Holly: 25 years here

(Editor's note: The following article appeared in the July/August edition of The Sugar Exchange, a publication of the Imperial Holly Corporation. The Hereford Brand joins the community in saluting Holly sugar on its 25 years in Hereford.--JFB)

Twenty-five years ago, the town of Hereford witnessed a celebration that many claimed was unmatched in the region.

Dignitaries from across the state flew to the Texas Panhandle for the occasion. Congressmen and senators were in attendance, as was Texas Attorney General Waggoner Carr. Representatives from business concerns ranging from banking to transportation to the food industry were also part of the crowd.

Texas Gov. John Connally was there to welcome a new industry to the state and to pay tribute to Holly Sugar Corporation. On Sept. 19, 1964, the dedication ceremonies began for Holly's new venture, the first and only beet sugar factory in Texas.

It was estimated that between 12,000 and 15,000 people attended the two-day celebration, which included public tours of the new plant. About 7,500 gathered at the opening event to hear Gov. Connally's address.

"On both days, there were crowds of people continually touring the plant," recalls Naoma McKee, factory manager's clerk in Hereford who was the first employee hired to work in the new Holly offices. "There were lines when we came to work in the morning and lines when we tried to leave at night."

McKee's first day was Sept. 20, 1963, a year before the factory opened. She was hired to handle correspondence during the plant's construction. She worked with Holly's project engineer, B.E. Cooper, and with the plant's first accounting manager, Gene Parsley, who was also on site a year in advance.

"The opening day was a very good day," McKee added. "All the employees were excited that the factory was finished, and the people in the community were eager to see it."

When McKee and her husband moved to Deaf Smith County from Randall County in 1956, there were about 7,500 people in the area. "However, by the time Holly came along, the county grew to 12,000," McKee said. "We've seen tremendous change in Hereford. Streets were opened up that were wheat fields when we came here."

One of the men who was responsible for bringing so much change to Hereford was Jim Witherspoon. Witherspoon was born in Oklahoma and reared in New Mexico. The graduate of the University of Texas law school moved to Hereford in 1929 to start his practice.

"I settled here because I thought it was a pretty good little place to be," said Witherspoon.

Witherspoon's idea took root in 1959 when Fidel Castro took over Cuba and the United States quit doing business with the country. Cuba was a big exporter of sugar, and the United States had been a good customer.

JIM WITHERSPOON

Last year's merger of Holly with Imperial Sugar holds bright promise for the future.

"We had a lot of 'lay out' land in the region at the time ... land that under a government program couldn't be farmed. But we also had a lot of young farmers who needed to plant something," Witherspoon said. "When Castro came into Cuba I saw this as the opportunity for the American farmer to produce the five or six million tons of sugar that had previously been supplied by Cuba."

Witherspoon began an exhausting three-year campaign to make sure his idea became a reality for the farmers of the Texas Panhandle. In order to get the attention of Texas legislators in Washington, Witherspoon helped organize 53 sugarbeet grower organizations in the state. Although the grower representatives successfully communicated their message to Texas congressmen and senators, it became apparent that other states had to be involved in the effort.

"We got busy and organized 13 sugarbeet grower associations in New Mexico, 12 in Oklahoma, several in Kansas, some in Illinois, Indiana, Arkansas, Missouri, Maine, New York and Arizona," Witherspoon said.

By 1962 Witherspoon's hard work had paid off; Congress passed an act that would increase the amount of acreage earmarked for domestic sugarbeet production. On July 13, 1962, President John F. Kennedy signed the amended Sugar Act which allowed national sugar acreage to be allocated to growers in new areas served by new sugarbeet processing plants.

The new measure cleared the way, and construction of a sugarbeet processing factory could guarantee a boost to an area's economy. Immediately upon work that the new Sugar Act had become law, Holly applied to the government for acreage reserve to assure supplies for its proposed plant.

Dolls keeping King busy

By KAY PECK
Staff Writer

Curious George peeks out from the edge. He must be curious.

Gizmo sits in the big middle of everything. Several versions of Barbie rest on a chair.

It would appear that almost every doll imagined is currently visiting in Ruth King's living room. One might say that she's Hereford's foster mother for dolls.

This invasion of Mrs. King's home by a crowd of stuffed and molded lovelies is part of a program sponsored by the Hereford chapter of the American Red Cross. Mrs. King -- one of a small army of volunteers who participate in the project -- is currently cleaning and repairing donated dolls to be given as Christmas presents to Hereford's needy children.

The full-scale effort by Red Cross volunteers to prepare used toys as Christmas gifts will not begin until after Thanksgiving. Mrs. King began her cleaning and repair early in order to give others time to make clothing for the dolls. Although dolly wardrobes are still to come, the doll repair woman has made a few articles of clothing.

"I didn't want them sitting there naked," she said.

In the name of modesty, Ken sports a pair of shorts made from a sock, and one Barbie looks very stylish in an ingenious bathing suit made from a woman's stocking.

Throughout the year, the local office of the American Red Cross, 224 S. Main, receives donations of used toys. Thanks to these donations and the efforts of volunteers who clean and repair the toys to like-new condition, Christmas will be just a little brighter for Hereford's needy children.

It's no small task, creating a Christmas for children who, perhaps, both need and deserve it most. Last year, Hereford's Red Cross supplied Christmas toys to 846 children.

Faces in the crowd

Ruth King (she's the living doll on the far right) is working hard on her doll renovation project. Mrs. King is cleaning and repairing dolls to be given to local children during Christmas for the Deaf Smith County chapter of the American Red Cross.

Imagine, 846 children were given a Christmas--a real Christmas with the toys that put sparkle in a child's eye. These were children for whom Christmas might otherwise have been only an all too painful reminder that life isn't always fair. Who said there was no Santa Claus? In this case, Santa's red suit also displays a red cross.

"The people (volunteers) we work with are fantastic," King said. The donation of both toys and time are essential for the Red Cross project to work. Volunteer effort is needed from the time toys are donated right through to the distribution to local children.

A piece of junk given as a Christmas present can be worse than no present at all to an expectant child. It takes time and effort to sort through and repair the used toys.

Even without this pre-Christmas effort, it takes an ample number of volunteers just to deliver gifts to better than 800 children.

"When you see that last bag go out, you can breathe a sigh of relief," King said.

What King, and others like her, give is more than her time, more than her money and more than half-forgotten toys cleared out of storage. The Red Cross Christmas toy program is a highly efficient gift of love.

City will maintain insurance

By KAY PECK
Staff Writer

City commissioners voted to retain employee health coverage from Blue Cross-Blue Shield during a special meeting on Friday.

Bids were accepted by city officials for insurance coverage after Blue Cross-Blue Shield notified the city of a pending 28 percent rate increase on premiums. Despite this increase, after analyzing bids City Manager Darwin McGill recommended that the city stay with the company.

"None of their (other companies) proposals are competitive with Blue Cross-Blue Shield," McGill said.

Although the commission did vote to stay with the same insurance company, coverage will not be identical to that available during the past year. Officials opted for an alternative plan which raises the deductibles from $200 to $300 for an individual and from a maximum of $400 to $600 per family.

New coverage will also increase the ceiling on the "stop loss" coverage from $5,000 to $10,000. Stop loss coverage deals with the amount in which the insured pays 20 percent of claims and the company pays 80 percent. Once the ceiling is reached, the insurance company pays 100 percent. The amount employees will pay per prescription is increased from $3 to $5 for generic drugs and from $5 to $7 for name brand.

Premiums on the new policy will be $75.27 per month for each city employee. The city pays for employee coverage, but the employee must pay for optional insurance for dependents. Those premiums will be $68.65 per month for children, $118.39 per month for a spouse and $149.91 per month for a family.

Commissioners expressed regret at the decrease in coverage for employees. The decision was made in order to insure greater affordability of dependent insurance.

"If we start losing dependent coverage... then there's a disservice here," said Commissioner Tom LeGate (Place 3).

"It is evident that we're going to have to set containments in some way. Not because we want to, but because we have to," McGill said.

If the commission had decided to retain the same coverage as is currently in place, premiums would have increased to $81.46 per month for employees, $74.88 for children, $127.50 for a spouse and $162.33 for a family.

During discussion of insurance options, the commission was concerned that dependant coverage remain affordable. Increases in deductibles and similar "containments" help to limit the ever-increasing cost of premiums.

"Insurance is intended to keep you from getting wiped out, not to keep you from paying any money (for medical care)," Mayor Wes Fisher said.

Commissioner Paul Hamilton expressed displeasure at the 28 percent increase in Blue Cross-Blue Shield premiums. He pointed out that while the city paid better than $90,000 in premiums last year, claims were limited to approximately $60,000.

"I don't really see the reason for the increase," Hamilton said.

Newcomers to be feted Oct. 8

The newcomers' committee of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce will host a reception for new families in Hereford at 2 p.m. on Oct. 7 at the Hereford Senior Center.

The day will include a tour of Hereford industry and other events to give newcomers an in-depth look at Hereford and the area.

The public is invited to attend the reception, said Keith Ann Gearn, chairman for the event, to welcome new Hereford residents and to participate in the tour if they choose.

