Donna West named Woman of the Year

By GAYE B. REILY
Staff Writer

After Donna West was installed as president of the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, she was also named the 1988 Woman of the Year.

The announcement climaxed the Division's quarterly meeting held Thursday night in the Community Center. Making the presentation of red roses and an engraved silver platter was Betty Drake, the 1988 award recipient.

"Tonight we honor a vivacious young woman whose personality gives confidence and excitement to whatever organization in which she is involved," said Drake. "(West) is active in Pilot Club and the Women's Division where she has given wholeheartedly to the Miss Hereford Scholarship Pageant and has worked on the Christmas Carousel. She also did a great job in the United Way drive this year."

Drake noted that, although West is a relative newcomer to Hereford, West has worked hard to promote Hereford at every opportunity.

West graduated from Amarillo High School and West Texas State University, where she was a member of Delta Zeta Sorority and Alpha Chi Honorary Society. She has taught English, Spanish, and French at Plains High School and comes from a family of one brother and four sisters, one of whom is her twin.

A certified public accountant, West is a partner in Brown, Graham, and Co. and is married to Jay West.

She received the Woman of the Year award before a crowd of 44 Division members and guests. After West's installation as president, Division for 1989, other officers were inducted, including Judy Barrett, 1st vice president; Ruth Newsom, 2nd vice president; and Lori Hall, secretary.

Virginia Adams, the Division's first president, installed the officers and charged them with specific duties. Sue Malamen, outgoing president, will serve as parliamentarian.

Adams said that the Division is now beginning its 21st year and said she believed it would be successful for many years to come.

A catered dinner by Something Special preceded the meeting. Betty Taylor began the event with a prayer and Malamen introduced Rocky Lee, new president of the Chamber of Commerce, as a special guest.

Malamen recognized three outgoing directors, all of whom served in the Division for 1987 and 1988.

Receiving plaques citing their efforts as directors were Adeline Cunningham, Helen Eades, and Betty Taylor. Malamen announced that Barbara Yavornik and Carla Vasek would remain on the board of directors.

In her farewell speech as president, Malamen observed that 1988 was successful and thanked all the committee chairmen for their efforts. "My term in office has been a new experience and it was interesting serving at the same time my husband, Larry, was the Chamber's president," she said. "I hope the Division can help Hereford keep a positive attitude because we've come a long way but have a long way to go."

Malamen cited Division members for making the year a success, and gave special thanks to The Hereford Brand and KPAN radio station for their coverage of Division events.

Once West was inducted as president, she gave a plaque of appreciation to Malamen. In her opening remarks, West commented that she associated fun, fellowship, and friends with her affiliation with the Women's Division.

"I have lived in Hereford for seven years and I've been a member of the Division for that length of time. It was also seven years ago that I married and began work in my present job.

"My goals for my tenure in office are to help the Division have more fun, make more friends, and work toward the future."

West distributed questionnaires to members, asking what goals members would like to see accomplished by the Division in 1989 as well as having members sign up for membership on any of the 18 committees.

Past Woman of the Year award recipients include, from 1971 through 1987, Irene McKinster, Katherine Kester, Violet Reinauer, Wynell Robinson, Lavon Nieman, Inez Albright, Sherry Hoover, Susie McGee, Virginia Adams, Georgia Sparks, Leatrus Clark, Carroll Ann Simmons, Margaret Formby, Mary Herring, Lajean Henry, Helen Langley, and Drake.

General membership meetings are held in April, July, and October. Any woman who is a resident of Deaf Smith County may become a member by signing a membership application and paying the annual dues.

The Woman of the Year Award is presented annually during the Division's first quarterly meeting. The award recipient must be a member of the Women's Division, but nominations may be submitted by anyone.

Bivins already at work for legislative session

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

State Sen. Teel Bivins outlined the steps he has taken to assume his new role in Austin and discussed some of the major issues the Texas Legislature will face later this month when the legislative session begins during a Thursday meeting at Hereford State Bank.

Bivins, R-Amarillo, won his state senate seat in November by defeating Democrat Mel Phillips. Bivins will replace Bill Sarpalus, who is now the U.S. representative from the 13th District of Texas.

Bivins has drawn praise from the Capitol press corps from the work he has done before the session. Bivins was the only non-member to attend a recent Legislative Budget Board meeting and has visited with the heads of several state agencies and top elected officials.

"I want to begin with a good relationship with my colleagues and the people I'll be working with," Bivins said. "I'm working hard to hit the ground running, but not so hard that I fall on my face."

Bivins told the crowd of 20 people at the meeting that he has already met with state Rep. Stan Schlueter on a proposed constitutional amendment to ban a state income tax.

"Sen. Schlueter will be carrying that bill in the house, and I will give it my best efforts in the senate," Bivins said. "The bill has not had any problems passing the house but has always stalled in the senate. We'll try to get it out of the senate this year."

Bivins also said he has begun "coalition building" with other representatives from the Panhandle-Plains.

"Everyone has lamented that we are under-represented up here and we are so far away from Austin," Bivins said. "but we can go to work together and have a common voice on many issues in Austin."

Bivins said the group has already held two meetings and plans to meet every Wednesday morning in Austin during the legislative session.

"We will focus on the issues in our district," Bivins said. "We won't agree on all of them, but we will speak with one voice on the ones that we do agree on. I think that's what you all want us to do."

Bivins said a West Texas Legislative Coalition, including three senators and 20 representatives, is also being formed to present a united front on issues that effect a larger section of the state.

"We will identify issues, develop strategies," Bivins said. "We have a vehicle there that we can get gassed up and ready to go."

Bivins said he visited with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby for about 30 minutes where Bivins explained his background and interests to Hobby so Hobby can place him where he feels he will be most useful in committees.

"I want to be a player," Bivins said. "I don't want to sit on the ideological fringe and toss bombs."

Bivins said major issues will include:

--A stronger look at spending cuts instead of raising taxes. Bivins said the state's coffers are almost at a break-even point, and "we won't hear the 'T' (tax) word much this year."

--School financing. Bivins believes a final bill will maintain most local control with no spending cuts, and districts will have enticements to consolidate but will not be forced into consolidation.

U.S. releases dogfight photos

WASHINGTON (AP)--The Pentagon has released photographs and a dramatic audio tape of the U.S.-Libyan dogfight over the Mediterranean that it says prove its pilots were provoked and acted reasonably in downing the Libyan planes.

The photographs, although of poor quality, show at least one of the two Libyan MiG-23 fighters carried missiles. The Libyan government has claimed both its planes were unarmed.

