Amistad led '90 permits

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN Editor-Publisher

Building permit totals for the City of Hereford have levelled off the past three years after hitting a record in 1985 and posting the third highest year in 1987.

Permit totals for 1990 amounted to $2,553,356--up slightly from the 1989 total of $2,208,730.

Records at city hall show that 125 permits were issued last year, but the majority were for additions or remodeling of homes or businesses and for garages and carports. Only one new residence was constructed, and only two are listed the past two

The Amistad Housing Authority project accounted for about 45 percent of the 1990 total. This project was issued a permit for $1,136,576.

The next highest category among the construction permits was $595,205 for expansions or remodeling of non-residential property. Twenty-two permits were issued in this category. Add-ons or remodeling on homes accounted for 27 permits and $177,900. One church expan-

Census figure down

If you figured there were about 1,000 fewer people living in dereford in 1990 than there were in 1980, you were right. Official census figures were released Friday by the U.S. Census Bureau, showing Hereford's official population is 14,745, down from 15,853 in the 1980 census. Other area cities also fell: Borger, about 300; Plainview, 487.

However, Amarillo and Lubbock posted significant gains.

Pauls enjoying ministry

By DANEE' WILSON Staff Writer

Steve Paul sang "Amazing Grace" as he left Oklahoma in his rear view mirror to become Minister of Music and Education at First Baptist Church in Hereford.

After spending 11 years in the same church in Oklahoma City, Paul decided it was time for a change.

"It felt like the right thing to do," said Paul. "I grew up in Altus Ok. and it is nice to be back in a small town." Paul has always had music on his

At the age of 17, Paul began leading the music in his home church in Altus.

"I've always loved music and been involved in the church," Paul said. "I'm excited that I was able to make an occupation out of what I enjoy doing most.'

Getting to work with people is the highlight of his job. "I enjoy people," he said with a smile. "It's a great privilege to watch invasion of Kuwait but has also deplored the deployment of the multinational force now battling Iraq. The radio said the Iraqi pilots were being questioned, and said Iran reminded both sides in the gulf war of its neutrality.

Still, much of the fighting is virtually at Iran's doorstep. Iran's Islamic Republic News Agency said allied bombardment of the strategic Iraqi city of Basra - 10 miles from the Iranian border - intensified dramatically overnight. Basra is the headquarters for Iraq's Kuwait theater operations.

In a military communique today, Iraq claimed its air defenders shot down two allied warplanes. The allies have so far acknowledged the loss of 22 planes, 18 of them in combat; the Iraqis claim they have downed more than 180 allied aircraft.

Today's communique, broadcast on Baghdad radio, repeated the Iraqi claim that the allies are targeting civilian and residential areas. The United States has said the raids are carefully aimed at military and strategic sites, but officials have acknowledged that unintended civilian casualties are inevitable.

Iraq also said today it had begun a new broadcast service called "Mother of Battles" radio. The service has been monitored on shortwave and two medium wave frequencies, broadcasting from transmitters including some that formerly belonged to Kuwait radio.

British Broadcasting Corp. monitors said the new Iraqi radio service appeared aimed at a wider audience in the Arab world. Baghdad radio, meanwhile, broadcast an appeal for Arab soldiers to abandon the U.S.-dominated multinational force and join up with Iraq.

'Do you not feel proud to see us stand up against all the Arabs' enemies, not scared or frightened?" said the Friday night broadcast. 'Then why do you not join us?"

For the allies, the most worrisome new development was a gigantic oil slick in the Persian Gulf, which they said was created when Iraq sabotaged Kuwait's main supertanker loading pier. The spill is likely to amount to more than a dozen times" the 11 million gallons that the Exxon Valdez tanker leaked into Alaska's Prince William Sound in 1989, Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said.

U.S. officials said they believed the Iraqi move was an attempt to help repulse any allied amphibious attack. "The presumption is to inhibit naval activity," said White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater.

The spill, first detected three days ago, has spread almost 10 miles toward Saudi waters, a Saudi military spokesman said. The oil could threaten several desalination plants that provide drinking water.

"This is clearly an act of environmental terrorism," Pentagon spokesman Williams said.

Environmentalists said the spill was extremely serious. "It's going to play havoc with fishing, with marine life in general," said Walter Vreeland, an environmental adviser to Bahrain's government.

In a letter released Friday at the United Nations, Iraq accused the United States of causing a vast oil spill in the gulf by bombing two Iraqi tankers earlier this week. But allied officials dismissed as minor any spills stemming from air attacks.

Fitzwater said the Defense and Energy departments were monitoring the oil dumping and "examining contingencies for dealing with it." But he conceded: "We don't have any plan at this point."

The city government is now caught in a dilemma over funding the present landfill or closing it to move to a regional site before regulations are released.

To maintain the landfill as is, the city would have to spend $700,000 on new equipment.

"The present equipment is old and outdated," said City Manager Darwin McGill. "We already spend $60,000-$75,000 a year on repairs. The equipment we have can't handle the job any more.

If Hereford were to switch to a regional site, it would cost the city approximately $500,000.

"It is very costly to a city to have to transport solid waste to a regional site," Kiehle said. "Because of the harsh regulations, small landfills will find it less costly to go regional."

Hereford's landfill is considered a type one landfill, which is found in larger areas, this type is more likely to stay in operation after regulations are released.

Some of the regulations type one landfills will be required to meet are: daily cover of wastes; control of gases, methane, from decomposing wastes; 24-hour access; drainage control; ground water monitoring and there is the possibility landfills would have to use liners.

If a landfill were to close, it would have to maintain ground cover for 5 years and that could possibly extend to 30 years.

In order for a city to have a landfill, it would have to have funds immediately available to cover the cost of possible contamination. There is no grace period or latitude. If contamination occurs, the city must remedy the problem immediately. This alone could spell the end to small landfills, Kiehle said.

When the regulations are released, there will be an 18 month implementation period. Some funds may be available to help bear the cost burden, but there are no pure grants for landfills, Kiehle said.

Hereford's City Commissioners will have to answer, come budget time, the call of keeping the landfill or going regional.

"I think Hereford needs to stay in the landfill business as long as possible," Hereford City Commissioner Emory Brownlow said.

"It's premature to start making major changes," Kiehle said.

"Landfills have 18 months before they have to start closing down. I think they need to get as much use out of them as possible. What I've found is that it is in the city's best interest to operate as long as possible."

Kiehle said the local Department of Health is advising landfills to close out before regulations are printed. Once they are printed, additional closure costs will be incurred.

In some cases it will be advantageous to close out early and keep open only what is absolutely necessary to do what you have to do," Kiehle said. "It costs less to do so."

It is not known if the PRPC will recommend Hereford moving to a regional landfill. There is no speculation as to where a regional landfill might be located.

"It is difficult to say at this time where the regional landfills will be located," Kiehle said. "We have to look at the transportation and the population."

Until the EPA regulations are released, it is difficult for anyone to speculate what Hereford's options are. The decision may be made by commissioners at budget time, before regulations are released.

Limit terms

The proposal to limit Congressional terms has been around for a long time, but the idea seems to be gathering steam. Adding impetus to the movement was a Congress which told us last fall that we must trim expenses and balance the budget, then gave themselves a $500 million raise.

