop 67 pounds of muscles. That leaves surgery to remove unwanted excess skin.
