Texas school spending slipping

AUSTIN (AP)—Texas is spending each school year $500 less per student than the national average on education, a loss in the reform movement that is bound to be a major problem for the state legislature when it convenes next week.

"The reform movement has soured in Texas," said John Cole, president of the Texas Federation of Teachers, the only major teachers' group to endorse all of the education reforms passed in 1984.

"Everything interesting that is going on in school reform is taking place in other states. Texas has pulled over to the side of the road and allowed the parade to pass by," Cole said.

After the 1984 legislation, Texas was 29th in spending and closing in on the national average.

But Texas now ranks 35th among the states with an average $3,685 per pupil spent in the 1987-88 school year, $500 below the national average. The Dallas Morning News reported Monday.

State Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, chairs the Senate Education Committee, and wants to get the state back on track.

"You can forget about any serious improvement in our schools without more funding," said Parker, who sponsored the 1984 reform law.

About half of all funding for public schools in Texas comes from local property taxes. The state provides about 42 percent, with the rest coming from the federal government.

With the state's fiscal picture so bleak, there is little agreement on how to provide more money for education.

Hurting the most are hundreds of property-poor districts that have been unable to pay for all the changes, such as smaller classes and incentive pay for teachers, that were ordered by the state.

The issue has been brought to a head by a lawsuit filed by 67 poor districts, which maintain that the current $11 billion-a-year school finance system is unfair to them.

District Judge Harley Clark ruled in 1987 that the funding system discriminated against students in poor districts and had to be overhauled to channel more money to those districts.

The state appealed, and the 3rd Texas Court of Appeals overturned Clark's decision last month.

So the issue is headed for the Texas Supreme Court, which is not likely to rule on the case before the regular legislative session ends in May.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock proposed a school finance plan last fall that would boost state education aid $800 million a year and provide state construction money to school districts for the first time.

The plan also would shift millions of dollars from wealthy districts to poor districts, although the cuts would be phased in over five years to soften the blow.

Although there is uncertainty as to whether there will be a significant increase in state education aid this year, support is building for a proposal that would link at least (See SCHOOLS, Page 2)

DOE wants $81 billion for nuclear cleanup

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Energy Department is proposing an $81 billion, 20-year program to clean up and modernize the nation's troubled nuclear weapons production complex.

"The cost of modernization and environmental restoration will require a significant increase in funding for the next two decades," said an Energy Department report for delivery to Congress.

The $81 billion total includes $52 billion to modernize outdated facilities, some of which are more than 30 years old, while $29 billion would go toward efforts to deal with radioactive and chemical contamination at many sites throughout the weapons complex.

The long-range plan would involve building new facilities in South Carolina and Idaho as well as phasing out weapons production activities in Washington state, Colorado and Ohio.

The Energy Department has refused to release any portions of the classified document, known as the "2010 Report" because it looks ahead as far as the 2010 fiscal year.

Gail Bradshaw, deputy chief spokesman for the department, said this week the department could not release the report's unclassified executive summary until it had received permission to do so from the National Security Council.

A copy of the summary was obtained by Morris News Service and made available to The Associated Press.

Energy Secretary John S. Herrington said Dec. 22 the next administration faces "hard choices" in dealing with the problems of the nuclear weapons complex.

He told a National Press Club audience that cannibalization of some warheads to build or upgrade others is something "we must look at to keep our options open." But Herrington added, "I do not anticipate the need" to resort to such methods.

The possibility of cannibalizing warheads was raised after safety and equipment problems closed the nation's three reactors for producing tritium, a radioactive isotope of hydrogen, because tritium decays at a rate of 5.5 percent a year, it needs to be regularly replenished to keep warheads at peak explosive power.

Herrington has said it will be spring or summer before any of the three reactors at the Savannah River Plant near Aiken, S.C. can be restarted.

The 2010 Report raises questions about whether the Savannah River reactors can be brought back to efficient production of tritium.

It noted that "all three reactors are shut down for safety system improvements and are not expected to be fully operational until late 1989. Despite these improvements and increasingly extensive maintenance, the reactors may not be able to achieve acceptable production efficiencies."

Other key findings of the report: -The nuclear weapons complex must be modernized so nuclear deterrence can continue to be a vital element of U.S. security policy.

-Operations of the complex will require environmental, safety and health remedial actions and a program to ensure that its operations comply with applicable laws, standards and regulations.

-Much of the nuclear weapons complex was constructed more than 30 years ago, and many facilities are approaching the end of their useful lives.

-Full funding for the modernization and environmental cleanup effort will probably be difficult to achieve, in view of competition with other programs.

The report said that while the budget for fiscal 1990 will be "generally consistent" with the plan, accomplishing all are now expected to be available in subsequent years.

"Major environmental restoration" will be required at the Rocky Flats Plant near Denver, the Hanford Reservation near Richland, Wash., and the Feed Materials Production Center in Fernald, Ohio, when nuclear weapons activities there are either relocated or terminated.

As an interim measure, certain upgrade steps will be required at the Rocky Flats Plant to maintain operations "at an acceptable level of risk" while the relocated facilities are being constructed.

Congress faces important issues as session opens

WASHINGTON (AP)—The 101st Congress opens with the nation's legislature still firmly in Democratic control but with important changes in the leadership that will confront such crucial issues as the federal budget deficit, the environment, health care and ethics.

New and re-elected members of the House and Senate were being sworn in today, and then the two chambers were set to carry out organizational chores for two days. Among them: a joint session Wednesday to count the electoral votes for president.

Congress will then adjourn until Jan. 20 although hearings could start before then on some of President-elect Bush's nominations. No bills will be considered until later in the month, but plenty will be talked about as lawmakers await Bush's legislative proposals.

Possibly the most controversial decision members will have to make early in the session is whether to approve a pay raise for themselves. A presidential commission has recommended a 50 percent increase, and many lawmakers contend their jobs make it difficult to live on the $89,500 base salary.

Pay is always a politically dicey issue, but especially so this year with so much attention being focused on the federal deficit.

President Reagan sends his final budget to Congress Jan. 9, and Bush is expected to submit his own ideas after taking office. Before fiscal 1990 begins Oct. 1, Congress and the new president must agree on how to cut more than $25 billion in spending, or to raise taxes, in order to meet the goals of the Gramm-Rudman budget balancing law.

Awaiting Bush's proposals before offering their own are House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, and the Senate's new majority leader, George Mitchell of Maine. Mitchell succeeds Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., who will also play a key fiscal role as he moves over to the chairmanship of the Appropriations Committee.

Bush pledged repeatedly during the campaign he would not support any new taxes, but many Democrats are openly skeptical he can keep that promise.

Among the doubters are the chairmen of the House and Senate Budget committees, both new to those posts, Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., and Sen. Jim Sasser, D-Tenn. Sasser has publicly predicted Bush would be coming to Congress within two years asking for a tax increase.

Even Bob Michel, R-Ill., who returns as the House minority leader, said he suspects some new taxes might have to be combined with spending cuts for the deficit goals to be achieved.

"I suspect down the road a piece that may be part of the answer," Michel said in a television interview last weekend.

Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas, re-elected Senate Republican leader, said he hasn't seen any indications Bush is softening his anti-tax position. But the warned demands on the federal till are increasing, including tens of billions of dollars needed to bail out failing savings institutions and to reopen the nation's nuclear weapons plants, which have been plagued by safety problems.

Environmental legislation, including a clean air bill that died late in the last session, is expected to rank high on the agenda of the 101st Congress. Mitchell, a strong environmentalist, is sure to help push such bills in his new role.

Congress faces increasing demands for more federally subsidized health care, especially for the elderly. But at the same time, the elderly are objecting to paying increased premiums for the new catastrophic illness coverage approved last year.

Ethics legislation is another holdover from the last Congress, where, in the closing days, Reagan killed bills aimed at restricting lobbying by former government officials and at protecting federal employees who blow the whistle on wrongdoing in their agencies.

Campaign finance reform, stalled to death in the Senate last time, is again on the agenda of some members.

Also unfinished: The House investigation of Wright, who has been accused of using his office and staff for personal financial gain and of disclosing government secrets. Wright is being re-elected speaker despite the probe, but Republicans have promised to keep the heat on. Among Wright's detractors is Rep. Dick Cheney, R-Who., who has ascended to the second-ranking House Republican post of Minority Whip.

This is the second straight Congress with both the House and Senate under Democratic control, and overall the numbers are little changed.

In last November's election, the Democrats gained a seat in the Senate and now hold a 55-45 majority there. They also gained in the House, where they command a 260-175 majority.

Armed robbery suspect arrested

Jesse Saldana, 22, of Hereford, was arrested Monday by Hereford police on an armed robbery charge.

Saldana is accused of taking an undetermined amount of cash from the Mr. Burger West in the 800 block of West Park Avenue in Hereford.

According to reports, two men entered the building and, wielding a knife, took cash from the store's cash register. The two men then stole a car belonging to one of the employees and fled.

Officers also recovered the stolen vehicle.

Police are also investigating the theft of $400 near a local church. A purse was taken from a car parked at a Hereford church. The purse's owner told police that the purse contained $400 and other important items.

some funding to student achievement.

Also facing lawmakers is lobbying from teacher groups who will be pushing for raises, which they haven't received from the state since the 1984-85 school year.

Texas now ranks 27th among the states in teacher salaries, the same ranking it had before the massive $2.8 billion reform law was enacted in 1984.

Legislative leaders are sympathetic to the plight of teachers, but they point to the lack of additional state revenues to pay for a raise.

AIRPORT REWIRED

NEW YORK (AP) — A new, 10-mile fiber optic cable loop is improving communications at Kennedy International Airport, which handles 30 million passengers annually.

The two-way loop circles the airport and uses laser light to send voice, data and visual signals through thin strands of glass fiber.

According to New York Telephone, it provides improved service on airport phones, reservation lines, computer data links for weather information and circuits connecting air traffic controllers by radio with pilots.

Teachers want less TEAMS teaching, more of traditional needs

DALLAS (AP) — Elementary school students are being deprived of complete educations because administrators push teachers to boost students' scores on the state-mandated minimum basic skills test, Texas teachers say.

Some educators say they have been ordered by administrators to teach only items that will help students do well on the Texas Educational Assessment of Minimum Skills, ignoring the daily curriculum and other subjects not covered by the test, such as social studies and science.

"The test becomes the almighty thing," said Bob Baker, president of Classroom Teachers of Dallas. "You're teaching to a specific test, which is, by nature, limited."

Dallas Independent School District officials deny issuing such orders, the Dallas Times Herald reported.