The cockpit audio tape clearly records the pilot of the lead U.S.

Navy F-14 Tomcat citing each of five attempts to maneuver away from the approaching Libyan jets, then, along with a second F-14, shooting down the MiG-23s.

Libya has asserted that the incident Wednesday was connected to growing American complaints that a Libyan chemicals plant is being readied for full-scale production of poison gas. President Reagan has said he would not rule out a military strike against the plant, which Libya claims is merely a medicine factory.

The Pentagon said there was no link between the factory dispute and the air battle, which it said began while the Navy Tomcats were flying a routine protective patrol for the aircraft carrier John F. Kennedy well off the Libyan coast.

In Paris on Thursday, Secretary of State George P. Schultz hinted that Reagan may be willing to work out a deal with Libya that would not require destruction of the plant.

Before arriving in Paris for an international conference on chemical weapons where the U.S.-Libyan dispute will take center stage, Shultz acknowledged even some of America's allies are not convinced the plant is a weapons facility.

In his first public comments on Wednesday's air battle with Libya, Reagan on Thursday said the American pilots had done the right thing in firing their missiles.

"Our pilots acted completely in self-defense," Reagan said as he boarded Air Force One in Los Angeles, where he ended two weeks of vacation.

The audio tape released Thursday by the Pentagon indicated that American aviators became concerned about the Libyan's intent.

Did you make any new year resolutions? We had a second helping of black-eyed peas in hopes that some 1989 wishes would come true.

While thinking about all the opportunities of the new year, there are a few resolutions worth keeping.

Resolved: --never bet on a sure thing--like an oilwell, the cattle market, the horses or even your favorite football team.

--never complain about the high cost of dental care while the dentist is standing over you with a drill.

--never ask your friends if they have recent pictures of their grandchildren.

--never ask Mike Carr when Valley View is going to construct a new plant east of town.

--unless you have plenty of time, never ask Clint Formby where he's been.

--never wear a H. Ross Perot T-shirt to a teachers' appreciation banquet.

--never believe the guy from the government is really trying to help.

--never buy your wife a dress that's too large.

--never ask the highway patrolman if he wants to race to the JP's office.

--never make your resolutions public.

Senate hopefuls eye race

Hightower decides not to challenge

AUSTIN (AP) — U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm won't get a free re-election ride in the wake of Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower's apparent decision not to challenge the Republican in 1990, a top Democratic official says.

"The Texas Democratic Party, even absent Jim Hightower, has plenty of people who are very qualified," said Ed Martin, the party's executive director.

"And Phil Gramm's got plenty of vulnerabilities. I don't think he's a 900-pound gorilla. I don't think he's going to get to run unopposed. People who suggest we allow that to happen are not suggesting a wise course for the Democratic Party," Martin said.

Hightower aide Geoff Rips this week said the two-term Democratic agriculture commissioner would seek re-election rather than challenge Gramm. Hightower did not return several phone calls Thursday.

But the ink wasn't dry on the initial news reports before other names began surfacing in Austin and Washington as Senate possibilities.

Among politicians who might want to tackle Gramm, several sources said, were U.S. Reps. John Bryant of Dallas, Mike Andrews of Houston and Mickey Leland of Houston, and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

Hightower, a fiery liberal who has probably the highest national profile of any state's agriculture official, had talked for two years about challenging Gramm.

A former aide to Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Texas, Hightower was an adviser to Democratic presidential candidate Jesse Jackson last year, addressed the past two Democratic National Conventions, helped draft Democratic versions of national farm legislation and is an organizer of what he calls a "new populist Democratic alliance."

Gramm, a conservative, was a "Boll Weevil" Democratic congressman who quit the House, changed parties and was re-elected as a Republican. He defeated Democrat Lloyd Doggett in the 1984 Senate race.

According to his last federal campaign finance report, Gramm already had $1.9 million cash on hand for his next race. The senator, who spent some $10 million on the 1984 race, has a reputation as a powerful fund-raiser.

Besides trailing Gramm in the money battle, Hightower's endorsement of Jackson was said by some Democrats to have hindered his chances in another race.

A number of Democrats said privately that some party officials were urging Hightower not to run, fearing that his name on top of the 1990 ballot could hurt Democrats seeking lower-level offices.

"There's more conservatives in Texas than liberals, and he couldn't very well run as a moderate," said one Democrat who asked that his name not be used.

Gramm said he expected a re-election fight regardless.

"I have never considered that my opposition would come from any single individual. I expect the 1990 race to be a tough and hard-fought campaign requiring an all-out effort for success," he said.

While not suggesting who his opponent might be, Gramm said, "I expect opposition from the same special interest groups which have always opposed efforts to balance the federal budget and revitalize the private sector of the economy."

Bryant's spokesman, Carlton Carl, said the congressman "is certainly contemplating the options — a Senate race, along with (Texas) attorney general and re-election."

Tower doing well after colon surgery

DALLAS (AP) — Former Texas Sen. John Tower, the defense secretary-designate, was in fair condition in a Dallas hospital early today after undergoing surgery to remove a polyp in his colon, a hospital spokesman said.

Dr. R.D. Dignan removed the polyp during a three-hour operation at Baylor University Medical Center Thursday, said hospital spokesman Steve Habgood. A preliminary test showed the growth to be benign.

"The senator is expected to make a full recovery," Habgood said. Dignan was expected to issue a complete report Friday afternoon.

Tower, designated Dec. 16 by President-elect Bush as his defense secretary, was admitted to the hospital Wednesday afternoon for the elective surgery.

Doctors discovered the polyp when Tower underwent a colonoscopy examination Dec. 27. A rectal polyp was also discovered at that time and immediately removed.

Tests of the rectal polyp showed it to contain some "malignant but well differentiated cells," Habgood said.

Further explanation of the Dec. 27 polyp removal would have to come from Tower's surgeon, who was unavailable for comment Thursday night, the spokesman said.

Tower, 63, retired from the Senate in 1985 after a 24-year career that included a stint as chairman of the Armed Services Committee during President Reagan's first term.

After he retired, Tower was named by Reagan as a member of the U.S. team negotiating with the Soviets for deep cuts in the U.S.-Soviet arsenals of long-range weapons.

He quit after 14 months in that post and set up a consulting firm, Tower & Associates.

The Republican from Graham, Texas, then was asked by Reagan to investigate the Iran-Contra affair.

Until Tower replaced Lyndon Johnson in the Senate, he was a little-known government professor at Midwestern University in Wichita Falls.

