Chapel dedication is Sunday

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

A group of former Italian prisoners of war who were held during, and after, World War II at the POW Camp south of Hereford on the Deaf Smith-Castro county line will return to the area Sunday for a formal dedication of the chapel built by the prisoners as a memorial to five fellow prisoners who died while being held here during World War II.

The dedication will be held at 3 p.m. at the chapel site, three miles south on FM 1055, a mile west and a quarter-mile south.

The group of Italians, many of whom have not been back in the area since they were released from the POW camp in 1946, was scheduled to arrive in Amarillo on Saturday.

On Sunday morning, they will attend Mass at St. Anthony's Catholic Church in Hereford, then attend a meal at noon at the Caison House.

After the ceremonies at the chapel, they will be hosted at a reception at the Senior Citizens Center in Dimmitt.

On Monday, they will tour Palo Duro Canyon State Park and attend the musical drama Texas on Monday night.

On Tuesday, they will be hosted at lunch at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center, and will also tour area feedyards, the Deaf Smith County Museum, and the Cowgirl Hall of Fame.

Another group of former POWs visited the chapel site in April 1988. Only a small amount of work, including the pouring of a concrete base around the chapel to prevent further erosion, had been done at the chapel when the first group was here.

Culminating almost three years of effort by a group of volunteers, the chapel has been transformed during the past several months.

Volunteers, including Charles Schlabs (who now owns the land on which the chapel is located), members of the Castro County Historical Commission, and others, have worked to paint, re-plaster and refurbish the

Inductees honored at supper

Six inductees for the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage were given a hustlin' Hereford welcome and past honorees were present as the annual Reunion Supper opened the chute Friday night for a special CHOF weekend.

The induction luncheon and the Rhinestone Roundup were to follow Saturday.

Miss Hereford, Wendy Connally, and the Walkers provided special entertainment for the reunion supper Friday night. The supper was catered by Sherry Delamarter and her chef, Jerry Cox, from the Cowgirl Hall of Fame Restaurant in New York City.

Delamarter, who has a licensing agreement with the CHOF, made a presentation of a $1,000 check to Hall of Fame leaders Margaret Formby and Bill Allen. The check represented a percentage of the

Bird keeps office busy

By KAY PECK
Staff Writer

The office manager is armed with a dart gun. It might not be effective against anyone intent on aggravated theft of vegetables, but it strikes terror in the heart of Budweiser.

Budweiser is, in this case, a bird. At M.W. Carrot, Inc. offices on Walnut Road southwest of Hereford, Budweiser is truly a bird among birds... the king of birds, so to speak. Larry Malamen's pet cockatiel frequently has free run of the entire office building.

When Jody Keese, office manager, has had enough of Bud's feathery presence, she pulls the dart gun from a drawer. Anymore, she doesn't even need to fire. Just the sight of the toy gun is enough to send Bud winging his way back to the safe haven in Malamen's private office where, occasionally, he even stays in his cage. Bud that is, not Malamen.

Bud came into Larry Malamen's life when his wife, Sue, asked him what he wanted for his birthday. That year, Malamen, a pilot, was hoping for an airplane.

"I don't care. Just so it flies," Malamen said.

Come birthday time, Sue Malamen presented her husband with Budweiser. Although not exactly what he'd hoped for, the cockatiel proved to be an enjoyable gift. Budweiser is an entertaining addition to M.W. Carrot's office complex.

Bud usually perches atop a file cabinet near Malamen's desk when he keeps his master company. The file folders and documents stored on top of that cabinet appear to be suffering from termites. Bud likes to eat the edges of the paper. Once, he even ate part of a legal contract.

Malamen easily explained that away. "I just told them the bird ate it."

Amarillo auction is ready to roll after fire

By ORVILLE HOWARD
Special Feature Writer

AMARILLO--Amarillo Livestock Auction owner Buddy Jeffers said the marketing center would run on schedule next week despite a pre-dawn fire that destroyed the Amarillo Livestock Exchange Building.

"We'll be selling cattle out here next week if we have to do it under the open sky on the parking lot," said Jeffers as he watched the final gasps of a devastating blaze that roared through the historical landmark in the early morning of June 7. "My plans are to rebuild just as soon as possible, but we'll be selling within 10 days."

Jeffers hasn't ruled out the possibility of using a tent, but the more probable move would be to convert a large holding shed at the rear of the destroyed auction complex into a makeshift salering. "There's several possibilities on which way to go."

The fire was first reported to the Amarillo Fire Department shortly before 4 a.m. June 7. Trains idled on the Manhattan Street crossings blocked access and delayed firefighters for some time as the blaze swept through building. One firefighter, who was among the first to arrive, said they started battling the blaze at the northeast corner of the building.

"We found the first outside fire on the northeast corner of the building but it was already beginning to shoot through the ceiling from the inside," he said. A half dozen tankers and two aerial units fought the initial blaze for around five hours as flames swept through the north wing of second-floor offices and then into the central salering area. Smoke was still erupting from the roof nine hours later as aerial fire units poured tons of water on the smoldering roof.

Auction manager Terry Jones and Jeffers said there was no way to tell at this time as to whether the walls of the Exchange Building could be salvaged. More than three-fourths of the roof was completely destroyed and all of the salering the northside hallways and stairway structure destroyed or collapsed. Charred fragments of office furniture, selling facilities and thousands of files lay in smoldering heaps as office tenants looked helplessly at what was once the livestock marketing center of the Texas Panhandle.

In addition to the office complex of the Amarillo Livestock Auction Co. and Western Stockyards, the Exchange Building also was the Amarillo headquarters for a half dozen livestock order buying firms, the U.S. Department of Agriculture Livestock Reporting Service, the Chicago-based commodity firm of G.H. Miller & Co., The Livestock Journal, Orville Howard & Associates and the Stockyards Cafe.

Though Jeffers lives in Ennis, a suburb of Dallas, he maintained personal offices in the building and spent several days each week in Amarillo. He is also co-owner of Superior Livestock Auction Co., a satellite video marketing firm which has offices in Amarillo, Fort Worth and Brush, Co.

Amarillo Fire Marshal Greg Taylor said the cause of the fire still has not been determined and that it may take several more days before a complete investigation into the fire can be completed.

Centered around the two-story Livestock Exchange Building at 100 S. Manhattan on the east side of Amarillo, the livestock marketing complex had served as hub of the Texas Panhandle Cattle Industry for more than a half century. It is the third oldest cattle marketing center in continuous operation west of the Mississippi, preempted by the San Antonio Union stockyards in 1889 and the Miles City Livestock Center at Miles City, Mont., in 1902.

The Amarillo marketing site was first developed in 1904 when O.H. (See AUCTION, Page 3A)

Looking to the future

As the ruins of the Amarillo Livestock Auction still smolder behind him, Buddy Jeffers looks to the future with plans for rebuilding the auction. The auction will resume its weekly auctions on Wednesday. Last week was the first missed in Amarillo since 1941.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, June 18, the 169th day of 1989. There are 196 days left in the year. This is Father's Day.

Today's highlight in history:

On June 18, 1983, astronaut Sally K. Ride became America's first woman in space as she and four colleagues blasted off aboard the space shuttle Challenger.

On this date:

In 1778, American forces entered Philadelphia as the British withdrew during the Revolutionary War.

In 1812, the United States declared war against Britain.

In 1815, Napoleon Bonaparte met his Waterloo as British and Prussian troops defeated the French forces in Belgium.

In 1873, suffragist Susan B. Anthony was fined $100 for attempting to vote in the 1872 presidential election.

In 1928, aviator Amelia Earhart became the first woman to fly across the Atlantic Ocean as she completed a flight from Newfoundland to Wales in about 21 hours.

In 1940, during World War II, British Prime Minister Winston Churchill urged his countrymen to persevere so that future generations would say, "This was their finest hour."

In 1945, William Joyce, known as Lord Haw-Haw, was charged in London with high treason for his English-language wartime broadcasts on German radio. (He was hanged the following January.)

In 1948, the U.N. Commission on Human Rights adopted its International Declaration of Human Rights.

In 1953, Egypt was proclaimed a republic.

In 1972, a British European Airways jet crashed shortly after takeoff, killing 118.

In 1977, the space shuttle Enterprise carried a crew aloft for the first time as the spacecraft, riding atop a Boeing 747, flew above Edwards Air Force Base in California for nearly an hour.

In 1981, Supreme Court Justice Potter Stewart announced he was retiring after 23 years, creating a vacancy that was filled by Sandra Day O'Connor, the first female associate justice.

In 1986, 25 people were killed when a twin-engine plane and helicopter carrying sightseers collided above the Grand Canyon.

In 1987, Charles Glass, a journalist on leave from his job at ABC News, was kidnapped and held hostage in Lebanon. (Glass escaped from his captors the following August.)

Ten years ago: President Jimmy Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev concluded seven years of strategic arms limitation talks by signing the SALT 2 treaty in Vienna.

Five years ago: Alan Berg, a Denver radio talk show host, was shot to death outside his home. (Two white supremacists were later convicted of civil rights violations in the slaying.)

One year ago: Vice President Bush launched a sharp attack against Democratic presidential candidate Michael Dukakis, accusing the Massachusetts governor of coddling criminals by allowing some convicts out of prison on weekend furloughs.

Today's birthdays: Actor Keye Luke is 85. Actor E.G. Marshall is 79. Lyricist Sammy Cahn is 76. Financial writer Sylvia Porter is 76. Columnist Tom Wicker is 63. Rock singer-composer-musician Paul McCartney is 47. Movie reviewer Roger Ebert is 47. Actress Isabella Rossellini is 37. Actress Carol Kane is 37.

Thought for today: "You hear it said that fathers want their sons to be what they feel they cannot themselves be, but I tell you it also works the other way. A boy wants something very special from his father." - Sherwood Anderson, American author and poet (1876-1941).

MIGHTY MAROON GOES TO WASHINGTON

The Hereford High School Mighty Maroon Band has returned from its band trip to Washington, D.C. The band traveled by bus to Washington, where they saw many of the sights, including the U.S. Capitol (above). U.S. Rep. Larry Combest (R-Lubbock) presented the band with a U.S. flag that had flown over the U.S. Capitol. While the band had lots of fun, there was some work involved, including a performance on the White House lawn.

Legislature ready to tackle workers' comp

AUSTIN (AP) - More than three years and two surgeries after injuring her back at work, Cathy Ann Simpson still must wear a body brace.

She said her injury was the start of a painful and humiliating journey through the Texas workers' compensation system, in which she lost her home and white-collar lifestyle.

While businesses are trying to rid the system of attorneys and courts, Ms. Simpson, 35, of Houston said that without her attorney she probably would have died because of obstacles thrown in her path by her former employer's insurance company.

When Darrell Page, 35, of Terrell slipped and fell in the cooler of a truck stop where he was working, he might as well have fallen into a black hole.

After being fired, lied to and forgotten, he said, the father of three hired an attorney to usher him through the workers' comp maze. "Unless you see a lawyer, you're not going to get anything," he said.

Attempts to overhaul the workers' comp system have pitted the strongest lobby groups in the state - insurance, doctors, business, lawyers, and labor - in a turf battle that could affect nearly every working person in the state.

State lawmakers return Tuesday to the Capitol for a special legislative session on workers' comp after failing to reach a consensus on the problem during the 140-day regular session that ended May 29.

Businesses, hit hard by increases of 148 percent over the past four years in employer-paid workers' comp insurance premiums, say they need relief.

Jim Gibson, plant manager of Martin Sprocket and Gear in Abilene, said workers' comp is the No. 1 economic problem in Texas.

His company is considering moving some of its facilities and hundreds of jobs out of the state because of the cost of workers' comp insurance, he said. "Texas is becoming a state that is perceived to be not a good place to do business in," Gibson said.

But labor and trial lawyers say jury relief for business cannot be bought at the expense of workers.

Joseph C. Gagen, chairman of the Industrial Accident Board, which administers the workers' comp system, said once, "There are more sacred cows in workers' comp than in an average community in India."

More than 70 years after the state established workers' comp, the sacred cows have produced a system that hits employers with high rates, seriously injured workers with low benefits, and a job safety record which makes Texas one of the most hazardous places to work in.

While the Senate and the business-dominated House came to some agreements during the regular session on reforming the system, the one major difference that destroyed any compromise solution was over jury trials.

Business wants to eliminate jury trials from the options in resolving a dispute where the worker and insurance company disagree on the amount of an award.

But labor and trial lawyers say jury trials are necessary in some cases to force insurance companies to come to terms on a workers' comp dispute.

GEORGE TIEFEL

June 12, 1989

George Tiefel, 71, of Sweet Home, Ore., died Monday, June 12, 1989.

Services were held June 15 in Bethel Lutheran church, with burial following in Gilliland Cemetery by Steckly-Tracewell Funeral Home.

Mr. Tiefel was born June 12, 1918 in Hereford. He worked in a department store here until World War II, when he entered the Army Air Corps. After the war, he attended Texas A&M University, where he received a degree in architecture.

He returned to Hereford, where he worked in the building and floor covering business for many years before moving to Sweet Home in 1975.

He was a Lutheran. He married Coralie Ballinger on Jan. 31, 1942 in San Angelo.

Survivors include his wife; two daughters, Barbara Kachmarek of Hillsboro, Ore., and Cherry Jazbec of Des Moines, Wash.; two sons, Jake of Kent, Wash., and Ted of San Diego, Calif.; two sisters, Leona Weber of Marshall, Tex., and Mary Hussey of Federal Way, Wash.; and 12 grandchildren.

CHAPEL

Restoration has picked up in pace in the last few weeks when the workers learned another group of Italians would be visiting.

The restoration has included resculpturing of the bas-relief in the pieta, below the cross in the altar area, which was originally done by Rinaldi Rimini. Rimini gained national prominence in Italy for his sculpting before his death.

Schlabs, some of his employees, and other volunteers, constructed a "washed pebble" walkway and built a fence of steel post and barbed wire. The barbed wire was originally used in the POW camp.

Lon Woodburn, a member of the Castro County Historical Commission, and Eddie Guffee, director of the Llano Estacado Museum in Plainview, headed up work to replace the doors and windows in the chapel. Although the original doors have long since disappeared, new doors have been constructed to match, as closely as possible, the original doors.

Some of the original wood was still usable for both the door frames and the windows. Instead of glass, the windows and doors are plexiglass and are constructed for easy replacement if they are damaged.

Many of the volunteers have worked to paint the chapel, inside and out, its original white and gray, based on pictures of the original chapel.

Guffee said the chapel was probably whitewashed, and the only paint likely available to the prisoners was gray.

New to the chapel area will be a marble marker that will display the names of the five prisoners who were originally buried in the chapel area. There will also be two memorial laurel trees planted outside the chapel.