The tour will give a glimpse of Hereford and Deaf Smith county in the past, present and future.

The past will include a tour of the Prisoner of War Chapel and camp area at 3:30 p.m. guided by Grant Hanna, and a tour of the Deaf Smith County Museum at 4 p.m.

The tour will include Arrowhead Mills at 2:30 p.m., M&W Carrot/LifeSprouts at 3 p.m., and Hereford Feed Yard at 3:30 p.m.

Hereford's car dealers will be providing transportation for the newcomers, and anyone else who would like to take part in the tours is welcome.

Marie Howard of Amarillo will provide musical entertainment during the reception.

Newcomers who have not yet been contacted by the newcomer committee should call the chamber office at 364-3333.

An added incentive for attending the reception is a "test" for anyone who would like to participate. The person with the most correct answers on the 12-question test will win $50 in Hereford Bucks. The answers should be submitted at the reception at 2 p.m. on Oct. 7.

Here are the questions for the test:

1. Who was known as the "Father of Irrigation" in the Texas Panhandle?
2. When was the Santa Fe Depot built?
3. Who was the first Brand editor?
4. What early dentist provided the findings that gave Hereford its claim to "The Town Without A Toothache"?
5. Who was Hereford's mayor in 1928?
6. Where did county residents keep their money before the bank was built?
7. Who was president of Hereford's first bank?
8. Who was Deaf Smith County's first veterinarian?
9. What school was located 20 miles northwest of the city and opened its doors in 1928? For whom was it named?
10. What was the name of Hereford's first elevator?
11. What year was Hereford's first street paved to bring us "out of the mud"?
12. When was Hereford's birthday?

China 'celebrates' 40th

BEIJING (AP) - Forty years after Mao Tse-tung stood on Tiananmen Square on Oct. 1, 1949, and declared a New China, the nation is still searching for the ideal People's Republic and is frequently at war with itself.

But China has much to celebrate this Oct. 1, its 40th National Day. Emerging from a long past of foreign domination and internal decay, it is a strong and independent nation, a world leader.

The fireworks, flowers and galas marking the anniversary are deserved recognition for a government that has managed to feed, clothe and educate a nation whose population has swollen in these past four decades from 540 million to 1.1 billion, a fifth of the entire world.

But the 40th year of New China has been chaotic and few people are in the mood to celebrate.

It has been four months since the army crushed the democracy movement in a spasm of bloodshed, and martial law troops still stand guard to keep people off Tiananmen Square, focal point of the uprising primed by students.

Any thoughts of a military parade such as was held on the 35th anniversary were set aside. No one wants to see tanks on Tiananmen Square again.

Market-oriented reforms that have doubled the size of China's economy and vastly improved the lives of millions over the past decade are in serious trouble. The conservatives in power have put a hold on new reforms until the problems of inflation, corruption and excessive growth can be solved.

Zhao Ziyang, the former Communist Party leader who was the main proponent of reform, was purged because of his liberal leanings. The grand old man of reform, Deng Xiaoping, 85, appeared recently in public for the first time in months, looking robust. He had been reported to be seriously ill.

The government has acknowledged that after four decades of indoctrination, it has failed to persuade many of the nation's young of the virtues of Communist rule. Since the student protests, time devoted to political education has doubled and tripled in offices and schools. The official press is again talking of "class struggle," a notion largely forgotten since the 1966-76 Cultural Revolution.

Hou Renzhi, a 78-year-old Beijing University professor who experienced the pre-1949 past and stood on Tiananmen Square to hear Mao proclaim the birth of a People's Republic of China 40 years ago, speaks for many older Chinese when he says: "I believe in socialism. That's the hope of China."

Yet on the same campus young students shrug off the hours of political education they are given and whisper that they know the

KING

The care and attention given by these Red Cross volunteers is apparent as Mrs. King examines the dolls which have not yet joined the ranks of those cleaned and repaired. Some dolls may never find a place there. If a toy cannot be repaired to an acceptable condition, it is not utilized as a gift.

When a doll is missing an arm or a leg, King makes a new limb. If a doll is covered in grime (either from storage or too many touches from loving-if-slightly-grubby hands) the woman cleans and scrubs and cleans again until a shiny new surface comes to light. One of her greatest challenges is the hair.

"I don't know what this hair is made of. It just mats, and you have to comb it and comb it," King said.

King is pleased that the dolls don't suffer the same discomfort a child would feel when having years of tangles combed away.

"If these kids could talk, they'd be screaming and bawling and everything," she said.

As she transforms abandoned toys into new objects of love and attention, King receives as well as gives pleasure.

"You know, after you begin to work with them, you become attached to the things," King said.

Of the mob of dolls currently residing at her house, King confesses to having a favorite. It's Mrs. Beasley, a doll once made popular as a result of its use on the "Family Affair" television series.

It wasn't the television show that made the toy special for Mrs. King. She remembers it as being the favorite doll of her first granddaughter.

"She carried it everywhere she went," King said. "The doll was almost bigger than she was."

Her granddaughter is now grown with a daughter of her own. As she cleaned the donated Mrs. Beasley, Mrs. King was reminded of the pleasure and comfort her granddaughter received from her own Mrs. Beasley.

Come Christmas -- thanks to King's efforts -- another Mrs. Beasley will once again become the friend and companion of some little girl.

In a sense, it makes it all the more special that most of the toys given by the Red Cross are used.

The character of the Skin Horse said it best in Margery Williams' children's story, The Velveteen Rabbit. The Skin Horse was attempting to explain to the Velveteen Rabbit what it meant for a toy to become "real".

"Real isn't how you are made," said the Skin Horse. "It's a thing that happens to you. When a child loves you for a long, long time not just to play with, but really loves you, then you become Real."

It's easy to imagine that many of the dolls currently under King's watchful care have already become Real. It's apparent in the soft happiness reflected in their eyes and the unspoken plea to be cuddled and hugged.

The dolls may remember what it means to be loved, and, thanks to the efforts of Ruth King, they will know that joy once again.

"I just hope it will make someone happy," King said.

HOLLY

Ground-breaking for the new factory took place on April 1, 1963, and almost 900 men and women worked to build the massive plant. That same year, Wes Fisher moved to Hereford from California where he had worked as chief agriculturist for Holly in the Sacramento district. Fisher became the new factory's first assistant agricultural manager.

"Selecting growers that first year was quite an experience," Fisher said. "I had six field men and they went out to interview the people who were interested in growing sugarbeets for Holly."

"They came back with 900 applications. I stopped the interviews, closed my door for three days, and selected the company's first growers; we settled on 450."

That first year, 27,500 acres were under contract with Holly.

Although the sugarbeet was not a new crop in the region, the presence of the Holly factory tremendously increased the interest in the crop. A handful of growers had previously produced sugarbeets on about 3,000 acres for the American Crystal Sugar Company. The crop had been sent by rail to that company's factory in Rocky Ford, Colo.

"We contracted with those growers, and got new ones, about 95 percent more," said Fisher.

Before Holly was on the scene here, growers in the area paid $2.85 a ton to have their beets hauled by rail to Colorado. After the Sugar Act was amended, the growers paid Holly $1 per ton for the first five million tons of beets delivered to the Hereford factory. This one-time-only commitment resulted in a substantial savings for growers, as compared to the cost of deliveries to Colorado. The cost of the Hereford plant was roughly $27 million.

On Oct. 8, 1964, the first sugarbeets were sliced at the Hereford factory, and production of the first all-Texas beet sugar -- grown on Texas land and processed in a Texas factory -- began.

CHINA

Tanks rumble into Beijing

People's Liberation Army tanks deploy at an intersection preparing for a rumored battle with opposition military units rumored to be converging on Beijing during this summer's unrest.

truth - that they live under a government willing to train guns on its own people.

The many 40-year retrospectives in the media couch their impressive figures on economic growth with reminders that all this is due to socialism.

"Only socialism can save China and there would be no new China without the Communist Party," the People's Daily intoned in its series titled "The Rise of an Oriental Giant."

Politburo member Li Ruihuan, in addressing Culture Ministry officials responsible for planning this National Day, had told them the events should emphasize that "public order has been restored and people are living and working in peace" after the quelling of the "counterrevolutionary rebellion" on the bloody night of June 3-4 in Beijing.

He added, "We should explain with convincing facts that only socialism can save and develop China."

There is much to be said for China's accomplishments since Mao's Communists defeated Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists in 1949, driving them off to Taiwan.

Life expectancy, around 35 at the time, has nearly doubled to 69. Cholera, malaria, smallpox, plague and other infectious diseases have been largely brought under control.

The nation victimized by imperialism and gunboat diplomacy now sits permanently on the U.N. Security Council, in the place of Nationalist China. It joined the exclusive nuclear club by exploding its first atomic bomb in 1964 and has independently launched 25 satellites since 1970.

It has normalized relations with both the United States and, lately, the Soviet Union without leaning too heavily toward either. Except for the Korean War and some brief border clashes with India, the Soviet Union and Vietnam, it has rescued the Chinese people from centuries of civil and international strife.