Ophthalmologist opens Hereford office

Dr. Dik S. Cheung, a Clovis, N.M., ophthalmologist, has opened a Hereford office at Deaf Smith General Hospital.

DSGH Administrator Gary Moore said Dr. Cheung will begin seeing patients here this month. Appointments may be scheduled by calling DSGH at 364-2141.

Dr. Cheung will be treating eye diseases including cataracts, glaucoma and muscle problems. Surgeries will be performed at DSGH, meaning persons who were forced to travel out of town to see ophthalmologists or have surgery performed can now have the needed treatment or surgery in Hereford.

Cheung, who is certified by the American Board of Ophthalmology, served in the U.S. Army from 1980-87. He received his medical training in China and served his internship in Jackson Memorial Hospital at the University of Miami (Fla.). He received his ophthalmology specialty training at Brooke Army Medical Hospital in San Antonio.

Tug of War over raising insurance rates to end soon

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Board of Insurance will take a few weeks to study various proposals on automobile insurance rates before announcing a decision, the board chairman said.

In Thursday's hearing before the three-member board, a consumer representative and the State Board of Insurance staff said automobile insurance rates should be reduced, but the insurance industry argued for an increase.

During a break from testimony before the Insurance Board, chairman Edwin J. Smith Jr. said the panel will study the lengthy comments and exhibits and probably make a decision on the rates within the next few weeks.

The Office of Consumer Protection wants the statewide average automobile insurance rate reduced by an overall 6.9 percent. The Insurance Board staff has requested a 0.3 percent cut, while the insurance industry has proposed a 6.5 percent increase.

The dispute centers on the size of the profit margin for automobile insurance carriers. Gaylon Daniel, chief property and casualty and actuary for the Insurance Board, said,

"The bottom line is we are making provisions for much less profit. In fact we are making provisions for losses on the liability that will be made up on their earnings from investment income."

Kay Doughty, general counsel of the Office of Consumer Protection, said a 6.9 percent decrease would still allow the insurance companies to earn a large profit.

"They make so much money on their investments they can afford to lose money on their underwriting and still make what we believe is a reasonable return of 14 percent, which I think is adequate by almost anyone's standards," she said.

But Richard Geiger, an attorney with the Texas Automobile Insurance Service Office, said Ms. Doughty's proposal "just doesn't make sense."

He said the Insurance Board staff and the Office of Consumer Protection have miscalculated how much profit the insurance companies would make under their proposals.

Of the staff's proposed 0.3 percent decrease, Geiger said, "I'm not going to say it will bankrupt us, because it clearly won't, but it will make the end result less than what ought to be offered."

"Just like any other profit-making enterprise, we expect to make a profit. That's why we're in this business, and the rate recommended by the staff in our judgment simply won't do that," he said.

Automobile insurance rates in Texas went up 3.9 percent overall in 1987, following a 9.8 percent increase in 1986. Rates fell the two previous years by 5.1 percent and 3.8 percent, respectively.

Better educated smoking less than school dropouts

CHICAGO (AP) — Better-educated Americans smoke far less since the surgeon general first warned of tobacco's dangers 25 years ago, but by 2000, 30 percent of those who never went beyond high school will still be lighting up, researchers reported today.

Poorer and less educated people are missing the message that smoking is linked to cancer and other numerous health problems, said researchers at the national Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

"Smoking prevalence has declined across all educational groups, but the decline has occurred five times faster among the higher educated compared with the less educated," they reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

One reason may be that much of the antismoking message has gone out in newspapers and medical journals, typically read by the better educated, said Dr. Michael C. Fiore, a leader of the CDC group.

"Little has gone out via mass media, especially television," he said in a telephone interview Thursday from Madison, Wis., where he is now an assistant professor of medicine at the University of Wisconsin Medical Center.

From 1974 to 1985, the number of U.S. smokers among people who had completed four years of college plummeted by more than a third, from 28.5 percent to 18.4 percent, the CDC group said.

But the corresponding drop among people who never graduated from high school was 2.1 percent, from 36.3 percent to 34.2 percent, the researchers found.

Ann Landers

DEAR READERS: Virginia Knauer, special adviser to the President for consumer affairs, sent on some wonderfully useful material explaining how crooks bilk consumers out of millions of dollars every year. I want to share this information with you today.

Any product that promises easy and quick weight loss, bust enlargement or a way to banish wrinkles or restore the sex drive should be suspect. No cream, magic potion, pill or "scientifically designed" exercise will accomplish any of the above.

Key words that should trigger suspicion are: overnight results, rejuvenate, magical transformation and secret formula.

Beware of "make money" schemes. While some home employment plans are legitimate, many are not.

Advertisements are suspect if they promise big income quickly or you are required to send money for information for supplies before you are informed of the nature of the job and what is required.

The usual work-at-home jobs offered are envelope stuffing, sewing, clipping newspapers, mailing circulars, arts and crafts and small animal breeding.

The language used in the bait is: large profits, high part-time earnings, little effort required no experience necessary and guaranteed earnings.

Easy victims are women with small children with no skills and limited education. New Americans are apt to fall for these ads.

Be wary when you see: Guaranteed job placement. Little or no skills needed.

Offers of salaries that sound too good to be true.

Watch for catch phrases such as "set your own hours" and "no experience necessary."

Investment frauds suck in millions of people who want to get rich quick. Clever swindlers know what language to use to attract the yokels. The promoters usually promise unrealistically high returns within a short period with little or no risk.

Be wary when you see: limited or no risk, or need to invest immediately. Also be suspicious of offers to lend you money "after a fee has been paid." Too often the loan fails to materialize. These schemes are appealing to individuals or businesses that are unable to obtain conventional financing.

To check out an ad that looks suspicious, contact the Better Business Bureau. (There are 170 offices in the United States.) Other suggestions: Call your state or local consumer protection office. Contact your city's chamber of commerce. These offices investigate consumer complaints and are aware of advertising scams.

People are also encouraged to report advertising fraud to the publication or the media that ran the ad. This is the only way the media can screen out fraudulent ads and protect consumers.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In the last several months my husband and I have taken our two children, ages 7 and 4, to two movies rated PG.

We were furious when we heard four-letter words and cursing in both movies. It was a disgrace! Why in the world would such language be used in a film for children? -- R.C.

DEAR R.C.: I've had letters from a great many parents in the past several years and they all have the same complaint.

What many people do not understand is that a PG rating stands for "parental guidance." This means the movie contains material that some parents will find objectionable, and that they should decide whether or not they want their children to see the movie. You should take your children to only those movies that are rated "G."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: "Ed" and I plan to be married next year. I have asked my only sister to be matron of honor. She said yes, and then we began to talk about the wedding.

