Marines killed in border clash

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (AP)

- U.S. Marines fired anti-tank weapons and called in air strikes to repel a three-pronged attack by tank-led Iraqi forces today. Eight to 10 Marines were killed and heavy Iraqi casualties were reported, U.S. military officials said.

The Marines were the first American ground forces to die in strength and weaknesses - not meant battle in the 2-week-old war with Iraq. The clash, which started Tuesday night, began when Iraqi tanks were spotted moving into Saudi Arabia and was the heaviest ground fighting so far in the Persian Gulf War.

As the ground battle broke out, in the moonlight. air-sea clashes were reported in the gulf, and bomb-laden allied warplanes thundered off runways in Saudi Arabia to strike targets deep in

A Pentagon source characterized the Iraqi ground action as a "probing attack" aimed at assessing allied to seize and hold ground.

Reports from Marines on the ground spoke of hand-to-hand combat in the streets of the Saudi border town of Khafji. Marine Lt. Col. Cliff Myers described the fighting as "hellacious" as the Marines battled Iraqis

There is a human tendency to blame others for our problems. People who don't get involved reminds us of the story about two ship-wrecked men in a lifeboat. From their end of the boat they watched as the people at the other end bailed frantically to keep afloat. One said to the other, "Thank goodness the hole isn't at our end of the boat."

000 We just returned from a Texas Press Association convention and trade show over the weekend in Dallas. We attended some good industry-related programs and enjoyed talks by Attorney General Dan Morales and by H.G. Bissinger, author of Friday Night Lights.

Morales reviewed the Texas Open Meetings and Open Records acts, and pledged support for open governmental meetings. Morales said he had heard many complaints, already, about violations of the open meetings act by local governmental bodies.

Bissinger, who has been criticized in Odessa for "betraying" the community and Permian football, says he simply reported the story that citizens gave him, "going in with no pre-conceived ideas." He says a similar story on over-emphasized athletic programs could have been written in hundreds of towns across the country, but it would probably would have been about basketball in places like Indiana.

The author said he loved high school sports as much as anyone, "but not to the level of being detrimental to academics and the health and welfare of the athletes.'

Asked about going back to Odessa, where he has received death threats, Bissinger said he might go if he could take a Patriot missile with him.

The war in the Persian Gulf was not forgotten at the press convention. Many publishers and editors were critical of the job being done by reporters and television experts. To give a press briefing with a hundred bloodthirsty press service and television reporters asking silly questions must be terribly frustrating to the man in charge of the briefing, noted one publisher. Why do our television reporters want every battle plan, every detail, every single episode brought out so Saddam and his cohorts can sit there and plan accordingly? I respect the unique position of journalists and reporters, but there are some things--battle plans for one-that are no one's business. The constant repetitive questions over the same topic often get ridiculous. Our military leaders have a war to fight. They don't need the hassle of battling with the friendly press corps every few hours!

State lottery push begins

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Ann Richards says Texans deserve the chance to decide whether the state should begin operating a lottery. But Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock calls such gambling a "sleazy way for government to raise money.

Richards on Tuesday urged lawmakers to put a lottery proposal before voters on the May 4 constitutional amendment ballot. Approval would mean that lottery gambling could begin in January 1992, she said.

"The state is in a revenue crunch. We are looking for sources of funds for education and prisons and mental health programs and human services and any number of other things that I can name," Richards said.

"Polls have shown consistently that there is overwhelming support in the state of Texas, on the part of bottom 10 percent income people." the people, for a state lottery," she

Bullock agreed that Texans favor a chance to vote, but he said he didn't like the idea of funding government with a lottery.

"I hate to run government on the government on just the throw of a lottery," Bullock said. "I've seen the studies ... and about 50 percent of the sales of a lottery are sold to the thing and one thing only ... allow the people of Texas to decide for themselves whether or not they want to raise public funds for critical state services through a state lottery,' Richards said. She said a "scratch card" lottery game could begin in January 1992, with the big-money computerized 'lotto" game starting in July 1992.

The state estimates that a lottery would raise about $730 million during the 1992-93 budget period. Lawmakers face a projected $4.2 billion deficit for those years.

"That's $730 million we will not throw of dice, and I hate to run have to add in terms of additional taxation or lose in terms of critical state services," Richards said.

Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, said traditional House opposition that defeated his lottery bills in the past was shrinking in face of a budget amendment on lottery would "do one deficit and possible state income tax.