The economic strides are impressive. Coal production jumped from 66 million tons in 1952 to 947 million tons last year, rolled steel from 1 million tons to 47 million tons in the same period. Grain harvests grew from 113 million tons in 1949 to about 400 million tons this year. China produced 14,000 bicycles in 1949, 41.2 million in 1988; 1,600 refrigerators in 1957, 7.4 million last year.

Foreign trade is now $100 billion a year, 100 times more than four decades ago. Foreign investors have poured $12 billion into 16,000 joint ventures and other projects.

In 1978, the year Deng started his reforms, 10,000 Chinese had washing machines. Now 43 million do. In 1983 only four out of every 100 rural households had televisions. Now almost a third do. Rural incomes, at 545 yuan ($147) per person a year, are triple those of 1978. Urban residents earn 1,119 yuan ($302) a person, up 87.6 percent over 1978 after deducting price rises.

Daunting problems remain. Illiteracy has been cut from 80 percent of the population to 20 percent, but that still leaves tens of millions of people who can't read and an underfinanced educational system that does little to encourage children to stay in school.

The government says 60 million people, more than the entire population of France, live below the poverty line of 200 yuan ($54) in annual income. Some in remote, barren areas depend on government handouts for survival.

Forty years after Mao announced the end to exploitation of the people, more and more people are asking whether the progress achieved has been worth the pain.

A million people in the Beijing streets this past spring demanding democratic reform attested to disillusionment with the Communist Party, which, like other absolute rulers, is tainted by corruption, privilege and disdain for the common man.

After four decades China still lacks a legal system that protects people from the whims of politicians and police, and the large majority have little or no control over where they will live or work.

The Communist Party's claims to infallibility have long been discredited by its excesses and miscalculations. There was the "anti-rightist" campaign of 1957 that led to the persecution of tens of thousands of intellectuals; the economic fiasco of Mao's Leap Forward in 1958, which was followed by crop failures and mass starvation; and the tragic folly of the leftist Cultural Revolution, which nearly destroyed a whole generation of educated Chinese.

Optimistic Chinese point out that in the past decade under Deng Xiaoping the periodic political campaigns against "spiritual pollution" and "bourgeois liberalization" have been far milder, with fewer arrests and less persecution than in the past. But since the June military attack on protesters in Beijing, followed by a nationwide crackdown on dissent, the mellowing of the masters seems less certain.

The party in turn is demanding patience, saying it will put its divided house in order and guide the nation to prosperous stability if only people learn to forgo Western political ideas and consumer habits.

Jiang Zemin, the new Communist Party chief, set the stage for National Day 1989 by returning to Yanan, the still-impoverished town of cave dwellers in northwest China where Mao set up his revolutionary base in the 1930s and 1940s.

"We should carry forward the Yanan spirit of self reliance and hard struggle," Jiang said. "It will be hard to accomplish the socialist modernization drive without such a spirit."

A PLACE TO STUDY

Although many factors contribute to the decline of visual acuity in middle grade and high school students, one of the factors which adds to eyestrain is poor study habits. This condition can be partially alleviated by providing a special studying area for your child. One that is well-planned and comfortable reduces unnecessary visual stress.

The study area should include a desk or a surface large enough to hold lamps, books and papers. For long periods of reading, a slanted drawing board with about a 20-degree tilt is much more comfortable. Of course, you should include a good adjustable chair. Place a lamp on either side of the desk or table. The lamps should provide lighting which is about three times brighter than the room's overall illumination. A room used for studying should never be totally dark, with only a "hot spot" covering the study area.

If possible, position the desk so that the youngster can glance out the window or across the room now and then to take a visual break from close work.

Salute to Holly

Hereford may be known as "the town without a toothache," but it sure has a "sweet tooth."

As Holly Sugar Corporation starts its annual campaign, it marks the 25th anniversary of the plant's operation in this community. The Holly plant was dedicated on Sept. 19, 1964 with an estimated 12,000 to 15,000 people attending the two-day dedication celebration. Led by Gov. John Connally and Atty. Gen Waggoner Carr, a host of dignitaries came to see Texas' first and only sugar beet factory begin operations.

Holly recently merged with Imperial Sugar and the first annual shareholders meeting of Imperial Holly was held in Sugar Land in July. "The new corporation gives us a broader base and a marketing approach that is a lot better," says Bill Cleavinger, president of both the American Sugarbeet Growers Association and the Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association.

With 25 years of success in the sugarbeet business behind him, Cleavinger qualifies as a spokesman for the sugar industry. In the past year, he has been to every beet-growing area of the United State as well as trips to the beet growing areas of Europe and the cane fields of South America and the Far East. Cleavinger has made at least 150 trips to Washington, D.C. and was involved with sugar policy formation for the 1981 and 1985 Farm Bills.

And, you can't talk about the sugar beet industry in Hereford without mentioning the name of Jim Witherspoon. An attorney in Hereford since 1929, Witherspoon played a key role in bringing sugarbeet processing to the Texas panhandle. He headed a three-year exhaustive legal battle to get Congress to pass an act that would increase the amount of acreage for domestic sugarbeet production.

Holly's 1989 campaign started this week and beet receiving stations will soon be alive with activity. The work force at the Holly factory will swell from 150 to almost 400 with the addition of the campaign workers. Holly has been good for Hereford and the area the past 25 years.

On Holly's silver anniversary in Hereford, we salute the company for its contributions as a vital member of the business and industrial community, and we tip our hats to individuals like Jim Witherspoon, Bill Cleavinger and others who have helped make the sugar beet industry an important part of our economic base.

An AP news analysis

Tax reform

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - Tax reform is an idea whose time has come, and gone, with some frequency. Right now it is going, piece by piece, as Congress works toward reviving tax breaks the reformers scrapped as loopholes just three years ago.

The rival tax plans that are being pushed by Republicans and Democrats each involve tax preferences that were eliminated in the 1986 law that was to have been the landmark of lasting reform. There had been some tinkering, but now the proposals for change involve major features of the law President Reagan hailed as the prize in "the world series of tax reform."

One is the capital gains tax break President Bush campaigned for, and squeezed through the House Ways and Means Committee with the help of Democrats who broke with their party's leaders. The other is an across-the-board deduction for Individual Retirement Accounts, ruled out for upper income taxpayers under the 1986 overhaul, now the Democratic counter to the Bush plan.

The tax issue is one of the few that really was presented to the voters in the campaign of 1988, in Bush's daily promises that there would be no increase, and in his call for reduction of the tax on capital gains realized from the sale of stocks, real estate and other assets. He said that would spur investment and help create jobs. Then as now, the Democrats denounced the proposal as a tax break for the rich.

In Congress, Democratic leaders argue that the measure to reduce the tax on capital gains undoes one of the central compromises that opened the way for enactment of the Tax Reform Act of 1986.

Rep. Richard A. Gephardt of Missouri, the House majority leader, said the essential tradeoff was that tax deductions and tax breaks like the lower rate for capital gains were dropped in exchange for reductions in income tax rates. He said the Republicans now want to keep the rates but restore one of the tax breaks.

The bill they now favor would reduce the effective capital gains tax to a maximum 19.6 percent for the next two years, which is just about where it was before the 1986 tax bill eliminated special treatment for capital gains and made it subject to income tax rates which now range up to 33 percent.

"That strikes at the heart of tax reform," Gephardt said.

Then again, the Individual Retirement Account deduction was restricted as part of the same tax reform deal. One of the 1986 changes was to eliminate that deduction for taxpayers whose joint returns showed income over $50,000 a year.

So, while the Democrats complain that Bush wants a tax break for the rich, most of direct benefits of either proposal would go to people high on the income ladder.

Democrats want to finance the retirement account deduction by boosting the top rate for the wealthiest taxpayers to 33 percent. That would affect about 600,000 taxpayers who now pay top rates of 28 percent although people with slightly lower incomes already are at the higher rate. Bush says that would be a tax increase and he'd veto it, in keeping with his campaign vow.

Either formula runs counter to the premise of the 1986 reformers that tax laws should be written to raise revenues, rather than to determine how people use their own money. That, and the drive to keep total revenues at their pre-reform levels while rates were being slashed, led to the wholesale elimination of tax deductions and shelters.

The next step in the cycle, it seems, is to start putting some back.

As the process unfolds, lines are being drawn on an issue that will resound in the 1990 congressional election campaigns, as it has in the last four presidential elections.

The Democrats only won one, with Jimmy Carter, who said his advocacy of tax reform was one of the reasons he won in 1976. Carter campaigned for a complete overhaul of the income tax system, calling it "a disgrace to the human race." In the next three elections, Republican candidates used the tax issue effectively in defeating Democrats they said were bent on raising taxes.

That's a script Republicans hope to use again, in state and congressional elections.

The Penultimate Word

HE TOOK THE SECRET WITH HIM

I added another character to my list. I collect characters. When they die I try to make sure they are remembered. We need characters. Someone said, "In a time of accuracy and precision, clowns are a gift." We buried a gift last week.

John Formby was Clint's father, but we can't hold that against him. Heaven forbid that we are ever judged by what kind of kids we have. John was one of those rare folks who seemed to be on the verge of laughter at all times. It was hard to know whether he had a twinkle in his eye or was just full of the Devil.