State education officials, who have taken note of such complaints in Dallas and other Texas school districts, agree that some overzealous schools might be compromising the test's original purpose, and the state plans to change the exam because of that.

The test was introduced in Fall 1985 as part of the sweeping education reforms. It was designed to pinpoint students' weaker areas so districts could correct them, but was not designed to measure the quality of education in a district or become the focus of months of class work, state officials say.

That, however, has been the result. "We're going to change the test because of these kinds of things," said Keith Cruse, director of the Texas Education Agency's student assessment division. "It's become clear to us that there is a different use being made of it."

The plans include testing during the fall, rather than spring, to reduce the amount of time teachers can spend on pretest drills. Also, questions would be selected from a broader range of material, forcing teachers to cover the complete curriculum to prepare students. Cruse said the new tests should begin in the 1990-91 school year.

The test measures mastery of basic skills and contains three sections — reading, writing and math — with about 50 questions each.

The test costs almost $5 million annually to design, administer and grade. It is developed by an out-of-state contractor from specifications provided by the state.

At one Dallas elementary school, teachers say substitutes have been brought in to teach classes while the more experienced teachers tutor borderline students for the test in another room for several hours each day.

The arrangement hurts the students who remain in the class and those who are being coached — both miss essential lessons, said a teacher who asked to remain anonymous. The teacher said although the borderline students might improve their test scores, there's no guarantee they will continue to get the special help they need once they return to the regular schedule.

"We're not putting out students," the teacher said. "We're putting out robots who can answer questions on a test."

Schools and districts are rewarded for good test scores with merit certificates from the state and appreciation from the public, which tend to equate high scores with quality education.

Mob boss faces Jan. 13 hearing

CHICAGO (AP) — He says he is a hard-working chef chasing the American dream. But the U.S. government contends Carmine Esposito is the "Al Capone of Italy," a ruthless mob boss linked to a dozen killings.

Esposito, 31, facing a Jan. 13 deportation hearing, is fighting a return to Italy that he says would mean certain death at the hands of mobsters or corrupt law enforcement officials.

"Would the 'Al Capone of Italy' come to Chicago and work like a dog? Would he leave behind his protection and his money?" he demanded in a recent interview from the federal Metropolitan Correctional Center, where he has been held in solitary confinement for 21 months.

"Would the 'Al Capone of Italy' get up at 4 a.m. each day to go buy meat, to make sausage alone, to deliver it at night ... not have enough time in a day to even wash yourself?"

But the U.S. government has concluded that Esposito is the man named in an extradition request from Italian authorities.

The document charges that Esposito ordered or committed 12

killings in Italy from April 1982 through June 1983 while holding a top post in the Nuova Camorra Organizzata, a criminal clan similar to the Mafia that operates in and around Naples, near Esposito's hometown of Acerra, Italy.

"Esposito is big fish," said Italian Judge Vincenzo Scolastico, who was involved in the investigation of the organization.

"As a member of the (Camorra's policy-making) Council of Nine, Esposito had people strangled. Some had to dig their own graves before they were shot. Bodies were mutilated or disappeared."

"He is one of the last great Nuova Camorra figures still at large, and if he ever decided to talk, he could cast light on many unsolved crimes," Scolastico added in an interview with The Chicago Tribune.

Esposito was arrested in March 1987 as he and several employees finished lunch at Bravissimo, the modestly successful restaurant he and his wife opened in May 1986. He also worked as a chef there, and earlier had worked as an auto body repairman, car salesman and sausage-maker.

He entered the United States in 1984, had no trouble with the law and appeared to have been what he claimed — a contented, hard-working immigrant whose sweat earned him a growing business and a home in the suburbs. He earned enough money to send his children to parochial schools.

But all that changed with Esposito's arrest. A lengthy court fight drained his resources and forced his family onto public-aid rolls. He also said his prison confinement had worsened a heart condition.

"The authorities make him out to be a one-man crime wave," said Esposito's attorney, Philip Parenti, "and for all that, there is not one eyewitness, one photograph, one fingerprint."

"There is not one piece of corroborating evidence, except for the pentiti."

"Pentiti" which literally means "penitent" but has taken on the more pedestrian definition "informant."

Assistant U.S. Attorney Thomas Scorza argued that even though some informants' criminal histories might raise questions, those matters are best addressed in Italian courts.

The U.S. government does not have to prove Esposito's innocence or guilt, Scorza said.

"Besides," he said, "the witnesses almost always are (informants) in gangster cases. And in this instance, the people pointing at him are saying, 'I did it with him.'"

Esposito admits to having known Camorra members while working at his father's auto body shop in Acerra, to fixing their getaway cars and on at least one occasion, to sawing off the barrels of shotguns.

His refusal to join the Camorra, he said, resulted in harassment by Italian police, and later in his decision to pack up his family and run. He left Acerra and spent the next three years in several Italian cities — Caserta, then Rome and Milan, before heading for the United States.

"In Italy, the Camorra have so much influence with the government and with police, there is no way to be safe," he said. "Always I think, 'If only I am successful to reach the United States, it will be different.'"

"Now," he concluded, "I am not so sure."

Bakkers make return to TV

PINEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Jim Bakker returned to the TV pulpit with his wife for the first time in two years and blamed his downfall and subsequent indictment on Satan, not on PTL's sex-and-money scandal.

"I believe the devil said, 'I have to smash Jim and Tammy Bakker,'" he told viewers Monday.

The broadcast originated in the living room of the Bakkers' borrowed home and was sent by satellite to a half-dozen stations, mostly cable, in California, Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania and Louisiana, Bakker said.

"Jim, I think this is probably the happiest day of my life," Mrs. Bakker said as the show began. Sporting her trademark heavy eye makeup, she broke into tears two minutes into the hour-long show.

Bakker and a former top associate were indicted last month on charges of diverting $4 million in PTL money for their benefit.

The Bakkers had not preached together on television since January 1987. Two months later, allegations surfaced of his 1980 sexual encounter with church secretary Jessica Hahn.

Bakker said his last television show at PTL featured the groundbreaking for the Crystal Palace Church, a proposed 30,000-seat church at PTL's Heritage USA. The church was never built and a federal bankruptcy court last month approved the sale of Heritage USA to a Canadian businessman.

Bakker, however, holding a drawing of the glass church, said he had not given up.

"I believe that someday we will still build it," Bakker said. "I believe that was the last straw for Satan. I think the devil was mad that something so beautiful was being built."

Bakker, 49, thanked a supporter who had donated the money to put him back on television but made no direct appeal for donations, in marked contrast to the PTL show.

Callers to a "prayer line" telephone number — not toll-free — were asked to give their name and prayer request.

Bakker frequently referred to the family's recent experience. "You can make it," he said. "If Jim and Tammy can survive their holocaust of two years, I know God will help you to survive. There's times when I did not want to live. There's times when I prayed to die. But I know this: God was always there."

It is unknown yet how many people watched the show.

One city Bakker named as receiving Monday's broadcast did not.

Steve Bursless, president of Asheville Christian Cable Network, said he didn't carry the program and hasn't decided whether to televise it.

"I'm all for presenting the gospel of Jesus Christ, but I'm simply not interested in another wall-to-wall begging program," he said.

4-H Firsthand

By Davy Vestal
County Extension Agent
4-H'ers Speak Up
For Better Communication

More effective communication may be one solution to closing, or at least narrowing, the generation gap. 4-H young people from 9 to 19 in the 4-H public speaking program are working to establish better rapport with adults—and with peers, said Davy Vestal, county 4-H program leader with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Through learn-by-doing activities, these 4-H'ers become skilled and confident in presenting their ideas formally to an audience. As a result, they are better able to get their message across clearly and convincingly in informal, everyday situations.

The 4-H public speaking program teaches 4-H'ers to:

—Choose an interesting topic, research it thoroughly, organize carefully, then write an outline.

—Speak clearly and loudly enough to be heard throughout the room and avoid nervous mannerisms.

—Capture audience attention; open with an anecdote, startling

statement or quotation. —Cover no more than three to five main points in the body of the speech.

—Stick to the time limit. Close with a summary of major points and an effective quotation, surprise statement or appeal for action. To recognize the accomplishments of 4-H'er, Union Oil Company offers medals —of honor to outstanding members in each county and an expense-paid trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago for each state winner.

Six national winners receive college scholarships.

Winners are selected by the Extension Service on the basis of their records of accomplishment, with special emphasis on growth and development in 4-H public speaking activities, said Vestal.

To learn more about the 4-H public speaking program, contact the county Extension office.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion, handicap, or national origin.

Free brochure lists orthodontic advances

"Why are more adults looking into orthodontic braces?" "How can you tell if you need braces?" "Do braces change your lifestyle?" "Am I going to have to walk around with metal in my mouth for two years?"

These are just some of the questions answered in a new, free brochure which highlights some of the latest innovations in orthodontics for adults of all ages, teens and children.

Published by Unitek Corporation/3M, a leading manufacturer and supplier of products to the dental industry, the four-color brochure entitled "The Facts About Braces" provides helpful general information concerning the pros and cons of new and traditional orthodontic options.

Included is an overview of translucent ceramic braces, noted by many orthodontic specialists as the most exciting new product of the past decade; lingual or invisible braces, which fit behind the teeth; mini-metal braces; and much more.

The brochure explains that one of the easiest ways to tell if you need braces is to look in the mirror for the obvious and not-so-obvious problems.

Do your teeth overlap? Do you have gaps between teeth? Do you have an overbite or underbite? These terms and others are defined.

"The good news is that now there are a number of good-looking, functional products on the market specially designed to fit the wearer's orthodontic and personal needs.

"Today, you no longer have to look like the infamous 'Jaws' in the James Bond movies to get straight teeth. In fact, no one may even notice you are wearing braces," said Ken Darienzo, general manager of Unitek/3M.

Once viewed as a product only worn by teens, today more than one million of the four-and-one-half million people wearing orthodontic braces are adults.

Orthodontists, who specialize in the science of properly aligning teeth and jaws, estimate that some 50% of the U.S. population could benefit from some type of orthodontic treatment. That estimate jumps to more than 89 percent for children between the ages of 12 and 17.

Braces can be beneficial to people of all ages by helping with everything from correcting serious jaw problems to giving a prettier and healthier smile.

"For instance, we have people from seven to 70 in our translucent ceramic braces called Transcend," stated Darienzo.

Though neglecting severely misaligned teeth can lead to serious problems, nearly everyone has slightly crooked teeth. To determine for sure if you need braces, see an orthodontic specialist.