"Mary" has an 8-year-old son who is immature and spoiled. When she asked if I planned to have him be the ring bearer, I said no, I had in mind Ed's nephew.

Mary became extremely upset and said that if I didn't ask Michael, he would be terribly hurt and she couldn't take that insult lying down. After a lot of unpleasant conversation, Mary said unless I included her son as ring bearer, she could not be my matron of honor.

Ed says he will do anything I want. I don't like ultimatums, Ann, but I hate to have my sister mad at me. Please advise--A Mess

DEAR E.M.: Your sister had no right to lay this on you. If you don't want her son to be the ring bearer, tell her you have made other plans.

Answer coming on Bears' starting QB

CHICAGO (AP) — With millions of people hanging on his words, Mike Ditka finally made his long-awaited announcement.

Bryan Wagner, the punter, will replace placekicker Kevin Butler for kickoffs when the Chicago Bears play the San Francisco 49ers on Sunday in the NFC championship game.

The answer to the real question — who will be the Bears' quarterback? — is still to be answered. Maybe today, Ditka said.

Whether it will be Jim McMahon or Mike Tomczak at the controls on Sunday is a controversy-in-the-making that San Francisco's Joe Montana can relate to. "I can understand what's going on there because I've been there," said Montana, who finally won the full-time quarterback job for the 49ers from Steve Young in late November after a year and a half of shuffling by Coach Bill Walsh.

"I know the longer he waits, the tougher it is on both those guys," Montana said of the Bears' situation. At the same time he was awarding the kickoff duties to Wagner, Ditka was putting off the decision that might affect how many times Wagner gets to kick.

Tomczak still seems to have the inside track with Ditka, who said he would probably decide today. He's scheduled a news conference at a Chicago hotel after the Bears return from their winter training camp at Suwanee, Ga.

No matter who starts, Ditka said Thursday, both McMahon and Tomczak are expected to play on Sunday.

Asked whether he delayed the answer on the quarterback situation to keep the 49ers guessing, Ditka replied: "Take a bow."

The problem is that it also keeps Tomczak and McMahon guessing.

The 29-year-old McMahon, yet to play a full season without injury in seven years with Chicago, has nominally been the Bears' starting quarterback since 1983. But his game-by-game record in the team's media guide is replete with references to his absences: "dnp (did not play) back," "ir (injured reserve) kidney," "dnp shoulder," "ir shoulder" and "dnp hamstring."

This year, he managed to make it through eight games. A knee injury in the ninth game Oct. 30 against New England kept him out until last week's 20-12 victory over Philadelphia in a fog-shrouded playoff game at Soldier Field last weekend. In that game, Tomczak reinjured a left shoulder that had been separated on Nov. 27.

Last week's game was the first playoff start for the 26-year-old Tomczak, whose regular-season record is 16-3. But McMahon has a career record of 3-0 against San Francisco while Tomczak's only start against the 49ers was in a 41-0 loss at Candlestick Park last year.

Meanwhile, the 32-year-old Montana, most valuable player in San Francisco's 1982 and 1985 Super Bowl victories, is now solidly back as the No. 1 quarterback. It was a job he seemed to have put in jeopardy when he was relieved by Steve Young during a 36-24 playoff upset by Minnesota last week. Last week, as the 49ers got revenge on the Vikings 34-9, Montana completed 11 of 14 passes, three for touchdowns, in the first half.

Young, whose scrambling ability forces opponents into different defenses, had his moments this year, breaking five tackles on a 49-yard touchdown run that gave San Francisco a 24-21 win over Minnesota in a regular-season game.

In fact, Montana reclaimed the starting position only after San Francisco lost two games to fall to 6-5 at mid-season.

AFC QBs will fill some role in championship

CINCINNATI (AP) — There's an easy way to tell the quarterbacks apart Sunday in the AFC Championship game.

One of them likes to throw the ball as often as he can. He is Buffalo's Jim Kelly, who finished near the middle of the pack in the AFC quarterback rankings.

The other spends most of his time handing off. He is Cincinnati's Boomer Esiason, who went from start to finish in the regular season as the NFL's top-ranked passer.

Puzzled? You're not alone.

The two quarterbacks have done a role reversal heading into the conference championship at Riverfront Stadium.

Kelly came out firing in the Bills' 17-10 playoff victory over Houston last Sunday, throwing on Buffalo's first six plays. That flew in the face of the Bills' conservative philosophy, which is based on running the ball successfully.

Kelly, who has admitted his frustration with the Bills' offensive conservatism, said the air attack was "something I've been waiting for for a long time." He ended up completing 19 of 33 passes for 244 yards with one interception.

"It definitely made me feel better," Kelly said. "It's something that when you win and you know you're a big part of it by throwing the ball, it makes it a little bit special."

While Kelly was doing his best Dan Marino imitation, Esiason was playing a role usually reserved for a wishbone quarterback.

He threw just 19 times, with season-low totals of seven completions and 108 yards, in a 21-13 playoff victory Saturday over Seattle. It marked the fourth consecutive game in which Esiason had completed 10 or fewer passes and thrown for less than 200 yards.

"The last couple of weeks, I've been like Jamelle Holieway," Esiason said, referring to Oklahoma's wishbone quarterback. "I just hand the ball off and let them go."

In fact, Holieway had it better than Esiason last weekend, completing 10 of 24 passes, albeit in a 13-6 loss to Clemson in the Citrus Bowl.

One of the interesting questions Sunday is whether the two quarterbacks keep taking their offenses in different directions, or whether they revert to form.

The Bills, 13-4, like to run the ball first and pass second. Coach Marv Levy considers the tilt toward passing against Houston an aberration.

The Bills' passing game has come under criticism this season. Kelly completed 59.5 percent of his passes for 3,380 yards, but threw more interceptions (17) than touchdowns (15). Running back Robb Riddick criticized Kelly publicly after the regular season, saying the quarterback didn't throw to his running backs enough and held onto the ball too long when pressured. Levy says the Bills' record is evidence that Kelly is doing a good job.

"Our objective is not to see how many touchdowns passes he can throw," Levy said. "Our objective is not to have him be necessarily the No. 1-rated quarterback by that formula that no one understands except some physicist at MIT. Our objective is to win games, and that's what he does."

Esiason opened the season in a blaze of glory, throwing 17 touchdown passes in the Bengals' first seven games. With the ground game improving as the season went on — the Bengals finished with the best running attack in the NFL — he threw less and less.