AUCTION

Nelson and Al Popham built a set of holding pens between the Rock Island and Santa Fe railway lines to serve livestock movement by rail. They also established a livestock company in connection with the stockyards.

Nelson and Popham were granted a "trail drive" right-of-way to the stockyards so that ranchers could drive herds to market. This right-of-way designation remained on county records until recent times, when the strip of land was given to the city to be maintained as a street.

"When the cattle drive right-of-way wasn't needed anymore, we gave eight acres to the city to be used as a street," said Eddie Johnson, during an interview by this writer shortly before his death.

With the coming of the railroads in 1887, Amarillo became a major livestock shipping point. From 1892 to 1897, Amarillo held the distinction as being the largest rural cattle shipping point in the United States. Formed as Western Stockyards, the original 96-acre site was purchased in 1930 by W.H. Fuqua of Amarillo, who used the stockyards as something of a "cattle hotel"-feeding and sorting pens for rail livestock shipments.

On Christmas Eve, 1935, Jack Coulter staged the first livestock auction sale here when he sold 36 cattle and 21 horses across the block and the newly-formed Amarillo Livestock Sales Co. on property leased from Fuqua. The Great Depression and devastating drought of the 1930s hit hard at the High Plains Cattle Industry, forcing the livestock operation on the market under the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

With each of the investing $5,000 in cash and putting their names on the dotted line for a $90,000 mortgage, Jay Taylor and Eddie Johnson, two Amarillo cattlemen and investors, purchased Western Stockyards, Inc., which at that time included 96 acres of land, about 30 acres of pens, scales and a wooden-framed auction barn that had been leased by Coulter.

"It was up for sale by the Reconstruction group and I thought it was a good buy," Taylor later recalled. "So, I went to Eddie to see what he thought about it...times were hard and that was a lot of money in those days.

"We thought we had mortgaged our life away," Johnson said later. Johnson and Taylor had become good friends years earlier while attending the University of Oklahoma and this partnership was to become a business deal that was to last a lifetime for both men.

The wood framed auction barn burned to the ground on Nov. 11, 1940, shortly after the Johnson-Taylor purchase, but a new building was started immediately.

"We started building a new barn immediately and held the first sale in the new building on Feb. 1, 1941," said Johnson. The initial structure that was completed in that winter of 1941 was the area that was totally destroyed by fire last week.

In 1943, a livestock team headed by Hugh Ford and Bill Barrick of LaJunta, Colo., bought out Coulter and took over his lease on the Amarillo Livestock Sales Co. The two men, along with some other partners, then brought in Ford's brother, Charlie Ford, as general manager of the auction firm, a livestock company that was later to become more widely known as the Ford Brothers Cattle Co.

Taylor enlisted in the U.S. Army in June 1942 to serve in the Advance Payment and V-Loan Division of the War Food Administration and Johnson was left to run the partnership of Western Stockyards.

"Help was so scarce I even had to hire soldiers to help out in the yards," Johnson later recalled.

With Taylor home on a furlough and the war about to come to an end, Taylor and Johnson decided to take over the auction end of the business and combine it with the Western Stockyards operation. Thus, on Jan. 1, 1945, Taylor and Johnson conducted the first livestock auction under the name of the Amarillo Livestock Auction Co.

"We gave eight acres of the old cattle drive right-of-way to the city of Amarillo, sold 13 acres to the old Tri-State Packing Co., and sold a couple of acres or so for the Cattle-men's Feed Mill," said Johnson prior to his death. "And I think we gave up some land for another right-of-way but I'm not sure just where."

The Johnson-Taylor team became a cornerstone of the Texas Panhandle cattle industry for the next 40 years and for more than a quarter century held the title as being the world's largest cattle auction, peaking in 1979 when 714,716 head of cattle went across the block at the Amarillo Livestock Auction Co.

Jeffers, in a partnership deal with John Templar of Amarillo, bought the Amarillo Livestock Auction Co.

61/2 years ago and on Aug. 1, 1986, Jeffers took over as sole owner of the marketing complex. At that time, Terry Jones of Dodge City, Kan., was brought in as general manager. Frank Mapel of Dodge City was also brought in as comptroller for the company. Jones was also a seasoned livestock handler, having been part of a four-generation cattle family.

Jeffers comes from four generations of Texas cattlemen on the Trinity River near Dallas where his great-grandfather bought our first ranch outside of the Trinity River in 1892 when he bought a spread in Throckmorton County," recalled Jeffers in a recent interview. Following Jim, there came Tom Jeffers and Carl Jeffers, the father of Buddy Jeffers.

Though Jeffers is proud of his Trinity River heritage, he was one of the early cattle feeders of the Texas Panhandle cattle feeding boom of the 1960s and at one time had cattle in more than a dozen Panhandle feedlots.

"Mrs. Taylor approached me in buying the auction several years before his death," recalled Jeffers in a recent interview. "In fact, he called and wanted me and my wife to be with him when he was inducted to the Cowboy hall of Fame in Oklahoma City.

"We had renewed some interest in the auction at that time and we were in the talking stage when he passed away...Mr. Taylor and Mr. Johnson were really great men and did so very much in the progress of the cattle industry."

The marketing center was designated as an official historical landmark by the State of Texas in 1970—the building that was built by Johnson and Taylor in the winter of 1940-41 and destroyed by fire on June 7, 1989.

Though Jeffers is proud of his Trinity River heritage, he was one of the early cattle feeders of the Judge: "Your age, madam?"

Judge: "You may have difficulty proving that."

Lady: "You will find it difficult to prove the contrary. The church that had the record of my birth burned down in 1930."

A big hustlin' Hereford welcome goes to the honorees and out-of-town guests attending the annual Rhinestone Roundup and the induction ceremonies at the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage. A reunion supper was held Friday night for past inductees, and it was catered by Sherry Delamarter and her chef from the Cowgirl Hall of Fame Restaurant in New York City. Special guests at the supper included members of the Hereford delegation that went to New York for the formal opening of "Cowgirl."

If you haven't heard a song by the Walkers, you'll probably be hearing it before long. It's titled "Cowtown U.S.A." and is all about Hereford. We think they should perform the song at a Fun Breakfast and/or the annual chamber banquet. They plan to record the song in the near future.

Six cowgirls were to be inducted in the CHOF at noon Saturday, and the Rhinestone Roundup is set tonight (Saturday). The Roundup is a benefit gala and tickets can be purchased in advance at the CHOF.

oOo

If you don't like the way you're being treated, sue! That seems to be what a lot of folks are doing these days. This spring, a high school senior filed suit against her prom date because she was stood up.

This may create a whole new legal specialty, according to Roy McQueen in The Snyder Daily News. "We're surprised that some lass hasn't gone to court over mums," says McQueen.

"There seems to be an obvious discrimination in corsages. At Homecoming, mums sell from $10 to $200--all depending on the size, number of streamers and other gadgets. If your date happens to be economically deprived, then your mum may be more conservative. No wonder kids are turning to vices--a little mum is enough to make your face break out.

"That, of course, is another possibility for litigation. A target of a teen suit could be chocolate candy-bar makers and soft drink manufacturers. No where on the label are warnings that this product may cause pimples and other mind-warping situations.

"And if your date picks you up in a pickup truck, that should be grounds for a suit. Everybody should be able to date in a vehicle with climatic air, a high-tech sound system and power seats.

"And if you run out of gas, sue Exxon. Everybody else is. Besides, you could have afforded more gas if the mum hadn't been so costly.

"And don't forget about possible action against mom and dad. Nobody should have to wear the same dress twice, and it's ridiculous in these enlightened times to have a curfew. If you happened to have a fair complexion and are deprived of the popular dark tan, it's mom and dad's fault.

"Boys also should be able to go to court. Sometimes the girls use deceptive trade practices. She makes you think she wants to go out with you, and at the last minute opts for a larger mum.

"The only answer is to sue 'em!"

Noriega and Bush--a study in limits

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - Whatever happened to Manuel Noriega?

Not much so far.

That question and answer carry a lesson in limits.

Despite U.S. pressure, despite the dispatch of nearly 2,000 troops to join the 11,000 or so already there, despite help from other nations in trying to get him out, the Panamanian strongman remains just that.

Nearly six weeks after the elections his henchmen disrupted and then disavowed, Noriega still commands the real power in Panama. President Bush said he is not giving up the U.S. effort to force Noriega from power and from the country.

Inevitably, the crisis atmosphere has eased, other issues have moved past Panama on the agenda, and Noriega persists.

The regime he dominates tried to erase the elections after the fact because he didn't like the outcome. His paramilitary squads beat opposition candidates bloody, in full view of cameras and therefore the world. The Organization of American States rebuked him.

For all that, Noriega could not be quickly ousted.

The United States and the OAS still are trying.

But the outrage level is down. The OAS mission returned to Panama this week, seeking to promote negotiations between the government and the disenfranchised opposition. The OAS decided its mediators should have another six weeks to seek a solution.

Vice President Dan Quayle pressed the U.S. campaign on a trip to Central America this week. "Our bottom line is that Noriega must leave, not only from power, but also it is our position that he should leave the country," he said.

Last time anybody asked Noriega whether he would resign, he dismissed the question as stupid.

The difficulty of achieving that outcome in Panama points to the reasoning behind President Bush's cautious handling of the situation in China after the savage crackdown on pro-democracy demonstrators in Beijing. The administration can't write scripts in such crises, not even in tiny Panama, with the leverage of the canal and the U.S. garrison.

The major step in what Bush called a prudent response to the Chinese army assault on demonstrators was a halt in weapons sales and exports, despite pressure from some corners for tougher sanctions.

Bush said he didn't want a break in U.S. relations with China. "When you see these kids struggling for democracy and freedom, this would be a bad time for the United States to withdraw and pull back and leave them to the devices of a leadership that might decide to crack down further."

That's exactly what the Chinese leadership is doing now, but there is no practical way for the United States to change it.

Bush said at his June 8 news

THE LAW OF JUNK

Every family needs either a move or a fire at least every five years. If neither of these happens the junk will overwhelm us.

Since we have had no move and no fire we had to bite the bullet and try to get rid of some stuff. It was either that or stop sleeping in the house. In the process I learned that there are reasons why the junk takes over. There are too many things that can't be thrown away.

No one can throw away National Geographic magazines. Somehow it is just not right. No one ever reads the things but the pictures are pretty and we all think we will get around to reading them someday. Before the someday comes the house is full.

No one can throw away old suitcases. Who knows when we may decide to tour the whole world and need just one more suitcase. I have suitcases that should be in the national archives of the Samsonite Company.

Has there ever been anyone who could get rid of coat hangers? If I ever decide to manufacture some item, it will be coat hangers. No one ever gets enough of the things. This is strange because coat hangers multiply faster than rabbits, and nothing is harder on my religion. Two coat hangers could be placed 40 feet apart in a sealed room and in 13 seconds they will be solid deadlock.

My latest foray in the self defense of housecleaning revealed a brand new item that can't be thrown out.

Curtain rods must be priceless. There is no way to store the things. No matter where they are placed they will fall on your head if you get within four feet. When the Baptist Church was remodeled nine years ago the membership was asked to remove anything they wanted. I did not know it but my wife latched onto the curtain rod that hung in front of the baptistry.

It is still in storage at my house waiting for someone who needs a curtain rod. This someone will need a window 40 feet wide. If there is some soul out there who needs to drape half the town, I have a deal for you. Until then I'll let the thing hit me on the head and hope on one hears the language.

Editorial opinion around Texas

Texas' Tax Status Nothing To Brag About

We cannot decide whether to laugh or cry over the news that Texans pay less in state taxes than residents of other states do.

State officials will say that is an easy decision: Laugh, because less of your money is flowing into the state treasury than is the case in those other states, where "tax-happy money-grubbers" occupy the legislatures. But there is another, darker, side to that coin.

Texas also spends less - far less - on its citizens than other states do. Texas' 1987 general revenue expenditures of $1,148 per person were 31 percent less than the national average.

Even more embarrassing is the revelation that, while the national per-capita expenditure for housing and community development is $8.77, in Texas it is a miserly 16 cents.

As a result of all that penny-pinching, Texas clings to the ladder's lower rungs when it comes to providing governmental services. It ranks 29th in spending for public education, 35th in highway expenditures and a shameful 49th in per-capita spending on public welfare.

What state officials are careful not to brag about is the fact that their parsimony vaults Texans into the rarefied upper strata when it comes to paying local taxes because needed services still have to be paid for.

So perhaps crying is more in order. After all, the rest of the country is laughing. At us.

Candidates Should Reveal Personal Finances

Democratic Congressman John Bryant of Dallas did more than kick off a political campaign ... when he announced his candidacy for the state attorney general's office. He also flung a challenge in the face of his declared and potential opponents - and raised an issue that very much needed to be raised.

... He simply made public his personal tax returns for 1983 through 1988. He also released a personal financial statement detailing his financial assets and liabilities. He then challenged other candidates for the office to do likewise.

... Given the highly publicized woes of former House Speaker Jim Wright, and given the bloodletting that is likely to continue in Washington for some time, it is clear that ethics has become one of the hottest issues in American politics. That clearly discomfits some politicians who would just as soon not have their financial affairs laid out for public inspection, but on balance it is a healthy development ...

U.S. Must Monitor Chinese Protesters' Fate

The gunfire has died down, the tanks are disengaged, but the war goes on against free expression in Communist China.

What now takes place is every bit as harrowing as what took place in Tiananmen Square. The government is hunting down the protesters.

A telephone number was flashed on Chinese TV screens for callers to report to the government the whereabouts of a protester. The long arm of totalitarianism is rounding up the usual suspects. ...

That's where the United States must provide an ardent voice of concern. With its status intact as a trading partner and with the diplomatic inroads it has made, the United States can apply pressure as the Chinese government handles these peaceful protesters. ...

The United States must use all possible leverage to assure the humane treatment of these individuals and, if possible, provide them with asylum. President Bush wisely has retained that leverage by keeping the American embassy open in Beijing and choosing not to launch a trade embargo or otherwise to sever diplomatic ties. Such harsh actions shouldn't be ruled out entirely ... but they should remain options upon the ultimate refusal of China to stop the human destruction. ...

The "Cowgirl" restaurant in New York is a "dream come true from a year ago," said Delamarter. She catered the supper here a year ago and came up with the idea of the Hall of Fame Restaurant.

A group from Hereford went to New York City for the grand opening of the "Cowgirl" in February. Lavon and Speedy Nieman, on behalf of the group, presented Delamarter with a special scrapbook which contained pictures, notes and clippings about the opening of the cafe.

The incident sounds like an adult version of "the dog ate my homework."

In the winter, Bud likes to desert the filing cabinet for a perch atop the coffee maker. The machine warms the coffee and the bird.

Although the Malamens -- owners of a controlling interest in M.W. Carrot -- operate an efficient business, the Malamens and their company are not without a sense of humor.