The American Kitchen

Cut calories in cooking: Eat light with beef

☉Eating healthier, nutritionally sound meals can be as simple as making a few changes in your grocery shopping and cooking habits.

For example, certain cuts of beef are leaner than others. When shopping, select cuts such as top round, top loin strip steak, top sirloin, eye of the round, flank, tip or extra lean ground beef. These are low in fat and high in the protein, iron and B vitamins which are essential to good health.

Cooking techniques can also help cut calories when you're preparing your favorite dishes. Here are some lean cooking tips:

- Prepare meals using basic ingredients and avoid the hidden calories often found in prepared foods and mixes.
- Use low-calorie substitutes for regular ingredients when possible. For example, use tomato juice in place of tomato sauce, lowfat yogurt for sour cream or mayonnaise, skim milk for whole milk or cream.
- For seasoning, try herbs and spices rather than butter, heavy sauces or gravies.
- Limit the use of added flour, sugar and fats in cooking.
- Trim outside fat from beef cuts before cooking and trim any separable (inside) fat before eating.
- Bake, broil or roast on a rack so beef will remain above drippings.

The following Spinach-Stuffed Roast recipe makes a complete meal the whole family will enjoy—at only 336 calories per serving, 196 calories from the beef.

SPINACH-STUFFED ROAST

- 1 1/2 lb. beef eye round roast
- 1 lb. small new potatoes
- 10 oz. spinach (or one package frozen spinach, thawed and drained)
- 1/4 cup chopped beef salami (1 oz.)
- 1/4 cup finely chopped onion
- 1/4 cup soft whole wheat bread crumbs
- 1/2 tsp. cayenne pepper
- 1 Tbsp. red wine vinegar
- 1 Tbsp. chopped parsley

Parboil potatoes (do not pare) in boiling water 10 minutes; drain and reserve. Cut roast lengthwise but not quite through. Make another cut on each side of the first cut so that meat will lay flat. Pound roast to 1/2 inch thickness.

Cook spinach, covered, in a large frypan 3 to 5 minutes or until wilted; drain well. Combine spinach, salami, onion, bread crumbs and cayenne pepper.

Spread mixture evenly over cut side of roast. Roll up jelly roll fashion to enclose filling. Tie roast securely with string. Place on rack in open roasting pan. Do not add water. Do not cover.

Roast in a slow oven (325°F.) 15 minutes. Place potatoes around roast and continue roasting about 45 minutes (beef will be rare). Remove roast and let stand at least 15 minutes before carving. Cut potatoes in half; spoon vinegar and parsley over potatoes, stirring lightly to coat. Carve roast into 8 slices.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am sure you won't think this letter is important enough to print, but I need to unburden myself, so here goes:

Seven years ago I became a national statistic. Actually it happened the day I was born into a low-income family. I gave birth to a son when I was 18. The baby's father walked out on me and I haven't seen him since.

I had to go to a public assistance agency for help. I hate the fact that I'm still on welfare, but that's the way it is and I will probably be on welfare forever the way this lousy system works.

I have tried my damndest to make a better life for my son and myself, but it's hopeless. I was a good student and wanted to go to college, but was told that I could attend only one particular college in my county and take only certain courses such as food service and home health aid. I said, "No thanks."

Determined to find a way to pay for my education and get a degree in something that would lead to a good-paying job, I began to look through college catalogues. I decided to aim for a career in human services and help other pregnant and disadvantaged teens. I applied for financial aid and a loan.

Welfare cut me off and stopped giving me benefits because they considered a student loan a form of income. They said I was making too much money to be on public assistance. So I gave back the loan and didn't go to school.

Then I got a part-time job ($30 a week) to try to save money for tuition. Again welfare slashed my benefits. I had been receiving $100 a month in food stamps and $8 in cash. They cut me down to $50 a month in food stamps and $3.50 in cash. I didn't have enough money to feed my son let alone the two of us.

Since then I have had other problems with the welfare office, but I do as I'm told now and try not to make anybody mad at me or they might cut me off altogether.

How are people like me supposed to better ourselves if we get kicked in the teeth every time we take one step forward? Now I know why so many young girls on public assistance keep having more children. The more kids you have, the better the chance of surviving the welfare roller coaster.

This system perpetuates freeloading, Ann. People who want to get off welfare are penalized and those who want to stay on are rewarded. To put it bluntly, the system stinks.—On the Dole in Albany

Dear Ann Landers: I work in a male-dominated office. Unfortunately the men and I must share one bathroom.

The men are constantly leaving the toilet set up. One day I decided to write a note and leave it on the back of the toilet. It read: "Guys, would you please remember to leave the toilet seat down when you are finished?"

They replied with a note that read: "Sure! And would you please remember to leave the seat up when you are finished."

Ann, tell us which is proper—to leave the seat up or down? I will post your reply on the office bulletin board.—D.W. in Santa Cruz, Calif.

Dear Santa: The toilet seat when not in use should be in its normal position. Down. A well-bred gentlemen knows this and need not be reminded.

some funding to student achievement.

Also facing lawmakers is lobbying from teacher groups who will be pushing for raises, which they haven't received from the state since the 1984-85 school year.

Texas now ranks 27th among the states in teacher salaries, the same ranking it had before the massive $2.8 billion reform law was enacted in 1984.

Legislative leaders are sympathetic to the plight of teachers, but they point to the lack of additional state revenues to pay for a raise.

AIRPORT REWIRED

NEW YORK (AP) — A new, 10-mile fiber optic cable loop is improving communications at Kennedy International Airport, which handles 30 million passengers annually.

The two-way loop circles the airport and uses laser light to send voice, data and visual signals through thin strands of glass fiber.

According to New York Telephone, it provides improved service on airport phones, reservation lines, computer data links for weather information and circuits connecting air traffic controllers by radio with pilots.

Teachers want less TEAMS teaching, more of traditional needs

DALLAS (AP) — Elementary school students are being deprived of complete educations because administrators push teachers to boost students' scores on the state-mandated minimum basic skills test, Texas teachers say.

Some educators say they have been ordered by administrators to teach only items that will help students do well on the Texas Educational Assessment of Minimum Skills, ignoring the daily curriculum and other subjects not covered by the test, such as social studies and science.

"The test becomes the almighty thing," said Bob Baker, president of Classroom Teachers of Dallas. "You're teaching to a specific test, which is, by nature, limited."

Dallas Independent School District officials deny issuing such orders, the Dallas Times Herald reported.

State education officials, who have taken note of such complaints in Dallas and other Texas school districts, agree that some overzealous schools might be compromising the test's original purpose, and the state plans to change the exam because of that.

The test was introduced in Fall 1985 as part of the sweeping education reforms. It was designed to pinpoint students' weaker areas so districts could correct them, but was not designed to measure the quality of education in a district or become the focus of months of class work, state officials say.

"That, however, has been the result. We're going to change the test because of these kinds of things," said Keith Cruse, director of the Texas Education Agency's student assessment division. "It's become clear to us that there is a different use being made of it."

The plans include testing during the fall, rather than spring, to reduce the amount of time teachers can spend on pretest drills. Also, questions would be selected from a broader range of material, forcing teachers to cover the complete curriculum to prepare students. Cruse said the new tests should begin in the 1990-91 school year.

The test measures mastery of basic skills and contains three sections — reading, writing and math — with about 50 questions each.

The test costs almost $5 million annually to design, administer and grade. It is developed by an out-of-state contractor from specifications provided by the state.

At one Dallas elementary school, teachers say substitutes have been brought in to teach classes while the more experienced teachers tutor borderline students for the test in another room for several hours each day.

The arrangement hurts the students who remain in the class and those who are being coached — both miss essential lessons, said a teacher who asked to remain anonymous. The teacher said although the borderline students might improve their test scores, there's no guarantee they will continue to get the special help they need once they return to the regular schedule.

"We're not putting out students," the teacher said. "We're putting out robots who can answer questions on a test."

Schools and districts are rewarded for good test scores with merit certificates from the state and appreciation from the public, which tend to equate high scores with quality education.

Mob boss faces Jan. 13 hearing

CHICAGO (AP) — He says he is a hard-working chef chasing the American dream. But the U.S. government contends Carmine Esposito is the "Al Capone of Italy," a ruthless mob boss linked to a dozen killings.

Esposito, 31, facing a Jan. 13 deportation hearing, is fighting a return to Italy that he says would mean certain death at the hands of mobsters or corrupt law enforcement officials.

"Would the 'Al Capone of Italy' come to Chicago and work like a dog? Would he leave behind his protection and his money?" he demanded in a recent interview from the federal Metropolitan Correctional Center, where he has been held in solitary confinement for 21 months.

"Would the 'Al Capone of Italy' get up at 4 a.m. each day to go buy meat, to make sausage alone, to deliver it at night ... not have enough time in a day to even wash yourself?"

But the U.S. government has concluded that Esposito is the man named in an extradition request from Italian authorities.

The document charges that Esposito ordered or committed 12

killings in Italy from April 1982 through June 1983 while holding a top post in the Nuova Camorra Organizzata, a criminal clan similar to the Mafia that operates in and around Naples, near Esposito's hometown of Acerra, Italy.

"Esposito is big fish," said Italian Judge Vicenzo Scolastico, who was involved in the investigation of the organization.

"As a member of the (Camorra's policy-making) Council of Nine, Esposito had people strangled. Some had to dig their own graves before they were shot. Bodies were mutilated or disappeared."

"He is one of the last great Nuova Camorra figures still at large, and if he ever decided to talk, he could cast light on many unsolved crimes," Scolastico added in an interview with The Chicago Tribune.

Esposito was arrested in March 1987 as he and several employees finished lunch at Bravissimo, the modestly successful restaurant he and his wife opened in May 1986. He also worked as a chef there, and earlier had worked as an auto body repairman, car salesman and sausage-maker.

He entered the United States in 1984, had no trouble with the law and appeared to have been what he claimed — a contented, hard-working immigrant whose sweat earned him a growing business and a home in the suburbs. He earned enough money to send his children to parochial schools.

But all that changed with Esposito's arrest. A lengthy court fight drained his resources and forced his family onto public-aid rolls. He also said his prison confinement has worsened a heart condition.

"The authorities make him out to be a one-man crime wave," said Esposito's attorney, Philip Parenti, "and for all that, there is not one eyewitness, one photograph, one fingerprint."

"There is not one piece of corroborating evidence, except for the pentiti."

"Pentiti," which literally means "penitent" but has taken on the more pedestrian definition "informant."