He was a life-long puller of practical jokes. He never saw anyone he thought to be a stranger. He never saw anyone he was not willing to josh. If clowns are a gift he was welcomed and nicely wrapped.

When one of these characters die, I wonder how they maintained their sense of humor. John lived more than 80 years. How come he was still jolly. The majority of us lose some of the jolly along the way. The only thing that kept John from pulling a practical joke last week was his health. Life never took it out of him. When you consider how hard life tries to take it out of us, those who keep it are remarkable.

John did not live 80 years without sadness. There is enough misery to go around and John had some of it. He kept smiling.

John was a conservative and serious Christian. He took it so seriously that he made them rebaptize him when he was so feeble he could barely walk. Here he was a serious believer in a serious faith, and that faith could not take the fun out of him. If I could figure out how he did that I would slip a dose of it into the water fountain at every church in town.

I marvel when folks make it through with their joy intact. I wonder how they did it. I wonder if I will be able to do it. Unfortunately there is no formula. John and the folks like him seem to take the secret with them when they go. But, it was fun while John was doing it.

Warm Fuzzies,

Heading Off Lawyers

It speaks volumes that the State Bar of Texas has sent a team to the Rio Grande Valley to ride herd on unscrupulous attorneys. The team, headed by the president of the bar, received reports that some lawyers were soliciting lawsuits from the families of the 20 children killed in a school bus tragedy last week.

First, this preventive operation is laudable. In such matters, it is up to Texas lawyers to police themselves. If they don't do it, who will?

But in a larger context, the need for this action is depressing. For here, in a moment of terrible grief, are reports of an army of attorneys handing out business cards and promising large amounts of money. And the situation is so bad that colleagues have to fly in to operate damage control. Not many other professions have reached such depths of greed.

The Texas bar said the action it was taking was not unusual, that it was developed after reports of unscrupulous agents and lawyers moving in following other disasters. Again, this is laudable. Certainly it is much better than a similar instance in Oregon where, after a plane crash, the Oregon bar complained about all the out-of-state lawyers coming in taking away business from the local attorneys.

But it underscores the image problem of the legal profession. Soon, following earthquakes, hurricanes and fires, National Guardsmen might be ordered: "Keep a sharp eye out for looters - and lawyers."

County Jails Costs Could Be Reduced

Jefferson County commissioners want to build a new jail, but the price tag of approximately $9 million is about as welcome as a flat tire in a rainstorm. But there is no alternative, so county residents should stop grumbling and shell out $9 million, right?

Well, maybe, but at the risk of sounding repetitious, there just might be another option.

As shown in Leesburg, Va., a completely safe and modern jail can be built from converted steel shipping containers. The cost is substantially less than a brick-and-mortar jail, about $4,000 per bed as compared to the $13,000-per-bed estimate provided to the commissioners. This type of prefabricated jail can be put together in just a matter of weeks, not months or years, and since it is so easy to assemble, it's also easy to disassemble or shift around.

Maybe this concept ... could save county taxpayers some money. Before the commissioners commit themselves to a $9 million construction program, they should make sure there is no cheaper and more effective way to house jail inmates.

Prison Sentences: Teens Given Stern Message

Twelve young men learned Friday that crimes of violence carry a price.

The sentence meted out ... to Carter and Hillcrest high school students who went on an armed robbery rampage this past year were tough, but appropriate for the crimes committed. The stern message sent to other teens ... is that it is wrong to threaten another human being with a gun and steal money ...

There will be much comment in the coming days about the length of the prison terms handed down to young men who had not been in serious trouble before. Because all 12 confessed armed robbers are African-American, there will be charges of racial bias in the sentencing.

But no one is responsible for the future facing these teen-agers except themselves. No one else convinced them to think crime was an easy path to money and thrills. They alone decided that society's rules didn't apply to them. They have found how costly that decision was. They now must earn their way back into good standing through their behavior and responsiveness to the criminal justice system. For their sake and that of their families, let us hope they are given every opportunity to repair their lives and return to productive lives in society. The choice is up to them.

Federal Strings Hamper Nation's Schools

Since George Bush has emphasized his desire to become known as the "education president," most of the nation will be watching the outcome of an education "summit" he has invited the nation's governors to attend in Washington on Sept. 27. Bush's commitment to education will be judged by the agenda he sets at this important meeting.

One thing is clear: more money is not the answer to the nation's education problem. Indeed, an underlying cause of the current funding crisis in education at the state and local levels is federal interference. Federal rules not only impose unnecessary financial burdens, but they also frustrate innovation. Bush needs to assure governors that instead of imposing new burdens on the states, he will seek ways to make it easier for them to introduce reforms.

Legalization of Drugs is Same as Surrendering

In a provocative counterpoint to Washington's war on drugs, a number of distinguished citizens have been calling for the opposite solution: Make drugs legal.

In an open letter to drug czar William Bennett the other day, Nobel Prize-winning economist Milton Friedman argued that the drug war will undermine liberty ...

The argument deserves to be answered. Bennett makes the first important point in his reply to Friedman: While the cost of enforcing drug laws is high, the cost of not enforcing them is higher. ...

The experience of Prohibition is instructive. During the 1920s when alcohol was illegal in the United States, hospitalization for alcohol-related diseases and psychological problems plummeted. After the repeal of Prohibition, alcohol consumption went up 350 percent, Bennett says.

... We tolerate alcohol, which has been a constant in the diet, recreation and mythology of Western man for millenniums ...

No such cultural sanction weaves marijuana or heroin or cocaine or the deadly crack into the fabric of our customs.

... Recent figures show casual use of illegal drugs is declining, but addiction is on the rise. This is the time to harness Americans' growing intolerance of narcotics behind a serious assault on drugs ...

HOUSTON (AP) - Mark Evetts wants people to read his phone numbers on the restroom wall.

And they do, in 18 Sunbelt cities where Evetts' company, Headlines USA, has been putting advertisements where people can't ignore them: in restroom stalls, above urinals and over hand-dryers.

"With radio or TV, you can walk away or get involved in something else," Evetts said. "With Headline, you're stuck. You're going to stare at a blank wall, or read our ads."

"We are located in a place where there is nothing else you would rather be doing."

The ads win raves at "In Cahoots," an upscale Country-Western nightclub, said waitress Cheryl Hanavan. "You hear things like, 'Wow! Far Out! You've got something to read in there!'"

"It's a good idea," said nightclub patron Clay Hubbard, 25, of Houston. "You can't help but look at them; they're right there in your face."

"It gives you something to do while you're sitting there," said Barbara Collins, a 35-year-old travel agent. She was able to recall four of the 10 ads in a matter of seconds.

Ms. Collins said she isn't sure her company would be enthusiastic about restroom advertisements, but she thinks it's a good bargain for some businesses.

"They have ads for the Dance Club here - this is a good place for that," she said.

Evetts said one of the assets of his business is the ability to focus a firm's advertising dollars on the income, race or sex of its intended customers.

"If you want women only, we can give you that," Evetts said. "If you want to find Hispanic customers, we can provide locations that deliver only Hispanic clientele. If you want blacks, we can give you locations that deliver blacks."

The success of his business depends on the locations. He tends to place ads in upscale nightclubs, restaurants and event complexes like The Summit, the home of the Houston Rockets.

At "In Cahoots," one of 45 locations where the ads can be seen in Houston, most restroom-goers on a recent night were able to remember between two and four ads, some of them in great detail.

"There was one for flowers 24 hours a day - Dial 999-ROSE," said Doug Wilson, 26.

"There was one for an apartment complex, one for a dozen roses, $29.99," said Marsha Janer, 25, a native of Spain.

"Most of the bars have them: Wild West, Johnny B. Dalton's, The Rose," said Ron Allen, 40, an investment banker.

"It's not too complicated to read when you've had a couple drinks," Allen said.

Evetts now offers the ads in five Texas cities - Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth, Amarillo and Lubbock - and 13 others across the south: St. Louis, Mo.; Atlanta and Macon, Ga.; Phoenix and Tucson, Ariz.; Tampa, St. Petersburg and Orlando, Fla.; and San Francisco, Oakland, San Mateo, San Jose, Santa Clara and Berkeley, Calif.

"The thrust for the next 12 months will be to double that number," he said. "Then we'll take it internationally."

It all started in a hotel restroom, where Evetts was reading a Wall Street Journal.

"I realized I was re-reading old news again and again ... I thought it would be the perfect place for an ad," he said.

Evetts, 32, got a $50,000 personal loan and started Stalltalk Inc. Since renamed, it now has both corporate and franchise operations. He expects it to make $1.2 million in sales this year.

"I hate advertising," said Evetts, a Rice University computer science graduate. "But this makes sense: you have a captive audience, a targeted market and a low cost."

"National advertisers were really crying out for more cost-effective ways of reaching a changing market," Evetts said. "You can't continue to hit the same amount of people in the same way you did 10 years ago."

"I'm going to deliver a message that's guaranteed to hit the intended audience," Evetts said. "They can't change the channel or turn the page."