Latin America enjoyed a trade surplus from 1983 to 1985 of more than $30 billion each year. It used it to pay income on external capital. This surplus, however, was reduced in 1986 and 1987, although the region's obligations continue to exceed $30 billion a year, says the Inter-American Development Bank. It said the figures point out the increasing difficulty of Latin America in servicing its external debt.

Pictures, posters and photographs are on display throughout the office. One carrot gained a life beyond the cooking pot as the featured subject of a photograph. The carrot was less than perfect -- it appeared to have two arms and two legs -- but the Malamens and company found it perfectly amusing.

The addition of a radish head completed the effect so that the carrot looked like a sumo wrestler sitting straight legged on the floor.

Other office ornaments include a combination of humor with a philosophy of life.

"The more you complain, the longer God lets you live," one button reads.

If laughter has the same effect, the Malamens have a long and happy existence ahead of them.

Police need your help

Hereford police are asking for help in trying to locate the persons responsible for a hit and run accident on June 11, at about 10:20 p.m.

A woman and her son, 4, were struck by a vehicle at the intersection of Avenue H and 13th Street.

Witnesses in the area said two vehicles were drag racing toward the east down 13th street. It is believed that the vehicles collided, then struck the two pedestrians. After the incident, the vehicles fled the scene.

The mother was treated and released from Deaf Smith General Hospital, but her son was taken to Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo where he is being treated for a skull fracture and a broken arm.

The vehicles are described as a white pickup with a camper shell, with possible damage to the driver's side rear end, last seen traveling east on 13th Street; and a light color older model station wagon with damage to the right front fender, last seen traveling south on Avenue H.

If you know information about the accident, you may call the Hereford Police Department at 364-2323 or Deaf Smith County Crimestoppers at 364-CLUE (364-2583).

Warner named golf pro here Clemens shines; Texas drops 2

Brent Warner, assistant pro at Pitman Municipal Golf Course, has been named as head pro effective Aug. 1, 1989, it was announced Friday by City Manager Darwin McGill.

Warner will succeed Mike Horton, who resigned recently after serving as the golf pro here since 1978.

"We had several fine applicants," said McGill, "and we feel fortunate that someone with Brent's qualifications was ready to move up." McGill said Warner was "impressive" in his interview.

Warner graduated from Sanford-Fritch High School and attended Hardin-Simmons University on a golf scholarship. He later attended Texas Tech University and graduated from the Golf Academy of the South in Mobile, Ala.

Warner has been the assistant pro in Hereford for 2 1/2 years. He and his wife, Deborah, have one daughter, Amanda, 18 months old.

"I'm happy to get to stay in Hereford and I think this is a good opportunity for me. I appreciate the support of local citizens, and especially the help and support of Mike and Yvonne Horton the past couple of years," Warner said.

Horton has not announced definite plans since resigning here. He said he had been considering some job opportunities in the Austin area.

By HILLEL ITALIE
Associated Press Writer
Rookie Greg Hibbard pitched the game of his career, but simply couldn't match Roger Clemens.

The Boston right-hander was overpowering Friday night, striking out 12 and shutting down the White Sox on two hits as Boston defeated Chicago 2-0. Clemens, 8-4, walked one and struck out 10 or more batters for the 36th time in his career.

He struck out the side in the fifth and made it five in a row by getting the first two batters in the sixth.

"That's as hard as I've thrown all year," Clemens said. "I only threw eight or nine breaking balls and I was in the upper 90s all night."

"Super pitching," White Sox manager Jeff Torborg said.

Hibbard allowed no runs on four hits in eight innings, his longest outing in the majors, but was replaced by Ken Patterson, 3-1, to start the ninth.

With runners on first and third, pinch-hitter Danny Heep hit the ball to deep short. First base umpire Don Every June 21st, a night baseball game is played in Fairbanks, Alaska. It begins at midnight, but because of the summer solstice, no lights are needed.

Denkinger ruled that Ozzie Guillen's throw pulled Steve Lyons off the bag as Wade Boggs scored the game's first run.

Elsewhere, New York swept a doubleheader from Texas, 8-3 and 6-1. Oakland and Baltimore split a pair, the A's winning the first game 7-5, and the Orioles taking the nightcap 5-1.

In other games, it was Cleveland 1, Kansas City 0; California 9, Detroit 4; Toronto 4, Seattle 3, and Milwaukee 8, Minnesota 6.

Yankees 8, Rangers 3 Yankees 6, Rangers 1

Andy Hawkins and Jimmy Jones pitched the Yankees to their second sweep in a week, leading New York past Texas in a rain-delayed doubleheader that lasted nearly nine hours.

In the opener, Hawkins, 7-7, allowed seven hits and no earned runs in eight-plus innings and New York broke a 2-2 tie with four runs in the sixth. Bobby Witt, 5-7, lost.

In the second game, delayed three times by rain, Jones gave up three hits in six innings and left after the third delay. Jones, 2-1, struck out three and walked none. Kevin Brown, 5-4, was the loser.

Athletics 7, Orioles 5 Orioles 5, Athletics 1

Jay Tibbs, 3-0, scattered six hits in seven innings and Joe Orsulak drove in two runs as Baltimore beat Oakland to earn a split in the two-night doubleheader. Mike Moore, 8-5, took the loss.

In the first game, Ron Hassey drove in three runs with a single and two-run homer and Oakland turned five double plays.

The A's turned double plays in the first, second, fourth, sixth and seventh innings, helping starter Storm Davis, 5-3, earn the victory. With one out in the fourth, Mark McGwire connected off Brian Holton, 2-5, for his 13th homer.

Indians 1, Royals 0

Bud Black, 6-7, pitched a six-hitter for his first shutout since 1985 and Pete O'Brien drew a bases-loaded walk from Tom Gordon with two outs in the bottom of the ninth. Reliever Terry Leach, 1-1, lost.

Angels 9, Tigers 4

California snapped a seven-game losing streak as Chili Davis hit a three-run homer and Bert Blyleven, 7-2, beat Detroit for the third time this season.

Bryan Harvey, the third California pitcher, struck out Mike Brumley with the bases loaded to end the bottom of the eighth and finished up for his seventh save. Rookie Mike Schwabe, making his third big league start, fell to 1-2.

Blue Jays 4, Mariners 3

Fred McGriff doubled in the tying run in the bottom of the ninth and a wild pitch by reliever Mike Schooler, 1-1, with the bases loaded scored the winning run.

Schooler, who entered the game with 14 saves in 15 opportunities, hit George Bell. McGriff's ground-rule double bounced over the wall in center to score Gruber and Ernie Whitt was walked intentionally to load the bases.

Schooler bounced the first pitch to Rance Mulliniks as Bell came in to score. Tom Henke, 5-3, the third Toronto pitcher, worked one inning.

Brewers 8, Twins 6

Greg Brock's two-run, two-out, two-strike single in the top of the seventh inning lifted Milwaukee.

Chuck Crim, 6-3, the third of four Milwaukee pitchers, worked 1 2-3 innings. Dan Plesac pitched the ninth and earned his 16th save. Minnesota reliever Juan Berenguer, 4-3, took the loss.

Two HHS cowboys in state finals

Two Hereford High School cowboys have qualified for the Texas High School Finals Rodeo scheduled for this week in Seguin.

Shawn McCormick and Kirby Kaul both advanced to the state competition in steer wrestling by placing first and second, respectively, at the Tri-State High School Rodeo Association finals at Dumas.

McCormick, the son of Kelly and Pam McCormick, threw his steer in the final go-round in 3.9 seconds. Kaul, the son of Bussy and Joyce Kaul, was close behind at 4.2 second on his final run.

The two cowboys, both recent HHS graduates, will be competing for a chance to move on to the National High School Finals Rodeo to be held in July at Pueblo, Colo.

McCormick, who is in his first year of steer wrestling, attributed his win to technique rather than brute strength. He was taught the needed skills by Delbert Davis and Shawn and Steve McConnell, and had help from hazers John Wilson and Larry and Burt Nolan as well as Johnny Eggen.

He has been using a horse he bought from Lee Washington especially for the event.

McCormick has made rodeo pay off with a scholarship to attend Hobbs, N.M., Junior College, where he will compete in bronc riding and roping events in addition to steer wrestling.

His sister, Michelle, is currently attending Hobbs JC on a rodeo scholarship.

Kaul also plans to stay active in rodeo during college, but has not decided where he will attend.

"I'm going to wait and see what kind of (scholarship) offer I can get first," he said.

In 1952, Bill Mosenko of the hockey team, the Chicago Black Hawks scored an amazing three goals in just 21 seconds.

Mets outlast Philadelphia, rain to win, 15-11

By The Associated Press
A little less sleep has been just the thing to awaken the New York Mets' slumbering offense.
For the second straight day, make that morning, the Mets waited out the rain and won a game after 1 a.m. EDT.
On Friday night, the Mets did it the hard way. New York survived blowing an eight-run, first-inning lead and outlasted Philadelphia 15-11 as Mackey Sasser put the Mets ahead with a two-run pinch double in the eighth inning.

The game ended at 1:58 a.m. today. The Mets played until 1:24 a.m. Friday, beating Chicago 4-3 in 12 innings at Shea Stadium on Gregg Jefferies' RBI single in another rained-delayed game.

"I feel brain dead," Mets manager Davey Johnson said. "I woke up sick this morning (Friday). Those eight runs in the first inning made me feel a lot better. But I started deteriorating as the game went on."
The Mets sent 13 batters to the plate in the first inning and scored eight runs on eight hits against Bruce Ruffin. Mookie Wilson had two singles, an RBI and scored twice in the inning.

But the Phillies came back against David Cone and scored five times in the bottom of the first.
The teams in the first inning totaled 13 runs and 13 hits, including two homers, a triple, three doubles, two walks and two wild pitches. Ruffin threw 52 pitches and Cone 25 in the 41-minute first inning. The Mets had 17 hits in the game and the Phillies 13.

With the Mets batting in the second, the game was delayed 1 hour, 54 minutes by rain.
When play resumed, the Mets scored one in the third, but the Phillies came back with two in their half of the third and three in the fourth to take a 10-9 lead.

It was the second time in two weeks that the Phillies rallied from a big first-inning deficit. On June 8, the Pirates scored 10 runs in the first inning at Veterans Stadium and the Phillies rallied for a 15-11 victory. This time, they fell short.
Elsewhere in the National League it was Montreal 8, Chicago 5; St. Louis 6, Pittsburgh 2; Houston 3, San Diego 1; Cincinnati 5, San Francisco 4; and Atlanta 6, Los Angeles 1.
Expos 8, Cubs 5

Mavs' MacLeod on hot seat for next season

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) - John MacLeod starts the new NBA season in October on the hot seat.
The fact the New York Knicks wanted to hire him as their head coach will mean nothing next year if the Dallas Mavericks start poorly.
MacLeod was given no assurances by the Dallas front office that he had a job through next year, although staying with the Mavericks instead of going to New York was an act of total loyalty.

MacLeod was also strongly encouraged to stress an upbeat running game, the offensive backbone of most Western Conference teams.
MacLeod's critics suggest he abandoned the running game too quickly after he came to Dallas from Phoenix in 1987.

However, MacLeod's backers point to his success with a healthy team two years ago, when the Mavs took the Lakers to the seventh game of the Western Conference championship, as a true barometer of his coaching prowess.

MacLeod coached a team last season that lost its top two rebounders. Roy Tarpley missed more than 50 games while at a drug rehabilitation center and James Donaldson, the Mavs' leading rebounder, was out the last month with a broken leg.

There also was the disruption of the Mark Aguirre trade to Detroit for Adrian Dantley, who never did totally fit into the Mavericks' half-court offense.

Tarpley came back late in the season and Dallas made a late charge that fell a game short.

Four go to USTU meet

Four Hereford youngsters left early Saturday morning to compete in the U.S. Taekwondo Union Junior Olympics National Tournament to be held June 22 through 26 at Rochester, Minn.
Sammy Ruiz Jr., Wade McPherson, Brian Torres and Maria Crox qualified for the national tourney by placing in the top for in their respective divisions at the state meet held May 13 in Dallas.
The youths, all students of the Crox Taekwondo School and coached by Loopy Crox, Maria's father, will be part of a field of about 4,000 competitors taking part in the event.
Torres and Maria Crox placed first in the 11-year-old black belt 90-99 pound boys and 60-69 pound girls competition, respectively. Ruiz earned a trip to the national meet with a second place finish in the 13-year-old black belt 100-109 pound boys division while McPherson was second in the 11-year-old black belt 89-90 pound boys group.

Things they never told you about a heat pump.

Fact #1 A heat pump unit costs more than an equivalent high-efficiency air conditioner. And it's more expensive and complicated to install.

Yet it won't cool your home as well, and it's more expensive to operate and maintain.

If you need a new air conditioner this summer, replace it with a modern high-efficiency air conditioner. Not a gadget.

Entry is into an exquisite foyer accented by an open rail stair. The down stair is under for greater space utilization. A cased opening leads to the immense front-to-back sunken activity room. One end has a bay window flanked by built-in book cases. The activity room is also embellished by a fireplace and two ceiling fans. The activity room and breakfast room are separated by a decorative open rail. The large kitchen has an island cabinet with a surface unit, extraordinary cabinet space, two bonus pantries and work surface galore. A half bath is convenient to the kitchen for daytime use and there is a large laundry area from which a back stair leads to the bonus room over the garage.

The second floor boasts an exquisite master suite enhanced by a bay window and tray ceiling. The luxurious master bath is shown with a garden tub open on two sides, twin lavatories and partitioned areas for the shower and the commode. The extra large walk-in closet features stack and full hanging plus shelves. The remaining two bedrooms share a large hall bath that has a bonus walk-in closet. There is a fantastic bonus room with sloped ceilings and a large extra closet for storage.

This modified Victorian is bricked and accented with horizontal siding and the stacked bays include decorative wood panels. A front porch is shown and the roof design is combined hip and gable styles.

The plan number is 3034. It included 2,648 square feet of heated area. If the bonus room is finished it adds an additional 400 square feet. All W.D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information on this plan write, W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

Choose, use proper screws

By READER'S DIGEST For The Associated Press
Screws are handy helpers around the home workshop.

They provide a stronger bond than nails and, unlike glue, allow the fastened parts to be taken apart. Here are some tips on the selection and use of screws:

SELECTION
Screws are measured by both length and diameter. If possible, choose screws long enough so that at least two-thirds of their length will lodge in the base material to which you are fastening. Screw diameter is expressed as a gauge number, generally running from gauge 0 (about 1/16 inch) to gauge 24 (about 3/8 inch). Screws should be thick enough to hold pieces firmly together. If you feel a screw is too thick and may split the wood, try it out on a scrap piece of the same wood.

