Resurfacing U.S. Highway 60

A construction crew keeps an eye on a machine that is stripping the old surface off of U.S. Highway 60 in Hereford as part of reconstruction work on the highway in Hereford. The highway will have the present driving surface stripped from the intersection with U.S. Highway 385 to the county line east of Hereford, then have a new surface installed. Motorists are urged to heed warning signs in the construction area.

Hereford Bull

By Speedy Nieman

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says even a mosquito doesn't get a slap on the back until it starts working.

All you need to grow thick, green grass is a crack in the sidewalk.

The young boy applied for a job at a drugstore and the boss started to fill out an interview form. "Your name?"

"Thomas Edison," answered the boy.

"That's a pretty well-known name, isn't it?"

"It ought to be," said the boy. "I've been delivering groceries around this neighborhood for two years."

The plight of the homeless in America is more myth than fact, claims James Roberts, editor of The Andrews County News. Here's his recent report:

"Paraphrasing the famous quotation about a rose by Gertrude Stein, a bum is a bum is a bum."

"But nowadays, we don't call 'em bums—we use the more swallowable term: homeless."

"And to hear all the caterwauling of the bleeding hearts, our nation is overrun by the homeless. It became such a popular issue on television and in the news magazines last year that all presidential candidates felt it necessary to dedicate a plank in the party platforms to doing something about the homeless."

"Because of a few highly visible bums living in a park across the street from the White House, Congress has appropriated a few million dollars to study the plight of the homeless."

"Even our Texas Legislature got caught up in the popularity of the subject of the pitiful homeless and enacted legislation that interlocks most health and care agencies into addressing the problem of the homeless. They were probably helped along in their zeal to help the homeless by the photos published in several daily newspapers around the state of several bums living beneath a highly-traveled bridge in Austin."

"But three new national surveys of the homeless indicate that the issue is more myth than fact, more emotional than reality, and more hype than anything else.

"Michael Dukakis and former speaker Jim Wright claimed, as did countless news reports, that three million Americans were huddled in streets, doorways, and shelters each night."

"Hogwash! A 1988 study by the nonpartisan Urban Institute, based in part on interviews with 1,700 homeless individuals in 20 large cities, concludes that at most there are 600,000 Americans living in shelters or on the street on a given night."

"Percentagewise, that's about the number of bums we've always had in this country."

"The three independent studies also debunked some other myths about the homeless. Last year, George Bush said that mental illness was the 'principal cause' of homelessness. Yet, two of the surveys found that only a third of homeless adults are mentally ill. Moreover, the wholesale release of mental patients from hospitals did little to create the homeless problem of the '80s."

"Tulane University Prof. James Wright reports in a forthcoming book that fewer than five percent of the 83,000 homeless men and women treated at the Robert Wood Johnson clinics were in a mental institution immediately prior to becoming homeless."

"Another myth: That they are people like us! T'ain't so. About two-thirds of homeless adults have at least one serious personal problem that helps put them on the streets. Studies show that 33 to 38 percent of homeless adults are alcoholics, 13 to 25 percent are drug abusers, and 21 to 24 percent either have a felony conviction or have served time in state and federal prisons. Besides being extremely poor, homeless men and women are also sadly isolated from their own families and most American institutions."

"Another myth: That the new homeless are displaced working-class Americans who can no longer find inexpensive rental apartments. Not true! The surveys found that most homeless parents with children

Bush begins school summit

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) - President Bush, declaring he wants to know what "we're doing wrong" in American schools, is sitting down with the nation's governors today for a two-day summit designed to develop national education goals at minimum additional cost to the federal government.

"I'm going down there to listen and work with the governors, not try to impose an agenda from here," the president said in Washington on Tuesday, a day before heading to the summit site near the home of a long-ago education president, Thomas Jefferson.

"I want to see us come up with some suggestions that will dramatically change things," Bush said.

Not since 1933, when Franklin D. Roosevelt called together the governors in the midst of the Great Depression, have the states' chief executives and the president joined forces to examine one pressing issue.

Expectations are high for the private high-level discussions at the University of Virginia - a picturesque school founded by Jefferson.

The president was traveling by helicopter to the meeting and then plunging into a series of closed sessions with governors on such topics as revitalizing the teaching profession, improving the learning environment - including keeping drugs out of schools - and governance, or determining who is in charge of the schools.

Education Secretary Lauro Cavazos, a former college president, is the only educator going to the meeting, and virtually the entire Cabinet planned to attend.

By merely inviting the governors to the summit, Bush has drawn unprecedented attention to the failings of the nation's schools and dismal academic achievements of students.

Educators have been trying to stem the declining quality of America's education since the 1983 government report "A Nation at Risk." Now with the new-found interest and attention, Bush and the governors hoped to use the summit to develop a process to establish national goals on what children should learn.

"We've got to see what it is we're doing wrong, how can we be more accountable," Bush said.

It cooks, it freezes, won't do papers

BOSTON (AP) - A new appliance that can chill beer, keep ice cream frozen and cook pizza has college students clamoring, and the inventor, a former computer salesman, crossing his fingers.

The Microfridge is a three-piece appliance comprised of a compact refrigerator, a separate freezer compartment and a mini-micro-wave. It retails for $429.

The founders of Microfridge Inc. of suburban Sharon did more than stack three appliances on top of one another and paint them the same color, however. Their machine, which stands under 4-feet tall, was invented to use no more power than a compact refrigerator.

"Quite simply, when one unit is running, the other one is off," explained co-founder Robert P. Bennett, 33, who said he holds two patents on the Microfridge's circuitry.

When the microwave is turned on, the freezer and refrigerator shut off temporarily. They go back on when the cooking is done, Bennett said. Product testing showed that even when the microwave was on for 45 minutes, the refrigerator and freezer sections gained only 3 degrees, he said.

The first shipment of 1,700 Microfridges went out at the end of August. The company plans two more shipments by the end of November. Sales are expected to top $1.9 million this year, Bennett said, and "the phones are still ringing."

Microfridge has three distributors, which sell the appliance through colleges, military bases and a few stores. The device, whose components are made in various countries, is assembled in San Diego by the U.S. arm of Sanyo Electric Co. Ltd., the Japanese electronics and appliance giant.

"The biggest problem is going to be eventually we'll have to think about competition," said Bennett.

15 indicted by grand jury

Four women accused in the August 21 stabbing of a Hereford man were included in 15 individuals indicted by the Deaf Smith County Grand Jury on Tuesday.

Marie Belen DeLeon, Linda Carol Landeros, Gloria Casias and Josephine Chavez Bustimante Lopez were all indicted for aggravated assault with a deadly weapon. The women were charged in connection with an incident in which Fernando Medero was critically injured during a disturbance in the alley behind his home.

Witnesses indicated that the four women had argued with Medero at the Office Club the evening before the attack. They are accused of attacking the man using a knife and a set of booster cables.

Trinidad Murillo and Alex Mendiaz were indicted for delivery of a controlled substance (heroin) on Tuesday. That indictment resulted from the Aug. 9 arrest of the two men following the alleged sale of heroin in a case investigated by the 222nd District Attorney's Office.

Others indicted on Tuesday and charges against them were:

Jose Javier Davila, sexual assault; Mike Kenneth Reuterskiold Jr., indecency with a child; Relles Garcia Sr., felony driving while intoxicated; Thomas Martin Sinclair, felony driving while intoxicated;

Samuel Montoya, felony driving while intoxicated; Joel Hernandez Ybarra, felony driving while intoxicated; Terry Garcia, burglary of a motor vehicle; Julian Galvan, interference with child custody; and Juan Pablo Florentino, possession of a controlled substance (cocaine).

Pentagon says USSR hasn't kept promises

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Soviet Union is modernizing its armed forces and still poses "a major threat" to Western security despite President Mikhail Gorbachev's promised cutbacks and pledges of reform, says Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney.

Cheney, releasing the Pentagon's eighth annual assessment of Soviet military strength today, sounded a note of caution amid the sweeping changes in the U.S.-Soviet relationship.

"While the United States encourages the evolution of ... a Soviet Union dedicated to democratic principles, we cannot react unilaterally to Soviet initiatives that are not yet implemented or to proposals which, if implemented, can easily be reversed," Cheney said in the study, "Soviet Military Power."

"It is ... clear that despite the dramatic changes occurring in the Soviet Union and the Soviet leadership's declaration of benign intentions toward Western democracies, Soviet military capabilities continue to constitute a major threat to our security," Cheney said in an introduction to the report.

The Soviet Union, the secretary asserted, "continues to upgrade its forces and improve its capabilities."

"Indeed, while some Soviet military units and equipment have been withdrawn from Eastern Europe, the Soviet Union will remain the world's largest military power, even if the General Secretary's promised unilateral reductions take place," Cheney said.

The annual study, which in its early editions under the Reagan administration was derided on Capitol Hill and outside government as a propaganda effort, has evolved into a more comparative summary of the U.S.-Soviet military balance. It even acknowledges that the West leads its arch rival in areas such as naval power.

But with a 159-page array of high-gloss text, pictures and graphs, the study portrays the Soviets as an extremely formidable foe facing a United States that "grapples" with such things as the selection of a mobile missile force.

Saying the likelihood for conflict between the superpowers "is as low as it has been at any time in the postwar era," the book discusses such developments as Gorbachev's announcement of significant cuts in conventional forces, reductions in the Soviet defense budget and weapons procurement, and the U.S.-Soviet arms control agreement on banning intermediate range missiles in Europe.

If the Soviet leader's economic reforms are enacted without corresponding democratic growth, "the West could face a far more formidable Soviet threat than it does today," the study states.