The biggest hurdle, of course, in passing a law to limit terms is that both the Senate and the House must pass such a plan by two-thirds votes. With the salary and benefits they have voted themselves, it will be difficult to interest incumbents in such a proposal. The key word is "incumbents." We may have to vote in new congressmen to get limited terms.

Everybody who serves in Congress got a raise Jan. 1. House members now receive $125,100, up from $96,000, and this is the fifth raise since 1984. Senators will receive a salary of $101,900 and can keep up to $23,837 a year in speaking fees. House members will be prohibited from making money on speeches.

Congressmen have it fixed so they do well at retirement, too. Retirement pay is based on the top three earning years. Members with 20 years get an average of $45,800 plus cost-ofliving increases. House members who were elected before 1980 and retire by the end of 1992 can pocket their unused campaign funds, up to $1 million.

In addition, members of Congress have access to a full health clinic in the capitol and can use medical facilities around the country. They also receive subsidized life insurance. They can eat in restaurants, obtain cheap haircuts, play golf and use other recreational activities at military bases. House and Senate gyms, swimming pools, saunas and masseurs are free of charge.

Members of Congress don't have to pay parking tickets. They enjoy free parking at Washington area airports. Members have free use of radio and TV studies at the capitol to record mesages for their constituents, and they save about $90 million a year in postage.

And, there is an expense allowance of between $100,000 and $300,000 a year or House members, depending on how far they live from Washington. In addition, members can spend up to $400,000 and hire up to 22 persons to staff an office. Senate members get a multi-purpose allowance based on the state population and distance from Washington. This can reach $156,000. Staff salaries are based on state size and adds another $800,000 to $1.7 million, and the senator is allowed $270,000 to hire staff members to help on committee assignments.

Members of Congress receive one free round trip ticket per session. They can also use campaign funds for travel back and forth to their district. They can accept funds from private sources for up to four days of travel in the U.S. or seven days overseas. There are many ways to tap into private funds, such as lobbyists, because a great many people want to be nice to Congressmen and perhaps have some influence on legislation.

It's no wonder that candidates spend so much campaign money trying to get elected. And the way things are structured, the incumbents get help in staying there. All in all, members of Congress have done pretty well by themselves in recent years--at a time when most of the rest of us have not seen a raise or increase in benefits.

The time for limited terms may have arrived. It won't happen soon and whether or not it happens depends on the mood of a majority of American voters.

We suppose it's one of the prices we pay in a democracy, that we permit peaceful protests and demonstrations.

But when these demonstrators block main highways, bridges, or federal buildings and inconvenience others, then they become illegal violations. Since this is a family newspaper, we cannot print what we actually think about those protesters in San Francisco who surrounded a federal building and prevented workers from reporting for work Thursday morning.

Federal marshals refused to take action against the demonstrators. At the time, it was probably a wise decision since violent confrontation attracts television cameras like flies to spilled syrup. And without television cameras, a staged demonstration is about as useless as a screen door on a submarine. To us, the comments made by the demonstrators on the war effort in the Middle East were about as dumb as a box of rocks. As a matter of fact, if brains were gunpowder, they couldn't blow their noses.

Lawmen around the country have learned form bitter experience not to use violence against demonstrators. Personally, we believe lawmen ought to adopt the same technique used by the demonstrators--peaceful resistance. In the case of the demonstrators surrounding the federal building in San Francisco, why not surround the surroundees?

Why not a throw a cordon around both the building and the demonstrators and seal them off from the world--and television cameras--permitting none to leave. We can't help but wonder what would happen to the demonstrators after a few days without water, food, or contact with the normal routine of daily existence.

Perhaps it's time for our officers to become as imaginative and innovative as the protesters, who for many, have found demonstrating an exciting hobby. To us, they serve about as much purpose as a milk bucket beneath a Brahma bull--and ought to be treated as such.

more than they really wanted at thing. Saturday's premium sale.

It's one of the best con games around. I know, because I suckered into pretty good.

I'd feel really bad about it if it were my own money, but since it was my boss's (at the time), well, there goes my raise...and my Christmas bonus...and vacation.

Over at the Castro County News in my old stomping grounds in Dimmitt, we'd usually buy an animal or two. If an employee had a kid with an animal, we'd buy it. The publisher, Don Nelson, sent me to the show to see if we couldn't pitch in on a couple of girls who threw the paper for us, who really needed the money.

Hey, I told him, my brother's got a lamb in the show. Well, don't pay too much, but if you can buy it, go ahead. We didn't know at the time if any or all of the three would make the sale. As luck would have it, all three

"Watch the expenses," Don told

Well, the two girls' lambs came first, and my good buddy auctioneer Col Jack Howell got the idea pretty early that I might be interested. We didn't pay much over the floor, but we bought the two girls' lambs.

Now Jack had known me since I another Hereford Junior Livestock was an all-hit ragarm third baseman Show, and sale, will have been a big on a kids baseball team he coached, and he knew my brother, so half the sucker play was done. It works better And, probably, somebody got suckered into paying a few dollars if the auctioneer is in on the whole

> Jack started the bidding on my brother's lamb at $4.50, considerably higher than he had started many of the others. What the heck, I didn't want to look like a cheapskate among all of these grandparents trying to pass along some of the inheritance to their grandkids, so I feebly stuck my

I figured that would be that. What's $4.50 a hundred or so times, huh. Pocket change. Pay for some schooling.

Then I got raised.

I turned around and tried to see who had bucked up the bid, but there were no obvious suspects.

What the heck, $5. Yeah, Jack. And I got raised again. Okay, Jack, one more time.

I turned around and looked in the direction Jack had been looking. His spotter had been looking at some area back over my right shoulder, up at the top of the stands. Jack was pleading for $5.75 for this lamb that was, well, an also-ran.

Going once, going twice. Smug that I wouldn't get raised, I turned back around.

I shouldn't have. As soon as I turned around, a spotter cried

Well, he is my flesh-and-blood brother. Six bucks.

Jack grinned and acknowledged my bid. I was again smug. No way would this go any higher. Heck, the reserve grand only brought $6.75.

"And we've got $6.25," Jack bellowed. "What do you say, Brooksy-baby?" Well, heck, Jack, I say I'd like for Scotty to beam me up about now. "Now, John, you gotta come on up on your own brother's little lamb here," Jack said. "The newspaper's paying for it anyway, right?"

Okay, Jack, $6.50. And then they bumped it up to $7. Seven stinkin' dollars a pound for this little lamb that was gonna be chops for somebody else in a week or so.

I turned around and just generally shot daggers into the crowd. I didn't know who it was. Jack pleaded and cajoled. He used psychology. He used reverse friendship. He reminded me it wasn't my money. What the heck. $7.25. My "friends" let me off the hook then, and I was applauded by the stunned crowd. Later, much later, I was finally able to discern who my friends were.

They have kids coming up over in Dimmitt, and it's time for payback. They've probably forgotten my lamb-buying experience. As Charles DeGaulle so aptly said, "Revenge is a dish best served cold." Let the bidding begin. Dear editor: Today my heart aches and I pray for my son, Jimmy Curtis, who is in Saudi Arabia. I hear on CNN that the 82nd Airborne is on trucks this very minute moving to the border to be some of the first foot troops into Kuwait. There is a feeling of failure as I realize that there is nothing I can do for my son to remove him from this situation that might take his life.