Assistant U.S. Attorney Thomas Scorza argued that even though some informants' criminal histories might raise questions, those matters are best addressed in Italian courts.

The U.S. government does not have to prove Esposito's innocence or guilt, Scorza said.

"Besides," he said, "the witnesses almost always are (informants) in gangster cases. And in this instance, the people pointing at him are saying, 'I did it with him.'"

Esposito admits to having known Camorra members while working at his father's auto body shop in Acerra, to fixing their getaway cars and on at least one occasion, to sawing off the barrels of shotguns.

His refusal to join the Camorra, he said, resulted in harassment by Italian police, and later in his decision to pack up his family and run. He left Acerra and spent the next three years in several Italian cities — Caserta, then Rome and Milan, before heading for the United States.

"In Italy, the Camorra have so much influence with the government and with police, there is no way to be safe," he said. "Always I think, 'If only I am successful to reach the United States, it will be different.'"

"Now," he concluded, "I am not so sure."

Bakkers make return to TV

PINEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Jim Bakker returned to the TV pulpit with his wife for the first time in two years and blamed his downfall and subsequent indictment on Satan, not on PTL's sex-and-money scandal.

"I believe the devil said, 'I have to smash Jim and Tammy Bakker,'" he told viewers Monday.

The broadcast originated in the living room of the Bakkers' borrowed home and was sent by satellite to a half-dozen stations, mostly cable, in California, Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania and Louisiana, Bakker said.

"Jim, I think this is probably the happiest day of my life," Mrs. Bakker said as the show began. Sporting her trademark heavy eye makeup, she broke into tears two minutes into the hourlong show.

Bakker and a former top associate were indicted last month on charges of diverting $4 million in PTL money for their benefit.

The Bakkers had not preached together on television since January 1987. Two months later, allegations surfaced of his 1986 sexual encounter with church secretary Jessica Hahn.

Bakker said his last television show at PTL featured the groundbreaking for the Crystal Palace Church, a proposed 30,000-seat church at PTL's Heritage USA. The church was never built and a federal bankruptcy court last month approved the sale of Heritage USA to a Canadian businessman.

Bakker, however, holding a drawing of the glass church, said he had not given up.

"I believe that someday we will still build it," Bakker said. "I believe that was the last straw for Satan. I think the devil was mad that something so beautiful was being built."

Bakker, 49, thanked a supporter who had donated the money to put him back on television but made no direct appeal for donations, in marked contrast to the PTL show.

Callers to a "prayer line" telephone number — not toll-free — were asked to give their name and prayer request.

Bakker frequently referred to the family's recent experience. "You can make it," he said. "If Jim and Tammy can survive their holocaust of two years, I know God will help you to survive. There's times when I did not want to live. There's times when I prayed to die. But I know this: God was always there."

It is unknown yet how many people watched the show.

One city Bakker named as receiving Monday's broadcast did not.

Steve Burleson, president of Asheville Christian Cable Network, said he didn't carry the program and hasn't decided whether to televise it.

"I'm all for presenting the gospel of Jesus Christ, but I'm simply not interested in another wall-to-wall begging program," he said.

4-H Firsthand

By Davy Vestal
County Extension Agent
4-H'ers Speak Up
For Better Communication

More effective communication may be one solution to closing, or at least narrowing, the generation gap. 4-H young people from 9 to 19 in the 4-H public speaking program are working to establish better rapport with adults—and with peers, said Davy Vestal, county 4-H program leader with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Through learn-by-doing activities, these 4-H'ers become skilled and confident in presenting their ideas formally to an audience. As a result, they are better able to get their message across clearly and convincingly in informal, everyday situations.

The 4-H public speaking program teaches 4-H'ers to:

--Choose an interesting topic, research it thoroughly, organize carefully, then write an outline.

--Speak clearly and loudly enough to be heard throughout the room and avoid nervous mannerisms.

--Capture audience attention; open with an anecdote, startling

statement or quotation. --Cover no more than three to five main points in the body of the speech.

--Stick to the time limit. Close with a summary of major points and an effective quotation, surprise statement or appeal for action. To recognize the accomplishments of 4-H'er, Union Oil Company offers medals.

--of honor to outstanding members in each county and an expense-paid trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago for each state winner.

Six national winners receive college scholarships.

Winners are selected by the Extension Service on the basis of their records of accomplishment, with special emphasis on growth and development in 4-H public speaking activities, said Vestal.

To learn more about the 4-H public speaking program, contact the county Extension office.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion, handicap, or national origin.

Free brochure lists orthodontic advances

"Why are more adults looking into orthodontic braces?" "How can you tell if you need braces?" "Do braces change your lifestyle?" "Am I going to have to walk around with metal in my mouth for two years?"

These are just some of the questions answered in a new, free brochure which highlights some of the latest innovations in orthodontics for adults of all ages, teens and children.

Published by Unitek Corporation/3M, a leading manufacturer and supplier of products to the dental industry, the four-color brochure entitled "The Facts About Braces" provides helpful general information concerning the pros and cons of new and traditional orthodontic options.

Included is an overview of translucent ceramic braces, noted by many orthodontic specialists as the most exciting new product of the past decade; lingual or invisible braces, which fit behind the teeth; mini-metal braces; and much more.

The brochure explains that one of the easiest ways to tell if you need braces is to look in the mirror for the obvious and not-so-obvious problems.

Do your teeth overlap? Do you have gaps between teeth? Do you have an overbite or underbite? These terms and others are defined.

"The good news is that now there are a number of good-looking, functional products on the market specially designed to fit the wearer's orthodontic and personal needs.

look like the infamous 'Jaws' in the James Bond movies to get straight teeth. In fact, no one may even notice you are wearing braces," said Ken Darienzo, general manager of Unitek/3M.

Once viewed as a product only worn by teens, today more than one million of the four-and-one-half million people wearing orthodontic braces are adults.

Orthodontists, who specialize in the science of properly aligning teeth and jaws, estimate that some 50% of the U.S. population could benefit from some type of orthodontic treatment. That estimate jumps to more than 89 percent for children between the ages of 12 and 17.

Braces can be beneficial to people of all ages by helping with everything from correcting serious jaw problems to giving a prettier and healthier smile.

"For instance, we have people from seven to 70 in our translucent ceramic braces called Transcend," stated Darienzo.

Though neglecting severely misaligned teeth can lead to serious problems, nearly everyone has slightly crooked teeth. To determine for sure if you need braces, see an orthodontic specialist.

For a free copy of "The Facts About Braces" and additional information, call 1(800)634-5300 or write Unitek/3M, 2724 S. Peck Road #156, Monrovia, CA, 91016.

The American Kitchen

Cut calories in cooking: Eat light with beef

Eating healthier, nutritionally sound meals can be as simple as making a few changes in your grocery shopping and cooking habits.

For example, certain cuts of beef are leaner than others. When shopping, select cuts such as top round, top loin strip steak, top sirloin, eye of the round, flank, tip or extra lean ground beef. These are low in fat and high in the protein, iron and B vitamins which are essential to good health.

Cooking techniques can also help cut calories when you're preparing your favorite dishes. Here are some lean cooking tips:

- Prepare meals using basic ingredients and avoid the hidden calories often found in prepared foods and mixes.
  - Use low-calorie substitutes for regular ingredients when possible. For example, use tomato juice in place of tomato sauce, lowfat yogurt for sour cream or mayonnaise, skim milk for whole milk or cream.
  - For seasoning, try herbs and spices rather than butter, heavy sauces or gravies.
  - Limit the use of added flour, sugar and fats in cooking.
  - Trim outside fat from beef cuts before cooking and trim any separable (inside) fat before eating.
  - Bake, broil or roast on a rack so beef will remain above drippings.
- The following Spinach-Stuffed Roast recipe makes a complete meal the whole family will enjoy—at only 336 calories per serving, 196 calories from the beef.

SPINACH-STUFFED ROAST

- 1 1/4 lb. beef eye round roast
- 1 lb. small new potatoes
- 10 oz. spinach (or one package frozen spinach, thawed and drained)
- 1/4 cup chopped beef salami (1 oz.)
- 1/4 cup finely chopped onion
- 1/4 cup soft whole wheat bread crumbs
- 1/2 tsp. cayenne pepper
- 1 Tbsp. red wine vinegar
- 1 Tbsp. chopped parsley

Parboil potatoes (do not pare) in boiling water 10 minutes; drain and reserve. Cut roast lengthwise but not quite through. Make another cut on each side of the first cut so that meat will lay flat. Pound roast to 1/2 inch thickness.

Cook spinach, covered, in a large frypan 3 to 5 minutes or until wilted; drain well. Combine spinach, salami, onion, bread crumbs and cayenne pepper.

Spread mixture evenly over cut side of roast. Roll up jelly roll fashion to enclose filling. Tie roast securely with string. Place on rack in open roasting pan. Do not add water. Do not cover.

Roast in a slow oven (325°F.) 15 minutes. Place potatoes around roast and continue roasting about 45 minutes (beef will be rare). Remove roast and let stand at least 15 minutes before carving. Cut potatoes in half; spoon vinegar and parsley over potatoes, stirring lightly to coat. Carve roast into 8 slices.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am sure you won't think this letter is important enough to print, but I need to unburden myself, so here goes:

Seven years ago I became a national statistic. Actually it happened the day I was born into a low-income family. I gave birth to a son when I was 18. The baby's father walked out on me and I haven't seen him since.

I had to go to a public assistance agency for help. I hate the fact that I'm still on welfare, but that's the way it is and I will probably be on welfare forever the way this lousy system works.

I have tried my damndest to make a better life for my son and myself, but it's hopeless. I was a good student and wanted to go to college, but was told that I could attend only one particular college in my county and take only certain courses such as food service and home health aid. I said, "No thanks."

Determined to find a way to pay for my education and get a degree in something that would lead to a good-paying job, I began to look through college catalogues. I decided to aim for a career in human services and help other pregnant and disadvantaged teens. I applied for financial aid and a loan.

Welfare cut me off and stopped giving me benefits because they considered a student loan a form of income. They said I was making too much money to be on public assistance. So I gave back the loan and didn't go to school.

Then I got a part-time job ($30 a week) to try to save money for tuition. Again welfare slashed my benefits. I had been receiving $100 a month in food stamps and $8 in cash. They cut me down to $50 a month in food stamps and $3.50 in cash. I didn't have enough money to feed my son let alone the two of us.

Since then I have had other problems with the welfare office, but I do as I'm told now and try not to make anybody mad at me or they might cut me off altogether.