Cheney pointed to the following items - some of them cited in last year's report - as evidence of the continued Soviet strength:

-Despite Gorbachev's announced 14.2 percent reduction in Soviet defense spending, spending since 1985 has increased by an average of 3 percent a year in real terms, while U.S. spending has declined in real terms by more than 11 percent in the same period.

-The Soviets are modernizing offensive strategic nuclear forces at an "extraordinary momentum."

-The Soviets field 170 SS-25 road-mobile missiles and 18 rail-mobile SS-18s while the United States "grapples with the selection of a mobile missile force."

-The Soviets have augmented their strategic ballistic missile submarine force by launching the sixth units of the Typhoon and Delta IV-class submarines.

Relying too much on the relatively small college market could ultimately sink Microfridge Inc., said Chuck Ryan, an industry analyst at Merrill Lynch & Co.

"I think he's got a difficult sale on a price basis, because college students can buy a $99 refrigerator and a $99 microwave and save yourself a lot of money," said Ryan.

According to Bennett, however, a separate freezer makes up for that price difference.

Lauren Massara, a freshman at Brown University, raved about her Microfridge.

"I think it could almost be considered a necessity if you're not on the three-meal plan. You can make breakfast, Eggo Waffles," she

"I mean, this can hold ice cream."

Flour millers visit Amarillo area

Flour millers from Korea, one of Texas' and U.S. largest wheat customers, will visit the Amarillo-Perryton area today through Friday to tour grain industry facilities and meet with area grain producers and marketing specialists.

New president is installed by Kiwanis

James MacLaskey was installed as the new president of the Hereford Whiteface Kiwanis Club at the club's annual installation banquet Monday.

Kiwanis Dist. 33 Lt. Gov. Bobby Owen of Hereford installed the officers and issued a challenge to the club to take on at least one new service project during the year and to make increased membership a high priority.

The late Danny Vermillion was posthumously named "Kiwanian of the Year" for his work and dedication to the club, of which he was a charter member. Linda Vermillion accepted the award and was also presented with a memorial clock by the club.

Officers for 1989-90, include

Maclaskey; Robert Chavez and Dale Smalts, vice presidents; Jerry Warren, secretary; Jim Ward, treasurer; and Mark Landrum, president-elect. Board members include Jerry Koenig and Don Summersgill, three years; Nisar Chand and Floy Driver, two years; and Ron Fuhrman and J.W. Dickerson, one year. Delinda Hernandez was named the club's sweetheart.

Retiring officers were recognized and thanked for their work by outgoing president Jim McMorries. MacLaskey challenged the club to continue improving its service to the community. The club joins the Hereford Noon and Golden K clubs and other community service organizations in projects to benefit the youth and underprivileged of Hereford.

then go to Perryton to meet with officials at Perryton Equity Exchange. The Koreans then go to Oklahoma Friday for more tours.

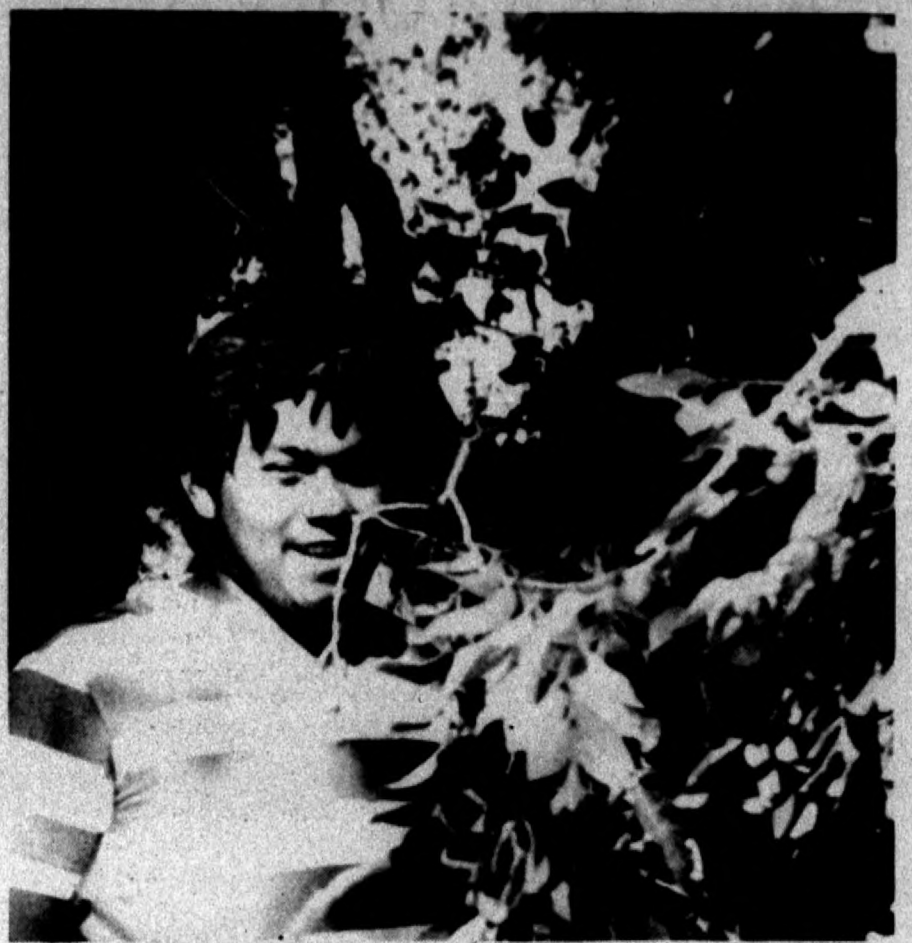

The purpose of the visit is to provide an opportunity for the Korean flour millers to study grain quality, grain grading, marketing, transportation, and meet Texas wheat officials.

Purchases of U.S. wheat by Korea in the past marketing year totaled 66 million bushels, an 88 percent share of their market, making them our sixth largest customer, according to Jack Norman, chairman of the Producers Board.

The Korean wheat mission is part of an on-going market development program of the Texas Wheat Producers Board designed to maintain or help increase foreign markets which may add to greater demand and increased producers' income.

Wheat farmers in Texas support activities such as these foreign market development missions through a 1-cent per bushel state-wide self-assessment on the sale of their wheat.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, September 27, the 270th day of 1989. There are 95 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

Fifty years ago, on September 27, 1939, Warsaw surrendered after weeks of resistance to invading forces from Nazi Germany and the Soviet Union during World War II.

On this date:

In 1779, John Adams was named to negotiate the Revolutionary War's peace terms with Britain.

In 1825, the first locomotive to haul a passenger train was operated by George Stephenson in England.

In 1854, the first great disaster involving an Atlantic Ocean liner occurred when the steamship Arctic sank with 300 people aboard.

In 1928, the United States said it was recognizing the Nationalist Chinese government.

In 1954, "Tonight!" hosted by Steve Allen, made its debut on NBC television.

In 1959, a typhoon battered the main Japanese island of Honshu, killing nearly 5,000 people.

In 1959, Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev concluded his visit to the United States.

In 1964, the Warren Commission issued a report concluding that Lee Harvey Oswald had acted alone in assassinating President John F. Kennedy in November 1963.

In 1986, the Senate joined the House of Representatives in approving the most sweeping changes in the federal tax code since World War II.

Ten years ago: Congress gave final approval to forming the Department of Education, the 13th Cabinet agency in U.S. history.

Five years ago: Democratic presidential nominee Walter F. Mondale met in New York with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko. Earlier that day, in a speech to the U.N. General Assembly, Gromyko voiced skepticism that President Reagan was serious about improving superpower relations.

One year ago: Three days after he had seemingly won the men's 100-meter dash at the Seoul Olympics, Canadian Ben Johnson left for home in disgrace, stripped of his gold medal by officials who said the sprinter had used anabolic steroids.

Today's Birthdays: Former Illinois Senator Charles Percy is 70. Actor William Conrad is 69. Movie director Arthur Penn is 67. Actress Sada Thompson is 60. Actress Kathleen Nolan is 56. Author Barbara Hoar is 55. Sportscaster Dick Schaap is 55. Actor Greg Morris is 55. Singer Meat Loaf is 42. Baseball player Mike Schmidt is 40. Singer Shaun Cassidy is 31.

Thought for Today: "You can only protect your liberties in this world by protecting the other man's freedom. You can only be free if I am free." - Clarence Darrow, American lawyer (1857-1938).

Babbling Brooks

By JOHN BROOKS

Remember all the brouhaha earlier this month when TV Guide ran a "picture" of Oprah Winfrey on the cover?

First, if Oprah really looked like that, she wouldn't have been single this long. There's not a diet in the world that would make someone look that good.

Second, that wasn't all Oprah. It was Oprah's face, but it was Ann-Margret's body. Somebody just cut Oprah's face from a picture and pasted it over Ann-Margret's body. It's something that a lot of men have probably wanted to do for as long as Ann-Margret has been around, put someone else's face on that body. TV Guide just did it one the cover and it created a stir.

That is not the first time that little trick has been done. One of the first times it was done on a large scale was back when photography was in its infancy.

When Abraham Lincoln died, there weren't any really good photos of the president. There weren't many photos around of anyone for that matter. But there was a need for a "striking" picture of the fallen leader.

An enterprising soul took a "headshot" of Lincoln that had been taken by Mathew Brady, reversed the image, and put it atop a full-body shot of John C. Calhoun. The trickery was discovered by researchers who noticed that Lincoln's mole was on the wrong side of his face.

There was even more trickery involved. In the original picture, Calhoun's left hand is on a table. On the table are some papers adorned with popular Southern slogans such as "Strict construction, free trade, sovereignty of the state." Those words were changed, perhaps by the original airbrush artist, to "Constitution, Union, Proclamation of Freedom."