Bush pledges in over Iraq WASHINGTON (AP) - President

Bush's promise of victory against Iraq drew cheers but his State of the Union address left Democrats spoiling for a fight over his domestic agenda. "We've got two battles - one in the Persian Gulf and one in this country," said Rep. Joe Moakley, D-Mass. "He just glossed over what's happening back in country."

Bush, delivering the first wartime State of the Union speech to Congress since the Vietnam War, received a long standing ovation Tuesday night when he praised the U.S. troops serving in the Persian Gulf.

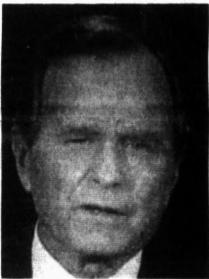

"This we do know: Our cause is just. Our cause is moral. Our cause is right," he said in a visit to the Capitol that featured extraordinarily tight security because of the threat of terrorism connected to the gulf war.

First lady Barbara Bush watched from the House gallery, flanked by Brenda Schwarzkopf, wife of Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf, allied commander in the gulf, and Alma Powell, wife of Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

While remaining upbeat, Bush said he knew the pain the nation's economic slowdown was inflicting on people, and he sandwiched between war talk an outline of his proposals for the economy and other national domestic problems.

The White House will soon be sending Congress proposals on education, technology, highways, energy and banking reform, he said. and would push for more free trade with other nations to expand the job

The president also called for creation of tax-free family savings accounts and embraced a plan, previously espoused by Democrats, to allow first-time home buyers penalty-free use of money in individual retirement accounts.

The president said some federal programs will have to be cut back and others eliminated to pay for new initiatives. Specifics are to come in the budget he submits to Congress

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. (AP) - Soviet United States should be wary of Soviet promises.

Government spokesman Adrius Azubalis said two convoys of about 45 military vehicles left Vilnius today, "headed in the direction of Byelorussia." Late Tuesday, 30-40 trucks ferried soldiers to Vilnius airport, he said. Officials in Latvia and Estonia said there were no immediate signs of troop withdrawals there.

A Soviet Defense Ministry spokesman in Moscow, Vladimir Nikanorov, said he believed the forces being withdrawn were paratroopers sent to the Baltics to enforce the military draft.

In Washington, President Bush said late Tuesday that Soviet officials had conveyed a willingness to begin a pullout from the Baltic states.

But Landsbergis, in a statement released today, cautioned against taking Moscow at its word.

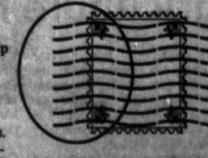

He said, "if the president of the United States could visit Lithuania for a while and follow the propaganda war against Lithuania and the other Baltic states, he would not say the Cold War is over."

At a news conference Tuesday night, Landsbergis said a troop withdrawal could be the key to renewed talks with the Kremlin.

New stamps now on sale

New postage rates won't go into effect until Sunday, but two new non-denominated stamps are available today at the U.S. Post Office in Hereford.

Postmaster Charles Britten said the use of non-denominated stamps, which have no value printed on them, will help customers make the transitio to the new 29-cent rate that goes into effect at 12:01 a.m. Sunday, One of them is the "flower" stamp, worth 29 cents. The other is a four-cent "make-up" stamp designed to help customers use up those 25-cent stamps. "The flower stamp is valid, full-rate first-class postage anywhe in the United States Postal System," Britten said. "The make-up stamp can be used with any 25-cent stamp. That single stamp will made it much more convenient to make up the price difference and use up those 25-cent stamps."

WASHINGTON - The United States offers Saddam Hussein a cease-fire in the 15-day-old Persian Gulf war if Iraq will make an "unequivocal" promise and take concrete steps to withdraw its troops from Kuwait.

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia - Firefights flare on the remote desert war front as U.S.-Iraqi skirmishes mount in a prelude to the fateful ground showdown. Allied bombers zero in on Iraq's formidable Republican Guards and commanders say the elite units are bloodied - but unbowed.

IN NORTHERN SAUDI ARABIA - Paratroopers call it "The Hawk," a piercing chill that cuts to the bone. The weather at the northern front has been rainy and cold the past few days, cold enough to coat sleeping blankets with a layer of frost and freeze grape drinks into slush.

DETROIT - When Shakir Alkhafaji watches news reports of bomb-scarred Baghdad, he scans the rubble and ruin for the one sight that could ease his grieving heart: his family.