Herd puts open date to good use

By SAM W. WALLER
Sports Editor

The Hereford Whitefaces may have had an open date on the schedule this week, but head coach Don Cumpton, his players and staff had anything but a week off.

"What we did is we've gone back and evaluated what we're trying to do offensively and defensively," Cumpton said Friday. "We've tried to evaluate our personnel and this week we've spent a lot of time on things we haven't done as well as we need to do. Hopefully, we'll see some improvement the rest of the season in those areas."

"And we've made some decisions about what our kids are capable of doing and what we think we have to do -- offensively and defensively -- for us to have a chance to win. And we feel pretty good about it right now."

Another opportunity the open week offers is a chance to scout the seven teams left on the schedule, Cumpton said.

"We've scouted most of them already," he said, "but we're going to see them all this week. We've got someone going to every district game tonight."

Cumpton said despite suffering a loss in the first District 1-4A game, the Herd is not yet in danger of missing out on a playoff spot.

"I don't think we are, personally. I said this a long time ago: I don't believe -- I may be wrong -- but I don't believe there will be a team go through this thing undefeated."

Cumpton added that it was conceivable for the Herd to lose a second district tilt and still be in the playoff hunt.

"I wouldn't be surprised. It wouldn't surprise me at all if a 6-2 got in the playoffs this time, or at least have a chance to be involved in the final week."

As for what may be the toughest game left on the schedule, Cumpton said: "The next one -- Pampa. That's one thing you have to do in this deal is take them one at a time."

"Our No. 1 concern right now is Pampa because they're playing well. They've got a good ball club. We're going up there and it's their homecoming. It's going to be a battle; it's going to be a dogfight."

One area the Herd concentrated on in workouts this week has been the rushing defense, Cumpton said.

"Defensively we've got to start playing better," he said. "We've got to tackle better and we've spent a lot of time on that this week."

"I've been a little disappointed in the way we've played the run. We've given up a lot of yards and we're not used to doing that. We've got to get our mind-set focused on stopping people running the football."

Cumpton added that the Herd will face running backs just as talented as those from Palo Duro and Estacado.

"There'll be some good ones," he said. "Pampa's got a guy named Quincy Williams averaging over 100 yards a game. Everybody's going to have some people like that."

"We've just got to get better ... we've got to play better. Because in high school football you've got to be able to stop the run."

"We're giving up 238 yards a game rushing and we need to cut that down. That needs to be at about 160. And, passing, we're giving up about 50 yards a game. So, total, we're giving up right at 300 yards a game, and we've got to get that down."

While the defense may not be performing as well as would be liked, Cumpton said the offense has been moving the ball well.

"I'd say for the most part we've been pretty pleased with our running game," he said. "We didn't run the ball like we would've liked to against Palo Duro. But with the other two games we feel like our running game is right on course."

"Now, we've got to improve in running the option," he added, "and we think we have. We've made some strides this week."

As for the passing game, Cumpton said there was room for improvement.

"We've got to improve in our percentage of throwing the football and completing it. We're throwing down there around 37-38 percent and we need to be up around 50. And that is another key we need to do offensively."

Cumpton said the Whitefaces will make some adjustments in an effort to correct that.

"We're going to throw a little more play-action. We think we can run the ball well enough now to set up and be successful at throwing play-action passes, and we're going to use that a little more than we have."

The Whitefaces will continue to use the full-house backfield featured against Estacado, Cumpton said.

"We'll continue to use that and then we'll incorporate some other things into it," he said. "We've got a few new wrinkles that will be ready to play against Pampa."

"We're going to do the same things, but we may go about it a little differently. Our goal is the same, but we may take a different avenue to get there."

One feature that may become part of Hereford's attack is substituting players depending on the game situation.

"There may be some situation playing in more than one position," Cumpton said. "We may be little more situation oriented as far as what we want to do with our people, whether it's quarterback, running back, receiver or whatever."

"What we're trying to do is make sure we get the most out of the talent the Good Lord has given us with this group of kids. And to do that we may have some situation football as far as what we're doing with our personnel offensively and defensively."

One area the Herd coaches have little control over, however, is injuries. Hereford lost senior cornerback Jim Eric Andrews with a knee injury before the first game and defensive end Steve Tucker suffered a broken leg and dislocated ankle against Estacado.

"It's hurt us, there's no question," Cumpton said of the situation. "You don't lose kids like and Steve without it having an impact."

"But we're confident we've got some guys to put in there that can do the job. We've got a lot of guys that want to play. They'll be okay."

The Herd has even been plagued by injuries from last season as linebacker Jason Lueb is still bothered by a year-old shoulder problem.

"He was supposed to see a specialist (Saturday) about his shoulder and we really won't know about him till after that. He's still having a hard time with it."

Farwell comeback drops JV Herd, 41-20

The Farwell Steers scored 27 second-half points Friday to blow open a tight game and post a 41-20 win over the Hereford Whitefaces junior varsity at Farwell.

Hereford enjoyed a 20-14 lead, but Farwell tailback Shawn Stewart ran for two touchdowns and took a pass for a third to give the Steers control.

The Herd took the opening kickoff and drove 68 yards six plays with tailback Larry Brown going over from the 11. Chris Blair and Louis Mungia hooked up for a 43-yard gain on the previous play to set up the score.

Farwell answered with a 65-yard drive of their own with Stewart getting the first of his four touchdowns on a five-yard run. Darren Haseloff's kick was smothered by the Herd defense to leave Hereford with a 7-6 lead at the end of the first quarter.

Farwell took a 12-7 lead when quarterback Chad Byrd, normally a receiver who started in place of the injured Greg Actkinson, kept the ball on a two-yard bootleg. The score was set up when Farwell blocked the first of two Jesus Gonzales punts at the Hereford 11-yard line.

The Herd then became what may be the only team in history to score a "go-behind" touchdown. Farwell defensive back Clint Kelley tipped a Blair pass into the hands of Oscar Pesqueda for a 12-yard score to give Hereford a 13-12 lead. Then the fireworks began.

On the first conversion attempt Farwell's front line blocked Amato Lopez' kick, but a penalty for running into the kicker gave the Herd another chance. On the second try the Herd ran a reverse to Brown out of kick formation, but the handoff was never (see HERD JV, Page 7A)

Maybe 3-13 really wasn't that bad

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING (AP) - Tom. You did a better job than everybody thought. How Tom Landry won three games with the 1988 Cowboys is fast becoming a mystery, given the dire straits of Death Valley Ranch these days.

After new owner Jerry Jones fired Landry, there was the general impression that new coach Jimmy Johnson, who won a national title at the University of Miami, had some sort of sorcery available to turn the dogs of the NFL into sleek greyhounds.

Jones assured us Johnson was worth five No. 1 picks and five Heisman Trophy winners.

Jones also loudly and boldly predicted that the Cowboys would win more games in the first third of the season than Landry did all last year, when Dallas went 3-13.

That deadline is past, with Landry the winner.

After three games of the NFL regular season, it can be accurately reported that Johnson is no miracle worker.

The NFL law - talent supply plus excellent coaching equals playoffs - still applies. Johnson may be a good coach, but you can't fool anybody with mirrors in a mean, tough business. The hosses ain't here.

After three humiliating losses, Johnson quit referring to his team as "we" and started calling them "they."

Then he lashed out, saying, in effect, that if anybody didn't want to win as badly as he does, then let him know, because the door is open.

As Landry discovered, Jimmy, a player can have all the desire in the world, but if he doesn't have a lot of talent, the losses will outnumber the victories.

"I knew we were in for a long haul when I accepted," Johnson says. "I knew it doesn't change overnight."

So why was he so mad that he got three whippings he should have known were coming?

"I was frustrated and I got upset," Johnson says. "I know we're on the right path."

Johnson studied psychology in college and needs to start using some of the lessons he learned on himself.

Nothing, psychologists are told, can be accomplished during a fit of anger.

Which is why Landry got the nickname "Old Stone Face." You seldom saw him exchange expressions on the sideline during a game. He was thinking ahead to the next play. If he stopped to get mad because of a detrimental turn of events on the field, his effectiveness would diminish.

So now Johnson has seen the dark side of the NFL. Rah-rah stuff doesn't work.

What does get the job done is athletes who are smarter, faster, and bigger than their opponents. Good coaching can also help. Even bad coaching has a hard time messing up good players.

Johnson needs to make some bigtime trades, and no player on the team except for rookie quarterback Troy Aikman should be ruled an untouchable. If you can get a good deal for Herschel Walker, do it. Same for Michael Irvin, Steve Walsh, and any other Cowboy who still has some value left.

If Johnson wants to win within the next two or three years, he needs to go the trade route.

The draft is going to take too much time, and the fans will desert a losing team at Texas Stadium like they would if it was sitting on a nuclear waste dump. Just how many do you think will be there when Dallas plays lowly Green Bay on Christmas Eve?

Trade, Jimmy, trade.

And do it before Jerry has to float another loan.

Schulenburg continues shutout string; all five top-rated teams achieve wins

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer

Four games into the season, Class 2A Schulenburg is winning rave reviews with its defense. The Shorthorns, ranked sixth among Texas' 2A teams, posted their fourth straight shutout Friday night, beating Flatonia 35-0 and now has scored 203 points to none for the opposition.