Letters to Editor

In grade school, a mom can go to the teacher to help a child through a difficult time. All through a child's life one can be there to guide, direct, nag, and love. But as my child marches to war, I can do nothing to help him. I would gladly trade places with himhe hasn't even begun to live. But that is not a choice, so I lie sleepless on my bed at night, praying that God will protect our boys. I cry when I think there are no more tears to shed, but they still flow. I pray that God will send my boy home in one piece.

One thing has been such a comfort to me. It seems like such a small thing some might think it does no good. However, as I drive down my street every morning to come to work, I continue to see one more house with a yellow ribbon or a flag on it. Such a seemingly small thing. But when I see these I know that the people in those houses are thinking of the troops. Maybe someone that drives by says a small prayer. Out of sight, out of mind? Not with flags and yellow ribbons on cars, homes, businesses, and churches.

Some talk started at Christmastime by the radio station about making Hereford the "twinkle city of the Panhandle" next Christmas. My request would be to make Hereford "the Patriotic City of the Panhandle" now. It is possible for every home in Hereford to tie a yellow ribbon to the tree in their front yard or to the mailbox? Or perhaps to fly the Stars and Stripes til our boys come home? Parents, what a real opportunity to teach your children patriotism.

One lady this week came to the County Clerk's office where I work and said that she had hung a yellow bow on the tree in her front yard with Jimmy's name on it. She said when he came home, he could take it down. What a touching thing to help a mother to get through a difficult day! So many have called to ask what they could do. My answer is put a yellow ribbon in your front yard, and see that your neighbors do likewise. Let's let the boys away from home and their families know that Hereford really

This could be a challenge to every civic club in town and also to every church. It would also mean a great deal to a Mom who has a hard time making it through every day.

Thanks for letting me have this time. That's the great thing about living in a small town, people care.

Sincerely, Sue Curtis

No scoreboard for war gains

An AP News Analysis By WALTER R. MEARS AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - Despite Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said. all the numbers on missions and scoreboard to measure the week-old war in the Persian Gulf. And the people waging it warn not to expect

It's been tried. The result, in America's last major war, was the use of inflated body counts of enemy casualties in Vietnam, misleading at first, self-deluding in the end.

Earlier conflicts were measured in territory gained or lost, as in the ground war that raged up and down Korea, and the invasions of World War II.

Ultimately, the military outcome in the Persian Gulf will be measured in territory - Kuwait. But measuring progress in the campaign to drive Iraq from that conquered country another matter.

That has led to some frustration on the home front, even at the White House, where President Bush's spokesman remarked earlier this week that everybody would like to see better damage assessments.

The administration is briefing members of Congress regularly, but there have been complaints of a lack of details on the damage American air raids are inflicting. Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, said there was some heartburn in Congress as in the press corps at a lack of specifics.

and complexity cannot be scored every evening like a college track meet or a basketball tournament,"

Cheney and Gen. Colin Powell, sortie success rates, there's no one chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, spent a televised hour on Wednesday appraising the war so far, counseling patience while expressing satisfaction with U.S. operations. Powell said they hoped to dampen the mood swings between euphoria and distress that seemed to be occurring almost

They said the air war was going well, the campaign was proceeding according to plan - but Saddam Hussein may yet have surprises to aim against U.S. and allied forces, and the end was not in sight.

Powell said he hadn't come to offer happy talk, "I'm trying to give you my best assessment as I know it now. I don't know how long the war will take. It's a war. I don't think we've done badly for seven days."

He did not display photographs of the damage inflicted by U.S. warplanes, reconnaissance data he said could deliver information useful to Iraq in judging allied capabilities. To illustrate what air strikes have done to Iraqi targets, Powell used sketches of bomb damage assessment photographs.

Then he said that as targeting shifts to the Iraqi army in Kuwait, damage assessments will be more difficult and even less clear than what's been offered on the first been tempered by explanation. There have been more than 12,000 sorties; on Wednesday the U.S. command began differentiating between combat missions and supporting flights. It's about half and half. The claim of an 80 percent successful sortie rate stands, but it doesn't mean that raiding warplanes hit their targets, only that they delivered their weapons.

Governments at war are bent on winning, and aren't about to say or do things that don't serve that end. Washington is not exempt from that reality. Progress reports are part of the war effort. They help to rally and hold public support.

The new element is the immediacy of round-the-clock television coverage. "Everyone has had to do ... some adapting to how that affects the conflict, how that affects the information flows, how it affects people," said Marlin with initial success reports that have Fitzwater, the White House press secretary.

The televised images of Vietnam came home, but hours or days after the fact, not instantly.

Success there came to be scored by the numbers of bombs dropped on North Vietnam and casualties claimed in ground combat. In a guerrilla war, without front lines, the count of enemy bodies on the battlefield became the measure of success. In 1967, it became a weekly accounting system, unchecked for accuracy, with the numbers steadily flating.

Powell renounced Vietnam-style numbers exercises in saying that U.S. warplanes do not need to seek out the largely grounded Iraqi air force at this point because it is a threat that can be dealt with later.

"And rather than spendair power now trying to run up the body count on airplanes that are not bothering us at the moment, I'd rather use that air power in more efficient ways," he said.

Abilene Reporter-News on ethics reform:

As the Texas Legislature gets down to business, members of the Texas Senate have agreed on a strong ethics proposal that could go a long way toward solving obvious problems and setting clear guidelines.

While still subject to many changes, the package does attack many of the problems that are eroding public trust in the Legislature and have resulted in the indictment of House Speaker Gib Lewis on misdemeanor ethics violations.

Pecos Enterprise on the Operation Desert Storm:

Now that the war has begun, the time for criticism of the American effort in Iraq has ended. It is time for all Americans to stand firmly behind our armed forces and Operation Desert Storm. ...

Too many people simply don't understand what this conflict is about. It's not just about the price of oil. It is about controlling a madman who, if not stopped now, will continue to expand his borders much as Hitler did starting in 1939. In the San Francisco area,

By LESLIE DREYFOUS AP National Writer

Wartime jitters have touched off a national run on gas masks, chemical suits, shortwave radios, bottled water and other safeguards against terrorist attack.

An Army store clerk in Fort Worth, Texas, likened the boom items to a raincoat: "Nobody wants it until it's raining." If that's the case, then Operation Desert Storm has unleashed a downpour.

"People aren't buying one at a time. They're buying a dozen," said president Ed Sklar of Spytech Inc., which has sold New Yorkers hundreds of gas masks and chemical suits in recent weeks.

Stores nationwide were having a hard time keeping up. Security companies reported heightened interest in their systems, map and grocery stores were running on empty. Even guns and ammunition were selling particularly briskly.

"People are just kind of panicking," said Wallace Conway, who works at Oklahoma Army Surplus in Tulsa. "They think terrorists are going to attack with chemical weapons.'

Among the hottest items were gas masks like those sported by jumpy television reporters during Scud missile attacks in Saudi Arabia and Israel. They sell for anywhere from $19.95 in Nashville, Tenn., to $39 in Manhattan.

"Yesterday, we had 65 masks at 10 a.m. when we opened, and they were gone by 11 a.m.," said Jeff Durbin of Surplus City in Berkley, Mich. Meanwhile, in Atlanta, a woman wanted to know where she could get one for her dog.

Tracie Ewing of Rochester, N.Y., said she bought a mask for each member of her family of four because she's cautious by nature. "And I'm also a survivor," she said. "This thing could get out of hand."