He threw for more than 200 yards in six of the Bengals' first seven games; his highest total in the last four games was 187 yards in the regular-season finale against Washington.

Esiason, the league's Most Valuable Player, finished with 3,572 yards on a 57.5 percent completion rate, with 28 touchdowns and 14 interceptions.

Although Esiason thinks the Bengals sometimes get too conservative when trying to protect leads, he agrees the emphasis should stay on the running game as long as it's working.

Tarpley 'slips' again, re-enters rehab

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas drug counselor had been Mavericks forward Roy Tarpley's companion on road trips this season.

But Tarpley "had another slip," team officials said Thursday, and voluntarily placed himself for the second time in the care of the NBA's drug treatment center.

Tarpley, the team's No. 1 draft pick in 1986 and a member of the NBA's All-Rookie team that season, was suspended indefinitely without pay.

"He did not follow the after-care program established by the drug counselors," said Mavericks General Manager Norm Sonju.

Under the league's anti-drug agreement, if Tarpley steps forward a third time or if he fails to follow his after-care program he will be dismissed from the league immediately, although he could reapply for admission after a two-year suspension.

Tarpley flew to the treatment center in Van Nuys, Calif., Thursday from Phoenix, where the Mavericks play the Suns tonight.

Tarpley sought substance abuse counseling in June 1987 and was treated for a problem in September of that year. He won the NBA's Sixth Man Award for the 1987-88 season, the league's highest honor for a non-starting player.

Tarpley missed the team's first 14 games of the 1988-89 season with a knee injury, returned Dec. 13 and has since averaged 14.8 points and 10.6 rebounds.

Tarpley, 24, informed counselors Wednesday night in Phoenix that he needed professional help.

"People don't understand," teammate Rolando Blackman said of Tarpley during the 1987 season. "Roy is just young. Really young. He's just like a big kid."

Mavericks officials would not elaborate on Tarpley's "slip" and referred such questions to NBA physician Dr. Dave Lewis. Lewis did not return a call from The Associated Press Thursday.

Gary Bettman, vice president and general counsel for the NBA, also declined to elaborate on the nature of Tarpley's problem.

"After it's already been made public that a player has voluntarily sought treatment, there's no reason to go into all the gory details," Bettman told the Dallas Times Herald.

The Dallas Morning News quoted anonymous sources as saying that Tarpley's latest problems were cocaine-related.

"It's not a daily thing, but it seems like there are moments of weakness," one of the persons requesting anonymity told The News.

Sonju and team vice president Rick Sund would not give details of Tarpley's after-care program.

"He has had ups and downs with his after-care program, which we have modified and changed for the betterment of Roy Tarpley's after-care. As a result, he stepped forward and told his counselors he needed some additional help," Sund said.

"He's got to lick alcohol and cocaine every day of his life," he added. "And the only way he can basically lick that is to comply with the after-care. And in a nutshell he's going to have to be able to do that better than what he's been doing here."

The Mavericks decided before the season that drug counselor Ronnie Horowitz would accompany Tarpley on the first extended road trip of the season and then random trips the remainder of the season.

Horowitz traveled with the team on its five-game road trip in mid-December, Tarpley's first trip since returning from the injury. But the Mavericks chose not to send Horowitz with Tarpley on the road trip that began in Sacramento Tuesday.

Cavs win 10th straight

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Cleveland played the perfect defense against Michael Jordan, which is one reason the Cavaliers ran their club-record winning streak to 10 straight games.

Craig Ehlo was the man assigned to Jordan, but he said there was a team plan against the NBA's fourth-highest scorer.

"We've been working on pushing him towards help for the past two days," Ehlo said Thursday night. "He just wasn't as aggressive as he has been in the past. But as many minutes as he plays, I'm sure he gets exhausted."

Jordan scored 32 points. But only 12 came in the second half, and just five of those in the fourth period as Cleveland defeated Chicago 103-86, snapping the Bulls' three-game winning streak.

"If you want to say Ehlo stopped me, you can. But it was really good team defense," Jordan said. "He (Ehlo) was trying to force me to the middle, where he had help if I penetrated. Every time I beat him, he had help."

Elsewhere, it was San Antonio 119, Philadelphia 104; Seattle 120, Sacramento 106, and Denver 131, Golden State 129.

Cleveland's Ron Harper scored seven straight points as the Cavaliers snapped a 90-90 tie late in the fourth period. He made a scoop shot, a short jumper, a free throw and a fast break layup off a steal to put the Cavs up 97-90 with 1:40 to play.

Jordan's 3-pointer got Chicago within four points with 28 seconds left, but the Bulls could get no closer.

"I came back off the bench fresh with five minutes left," Harper said. "Coach (Lenny Wilkens) gave me a chance to rest and get my mind back into the game."

Cleveland extended its club record for consecutive victories in one season and matched the record of 10 over two seasons it had set in 1977-78 and 1978-79.

Larry Nance led Cleveland with 24 points and Harper scored 20.

Sonics 120, Kings 106

Dale Ellis scored a career-high 49 points, including the first two baskets of Seattle's nine consecutive field goals without a miss in the fourth quarter, and the Sonics won their ninth consecutive game at home. The Sonics outscored the Kings 34-20 in the final period, which started with the game tied at 86.

Jim Petersen paced the Kings with 23 points.

Nuggets 131, Warriors 129
Alex English scored five of his 37 points in an 11-4 fourth-quarter run that snapped a 105-105 tie and to lead Denver to its 12th straight home victory over the Warriors, who have not won in Denver since April 5, 1984.

Walter Davis added 31 points for the Nuggets, while Chris Mullin led Golden State with 35 points.

Spurs 119, 76ers 104

Rookie Willie Anderson scored a career-high 36 points as San Antonio handed Philadelphia its fourth straight loss.

Anderson, who hit 18 of 26 shots, scored 10 of his points in the first 5:22 of the third period. Then, after Philadelphia moved ahead 70-69, the Spurs scored seven straight points, taking the lead for good at 76-70.

Charles Barkley led Philadelphia with 23 points, while Mike Gminski had 22.

Rangers may re-sign Bell

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Texas Rangers have begun negotiations with one-time Rangers third baseman Buddy Bell, general manager Tom Grieve said.

Grieve said he made a 1-year offer to Bell, 37, who became a free agent when the Houston Astros did not make him an offer before midnight Dec. 20.

"I made the initial offer to (agent) Ed Keating, and now we'll let him digest it," Grieve said Thursday. "Buddy has expressed an interest in playing here, and there is an interest on our part in signing him. I've been encouraged by the initial talks."