It's the most lasting, famous full-length portrait of Lincoln.

By the way, the original headshot, with the head facing in the original direction, is on the $5 bill.

Since we're talking about American history, we might mention that the states of Pennsylvania and Massachusetts and the cities of Philadelphia and Boston are wondering what they should do with Ben Franklin's money.

Ben didn't just coin phrases about saving pennies, he lived them. Those beliefs have continued to live 200 years after Ben went to that great lightning bolt in the sky.

You see, Ben left 1,000 pounds sterling each to Boston and Philadelphia, and that money has been in trust ever since.

Philadelphia's part is now $2 million, and Boston's part is $4 million. Sounds like Bahwstun had a little better trust plan. Franklin's will stipulated that three-fourths of the money would go to the states and one-fourth remain with the cities upon the 200th anniversary of his death.

Officials in both states and both cities are looking for "creative" ways to use the money.

Maybe it will go into cold fusion research. But if it did, Ben would likely come back from the dead, reclaim his money, and tell everyone to go fly a kite.

are black or Hispanic single women on welfare, and many have little job experience, and most were driven from their homes by domestic violence.

"Another myth: that more charity is the answer. Not necessarily. One survey revealed that the private sector is already doing a good job. Last year, roughly 9 out of 10 shelters for the homeless were operated by community groups and churches--and a whopping 80,000 volunteers worked in the shelters--four times more than helped out five years ago.

"All they need is housing is another myth debunked. Some of the groups beating the drums for a national policy concerning the homeless pitch that the real solution lies in housing.

"Not so! Recent studies reveal that roughly half of the urban homeless have been homeless more than once, indicating that a roof over the head of an alcoholic, a mentally ill person, or an addict might not mean that he or she would stay put.

"The studies suggested that perhaps rather than new federal program to throw billions of dollars in public housing complexes for the homeless, that most of the homeless require treatments at a community health center, a stay at an alcohol-free halfway house, or even a bed in a safe and clean flophouse.

"A long, hard look at the facts rather than media-politician generated emotions, could go far in recognizing that a bum is a bum."

U.S. Constitution topic of program

Los Ciboleros Chapter, NSDAR, met Thursday, Sept. 21, at the Community Center with Mrs. J.J. Durham and Mrs. J.R. Euler as hostesses.

Following the social hour, Vice-Regent Mildred Sheffy, introduced Joe D. Rogers, Hereford High School history teacher, who spoke on "The Constitution: Serving the Nation for Two Centuries." He traced the events leading to the writing of the Constitution and discussed in depth its purposes and strengths. In appreciation, the chapter voted to subscribe to the National Defender for Rogers.

Regent Mrs. Austin Rose led the D.A.R. ritual and conducted the business meeting.

It was announced that a book had been presented to the library in memory of Bruce Carter, charter member.

A report was read from Mrs. C. F. Newsom, chairman of the Bicentennial of the Constitution of the United States of America committee, stating that posters, copies of the Constitution, and study booklet had been placed in 10 locations around the city, including the schools, the library, and public buildings.

The program and the materials displayed throughout the city are part of a five-year celebration of the Constitution by The National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Rose displayed Certificates of Merit awarded Los Ciboleros Chapter at the State Conference for excellence in: promoting the study and celebration of the Bicentennial of the Constitution of the United States of America; American History Month essay contest, third place - fifth grade; American History Month Observance report and essay contest; genealogical records; motion picture, radio and television; and yearbook.

New chapter officers

What from this decade will survive next?

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Before you buy that toaster oven, designer teapot or luxury-model fax machine, beware that they all could become obsolete in the 1990s.

Also on the way out, in the opinion of designers, are disposable diapers, plastic foam coffee cups and low resolution television sets, says Metropolis magazine. The magazine recently sent questionnaires to 150 designers around the country and followed up with in-depth interviews with 50 of them on the highs and lows of design in the 1980s.

According to Susan Szenasy, editor, reasons for the thumbs-down on these indispensables of the '80s vary: The diapers and cups pose environmental hazards, conventional ovens and toasters will make way for electronic chip technology. Fancy teapots are a fad, and the TV as we know it will give way to high resolution technology and a much sharper picture.

Expensive fax machines will get cheaper, then toward the end of the decade the fax will be pushed aside by improved modems and computers that will nudge us further toward a paperless society.

Szenasy says the magazine undertook the survey, published in its October issue, "to find out what advances design has made in the 1980s, if any, toward improving the quality of life. What we found out is that the '80s was a very mixed decade."

It was good because it offered a lot of choices. It was bad because there was so much to choose from. "People bought more because things looked attractive," she said, "but whether they really needed them remains a question."

Designers say objects of the '80s they will remember with pleasure include fax machines, personal stereos, the restaurant range for the home, Filofax date books, track lighting, remote control for television, ethnic crafts and compact disc players. What they look forward to in the '90s are home offices and computers that do more in both home and office.

In interior design, the 1980s seemed schizophrenic, said Szenasy. "It supported the two extremes of minimal Japanese design and ornate reproductions."

These two tendencies meet in postmodernism, which uses all the forms of the past but combines them in a way that could never have occurred historically.

"This mixture means we don't really want the past," she said. "We just want its veneer, the emotional appeal of something that we think was better."

High points of the 1980s, according to designers surveyed, were such design-intensive products as professional quality cookware and home accessories from architects. A teapot by postmodernist architect Michael Graves is one example. They also were impressed by the influence of ergonomics in furniture, as represented by the high-tech office chairs that sell for as much as $800. On the other hand, a number singled out Post-it notes and the Dust Buster vacuum, both inexpensive innovations.

Other bright spots are halogen lamps and new light bulb technology. An improvement in kitchen design and new electric cooktops with ceramic and halogen burners were also hailed.

Kitchens are more attractive today compared to the 1970s because of the coordination of design details on appliances and the much greater variety and good quality of cabinetry. They are more efficient because of improved storage options.

"The designer who many people singled out was Phillippe Starck," said Szenasy. "They are betting that in the future, people will see Starck as synonymous with the '80s."

Furniture that appealed includes the revival of the arts and crafts design, rustic Adirondack styles and the 1950s designs from the likes of Charles Eames.

Designers think that the 1990s will be the decade of environmental concerns.

"Almost everyone made some comment about the environment," Szenasy said.

A significant comment, for example, was Agnes Bourne's: "In the '70s, I was very involved with recycling and natural foods. I even got arrested for my beliefs. I'm not so militant anymore, but I still have those concerns. One of the tiny things I'm doing is providing recycling bins in kitchens to deal with waste management."

The U.S. War Department was established in 1789.

The famous feud between the Hatfield family of southern West Virginia and the McCoys of eastern Kentucky broke out in 1882. By the time the feud ended, about 100 men, women and children had either been killed or wounded.

Spikers down Levelland, 15-4, 15-2

The Hereford Whitefaces maintained a one-game lead in the District 1-4A volleyball Tuesday with a 15-4, 15-2 win over Levelland.

The win gives the Herd a 5-0 record in district play, and 17-3 overall, to stay ahead of Dumas at 4-1. Dumas routed Randall, 15-1, 15-2 on Tuesday.

In the junior varsity match, Hereford posted a 15-4, 15-6 win.

Shantel Cornelius accounted for more than half the Herd's service points with 17, including three aces. Nikki Self added seven points on serve with a pair of aces and Candé Robbins served for four points.

Libby Kosub and Jill West led with three kills apiece while Poppy Richardson, Cornelius and Robbins each had two. Jessica Dearing also added a kill for the Herd.

Cornelius also had three stuffs and a pair of digs and Robbins recorded a stuff.

"We played very well this match," Coach Brenda Reeh said. "The past couple of matches (after beating Dumas) have been a little flat for us, but this time we were on top of things from beginning to end. We only had to receive serve 10 times the whole match. We had 23 successful attacks out of 26 with 13 of those resulting in a direct score.

"Our hitters have been concentrating on technique and timing during the past week," Reeh added. "We've been trying to correct some bad habits and that has frustrated the kids a bit. Tonight the ball went down at some very sharp angles and that certainly encourages the hitters to keep improving."

Herd JV vs. Levelland

Hereford ran away with both games, 15-4, 15-6, as the junior varsity upped its record to 15-2.

Brek Binder served up 15 points with eight aces for the Herd and Jennifer Bullard added five service points with an ace. Binder also contributed two kills for the match.

"It was a fun match," JV coach Lynn Gilbreath said. The kids had a really good match with few errors.

"It's very difficult to play matches that do not challenge your skills, but we are trying different things to provide the challenge. We've got to keep working to improve and keep the intensity level up."

The Herd opens a three-match homestand Saturday against Pampa and hosts Borger Tuesday to close out the first half of district play. The second half of 1-4A action will get underway with the Dumas Demons visiting the HHS Gym Oct. 7.

V'view sweeps HJH

Hereford Junior High White teams dropped all four games Tuesday to the Valleyview Vikings as the eighth grade teams hosted VJH and the seventh graders hit the road.

In the eighth grade "A" game, Valleyview made a pair of first-half touchdowns stand up for a 14-0 win.

Delon Moore scored on an eight-yard run in the first quarter for the Vikings and quarterback Shane Anderson kept on a one-yard run for the second score. Anderson also ran for the two-point conversion to set the final score.

In the eighth grade "B" game, Hereford tailback Michael Gamez gave the Herd an 8-6 lead when he went 53 yards on the last play of the third quarter and added the conversion.

Valleyview took the ensuing kickoff and needed only five plays to regain the lead as Gene Bell scored from 43 yards out. Frank Frausto gave the Vikings the halftime lead at 6-0 on a 21-yard run in the second quarter.