Flatonia was the No. 10 team in Class 1A.

Schulenburg quarterback Mark Tidwell got his team going with a 6-yard run in the first period, and wrapped up the victory with a 6-yard TD pass to Daniel Adams in the fourth quarter. Tidwell hit 7-of-15 passes for 90 yards.

The top-ranked teams in each classification rolled on. It was Converse Judson over San Antonio Central 62-0 in 5A, Paris over DeSoto 40-24 in 4A, Southlake Carroll over Wylie 48-14 in 3A, Groveton over Buffalo 59-0 in 2A and Munday over Crowell 69-0 in 1A.

Other than Flatonia, only four ranked teams lost on Friday night.

Beaumont Central, ranked eighth in 5A, was outscored 47-33 by West Orange-Stark, ranked third in 4A.

Gainesville, ranked second in 3A, was edged 29-28 by Allen.

Hamshire-Fannett, ranked No. 3 in 3A, fell behind Lumberton 17-14 at the half and that's the way the game ended.

Grandview, ranked No. 7 in 2A, was beaten by Frost, 17-6.

"It was just a super defensive effort," Lumberton coach Larry Haynes said of the Raiders' upset of Hamshire-Fannett, which was held to only 60 total yards the second half.

Halfback Felman Malveaux scored on a 63-yard run to cut Lumberton's early lead to 9-7 and then completed a 36-yard halfback option pass to wingback Todd Bellanger to set up another touchdown for a 14-9 Hamshire-Fannett lead in the second quarter.

But Lumberton scored late in the second quarter to recapture the lead and won by spoiling Hamshire-Fannett's desperation drive in the final seconds of the game. Malveaux tipped a Hamshire-Fannett pass into the arms of teammate Shaun Cult for an interception.

Andre Session of El Paso Jefferson, the state's leading schoolboy rusher and scorer, gained 164 yards and scored 8 points on a 1-yard run and a 2-point conversion as the Silver Foxes stayed unbeaten by beating El Paso High 26-6.

Session, a junior, now has 925 yards rushing, an average of 231 yards per game, and has scored 13 touchdowns and 84 points.

An estimated 9,000 fans looked on as Converse Judson gained 423 yards in drubbing East Central. Senior fullback Isom Lankford gained 160 yards on 187 carries. Lankford and junior tailback Kyle Amell scored twice and senior fullback Vincent Kyle scored three times.

Judson scored on four of its first five possessions en route to a 28-0 halftime lead. The Rockets gave up only three first downs in the first half, all coming via Judson penalties, and held East Central to a negative 32 yards rushing in the contest.

HERD JV

controlled and Farwell's Stewart gathered the fumble and raced 83 yards the other way to give two points and a 14-13 lead.

Farwell then gave up a pair of turnovers on an interception by Max Mungia and a fumble recovery by Brian Bentley. The Herd could do nothing with Mungia's gift, losing the ball on downs at the Steer 30, but did cash in on the fumble. Blair rolled into the endzone from the one on fourth and goal to put the Herd back in front. Lopez added the PAT for a 20-14 halftime lead.

Farwell opened the second half with scores on its first two possessions and limited the Herd to just 56 yards of offense and two first downs.

A 39-yard kickoff return by Michael Arce and a 15-yard facemask call against the Herd put the Steers in business at the Hereford 40. The Steers needed only five plays to regain the lead for good as Stewart scored from the 12 and Byrd ran for the two-point conversion.

Farwell held the Herd after the kickoff and took over near mid-field following a punt. Byrd connected with Stewart for 14 yards and Haseloff for 17 to move the Steers to the 11 and set up Stewart's third touchdown, a one-yard run.

Farwell's final offensive touchdown came at the end of a 65-yard drive when Byrd hit Stewart with a swing pass for 10 yards.

The Herd mounted its only drive of the half following the kickoff, reaching the Farwell 45 in four plays. But on third and 11, Arce stepped in between Max Mungia and Brown for an interception and went 46 yards unmoled for the score.

For the evening, Brown led the Herd in rushing with 31 yards on 15 carries with a touchdown.

Blair passed for 111 yards and a score, hitting four of 12 passes. Blair also rushed seven times for 11 yards and a touchdown. Max Mungia connected on three of nine passes for 41 yards with three interceptions and carried the ball twice for four yards. All three of Mungia's interceptions came in the fourth quarter with Farwell leading.

Louis Mungia led the receivers with four catches for 122 yards while Pesqueda had a catch for 12 yards and a touchdown. Mark Kreighsauer had one catch for 10 yards and Todd Selmon had one for eight yards.

Hall of Fame righthander Ted Lyons never pitched in the minor leagues. Lyons went straight to the Chicago White Sox from the campus of Baylor University in 1923.

Chemical conference this week in Lubbock

Techniques and tools to help farmers protect their most valuable resources -- land, water and air -- will be presented Wednesday and Thursday at the 37th annual West Texas Agricultural Chemicals Conference at Lubbock.

Theme for the two-day seminar, which will be held at the Lubbock Plaza Hotel at South Loop 289 at Indiana, is "Agriculture's Leadership Role in Protecting the Environment." Registration begins at 8 a.m. Wednesday with the educational conference opening at 1 p.m.

Seminar speakers include specialists from the Texas Agricultural Extension Service; scientists from the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station; and representatives from the Texas Water Commission, Texas Department of Agriculture, production agriculture and chemical companies.

Certified commercial and non-commercial applicators, who must complete five continuing education units of training by Dec. 31 to be recertified by TDA, can get those units by participating in the conference.

Environmental issues and their effects upon Texas agriculture will be examined during the opening session. The economic impact of the state's "Agricultural Hazard Communication Act (The Right-to-Know Law)" will be discussed by McAllen Mayor Othal E. Brand Sr., chairman of the board of Griffin and Brand produce company.

The effect of federal regulations on company re-registration of chemicals will be addressed by Jerry Quinn, director of market development for ICI Americas Corp. Also to be discussed is the projected impact of implementing the Endangered Species Act.

Dr. Denise McWilliams an Extension Service training specialist for agricultural chemicals from College Station, will explain how to avoid water quality problems. An overview of water quality will be presented by Dr. John R. Abernathy, resident director of research for the experiment station at Lubbock.

During Wednesday's opening session, the West Texas Agricultural Chemicals Institute will award two scholarship to area college students. At the evening banquet it will present two awards to leaders in education and business.

Thursday's program will open at 8:45 a.m. with discussion of integrated pest management strategies. The discussion will include segments on weed resistance to herbicides, the impact of the conservation reserve program on the boll weevil and other insects, managing changing weed problems, post-directed herbicides, mite resistance in corn and cotton aphids.

Speakers from the Extension Service, state and federal agencies and from the private sector will address those problems.

The final afternoon will cover crop protection chemicals and application techniques, storage and disposal of pesticide containers, safe handling of chemicals.

TBSWCD election Tuesday

The Tierra Blanca Soil & Water Conservation District has posted a notice of election for a district director from Subdivision Five, which generally includes all Deaf Smith County land east of US-385.

Qualified voters (landowners in the subdivision 18 years of age and older) are invited to assemble at the Dawn Community Center at 8 p.m. on Oct. 2 for the election of the director.

Carl Kleuskens is the current director for the subdivision of the conservation district. For further information, voters can call the Soil Conservation Service office in Hereford.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Thousands of miles of track cast off by the big railroad companies are a growing part of the rural transportation network as local or regional systems, says an Agriculture Department report.

Martin "Buzz" Fitzpatrick, administrator of the department's Office of Transportation, said Tuesday the number and mileage of small railroads began to increase in the 1970s but gained a full head of steam in the mid-1980s.

"However, future growth in the local and regional railroad movement probably will be determined by the outcome of court rulings as to the rights of rail labor in branch line sales and in transactions that create new railroads," he said.

WASHINGTON (AP) - A new study by the Agriculture Department suggests that a phase-out of worldwide farm subsidies and trade barriers could put American corn farmers in an even stronger position to dominate international trade in coarse grains.

Nearly three-fourths of the world's coarse grains - corn, barley, sorghum, oats and rye - are grown in the United States, Soviet Union, European Economic Community, China and Eastern Europe.

The United States alone produces about 30 percent of the total, mostly as corn, which as a livestock "feed grain" is the main ingredient for producing meat, poultry and dairy products for American consumers.

Running stocker calves on wheat pasture?

Now, more than ever, IVOMEC can build your profits.

(ivermectin)

At this year's beef prices, every pound you put on your calves is worth good money. And with IVOMEC (ivermectin) you can put on plenty of extra pounds.

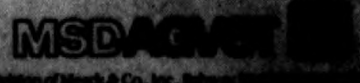

Whenever you have cattle on pasture, you're bound to have parasites. And if your calves have been sold and resold before shipping, you can't know what parasites they've picked up. And parasites steal weight.

But one shot of IVOMEC kills 31 different kinds of parasites—more than twice as many as TRAMISOL and WARBEX combined.