Use flathead screws when a smooth surface is desired and roundhead or ovalhead screws if easy disassembly is important. To create an unblemished finish, countersink flathead screws below the surface by countersinking the hole and cover the heads with wood filler or plugs.

The crossed-slot design of Phillips screws make them the easiest to drive in because the slots hold the screwdriver more firmly. However, be sure to use a Phillips screwdriver of the proper size.

When using a power screwdriver, Phillips tips are the best choice; even if a straight tip fits a screw perfectly it is likely to slip out of the slot and damage the surface.

In addition to flathead and Phillips screws there are many other special-purpose types. For example:

Oval head screws have heads whose lower portion is countersunk and whose top is rounded. Oval head screws are easier to remove and more decorative than flathead screws.

Roundhead screws are often used where the fastened piece is too thin to permit countersinking. They're also used on parts that may require a washer.

One-way screws are designed to prevent theft. They can be driven in with a screwdriver, but not be removed. (The head will hold a screwdriver blade when turned in a clockwise direction, but not when turned counterclockwise.)

Dowel screws have two threaded ends and no head. They can be used in wood joiners to make simple end-to-end joints.

Hanger screws or bolts have one end threaded like a screw and the other end threaded like a bolt to accept a square or hex nut.

USING SCREWS

Lag bolts are actually heavy-duty screws made in sizes up to 6 inches in length. The head end is square to allow the bolt to be driven in with a wrench. To get a screw as large as gauge 6 started into softwood such as pine and spruce, make a shallow dent into the surface with a nail or awl. Larger screws in softwood and all screws in hardwood such as oak, maple or birch, require pilot holes.

When drilling a pilot hole, select a drill bit the same diameter as the core of the screw (the shaft of the screw without threads). Line up the pieces being fastened and drill into both pieces of wood to slightly less than the depth which the screw will penetrate. Mark the drill bit with tape to prevent drilling too deep, or use an adjustable drill-stop collar.

To keep screws secured in end grain, drill a hole on an edge, going straight through the board 3/4 to 1 inch from the end grain. Insert a dowel that's been coated with wood glue into the hole. The screws will anchor themselves to the dowel for a lasting job.

Good design starts with walls

Good interior design doesn't end at the walls. That's where it starts.

Begin with a study of the decor. Make sure the style of the wall-covering blends with the overall decor of the room, says the Wallcovering Information Bureau. Avoid, for example, traditional wallcoverings in a room with contemporary furnishings. Consider instead wallcoverings that blend with or complement the furnishings.

The choices are as varied as the colors, patterns and materials that go into the manufacture of wall-coverings. Manufacturers have broadened the range of products they offer while better production methods and improved technology has resulted in higher-quality wallcoverings.

In addition, consumers have learned to see wallcoverings as a fashionable product that is as much a part of home furnishings as fabrics and furniture. To make the job of installation easier, many contemporary wall-coverings are pre-pasted and pre-trimmed.

Wallcoverings can be purchased at department stores, specialty shops, paint and decorating stores or home centers. The salespeople there are also good sources of decorating advice.

For more information on how to coordinate wallcoverings with the rest of the decor, send 50 cents for a copy of "Work Wonders With Wallcoverings" to WIB, Dept. HP, P.O. Box 1708, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10163-1708.

Period furnishings combined with a floral wallcovering serve to create the eye-appealing traditional decor of this room. Coordinate the color of base and wall mouldings with a color in the wall pattern for a custom look, says the Wallcovering Information Bureau. Wallcoverings can be purchased at department stores, specialty shops, paint and decorating stores or home centers.

Tea leaves originally were steamed, mashed into cakes, and eaten with salt, garlic and fat in ancient China.

Investors should be aggressive

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Real estate investors should be aggressive and play to win, but they should take time first to become acquainted with basic facts about investing money, a leading real estate adviser says.

"It's interesting when I listen to people talk about investment," said Robert Gidel, president of the Baltimore-based Alex Brown Realty Advisors Inc. "Many of them don't know how to answer the basic questions of: 'How do I get paid' and 'How to I get repaid?'"

"If you can't answer those questions you ought not be in the business in the first place."

Gidel's address on Tuesday was before a real estate forum sponsored by the American Bankers Association, which concluded its three-day meeting Tuesday.

Gidel, whose company manages more than $1 billion in real estate securities for domestic and foreign institutional investors, also told businessman that they should diversify their portfolios to include various types of real estate properties to remain competitive.

"We no longer talk about deals. We talk about portfolios and the diversified real estate investments across diversified classifications of geography and property types," said

"If we look at what happened in Texas and other energy-related states, we are very concerned about portfolios made up not only of different property types, but we're also looking at the tenants that occupy that space, and cash flow and stability and changes in cash flow and we also look at appreciation," Gidel said.

Gidel said that businessmen should concentrate on the basics in diversifying their portfolios, such as mixing properties that have stable cash flow with others that have very little cash flow.

He also said many transactions now are taking on the multimillion-dollar scope and added that real estate investors will be able to benefit when different regions of the country learn to compete with their strengths.

"Those strengths may be raw materials, geography or quality of life and those economic regions that understand who they are and build a consensus for quality economic growth are the ones that are going to attract institutional capital," Gidel said.

Gidel said that more than 270 million-square-foot of space was built in the United States in 1988, adding to the more than 550 million square feet of space that remained vacant in 1987.

Here's the answer

Q - Your readers may be interested at what happened to me recently with one of those handheld cordless vacuum cleaners. It has stood me in good stead over the years for quick cleanups around the house, but recently did not seem to charge properly. I had my husband check to see whether the cleaner was seated properly in the charging bracket. He checked and said everything seemed to be OK, but when he began to ask me some questions I suddenly realized what had happened. I had connected the charging base to a different electrical outlet than in the past. I had switched it to a light switch which turned the power off when the lights were turned out. This was a light seldom used so the batteries in the cleaner were not being charged most of the time.

A - Thanks for the data. Another cause of improperly charged batteries is when the machine is used for only a few minutes and then placed in the charging base. The batteries then build up a resistance to taking a full charge and the result is reduced operating time.

Q - I have used varnish many times, but this time I want to try polyurethane. I expect to put a coat of it over a painted surface which has some irregularities on it. Will the polyurethane cover them?

A - No. Smooth them out as you would no matter what the final finish will be. The polyurethane not only won't hide such mars, it might intensify them.

Q - I used a paint can lately - the kind which emits a spray. What is the noise I hear when I shake the can?

A - That's a small steel ball that helps to mix the paint. When you hear it, keep shaking the can for about a minute, then go ahead and spray.

Q - I would like to insulate the heating ducts in our basement. They are used only for heating, not for air conditioning. Can I use the regular type of insulation, that is, the blankets? The ducts are the round type.

A - Yes, the blankets are fine for heating ducts. Tell your dealer what they are being used for and he will give you the kind that has no vapor barrier. Vapor barriers are not required when the blankets are used for this purpose. Also, tell the dealer you have round ducts, since many are shaped like a rectangle. The insulation will come with complete instructions for their use.

Q - I glued together some furniture several months ago and it was fine, but recently some water got into the extra room in our house and some of the joints got loose. I had bought the glue under the impression it was waterproof. Are they permitted to sell an adhesive as waterproof when it really isn't?

A - No, but the chances are the glue was called water resistant and not waterproof. There is a difference. An adhesive that is water resistant is just that. It will resist high humidity and a limited amount of water but waterproof material will stay glued when attacked by water. When you purchase glue that must be waterproof to meet your needs, make sure it says waterproof on the label of the container. Manufacturers are careful not to call a product waterproof when it isn't.

AGRICULTURAL MILESTONES

In October, 1891, a Texas Agricultural Experiment Station veterinarian wrote about three years of investigation he had made of the liver fluke. This parasite occurs in the liver of cattle, sheep and goats and can cause great damage.

The veterinarian found the problem to be much more widespread than was originally thought. "The permanently infected district consists of about two rows of counties along the coast from the Nueces River to the Sabine River, and the river bottoms of the San Antonio, Guadalupe, Colorado, Brazos, Trinity, Nueces and Sabine," he wrote. "The condition along the Rio Grande has not been determined. Mention should be made of the Red River bottom in the vicinity of Texarkana as infected..."

The map showing infested areas in Texas also identified the area north of the Red River as Indian Territory, which, of course, it was in 1891.

"Medicinal treatment is of little value," he wrote. "As the development of the parasite in its various stages depends on the presence of water and water animals, the disease can only occur when stock have access to such stagnant ponds of water which contain the cercariae, or to grass or herbage that has grown in damp, wet places. It is evident that when these conditions do not exist, the disease cannot occur; that is, the parasite will fail to complete the cycle of life."

"The conclusion is obvious. Cattle and sheep must not have access to infected water holes, but must be furnished with pure water. One large pasture company in San Patricio County has demonstrated that an abundance of suitable water can be brought to the surface with wind pumps at a small cost."

In perspective, we know that much of what this veterinarian said was true. A water snail is the intermediate host for the liver fluke. This must have been the "water animals" he referred to in his writing. Draining wet pastures can help as well as providing livestock with clean, unpolluted water. And we now have medication that can control liver flukes in animals.

Clements 'reluctant' to sign

Gov. Bill Clements said he was reluctant to sign legislation reauthorizing the Texas Department of Agriculture for 12 years, but was happy with some of the changes that were made.

"I am on your side," Clements said in a recent edition of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association News Update. "I share the concerns about the way the department has been run in recent years and its reluctance to consider the view of grassroots Texans who actually raise the cattle, harvest the wheat and grow the cotton."

Clements felt that the sunset legislation considered during the regular session was a golden opportunity to make "desperately needed changes" in TDA, and felt the establishment of a nine-member board to set policies and regulations was a "major achievement."

Clements said a veto would not have eliminated the office of commissioner of agriculture.

"A veto would have eliminated the department, but not the commissioner," Clements said. "A veto would have produced the worst of two worlds: no agriculture department, but one commissioner with all his time devoted to political activity. That would have been totally unacceptable."

"Although no one is totally pleased with the outcome, including myself, under the circumstances we did the best we could. We can take pride in the improvements that were made."

TSCRA President Jimmie Powell said he had "hoped Gov. Clements would veto the sunset legislation, which would have provided the legislature with the opportunity to establish an appointed ag commission."

"Many legislators strongly supported a significant reduction in the commissioner's pesticide authority," Powell said. "We appreciate the legislator's efforts in working toward a solution, but much more needs to be done."

"We remain committed to a major restructuring of the agency, including an appointed commission made up of farmers, ranchers and consumers to replace the commissioner."

McLeod joins staff at local SCS office

Scott McLeod officially began duties at the Hereford Soil Conservation Service office on June 5.

McLeod joins the staff in the capacity of range conservationist. He began his career in Hondo as a student trainee with the USDA SCS.

Born in San Antonio, McLeod graduated in 1983 from high school in Devine. He earned a degree in range science from Texas A&M in 1988 and worked at the Franklin SCS office prior to his transfer here.

He and his wife, Martha, are the parents of a daughter, three-year-old Katrina. Mrs. McLeod received a degree in animal science from TAMU in May.

McLeod joins a staff at the local SCS office comprised of Bob Perry, district conservationist; Jaime Neceper, soil conservationist; Patrick Reily, range conservationist; Arlen Redelsperger, soil conservation

FmHA won't list names

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Farmers Home Administration says it won't make public the names of 31 borrowers who have had million-dollar debts wiped off the books under new federal credit procedures.

One reason given by FmHA officials is that the agency's headquarters in the Agriculture Department did not ask field offices for the identities of the big borrowers when debt restructuring statistics were compiled.

Another reason, the agency told The Associated Press in denying a Freedom of Information request, is that the identities may be protected under the Privacy Act.

Amice Fisher, the FmHA freedom of information officer, said state offices were asked only for the number of borrowers who had received write-downs and write-offs of loans. The numbers were broken down only in ranges of debt by state.

U.S. soybeans face competition

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's soybean farmers continue to feel competitive pressure from Brazil and Argentina, says the Agriculture Department.

The harvest is nearly completed in Brazil, and better-than-expected yields have been reported, the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said Tuesday. Production was estimated at a record 22 million metric tons, up from 18 million tons last year.

The agency report said only about 30 percent of the Brazilian crop has been marketed. Exports are ahead of last year's pace, but crushing plants - which turn out soybean oil and meal - are lagging behind.

"Because of this, more of the 1989 crop will be marketed later in the marketing year," the report said. "This will mean that the U.S. crop will face stiff competition from Brazil early in the next U.S. marketing year."

Electric safety is looking up...

...for power lines!

On the farm, on the job or at home, you should always be aware of power lines. Touching a power line with anything... an irrigation pipe, tool, a kite string... could divert the electricity through you causing serious injury or death. For safety's sake, look up for power lines.

AND, REMEMBER THESE SAFETY TIPS

- Do not trim trees near power lines.
- Do not shoot at insulators on poles, towers or structures.
- Avoid using electrical tools like lawn mowers or hedge clippers when grass and leaves are wet.
- Be careful when digging. Call SPS to find out if there are any buried electrical lines in the area.
- Beware of exposed wires.

Soviets still top customer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The latest sales figures by the Agriculture Department serve as a reminder that the Soviet Union remains the American grain farmer's champion overseas customer, despite some recent big rounds by China.

Moscow has bought an additional 400,000 metric tons of U.S. corn and sorghum for delivery this year under a long-term supply agreement, the department said Tuesday.

The grain, including 300,000 tons of corn and 100,000 tons of sorghum, is scheduled for delivery through Aug. 31. Sales were handled by private exporters under terms of the long-term grain supply agreement between the two countries.

As stunning as China's recent wheat purchases have been, they don't come close to the huge amount of grain bought by Moscow since last fall.

Officials said the latest sales boosted total U.S. corn and wheat sales to the Soviets in 1988-89 to a record level of 20.5 million tons, including more than 15.9 million tons of corn and 4.6 million tons of wheat.

Sales also include 442,500 tons of soybeans, 1.35 million tons of soybean meal, and more than 1 million tons of grain sorghum.

China, meanwhile, was the American wheat farmer's leading foreign buyer in the 1988-89 marketing year, with purchases of about 8.3 million tons. In addition, China has bought about 2.9 million tons of U.S. wheat for delivery in the 1989-90 marketing year that began on June 1, including 1.8 million tons announced by USDA on Monday.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 39.4 bushels of corn or 36.7 bushels of wheat or soybeans. The 300,000 tons of corn sold to the Soviets would be about 11.8 million bushels.

Corn prices have been averaging about $2.49 per bushel at the farm level, according to the latest USDA five-day average, meaning the latest sale could have a farm value of around $29 million.

The sorghum, also at 39.4 bushels per ton, recently has been about $2.20 per bushel and would be worth approximately $8.7 million.