In the seventh grade games played at Valleyview, both Hereford teams were shut out as the Vikings took the "A" game, 28-0, and the "B" contest, 6-0.

Hereford Junior High Maroon teams will take on Friona on Thursday with the eighth grade "A" team playing on the South Field while the seventh grade "A" team goes at it on the Junior High field. Both games start at 5 p.m.

Jones: No excuses

IRVING (AP) - Dallas owner Jerry Jones said on Tuesday there were "no excuses as far as I'm concerned" for the Cowboys' 0-3 start.

"I came here as a risk taker, I got to be a Cowboy because I took risk," said Jones, who has been in the oil and gas business. "The start doesn't disappoint me in anybody. All there is now is resolve."

However, Jones warned the Cowboys couldn't wait until the mid-90s for the young team to mature.

"Our future is not 1995," Jones said. "There's no five-year plan. Many of us may not be around then."

Jones said being successful in the NFL is like being successful in the oil business.

"There's no luck involved," he said. "It takes legwork and enthusiasm. You've got to have your sleeves rolled up."

Netters pound PD

The Hereford Whiteface tennis team won its fifth straight match Tuesday, downing Palo Duro 15-3 at the HHS courts.

For the fourth straight time, Herd girls swept their half of the competition, winning all nine matches in straight sets.

"This was a really good match for us," Coach Luis Zavala said. "We were able to get in several extra matches and that really helps the boys."

Hereford will put its undefeated district record on the line Saturday when they host Estacado.

Cubs beat Expos, clinch NL East

By The Associated Press

While the Chicago Cubs are waiting for yet another shot at the World Series, the San Francisco Giants just can't wait for their title clincher.

Chicago clinched its second National League East championship in six seasons, beating Montreal 3-2 at Olympic Stadium Tuesday night after second-place St. Louis lost to Pittsburgh.

"This is my 41st year in baseball and a lot of good things and a lot of bad things have happened to me," Manager Don Zimmer said in the Cubs' champagne-soaked locker room. "But this tops everything that I've ever done in the game."

The Cubs took advantage of the Cardinals' 4-1 defeat in Pittsburgh and became the first team to guarantee a spot in the playoffs.

Ryne Sandberg's dash home in the eighth inning made Zimmer a champion for the first time in 11 years of managing, and also made meaningless a season-ending, three-game series in St. Louis.

The Cubs, who won the NL East in 1984, have not won a World Series title since 1908 and have failed to win the NL pennant since 1945.

Meanwhile, the Giants missed a chance to clinch the NL West for the second straight day, losing 2-1 to Los Angeles at Dodger Stadium.

Dodgers rookie Ramon Martinez, 6-4, allowed four hits in 8 2-3 innings and Jay Howell got the last out for his 27th save.

The Giants' magic number for clinching their second division title in three years remained at one as second-place San Diego beat Cincinnati 3-1 earlier in the night to move within four games of San Francisco. The Giants and Padres each have four games remaining.

San Francisco has another chance to clinch the title tonight if it can beat the Dodgers or if San Diego falls to Cincinnati.

Elsewhere in the NL, it was New York 3, Philadelphia 0 and Houston 3, Atlanta 2.

Cubs 3, Expos 2

Ryne Sandberg, the only everyday starter remaining from the Cubs' last title team in 1984, scored the go-ahead run in the eighth inning.

Sandberg singled with two outs off Dennis Martinez, 16-7, and was running when Dwight Smith followed with a single to right field. When Hubie Brooks bobbled the ball for a split second, Sandberg kept going and beat second baseman Tom Foley's relay to the plate.

Greg Maddux, 19-12, allowed seven hits in 8 1-3 innings.

Dodgers 2, Giants 1

The Dodgers scored the winning run off starter Kelly Downs, 4-7, in the sixth inning when Willie Randolph scored from third base on Eddie Murray's double-play grounder.

The Giants took a 1-0 lead in the first on a home run by Will Clark, his 23rd.

Padres 3, Reds 1

San Diego avoided elimination from the NL West race by beating

Cincinnati at Jack Murphy Stadium.

Jack Clark and Benito Santiago each hit solo home runs off Jack Armstrong, 2-3.

Dennis Rasmussen, 10-10, allowed three hits before Mark Davis relieved with two outs in the seventh.

Pirates 4, Cardinals 1

St. Louis, which struggled to overcome injuries all season, was eliminated from the NL East race by losing to Pittsburgh.

Bob Patterson, 4-2, allowed four hits in eight innings and Bill Landrum got the last three outs for his 26th save.

Bobby Bonilla had three hits and scored two runs for the Pirates.

Rookie Ken Hill, 7-14, lost.

Mets 3, Phillies 0

Sid Fernandez pitched a three-hitter and doubled in a run as New York rebounded from elimination to beat Philadelphia.

The shutout was the second of the season for Fernandez and fifth of his career.

Fernandez, 13-5, struck out nine and walked three.

Phillies rookie Jason Grimsley, 1-3, allowed three runs and four hits in four innings.

Astros 3, Braves 2

Harry Spilman's run-scoring pinch double off Tommy Greene, 1-2, with two outs in the seventh inning lifted Houston past Atlanta.

Jim Deshaies, 14-10, pitched seven innings, allowing four hits and one earned run for the victory.

Danny Darwin pitched two innings for his seventh save.

Jays, O's stumbling through race

By The Associated Press

Baltimore and Toronto are heading to their division showdown in the inimitable style of the American League East: both blew big games.

The first-place Blue Jays failed to hold a two-run, ninth-inning lead Tuesday night, losing to Detroit 4-3. But Toronto maintained its one-game lead in the American League East as Baltimore lost to Milwaukee 7-3.

"No loss is easy, but this is real tough," said Kelly Gruber, who figured in all three Toronto runs. "I've said before, we've got to have pitching if we're going to win this thing. Nobody is going to get them out 1-2-3 every time, but when you've got them like that, you've got to put them away."

Gary Pettis tied the game with a two-run single off Tom Henke, 4-10, and Alan Trammell followed with a game-winning single that ended visiting Toronto's nine-game winning streak against Detroit.

"We just have to come back and win tomorrow," Blue Jays manager Cito Gaston said.

Mike Henneman, 11-4, pitched two innings of two-hit relief as Detroit stopped a six-game losing streak.

Jaime Navarro, 7-7, prevented Baltimore from moving into a first-place tie by beating the Orioles at Milwaukee with a seven-hitter for his first big-league complete game.

Mike Felder hit a leadoff inside-the-park home run in the first and Gary Sheffield hit a solo home run in the second. The Brewers chased starter Dave Johnson, 4-7, with a two-run third capped by Billy Spiers' triple.

"It was fortunate for us that we're not any worse off than before the game," Orioles manager Frank Robinson said.

Paul Molitor extended his hitting streak to 16 games with his 11th homer in the seventh off reliever Dave Schmidt.

In other games, Oakland beat Texas 4-3 to clinch a tie for first in the AL West, Kansas City eliminated California 4-0, Boston beat New York 9-5, Minnesota beat Chicago 7-1 and Seattle beat Cleveland 3-2.

Athletics 4, Rangers 3

Oakland clinched a tie for its second straight American League West title behind Dave Henderson's tiebreaking two-run homer in the eighth. The Athletics lead Kansas City by five games with five games remaining.

With the score tied 2-2, Walt Weiss singled off Mike Jeffcoat, 9-6, and Henderson hit his 15th home run of the season off Gary Mielke.

Dennis Eckersley, 4-0, who allowed the visiting Rangers to tie the game in the eighth, pitched the final 1 2-3 innings.

Royals 4, Angels 0

Bret Saberhagen pitched a six-hitter to win for the 19th time in 21 decisions and eliminate California.

Bo Jackson singled in two runs for the visiting Royals, giving him a career-best 101 RBIs.

Saberhagen, 22-6, pitched his fourth shutout and extended his scoreless streak to 27 innings with his major league-leading 12th complete game. Kirk McCaskill, 15-10, allowed nine hits in his sixth complete game.

Red Sox 9, Yankees 5

Wade Boggs singled twice in an eight-run first inning rally at Fenway Park and raised his average to .332. He trails Minnesota's Kirby Puckett by 11 points and Oakland's Carney Lansford by five in a bid for his fifth consecutive AL batting title.

Andy Hawkins, 14-15, got just one batter out, allowing five hits and eight runs and walking three. Eric Hetzel, 2-3, won.

Twins 7, White Sox 1

Rick Aguilera, 3-5, matched his career best with a three-hitter and Gene Larkin and Kirby Puckett hit two-run homers at Comiskey Park. Puckett had two hits, raising his league-leading average to .343. Melido Perez, 11-14, allowed six runs and seven hits in four innings.

Mariners 3, Indians 2

Scott Bradley tied the score with a pinch double off Doug Jones, 7-10, and Henry Cotto drove in the go-ahead run with a two-out single as Seattle rallied in the eighth inning at the Kingdome. Erik Hanson, 8-5, pitched eight innings and allowed six hits. Mike Schooler finished for his 32nd save in 39 opportunities.

Jasper enjoys giant-killer status

By The Associated Press

It may be about time to give Jasper a giant-killer tag because of the way the Class 4A team has been knocking off much larger schools.

For three consecutive weeks, Jasper has decked a Class 5A team. Last week's victim was Huntsville, which came into the game as the state's third-ranked team in Class 5A.

All of the top-ranked teams protected their No. 1 billings in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll - Converse Judson in 5A, Paris in 4A, Southlake Carroll in 3A, Groveton in 2A and Munday in A.