IVOMEC kills mature and immature worms, so you don't have to use it again in a couple of weeks. And IVOMEC gets external parasites, too. It does it all with just one simple shot under the skin. No wrestling. No Mess. No stress.

So go with your best shot. Get IVOMEC.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Peeler of 132 Liveoak and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ratliff and Mrs. Clara McKeown, all of Amarillo.

A kneeling bench was decorated by peacock blue bows carrying out the bride's chosen colors. Surrounding the gazebo area were a variety of multi-colored flowers and lush greenery.

Mrs. Phil Banner of Hereford served as matron of honor and Allen Brazel of Amarillo, the groom's step-brother, was best man.

Mrs. Lynton Alred vocalized "Wedding Prayer" and a recorded prelude of traditional wedding music made by the bride's mother was played during the ceremony.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a peacock blue dress with white piping trim. The dress was fashioned with a drop-waist with peplum. She carried a spring bouquet.

Mrs. Allen Brazel of Amarillo invited wedding guests to the reception held in the E.B. Black House.

The bride's sister-in-law, Mrs.

Bryan Peeler M.D., of Dallas, served cake, and punch and coffee were poured by Mrs. Danny Cornelius of Hereford.

The ivory three-tiered traditional wedding cake featured Precious Moments "Sweethearts" and was placed on a table which was centered with the bride's bouquet.

Dishwasher-cleaned spots result of hardwater, film

Glasses fresh out of the dishwasher may be clean, but look cloudy. Part of the reason may be the water.

The key to dealing with cloudy glasses is determining the cause, said Dr. Susan Quiring, a housing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"There are two main types of cloudiness: a build-up or a film of matter on the glass or etching or leaching out of metal ions from the glass," Quiring said.

To determine what problem you have, try scratching the surface of the glassware with a pin or other sharp object. If some of the cloudiness scratches off, the problem is filming.

Another method of identification is dropping some vinegar on the surface in a cloudy area and rub with your finger. If the surface of the glass is clear when it dries, the type of cloudiness is a film.

If, after scratching the glass, the surface seems pitted or if vinegar does not remove the cloudiness, the problem is etching.

"Filming is most commonly caused by water hardness," Quiring said. "The calcium and magnesium in hard water drops left on glassware at the end of the washing cycle will dry in place."

Food films result when the protein residue of milk, soft-cooked eggs or rare meat combine with the calcium and magnesium in hard water.

Treating the film with an acidic material such as white vinegar or citric acid should remove the buildup, Quiring said. Commercial products also are available, but care should be exercised when using these products. Rinse additives that cause the water to "sheet" off the dishes also may help.

Etching is an unusual combination of soft water (especially chemically softened), alkaline dishwasher detergents, the chemical composition of the glassware and excessive water temperature.

"The quality of the glassware has nothing to do with etching," the specialist said. "The true cause appears to be very soft water and/or the overuse of detergent since the largest component of the detergent is a water softener."

Whether filming or etching is the problem, hand washing helps eliminate the film and can prevent the etching, Quiring said.

Ann Landers

DEAR READERS: Recently I printed several responses to the question: Why would a woman be willing to settle for half of a Phony Baloney Romeo? The writer, of course, was addressing herself to married women who are aware that their husbands cheat as well as single women who go with married men.

The replies were fascinating. When I began to read the next day's bundle of mail I discovered that there was a great deal more to say on the subject. So here's the second load:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a single woman (33, self-supporting career-type), in good shape and have settled for a part-time Romeo. (He is no phony and this is no baloney.) Why? Because I would rather have half a married man than any of the singles I have met these past years.

The males in my age group (35 to 55) are egomaniacs, immature, out of shape and unstable. If they are divorced, they are lousy fathers and financially crippled, looking for women who will solve their problems. Thanks a lot but no thanks. -- Louisiana

SEATTLE: Ann, honey, I have been on both sides of the fence. Once I was a wife, now I am the Other Woman. My life as the wife was the absolute pits. He was a mama's boy and a workaholic. Although he made an excellent salary, I never saw any of it. After 18 years (and four children) he decided he wanted to go live with his mother, who had just inherited a bundle of money. I was glad to see him go. Now I am seeing a married man who makes me feel terrific. I don't have to wash his socks, laugh at parties when he tells the same joke 11 times or play second fiddle to his mother.

FROM WINDSOR, ONTARIO: I am the Other Woman and am thrilled to have half of this married man. Why? Because I have always been overweight, lonely and suffered from low self-esteem. Along comes this dynamite guy who makes me feel terrific. I'd be insane to turn him away. I know this won't last forever but I'm grateful for every minute.

DALLAS: You will probably hear from thousands of women, each with a different story to tell. This letter is from a male. I am a faithful husband. My wife is the Phony Baloney. She started running around on me the first year we were married. I have caught her at least half a dozen times. We have three children and I am sure that the second child is not mine. I stay with this woman because she is a wonderful mother and, believe it or not, I love her with all my heart and am praying for the day when she will straighten out.

WASHINGTON, D.C.: I have remained in a loveless marriage for more years than I care to remember for one reason: money. My husband is a political figure who has strong homosexual tendencies that he cannot seem to control. He needs a wife as a cover. My psychiatrist tells me that I have a good deal. Do I still sleep with him? Of course not. I'm not that crazy.

FORT WAYNE: I stay with my Phony Baloney because I adore his parents and wouldn't hurt them for the world. They have no idea that their son is a chaser. As long as they are alive I will remain in this marriage.

WISTON-SALEM, N.C.: No personal story here, but I think I know why the Other Woman and the Faithful Wife are willing to settle for half a Phony Baloney. They both believe that half of oaf is better than none.

Woman's Health

The age old problem of rivalry among children can crop up in the most loving homes. If you already have a child and are planning on having more, you will want to help your older child adjust for the arrival of the new baby. Such help should include honest information about pregnancy, birth, and what a new baby will mean to the family. You must gauge your help to the age and emotional maturity of your child.

You should begin discussing the new baby while you are pregnant. You might want to bring up the topic in the first trimester to explain why you may be tired and feeling nauseous. Or, you may choose to wait until the second trimester, when your pregnancy begins to show. This would be a good opportunity for straight talk about basic sex facts. Take care not to overwhelm very young children who may not understand complex information. You might want to read a simple book to your youngster about pregnancy and birth.

If possible, you might have your youngster accompany you on a prenatal visit, particularly later in pregnancy when he or she can hear the heart beat and feel the baby moving. You might find it helpful to show your child the hospital where you will deliver the baby and the maternity floor if it is permitted.

Show your youngster his or her own baby photos, particularly those when you were caring for the baby. If you have a friend with a newborn, ask if your youngster can talk to or hold the baby. Take care not to overload your child, regardless of age, with talk of a new baby. That would only increase the sense of being displaced.

Your homecoming with your new baby should be happy, and you may be greeted by family and friends. But, don't let your child feel neglected. Make time when you first come home to be alone with your youngsters. Remember that your child is feeling many conflicting emotions. Besides feeling separated from mother, your child probably understands that the new baby means that life will never be the same, and that he or she will no longer be the center of attention. Don't be surprised with some negative reactions and behavior, both of which are natural. For instance, your child may revert to babyish behavior or misbehave to get attention. Do not be disappointed in your child.

Extension News

BY BEVERLY HARDER
 County Extension Agent

Almost any adult can become a mother or father, but parenting has to be learned. And in families where parents care about childrearing, they will make the effort to learn what they can about this important job.

The foundation for developing parenting skills is understanding the developmental stages children go through. Relating to your children - as well as teaching, guiding and disciplining them - will be easier once you understand the basic principles of growth and development.

There are many places you can get information about child development. Classes on parenting will begin on Oct. 9, 10 and 11. The Monday and Tuesday night classes will be for parents of teenagers and the Wednesday night class will be for parents of elementary aged children. For more information please contact the County Extension Office at 364-3573.

Yet even after you have informed yourself about child development and parenting, you may be among the many parents who never feel completely comfortable with their skills, their best.

Part of the reason for this discomfort is that parenting styles are in a state of flux. Today parents may raise their own children one way, but see and hear about many other approaches in the homes of friends, on TV, in books and magazines and in classrooms and parent groups.

Children can and do thrive under many different styles of parenting. The choice of an effective style is not a matter of "either-or", but of finding a comfortable and consistent balance.

Orders for Hereford Junior High annuals being taken

Through this week, Oct. 2-6, orders for the 1990 Hereford Junior High yearbook will be taken.

In order to receive an annual when they are delivered in May, orders must be placed this week. The price of an annual is $12. For an additional $3, a student may have his name printed in silver on the front cover. Plastic dust covers may be ordered for $2.

Members of the yearbook staff will be selling annuals before school from 8-8:20 a.m. in the new front hall of the junior high school. Students may also order annuals during the day from any member of the annual staff: Omar Atchley, Brandon Gearm, Kathleen Cooper, Misty Dudley, Randy Sorensen and Krista West. Advisor is Billie Jo Reiter.

Students may pay the full amount due on their annual at the time they place their order or they may make a down payment of $5. If a down payment is made, the balance due must be paid before school is dismissed for the Christmas holidays.

According to recent estimates there are about 40,000 different varieties of fish.