The Rangers want Bell to fill their need for a right-handed designated hitter, as well as to provide a backup to first baseman Rafael Palmeiro and third baseman Steve Buechele.

Buechele came to the big leagues in July 1985, when the Rangers traded Bell to the Cincinnati Reds. Cleveland, the Chicago White Sox and San Diego also have expressed an interest in Bell.

Bell was traded to Houston early last season. In 74 games with the Astros, he hit .263 and hit seven home runs and 37 runs batted in.

Stanford comes back, beats Arizona in Pac-10

By The Associated Press

Somebody switched channels during the Arizona-Stanford basketball game.

"The first half was the Sean Elliott show and I would say the second half was the Todd Lichti show," Stanford coach Mike Montgomery said Thursday night after his Cardinal beat the eighth-ranked Wildcats 83-78.

Elliott made his first four shots from 3-point range and he contributed eight points in an early 15-point Arizona run that gave the Wildcats a 21-4 lead with 11:46 left in the first half. He finished with 35 points, one short of his career-high.

Lichti sat back like a producer waiting for a chance to replace a show in midseason.

He scored 27 of his career-high 35 points in the second half and at one point scored 11 straight points for the Cardinal, who snapped Arizona's 14-game winning streak in Pac-10 Conference play.

Arizona, 8-2 overall and 3-1 in the conference, led 44-34 at halftime. But Stanford, 9-3 and 2-1, outscored the Wildcats 18-7 to start the second half and then turned to Lichti.

Lichti gave Stanford the lead for good with 7:27 remaining as he defied the odds on a 1-on-3 fast break for a layup and three-point play that made it 63-60. He then hit four more free throws and two baskets in the next 2:14 for a 71-62 Cardinal lead.

"It's almost incredible to me that we could overcome a 17-point deficit to a team as good as Arizona," Montgomery said. "I told the players at halftime to do a better job of getting the ball to Todd, and they did."

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 1 Duke 101, Davidson 53; No. 6 North Carolina 87, DePaul 67; No. 9 Iowa 93, Michigan State 82; No. 12 Nevada-Las Vegas 79, New Mexico State 58, and No. 16 North Carolina State 73, Clemson 65.

No. 1 Duke 101, Davidson 53. The top-ranked Blue Devils cruised despite having played at Washington just 48 hours earlier. Danny Ferry led Duke, 10-0, with 18 points and nine rebounds as it dominated inside against the Wildcats, 4-8.

Christian Laettner added 14 points for Duke, while Robert Brickey had 13. Phil Denmond was the only Davidson player in double figures with 14 points.

No. 6 North Carolina 87, DePaul 67. The Tar Heels won their 11th game in a row and improved to 13-1 as DePaul never got closer than 14 points in the second half. Steve Bucknall scored 15 of his 21 points in the first half, while Kevin Madden added 18 and J.R. Reid 15.

The Blue Demons, led by Stanley Brundy's 23 points, lost to a ranked team for a fifth time this season and fell to 8-6.

No. 9 Iowa 93, Michigan State 82. Roy Marble's 24 points — seven in the last five minutes — led the Hawkeyes in the Big Ten Conference basketball opener for both schools.

Michigan State, 9-2, pulled within three points with 5:30 to play, but Iowa, 12-1, went on a 6-0 run with Marble scoring four of the points to lead 80-71. Ken Redfield scored 24 points to lead Michigan State before fouling out with 2:30 left.

No. 12 Nev.-Las Vegas 78, New Mexico State 68.

The Runnin' Rebels won their 12th straight game over New Mexico State behind the 14 points of freshman guard Anderson Hunt and the 11 points and 10 assists of Greg Anthony, who suffered from muscle spasms this week. Nevada-Las Vegas improved to 8-2 overall with its seventh straight victory and has won all four of its Big West games.

The Aggies, led by Johnny Robertson and Steve McGlothlin with nine points each, fell to 8-4 and 1-1. No. 16 North Carolina State 73, Clemson 65.

The Wolfpack scored the game's final 10 points as coach Jim Valvano's defensive strategy turned out to be the key to their sixth straight victory.

With 8:30 to play, Clemson led 61-56 and 6-foot-9 forward Dale Davis had 20 points. Valvano went to a box-and-one with 6-1 Chris Corchiani on Davis and the Tigers' offense was shut down. Rodney Monroe led North Carolina State, 8-1, with 21 points. Clemson, 7-3, managed just four points in the final 8:50.

OSU waiting for word on NCAA sanctions

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma State, coming off its second consecutive 10-victory season and sporting the Heisman Trophy winner, is braced for NCAA sanctions that school officials expected to be "serious."

A spokesman at Oklahoma State said the school received a copy of the sanctions Thursday afternoon, and athletic director Myron Roderick said specifics of the school's response would be provided today.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association penalized a dozen schools last year, and the last six each received three years' probation, including Oklahoma's football program last month.

Numerous reports have indicated that sanctions levied against Oklahoma State today will be at least that stiff.

The Cowboys finished the year 10-2 and ranked 11th after a 62-14 Holiday Bowl victory over Wyoming. Barry Sanders brought Oklahoma State, perennially overshadowed by Oklahoma, national attention by rushing for 2,628 yards and scoring 39 touchdowns, two of the 24 NCAA records he set or tied.

Neither Oklahoma State officials nor David Berst, director of enforcement for the NCAA, would comment on the scope of the penalty to be levied against the Cowboys.

Last month, Oklahoma received a three-year probation, banning the Sooners from bowl appearances for the next two years and live telecasts next season.

Cowboys Coach Pat Jones said he is "just waiting around for something to occur."

"I have absolutely no idea what the decision is," said John Campbell, Oklahoma State's president.

"Any time you violate a rule, it's a serious matter," Campbell said. "As to the intensity of the penalties, I would not make any speculation. That's an NCAA decision. We did our best to persuade them we're serious about compliance."

The school did not release details of the allegations, but published reports were that the NCAA was investigating more than 50 allegations of violations within the program, including allegations that wide receiver Hart Lee Dykes received cash as an incentive to attend Oklahoma State, stipends through his sophomore year and the use of a car.

Dykes, an All-American, reportedly received immunity from eligibility sanctions to testify against Oklahoma State, Oklahoma, Texas A&M and Illinois, the last three of which now are on probation.

Former Oklahoma State football recruiting coordinator Willie Anderson also refused comment on his alleged involvement in recruiting improprieties.