WASHINGTON - Democrats applaud President Bush's tough talk on Iraq but say they want equal energy put into the nation's domestic problems. "As critical as the gulf conflict is, the other business of the nation won't wait," Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell says.

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. - Lithuania's president says a Kremlin pledge to withdraw some troops could set the stage for talks between Moscow and the breakaway republic, where a military crackdown has claimed more than a dozen lives.

WASHINGTON - Two patients terminally ill with melanoma were said to be "doing fine" after they became the first cancer patients treated with an experimental therapy that uses genetically altered cells to attack their tumors.

Texas

WASHINGTON - Texas congressmen say they welcome President Bush's commitment to a national energy strategy, his support for a free trade agreement with Mexico, and a stronger emphasis on science, space and technology. But Democrats say the proof of the president's commitment to the domestic agenda outlined in his State of the Union address Tuesday night will be in the budget he submits to Congress next week.

WASHINGTON - Texans in Congress say they've got more on their minds than the war - home front concerns like escalating health care costs, the need for a national energy strategy, the fragile economy and troubles in the banking industry.

AUSTIN - House Speaker Gib Lewis, unveiling an ethics reform bill, predicts the Legislature this year will overhaul the rules of behavior for Texas politicians.

AUSTIN - Gov. Ann Richards says Texans deserve the chance to decide whether the state should begin operating a lottery. But Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock calls such gambling a "sleazy way for government to raise money." AUSTIN - State employees are lobbying against a proposed state spending

Speaker promises passage of ethics bill

AUSTIN (AP) - House Speaker press secretary. Gib Lewis, unveiling an ethics reform bill, predicts the Legislature this year will overhaul the rules of behavior for Texas politicians.

"A tough new ethics law will be passed this session to restore public faith in our democratic process and ensure the integrity of our system," said Lewis, D-Fort Worth.

A draft of the plan, to be sponsored by Rep. Pete Laney, D-Hale Center, is being shown to House members now and should be filed by next week, said John Bender, the speaker's

A key provision would place a limit on campaign contributions. Currently, there is no lid on the amount of money an individual can give to a state political campaign.

The new limits would be $10,000 per election to a statewide campaign and $2,500 per election to a district campaign, such as a legislative race.

Ethics reform has been a key issue in Texas since a series of news reports, beginning in 1989, detailed massive spending on legislators by special interest lobbyists.

H. BELTON HOWELL Jan. 28, 1991

Former Hereford resident, H. Belton Howell, 104, of Odessa died

Services will be at 2 p.m. today in First Baptist Church in Tahoka with the Rev. Danny Curry, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Tahoka Cemetery under direction of White Funeral Home.

He was born in Hereford and moved from Tahoka to Odessa in 1980. He married Birdie Walters Nov. 28, 1915, in Brownfield. She died in 1986. He was one of the carliest settlers of Lynn County and had worked as a freight wagon operator, a mechanic and an automobile dealer.

He later was engaged in farming and ranching. He had served on the Tahoka City Council and the Tahoka School Board.

The Ector County Commissioner's Court declared Sept. 9, 1989, Howell's 103rd birthday, as "Grandpa Howell Day." The Odessa American reported in September of 1990 that Howell was the oldest known resident of Ector County. He was a member of Tahoka's First Baptist Church.

CORRECTION

In Tuesday's story on the county commission meeting, an error was made on the commission's vote on requirements on invoices and purchase orders for all county purchases. All of the commissioners voted in favor of the motion to require an invoice or a purchase order for all county purchases.

The commission, however, was not unanimous in deciding that all precinct capital expenditures over $2,500 must be discussed at the county commissioner's meeting prior to the purchase. Commissioner Lupe Chavez voted against that motion.

Pampa pops Herd in district games undefeated in 1-4A

The potent Pampa Harvesters after three periods. rolled to a pair of victories over the Hereford Whiteface basketball teams in District 1-4A games Tuesday night

The league-leading Harvester boys recorded a 108-56 win over the Herd, while the Lady Harvesters rolled to an easy 63-28 triumph over the Lady Whitefaces.

Pampa's boys, undefeated in district action, jumped to a 29-15 lead in the first quarter and continued that pace in going over the 100-point mark. Cederick Wilborn hit 28 points and Jayson Williams tallied 24 to lead the Pampa scoring. Leo Brown and Andrew Tijerina scored 18 points each in the losing cause for the Herd.