Huntsville quarterback Steve Clements passed for 304 yards against Jasper, including a 17-yard scoring pass to James Houston to give his team a 25-13 lead after three quarters. But Jasper quarterback Ben Bronson scored the game-winner with 53 seconds left for a 28-25 victory.

The win moved Jasper up from seventh to No. 6 in the Class 4A top 10.

The loss dropped Huntsville to the No. 10 spot in Class 5A.

Converse Judson improved its record to 3-0 with a 35-18 victory over San Antonio Highlands and received 19 of the 25 first-place votes cast by The AP panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Odessa Permian blanked Amarillo 28-0 to hold second place and Houston Lamar, which scored 23 fourth-quarter points to beat Aldine Eisenhower 23-14, moved up from fourth to third, replacing Huntsville.

The top five teams in 4A remained the same with Paris getting 18 first-place votes and runner-up Katy Mayde Creek receiving four.

Wichita Falls Hirschi, 1-2, lost to Wilmer-Hutchins and dropped from No. 9 out of the poll. Henderson, 3-0, replaced Hirschi at No. 10.

Three ranked teams were beaten in Class 3A including No. 2 Sweeney, No. 5 Gladewater and No. 8 Mexia.

Mexia was replaced by No. 10 Cameron, 3-0 while Sweeney dropped to No. 6 and Gladewater fell to No. 9.

Gainesville beat Burkburnett 47-8 and moved up from third to second in 3A.

Fifth-ranked Pilot Point lost to Celina 20-13 and dropped to No. 10 on the 2A list but the top four teams remained the same from last week.

No. 5 Flatonia and No. 6 Fannindel were losers from the Class A rankings. Flatonia dropped to Non-10 and Fannindel fell to No. 9.

Turner gets Olympics

NEW YORK (AP) - The Olympics are following the NCAA, the NFL and baseball onto cable television.

The 1992 and 1994 Winter Olympics will be shown on Turner Network Television under a $50 million deal announced Tuesday by CBS Inc. and Turner Broadcasting Systems Inc.

TNT will air approximately 50 hours of programming for each Olympics. CBS, which paid $243 million for the 1992 Games at Albertville, France, and $300 million for the 1994 Games at Lillehammer, Norway, plans to air about 120 hours of each Olympics.

"There's a lot of programming at the Winter Olympics that doesn't get on because of the limited amount of time," CBS Sports president Neal H. Pilson said. "We think it will help promote the prime-time programming. We don't think the dilution factor will be one of concern. We think there will be an audience for TNT programming."

TNT, a basic cable service started last year, will broadcast from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. EST on weekdays, much of it live, and from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. on weekends with taped coverage. In addition, it will replay

CBS' prime-time broadcast beginning at 1 a.m. every night. CBS' schedule consists primarily of nightly prime-time shows and weekend afternoons.

TNT's own coverage will not show events that will be on CBS, but instead will broadcast events that would not otherwise be televised.

"We contemplate they will carry a cross-section of events and they will not simply be doing the 30K cross-country skiing," Pilson said.

Officials from both networks said the cable events would include some figure skating, skiing, bobsled and luge. An official from a rival network said that all U.S. hockey games and all other high-profile events would be on CBS.

Pilson said TNT's programming hadn't been determined and said "we may not make decisions until the day of the event."

Queen Bee Quilters puts out pampered works of art

Designer bedspreads fill the big end of Gloria Smith's custom fabric work, known throughout the Southwest

By ORVILLE HOWARD
Special Feature Writer

Gloria Smith may not own the biggest spread in Texas but she knows how to stitch some of the finest--and perhaps the most expensive.

With the top of the line fetching a cool hundred bucks a yard, Gloria Smith spreads are designed for people, not the back-forty kind of posts and pasture.

Simply put, this Hereford fabric designer is setting new standards in state-of-the-art designer bedspreads. And she's hanging some pretty high measures in top treatment of drapery work--swags, cascades, jabots and rosettes.

These pampered works of art have touched households from coast-to-coast, from Mainstream America to some of the finest mansions of the world. Though much of her work winds up in homes of the more affluent, she treats each stitch with a tendertouch as though it would remain in her own household forever.

"I rarely know where my work is going," said Mrs. Smith, as she caressed another creation. "Most of my orders come in by number and leave by number, and it is very seldom that I know the people who are doing the buying. Nearly all of my work in recent years have been through professional interior decorators.

Designer bedspreads fill the big end of Mrs. Smith's custom fabric work, but she also weaves in all sorts of tidbits and related lines of custom fabrics--draperies, cornices, decorative pillows and upholstery. She speaks of each design as a breath of spring air, and loves to detail delicate stitching that turns a yard of Morie into reams of art. Tufted spreads decked with matching headboards and footboards are some of the frequent orders, along with matching drapery and blending curtains which turn barren walls into luxurious living. Add remote controls to the drapes and a touch of the professional to the decor and a home becomes a castle--in the truest sense of the word if Gloria Smith has her way.

Mrs. Smith related to one such order for a mansion in Dallas in which it took a crew of four--all professional decorators and designers--six days to outfit the home with bedroom fabrics and draperies. In that particular job, one spread totalled out at about $8,000--and it all originated on Mrs. Smith's cutting table out on Kibbe Street.

Though Mrs. Smith is known among professional decorators from throughout the Southwest, she maintains a relatively low profile as professional designer in the quilting world where her bedspreads reflects some of the top price-tags in the business. And by the same measure, she enjoys seeing her work fitted in a neighbor's home down the street or tucked in the bedroom of some deserving mother or housewife.

"It doesn't matter whether the job is large or small, whether it's an expensive bedspread or a small decorative pillow, we treat all of our work with the same delicate care," she added. "When it comes to fabric work, we try for perfection...you'll never see a piece of shabby work come out of our sewing rooms."

She pointed out that through the years much of her work in designer bedspreads have gone initially to the area around St. Louis, Mo., with other key marketing centers being New York, Dallas, Houston, Oklahoma City, Amarillo, Denver and the West Coast. "I sometimes know what area or perhaps what city the bedspread orders are from, but from that point on, I hardly ever know their final destination," said Mrs. Smith. "There's been a few stay in Hereford and some in Amarillo.

"Though I personally know we do as good of work as possible in fabrics, I must give the professional decorators much credit for our success--particularly Dick Dye of Amarillo. There is no question, as far as I'm concerned, that Dick is one of the finest interior decorators to be found any where in the world."

Mrs. Smith has an unpretentious fabric shop out on Kibbe Street just west of downtown Hereford which carries the name of Queen Bee Quilters. "My husband, Loy, came up with that name a few years ago and it just sort of stuck," said Mrs. Smith, as she cleared a giant cutting table to exhibit a new bedspread straight from the seamstress. "Loy has been my mainstay through the years, and without him around to back me on all of my projects, I doubt if I'd ever have made it to the level we are now."

Flanked by a well-manicured yard on two sides, the Smith home at 208 Kibbe is actually the "front" of Queen Bee Quilters which has gained national recognition in the home decoration profession. "When I decided to sell out my portion of a drapery business in downtown Hereford a few years ago, we built an addition on to the corner of the house that is now a den," she added, while leading the way through a roomful of cowboy memorabilia.

"When we outgrew that room, we added another to the rear of the house which we now use as a cutting room." Then came a special sewing room and additional storage space for fabrics and trimming. One room, which the Smiths refer to as "The Vault," contains miles and miles of fabric trimming and tasseling, some of which are from discontinued lines and are in great demand from decorators and homeowners who want "one of a kind."

Though the Smiths have no idea how many miles of fabrics and trim are in inventory, they believe they have one of the largest selections of fabric trim in the country, outside of assembly-line productions. "We may not know how many yards we have in stock but know how much money is on those shelves," said Mrs. Smith with a knowing smile. "A big bundle of it." Through professional decorators and fabric factories, Queen Bee Quilters are just a touch-tone away from any design or pattern on Earth.

Queen Bee Quilters are also specialists in designer pillow shams which are stitched together by hand. "When I do a pillow sham, I like to do my own pillow forms," said Mrs. Smith, as she displayed another new design in fabrics. "Sometimes these pillows will weigh as much as 8 pounds and most of the time I create my own designs. If I know the decorator real well, then I generally know about what he is looking for in the line of a designer pillow. But if it is a new decorator, I like for them to send their completed worksheet."

The Smiths have published only one catalog since their beginning in custom fabric work in 1974: "All of our work has come in by word of mouth."

"We had a retail drapery store in downtown Hereford (C&S Drapery) in partnership with Leatrus Clark, then in January of 1974, I sold my interest to her son," said Mrs. Smith. "However, I had already started my custom bedspread work in my home about a year earlier."

Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Clark had established a sewing room on Park Avenue as early as 1961 when they handled custom sewing for drapery shops in Hereford, Amarillo and some in Kansas City, Mo., which was headquartered for a retail drapery chain. In 1967, the two housewives turned quilters, opened the drapery shop and operated it as a partnership for the next seven years.

Prior to going into professional sewing in the early 1960s, Mrs. Smith barely knew a bobbin from a needle. "The first thing I ever tried to make was when I was about 10 years old I tore up a pair of brand new sandals trying to make them different," she recalled. "I don't think I ever got them finished. I never really cared much about sewing even when I was a teenager, you know, making dresses and stuff like that."

Mrs. Smith said she couldn't really recall what got her into the sewing business back in the 1960s, "other than I knew it was something I could always do at home where I could be with my family. Now, sewing is all that I know--I can't crochet or knit, but I dearly love to sew...I enjoy being at home and kinda being my own boss."

An average designer bedspread takes about three "long" days of work 12 to 15 yards of cloth--specialty jobs take a lot more days, a lot more yards and a lot more money. As compared to the $8,000 bedspread that went to Dallas, the average price is around $500 for a designer bedspread from the nimble fingers of Queen Bee Quilters.