Anderson, who resigned from the Oklahoma State staff in May 1986, said he would hold a news conference next week to give his side.

Roderick said Oklahoma State already has disassociated some boosters from the football program. He said no members of the current coaching staff were involved in any alleged improprieties and that no serious violations had been found during the past three seasons.

Jones has a guided Oklahoma State to a 44-15 record during his five years as head coach, including three 10-2 seasons.

ESPN signs four-year, $400 M baseball deal

NEW YORK (AP) — Dwight Gooden is pitching a no-hitter in New York. Jose Canseco is going for his third consecutive home run in Oakland. And Wade Boggs' 30-game hitting streak is on the line in Boston. Imagine watching it all live the same night.

Next year, the fantasy could come true.

In a move that will revolutionize baseball on television, ESPN will begin showing major league games four nights a week in 1990. In addition to its featured games, the network will be able to switch live to other contests around the country.

"If somebody is pitching a no-hitter or there's a long hitting streak, for instance, we could switch to that game so everyone could see it," Commissioner Peter Ueberroth said.

ESPN acquired baseball's cable rights Thursday with a four-year, $400 million deal that will double the sport's national TV revenue and offer fans more games than ever.

"For the first time in baseball history, the whole season will be presented to fans who want to follow it on television," Ueberroth said. "We will present all teams and all divisions in both leagues, and that's an incredible thing for baseball."

ESPN will televise 175 games a year, with single games on Sunday and Wednesday nights and doubleheaders on Tuesday and Friday evenings. The network also will show games on Opening Day, holidays and during spring training.

The deal came less than a month after CBS agreed to a four-year, $1.1 billion contract to televise the playoffs, World Series, All-Star Game and 12 regular-season games starting in 1990.

ESPN outbid Turner Broadcasting System, SportsChannel America and USA Network for the cable package. Turner and ESPN were the finalists.

"The bids were very, very, very close," Ueberroth said. "There was a tiny, single-digit percentage difference among three of them."

Roger Werner, president and chief executive officer of ESPN, said the country's largest cable network was "absolutely delighted" to add baseball to its coverage of the NFL, college football, college basketball and other major sports events.

"We've been working hard for more than eight years to get baseball," Werner said. "The day has finally arrived, and we couldn't be happier."

The ESPN and CBS deals will provide baseball with about $375 million a year in national TV revenue, or $14.4 million per team. That is twice the average annual income baseball is receiving from its current six-year deals with NBC and ABC.

As recently as last year, Ueberroth and others were predicting that baseball TV revenue would decline. "I was wrong," he said, beaming like a lottery winner. "I was predicting a doomsday scenario in 1985 and 1986. I was just flat wrong."

ESPN, which reaches 50.1 million homes, will be the second national cable network to show major league games. USA aired games from 1979-83.

In most cases, ESPN's primary game won't be shown in the cities of the competing teams. However, viewers in those cities will still be able to watch their team if the game is shown on a local channel.

Names In The News

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Rolf Benirschke, former star place-kicker for football's San Diego Chargers, will replace Pat Sajak as daytime host of the game show "Wheel of Fortune," NBC has announced.
Benirschke will begin taping Wednesday pending completion of contract details, the network said Monday. Benirschke's shows will premiere Jan. 9.
Sajak is giving up the daytime program to be host of a late-night CBS talk show that debuts Jan. 9. He will continue to be host of the syndicated nighttime version of "Wheel."

Benirschke, 33, who retired last year as the Chargers all-time leading scorer, was one of 30 finalists for the "Wheel" job, said officials for Merv Griffin Productions, the show's producer.

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Emperor Hirohito of Japan honored a local man with the Order of the Sacred Treasure in honor of his years of community service.
"Of course I didn't expect to be selected, because this is quite an honor," Roy Y. Nakatani, 72, of Ogden said recently.

The award is one of four given to people of Japanese ancestry in the western United States and one of 4,000 awarded worldwide this year to those who have worked to promote understanding between their countries and Japan.

Nakatani traveled to Japan to receive the award last month. Crown Prince Akihito was host of the ceremonies because of the emperor's illness, Nakatani said.

Nakatani has been active in Utah community affairs since moving here after World War II. He has served on a variety of boards and fraternal organizations, including the American Red Cross, United Way and the Boy Scouts.

PHOENIX (AP) — A model who is suing former New York Jets defensive end Mark Gastineau for palimony says actress Brigitte Nielsen, Gastineau's current partner, asked her to drop her claim.

Jodee Dominici sued Gastineau on Nov. 3, claiming he broke promises and lied to her during their three-year relationship.
She said she was talking to the 32-year-old Gastineau on the telephone earlier this year when Miss Nielsen, the ex-wife of actor Sylvester Stallone, got on the line and said Ms. Dominici shouldn't ask for money.

"She told me, 'I didn't ask for anything from Stallone,'" Ms. Dominici said.
The advice attributed to Miss Nielsen would not be out of character for the Danish actress, who "did not ask for anything from Mr. Stallone," according to publicist Joel Brokaw of Los Angeles.

NORMAL, Ill. (AP) — Chrysler Corp. Chairman Lee Iacocca assembled his company's board of directors here to visit the new Diamond-Star Motors Corp. auto assembly plant, but the trip wasn't all business.

Iacocca took time from the monthly board meeting Wednesday to take a spin in a couple of new Plymouth Lasers around Diamond-Star's test track.

"He was very excited," said G. Glenn Gardner, chairman of Diamond-Star, a joint venture between Chrysler and Mitsubishi Motors Corp. of Japan. "He took out a couple different cars and really enjoyed it."

Chrysler Motors Chairman Gerald Greenwald and some of the 21 other board members also had some fun test-driving new Lasers, said Robin Skiles, a Diamond-Star spokeswoman.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music singer Eddie Rabbitt plans to perform in his native New York City on Jan. 27 for the first time in 10 years.

Rabbitt, who was born in Brooklyn and spent his early songwriting years in the borough, is scheduled to entertain at the Bottom Line nightclub in Manhattan, publicist Kathy Gungwisch said Thursday.

His hits include "I Love a Rainy Night" and "Drivin' My Life Away."

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A federal appeals court ruled in favor of actress Jane Fonda in a lawsuit by her former business manager, who said he was entitled to 10 percent of her earnings from the movie "Coming Home" and other projects.

Miss Fonda denied she had agreed orally to continue to pay proceeds to Richard M. Rosenthal after firing him in May 1980.

On Tuesday, the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled 3-0 that an agreement, if it existed, was unenforceable because it wasn't in writing.