Teen-agers, too, were showing an interest in wartime protection, though they were decidedly more interested in desert chic.

'It's the fashion. Everybody's got one," said Cliff Conrad, 37, who was checking out the masks at St. Mary's Surplus Sales in Topeka, Kan. "I don't seriously think we'll be gassed. I'm just buying it as a fad.'

The motivation was more utilitarian for military spouses who scooped up field jacket liners, gloves, scarves, canteens and such to send to loved ones toe-to-toe with Saddam Hussein's troops in Saudi Arabia.

And, to keep better track of U.S. troops, three times the usual number of customers were paying out from $280 to $650 to buy shortwave radios at Pearl Electronics in Seattle.

Talk of recession was tabled at Topeka's Bible Supply & Gift Co., where prophecy books and maps were the rage. Greg Carney, co-owner of the nearby All Nations Flag Co., said sales figures were "bigger than the Bicentennial."

Giants-Bills could be super matchup

By DAVE GOLDBERG AP Football Writer

Here are the matchups for Sunday's Super Bowl between the New York Giants and the Buffalo

When the Giants Have the Ball The game plan will probably be what it has been all year - run, run, run, particularly since New York rushed for 157 yards in the first meeting between the teams. The burden will probably fall to Ottis Anderson (24), at age 33 the league's oldest running back, now that Rodney Hampton, who had 105 yards in 21 a broken left leg. Anderson will get help from Dave be. Meggett (30), the team's leading receiver, who carried the ball 10 times against San Francisco in the NFC title game. Lewis Tillman (34) may also see action.

carries against the Bills, is out with

Their principal target probably will be Jeff Wright (91), the nose tackle who is being constantly tested. One key matchup will be New York's best run blocker, left tackle Jumbo Elliott (76) against Buffalo's Bruce Smith (78), the NFL's defensive player of the year. New York may also use a Cross (87) and Bob Mrosko (80) joining Mark Bavaro (89)

Since Jeff Hostetler (15) has taken

Phil Simms, the Giants have used more play action and rollouts. Against San Francisco, Hostetler was able to find Bavaro and Mark Ingram (82) five times each. Stephen Baker (85) is the deep threat against a secondary whose best coverage man is right corneback Nate Odomes (47). Strong safety Leonard Smith (46) is a ferocious run blocker, but can be beaten by play action.

The strength of the Bills' defense is its linebackers - particularly Darryl Talley (56), Cornelius Bennett (97) and Shane Conlan (58). Bennett and Conlan are Pro Bowlers and Talley, who had two interceptions against the Raiders in the AFC title game, should Talley, Bennett, Smith and left end Leon Seals, (94) are the main pass-rushing threats.

The Bills must also watch out for gimmick plays, like the fake punt that got the Giants 30 yards and set up an important field goal against San Francisco. The previous week, they went for a first down four times on fourth down and succeeded all four triple tight end formation, with Louis since it began using the no-huddle offense, which gives Jim Kelly (16), the freedom to call plays at the line of scrimmage. Buffalo led the league over at quarterback for the injured in scoring (426 points) and has scored

95 points in two playoff victories. The offense is the NFL's most balanced, with Thurman Thomas (24), the AFC's leading rusher with 1,297 yards and the second-leading reciever with 49 catches. But the main receiving threats are Andre Reed (83) and the rejuvenated James Lofton (80), who at 34 has had 100-yard games in both playoff contests. Tight end Keith McKeller (84) is a dangerous secondary target. Kenneth Davis (23) is the short yardage threat.

The offensive line is one of the league's best, anchored by All-Pro center Kent Hull (67). Tackle Will Wohlford (69) and guard Jim Ritcher (51) are close to that level.

That high-scoring offense will be matched against a team that surrendered the fewest points (211) of any team in the league and has allowed just one touchdown in two playoff games. Like the Bills, the strength is at linebacker led by Lawrence Taylor (56), whom coach Bill Parcells calls "the best player of the last 10 years."

But inside linebacker Pepper Johnson (52) had an all-Pro season; outside linebacker Carl Banks (58) was hampered by injuries but is of all-Pro caliber, and Steve DeOssie (99) and Gary Reasons (55), who share the other inside spot, are steady

- DeOssie in rushing situations, Reasons against the pass.

The steadiest defensive lineman is nose tackle Erik Howard (74), whose battle against Hull may be one of the keys to the game. Leonard Marshall (70) had his best game in three years against San Francisco. Defensive end John Washington (73) is a strong run-stuffer.

The most improved part of the defense is the secondary, where veteran Everson Walls (28) has added stability to anotherwise young unit. Right cornerback Mark Collins (25) shut down Jerry Rice twice and is the best cover man. Second-year safeties Myron Guyton (29) and Greg Jackson (47) are future stars. Nickel back Perry Williams (23) was a six-year starter who was beaten out by Walls.

SPECIAL TEAMS

The Giants and Bills each feature the Pro Bowl special teams player, Reyna Thompson (21) of New York and Steve Tasker (89) of the Buffalo.

The Giants have an distinct edge in punting with Sean Landeta (5), perhaps the league's best, vs. ourneyman Rick Tuten (10) of the Bills.

Scott Norwood (11), the Bills' placekicker is the only Buffalo player to have been in a title game - in the USFL. He and Matt Bahr (9) of the from inside 40 yards this season. If there a weakness in New York's special teams, it's kickoff coverage - Bahr rarely reaches the goal line and opponents often get the ball behond the 30. Buffalo has led the league in kickoff coverage the last four years.

But New York has the most dangerous returner in Meggett, who is better brining back punts than kickoffs.

COACHING

Buffalo's Marv Levy won two championships in the Canadian League but this is his first Super Bowl. He was known as a conservative coach, typified by his criticism of Cincinnati's Sam Wyche no-huddle offense in the AFC no-huddle himself last year and put every down.

season when he became convinced Kelly could improvise well enough to run it.

Both coodinators, Walt Corey on defense and Ted Marchibroda on offense, are considered among the best at their job in the NFL.

The Giants' Bill Parcells is perhaps the ranking defensive genius in the NFL. Give him two weeks and he can devise a defense to stop any offense, as he did when he and defensive coordinator Bill Belichick put in an uncharacteristic 4-3 to shut down Chicago's running game. Belichick is now one of the leading candidates for the Cleveland coaching job.

The offensive coaching is far more conservative. Parcells and offensive coordinator Ron Ehrhardt prefer to title game two years ago. But that run as much as possible. When helped convince him to implement a behind, they will often thrown on

The Dallas Cowboys would have never reached such a high plateau in the NFL history books without Schramm's front office management Schramm is one of 15 finalists for induction into the Hall of Fame Saturday.

The Cowboys made it to five Super Bowls, winning two, with Schramm as the club's president and general manager. The team made the playoffs 19 consecutive seasons.

The success of "America's Team," as NFL Films nicknamed the club, was based on a lot of things Schramm did and one thing he didn't

The one thing he didn't do was fire coach Tom Landry when the expansion Cowboys were struggling in the early '60s, locked in a football war for Dallas with the Texans of Lamar Hunt.

In fact, when many fans were demanding Landry's firing, Schramm suggested to the late Clint Murchison that something positive needed to be done to help the Cowboys coach. Team-owner Murchison promptly gave Landry a 10-year contract. Schramm never interfered with the coaching. Reporters covering the Cowboys can remember Schramm showing up at Landry's news conferences wondering as the media did who the coach would name as the starting quarterback.