Some of the extraordinary bedspreads have included such decorative work as covered buttons and ribbons--one such spread boasted 2,400 buttons. "I really enjoy doing the unusual," Mrs. Smith noted. "We did this bedspread for an Amarillo decorator where we had to move all of the furniture out of the den and worked on our hands and knees for about six days--two other ladies and I--to complete one bedspread."

This particular bedspread, when finished, had a heavy tufted appearance, made of upholstery velvet with a geometric pattern and colored in hues of browns and golds. The spread had a height of about 24 inches when the quilters first started on the mammoth tufting job. "And after tufting, the bedspread was squeezed down to a height of around 10 inches."

She told of another work in fabric in which it took 76 yards of fabric with the surface being of a deep peach tone on printed Morie. Many of Mrs. Smith's bedspreads are reversible, which allows for something like a two-in-one designer job. On this particular bedspread, the detail work included 500 hand-covered buttons. "This bedspread was so large that it took four people to load it into a station wagon for delivery," she added. "And to Dallas, no less."

In addition to Interior Decorator Dick Dye of Amarillo, Mrs. Smith said that another Amarillo decorator, Shiela House, had contributed greatly to the success of Queen Bee Quilters. She also does considerable fabric work for Louise Plunk of Midland, Tx., and for a decorating firm at North Platte, Neb. "We could really feel the oil crunch in our business when it hit a few years ago," said Mrs. Smith, in relating to the good times and the bad.

As an example of the intricate designing and tedious work in the quilting profession, Mrs. Smith pointed out that in the exceptionally-delicate bedspread the labor alone ran $3,600--"And if I had it to do over, I'd have to charge a lot more." And then comes the cost of fabric--some up to $30 per yard or more. "And then comes the cost of fabric--some up to $30 per yard or more. Silk bedspreads are becoming more popular today than in recent times, but the price tag is for only the "rich and famous" as they say on television--$8,000 a throw is probably the starting point.

If you've got the price, Mrs. Smith has got the time--and expertise--to deliver a seamless bedspread. But this seamless work is no job for the faint-of-heart or beginners--in laymen's terms, it's where you overlap the lap...sort of put the seams to bed, if you please.

In pointing to her seamless work, Mrs. Smith pulled no punches in her desire for perfection: "I guess that I hate seams so bad that I just kept working at the problem until I found a way where no seams will show."

All of their quilting is of free-hand work, including the wiggly-waggy stitching that leaves wiggly-waggy patterns in a long stretch of stitching. "We don't have cams or looms in the shop," said Mrs. Smith. "That quilting machine right there will do only what I now how to do. I never use any paper patterns or cut-outs...all of my designing comes straight out of my head, whether it's good or bad. But I like to think that most of it is fairly good."

In her modest approach at the dozens of intricate quilting designs and patterns developed free-hand on the cutting table, Mrs. Smith said she has also done some paintings, but said her first love is in fabric, not oils or watercolors.

She also has her own little tricks at making tufted bedspreads take on a more "puffy" look--and once again she was speaking in seamstress lingo of back-whips and laps. "You know, whip it like you would sew a sack," she added, while trying to relate down to the level of a writer, who at this point noted that the heavy tufting would make for easy sitting.

"Heavens no, you don't ever sit down on one of the fine bedspreads," Mrs. Smith replied in a rather stern manner, then smiled. "You caress our quilts, you don't sit on them."

Mrs. Smith's mother, Gladys Jacobs, makes designer pillows for Queen Bee Quilters that sell for $100 each. But this might be the best buy in fabric town. In addition to intricate designs in multiple fabrics, such as old-fashion, high-button slipper and an umbrella coddled with tiny hand-made roses about the size of an eraser, the delicate pillows contain some 25 yards of lace on printed Moire and the slippers contain hand-whipped buttonholes. She added they had made as many as four such pillows for one bed.

Though there's no actual count on record, Mrs. Smith said a conservative estimate of designer bedspreads made from the stitching at Queen Bee Quilters would run in excess of 10,000--"We have at times been 70 bedspreads behind on orders. We used to do a lot of quilted top treatment (cornices) but this has sort of gone out of style nowadays, back when they were in style, it would be nothing for us to run 250 feet of top treatment today." But there was time in earlier times when Gloria Smith quilted finished cornices for 25 cents a running foot, and knew the tiresome toil of double shifts--sew until 3 in the morning after having worked all day at a downtown retail store.

Loy Smith has handled all of the construction work in the building of cutting tables sewing rooms and the tapestry vault and has become something of an authority in fabric pricing. While

Mrs. Smith has a personality of refinement that would fit in any class from Hereford to the boutiques of New York, Loy Smith still hangs his hat on the cowboy West. He spent much of his younger years as a working cowboy around Hereford--on the old White Ranch near Dawn and on the old legendary Escarbada spread out west of town. He still covets a pair of old weather-beaten, bat-wing chaps and has his den walls loaded with remnants of his cowboy days.

However, by the time a pretty young lady from Lubbock (Gloria Jacobs), arrived in Hereford in 1949, Loy had become a seasoned cattle trader and frequently had a pen of trader stock corralled in what is now the west side of Hereford. "I remember one morning shortly after had I had moved to Hereford that Loy was out behind his house working cattle and making a lot of noise when I told my sister I hoped his horse would fall so we would have a little less noise," Mrs. Smith recalled in a rather blushing chuckle. They were married a couple of years later.

The Smiths have a son, Monty, who is a teacher in the Hereford school system. Smith's eldest son, by a previous marriage, Loy Gene Smith, is chief deputy of the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department. Another son, Mickey, followed in his father's tradition as a cowboy and now lives in Missouri and a daughter, Judy Milsap, lives in Denver, City, Tx. His youngest daughter, Sue, lives in Kansas City.

"They're a pretty neat bunch of kids," said Mrs. Smith, who noted that her husband was a widower with four young children when they were married. "When our daughters both lived in Clovis we used to go over there and play golf for a couple of days...neither one of us were good, but we loved to play it--we only play par 3 courses."

Mrs. Smith said that some of the professional decorators send them photos of the end product--decorated homes--"But most of the time we must be contented with just wondering what the rooms looked like when finished. "One of her long-time quilters is Irma Rickman of Hereford whom she ranks among the best.

On one occasion, a down-state fabric job took nearly two years to complete and when finished, the Smiths and Rickmans went as a team to do the installation, with the quilted fabric filling a 16-foot moving van. Some of these items were of such lengths that they had to be moved in sections then pieced back together once at the point of delivery. One Hereford job took 1 1/2 years to complete.

Mrs. Smith also operates a beauty salon and boutique at 128 E. Fifth, called the Reflection. In addition to the four-chair salon, Wanda Aleshire runs the boutique that is adjacent of the beautician row.

"I don't know anything about styling hair," added Mrs. Smith, who pointed out that designer bedspread business is her profession.

In addition to being an expert at the

Statistics, half-truths, lies all involved in judging the economy

NEW YORK (AP) - Author Saul Bellow once said a novel "is balanced between a few true impressions and the multitude of false ones that make up most of what we call life."

Could the same be said about the economy? You judge.

"We continue to experience the longest peacetime economic expansion in our history, an experience that is often misinterpreted to mean that these are the best of economic times.

They may not be. By some measures they might even be among the worst of times, perhaps the worst in 50 years, and that brings us back to the Great Depression of the 1930s.

Speaking recently to a meeting of the Construction Industry Institute in Seattle, investment advisor John Wright pointed out that the economy has grown at an average of more than 4 percent a year since 1982.

That growth, he observed, has come not from a normal level of economic activity but from one that was extremely depressed. So far in the 1980s, the economy has grown at just a 2.5 percent annual rate in real terms.

Unless the economy grows more than twice as fast as now appears likely, he said, "the decade of the 1980s will be the worst decade for economic growth since the 1930s."

Worse, it follows a decade that wasn't much better. After 30 years of growth averaging more than 4 percent, the U.S. economy has grown only 2.5 percent a year for nearly 20 years.

If this is prosperity, he asks, why are average hourly earnings in the nonfarm sector of the economy no higher than they were a decade and a half ago?

"Two other misimpressions of the economy, or aspects of it, tend to support the observation by Benjamin Franklin that, "half the truth is often a great lie."

1. It is often believed that until the big crash of October 1987, increasingly affluent Americans were becoming more active buyers of corporate stocks. It isn't so.

Federal Reserve figures show that since 1968 households have been net sellers of stock in all but one year. In that time, the percentage of household financial assets held as stocks has fallen to 19.6 percent from 43.4 percent.

Following the 1987 debacle, the University of Michigan's Survey Research Center sought reasons why the impact didn't spread, as forecast. One finding, startling to many people at the time, was that so few families owned any stock.

2. An impression exists that housing has been priced beyond the means of most Americans, a notion that probably results from some of the so-called affordability indexes.

It isn't true, and probably couldn't be true for an extended period of time before supply and demand corrected the disparity. In defining "affordability" these indexes usually relate the median price of a typical one-family home to the median income of Americans.

Median, of course, means that one-half the houses are below the figure cited and one-half the incomes are above the income cited. That leaves many thousands of households, each with ability to buy one of thousands of houses.

None of these families is required to buy the median-priced house; smart ones might find equally good houses for much less. Some seek two-family units. Some prefer to rent rather than buy. They're not priced out; they choose out.

The indexes are merely guides. When they rise, it is more difficult to buy; when they fall it is relatively easier to buy, assuming other factors remain stable.

George Washington's hobbies included designing furniture, collecting teas and dabbling in astronomy.