Wheat sales to the Soviet Union have been subsidized under the department's Export Enhancement Program, or EEP. But the corn and other commodities are not subsidized.

China had been a regular wheat buyer under EEP but has not bought any under the subsidy program since April 6 when 300,000 tons were reported for delivery in the 1989-90 marketing year, said Jean Nollmeyer of the department's Foreign Agricultural Service.

But since then, she said, China has bought about 2.6 million tons of wheat for 1989-90 delivery. All of that has been at non-subsidy prices, even though China still has about 910,000 tons remaining in its EEP account.

World grain prices have risen significantly the last year, resulting in lower U.S. subsidy rates. At one time under EEP, the wheat subsidy was more than $40 per ton, or around $1.08 per bushel. In China's most recent EEP deal, the subsidy was $6.33 per ton, or about 17 cents per bushel.

Broiler production will rise

WASHINGTON (AP) - Agriculture Department economists are forecasting a significant rise this summer in broiler production.

Over all of 1989, broiler output is expected to rise 5 percent from last year, when production was up 4 percent from 1987.

However, the department's Economic Research Service said broiler production in the first quarter of this year rose only 3 percent, compared with a 7 percent gain during January, February and March of 1988.

Thus, the agency said in the June issue of Agricultural Outlook magazine, broiler output in the second quarter probably will be up 4 percent from a year earlier, while third-quarter production may gain 7 percent.

Analysts said the production increase is being fed by "high prices and lower feed costs" and that net returns to broiler producers have been on the plus side for a year.

Outdoor country wedding held in Veigel home June 10

A country setting was the site for the marriage of Holly Veigel of Hereford and Bill Kirk of Austin, Saturday evening, June 10, in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Veigel.

The garden ceremony, officiated by Doug Manning, was held on the front lawn of the home.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Kirk, also of Hereford.

Vicki Veigel of Hereford served her sister as maid of honor and Dee Hairgrove of Dallas was best man.

Bridesmaids included Amy Griffin Douthitt and Brooke Taylor, both of Dallas, Allyson Thomas of San Antonio, Kari Walterscheid Stader of Houston and Lori Kirk of Amarillo, the groom's sister.

Groomsmen were Trent McCristian of Lubbock, Brian Rahlfs and Jesse Martinez, both of Dallas, Ronald Plummer of Fort Worth and the bride's brother, Steve Veigel of Hereford.

Wedding guests were greeted at the home's entrance by Jeff Miller of Austin and John Dudding of Guymon, Okla. who were attired in formal wear and riding horseback.

Guests were then ushered to chairs arranged on the lawn by Robbie Fish and Todd Martin, both of Lubbock, and Steve Arho of Amarillo.

Serving as flower girls were Alisha Carnahan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Carnahan of Canyon, and Kecia Thomas, daughter of Allyson Thomas.

Wedding rings were carried in a crystal jewel box by the groom's niece, Samantha Sturgess, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tim Sturgess of Lubbock.

Kent Ellis of Canyon Lake, Texas controlled the sound system playing taped music during the ceremony. Presented were piano selections by George Winston; an original arrangement of "Bridal Chorus" by the groom as the bridal party entered, performed by Bill Kirk, Dee Hairgrove and Brian Rahlfs; and "Follow Me" played as the wedding party exited.

Later in the evening, guests were entertained by a music concert performed by Bill Kirk, Dee Hairgrove, Ronald Plummer, Jesse Martinez, Trent McCristian on the drums and Brian Rahlfs at the keyboard.

The bride wore an elegant designer's floor-length wedding gown fashioned with a pencil straight skirt of solid opalescent sequins. The fitted bodice with a jewel neckline and the extended cap sleeves were overlaid with Chantilly sequined lace and a matching fall of the sequined lace was attached to the gown's back and swept gently to the floor. Poufs of Thai silk were attached to either side of the gown.

She carried full-length stems of white gladioli and blue agapanthus tied with ropes of pearls and opalescent ribbon. Antique lace handkerchiefs were inserted as a sentimental touch.

All bouquets were tied by Janie Perez.

The bridesmaids wore matching dress of periwinkle tissue taffeta fashioned with draped off-the-shoulder collars and straight above-the-knee length skirts. Each carried a bouquet of garden flowers in different vibrant colors.

The flower girls and ring carrier were attired in matching dresses in a style similar to that of the bridesmaids' dresses except their skirts were full and sashed with a print fabric of dusk colors. The dresses were made by the bride's grandmother. The girls also wore white lace gloves and their hair was adorned by flowers.

Guests were invited to register at the reception, which included a dinner and dance, by Jacquelyn Francis of Aspen, Colo. and Ramona Faith Oswald of Minneapolis, Minn., the bride's cousin.

The reception was held in a large tent especially designed and built by the bride's father for the occasion. Music for dancing on the drive was provided by an area musical group, "Slow Motion."

The register book was set at the gate on an antique white wicker table and chairs with a wicker basket of garden flowers used as a centerpiece.

Punch and coffee were poured by Jennifer Griffin of McAllen and Lisa Stegent of Tyler. Others assisting with serving included Cindy Burnett of San Diego, Calif.; Jo Ann Carnahan of Canyon, the bride's cousin; Mary Kay McQuigg, Denise Paetzold and Jennifer Rickman.

Kevin Phelon of Dallas video photographed the evening's activities.

Cake was served by the bride and groom as they greeted each guest after a dinner buffet of pecan-smoked beef and pork loin had been served.

The five-tiered wedding cake was set in a basket amid magnolia leaves accented with cerise sweet peas and box garden fresh flowers. It was presented on an uncovered marble top table which was situated in the center of the tent.

Following a wedding trip to Belize and other points of interest in Mexico, the couple will make their home in Austin.

The bride, a 1983 graduate of Hereford High School, graduated from the University of Texas in 1988. For the past year, she has been teaching second grade bilingual classes at Northwest Primary School in Hereford.

The groom graduated from HHS in 1983 and attended Texas Tech University. He is now completing a degree in engineering graphics.

Out-of-town wedding guests included Tim Martin of Atlanta, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Ken Ellis of Canyon Lake, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. Randy Ellis of Pleasanton, Texas; Lesley Metz of New York City, N.Y.; Marda Stribling of Kentucky; and relatives from Plainview, Lockney and Amarillo.

The couple, friends and family were entertained Friday evening, June 9, at a Mexican buffet dinner hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Sam Kirk in the Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center.

The bride and her friends were honored guests at a luncheon held on the wedding day in the home of Mrs. Gary McQuigg. Sharing hostesses' duties were Janice Conkwright, Kitty Gault and Suzanne Smith.

Hints from Heloise

ADDRESS BOOK

Dear Heloise: I recently discovered what an incredible inconvenience it is to lose an address book and try to replace years' worth of collected addresses and phone numbers.

Now, I have wised up after spending a month tracking down phone numbers and addresses. After filling out one book I made an extra and keep it at home in a safe place, in case this ever happens again.

One more thing: To all my friends who haven't heard from me in a while, please call! — L. Lang, Nelson, B.C.

Losing an address book certainly is an inconvenience. I have an extra one and I keep it in my safe, in case of a fire. All those addresses and phone numbers are as important to me as my valuables.

Hope you hear from your friends! — Heloise

STORE BAGS

Dear Heloise: Not long ago I read a hint in your column on keeping plastic grocery bags stored neatly. I have another tip which works great too.

When I grocery shop I ask for plastic bags instead of paper. All I did was bend the ends of a hanger all the way up and hung it on a nail in my pantry. I slip the handles of the bags over the ends of the hanger. It holds quite a few bags and keeps them neat and orderly. — A Reader, Seattle, Wash.

Send a money- or time-saving hint to Heloise, P.O. Box 795000, San Antonio, TX 78279. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.

PLASTIC BAGS CAN DAMAGE GARMENTS

Preparing winter clothes for summer storage is an activity in which many homemakers are currently involved, there are some rules to remember.

Clothes containing food spills, perspiration, perfume or body oils attract many insects that will feed off of clothes fibers-particularly those containing wool. All clothing should be laundered or dry cleaned.

After clothing is cleaned it is important to store garments correctly.

The plastic bag the dry cleaner uses is designed to keep garments clean while they are being taken home. Sometimes people store garments in these bags, perhaps for weeks, months or seasons. Consequently, garments may be damaged.

For instance, ink from the lettering on the bag may stain garments in the bag or those stored next to the plastic. These stains appear more often on leathers, suedes, vinyls and synthetic materials, but they can happen to any fabric.

The International Fabric Care Institute reports that considerable research has been done to find inks that will not transfer to fabrics. No ink has yet been found that is suitable for printing on plastic that will not transfer dye to fabrics.

For this reason, garments should not be stored in plastic bags from dry cleaners. Some bag manufacturers are putting warnings on the bag. But whether the warning is there or not, the best practice is to remove garments from dry cleaner bags as soon as you get them home.

If using moth repellent pellets it is important to make cloth bags or tie pellet into a piece of cloth. Hang clothes bags over top of the wire hanger then place a garment bag which states its acceptability for use with more pellets.

Following steps to protect clothing now will help insure quality clothes in the fall and winter months.

MRS. PETE HOLGUIN JR.
...nee Diana Hernandez

Hernandez, Holguin married

Diana G. Hernandez and Pete Holguin Jr., both of Hereford, were united in marriage in a mid-afternoon ceremony Saturday in St. Joseph Catholic Church.

The wedding was officiated by Father Darryl Birkenfeld of the church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Valentin Hernandez of 510 Brevard and the bridegroom is the son of Estella Holguin of Bowling Green, Fla.

The church altar was decorated by candelabra and peach and white flowers and pews were marked by white bows.

Elena Aranda was maid of honor and best man was Rafael Garcia.

Bridesmaids included Mari Valdez, Esther Gomez of Edcouch, Texas, and Christie Aranda. Serving as groomsmen were David Rodriguez, Martin Galvan of Edcouch and David Rodriguez.

The bride's cousin, Marie Galvan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Florentino Galvan, was flower girl and the bridegroom's cousin, Andrew Ramirez, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ramirez, was ring bearer.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Maldonado vocalized "Here We Are", "Security" and "We Are An Offering."

Presented in marriage by her parents, the bride wore the traditional white formal-length bridal gown of sheer organza featuring a Queen Anne neckline with schiffli lace trim. The elbow-length cuffs were decorated with beaded schiffli embroidered lace and lace bands and the basque waistline, which came to points at the front and back, was decorated with a cluster of hanging pearls at the front point. The molded bodice of organza was accented with a center lace embellished with swirls of pearls and sequins.

The softly gathered organza skirt was trimmed with beaded schiffli lace and scattered beaded appliques. The edge of the hemline was finished with a wide band of beaded scalloped schiffli lace and swept into a cathedral-length train which was also enhanced by beaded appliques.

Her fingertip-length veil of bridal illusion was adorned with bridal pearls and was attached to a headpiece encrusted with pearls.

She carried a bouquet of soft peach and white flowers and wore her mother's gold earrings.

The maid of honor was attired in a white satin formal-length gown designed with a top layer of lace and the bridesmaids' tea-length satin peach dresses were fashioned with close fitting dropped waistlines and V-shape necklines at the front and back. The dresses were further enhanced with small embedded flowers. The honor attendants carried white and peach colored bouquets.

Soyal Holguin, the bridegroom's sister, invited guests to register at the reception held in the Latin Ballroom.

The couple will make their home in Hereford.

The bride graduated from Hereford High School in 1984 and attended West Texas State University and Amarillo College.

The groom graduated from HHS in 1982 and is currently employed at Hereford Wrecking.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Homer Cardoza of Edinburg; Mr. and Mrs. Elias Rodriguez of San Marcos; Janie Ayala of Phoenix, Ariz.; Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Galvan Jr. of Mission, Texas; Maria Galvan of Edcouch; and Josefa Martinez of Corpus Christi.

Walk for a healthy heart

Every step you take can lead to a healthier heart.

An everyday activity such as walking can help condition your heart and lungs if it is done briskly for 20 to 30 minutes at least three times a week. Conditioning increases the oxygen available to the body and enables the heart to use oxygen more efficiently.

Lack of exercise has not been clearly established as a risk factor for heart disease, but it can lead to excess weight, which is a risk factor.

Vigorous exercise is not the miracle cure for heart disease. Major heart and blood vessel disease risk factors, such as high blood pressure, high blood cholesterol levels and cigarette smoking greatly reduce the benefits of exercise.

To lose weight, a person should consume the amount of calories needed to maintain a healthy desirable weight, and exercise regularly.

Check with your physician before beginning a vigorous, regular walking program.

A mall, the countryside, a neighborhood street or a park are among the many settings you can choose to help walk your way to a healthier heart. Select a place where you can maintain your exercise program year-round. A course with a smooth, soft surface is suggested for outdoor walking.

Bad weather doesn't have to interfere with your walking routine. A mall or indoor track at a school or recreation center are alternatives.

You don't have to walk alone. A partner may make walking more enjoyable and help you stick to the program. Your partner should be able to keep the same schedule and walk at the same pace as you.

Selecting the right shoes and clothing is important. Shoes should have thick, flexible soles. Layer your clothes in the winter. Cotton, fleecelined cotton, wool or breathable nylon are the best materials to wear. Don't forget to wear warm socks, a sweatshirt with a hood or a hat, gloves and a turtle neck to keep all areas of the body covered. In the summer, wear cotton or other materials that will allow sweat to evaporate. When it's hot, drink plenty of water before, during and after your walk.

Set a pace for yourself and don't push yourself too hard when you start.

Once you get started, you'll be on the road to walking your way to a healthier heart.

To travel fast overland, the penguin lies on its stomach and slides over the ice, using its wing flippers to push off.

Use the right appliance for the job.

Sometimes it gets hot enough to fry an egg on the sidewalk. But on an electric iron? There are better things to use.

And when you need to cool and heat your home, there are better things to use than a heat pump.

A heat pump can't cool your home in summer as well as a high-efficiency air conditioner. And it can't warm your home in winter as well as a natural gas furnace.

Think of winter this summer. For comfortable efficient heating in your home, the most effective appliance ever made is a natural gas furnace. Period. ENERGAS

LEONA MILLER, EDWARD SCHILLING

July wedding set

Hereford residents Leona Miller and Edward Schilling will exchange wedding vows on July 22 in St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

Miller is the daughter of William Miller of Darrouzett and the late Regina Miller. Schilling is the son of the late Herman and Mary Schilling who resided at Slaton.

The bride-elect received a bachelor of science degree from West Texas State University, and is a teacher at Hereford Junior High School. She is a team member of Beginning Experience, a Hospice volunteer, a life member of the National Education Association, Texas State Teachers Association, and Texas State Classroom Teachers Association.

The prospective groom farms near Summerfield. He is a member of St. Anthony's Catholic Church, the Knights of Columbus, and is a team member of Beginning Experience.