How are people like me supposed to better ourselves if we get kicked in the teeth every time we take one step forward? Now I know why so many young girls on public assistance keep having more children. The more kids you have, the better the chance of surviving the welfare roller coaster.

This system perpetuates freeloading, Ann. People who want to get off welfare are penalized and those who want to stay on are rewarded. To put it bluntly, the system stinks. —On the Dole in Albany

Dear Ann Landers: I work in a male-dominated office. Unfortunately the men and I must share one bathroom.

The men are constantly leaving the toilet set up. One day I decided to write a note and leave it on the back of the toilet. It read: "Guys, would you please remember to leave the toilet seat down when you are finished?"

They replied with a note that read: "Sure! And would you please remember to leave the seat up when you are finished."

Ann, tell us which is proper—to leave the seat up or down? I will post your reply on the office bulletin board.—D.W. in Santa Cruz, Calif.

Dear Santa: The toilet seat when not in use should be in its normal position. Down. A well-bred gentleman knows this and need not be reminded.

Binder on defense

Brandi Binder (45) of the Hereford Lady Whitefaces clamps on the defense against a Clovis play in last Friday's girls basketball game at Whiteface Gym. The Hereford girls, with a two-game winning streak after a pre-holiday win over Pampa and a 47-45 win over Clovis, go to Lubbock along with the Whitefaces to resume District 1-4A play tonight at Dunbar.

Irish claim crown

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Notre Dame's Tony Rice came into the Fiesta Bowl as "the other quarterback." He left it as the game's most valuable offensive player and a member of a national championship team.

Rice, a junior, threw for two touchdowns and a career-high 213 yards as the top-ranked Fighting Irish beat third-ranked West Virginia 34-21 Monday to cap an undefeated season that netted the school its eighth national title.

"All week long, people kept talking about how great a quarterback (West Virginia sophomore) Major Harris is. But I always felt Tony Rice is the best quarterback in the country," Notre Dame linebacker Wes Pritchett said. "I thought he proved that today. I don't know of any other 12-0 teams this year, do you?"

Rice completed seven of 11 passes, including a 29-yard scoring strike to wide receiver Raghib Ismail late in the second quarter and a 3-yard jump-pass to tight end Frank Jacobs early in the fourth quarter for a 34-13 lead.

Rice also rushed 13 times for 75 yards off the option as the Fighting

Irish rolled up 455 yards in total offense.

"They were playing a lot of one-on-one coverage. I had to take advantage of what they were giving," Rice said. "By moving the ball, our defense was not on the field as much as they were in our last game (a 27-10 victory over Southern California on Nov. 26). We wanted to control the ball today and that's basically what we did."

"We found ways to put some points on the scoreboard and found a way to win," Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz said. "Rice had a great day. I told everybody he was throwing the ball better in practice this week and he threw the ball better in this game than he has in the past. But Tony was the same easy-going guy he always is in the huddle. That never changes."

Rice wasn't bothered by all the pre-game hype centering on Harris, who threw for 1,749 yards and 13 touchdowns during the regular season, compared to 1,176 yards and eight touchdowns for Rice.

"I'm glad Major got all the fame and glory over the past week. I just wanted to go out there and have some fun," Rice said. "Going into the season, we weren't rated very high. It was a long way to the top, but we achieved it. This win feels really good."

The Fighting Irish limited the Mountaineers to 282 yards and Harris to 14 completions and 174 passing yards.

"We felt we had to keep Major contained as much as possible," Holtz said. "He had to disrupt their rhythm on offense, stop their power running game and stop their long passes. That's what we did."

All-American end Frank Stams, named the game's defensive MVP, had two of the Fighting Irish's three sacks of Harris. One came on a crucial third-down play for a 12-yard loss with 1:27 remaining in the third quarter after West Virginia had closed to within 28-13.

"The house was on fire and we had to put the fire out. We held them on three big downs and turned the momentum around," Stams said. "It wasn't just me. It was all of us. It's 11 guys flying for the ball. Pass rush is all effort. You keep coming after them and don't give up."

Florida State wins Sugar

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — What began as something less than the best of weeks for Florida State's "Neon" Deion Sanders became a "Prime Time" hit starring the All-America cornerback in a game-saving situation at the Sugar Bowl.

Twice in the fourth quarter fourth-ranked Florida State stopped No. 7 Auburn with big defensive plays, the second time with 12 seconds left in the game Monday.

On fourth down at the Florida State 9-yard line with 7:58 left in the game, Howard Dinkins broke through and caused Auburn quarterback Reggie Slack to draw a penalty for intentional grounding.

Then, after Auburn drove from its own 4-yard line to the Florida State 22 in the final minutes, Sanders outwrestled Auburn's Lawyer Tillman to come up with the game-saving interception — the fifth Auburn turnover of the game.

It preserved a 13-7 victory in a game in which all the scoring occurred in the first half.

Sanders, known as "Neon Deion" and "Prime Time," had been victimized earlier on Auburn's touchdown drive. On a play starting at the Florida State 20-yard line, tight end Walter Reeves caught a pass at the 3-yard line and dragged Sanders into the end zone.

"The ending to the game was a storybook ending," Sanders said. "All week in my mind I visualized what would happen in this game and how it would end."

The week began badly for Sanders. On Christmas Eve, he was arrested after a scuffle at a gift shop in his hometown of Fort Myers, Fla.

Florida State, noted for its wide open passing offense and trick plays, used a bruising running game and a sturdy defense to force five turnovers.

"People usually out-tough us. We are usually more of a finesse team," Florida State Coach Bobby Bowden said. "But that didn't happen tonight."

Sammie Smith, named the game's outstanding player, rushed for 116 yards, the first time in more than two years that a back gained over a hundred yards against Auburn. Auburn led the nation in scoring defense this season, giving up an average of 7.2 points a game.

Dayne Williams scored Florida State's touchdown on a 2-yard run, and Bill Mason kicked field goals of 35 yards and 31 yards to cap short drives after Auburn turnovers.

Michigan surprises in Rose Bowl

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Bo Schembechler knew in his bionic heart that Michigan could win the Rose Bowl if it could stop Southern California's powerful running attack.

He also knew he'd need some surprises for USC coach Larry Smith, who broke into football in the 1960's as Schembechler's assistant.

Schembechler, who suffered a heart attack in 1970 and underwent quadruple bypass surgery a little over a year ago, concocted a plan that worked to perfection Monday as the Wolverines beat the Trojans 22-14, giving the Big Ten successive victories over the Pacific-10 Conference.

"I've said all week the most important thing was to stop their running," said Schembechler, whose personal record now is 2-7 in Rose Bowl games and 5-11 in all bowls. "(Southern Cal quarterback) Rodney Peete can beat you himself. If you let those big backs run, Rodney Peete's going to have a field day."

"We did a good job stopping the run in the second half. That made all the difference."

The Wolverines:
— Rushed for 208 yards, 142 by Leroy Hoard who earned MVP honors.

— Held USC to 138 net yards rushing, just 31 in the second half.

— Surprised the Trojans by throwing the ball 24 times, three more passes than Peete threw.

"I told the team before the game to expect the unexpected," Schembechler said. "I was going to do whatever it took to win this game."

"I also told the defense to expect to be in some funny field position."

The victory enabled No. 11 Michigan to finish the season 9-2-1 and almost assured the Wolverines a Top Ten finish in the final poll.

The fifth-ranked Trojans, who lost to Michigan State last season in Smith's first Rose Bowl, finished 10-2.

"We're just a good 10-2 team, that's all," an angry Smith said. "Michigan's a fine team. I don't know where they'll finish, but they're one of the top five teams in my opinion and I hope we get to play them again next year."

Smith accused the Trojans, who led 14-3 at halftime, of sloppy tackling and failing to play four solid quarters of football.

"I'm not disappointed. I'm just darned angry, that's all," Smith said. "It just seemed like we thought maybe we had the game won. We just couldn't get the momentum because we couldn't get our defense off the field."

Peete, playing his final game for USC, had touchdown runs of one and four yards in the second quarter. Little did the Trojans know that was all they would get.

"We've been a fourth-quarter football team all year long," said Peete, who completed 15 of 21 passes for 158 yards with two interceptions. "We'd come out in the fourth quarter and dominate, dominate, dominate and come back. We had a good halftime talk. I don't know what happened."

Part of the answer was turnovers. When the Trojans lose, turnovers generally are the reason. They turned the ball over four times in the season-ending showdown with Notre Dame and suffered five more turnovers against Michigan.

The Trojans had driven to the Michigan 32 when Peete was intercepted by John Milligan with 50 seconds remaining, sending many in the crowd of 101,688 heading for the exits.

Demetrius Brown, who completed 11 of 24 passes for 144 yards, started the Wolverines' comeback with a 6-yard touchdown toss to Chris Calloway in the third quarter.

Hoard broke a 32-yard run to key a nine-play, 92-yard drive that put Michigan ahead 15-14 on his 1-yard sweep around right end on the first play of the fourth quarter. Hoard broke two tackles on a 61-yard run that started the Wolverines' final touchdown drive.

49ers are hot team in playoffs

By DAVE GOLDBERG AP Football Writer

After burying the Minnesota Vikings 34-9, the San Francisco 49ers are the NFL's designated hot team — for this week at least. But they'll be out in the cold for the NFC title game at Chicago and that's where they least like to be.

For, while San Francisco has won two Super Bowls in Bill Walsh's 10-year coaching regime and made the playoffs six straight seasons and seven of the last eight, the 49ers have lost their last four road playoff games.

All were played in cold weather, although maybe not be as cold as expected at Chicago Sunday. San Francisco lost 17-3 and 49-3 to the New York Giants in 1985 and 1986, and 24-21 at Washington in the 1983 NFC championship game.

And the home team has won the NFC title game the last eight years.

"The thing that counts in the remaining games is not the elements and not the team's health," said Roger Craig, who ran for 135 yards, including an 80-yard touchdown run, against the Vikings on Sunday. "It's how much your heart wants it. We just have to keep turning it up another notch."

Because both Buffalo and Cincinnati are at home in the cold, the weather will probably play a smaller role in the AFC title game at Cincinnati. But the home field will be a factor — Buffalo and Cincinnati are the only unbeaten teams at home, both 9-0, and the Bengals beat the Bills 35-21 on Nov. 27 at Riverfront Stadium.

Injuries may also be a factor, with both teams missing starting offensive tackles, Joe Walter for Cincinnati and Tim Vogler for the Bills.