Hustle Hereford---

On the cutting edge

cutting table, the Hereford designer also knows her equipment. She understands every working part of a sewing machine and handles nearly all of her own repair work. "I remember when I was trying to learn how to sew I would go up to the shop on the days that we were closed (Saturdays) and practice all day, tear up stuff and break needles," she recalled. "Lots of times I would come home crying because I sometimes just couldn't make it work."

But Mrs. Smith doesn't cry any more when it comes to perfection at the sewing table--she teaches other seamstresses how not to cry.

Mrs. Smith's mother, Gladys, is still active in the sewing profession at the age of 75, but her father died in 1975. Loy Smith's father, Guy Smith, came to Hereford, from Tennessee with his parents in 1900 at the age of 7, and his mother, Ada Cassell came to Hereford from Breckenridge in 1989 with her parents. The Cassell family lived directly across the street from the Smiths' present home which was also his parents' home at one time. Back at the turn of the century, Kibbe Street was one of the main thoroughfares of Hereford, along with Dewey Street which is now Main Street.

Both sets of parents of the Smiths arrived in Hereford in covered wagons. The Guy Smith family farmed for a number of years at points some 5 miles northeast of Hereford and 10 miles northwest of Hereford. Loy was born a half block south of his present home. "I haven't made it very far in life," he jested. Some members of the Smith family have made their home continuously on Kibbe Street since 1900. His grandparents, W.T. "Red" Smith, also made their home on Kibbe Street.

The Smiths are proud of their pioneer heritage and frequently speak of their five children with words of love. And the some of the same sounds are heard when they speak of finished fabric.

You might say in summary, the Smiths stay on the cutting edge of their business, keeping it honed to a fine point of perfection.

Carmakers face stiff competition

NEW YORK (AP) - It was a long battle, and vigilance is still called for, but the car-buying public seems to have gained a long-term advantage over carmakers.

It might be hard to believe, especially for those people who were buying cars back in the 1960s, when automakers dictated to buyers and buyers had the choice of taking it or leaving it.

Then came the big push by the Japanese and other foreigners. American car-buyers finally had a choice, and they exercised it, but few ever thought they would be able to dictate to the Big Three.

Well, they have, according to the Delphi V analysis, which indicates that as a result manufacturers will be forced to restrain prices, improve quality and offer better service to customers.

The Delphi V technique was developed by the Rand Corporation, a think tank, and implemented by the University of Michigan's Transportation Research Institute, based on confidential information from automotive policy makers.

It concludes that "easy sales resulting from rapid industry growth are history." Competition will be stiff. The market will be "mature," meaning little growth. The level of quality and service will be even more important.

The report, written by David J. Andrea of the research institute, expects car prices to remain steady for the next decade. The U.S.-produced car that costs $14,000 in 1990 may rise to $15,000 in 1995 and $15,900 in 2000. In the same period, a $15,000 imported vehicle might rise to $17,000.

Dealerships will become increasingly important, Andrea says. They will need to cultivate more professional staffs, offer better diagnostic and repair services and more customer conveniences, and work more closely with manufacturers.

The average total life of passengers cars is expected to climb to 12 years by the year 2000 from 11 years in 1990, although new-car buyers will continue to stay with their purchases for five years, same as in 1990.

Partly because of longer life expectancy, but also for competitive reasons, manufacturers are expected to extend power train warranties up to 10 years and 100,000 miles on some models. By such means customer loyalty will be built.

While these developments might seem startling, they represent the evolution of ideas begun in the 1980s. And if any one thing can be singled out as the reason, it is likely to be international competition.

Such competition, often viewed as a threat to the United States economy, has helped the consumer enormously. The evidence is especially true in the automotive market, where quality and service had for a while deteriorated.

Forced to improve or continue to lose market share, the Big Three of Ford, General Motors and Chrysler strive to offer better machinery, delivery and service. Competition demands continued improvement or a slow death.

That competition is likely to continue, even intensify. The Delphi V forecast is for the Big Three to lose market share over the decade. Their share now is around 64 percent; in 2000, they are expected to have only 61 percent.

What the survey says in effect is that if American and foreign carmakers want the business they will have to do even better, not just next year and the year after, but for the rest of the century and beyond.

Some people believed that a rooster crowing during the day meant a friend would visit.

William Gray of Hartford, Conn., received a patent in 1889 for a coin-operated telephone.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please, I beg you to print this letter to my daddy. He needs to know how I feel and I can't tell him.

You don't realize that I'm a 36-year-old woman with a family of my own and when you yell at me you turn me into that little girl who used to hide in the bathroom with Mom and Sis when you went into those terrible rages.

I can still see you ripping the phone off the wall and throwing a plate of spaghetti on the kitchen floor. Of course, you were drunk. I know how hard it was for you to stop drinking, but you did stop and we are all very proud of you. But when you yell at me, Daddy, all those awful memories of my childhood come rushing back and I have nightmares.

So, please, please, Daddy, don't yell any more. Just talk. -- Your daughter.

DEAR DAUGHTER: Your letter demonstrates in a most dramatic way that the memory of childhood traumas can forever poison one's life.

Parents often fail to realize the extent of the damage they do when they scream at (and hit) their children. I hope that this letter will put an end to your father's yelling, and that other fathers (and mothers) who read this will take your plea to heart. Meanwhile, please get counseling so you can stop reliving those nightmares.

Star Break
DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is a musician and is on the road about half the time. We have been married 20 years and have two children. Ours is not a perfect marriage. I know that my husband has had several affairs, but what I found out last week from the girlfriend of his drummer has upset me terribly.

My husband is now involved with a girl 15 years younger than he is. He met her on the road. She is a nice girl who has never been married and still lives with her family. My husband has not told her that he is married. She corresponds with him through his agent's office. He phones her regularly.

She believes that he intends to marry her.

Here are some questions that the young girl should find answers to:

How does a man get to be 40 years old and have no permanent address or phone number?

Why does her "fiance" always call her from a pay telephone?

Why has she not been invited to his hometown so she can meet his parents?

If this letter appears in print (and I pray that it will) the drummer's girlfriend has promised to mail it to my husband's current victim. Please, Ann, print it and save my marriage. -- Jeannie One Note in Nashville

DEAR NASHVILLE: It's going to take more than this letter to save your marriage. Sounds as if it's been in very poor health for a long time.

Quit using the drummer's girlfriend as a mole. Confront your husband with what you have learned and insist that he stop seeing that naive young person at once. Tell him if he wants to be a family man, he must agree to joint counseling and work with you to build a viable relationship. If he is unwilling to do this, you would be well advised to throw the bum out.

What is a stroke?

A stroke occurs when the flow of blood to the brain is blocked. In order to function, the brain cells must have a continuous, ample supply of oxygen-rich blood. If the brain cells don't get this supply of blood, they die. One of the frequent causes of stroke is the blockage of an artery by a clot that has formed inside it. When this happens, it's called a cerebral thrombosis, and a part of the brain doesn't receive the oxygen and nourishment it needs.

It's rare for a clot to form in a healthy artery, but when the inner walls of arteries become lined with thick, rough deposits of plaque (a condition known as atherosclerosis), the arteries are narrowed, the flow of blood slows, and clots are more likely to form. The reason is that blood is designed to clot when it comes in contact with foreign substances, and as the plaque builds up, the blood treats the plaque as an alien substance. Clotting results.

Sometimes a wandering clot is carried by the bloodstream until it lodges in one of the arteries of the brain and chokes off the flow of blood. This is called a cerebral embolism.

When a clot, either a thrombus or an embolus, plugs up a cerebral artery, the result is called a cerebrovascular occlusion, or more commonly, a stroke.

Stroke also occurs when a diseased artery in the brain bursts, flooding the surrounding tissue with blood. This is called a cerebral hemorrhage. (When a blood vessel on the surface of the brain bursts and blood floods the space between the brain and the skull, a subarachnoid hemorrhage occurs.) When these events happen, cells nourished by the artery are deprived of blood, while at the same time they're squeezed by the pressure that builds up inside the skull. The result is that they can't function. An added problem is that the accumulated blood from the ruptured artery soon forms a clot, which may displace or destroy brain tissue and interfere with brain functions, causing physical disability.

Although cerebral hemorrhages don't all result from the same cause, they're more likely to occur when a person suffers from a combination of atherosclerosis and high blood pressure.

Hemorrhage of an artery in the brain also may be caused by a head injury or by a burst aneurysm. Aneurysms are blood-filled pouches that balloon out from weak spots in the artery wall; they're often associated with high blood pressure. Aneurysms don't always cause trouble, but if one bursts in the brain, a stroke results.

When a stroke occurs, nerve cells in the damaged area of the brain can't function, so the part of the body that's controlled by this area of the brain can't function, either.

The usual result of a stroke is hemiparesis (paralysis of one side of the body). A stroke can also result in aphasia, which is the loss of the ability to speak or to understand the speech of others. Loss of memory can be another result of stroke. When the brain is damaged by stroke, the effects may be slight or severe, temporary or permanent, depending on which brain cells have been damaged and how widespread the damage is. Effects also depend on how well the body restores its blood supply.

Because injured brain cells can't heal or create new cells, the prevention of stroke by modifying risk factors is very important.

The primary signal of a stroke is a sudden, temporary weakness or numbness of the face, arm and/or leg on one side of the body. Other signals include: temporary loss of speech, or trouble speaking or understanding speech; temporary dimness or loss of vision, particularly in one eye; unexplained dizziness, especially when associated with other neurologic symptoms.

Many strokes can be prevented by diagnosing and controlling hypertension (high blood pressure), since hypertension is a leading cause of stroke. Sometimes major strokes are preceded by transient ischemic attacks or TIAs. These are "little strokes" whose effects are similar to the symptoms of a major stroke, except that they only last for a very short time. TIAs can occur days, weeks or months before a severe stroke, and so should be considered warning signals. Prompt medical or surgical attention to these symptoms can prevent major strokes.