Schramm, a former sports writer for the Austin American-Statesman, had a special touch in working the media. He never turned down a microphone or a notebook. His accessibility made him one of the most quoted front-office figures in NFL history.

Schramm's ideas made for a more efficient NFL. His work with former commissioner Pete Rozelle is legendary.

Schramm was an influential member of the powerful competition committee. His brain never rested. It was Schramm who came up with the deas for the directional arrows on the field to show television viewers which side of the ball the field was resting.

Of course, Schramm's push for instant replay is his most famous innovation. Schramm fought battle after battle for it, always prevailing

NFU working to boost farm income

National Farmers Union, rebuffed by Congress last year when the new farm law was written, will try again to get the government to boost commodity price supports and take other steps to improve farm income.

NFU leaders announced Wednesday a nationwide petition campaign "designed to show Congress and the Bush administration a groundswell of support" for modifying the new law, not quite two months old.

Administration and congressional farm leaders say new farm laws are always subject to review but that an overhaul of the 1990 version is unlikely.

Rep. Charles W. Stenholm, D-Texas, a senior member of the House Agriculture Committee, said the drive to reopen the 1990 law was doomed from the start.

'I can't foresee the committee opening the farm bill up with the purpose of a 180-degree turn from the direction (approved last year), as some groups are encouraging us to do," Stenholm said. "I do not believe that that's in the realm of possibili-

Congress argue that high price constraints." supports make U.S. commodities less competitive on the world market and cut into exports.

NFU President Leland Swenson said market prices and other economic conditions have deteriorated since Congress debated the massive five-year farm bill last summer and fall.

Among other failings, he said, the law has allowed the Agriculture Department to set loan rates too low.

President Bush signed the legislation into law on Nov. 28. It includes a package of changes to give farmers more flexibility and choice in determining what to produce.

But the law also reduces the direct subsidies, or deficiency payments, due farmers when market prices fall below target levels, which the NFU said are also too low.

The tone of the law is to place more reliance on market orientation

'We're not asking for more spending on farm programs," Swenson said. "But there are ways to make the farm bill work for The administration and many in farmers within current budget

> Swenson said raising crop loan rates would ease the pressure on making deficiency payments to farmers. Those payments basically make up the difference between the loan rates and target prices.

The reopening of the 1990 law is needed to forestall "economic devastation" among farmers, Swenson said. Food and nutrition programs also should be strengthened to provide help for poor and homeless people, he said.

Swenson cited figures showing that prices of major commodities, including milk and grain, have dropped sharply in recent months.

For example, he said, manufacturing grade milk dropped to $10.25 per 100 pounds in November from $13.43 in July. Wheat prices declined from

Swenson said the NFU's petition campaign also has the support of some other organizations, including the National Family Farm Coalition, American Agriculture Movement, National Consumers League and

Although Swenson said no target number is in mind for signers, the petitions will be circulated until March 1 and then gathered for

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Baseball Hall of Fame pitcher Don Drysdale was charged with drunken driving after the car he was driving collided with another vehicle, injuring a woman, police said.

Drysdale, 54, posted $5,000 bail a few hours after the accident and faces arraignment Feb. 11 on a felony charge of drunken driving, police officer Tom Ohmer said Tuesday.

The woman was treated for bruises and abrasions at a hospital.

A breath test after the accident Monday showed Drysdale, an announcer for the Los Angeles Dodgers, had a blood-alcohol level of .19 percent, Ohmer said.

Mixon is presently employed with the Texas Department of Corrections in Amarillo as a guard.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - W. Wilson Goode Jr., son of the mayor, threw his hat into the City Council race, saying he would use his seat to address the needs of black males ages 15 to 34 who are "in crisis."

Goode, 25, a substitute teacher in city schools, spent two years as a Wall Street consultant and one year as an aide in the U.S. House of Representatives. He also worked on his father's sucessful 1987 re-election campaign. They are Democrats.

ATLANTA (AP) - CNN's Bernard Shaw resumed anchoring the news from Washington, without mentioning his reporting from Iraq last week at the start of the Persian Gulf war.

Shaw and CNN correspondents John Holliman and Pulitzer Prize-winner Peter Arnett were in Baghdad when the United States and its allies began their air attack.

The trio hung a microphone out their hotel window, hid under furniture and crawled down darkened hallways searching for better views

Shaw and Holliman left Baghdad when most foreign correspondents were ordered out Friday. Arnett is the only U.S. network reporter left there.

Shaw took a few days off before resuming his anchoring duties Thursday.

CNN spokesman Steve Haworth said Shaw's return was unheralded because "we're so busy just covering the news as best we can. We're not in the business of promoting our news coverage. We just do it."

The public is invited to attend the Bigham, who will provide special music, and Carmen Flood and Wright, who will present offertory music.

Host pastor, Dr. Alton Tomlin, will bring the welcome and introduce the speaker, Dr. James Hickman, pastor of Dawn Baptist Church. The Week of Prayer for Christian

Unity is sponsored by the Hereford Ministerial Alliance and its president this year is Rev. Jim Donaldson of First Christian Church.

The needs of the community is of vital concern to the members of the alliance and as is their policy, onehalf of the offering will go directly to a specific community project.

It's beneficial not to remove gallbladder Preservation of the gallbladder (gallbladder removal surgery) is the gallstones.

"As we see new surgical treatments to remove the gallbladder emerge, we shouldn't lose sight of the fact that this organ plays a useful role in digestion," says Thelma King Thiel, president of ALF.

A small pouch-like organ tucked under the liver, the gallbladder stores and concentrates bile made by the liver to aid in digesting fatty foods. After a meal, bile is secreted into the gallbladder.

Gallstones form when the liver secretes too much cholesterol, a component of bile, which then crystallizes and forms solid lumps or gallstones. Stones can remain 'silent," producing no symptoms for years, or can cause mild-to-severe symptoms, such as bloating, indigestion, severe abdominal pain, nausea or vomiting. About 25 million Americans have gallstones, however, not all have symptoms.

"The gallbladder is not an unessential organ like the appendix; it has an important role in coordinating digestion," says Seymour M. Sabesin, M.D., director, The Section of Digestive Diseases, Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Social Security representative at Center, Chicago. "Cholecystectomy should be an important consideration standard surgery for gallstones, and for patients when discussing gallstone the new surgical procedure that uses treatment options with their physi- a laser to remove the gallbladder is cian, according to the American Liver also gaining acceptance, although it Foundation (ALF), an organization also requires general anesthesia. dedicated to fighting the range of However, it may also be worth liver diseases, which includes considering non-surgical alternatives that enable patients to preserve their gallbladders," says Dr. Sabesin.

"The mere presence of gallstones does not always indicate a diseased gallbladder that has to be surgically removed," says Dr. Sabesin. "To determine the appropriate treatment, physicians must distinguish between gallbladder that has become diseased as a result of gallstones, and one that is essentially healthy despite the presence of gallstones," he explains.

'For selected patients who can't or won't have surgery, many physicians are now prescribing an oral medication that may dissolve certain types of gallstones," Dr. Sabesin adds.

After gallbladder removal surgery, bile must flow directly into the small intestine, causing a subtle alteration of the digestive process. Symptoms such as dyspepsia (painful digestion) persist in about 20 percent of postcholescytectomy patients, according to Dr. Sabesin.