Shane Conlan, Buffalo's Pro Bowl inside linebacker, missed the first game against the Bengals as well as the next four because of a severely bruised instep. He's considered 50-50 to play Sunday, and he'll be needed. Ickey Woods ran for 129 yards and James Brooks for 93 as the Bengals rushed for 232 and passed for 223 in by far the worst performance of the season by a Buffalo defense that was ranked No. 1 in the AFC.

The Bills, who haven't been in a championship game since losing 31-7 to Kansas City 22 years ago in the game that decided the AFL's first entrant in the Super Bowl, vow the defense won't be embarrassed again.

"I can't wait," nose tackle Fred Smerlas said after Sunday's 17-10 victory over Houston that put the Bills into the title game. "It's a classic matchup. The two best teams in the AFC matching up for the AFC title. No wild-cards here."

Houston quarterback Warren Moon paid tribute to the Buffalo defense when he said: "How many guys were they rushing? 10? 15? They were really switching their defenses."

The San Francisco-Chicago game is also a rematch. The Bears won 10-9 in a Monday night contest on Oct. 24. This time, Chicago will be without Richard Dent, who pressured Joe Montana throughout on a night when the 49ers quarterback completed just 13 of 29 passes for 168 yards.

Chicago is banged up at quarterback. As the Bears left for Suwanee, Ga. Monday to train, Coach Mike Ditka said it would be later in the week before he would decide on a starter, either Mike Tomczak or Jim McMahon. Tomczak reinjured his separated left shoulder in a 20-12 victory over Philadelphia last Saturday and was replaced by McMahon, who hadn't played in nearly two months while nursing an injured knee.

Walsh said he doesn't think Chicago will present the offensive variety that the 49ers faced against the Vikings.

"We had to stop the Vikings because they could make the big plays," Walsh said. "We don't feel that pressure now."

But the 49ers do feel the road playoff pressure. They have lost four straight dating back to 1970, when San Francisco beat the Vikings 17-14 at Bloomington, Minn.

At least that's one positive omen. In those days, they didn't play indoors at Minnesota.

DALLAS (AP)—Troy Aikman may have found himself a permanent home in Dallas.

The UCLA quarterback led the ninth-ranked Bruins to an NCAA record seventh consecutive bowl victory on Monday with a 17-3 Cotton Bowl Classic triumph over the eighth-ranked Arkansas Razorbacks.

He did so under the watchful eye of officials from the Dallas Cowboys, who own the NFL's No. 1 draft pick.

"Coach Tom Landry will make the final choice but I would be shocked if he didn't take Troy Aikman," said Cowboys' personnel director Gil Brandt. "I think Troy played real well." Aikman has a preference. The Cowboys.

"I'd love to play for Dallas," said Aikman, who will finish his collegiate career at the Hula and Japan bowls. He was 20-4 as a starting quarterback at UCLA.

Aikman was almost overwhelmed by "Aikmania" when the Bruins came to Dallas for their historic first Cotton Bowl visit.

"I was more distracted this week than in all of the other weeks combined," Aikman said. "I didn't feel the pressure but it was hard Thursday and that helped. I was finally able to focus on the game." What he saw was an Arkansas defense that tried to negate the long passes.

So Aikman picked apart Arkansas with a short passing game. He hit 19 of 27 passes for 172 yards and one touchdown and converted 12 of 20 third-down situations to earn Cotton Bowl offensive MVP honors.

Aikman, who bounced back after an early interception, directed scoring drives of 93 and 74 yards, the second of which ended with a 1-yard scoring pass to Corwin Anthony.

UCLA led 14-0 at halftime, and the Bruins defense made it stand up.

Arkansas' only points came on a 49-yard field goal by Kendall Trainor in the third period. It was his 24th consecutive field goal.

UCLA countered on Alfredo Velasco's 32-yard field goal in the fourth period.

"We took what Arkansas gave us and we've been doing that all season," Aikman said. "You can't argue with success. When it came to the crunch we were able to convert third downs and keep drives going."

UCLA Coach Terry Donahue said Aikman did a good job of staying under control.

"Troy needed to play his game and he did," Donahue said. "He was under an unusual amount of pressure and come through."

Donahue said it was a great honor to become the first coach to win seven consecutive bowl games.

"It's a significant win for our program," he said.

It was UCLA's first visit to the Cotton Bowl and the first appearance by a West Coast team since Oregon lost to southern Methodist 40 years ago.

"We had a great time," Donahue said. "I'd recommend this bowl to any Pac-10 team and we'd come back, that's for sure."

UCLA, 10-2, was runner-up in the Pac-10 behind Southern California while Arkansas, 10-2, was the Southwest conference champion.

The Razorbacks praised Aikman for his poise under pressure.

"He's the $1 million man and he showed it," said Arkansas safety Steve Atwater. "He's very agile and hard to contain on the rollout. He's got great zip on the ball."

Arkansas Coach Ken Hatfield blamed himself for the collapse of the Arkansas offense, which produced only 42 yards and four first downs.

"We may have tried to put in too many things," he said. "Our defense did a pretty good job. Aikman is a tremendous player. We were afraid of his potential to go deep so it's hard to stop and lot of the short passes."

"No team has ever dominated us like UCLA did."

Arkansas' 42 total yards was the second lowest in Cotton Bowl history, 10 yards behind Tennessee's total in a loss to Texas in 1953.

"They just dominated the line of scrimmage and that's where you win football games," Hatfield said.

Arkansas quarterback Quinn Grovey said UCLA just smothered him.

"My mother could have done a better job of running the wishbone," Grovey said.

UCLA noseguard Jim Wahler said he was shocked the Bruins stopped the Hogs the way they did.

"I didn't think we could stuff Arkansas like that," Wahler said.

Miami thumps Nebraska, 23-3

MIAMI (AP) — After proving themselves better than Nebraska, the Miami Hurricanes claimed they're better than No. 1 Notre Dame.

The Hurricanes thumped Nebraska 23-3 in Monday night's Orange Bowl game to ensure retention of their No. 2 ranking in the final Associated Press poll. Miami's only loss in 12 games was a 31-30 decision at Notre Dame in October.

"We might not be number one, but at this time we are the best football team in the country," Miami coach Jimmy Johnson said.

"Notre Dame has a great football team, and they beat us up in South Bend. But we've come a long way since then, and we're not the inexperienced team now that we were at that time."

The Fighting Irish beat West Virginia 34-21 Monday afternoon in the Fiesta Bowl to end Miami's hopes of a second straight national championship. Most of the Hurricanes learned that Notre Dame had won when the score was announced over the public address system midway through the Orange Bowl game.

"We were a little upset, and it got us a little fired up," quarterback Steve Walsh said. "We wanted to show the country that we were the best team in the country, maybe not in the polls but on the field."

Miami definitely was the No. 1 team in the Orange Bowl. The Hurricanes rolled to a 20-0 halftime lead thanks to two touchdown passes from Walsh to Leonard Conley and a defense that allowed only two first downs.

"They're the best team we've faced this season," Nebraska coach Tom Osborne said. "I'm sure that Notre Dame will be number one, but I don't think there are many teams that would come into the Orange Bowl and be favored to beat Miami."

Sixth-ranked Nebraska, 11-2, finished with 80 yards rushing, its lowest total in a bowl game since the 1941 Rose Bowl. I-back Ken Clark, who rushed for 1,407 yards during the regular season, was held to a season-low 36 yards in 14 carries.

"The defense pretty well had them zeroed in with everything that they did," Johnson said. "I think that we dominated the line of scrimmage more than anything else."

Nebraska's Steve Taylor completed only eight of 21 passes for 55 yards and ran 17 times for 12 yards. He suffered six sacks, including two by defensive end Greg Mark.

"We practiced containing Taylor all week long, because we felt that was the key," Mark said. "Our defense just got off the ball real quick and beat the Nebraska line to the punch."

The Hurricanes had a big advantage in total yards, 354-135.

"I'm proud of ourselves," Mark said. "Even though Notre Dame did win, our team showed a lot of character by not giving up and not putting."

The game's only touchdowns came on Walsh passes of 22 and 42 yards to Conley. The latter score included a dazzling effort by the running back, who caught a swing pass at the 38-yard line and weaved down the left sideline with the help of blocks by three teammates.

Miami's Carlos Huerta added field goals of 18, 37 and 37 yards. One of the kicks followed a blocked punt by Bubba McDowell, the 10th of his career.

Nebraska's Gregg Barrios kicked a 50-yard field goal in the third quarter.

Walsh, named the game's most valuable player, passed for 277 yards and set Orange Bowl records with 21 completions in 44 attempts.

- Appendices and specialty maps of many different features

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

Become one of the first in our community to own a copy of this magnificent atlas.

What they're saying about "The Roads of Texas"

"When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS... you'll wonder how you ever travelled the state without it."

Texas Highways Magazine October, 1988

"For details of Texas terrain, oil company maps and the State's Official Highway Map can't match THE ROADS OF TEXAS."

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: Please advise me about the sleeping medication Halcion. I am hearing different opinions from two physicians. I am badly affected by insomnia since becoming widowed. Our family internist advised Halcion. This worked very well, but I am reluctant to use it on a nightly basis, not for addictive reasons, but if taken too frequently I fear building up a tolerance to it.

DEAR READER: Halcion is a fairly new sleeping pill. Its best characteristic is its short effect. By morning it should have been destroyed or eliminated and leave no hangover effect so common to most sleeping pills. A person should be as alert as usual and able to perform at maximum mental ability.

Otherwise it is not much different from most sleeping pills. Yes, after two weeks of continuous use it begins to lose its effectiveness. Yes, it can cause dependency and severe withdrawal symptoms when stopped abruptly in a person who has been taking it regularly.

I am concerned about your insomnia and your statement of being widowed. You didn't mention how recently. That makes me wonder if your insomnia is part of depression, and if so, perhaps some professional help for depression would be useful.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am a 57-year-old woman with arthritis.

The British introduced in 1812 the concept of voting by secret ballot.

The great fire of Rome began in A.D. 64, with legend being that the Emperor Nero set the fire and fiddled while the city burned.

throughout most of my body. I have had both hips replaced because of it. I am unable to get around much and I'm ashamed to admit that I have gained so much. I weigh 250 pounds. Now my heart is bad and the doctors want me to consider having stomach stapling surgery. They say I probably wouldn't live for two years without it.

I always thought having this done would be a coward's way out to lose weight, but I cannot exercise that much and even though I've cut down on my food intake, I can't lose weight that fast. I have to use crutches and my shoulders are very bad and painful because of the arthritis, and my spine is very bad, too.