Both have lived in Hereford for approximately 30 years.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) - Actress Zsa Zsa Gabor said she was handcuffed and made to sit in the street while a police officer arrested her for allegedly slapping him after he pulled over her white Rolls-Royce.

Miss Gabor was booked for investigation of evading a policeman, battery on a policeman, driving without a valid license, driving an unregistered car and driving with an open alcoholic container, said police Lt. James Smith.

She was released Wednesday afternoon on her own recognizance.

Miss Gabor told the authorities she struck the officer in self-defense.

"Lots of people stopped and said, 'How can you do that to Zsa Zsa?' This is not a reason to confiscate a $215,000 car and put handcuffs on me and make me sit in the street," the Hungarian-born actress said.

"You just cannot drive a Rolls-Royce in Beverly Hills anymore because they have it in for you."

Miss Gabor's Rolls-Royce Corniche was later impounded.

Hendons host recent Harman family reunion

Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Hendon of 126 Kingwood hosted the Harman family reunion in their home Sunday, June 11.

The children of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Luther Harman, who resided in Hereford, attended the event. They included Pick Harman and Norma Hendon, both of Hereford, Bill Harman of Dimmitt and Virginia Butler of West Virginia. The Harman's deceased children are Geraldine Harman, Eugene Harman and Hugh Harman.

A large gathering of relatives enjoyed conversation and sharing of pictures and memories throughout the afternoon. They also were entertained with musical selections played on the piano by June Hensley of Guymon, Okla.

In the evening, a covered dish dinner was served in the Hendons' backyard. In keeping with a Harman family tradition during reunions, a large cake was served. It was especially decorated with the family tree, the date, and "gathering of the clan" written on it.

Following the meal, the younger children participated in outdoor games including tow-sack races supervised by the teenagers. The evening ended with Dwight Webb playing the guitar and leading the children in songs.

Because most of the Harman family is originally from West Virginia, the song, "Take Me Home Country Roads", was sung along with favorite Texas musical numbers.

Other guests included Georgia Hendon, 93, of Hereford, mother of Eugene Hendon; and Opal Norton, mother of Nelda Hendon.

Special friends present at the reunion were Jane Lee Hensley and her daughter and granddaughter, Becky and Brandy Hubbs of Guymon, Okla.

Kentucky was the 15th state to enter the Union.

MRS. TERRY CONNER
...nee Glenda Rusher

Rusher, Conner vows spoken in Springlake

Glenda Rusher of Hereford and Terry Conner of Springlake were married May 27 in First Baptist Church of Springlake with Steve Branson officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Lowell and Betty Rusher of 808 W. Park Ave. and the bridegroom is the son of Robert and Peggy Conner of Springlake.

The bride's cousin, Henreitta Bauer, served as maid of honor and best man was Darrell Carr of Springlake.

The bride's sister, Brenda Huseman of Amarillo, was bridesmaid and groomsmen were Micheal Price. Guests were escorted by Gaylon Conner and Joe Rusher.

Flower girl was Shana Huseman, daughter of Brenda Huseman, and ring bearer was Johnathon Conner, son of Helen and Jody Conner.

Candles were lit by the bride's nephews, Brendan Lee and Jason Huseman.

Wedding selections were played by Jan Branson. They included "Wedding March", "What A Difference You Made In My Life", and "The Rose."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal-length ivory taffeta gown fashioned with a high neckline of beaded schiffli lace accented with bridal pearls and iridescent sequins. The fitted taffeta bodice of the designer gown featured a sheer English net yoke and schiffli lace trimmed the shoulders. The large short pouf sleeves of English net were trimmed in beaded schiffli lace motifs and large bows further accented the shoulders.

The full taffeta skirt, edged in a wide band of scalloped schiffli lace, fell from a basque waistline which featured front and back points.

The veil of bridal illusion was attached to a small satin hat with pearl cascades. Beaded Venise lace trimmed the crown and brim of the hat which was further adorned by a side spray of white satin flowers and pearl filament.

The bride also wore earrings borrowed from her mother.

The bride's cousin, Jammie Chacon of Sugar City, Colo. invited guests to register at the reception held in the church fellowship hall.

Refreshments of cake, punch and coffee were served by Kendra Hadaway of Houston, Angel Morrison and Josephine Chacon. Others assisting in the houseparty included Holly Moree of Springlake and Helen Conner of Sunnyside, the groom's cousin.

Leaving on her wedding trip, the bride wore a yellow tea-length dress with red accessories.

The couple will make their home in Earth.

Out-of-town guests included Ella Bauer, Henreitta and Jean Bauer, Marion and Ruth Osburn, Josephine Chacon and family, Luella and Ivan Rogers, all of Rocky Ford, Colo.; and Joe and Tammy Rusher of Ponca City, Okla.

By REBECCA WALLS

Red Phoenix by Larry Bond is a chilling combat scenario exploring military and political suspense fiction. The story begins with an event torn out of tomorrow's headlines.

"Bloody general riots, fomented by carefully placed North Korean agents, are breaking out in South Korea." Confronting both raging civil disorder and internal dissension, the military faces upheaval.

Taking advantage of the opportunity at hand, North Korea launches an invasion with heavy Soviet support. With lightning speed they hope to unite both North and South Korea under Communist rule. The second Korean war has just begun, and the third World War may not be far behind.

The Eyes of Darkness by Dean R. Koontz is a tale of suspense and horror that many of you won't want to miss. Tina Evans lost her son Danny in a tragic accident a year ago. Since then Tina has been working through the painful process of forgetting and trying to go on.

As she passes by Danny's room Tina notices a message on the blackboard that says "NOT DEAD." Was this supposed to be a joke, or something more? How did the message get there? Who is responsible? The truth and answer to these questions is so incredible, frightening and dangerous that its secret must be kept at all cost, even at the price of any life man, woman or any child.

The Russia House by John LeCarre begins during the third uncertain summer of Perestroika and Glasnost. At a British trade fair in Moscow, a document changes hands. If this document reaches the proper destination and if its content is understood world events could be profoundly altered. Barely Blair, a British saxophone player and derelict publisher, is surprised and bewildered to discover the secret documents addressed to him.

As a result Blair soon finds himself inducted into service by the British Intelligence, with the assignment of tracing the documents back to its source and the intention behind them. Katya is the beautiful Russian woman who has been White, a 17-year-old AIDS victim picked up his new car on Wednesday and was told it was a gift from a mysterious benefactor. But the evidence points to Jackson.

"When you deal with Michael there are four or five people you have to go through before you get to Michael," said White's mother, Jeanne. "It was hard not to know when they called and asked, 'Now what was the car that Ryan told Michael he liked?'"

White drew national attention several years ago when school officials tried to keep him out of junior high because he has AIDS, contracted from tainted blood he received in a treatment for hemophilia. The family later moved from Kokomo to Cicero, and he now is a junior in Hamilton Heights High School.

"Michael has called Ryan some 15 times since their friendship began, and they talk for about 45 minutes," Mrs. White said. "Most of the time they talk about cars, something Ryan is very interested in."

The Gilded Leaf, by Patrick Reynolds is the dramatic saga of one of America's richest families. R.J. Reynolds was the original founder of the RJR Nabisco company. R.J. Reynolds, born in 1850, was tobacco king in the post Civil War. South earning an incredible fortune from Prince Albert products and camel cigarettes. Dick, the eldest child inherited a sizable fortune upon the death of his father, along with his father's energy and driving ambition.

When Dick married for the fourth time, he was almost totally disabled by emphysema caused by years of chain smoking. Three years later Dick died under mysterious circumstances leaving six disinherited sons and a wife pregnant with his only daughter, and many unanswered questions such as the disappearance of gold bullion worth millions of dollars. This richly-detailed history explores the lives of fortunes of the R.J. Reynolds family, and how it and America have been affected by the powerful

Special Thanks

The Cowsert family is grateful and humble and deeply moved by the outpouring of kindness and love during the illness and death of our beloved Ray Cowsert. He so loved this town and its people. We are forever grateful for all of your expressions of love to us and to Ray.

We especially want to thank the doctors and nurses and staff at Deaf Smith General Hospital and to Lydia Perez and the Home Health Care Service for making his last days comfortable. A special thank you to the ambulance service and all those who planned and worked so generously to celebrate his 83rd birthday and Louella and Ray's 60th wedding anniversary.

A special thank you to Mac McCarter, Evelyn Hacker and Steve Wright for the beautiful music and service and to the women of First Christian Church for the delicious meal following the service. Also the VFW and Gililand-Watson for their part in the farewell to our beloved husband, father, grandfather and brother.

Thanks also to the Hereford Brand, Hereford State Bank and KPAN Radio for their tribute to Ray. So many have given to memorial funds as a living gift of service to the community. Our heartfelt thanks for these memorials, flowers, cards, phone calls, visits, food and many other kindnesses.

So to the people of Hereford and the area, our friends and neighbors, there is cause to celebrate. Ray tips his hat to you.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Have you ever heard of Lyme disease? I am writing this letter because I know you can help thousands of people by warning them about this awful sickness. I have been battling it for 18 months. Frankly, I am not doing too well.

It would be impossible for me to describe the emotional and physical pain that I have been through. I am a 42-year-old man, married nearly 20 years, and have a family. The days of slinging a 100-pound sack of birdseed over my shoulder and walking to the back yard are over. Today I can't even lift a five-pound sack of flour. There was a time when I could play nine musical instruments. I sang in the church choir and ran my own small business. Today, I do none of the above. I am saving all my energy to fight Lyme disease.

The treatment costs are staggering. IV antibiotic therapy runs from $150 to $475 a treatment. Add to this the fees of a dozen or more specialists. I have been seen by a cardiologist, an ophthalmologist, a rheumatologist, a dermatologist and on and on. We have already taken out a third mortgage on our home. Had I been aware of the symptoms from the beginning, I could have had $15 worth of oral antibiotics and that would have done the job.

I am enclosing some literature about this terrible disease and hope that you will put it in language that is suitable for your column. Thank you, Ann, for allowing me to try to help others.—S.J.N., Mattituck, N.Y.

DEAR S.J.N.: I write about

GAME IN IRELAND

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — The Rutgers University football team will take on Pittsburgh in the second edition of the Emerald Isle Classic in Dublin on Dec. 2.

The game was switched from its original site at Giants Stadium, East Rutherford, N.J.

The first game was played last November in Dublin where an enthusiastic crowd of 42,535 fans at Lansdowne Road Stadium saw Boston College outscore Army, 38-24.

Lyme disease last summer and was inundated with letters from readers who have been suffering with the symptoms. (Their doctors didn't know what they had.) Thank you for the opportunity to write about it again. I'm praying for your recovery.

DEAR READERS: Lyme disease is an insidious bacterial infection caused by tiny ticks. These ticks are about the size of a poppy seed. They feed on people and animals, often deer. Although pets do not transmit the disease to humans, they can carry the ticks into the home.

These ticks have been identified in 42 states, but are most often found in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Wisconsin.

How does one avoid Lyme disease? By avoiding wooded areas whenever possible. If you do go into the woods, wear long pants and tuck your cuffs into your socks. Wear light-colored clothing so you can spot ticks readily. Put repellent on your clothing and get repellent collars for your pets. When you undress check your body for ticks. If you find them, remove carefully with tweezers.

Symptoms: A rash or a ring-shaped red spot like a bull's eye that grows larger every day, plus flu-like symptoms (fever, chills and headaches), a stiff neck and difficulty concentrating. Two or three weeks later there will be pain and swelling of the joints. If not treated promptly, it can cause blindness, heart and lung disease, and severe eye and speech problems.

If you think you have been bitten by a Lyme tick, call your doctor at once. A blood test—taken two to three weeks after the bite—will determine yes or no. If your doctor doesn't know what to do, he or she should contact the local board of health for guidance. The earlier the treatment, the better chance the patient has for full recovery.

Is life passing you by? Want to improve your social skills? Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a self-addressed, long business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.15 (this includes postage and handling) to: Friends, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

MELISSA ANN SANDERS, JAMES MALCOLM GULLEY

Engagement announced

Mr. and Mrs. Julian W. Johnson of Lubbock, formerly of Hereford, announce the engagement of their daughter, Melissa Ann Sanders, to James Malcolm Gulley.

The prospective groom is the son of Elzada Gulley and the late Davis Gulley of Muleshoe.

The couple has set July 8 as their wedding date. Vows will be solemnized at The Lodge in Cloudcroft, N.M.

The bride-elect is a 1973 graduate of Hereford High School and a 1977 graduate of West Texas State University School of Nursing. She is currently employed as the RN Nurse Manager of the infirmary of Lubbock State School.

Gulley graduated in 1971 from Muleshoe High School and is a 1976 graduate of Texas Tech University. He is employed as assistant operations manager at Gro-Agri Seed Company in Lubbock.

Local women cited as "outstanding"

The board of advisors for the Outstanding Young Women of America awards program announced recently that several Hereford women have been selected for inclusion in the 1988 edition of Outstanding Young Women of America.

Now in its 24th year, the OYWA program is designed to honor and encourage women between the ages of 21 and 36 who have distinguished themselves in many fields of endeavor, such as service to community, professional leadership, academic achievement, business advancement, cultural accomplishments, and civic and political participation.

"Achievements in these areas are the result of dedication, responsibility, and a drive for excellence—qualities which deserve to be recognized and remembered," said program coordinator R. Diane Lee of Montgomery, Ala.

Hereford women cited include Kimberley Ann Hollingsworth, 247 Fir; Cindy Jo Morgan, 208 Douglas; Gaye B. Reily, 241 Star; Guadalupe Adriana Sanford, 815 Brevard; Debra Diane Schroeter, 705 Country Club Drive; Nena D. Veazey, 300 Sunset; and Amy Mason Greer of Canyon, formerly of Hereford.

These women, along with others chosen from throughout North America, were selected after 115,000 nominations were received from previous OYWA winners, area leaders, and groups.

Each woman will be represented by her biographical entry in the OYWA annual awards publication.

A burned finger should be immersed in cold water for at least several minutes. Cold water will both ease the pain and help prevent scarring. The use of ice should be avoided.

Realize energy savings, efficiency in home lighting

Lighting takes only 12 to 15 percent of the electricity used in a home. Still, there are ways to economize on electric bills for lighting.

-Turn off lights when you don't need them.

-Use dimmers, when appropriate, and photo-electric cells or timers to turn outdoor lights on and off automatically.

-Investigate reflector-type bulbs (R) for task and accent lighting, as well as tungsten halogen bulbs with a "capsule" positioned within the lamp's reflector, which redirects this reflected light into the beam and has a specially designed lens. These bulbs cost more than standard type bulbs but last longer, are smaller and provide more effective light. Of course, they must be used in appropriate fixtures.