What's new on the market?

THE PRODUCT - An all-purpose anti-slip tape.

Manufacturer's claim - That this tape is an expansion of the kind often seen in bathtubs to prevent slipping on the wet surface...that one of the types of this tape, the light-duty, is for use in bathtubs, showers and around pools and other barefoot areas...that another kind, the heavy-duty, comes in clear or black and is for steps, ramps, construction equipment, machinery and trucks...that its durable mineral surface provides protection even when exposed to water, grease or oil...that the medium-duty variety comes in gray or black, and is intended for stairs, ladders, boat decks, docks, recreational vehicles, and other possible slippage places...that the tape has an adhesive backing which allows it to be applied quickly and easily...and that it is available in 1-inch, 2-inch and 4 inch-wide rolls.

THE PRODUCT - A deck-design project planner.

Manufacturer's claim - That this planner permits the development of a multitude of detailed pre-construction plans for an outside deck or patio up to 2,500 square feet in size... that it comes in hundreds of reusable peel-and-stick symbols of building materials, lighting fixtures and furniture...that the symbols cling firmly to the planner's rigid gridboard layout surface to develop furniture placement ideas and alternative deck designs...and that a scale ruler and comprehensive deck-design manual with design tips and advice are included in the kit.

THE PRODUCT - A new satin-finish coating in a spray container.

Manufacturer's claim - That this new formulation delivers a permanent no-gloss satin finish in seconds... that it eliminates glossy sheen and light reflection

Names in the News

DRAMMEN, Norway (AP) - Ex-Beatle Paul McCartney opened his first foreign tour in 13 years at a community hall in this out-of-the-way city south of Oslo.

With 6,000 fans shouting, "We want Paul," McCartney took to the stage Tuesday evening with his wife, Linda, and a tour band.

The concert, which kicked off a four-month European tour, included a heavy dose of Beatles songs. The two-hour show began with "Figure of Eight" from McCartney's latest album, "Flowers in the Dirt," and ended with a medley from the Beatles album "Abbey Road," released 20 years ago.

"It isn't everyday I know all the words to all the songs at a concert," said Sigbjorn Nedland, a music critic. "It surpassed my expectations by 150 percent."

GDANSK, Poland (AP) - Poland's two living Nobel Prize recipients held a warm reunion, with Peace Prize laureate Lech Walesa saying the works of literary winner Czeslaw Milosz "shaped me and a whole generation."

Milosz, the poet-essayist who won his Nobel in 1980 after having fled Poland in the 1950s, has long been a supporter of Walesa and critic of communist cultural controls.

"I was in jail several times for (the ideas contained in) Mr. Czeslaw Milosz's books," Walesa said Tuesday.

The two first met in Poland in 1981, during Solidarity's first brief 16-month legal existence that preceded a martial-law crackdown. Walesa received his Nobel two years later.

Solidarity now sits in the prime minister's office.

"It is good fortune to live until this moment," said Milosz, who lives in Berkeley, Calif., and is visiting Poland for only the second time since emigrating.

San Francisco (AP) - Grateful Dead guitarist Bob Weir joined 150 students and environmental activists on a flatbed railroad car to begin a campaign to save the world's rain forests.

"Of all the issues one can get involved in, I think the rain forest issue is the one that clearly spells doom - I mean for the entire planet," Weir said Tuesday. "If they go, we go."

"Earth Train 1990" is scheduled to carry more than 600 students, teachers and activists from around the world on a weeklong trip from San Francisco to Washington, D.C., next April to dramatize the dangers to the environment posed by deforestation.

NEW YORK (AP) - Singer Billy Joel is doing fine after doctors operated to remove a kidney stone, according to his wife, model Christie Brinkley.

"The kidney stone came out today, his new single will be coming out tomorrow, his new album "Storm King" will be out Oct. 17," Brinkley said in a statement Tuesday.

The singer was about to board a flight to London on Sunday when he was struck with severe abdominal pains, said his spokeswoman, Elaine Schock.

Joel should be released from the hospital soon, Schock said, but he will postpone his trip for four weeks to promote his new album. She didn't identify the hospital.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. (AP) - Comedian Red Skelton attracted crowds when he went shopping at a K mart to before a weekend show in this southeastern Missouri town.

Skelton picked up three dozen pairs of socks - buying them is cheaper than having them laundered on the road, he said.

"I like to come into town early and get into the cadence of the town," the 76-year-old comic said.

DETROIT (AP) - Former Temptations lead singer David Ruffin was ordered to check into a drug treatment program instead of a jail for violating probation on a drug conviction.

Judge John O'Brien on Tuesday ordered Ruffin to spend the next 28 days in a New York drug treatment center, after which his probation would be considered completed.

Ruffin, 48, had spent Monday night in Wayne County Jail after showing up five hours late for a court appearance. He was sentenced to two years' probation, drug testing and treatment after his May 1988 conviction for misdemeanor possession of cocaine.

Ruffin was arrested last week after testing positive for opiates.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) - If Casey Kasem were calling his radio show, this would certainly be the long-distance dedication: "From Casey in his Beverly Hills penthouse suite to the homeless on Skid Row."

The disc jockey and his actress wife, Jean Kasem, are dedicating their time and their $20,000-a-month apartment in the Beverly Wilshire Hotel to coordinate Hollywood's contribution to an Oct. 7 march in Washington, D.C., to help the homeless.

The couple turned their 17-bedroom spread into a command post for the homeless, complete with telephones, boxes of leaflets, and all-star volunteers, including John Voight, Rita Coolidge and Valerie Harper.

The Kasems are working to raise money to send homeless people and a chartered jetliner full of celebrities to the "Housing Now!" march and to get the word out through radio spots about the issue of homelessness.

NEW YORK (AP) - Elmar Oliveira, the only American violinist to win the Tchaikovsky Prize, will return to the Soviet Union next month for the first time since capturing the prestigious award there in 1978.

The 38-year-old Oliveira will play with the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra in Leningrad on Oct. 5 and in Moscow on Oct. 10; according to a release Wednesday from publicist Margaret Canon.

Between the Covers

BY REBECCA WALLS

The Pillars of the Earth by Ken Follett has everything Follett's readers expect - intrigue, fast paced action and passionate romance. For a change of pace Follett takes the reader back in time to the twelfth century, to feudal England and the building of a Gothic cathedral. Against the back drop of forests, walled towns, castles, monasteries and the rhythms of daily life the richness of the character comes alive. The building of the cathedral, with the almost eerie artistry of the unschooled stonemasons is the center of the drama. The story of betrayal, revenge and love begins with the public hanging of an innocent man and ends with the humiliation of a king.

It was on Fire When I Lay Down On It is written by Robert Fulghum, the author of the best seller All I Really Wanted to Know I Learned in Kindergarten. This second book is even richer and more moving than Fulghum's number one best seller. "From burning beds to drivers ed, from a disastrous wedding to the joy of tree climbing, from the head of a Zen Buddhist monastery, Robert Fulghum's gift for finding the meaning in life rather than the meaning of life permeates every page of this book." Capturing the human dilemma perfectly, Fulghum goes on to open RADNOR, Pa. (AP) - Nobody believed Arsenio Hall in his student days when he told a communications class at Kent State University he wanted to be a standup comic doing something like Johnny Carson.

"All these people would be covering their mouths and laughing like, 'Sit down, stop embarrassing yourself,'" he said in this week's TV Guide magazine.

Now Hall, whose late-night talkshow is outranked only by Carson's in the latest A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings, is having the last laugh.

Hall says comedian Eddie Murphy believed in him before most people.

"A long time ago when I (had just replaced) Joan Rivers, Eddie said to me, 'You and me see things so differently. You see yourself one day maybe guest-hosting for Johnny; I see you being a Johnny,'" Hall recalled. "And I am now, I guess."

our eyes to the wonder in everyday life.

Personal Fouls: the broken promises and shattered dreams of big money at Jim Valvano's North Carolina State by Peter Golenbock is about the corruption of our young becoming the national pastime across America. Does anyone care about the most heinous crime against the kids: the corruption of values and broken dreams. It is an inside look at the underbelly of college athletics strictly from the player's perspective. It involves recruiting and how athletes are handled, manipulated, used and finally spit out and discarded when their usefulness has expired...its about disillusioning our youth. "Writing about college basketball is a lot like what I always imagined writing about the Mafia would be like," says Peter. The look of fear came across many faces when approached for an interview. Players were afraid of being blackballed from the game and having their careers ruined, while professors expressed a fear of being fired if certain facts were to become public. There is real reason for concern as you will read how John Simonds has his shoulder dislocated by one of his coaches in an effort to keep him quiet. Ira Berkow in the New York Times wrote: "It has been said that a chain is only as strong as its weakest link." With the glorification of sports, it turns out, the edification of students is diminished. And if education becomes our weakest link, and entertainment our strongest, then there is trouble festering. Peter Golenbock is concerned that many college athletes learn the "Art of the Big Con 101" while coaches make millions for the athletic treasury while getting free publicity, and in reality the player gets no education, no degree, no skills, no money, no pro career, and no hope. This is an eye opener.