Over 500,000 cholesestectomics are performed in the U.S. each year, making this the second most frequently performed operation. As major surgery, it is associated with 6,000 deaths annually.

Career Awareness Day slated in Hereford

Awareness Day, sponsored by the Texas State Technical Institute, will be in Hereford from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 29, at the Hereford Community Center.

Approximately 600 sixth graders from Bluebonnet, Shirley and West Central intermediate schools will participate in the event.

TSTI of Amarillo is scheduled to have exhibits and demonstrations in automated office, auto body repair, automotive technology, aviation maintenance, commercial art, computer science, drafting and design, electronics, interior design, instrumentation, machining technology, mechanical electrical technology, laser electro-optics, professional truck operations and welding.

A new outside exhibit this year is being provided by West Texas Cat of Amarillo, the "service truck of the 90s" for TSTI's diesel technician program. This computerized truck can provide almost total service in the field for any service required in the Amarillo, 1-335-2316, ext. 246.

The Second Annual Career shop. Recently, TSTI of Amarillo and wareness Day, sponsored by the West Texas Cat joined forces as a partnership in education. West Texas Cat will be traveling to Hereford with TSTI to endorse the diesel mechanics technology program.

According to Jerry Moore, director of Campus Information, "Technical education is the hope for this state's future because we must compete in a global economy. We can't do this without advance skills in the workplace, and our best natural resource is these young kids." Along with TSTI, West Texas Cat of Amarillo is also concerned about the future of the young people and the importance of staying in school.

The day is aimed at the hopes students will gain a better understanding about the technical career opportunities of today and tomorrow. The career day is open to the public and parents are especially encouraged to attend.

Ann Landers

Recently you printed a letter about how a couple of "old flames" tried to rekindle their romance but failed. You asked your readers to write about their experiences with old flames, so here goes:

Ten years ago I met an attractive girl at the amusement park where we were both working summer jobs. We saw a lot of each other but there was no romance. The following year we ran into each other on campus. Still no romance. We kept running into each other, and I began to feel that fate was bringing us together and maybe she was the one for me. I completely changed the way I thought about her and PRESTO, I was in love! She confessed that she had been crazy about me for a long time. On Thanksgiving 1989, in my grandmother's driveway, I got down on one knee and asked her to marry me. She said yes and we were married soon after. Now we can't understand what took us so long. --Alexandria, Va.

DEAR ALEX: Ain't love grand?

FROM AUBURNDALE, FLA .: he invited me to dinner. I figured I'd I pulled into my carport one Friday night after staying late at school (I was a teacher) and there he was. I had not seen him in 40 years but I recognized him immediately. We sat in my kitchen and talked non-stop for five hours. He had been the victim of a violent crime and had lost his speech and most of his memory. After several months of therapy he had made remarkable progress. The first words he uttered were my name. He got into his car, drove to my hometown and found me. We were married 10 months later, the first time for me (at age 63) and the second for him. We had nearly seven beautiful years together before I lost him to cancer. Ours was a real love story. -- E.D.W.

TUCSON: I had a huge crush on Larry. He was the most popular guy in school. Once when he smiled at me in the lunchroom, I nearly fainted. He took me out a few times but nothing ignited. After graduation,

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Larry left town. I lost track of him but he was constantly in my dreams. At age 20 I married Jim, a nice, steady, boring guy who was a lot like Gary Cooper. All he could say was "yup" and "nope." We had two children and sort of sleepwalked through life.

On our 18th anniversary I couldn't stand it any longer and asked Jim for a divorce. He agreed at once. To my surprise, he got married two months later. It never dawned on me that he had had a girl all along -- one he must have said more to than "yup" and

A month later I went to my 20th high school reunion and there was Larry, more gorgeous than ever and freshly divorced. We fell in love that weekend. After four months of burning up the telephone lines and spending every weekend together, we were married. At age 40 I had a son --his first child -- and am now pregnant with a girl. Talk about happy -- we are in seventh heaven!

FRANKLINVILLE, N.J.: Here's my story: Four years after my divorce I received a call from my very first boyfriend. We talked a long time and go so he could see what he had passed up 18 years before, when I was 15 and her was 17. (He had dumped me twice.) I intended it to be a one-date deal just to get even. That dinner was on Aug. 16, 1987. He fell like a ton of bricks that night and so did I. On Nov. 7, 1987, we were married. Three years and a ton of laughs later we are still like a couple of kids. My mother looks at us and says, "I can't get over this!"

What can you give the person who has everything? Ann Landers' new booklet, "Gems," is ideal for a nightstand or coffee table. "Gems" is a collection of Ann Landers' most requested poems and essays. We don't think about depth perception much until we've lost it. Yet everything we need to see people, cars, landscapes - has three dimesions: height, width and depth. Without an accurate perception of depth, we might bump into things,

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Civil rights matriarch Rosa Parks says racism is still alive in this nation. She blames skinheads and Ku Klux Klan members for keeping the flames of prejudice flickering.

They spread that hatred and it is easily picked up by those weak enough to succumb to it," Mrs. Parks told students at Windsor Hills Magnet School on Thursday.

Mrs. Parks, 77, sparked the civil rights movement by refusing to give up her seat at the front of a bus to a white man in Montgomery, Ala., in 1955. She was arrested under Alabama law that required blacks to sit at the back of buses.

"I was determined to let them know, at all cost, that I was not pleased with the way I was treated,' Mrs. Parks said.

"I am very glad to live to see a better day and very glad we have freedom of expression and the chance to get the education we need."

Society's walk set in Amarillo

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society announced that Amarillo has again been selected as a site for its annual Super Cities Walk. Known locally as "Walk Historic Amarillo," the fund raiser is set for Saturday, April 6, at 10 a.m.

The walk will start at the offices of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce, located at 10th and Polk. Check-in will open at 8:30 a.m., and chapter personnel also plan to implement an early registration program during the week preceding the walk.

Amarillo will be one of 250 cities nationwide hosting walks during the weekend of April 6 and 7. In only its second year locally and its third year nationally, the Super Cities Walk is fast becoming the primary fund raiser for the M.S. Society. Held in 146 locations last year, the walk generated more than $14 million for the Society's research and chapter service programs.

In keeping with the "Walk Historic Amarillo" theme, this year's walk will again feature a tour of Amarillo's historical districts and neighborhoods. Betty Howell, chairperson of Preservation Amarillo, has again been commissioned to design the walk

Said Howell, "This event has become so important to our community because not only will we raise funds for such a special cause, but at no other time will so many people get to enjoy so much of this area's heritage at one time and in one

Chapter officials expect more than 1,500 participants. Last year, over 1,000 people walked in the 15-kilometer (9.3-mile) event.

According to Roger Cox, Panhandle chapter chairman and a member of the Society's National Chairman's Advisory Council, last year's event exceeded all expectations for a community of Amarillo's "Even considering the unqualified success of the walk throughout the country, no city came close to matching the efforts and achievements of this community. On a per capita basis, the walk generated a higher level of fund raising and participation than any comparably sized city." Cox added that Amarillo and the entire area have received nationwide acclaim for the success of last year's Amarillo walk. "Thanks in no small part to 'Walk Historic Amarillo,' the Panhandle Chapter has played a major role in the giant strides that have been achieved in research toward treatment and a cure for this disease." Cox added, "Additionally, we are able to provide a level of chapter and patient services to the area that is simply not available in other communities this size."