-Install energy-saving fluorescent where practical. They give more lumens-per-watt (more light from the amount of electricity consumed) and the new and improved color-rendering capabilities make them more viable: Deluxe cool white, warm white and deluxe warm white are available in addition to the original cool white. The chart shows some examples calculated on the use of cool white.

-Buy energy-saving incandescent bulbs. Read the packaging for information.

-In new installations, consider low-voltage lighting.

Effective lighting, using the most appropriate fixture for the lighting situation, is the best dollar-saving ideal of all. It enhances seeing ability, can add to home decor, and increases home value.

For a 24-page booklet on effective lighting, send a check for $2.00 to: American Lighting Association, 435 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy of "Lighting Your Life," and visit a lighting showroom where expert advice is available.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Manley Burrow of Snyder and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Rudd of Route 5, Hereford. Miss Burrow is attending Texas Tech University and is temporarily employed by Big T Pump.

Rudd is also attending Texas Tech and is employed by Kimball Farm Service.

Villarreal awarded law school stipend

Randy Villarreal of Hereford was awarded a law school stipend to Texas Tech University recently.

The son of Hector and Lupe Villarreal of 112 Star, he was the first recipient of the Minority Student Law School Scholarship for Angelo State University graduates enrolling at the Texas Tech School of Law.

School of Law, and ASU President Lloyd D. Vincent.

Villarreal is a 1985 graduate of Hereford High School.

RANDY VILLARREAL

The Minority Student Law Scholarship, provided by the TTU School of Law, provides $3,500 annually to cover the full tuition, fees, and book allowance. The scholarship may be renewed for two additional years at the discretion of the dean of the law school.

Villarreal graduated from ASU last month with a bachelor of arts degree. He attended ASU on a four-year Carr Academic Scholarship.

During the presentation of the stipend, Villarreal was honored at a luncheon April 28 attended by Frank Newton, dean of the TTU

Abundant Life

COMPLAINING IS HURTFUL
By Bob Wear

Complaining seems to be common to most of us, and most of us do too much of it; but all of us agree that it is a hurtful practice. More often than not, it tears down rather than builds up.

It usually adds to our problems, and often causes pain and grief. It is usually an imposition upon the one who is expected to listen to it, and it detracts from the personality effectiveness of the person doing it.

"We have no more right to put our discordant states of mind into the lives of those around us and rob them of their sunshine and brightness than we have to enter their houses and steal their silverware."--Julia seton.

This is not a discussion of the legitimate, formal type of complaint, but the unhappy and unjustified talking about the things we may not like, about the personal difficulties which we should keep to ourselves, about the things we see in others which are none of our business, etc.--Things that would be better left unsaid.

The chronic complainer is a problem to himself and to everybody else. If the weather is hot, it is too hot; when the weather is cold, it is too cold; when it is dry, it is too dry; and when the rain is falling, it is either at the wrong time or too much. Some people are never pleased, and are inclined to find something wrong with every body and everything.

It may be that most of us do some complaining, complaining that should not be done. One thing is sure, it is one of the human practices we should do our best to eliminate. We may not be completely happy about our situation in life but complaining about it does not provide the means of improving it. In fact, complaining can easily become the most undesirable feature about us and our life condition. We do not want this to happen.

Complaining can create shadows, low spirits and pain where these would not otherwise exist.

Eat dessert and its dish

Better Homes and Gardens Magazine Food Editor

Have your dessert and eat the dish too! Edible fluted chocolate cups hold a rich almond-coffee mixture. Use your microwave for quick, scorch-free melting of the chocolate and margarine for the cups and the marshmallows for the filling.

FROZEN ALMOND TARTS
3/4 of an 8-ounce bar milk chocolate, broken up
2 tablespoons margarine or butter
20 marshmallows
1-3rd cup milk
1 tablespoon instant coffee crystals

3 tablespoons amaretto
1/2 cup whipping cream
Additional whipping cream and sliced almonds (optional)
In a 2-cup glass measure place chocolate and margarine. Cook, uncovered, on 100 percent power (high) about 1 minute or until soft. Stir just until combined. Do not overstir.

Place 8 paper bake cups in muffin pans. Spoon about 1 tablespoon chocolate mixture into each cup; spread evenly with narrow metal spatula over bottom and up sides of bake cups. Chill in freezer until firm.

In a 2-quart microwave-safe casserole combine marshmallows, milk and coffee crystals. Cook, uncovered, on high 2 1/2 to 3 minutes or until marshmallows are melted, stirring twice during cooking. Stir in amaretto. Chill mixture in freezer for 30 to 45 minutes or until cold but not set, stirring twice.

A Few Stolen Moments With Dad

No matter how old we get, it seems like the times spent with Dad are unique and special. There is something about Fathers -- an instinctive something -- that breeds a bonding unlike any other we experience in our lives. With Dad we share a certain pride in our accomplishments -- from the short distance with no training wheels through the years' journey to graduation. Just as though it was yesterday, we can remember walks with him laughing all the way to the fishing hole, crying all the way to the altar.

On this Father's Day, First National Bank extends to you our wishes for a memorable day and a few stolen moments with the man you call Dad.

Award winners

Jennifer Hicks, at left, and Jill Dutton, Deaf Smith County 4-H members, recently attended the 1989 State 4-H Roundup held at Texas A&M University. During the 4-H Food Show, Jill received a blue ribbon with a fourth place ranking and Jennifer received a blue ribbon with a fifth place ranking out of state-wide participants.

Awards captured at State Roundup

Deaf Smith County 4-H'ers took part in the 1989 State 4-H Roundup, June 5-8, at Texas A&M University.

The county's 4-H members were among some 1,600 from across Texas taking part in a host of activities.

The State 4-H Food Show was held the first two days. Jill Dutton received a blue ribbon with a fourth place ranking out of 14. Jennifer Hicks received a blue ribbon with a fifth place ranking out of 14 state-wide participants. Shawna Wagoner of Hemphill County placed first in nutritional snacks and desserts. Shawna is the granddaughter of Joe Wagoner of Hereford.

Competition continued with judging teams and method demonstrations. Deaf Smith County 4-H'ers netted in the top ranks with Jill Dutton and Jennifer Hicks placing in the top three winners in horticulture preparation and use. Dutton and Hicks were presented awards at the awards program and again at the assembly.

Others representing Deaf Smith County in the demonstration contest included Wendy Peabody in family life educational activity. Wendy placed sixth out of a field of 20 competitors. Jill Johnson participated in Junior Beef Cattle Symposium with a placing of 10th out of 18.

The Deaf Smith County livestock judging team of Jim Bret Campbell, Jeffery Carlson and Greg Urbanczyk placed 11th overall out of 28 teams. They were high point team in beef cattle. Individual placings included Jim Bret Campbell third high individual in beef with Jeffery Carlson fifth and Greg Urbanczyk 11th.

Accompanying the state competitors were leaders Bill and Teresa Dutton, Susan Hicks, and agent Dennis Newton and Beverly Harder. Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Here's news that erupts with interest: when active, the Paricutin volcano in central Mexico could spew four million pounds of rock and lava into the air in one minute.

Woman's Health

SAFE TAMPON USE
By George W. Morley, M.D.
College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists

Although the furor has died down, toxic shock syndrome (TSS) is still around, with several hundred cases reported each year. By knowing its causes and symptoms, you can protect yourself from this ailment.

Researchers have discovered that as tampons collect blood, menstrual fluid and oxygen in the vagina, a common but possibly dangerous bacterium Staphylococcus aureus can multiply rapidly in the right environment.

The toxin they produce can enter the bloodstream, causing symptoms resembling a bad flu—fever of 102 or more, vomiting, diarrhea, dizziness, a body rash, severe dehydration, aching muscles, and scratchy throat. Without care, the disease can lead to a drop in blood pressure causing shock, and in rare cases, even death. TSS is treated with antibiotics and fluid replacement. However, once you have had it, you are more likely to develop TSS again.

Studies have linked the polyester fibers once used in tampons to TSS. They absorbed magnesium in the vagina causing the speedup of bacterial growth. Although the fibers have been eliminated, TSS still occurs in a small number of cases with the use of any kind of tampon, and with diaphragms and contraceptive sponges. A recently discovered second toxin causes similar symptoms and may be responsible for TSS in nonmenstrual cases.

By following some common-sense safety guidelines, you can still use tampons safely. Wear tampons only during the day, changing them often, and at night use sanitary pads. Night use of pads allows any vaginal irritations to heal, cutting down on the risk of infection.

Use tampons only during your heaviest flow—a saturated tampon slides in and out of the vagina easily without causing any abrasions, but a dry tampon may cause irritation.

Sometimes a woman will use a tampon when she feels her period is about to come and leave it in longer than is really good for her. If you find that you have used a dry tampon longer than you should, take it out immediately. Then do not have sex for a few days, and don't use any tampon until your next period.

If you have any warning signs of TSS, see your doctor immediately. With prompt treatment, you will be back on your feet in no time.

SECAUCUS, N.J. (AP) - Reports of Morton Downey Jr.'s show being yanked off the air are not true, said his producers.

The Record of Hackensack reported Wednesday that sources close to the controversial "Morton Downey Show" said the program will stop taping at the end of the month and reruns will be shown until September, when syndication contracts expire.

The confrontational program is syndicated by MCA, parent company of WWOR-TV in Secaucus, where the show is taped.

The show's producer, Bill Boggs, said he's been through this before.

"It's just a lot of gossip and speculation," he said. "We're controversial and people are quick to dance on your grave."

MCA said it's pursuing contract renewals and new markets, but there is no word yet on how many stations will pick up the show, said John Murphy, a spokesman for MCA and the program. The show is broadcast in 72 markets, Murphy said.

High blood pressure more severe in Black Americans

High blood pressure has earned the serious stigma of "the silent killer," and has become a major concern of all Americans. But for black Americans the threat of the silent killer is even more severe - one in every three blacks today suffers from high blood pressure.

About 60 million American adults and children have high blood pressure. It's called the "silent killer" because in many cases the first symptoms of high blood pressure are heart attack, stroke or even death. Blacks have a significantly greater chance of having high blood pressure than whites, and in blacks high blood pressure tends to be five to seven times more severe than in whites. In addition, the increased incidence of high blood pressure in blacks makes black Americans two to three times more likely to suffer from an intracerebral hemorrhage (or bleeding into the brain), and 14-18 times more likely to suffer from kidney failure.

No conclusive evidence points to one specific reason for the high incidence of high blood pressure in blacks, although race, heredity and age are known risk factors. Being overweight and using excessive amounts of salt are two avoidable risk factors.

Blood pressure results from the force generated by the heart which propels blood into the arteries and through the circulatory system. High blood pressure, or hypertension, is a chronic increase in blood pressure above a normal range. Generally, a pressure reading of "140 over 90" or higher is considered high. High blood pressure that goes untreated can be serious and even fatal. In 1986, almost 31,000 Americans died from high blood pressure. High blood pressure is a leading risk factor for heart attack, stroke and atherosclerosis (hardening of the arteries).

So, what can be done? The American Heart Association suggests that everyone be aware of the risks of high blood pressure and follow these 10 important steps:

1. Know your blood pressure and have it checked regularly.
  2. Know what your ideal weight should be and keep it near that level.
  3. Avoid excessive salt in cooking or at meals; avoid salty foods.
  4. Eat a low-fat diet, following the American Heart Association dietary guidelines.
  5. Don't smoke cigarettes.
  6. Take high blood pressure medicine exactly as prescribed; don't run out of pills even for a single day.
  7. Keep your appointments with the doctor.
  8. Follow your doctor's advice about exercise.
  9. Live a normal life in every other way.
  10. Make certain your parents, brothers, sisters and children have their pressures checked regularly.
- The silent killer is controllable. The secret is in prevention. Take control of your life. You can help make it longer and healthier!

ELZIE SEALY

Sealy to be honored

A birthday reception will honor Elzie Sealy today, Sunday, in observance of her 80th birthday.

The celebration will be held from 2-4 p.m. in the La Plata Manor Clubhouse located at 425 Ranger.

The event will be hosted by her children, Jean Gardner, Gloria Durham, Dell Renfro, and Kim Sealy.

Friends are invited and the hosts request that no gifts be brought.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: My doctor, who is a heart specialist, had her assistant hand me a card with the printed information on it stating that I needed protection from bacterial endocarditis because of an existing heart condition, aortic stenosis, mild.

She did not describe or tell me the problem, but on reading your column I am concerned and need to know more. I had dental work done two months ago and took Pen-Vee K several times. Is it possible to take too many antibiotics? And what if I should have to have other work done? I do get short of breath. I'm 71 years old. Could you send me your special issue, Understanding Your Heart?

DEAR READER: Your cardiologist has determined that you have a narrowed or obstructed aortic valve. This is the valve located at the outlet of your left ventricle, the heavy pumping chamber that pumps blood into the aorta. The aorta is the main artery that supplies blood to all of your body except the lungs. The obstruction can cause your heart to work harder to pump blood through the narrowed valve.

You may have been born with a defective aortic valve, in which case your heart has done well for all these years. Or you could have had rheumatic heart disease that damaged the valve.

In any case, when a person has a damaged heart valve it is wise to take antibiotics when you are having any dental procedures, including cleaning the teeth, or for any operation. That is because bacteria that may be released during procedures may lodge on that damaged valve. They may multiply and cause further damage to the valve. This usually does not happen to healthy, normal heart valves.

So take your antibiotics as your doctor has suggested. A person can have reactions or complications to antibiotics, but that is less likely than further damage to your heart if you didn't take them as your doctor has recommended.

You will understand how your aortic valve affects your heart better after reading, Understanding Your Heart, which I am sending you as you requested. Others who want this special issue can send $1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/31-04, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

Social Security

SELF EMPLOYMENT EARNS SOCIAL SECURITY COVERAGE

If you are operating a business as a self-employed person, you are earning Social Security coverage, Jim Talbot, Social Security manager in Amarillo, Texas, said today.

You are self-employed if you engage in a trade, business, or profession, either by yourself or as a partner. You and your husband or wife or other family members may operate a business together. Each partner then reports a share of self-employment income for taxes according to the partnership agreement.

You report these earnings as part of your income tax return. If your net earnings are at least $400, you must file a tax return even though you owe no other taxes.

Talbot explained that earnings credits are needed to qualify for Social Security benefits. The number of credits needed depends on a person's date of birth. The total amount of earnings under the Social Security system determines the amount of the Social Security benefit.

For information about self-employment and Social Security, people can call (806)376-2241 and ask for the factsheet, "If You're Self-Employed," Talbot said. The Amarillo Social Security office is located at 3601 W. 15th.

CHILDREN GET SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS TOO

Many people in the Amarillo area are not aware that children can receive Social Security benefits too, Jim Talbot, Social Security manager in Amarillo, Texas, said today.