DEAR READER: The choice depends a lot on what your heart condition really is. However, I must tell you that a successful stomach stapling or partitioning works only because it keeps a person from consuming so many calories. If you can do the same thing with will power, you will lose the same amount of weight. You might need some psychological support to help you stay on the right diet. And you certainly need the help of a dietician in planning a diet that is right for you.

It certainly is true that individuals with severe arthritis of the legs, hips or spine may have difficulty in doing lots of exercise. The body weight is a major factor in limiting exercise in these circumstances. That is why I often suggest that people with such medical conditions should seek out an opportunity to exercise in water. You do not have to be a swimmer to be able to do this. The water will help support the body weight and make it possible to exercise.

Water also offers resistance to body movements so that you can exercise all your muscles. You will need some supervision for this.

I'm sending you THE HEALTH LETTER 29-10 for more details on water exercises. Others who want this issue can send $1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/29-10, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

Water Exercises
People whose medical conditions inhibit strenuous exercise could benefit from exercising in the water.

Foreign investors buying American real estate

Millions of American investors are passively watching foreigners acquire choice commercial property in the U.S., when they themselves should be investing in it.

That's the contention of two real estate experts, Hal and Klara Katersky, authors of Real Estate Limited Partnerships: A Guide For Profits, recently published by the Prentice Hall division of Simon and Schuster.

"Americans can learn a lot from foreign investors," says Klara Katersky, who with husband Hal owns Los Angeles-based Katersky Financial. The firm manages 19 Southern California shopping centers on behalf of investors.

"Foreigners are accustomed to investing all over the world," she continues. "But much of their money goes into U.S. real estate. Likewise, many pension funds and other institutional investors are aggressively increasing their real estate portfolios."

"Individual Americans should follow the lead of these sophisticated and successful investors and put more of their money into their own country's real estate."

Investors from Canada, Japan and Europe own 46 percent of downtown Los Angeles, as well as major properties in other big American cities.

"Now they're branching out and acquiring prime properties in suburban areas," says co-author Hal.

"They recognize the long-term value of U.S. real estate."

"Ever since the Tax Reform Act of 1986, small investors have shied from real estate limited partnerships. This is due in large part to the well-intentioned but misguided direction of the U.S. business press."

"Before tax reform, there were many articles praising limited partnerships as good tax shelters, when in fact most of them were total losers," Hal says.

"After tax reform, many of the same publications ran stories about why real estate limited partnerships were no longer attractive, when in fact they offer greater opportunities for financial growth and safety than ever."

"Tax reform has forced General Partners to put their investors' money into properties that generate income and offer growth, not just tax losses," Klara says.

"Ironically," she continues, "a lot of investors got confused by tax reform. They thought real estate was no longer a sensible investment. The fact is tax reform makes real estate more attractive, not less."

Klara and Hal note that a few publications did advise their readers on the true impact of tax reform. For example, in its October, 1986, issue, Money magazine said, "Tax reform will enhance the attractions of public and private income-producing partnerships."

"The key words are income-producing, Klara says. "Well-located, well-managed properties can be excellent investments as long as they produce a positive cash flow, real income that you can put in your pocket."

In Real Estate Limited Partnerships, Hal and Klara explain what makes income property click and why limited partnerships are an excellent real estate investment vehicle for most individuals.

"It's not feasible for most people to own commercial real estate directly," Hal explains. "Good properties are just too expensive, usually between 10 and 30 million dollars beyond reach. But, by investing in a limited partnership, individuals can invest in a quality property for as little as a $50,000 or even $25,000."

Because so many investors don't understand how real estate limited partnerships work, or how to evaluate them, Hal and Klara wrote Real Estate Limited Partnerships.

The book has been praised by many experts, including discount broker Charles Schwab, who called it "a first-rate guide," and economist Arthur Laffer, who said, "If you invest in real estate limited partnerships, you need this book."

Published in hardcover, it is available in many bookstores. It can also be ordered by mail from Westlake Books, 21800 Oxnard Street, Suite 480, Woodland Hills, CA 91367. The price is $19.95 plus $3 shipping.

"We think U.S. real estate offers the best combination of safety, income and appreciation of any investment today," Klara says. "That's why so many foreign investors from all over the world are investing in it."

Names in the News

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan and his wife, Nancy, received his-and-hers silver belt buckles from an admirer as they prepared to leave this desert resort and wind up their final presidential vacation.

Gerry Fitch, 72, of Cherokee Village, Ark., on Monday handed the president an ornately carved box with the gifts as the Reagans prepared to board Air Force One at Palm Springs International Airport.

"When I gave it to him, his eyes sprang open," Fitch said. "He told me, 'Thank you very much and have a very happy new year.'"

The buckles were crafted by Fitch

and designed by his wife, Twyla, 70, for a presidential visit in 1986 to celebrate Arkansas's 150th anniversary, but that trip was canceled.

Reagan's buckle bore a map of the United States, marked with places where Reagan spent his life in California, including a horseshoe to mark the president's Rancho del Cielo home in the Santa Ynez Mountains and a circle to define Hollywood.

Mrs. Reagan's buckle, imbedded with coral, turquoise and a gold heart, simply read: "No. 1 Lady."

publisher Walter Annenberg, and traveled to Los Angeles where they will spend time at their Bel-Air home.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Wheel of Fortune" host Pat Sajak said he decided against having a female sidekick on his late-night talk show because it might upset viewers accustomed to seeing him with letter-turner Vanna White.

Explaining why he chose sidekick Dan Miller rather than a woman, Sajak said some viewers might feel "as though Vanna and I had gotten a divorce or something."

CBS spent more than $4 million to build a new sound stage and other facilities for Sajak's 90-minute show, which debuts Monday. The show will rely on a traditional format spiced by live interviews.

Kohl, 53, defeated Republican Susan Engeleiter for the seat vacated by retiring Democratic Sen. William Proxmire.

Kohl said he will continue to release his state and federal income tax returns each year, but he has refused repeatedly to release the value of his assets. He said in October his net income in 1987 was $4.2 million.

ELIZABETH, N.J. (AP) — Mayor Thomas G. Dunn, believed to be the longest-serving mayor of a major American city, pledged his unwavering service as he was sworn in for his seventh and possibly last four-year term.

"I dedicate every waking moment to this city. I've made it more than a full-time job," the 67-year-old Democrat said Monday after being escorted into the City Council chambers by a kilt-clad bagpipe player and wearing shamrock-covered suspenders.

"He's a real person," said John Surnay, who in 24 years in Elizabeth has seen only one mayor. "In this plastic world we live in, he's not plastic, phony or shallow, and he's not a wimp. He's made a lot of decisions and is ready to back up every one of them."

Hip comic Arsenio Hall, whose hour-long syndicated talk show debuts tonight, says he will try to reach a new audience.

"I think people place too much emphasis on the competition; I'm running my own race," he said. "It's a personal best, it's me against me."

Hall said he will try to create an air of spontaneity and plans to avoid relying on guests with youth appeal.

"I'd love to talk to Ronald Reagan," he said. "There isn't anyone who I would consider too old and square."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mayor Tom Bradley will try his hand at acting next month, playing himself in the 10th episode of NBC's crime drama "Hunter."

Bradley was invited to appear after expressing an interest in the series starring Fred Dryer and Stephanie Kramer, said producer George Geiger.

Bradley spokesman Bill Chandler said the mayor has made cameo appearances in the past on shows, including "Matlock."

A special three-part script entitled "City Under Siege" features a female criminal Hunter extradited a decade earlier to Los Angeles and launching a crime spree.

Her violent crimes lead to vigilantism, which Hunter tries to counter with a task force.

Filming takes place in January and the scheduled air dates are Feb. 4, 11 and 18.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Millionaire Democrat and U.S. Senator-elect Herbert H. Kohl says he will continue to run the Milwaukee Bucks basketball team but will give two trustees control of his other assets.

Kohl, who was being sworn in today, said Monday he wanted to insure that the National Basketball Association team he purchased in 1985 would not be sold and moved from Milwaukee.

Kohl said his brother, Sidney Kohl, of Palm Beach, Fla., and Ralph Loewenberg, a New York City investment adviser, would take control of his assets.

"I have taken this step for two reasons: to eliminate the potential of any conflict of interest and to assure the people of Wisconsin I will be a full-time senator," he said.

What Does a typical Brand Reader Look Like?

That's difficult to say because you are as different as your substantial number would imply! You are one of the 4,100 households we're invited to every evening. That's quite a few. According to the most recent census, our township has slightly less than 5000 households.

Your vocation is part of a broad spectrum as well — white collar, blue collar, owners, managers, cowboys, teachers, housewives, students and professional.

Yet, with all your individual complexities, your interest in local issues and news gives you and other readers a common bond which is separated only by your level of curiosity.

You are an informed, intelligent and often vocal audience, and we're happy to be a part of your household every evening!

Names in the News

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan and his wife, Nancy, received his-and-hers silver belt buckles from an admirer as they prepared to leave this desert resort and wind up their final presidential vacation.
Gerry Fitch, 72, of Cherokee Village, Ark., on Monday handed the president an ornately carved box with the gifts as the Reagans prepared to board Air Force One at Palm Springs International Airport.
"When I gave it to him, his eyes sprang open," Fitch said. "He told me, 'Thank you very much and have a very happy new year.'"
The buckles were crafted by Fitch

and designed by his wife, Twyla, 70, for a presidential visit in 1986 to celebrate Arkansas's 150th anniversary, but that trip was canceled.
Reagan's buckle bore a map of the United States, marked with places where Reagan spent his life in California, including a horseshoe to mark the president's Rancho del Cielo home in the Santa Ynez Mountains and a circle to define Hollywood.
Mrs. Reagan's buckle, imbedded with coral, turquoise and a gold heart, simply read: "No. 1 Lady."

publisher Walter Annenberg, and traveled to Los Angeles where they will spend time at their Bel-Air home.
LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Wheel of Fortune" host Pat Sajak said he decided against having a female sidekick on his late-night talk show because it might upset viewers accustomed to seeing him with letter-turner Vanna White.
Explaining why he chose sidekick Dan Miller rather than a woman, Sajak said some viewers might feel "as though Vanna and I had gotten a divorce or something."
CBS spent more than $4 million to build a new sound stage and other facilities for Sajak's 90-minute show, which debuts Monday. The show will rely on a traditional format spiced by live interviews.
Hip comic Arsenio Hall, whose hour-long syndicated talk show debuts tonight, says he will try to reach a new audience.
"I think people place too much emphasis on the competition; I'm running my own race," he said. "It's a personal best, it's me against me."
Hall said he will try to create an air of spontaneity and plans to avoid relying on guests with youth appeal.
"I'd love to talk to Ronald Reagan," he said. "There isn't anyone who I would consider too old and square."