Walkers will collect pledges based on the distance walked. Prizes will be awarded to all walkers based on the level of funds raised. Prizes range from t-shirts and gift certificates to the grand prize--a week-long trip for two to Jamaica, courtesy of American Airlines and Travel Express.

National Home Health Care is the primary sponsor for the walk. Other local sponsors include The Olive Garden Restaurant, KLS Radio, and KFDA-TV. Also providing sponsorship are TCBY Yogurt, United Food Stores, Pepsi Cola, Roman Meal Bread, Thrifty Nickel, The Water Barrel, The Apartment Journal, and Keebler Cookies.

approved for children as young as two months old, may spare thousands of Texas infants and toddlers illness or death from the most common cause of bacterial meningitis.

Local health departments and private physicians already have begun offering patients the new vaccines against haemophilus influenza type b, also called Hib disease.

At two months, infants can now be protected against Hib by a series of shots which health officials say are both inexpensive and highly effective. ry infections, as well as pneumonia This use of the vaccine replaces the previous single-dose medicine which was not effective in children younger than 15 months.

According to Robert D. Crider, director of the Texas Department of Health's (TDH) Immunization Division, the new vaccines, clinic clients can have their children HibTITER and Pedvax, are "two of "immunized without charge. the safest vaccines available for the first time, to immunize infants and a booster at 15 months) while against Hib.

Crider said that about 20,000 Hib infections, mostly in young children, are reported in the U.S. annually. About one in every 200 children will age five. The bacterium sometimes causes a form of meningitis, which can result in retardation, blindness, deafness and other neurological disorders. Hib also can cause severe car, throat, sinus and upper respiratoand septic arthritis.

Because the vaccines are not costly, TDH already has used state and federal funds to supply local public health clinics with HibTITER vaccine. Qualified public health

HibTITER is given in four doses

Two new vaccines, recently children. They make it possible, for (three doses at two month intervals Pedvax is given in three doses (two doses, two months apart, and a booster at 12 months).

With the availability of these vaccines," Crider said, "we hope to have a serious Hob infection before immunize virtually all the infants in Texas. Family physicians and pediatricians will manage their own patients, while TDH supplies are meant to reach low-income children beginning at between the ages of two months and five years."

TDH urges all parents of children in the two-month to five-year age group, or with chronic illnesses, to ask their family physicians or a local health clinic about Hob vaccinations. Like other childhood vaccinations, Hib immunization will be required by law for children less than five when registering for day care or school in

Winter blues can be cured

The holidays are over. And too per day. much food and too little exercise have taken their toll on your body. So now you're waking up tired and going to bed exhausted. You've got the winter

But the winter blues can be easily cured with a little tender, loving care. If you overdid it during the holidays, it's not too late to get back on track with a healthful lifestyle.

According to the American Heart Association, a healthy lifestyle starts with proper nutrition and exercise. A low-fat, low salt diet and regular exercise can help reduce your risk of developing cardiovascular diseases and stroke, which claim the lives of nearly one million Americans each

The benefits, however, go far beyond preventing heart disease. A healthy lifestyle, remember that "diet" doesn't always mean a change in eating patterns to lose weight. Your diet is simply the foods you choose to eat on a regular basis. The AHA recommends that healthy Americans over the age of two reduce the total fat in their diet to about 30 cholesterol intake to less than 300 mg

The numbers can be intimidating, but reducing fat and cholesterol in your diet can be easy. You can start by buying only lean cuts of meat and trimming any visible fat before cooking. Remember to remove the skin from poultry before cooking. Instead of frying meats and vegetables, try baking, steaming, broiling or roasting them to reduce the fat.

You can reduce the amount of fats consumed in dairy products by substituting skim milk, low-fat cheeses and low-fat yogurt for their high-fat counterparts.

. It's also important to limit the number of egg yolks you consume to no more than three or four per week, including those used in cooking. Try substituting two egg whites for one whole egg in recipes for baked goods.

Another way to beat the winter blues is by exercising. Many people who exercise regularly have a greater resistance to stress, anxiety and fatigue, not to mention improved condition of the heart and lungs.

So, don't sit back and wait for percent of total calories and limit spring. Now is the time to beat the winter blues.

Blue Corn making comeback in stores

Blue corn, virtually ignored by modern-day consumers until recently, is slowly making its way into grocery stores and restaurants.

The demand has been picking up steadily in Central Texas," said Daniel Guerra of Austin, plant manager of El Lago, which has been making blue corn products for two years. "Most of the demand first came from restaurants, then health food stores and grocery stores."

Blue corn, which has a nuttier, sweeter taste than other types of flour corn, was being grown by the Pueblo Indians as early as 1540 when Francisco Vasquez de Coronado explored the southwestern United States. But consumer demand will determine whether farmers continue to grow the specialty crop which yields less but brings higher prices than ordinary corn.

Guerra said five percent of the 600 Mexican restaurants El Lago services purchase blue corn tortilla chips regularly.

Restaurants can purchase a package of 10 dozen regular white corn tortillas for $1.75 from El Lago, but the same quantity of blue corn tortillas cost $7.50. Consumer prices are about a dollar higher at their outlet store, he said.

Alana Sugar, manager of Whole Foods Market based in Austin, said their best selling blue corn item is a

Q. How can eggs be hard-cooked without shells cracking? W.Z., Sidney,

A. Place eggs in saucepan and add water, To prevent cracking, be sure water in saucepan comes at least one inch above eggs. Bring water to a rapid boil; remove from heat, cover and let stand for 22 to 24 minutes. Plunge eggs into cold water to stop cooking.

Q. The bread I've made lately from trusted recipes is crumbly. What could crop. be the problem? M.P., Lake Nebagam-

A. Usually too much flour has been added which absorbs the moisture from dough. Baking dries out the dough even more. Sometimes flour is affected by conditions of storage. Flour stored in a hot, dry area may lose moisture, while flour stored in a humid area absorbs moisture. Use only enough flour to make a dough that is easy to work with. It is important that dough be kept as soft as possible to handle easily.

Q. What's the right way to use a bamboo steamer? K.Z., McComb, MS

A. A bamboo steamer is best used in a wok. Have boiling wanted in wok 1/2 in from bottom of steamer.

Q. How can I make cornbread that isn't crumbly? E.H., New Castel, PA

A. Measure flour carefully, too much level with straight-edge spatula. be he said. sure not to pat cup or pack flour. Baking too long or in too hot an oven will dry cornbread, as well. Allow to cool slightly and serve.

9-ounce box of Kellogg's Corn Flakes for $1.69.

"Children are really attracted to blue corn flakes," said Sugar. "They're fun."

Blue popcorn kernels are sold for $1.49 a pound and sell just as well as their yellow counterparts, Sugar said. Chuy's Mexican Restaurants in Dallas, Austin and Houston is "well known for its blue corn dish," said Dallas manager John Jacobs.

The Chuy's Special is a Santa Fe style stacked enchilada with layers of blue corn tortillas, tomatillo sauce and a chicken breast smothered in Monterey jack cheese.

"Most people are curious when they see blue corn on the menu and just try it," said Austin Chuy's manager Karen Jacobs. "It's the fourth best selling item on the whole menu."