GRAPHIC DESIGN

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - "Graphic Design in America: A Visual Language History," the first large-scale museum exhibition to explore the evolution of American graphic design, will premiere at Walker Art Center here Nov. 5, 1989-Jan. 21, 1990.

The exhibition, says the art center, "reviews all aspects of this pervasive art form, from print through electronics, from the late 19th century to the present, in aesthetic terms and as a barometer of the society they reflect."

Baked Chicken Parmesan

They'll never say, "What, chicken again?" after eating this delectable combination of chicken baked with Italian spices, wine and cheese. Decorate the table with red, white and green and have a fun Columbus Day celebration.

- |          |  |         |                    |
|----------|--|---------|--------------------|
| 1        | 2 1/2-3 pound fryer, cut into serving pieces, skin removed | 1/4 cup | Parmesan cheese    |
|          | freshly ground black pepper                                | 1 tbsp. | minced parsley     |
| 1/4 tsp. | garlic powder  | 1/3 cup | fine bread crumbs  |
| 1/4 tsp. | paprika  | 1/3 cup | water              |
| 1/8 tsp. | thyme  | 1 tbsp. | vegetable oil      |
|          |  | 1/4 cup | margarine (melted) |
|          |  | 1/3 cup | Marsala wine       |

In a paper bag, place seasonings, cheese, parsley and crumbs; coat chicken by shaking a few pieces at a time in the bag.

Oil a shallow roasting pan, pour in the water and arrange chicken pieces. Sprinkle chicken with oil and melted margarine and bake at 350° F., uncovered, in the oven for 30 minutes.

Pour wine over chicken. Lower oven heat to 325° F.; cover pan with foil, and bake 15 minutes longer. Remove foil; raise oven heat to 350° F., and bake 10 minutes longer.

Yield: 4 Servings

Poultry Tip: Fresh poultry should be used within one to two days after purchase. Always defrost chicken in the refrigerator and never refreeze.

In case of bad weather the fall festival and bazaar will be in the fellowship hall at Saint Stephens.

Abundant Life

BY BOB WEAR

"I might as well stop trying" is one of the saddest statements a human being can make. It is true that our continuing efforts may have to be upgraded or revised in some way, but we must not give up. There will be some rough spots and dark days, but these are to be expected, and they are not sufficient reasons for giving up.

Much of the troublesome feeling of our time is some sort of feeling of defeat. This should be discarded, and replaced by a strong feeling of resolution that will enable us to "keep trying". "The block of granite which is an obstacle in the pathway of the weak, becomes a stepping-stone in the pathway of the strong." -Carlyle.

We are not bound to succeed but, by our very nature, bound to keep on keeping on. In fact, this quality of endurance is a kind of success in itself. "Not in achievement, but in the endurance of the human soul, does it show its divine grandeur, and its alliance with the infinite God." -Chapin.

A setback is not the end of living but the cessation of effort is. Making the setback bigger than it is, or foolishly permitting it to overcome us, is accepting defeat unnecessarily. A setback is no bigger than we want it to be, or permit it to be. Let us learn all we can from the setback, and with renewed determination continue to try.

Some things may be beyond our reach, and we will be able to recognize these and accept the reality graciously; however, satisfactory and abundant living are not beyond our reach. Applying good judgment and wise effort we can succeed. Don't give up.

Let us show you a Texas you've never seen before.

- All 172 pages in full color
- Each page measures a large 15 x 11 inches
- Presents the entire state in stunning detail
- Appendices and specialty maps of many different features

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

What they're saying about "The Roads of Texas"

"When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever travelled the state without it."

4-H club meets at high school

The Pioneer 4-H Club met Thursday, Sept 21, at the Hereford High School. Wayne White, teacher at the Hereford High School, gave the program on power electronics and photography. Ham operators showed the boys how to operate a ham radio and become a ham operator.
 The next meeting will be, Oct. 9 at 4 p.m., at the Community Center to tour feed yards.
 Officers present were Wade Johnson, president; Trey Skiles, vice-president; Thad Hill, secretary; Michael Carlson, council delegate and Richard Drager, reporter. During the meeting they discussed the achievement banquet, commercial steer show and food show.
 Those in attendance were Carlson, Skiles, Jeb Skiles, Jeremy Paetzold, Justin Scott, Hill, Justin McWethy, Drager, Don Metcalf, Nathan Betzen, Justin Betzen, Ted Peabody, James Payne, Brian Betzen and leaders Shirley Carlson and Jan Metcalf.

Military Muster

Pvt. Kevin L. Ward has completed training at the U.S. Army Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga. During the course, students received training which qualified them as light-weapons infantrymen and as indirect-fire crewmen in a rifle or mortar squad.
 Instructions included weapons qualifications, tactics, patrolling, land mine warfare, field communications and combat operations.
 Ward is the son of Nora Summers of 332 Ave. J, and Jay Ward of 605 Stanton, both of Hereford.
 He is a 1988 graduate of Hereford High School.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR READERS:

Health clubs are very popular, and choosing the right one is important, but it can also be tricky.

To provide a positive exercise experience, a club needs to offer state-of-the-art, well-maintained equipment, convenient hours, a knowledgeable and trained staff and the right atmosphere.

There is a brochure, "Commit to Get Fit: The Guide to Choosing a Quality Health Club," available free from IRSA, a non-profit association serving the fitness industry. The brochure offers tips on selecting a reputable, quality club.

This free brochure is available by sending a stamped, self-addressed, legal-sized envelope to Commit to Get Fit, c/o IRSA, 132 Brookline Ave., Boston, MA 02215.

All health clubs are not created equal, but there is a club that is right for you no matter what your age or current fitness level, and this brochure will help you pick the right one. Here's to your health! — Heloise

SOFA CUSHIONS

Dear Heloise: I have a problem with the cushions on my living room sofa pulling out from the back of the sofa after someone sits on it. When they get up from the sofa, the cushions are always half on, half off and very unsightly.

I wonder if you have a solution on how to make the sofa cushions stay in place? — Glenn Schmidt, San Antonio, Texas

To help keep those slipping sofa cushions in place, try placing a piece of 1-inch thick foam (cut to fit) under the cushions. Or, you can also use a rubber bathtub mat between the cushions and the couch.

One of these solutions should keep those wayward cushions from "walking" right out the front door. — Heloise

DUST FREE

Dear Heloise: I learned this hint from my father-in-law and I can't get over how much time it has saved me.

Before I put away my clean glasses and party trays, I cover them with cellophane wrap. The cellophane helps protect them from grease and dust and instead of having to wash them again before they can be used, a quick wipe and they are ready.

This has really helped when I need glasses or trays for spur-of-the-moment entertaining. No more trying to gracefully wash glasses in front of drop-by guests. — Cathy Nelson, San Juan Capistrano, Calif.

I do the same! Thanks for writing. — Heloise

CORDLESS TELEPHONE

Dear Heloise: My wife would take our cordless phone outside with her while she was doing her gardening this past summer. It became dirty quite often from setting it down in different areas of the yard.

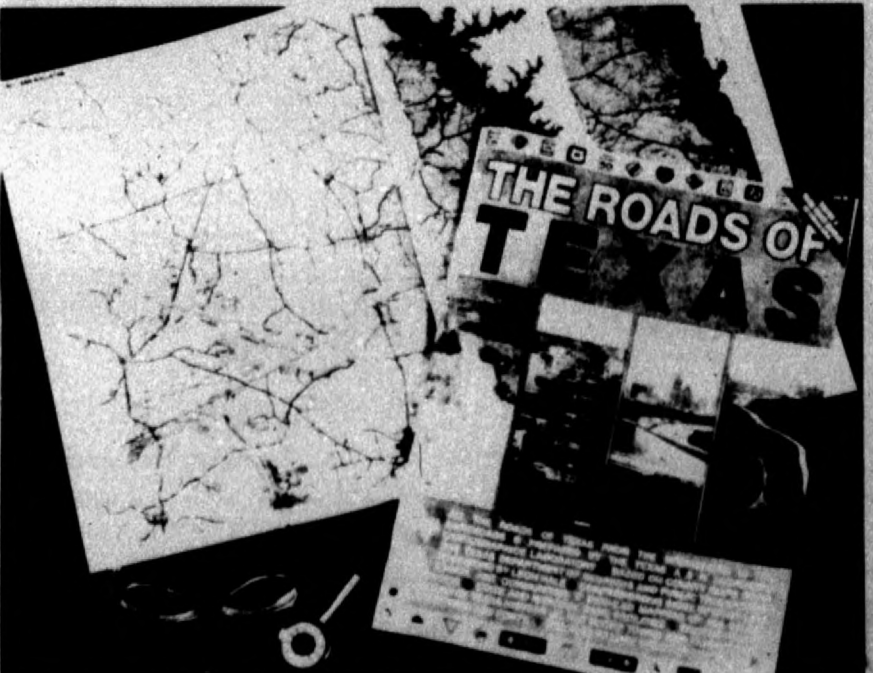

After several cleanings, she decided to make a holder for it that could be tied around her waist (similar to an apron). The holder worked great. Now we both use the phone carrier anytime one of us must take the phone outside for any period of time. — John Raven, Los Angeles, Calif.

Send a money- or time-saving hint to Heloise, P.O. Box 795000, San Antonio, TX 78278 or fax it to 512-HELOISE. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.

Of the five great lakes, only Lake Michigan is wholly in the U.S. The others are partly in Canada.

Let us show you a Texas you've never seen before.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

This 1-2 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 28,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics.