Pampa is 6-0 in league play and sports a 25-3 record for the season. Hereford has a 2-4 mark in district and is 7-17 on the season.

In the girls' game, Pampa opened with a 12-2 advantage in the first quarter and led by 26-7 at halftime. The Lady Whitefaces trailed by 40-15 Pampa Donna Grotegut led Hereford with 11 points and Jennifer Bullard chipped in 5. Nikki Ryan scored a game-high 29 points for Pampa, and Amber Seaton was next with 11.

Pampa's girls are 7-1 in district action, a game behind Randall, and have a season mark of 17-9. The Lady Whitefaces are 1-7 in league play and 12-17 for the season.

Pampa also chalked up casy victories in the junior varsity games. In the boys' JV game, Pampa took a 69-44 decision, and the Pampa girls scored a 61-26 win over the Hereford

Kentucky captures victory over Auburn

By The Associated Press

Pelphrey did it there for Kentucky. He made long 3-pointers, clutch free throws, key passes and back-breaking steals in the final five minutes as the 10th-ranked Wildcats beat Auburn 89-81 on Tuesday night.

Pelphrey, who finished with 16 points, started his game-winning personal crusade with 4:48 to go when he hit a 3-pointer to thwart one Auburn rally. After the Tigers had scored six straight points to tie the throws with 1:53 left to put Kentucky Conference home game, was 1-for-9 ahead for good. He added two more foul shots with 16 seconds left.

He showed his defensive ability by picking off a pass from Auburn's John Caylor when the Tigers were trying to work the ball inside for a tying basket with 1:33 to play. "Pelphrey was in the right place at the right time," Auburn coach Tommy Joe Eagles said. "Robert McKie was open under the basket and Pelphrey did a good job of rotating and taking the pass away. He was the man of the moment and he wasn't afraid to make a play.'

From that steal, Kentucky worked the ball to Jeff Brassow, whose 3-pointer - the 10th of the game for the Wildcats - sealed things with 1:03 to play. "I think our press helped us steal a victory tonight," Kentucky coach Rick Pitino said. "Also, we were able to hit the big shots down the stretch and make our free throws in the final five minutes.'

DEFENSE IS BIG

MISSION, Kan. (AP) - It's obvious that the way to win college basketball games is to score more points than your opponent.

But a survey by the NCAA disclosed that defense is a close second. Over a five-year period, the teams that held down opposition shots from the floor played at close to a .700 pace. One coach explained, "Defense gets the edge because it helps you

Morris seeking lucrative pact

NEW YORK (AP) - Jack Morris, Twins to sign with the Atlanta Braves the winningest pitcher of the 1980s, wants to be a secure one in this decade.

But on that basis, there may be no takers other than the Detroit Tigers,. for whom the 35-year-old right-hander has pitched his entire major league career.

"Jack has no interest in a one-year contract," agent Richard Moss said Tuesday.

Moss said the Tigers had offered a multiyear deal, but other teams had offered only one year. He would not identify the other teams.

After going 15-18 last season with 198-150.

Morris had been asking for a shade above $10 million over three years, while the Tigers were offering $9.3 million, according to Detroit spokesman Dan Ewald. Morris' salary in 1990 was $2.1 million.

"The offer that was made to him was a very generous offer, a very fair offer," Ewald said.

The decision by Morris, one of 15 players originally granted new look free agency in settlement of a $280 million collusion case against the owners, left 112 players remaining in salary arbitration.

The Minnesota Twins lost one and got one Tuesday.

The Twins signed outfielder Chili Davis for one year at a guaranteed $2 million, including a $500,000 signing bonus. The Twins have an option of a $300,000 buyout in 1992 or must pay $2.5 million.

Two months later I discovered I was pregnant. Based on what I thought was my fertile period, I concluded that the father was my new boyfriend. We were married promptly and seven months later I gave birth to a beautiful baby boy.

When our son was 3 months old I could see that he looked very much like my former love. There was no mistaking the resemblance because Jack is a blond, blue-eyed Scandinavian. My husband is dark-eyed Italian. Jack also had irregular features which my son inherited.

I wrestled with the problem on my own for a year and finally told my husband. He said, "I love this boy a lot. As far as I'm concerned he is my son, and I don't want you to mention this subject again." I was greatly relieved because he is a wonderful father and a terrific husband.