But the colorful commodity still lags behind in the research arena. Although processors, restauranteurs and retailers seem excited about blue corn prospects, researchers seem skeptical.

Texas A&M University cereal chemist Dr. Lloyd Rooney said very few researchers are devoting the time and money for improving blue corn varieties.

'It's a very limited sort of thing," said Rooney. "It takes time and effort, and so far the interest is not there.

Rooney said because of limited amounts, blue corn seeds are expensive, and the yields obtained in comparison to regular hybrid corn are "substantially lower."

Texas farmers produce less than 200,000 bushels of blue corn each year, according to Boyd Foster of Hereford, president of Arrowhead Mills, a processor of blue corn. That compares to almost 150 million bushels of regular corn produced each year in the state.

Consumer interest seems to be keeping blue corn in the markets. "Most people like it or just hate it," Rooney said. "Those who like it will eat it consistently."

Even though things may seem doubtful from the research end, at least one producer still is hopeful.

Wayne Persky, who farms near Bartlett, is not giving up on blue corn even though he just suffered his worst

Last year, Persky planted 200 low because of the hot, dry summer in Central Texas coupled with high aflatoxin levels. Aflatoxin, which typically develops from a fungus in droughty years, is a carcinogen. Grain that contains more than 20 parts per billion of aflatoxin can not be sold for human food.

"Because of the aflatoxin levels, none of the blue corn I made in 1990 could be used for human consumption," said Persky.

His blue corn made only 15 bushels per acre in 1990, but the previous year it made 40 to 50 bushels per acre. The average per acre yield in 1989 for regular corn was 106 bushels.

But Persky noted that the price of processed blue corn brings three times as much as regular yellow com. "When you multiply it out, the price difference flour caused dryness and crumbling. really adds up when regular yellow Spoon lightly into measuring cup and corn makes about 80 bushels per acre,"

Persky plans to keep experimenting with blue corn, even though varieties haven't been bred for his blacklands

Cozy Cottage Provides Lots of Storage and Comfortable Living

NEED A COMPACT PLAN?

BY W.D. FARMER, A.I.B.D.

Three full-size bedrooms, living room, dining room, kitchen, and bath provide confortable living quarters for this compact plan.

Convenience is the key to this cozy cottage. A large living

This home can be built on a concrete slab or with a crawl space foundation.

The easy-care brick exterior is enhanced by traditional 12lite shuttered windows, smooth hip roof lines, and a paneled door.

Tips on gluing that stick

By READER'S DIGEST For AP Newsfeatures If you're about to spread glue on a joint's surface, stop! Here are some hints and tips to help make whatever you're gluing really CAUTION: Some glue fumes are dangerous. Always work in a well-ventilated area, never near open flame. Instant glues bond to the skin; wear rubber gloves, and never point a glue tube toward your face.

- Almost anything that fits together can be glued, but glue is no substitute for a well-made joint. No glue will hold pieces that don't fit together snugly.

Do a dry run without glue. If you are working with an instant glue that sets quickly, practice putting the pieces together in the allotted time given on the glue's label.

- Most wood glues require clamping for several hours, but the time it takes for a particular glue to cure varies; check the glue's label. Contact cement

Two C-clamps and a length of braided wire can be used to make a clamp of any capacity. Loop the ends of the cable around the stationary jaws of the clamps, twist the ends together,.. then tighten the adjustable screw pads around the work.

If you don't have these clamps, you can use old wooden thread spools. Find a bolt long and narrow enough to fit through two spools and the workpiece. Then insert the bolt through the spool holes, and tighten a wing nut to pull the spool "jaws" snugly against your workpiece.

Here's a quick-fix Super Bowl appetizer

NEW YORK (AP) - For supereasy Super Bowl appetizers, combine canned roast beef hash with cheese, garlic, onion and seasonings for Mexican Hash & Cheese Appetizers.

Canned foods are cooked foods. They need only to be quickly warmed before eating, helping them retain their color, perfect shape and texture.

Just a couple of minutes in the microwave, and canned foods are ready to eat, and continue to hold most of their nutritional value, according to the Canned Food Information Council. MEXICAN HASH & CHEESE

APPETIZERS

Three 7-ounce whole Gouda or Edam cheese rounds One 15-ounce can roast beef hash

2 tablespoons thinly sliced green onions and tops

2 tablespoons minced cilantro 1 to 2 tablespoons hot or mild canned chopped chilies

1 large clove garlic, minced 1/4 teaspoon chili powder 1/8 teaspoon ground cumin

Place each cheese shell on small glass serving plate. Mix hash, onions, cilantro, chilies, garlic, chili powder and cumin in a 4-cup glass measuring cup. Cook on high (100 percent power) until hot, about 2 minutes, stirring after 1 minute.

Fill cheese shells with hash mixture. Cook each cheese on medium (50 percent power) until cheese softens and just begins to melt, about 30 seconds; repeat with remaining cheeses.

Overlap tortillas on a glass plate; cover with a paper towel. Cook on high until tortillas are warm, about 20 seconds. Spoon hash and cheese mixture onto tortillas, top with salsa and roll up. Makes 9 to 12 servings.

Seafood clams up chips, dip

NEW YORK (AP) - Tired of the same old chips and dip? For Super Bowl munchies, serve fried clams, scallops, breaded shrimp and deviled crab miniatures with a variety of dipping

Some suggestion from the National Fisheries Institute for dipping sauces:

- Serve herb mayonnaise with breaded scallops. Mix finely chopped chives and parsley, a little tarragon and thyme, and a dash of lemon juice into the mayonnaise.

- For breaded shrimp, serve a light, creamy sauce made with equal parts of hot Chinese mustard, English mustard or Jamaican pepper sauce, and ketchup.

- Aioli, a garlic mayonnaise, is quickly prepared in the food processor; chill to blend flavors and serve with breaded items.

- For homemade tartar sauce, mix mayonnaise, yogurt, sweet relish. minced onion and a dash of Worcestershire sauce.

Steamed and Spiced Shrimp also makes a tasty snack for Super Bowl munching. The recipe is from the National Fisheries Institute.

STEAMED AND SPICED SHRIMP 1 pound raw, medium-sized shrimp in the shell

2 teaspoons oil

1 tablespoon prepared scafood seasoning or recipe below

Coat shrimp with oil; toss with scafood scasoning. Place shrimp on a steamer rack over boiling water. Reduce heat and steam, covered, about 2-3 minutes or until bright pink and opaque throughout. Serve warm with your favorite spicy cocktail sauce. Makes about 40 pieces.

Seafood Seasoning: Combine 1 1/2 teaspoons celery salt, 3/4 teaspoon paprika, 3/4 teaspoon dry mustard and 1/8 teaspoon cayenne pepper. Makes 1 tablespoon.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Actor Steve Guttenberg will carry on the tradition of celebrity kings that reign over Bacchus, one of the most popular parades during Mardi Gras.

Guttenberg, who starred in "Three Men and a Baby," "Police Academy," and "Cocoon," will ride on the tale of an animated whale as Bacchus, the god of wine.

The 85-foot float called "Baccha-Whoppa" is a new addition to the Feb. 10 parade, Bacchus captain Owen Brennan said.

The tradition of celebrity kings began in 1969 with actor Danny Kaye, and has included Bob Hope, Jackie Gleason, Charlton Heston, Kirk Douglas, Billy Crystal and 1990's king, Dennis Quaid.