Over 3 million children are among the 39 million people nationwide who receive Social Security benefits. They are the children of retired and disabled beneficiaries or of deceased workers who had worked enough under Social Security at the time of death, Talbot said. Stepchildren and grandchildren are also eligible under some conditions.

Eligible children can get benefits until they turn age 18. Benefits can continue through summer vacations to age 19 if the child is a full-time student in elementary or secondary school. If a child marries, entitlement ends. Unmarried adult children can become entitled too, if the child is disabled and the disability started before age 22.

Parents can get an estimate of the Social Security benefits their children could receive by sending for a "Personal Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement" for themselves. To get a statement, parents should call the toll-free telephone number 1-800-937-2000 and ask for Form SSA-7004, or they can write to:

Consumer Information Center
 Department 55
 Pueblo, Colorado 81009.
 For more information or to apply for benefits for a child, people can call (806) 376-2241, Talbot said. The Amarillo Social Security office is located at 3601 W. 15th, Amarillo, Texas.

The annual event, sponsored by the sixth Street Merchants' Association, will offer craft and collectible vendors on the Street, food booths, and a wide variety of street entertainment.

Call (806) 373-8111 if interested in booth rental. Admission is free, and hours are Saturday from 10 am to 6 pm, and Sunday from 1 pm to 5 pm.

STAR AT OXFORD

MISSION, Kan. (AP) - Michael Erdos, a former basketball star at Dickinson College, is still starring on the court while a student at Oxford, according to the NCAA.

Erdos earned an NCAA postgraduate scholarship in 1987 after being named an academic All-American. His father, Robert W. Erdos, informed the NCAA that his son has captained the Oxford basketball team the last two seasons and has averaged 21.7 points per game in scoring.

Erdos, who majored in Latin and mathematics at Dickinson, graduated at the top of his class with an average of 3.950.

Robin Williams shines in 'Dead Poets Society'

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
John Keating is the kind of teacher of which every student dreamed but rarely encountered. He tickles the ribs, he fires the mind, he preaches nonconformity. He even instructs his pupils to rip out the innocuous introduction from a book of poetry. Obviously, John Keating isn't going to last at a rock-ribbed New England prep school in the 1960s.

Robin Williams portrays John Keating in "Dead Poets Society" with only a trace of Adrian Cronauer of "Good Morning, Vietnam." While trying to rouse his bored students, he demonstrates how Shakespeare could be done by Marlon Brando and John Wayne. Otherwise, he plays it straight-arrow, and he is wonderful.

"Dead Poets Society" itself is wonderful, a cool oasis amid arid summer sequels. It is that rare comedy-drama that stimulates the mind as well as the emotions.

The title may be a turnoff for some folks, but it shouldn't be. When Keating was a student at the school, he and other free-thinkers formed the society to read poetry and plot against the faculty. Unbeknownst to him, his own students revive the custom in an obvious collision course with the authorities.

The film focuses more on the boys than on their teacher, and they are portrayed with insight. The central figure is Neil Perry (Robert Sean Leonard), who yearns to be an actor despite his father's stern opposition. Neil's roommate is Todd Anderson (Ethan Hawke) who is so withdrawn he can't speak up in class.

With their teacher's inspiration, Neil decides to defy his father and Todd comes out of his shell. There is a terrific scene in which Williams forces Todd to recite a poem he had written. The other boys in the cast are equally well drawn; they talk and behave as you would expect rich boys of the period to.

Australian Peter Weir, who captured the American scene in "Witness," does it again in "Dead Poets Society." His direction of the young actors is brilliant, and he keeps Williams on a tight rein. Tom Schulman's script is literate and clever, veering to the ultimate tragedy. The ending may jar some viewers unless they note the portents along the way.

Robin Williams should be applauded not only for his performance but for taking a role that is not a star turn in a film that may have to hunt for an audience. A major factor in the film is John Seale's gorgeous photography of what is supposed to be New England but is actually Delaware.

A Touchstone Picture produced by Steven Haft, Paul Junger Witt and Tony Thomas, "Dead Poets Society" is the biggest movie treat of the year so far. Rated PG for language and intensity. Running time: 126 minutes.

Cindy Williams back on TV

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Cindy Williams and Bill Hudson, stars of the Disney Channel's "Just Like Family," are indeed just like family.

Not only are the two married in real life, and the parents of two children, but one daughter has made an appearance on the new comedy series.

Williams and Hudson play a childless couple that hires two children to pose as their offspring. That's to satisfy the whims of Hudson's new boss, who runs a children's clothing company and drops hints about Hudson being a "family man."

The weekly half-hour comedy series, taped before an audience, made its debut in mid-May.

One of the children in "Just Like Family" is named Emily, after their 6-year-old daughter.

"The real Emily was in a birthday party scene recently," says Williams, who is best known for her role as Shirley Feeney on the hit comedy series "Laverne and Shirley." "She was a tad confused when we called the actress Emily."

"She'd told us one day, 'Why can't I be on the show?'" Hudson says. "The next week was the birthday party and we talked to the producers. She was an extra with no lines. Afterward, when we took her home, she said, 'Next time I want lines.'"

Both parents say they like the family feeling of working at the Disney Studio.

"It's like being in high school," says Hudson, who began his career as a member of the musical group The Hudson Brothers. "The studio's like a campus. It's a real family atmosphere."

Williams quit "Laverne and Shirley" in 1982 when she became pregnant. The series, which also starred Penny Marshall as Laverne De Fazio, lasted for another season. The show, a spinoff of "Happy Days," made its debut in January 1976 in first place in the ratings. It finished the season in third place and the next season it was second to "Happy Days." It was first for two seasons, 1977-78 and 1978-79.

Since then, Williams has been looking for another series and working mostly at Disney.

Williams had starred in "Save the Dog" for the Disney Channel and did two Disney Sunday Movies, "The Leftovers," with John Denver, and "Help Wanted: Kids," with Hudson. The latter inspired the current series.

Williams turned down initial overtures from the studio to make it into a series.

"I didn't want to do a show about parents and kids," she says. "I felt the market was saturated. I wanted to do an ensemble show. That didn't happen, so I said let's do this one."

In the series, they play a young couple that moves from New York to Nevada when the husband (Hudson as Tom Burke) accepts a new job with a children's clothing company. Williams is Lisa Burke, a big-city newspaper woman who finds her only outlet is a small weekly newspaper. Gabriel Damon, 13, and Grace Johnston, 8, also star as their "rented" children.

Pat McCormick appears as the head of Giddyup Clothes and Dan Hedaya is the seedy Uncle Lucky.

"The way we explore the rented aspect is that both the adults and the children need something from each other," Hudson says. "We need them for the job and they need us because they're little scam artists. They live with Uncle Lucky, who's always got some scheme going."

"The important thing is that a bond grows between the couple and the children. Especially with Cindy, whose maternal instincts come out."

But, Williams adds, "Basically, it's a comedy."

Backula enjoys show

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) - Scott Bakula, in his role as time-traveling Sam Beckett in NBC's "Quantum Leap," never knows who he will be from week to week.

Beckett, in fact, seldom knows who he is, or what he looks like, until he catches sight of himself in a mirror. Beckett, you see, is a scientist taping his way through time as the result of a time-travel experiment that went haywire.

Whenever he leaps in time he becomes a different person. The audience sees him as Beckett, but to people in the story he appears as the other person. He must stay there, as that person, until he solves a problem and leaps again in time.

He has been a teen-age hot rod, a black man, a professor, a test pilot and assorted other identities. Next season he's a woman and a ghost-busting parapsychologist.

He's occasionally joined by his mentor, Albert, played by Dean

Stockwell. Albert, however, appears as a holographic projection visible only to Beckett and to the audience.

"In one show I was a gangster hit man," he says. "I popped in with my pants around my ankles and a woman saying, 'Frankie, you were terrific.' Dean popped up a minute later.

"It's great for me as an actor. Every show is so totally different. Although we only travel within the lifetime of my character, which is from 1953 to the present, we can do some period stories with old cars and props. The hairdressers a couple of weeks ago had to do 50 beehive hairdos every day.

"It's a fun show to do. It has elements of 'Peggy Sue Got Married' and 'Back To the Future.' The twist is I get to be in somebody else's shoes."

Bakula, which rhymes with Dracula, is in Pasadena for an episode set in a haunted mansion. The huge stone house, lined inside with marble and filled with statuary, sits atop a hill across the Arroyo Seco from downtown Pasadena.

"Ideally, my own character of Sam Beckett shines through each new character every week," says Bakula.

"I come into a situation, I don't know what's going on, then have to get acquainted and solve the problem. It's whimsical, yet has an element of sadness. Sam is lost in time. His life seems to be ended. He lives his life as other people."

Bakula says the offer to do the series came "out of the blue." He'd just returned from New York where he had appeared in the musical "Romance, Romance."

"Quantum Leap," which NBC has renewed for next season, is Bakula's third TV series. He smiles and says, "Knock on wood. The third time's a charm. It's awfully nice to be picked up. It's disappointing when a show fails. But both were great experiences for me."

His first ABC's "Gung Ho" in 1986-87, based on the hit movie about the cultural clash when a Japanese car company opens a factory in Pennsylvania. Next in 1988 was CBS' "Eisenhower & Lutz," a comedy created by Alan Burns, co-creator with Jim Brooks of "The Mary Tyler Moore Show."

His first television appearance in many years was in the pilot episode of CBS' "Designing Women" as Annie Potts' former husband.

After his move here in January 1986, Bakula also worked on "My Sister Sam" and "Matlock" and was in a television movie with John Ritter. He starred in a Disney TV movie pilot called "I-Man." He played a man who breathed radiated gas and became indestructible.

Bakula met his wife, Krista, while on tour in Connecticut. They were both appearing in "The Baker's Wife." They now have a 5-year-old daughter and she has "taken a leave of absence from acting."

Bakula says the offer to do the series came "out of the blue." He'd just returned from New York where

CONTACT LENS PROBLEMS

Q. Why does the use of eye make-up sometimes make contact lenses feel uncomfortable?

A. Mascaras, liners and eye shadows contain chemicals that sometimes cause an allergic reaction in the thin, sensitive skin areas near the eye. Fragrances from soaps and shaving creams may also affect the eyes. Artificial coloring in many eye makeup also acts as an irritant to the sensitive eye. The itching, redness and discomfort of any eye allergy often feels as if a foreign particle is in the eye. In some cases, contaminated mascara can cause painful eye infections. It's important to be extra careful when applying eye make-up and use a hypoallergenic brand.

Q. Can a person become allergic to contact lens solution?

A. Some patients develop allergies to solutions containing thimerosal or other preservatives. Now there are numerous solutions available with safer or no preservatives. Your optometrist can recommend the best solution for you.

Names In The News

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) - Entertainer Kris Kristofferson and his wife, honoring a promise to their slain housekeeper, have become guardians of the woman's three daughters.

The Malibu couple's request was granted Tuesday by Superior Court Judge David Rothman after several days of closed hearings to decide custody of Maria Juana Aguilar's children.

Kristofferson and his wife, Lisa, said they wanted keep a promise they made to her a week before her death: to see that her children were taken care of should anything happen to her.

Rothman granted co-guardianship to the woman's sister, Vicenta Aguilar, with whom the children will live in Culver City. He refused a guardianship request from the family of Ricardo Arauz, who pleaded guilty in March to second-degree murder in the shooting death of his common-law wife, Ms. Aguilar.

NEW YORK (AP) - Ellen Burstyn will be Broadway's new "Shirley Valentine."

The actress who won a Tony Award for her performance in "Same Time, Next Year" and an Oscar for "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore" takes over the title role in Willy Russell's one-woman comedy July 17, a spokesman for the show said Thursday.

Pauline Collins, who won the 1989 best actress Tony Award for her portrayal of Shirley, a bored English housewife who runs off to Greece, leaves the play July 1. From July 3 through July 15, the role will be played by Patricia Kilgariff.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The cops may be good at nabbing criminals, but they haven't been doing very well selling 30,000 Linda Ronstadt concert tickets to raise money for a sports center for young people.

But prospects for selling the $10 tickets looked better after the police officers' plight was publicized Thursday by the Los Angeles Times.

"We've been getting a lot of calls from a lot of different people, including some publicity agents, coming on board to help us," said Officer Dale Erwin of the Los Angeles Police Department's Hollenbeck Division. "People read the article and want to get involved and help us out."

The newspaper story explained how Sgt. Alexander Gomez was dejected because he had volunteered to sell tickets to the July 1-2 Linda Ronstadt concerts, but had sold only 3,000 of the 30,000 by Wednesday.

"Where do I go from here," Gomez had asked rhetorically. "It's so much easier for me to go out on patrol and put my suspect in jail and go home."

Gomez came up with the concert idea to raise money to help meet higher operating costs of the police department's soon-to-expand Hollenbeck Youth Center, where 10,000 youths each year participate in boxing, karate, baseball and basketball programs.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Actress Lisa Bonet is suing a drug store chain over a photograph of her baby that disappeared from a set of newly developed snapshots and turned up in a supermarket tabloid.

Miss Bonet, star of "The Cosby Show" and the movie "Angel Heart," filed suit Wednesday in federal court saying that when she picked up developed film from a neighborhood Osco Drug Store in suburban Reseda, a negative and photograph of her then 3-week-old daughter, Zoe, was missing.

The National Enquirer ran the photo Jan. 10 with an article on Miss Bonet and musician-husband Lenny Kravitz that congratulated baby Zoe for transforming the actress "from a high-kicking hell-raiser" to a "doting mother."

The lawsuit asks for unspecified general damages and $5 million in punitive damages. The complaint doesn't name the tabloid, but it accuses Osco's parent company, Anaheim-based America Drug Stores Inc., of "willful, wanton, malicious and oppressive" conduct in its handling of Zoe's photo.

A corporate spokeswoman said no one was available to comment, and the Los Angeles bureau of the National Enquirer refused to comment.

McLEAN, Va. (AP) - Comedians Chevy Chase and Steve Allen, talk show hosts David Letterman and Larry King, and weatherman Willard Scott admit to tying one on - an ugly tie, that is.

And they've donated the offensive cravats to a fund-raiser called "Ugly Ties of the Rich and Famous."

Anyone looking for the traditional Father's Day present can bid on them Sunday at a silent auction to benefit Big Brothers of the National Capital Area and the Leukemia Society.

The auction at a local hotel is open to members of the public, who may buy the ties or simply view the collection before the bidding begins.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) - Actor David Keith, who recently played Oliver North in a TV movie, has pleaded innocent to drunken driving charges.

The 33-year-old actor, who also has played in the movies "An Officer and a Gentleman" and "Lords of Discipline," was absent from the Municipal Court hearing Thursday, but his attorney, Robert Shapiro, entered his plea, and Keith was allowed to remain free on his own recognizance.