Lawrence Steinberg, a lawyer for Rosenthal, said the ruling lets Miss Fonda "subvert the claims of someone who worked for her as a loyal confidant for 12 years."

Among other things, Steinberg said, Rosenthal made the contractual arrangements for "Coming Home," the 1978 film that won Miss Fonda her second Academy Award as best actress.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — George Lucas' film company is suing a firm that sells a computer instructional program called "Templates of Doom," saying it violates a copyright on his Indiana Jones movies.

Lucasfilm Inc. filed the suit Friday in U.S. District Court against Solar Systems Software.

Jones, a mythical archaeologist and adventurer played by Harrison Ford, was the central character in Lucas' "Raiders of the Lost Ark" and "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom." "Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade" is due out in May, the lawsuit said.

The lawsuit said Lucasfilm has a trademark for the "Temple of Doom" name and design, and used it to sell products like puzzles, books, comics and video games.

The "Templates of Doom" package pictures a character resembling Jones wearing a snap-brim fedora, leather jacket and shoulder bag, the suit said. The program teaches people how to use financial spreadsheet programs, said Lucasfilm lawyer Neil Shapiro.

The suit seeks $50,000 for alleged copyright infringements on each Lucasfilm trademark product, plus damages equal to three times the profits from the computer program, and a court order prohibiting future infringements. It did not list the total number of alleged infringements.

Peter Antoniak of San Bruno, identified in the suit as owner of Solar Systems, did not return a telephone call Monday.

Vaughn to represent club

Draper Extension Club met in the home of MaryBeth Messer recently.

Following an Italian luncheon, the meeting was called to order by Carmen Rickman, president. The TEHA prayer was said. Roll call was answered to "a leadership trait I admire" and the minutes were read by Secretary Tonic Vaughn.

Council delegate Johnnie Messer gave the delegate report and the treasurer's report.

Members voted to make a monetary donation to the Livestock Booster Club and the 4-H Stock Show concession stand.

Draper Club members will be hostesses for the Jan. 23 Council meeting and the club project was discussed.

Vaughn was elected as the club's nominee for "Club Woman of the Year" award. The winner will be announced at the annual Appreciation Luncheon set for Monday, Feb. 27.

Johnnie Messer was elected nominee for the District I meeting to be held in April in Dumas.

The meeting closed and the door prize was presented to Rickman.

The next meeting will be held at Johnnie Messer's home on Feb. 1 at noon. Anyone interested in learning about extension clubs is welcome; for more information, call Beverly Harder, county extension agent in home economics, at 364-3573.

Toastmasters assemble

Hereford Toastmasters met Thursday morning at the Ranch House Restaurant for their weekly meeting.

Special guest was Jim Morgan of Amarillo, who serves as Area Governor of Toastmasters. He encouraged guests to join the group and reminded everyone of officers' training set Jan. 15 at 10 a.m. Another guest present was Joe Walters.

President Lynn Cook conducted the meeting as Chuck Danley served as grammarian. The word for the day was "decem."

Table topic master was Lynn Cook and general evaluator was Bob Lohr. Toastmaster was Rocky Lee and timer was Tom Weemes.

Clark Andrews spoke on "One Giant Leap for Mankind." He compared technology of his youth as opposed to today's technology and that of the future.

Doc Adams talked about a "Money Tree." He explained that coins were formed on "trees" in molds in ancient China and other areas.

Bruce Hernandez offered a reading on "I Know God Hears Prayer."

Joe Weaver was chosen best table topics speaker and Andrews was best program speaker. Larry Leon was recognized as best evaluator.

Entertaining at home can be worry-free

NEW YORK (AP) — Moira Hodgson's "Keeping Company" is a collection of contemporary menus for delicious food and relaxed entertaining.

Hodgson, a former restaurant critic and food columnist for "The New York Times," says the aim of her book is to provide simple up-to-date menus and recipes that will make home entertaining as amusing and free from anxiety as possible.

From menu preparation to creating an inviting party atmosphere to selecting appropriate tableware, "Keeping Company" (Prentice Hall Press, $29.95) invites readers to cultivate their own sense of style with tips on presentation and how to compliment colors and textures of different foods and sauces.

The cookbook provides menus and recipes for almost every type of celebration — from a Classic Bistro Dinner for Six, to a Casual Winter Supper for Eight, to Dinner for Twenty on a Cold Winter Night. It is illustrated with paintings by Nina Duran.

"Keeping Company" explores four important entertaining motifs: the dinner party, weekend entertaining, quick meals and the supper party. In each section, the menus are arranged in order of the seasons, beginning in autumn.

"Good ingredients are the key," Hodgson said in an interview here, and, thanks to modern transportation, the selection is varied.

She says it is now possible to get the very best and freshest fruits and vegetables flown in from California, Italy, New Zealand and Kenya.

"Supermarkets are now stocking unusual and interesting ingredients and have expanded their fresh fish departments and their foreign food sections," she says.

Hodgson is self-taught, but says she is not a relentless cook. "I don't spend hours in the kitchen trying to make the perfect pie crust."

"My philosophy is to keep the food fresh and simple. Even though I love to cook, I don't have time to spend hours in the kitchen fiddling with complicated recipes," she says.

The following are some of Hodgson's tips for entertaining:

— Use very tall candles so people can see across the table easily.

— Use only two kinds of glasses at the dinner table, one each for white and red wine. These glasses should be large enough so that the wine can be poured two-thirds of the way up, leaving room for the bouquet to develop.

— For a large dinner party, put several dishes of butter around the table so that they are within easy reach of guests, and arrange small bowls of coarse salt and pepper grinders on the table.

— Use glass or china bowls for salad; wooden bowls can sometimes make the vegetables taste rancid.

Hodgson has written six previous cookbooks, including "The Hot & Spicy Cookbook," "Good Food from a Small Kitchen" and "Quick & Easy Raw Food Cookbook."

The sample recipe from "Keeping Company" is for Carrot Salad, quick and easy to make. Hodgson recommends Hungarian paprika because "other kinds are usually little more than decorative."

CARROT SALAD
3 pounds carrots
1 tablespoon ground cumin
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon Hungarian paprika
1 cup lemon juice or lime juice (to taste)

1 teaspoon granulated sugar
Coarse salt and freshly ground pepper to taste

½ cup extra-virgin olive oil
½ cup chopped parsley

Grate the carrots coarsely and place them in a large bowl. Combine the remaining ingredients except the oil and parsley and pour onto the carrots. Toss and chill. Just before serving, sprinkle the salad with the oil and parsley. Makes 12 servings.