Kohl, 53, defeated Republican Susan Engleleiter for the seat vacated by retiring Democratic Sen. William Proxmire.
Kohl said he will continue to release his state and federal income tax returns each year, but he has refused repeatedly to release the value of his assets. He said in October his net income in 1987 was $4.2 million.
ELIZABETH, N.J. (AP) — Mayor Thomas G. Dunn, believed to be the longest-serving mayor of a major American city, pledged his unwavering service as he was sworn in for his seventh and possibly last four-year term.
"I dedicate every waking moment to this city. I've made it more than a full-time job," the 67-year-old Democrat said Monday after being escorted into the City Council chambers by a kilt-clad bagpipe player and wearing shamrock-covered suspenders.
"He's a real person," said John Surmay, who in 24 years in Elizabeth has seen only one mayor. "In this plastic world we live in, he's not a plastic, phony or shallow, and he's not a wimp. He's made a lot of decisions and is ready to back up every one of them."

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Millionaire Democrat and U.S. Senator-elect Herbert H. Kohl says he will continue to run the Milwaukee Bucks basketball team but will give two trustees control of his other assets.
Kohl, who was being sworn in today, said Monday he wanted to insure that the National Basketball Association team he purchased in 1985 would not be sold and moved from Milwaukee.
Kohl said his brother, Sidney Kohl, of Palm Beach, Fla., and Ralph Loewenberg, a New York City investment adviser, would take control of his assets.
"I have taken this step for two reasons: to eliminate the potential of any conflict of interest and to assure the people of Wisconsin I will be a full-time senator," he said.
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mayor Tom Bradley will try his hand at acting next month, playing himself in the 100th episode of NBC's crime drama "Hunter."
Bradley was invited to appear after expressing an interest in the series starring Fred Dryer and Stephanie Kramer, said producer George Geiger.
Bradley spokesman Bill Chandler said the mayor has made cameo appearances in the past on shows, including "Matlock."
A special three-part script entitled "City Under Siege" features a female criminal Hunter extradited a decade earlier to Los Angeles and launching a crime spree.
Her violent crimes lead to vigilantism, which Hunter tries to counter with a task force.
Filming takes place in January and the scheduled air dates are Feb. 4, 11 and 18.

What Does a typical Brand Reader Look Like?

That's difficult to say because you are as different as your substantial number would imply! You are one of the 4,100 households we're invited to every evening. That's quite a few. According to the most recent census, our township has slightly less than 5000 households.
Your vocation is part of a broad spectrum as well — white collar, blue collar, owners, managers, cowboys, teachers, housewives, students and professional.
Yet, with all your individual complexities, your interest in local issues and news gives you and other readers a common bond which is separated only by your level of curiosity.
You are an informed, intelligent and often vocal audience, and we're happy to be a part of your household every evening!

Abundant Life

UNWISE DELAY HURTS
By Bob Wear

Justified delay is a proper expression of good judgment and is to be used whenever and wherever it is needed. Delay, however, is often the cause of our problems and can be one of the major contributors to the complications which plague many lives. Unwise delay will always cause a collision of duties and this leads to other distressful situations.

Much of the stress that develops in the individual life is caused by "unwise delay." We can begin to feel that we just have too much to do and we may begin to have feelings of life being unfair, and, besides all of this, we may begin to slight or neglect some very important responsibilities and opportunities. We may even begin to feel confused and it is possible to let ourselves become undependable and untrustworthy as others see us. The hurtful effects are cumulative. One unjustified delay leads to another and the burden increases. We must permit this distressful condition of life to develop and we do have the power to prevent it.

"Where duty is plain, delay is both foolish and hazardous; where it is not plain, delay may be both wisdom and safety."-T. Edwards.

There are opportune times; times when the work can be done most effectively; times when the duty can be performed in the most satisfactory way and for the maximum good results. Unwise delay, in such instances, becomes one of the most foolish choices we can make.

The human experience has produced the saying, "Do no put off until tomorrow that which can be done today." Most of us, sooner or later, learn the wisdom of this observation.

The good things that should be done in human relationships must not be delayed because there is always the very real possibility that there will never be another opportunity for doing what we wanted to do and should have done.

Serve brunch with style, simplicity

NEW YORK (AP) — How do you celebrate with style and simplicity — but without spending a fortune? What to serve guests who have tired of heavy, high-calorie meals?

How about a post-holiday brunch? Brunch is traditionally served between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., and a selection of breakfast and lunch dishes is usually offered.

These dishes can include scrambled eggs, cheese omelettes, quiches, pancakes or French toast, sausage or ham, sandwiches and salads. Side dishes may include home-fried potatoes or hash browns, cereals, yogurts, fruits and vegetables.

Many brunch menus also include dessert and mixed drinks.

The nutritionists at Dorman-Roth Foods suggest modifying your favorite recipes to lighten up your brunch. The following are some of their suggestions:

— Eliminate excess fat and cholesterol by replacing ingredients used in traditional recipes. You can make many recipes using 1 whole egg and 1 egg white instead of two whole eggs.

— Use skim or low-fat milk instead of whole milk, and reduced-fat cheese in place of traditional varieties.

— Instead of using heavy cream, sour cream or mayonnaise for salad dressings, try low-fat or plain yogurt.

Set your buffet table with style and creativity. Use your best china, or, if you've got a large crowd, go with today's durable designer paper plates. It's okay to use your good silver and favorite serving platters with disposable dinnerware.

Choose colorful tablecloths and napkins — cloth or paper — to tie the look together. If your budget for flowers is limited, consider a decorative basket of crackers, flatbreads and bread crisps as an edible centerpiece.

Exotic vegetables like crunchy jicama and yellow cherry tomatoes will make your crudites memorable. Also great for dipping are dill pickle spears and fiery pickled jalapeno peppers.

Dessert can be a simple assortment of fresh fruit sorbets with a selection of calorie-saving toppings like diced melon, berries or all-fruit preserves. Let your guests create their own sundaes.

Be sure to have plenty of no-sugar-added, fruit-flavored seltzers or mineral waters on hand. Or serve sparkling cider, wine coolers, spritzers, non-alcoholic beer or "mocktails."

One way to make great-tasting mocktails is to use V8 vegetable juice. V8 is low in calories (35 calories per 6-ounce serving) and is a good source of vitamins A and C.

"V8 Mocktails: A Toast To Your Health" is a free booklet that includes a variety of hot and cool drinks, as well as ideas for garnishes. For your free copy, send a stamped, self-addressed, business-sized envelope to: V8 Healthy Mocktails, Box 964, Bensalem, PA 19020.

The following is a selection of recipes to brighten your brunch table:

CHEESE STRATA
1½ cups skim milk
4 large eggs
2 large egg whites
1½ teaspoons dry mustard powder
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
6 slices whole wheat bread, cut into 1-inch cubes
½ pound fresh broccoli (½ medium bunch), chopped
2-3rds cup diced sweet red pepper
½ cup finely chopped onion
Two 4-ounce packages shredded Dorman's Light Cheddar-Delight or Cheddar-Jack cheese
In large bowl with electric mixer, beat together skim milk, eggs, egg whites, mustard, pepper, garlic and nutmeg. Add bread and toss to coat. Refrigerate 4 hours or overnight.

In medium-size saucepan over high heat, cook broccoli in small amount of boiling water 2 minutes or just until tender-crisp. Drain and rinse under cold water; drain again. Set aside.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Spray shallow 1½- to 2-quart baking pan with non-stick cooking spray. Remove egg mixture from refrigerator; add broccoli, red pepper, onion and 1 package cheese. Pour into prepared baking pan. Top with remaining cheese. Bake 25 to 30 minutes or until puffy and custard is set. Makes 8 servings.

Betty Crocker's Cooking Tips

Q. What's the difference between light and dark brown sugar?
Mrs. H.D., Duluth, MN

A. Dark brown sugar has more molasses with a corresponding stronger flavor. You may use them interchangeably, but most recipes calling for brown sugar refer to the light type. Dark brown sugar may be too strong for delicately flavored baked products but is acceptable for some cookies and cakes, gingerbread, mincemeat, plum pudding and baked beans.

Q. Can sour cream be frozen successfully?
T.L., Richland, WA

A. Dairy sour cream should be stored in the refrigerator, never frozen. Some prepared foods made with sour cream, such as cookies and coffee cake, can be frozen.

Q. What would prevent streusel topping from sinking into my coffeecake?
Mrs. M.L., Bayshore, NY

A. Streusel topping should remain crumbly so it can be sprinkled on the surface. The topping should be carefully mixed to prevent too large of pieces, which may sink, or mixed beyond crumbly stage, which will be absorbed by the batter. Some recipes are designed for topping to sink into cake.

Better Business Bureau's Tips for the consumer

REFUNDS & EXCHANGES

While laws protect consumers from misrepresented and defective goods, no laws require merchants to offer refunds, exchanges or credits on merchandise they sell.

These voluntary practices have become widespread among retailers wishing to make shopping their stores as attractive as possible to customers. However, the Better Business Bureau warns consumers never to assume that merchandise can be returned unless this policy is specifically stated by the store.

Return and exchange privileges vary from store to store, so consumers should understand a store's policy when making a purchase. This policy is often printed on the sales receipt.

Virtually all stores with exchange or refund policies require that the product be returned within a specified time period, in new condition, with all packaging in place, and with the original sales slip.

Because of health laws, these return and exchange policies seldom apply to underwear, bathing suits or hats.

The BBB emphasizes that consumers should not confuse return and exchange policies with product warranties. Products often come with stated or implied warranties from their manufacturers. Read the warranty before returning a defective product to the retailer. Some merchants will return the product to the manufacturer for you as a customer service.

Before making a purchase, consider the following:

-What is the store's policy

CLEVELAND (AP) — Gov. Richard Celeste went to a news conference in a different capacity: he worked as a television reporter for a day.

Celeste attended a news conference Monday about parking violators, then hit the pavement to tape some footage on the sidewalk.

"I was impressed," said cameraman Herb Thomas, who kept the governor in focus for more than an hour. "His stand-up could rival most of our reporters."

covering returns?

-Can you exchange the item for another like it?

-Can you return the item and buy something else?

-Will the store give you your money back?

-Is this a final sale item?

-If the purchase is made under written contract, how are the normal return privileges affected?

-If the product has a separate written warranty, does this warranty affect the means by which you are to return it?