My question is this: Do I owe it to either my son or Jack to tell them the truth? Please advise me. I'm terribly torn -- Pennsylvania

DEAR PENN: First, thank God for such an understanding and forgiving husband. Second, keep your mouth shut about what you believe is you child's biological history. You could be wrong.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I dated your husband's relatives? There are former friend a thing, and your son's father is the man who is raising him.

I've been going with a girl I'll call "Bernice" for two and a half years. Several months ago I came to realize that we had grown apart and I didn't love her anymore. The problem is that I cannot end this relationship because I'm scared to death that she will kill herself. Bernice has had an extremely difficult life and she is very unstable. I've urged her to see a counselor and have offered to pay for that he is never going to get another the sessions but she refuses to seek

Please, Ann, I've read your column since I was 13 and I value your opinion. I'm desperate and need to end this relationship but I don't know how to do it without destroying this girl. Can you help me? -- A Canadian Admirer permit yourself to be held hostage to Bernice's neurosis. You are not responsible for her. You were generous to offer to pay for her therapy. Since she has refused to accept help, there is nothing more you can do. Tell Bernice that you will always be her friend, but the romance is over. To remain in this empty relationship would be unfair to her as well as to you.

3,000 rigs roll through Hereford every day

Trucking business big economic boost

By ORVILLE HOWARD Special Feature Writer

Every 27 seconds, a commercial freight rig will gear down for the highway traffic interchange in the heart of Hereford.

And from sun-to-sun, as Westerners sometimes put it, almost 3,000 commercial highway rigs will roll through Hereford, seven days a week, 365 days a year.

Though Hereford traffic counters have never put a price-tag on the commercial rolling stock of U.S. 60/385, federal and state highway surveys add up to a multibillion-dollar business created by this agricultural capital of Texas.

Some of it stops in Hereford and some of it starts in Hereford, but most of it is earmarked for the giant beef, sugar, fructose and related food industries of the Greater Hereford Trade Area, commonly known as the Golden Triangle.

But it's Deaf Smith County which holds the giant slice of this productive food supply. Earlier this month, the Texas Cattle Feeders Association headquartered in Amarillo announced that Deaf Smith County once again was the Number One cattle feeding county of the nation, thus retaining it's title as the Cattle Feeding Capital of the World. Deaf Smith County is also the center for the largest sugar beet production in the state, headquarters However, there is only one commercial for some of the largest potato livestock feedyard within a 30-mile producer/processors in Texas and is radius of the town. In comparison, it still edging out the Texas Winter is estimated that more than I million garden area for No. One spot in carrot beeves will be finished for the production.

Though a sizable share of grain and processed beef (piggy-back trailers) move in and out of the Golden triangle by rail, the big end of the beef business moves by truck. In an axle-count conducted by the Texas Department of Transportation (DOT), it was revealed that U.S. 385 carries a heavier traffic load than its senior counterpart of U.S. 60. The DOT check found that in an approxi- 110,000 head one-time capacity west mate 24-hour period 9600 units were of Hereford, showed where Barrettcounted at a point just north of the Hereford Loop on U.S. 385, while a similar count conducted on U.S. 60 cast of the downtown highway interchange revealed 7600. And at a out from 19 to 20 loads of finished cattle point just to the west of the U.S. a day 60/385 interchange, 8300 units were recorded. The state survey did not distinguish between automobiles and trucks, but was based on axle count which in most cases figured out at two

Another survey conducted in the late 1980s by the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) showed that a commercial freight unit moved through Hereford every 27 seconds, or about 2880 units every 24 hours, 365 days a year. The federal count was based on numbers of moving trucks in random checks which related to a little more than two trucks moving through Hereford on average of every minute. In many instances, the rate was much higher since truckers have a tendency to travel in convoys, but the average came out at a 27-second rate. With commercial beef production being the Number One industry of the Golden Triangle of Deaf Smith, Castro and Parmer counties, highway rolling stock has a prominent place in the area cattle business.

During the past year, approximately 71,370 trailer-loads of grain were hauled to the tri-county feedyards, with about 35,685 loads moved for final destinations in Deaf Smith County alone. The 18-wheelers moved at least 9,000 loads of feeder cattle into Deaf Smith County feedyards, with an estimated 18,000 going into the Golden Triangle.

And in turn, about 19,980 loads of grain-fed cattle were moved from Deaf Smith County Feedyards to area packers. The three-county area produced about 40,000 truckloads of finished beef for regional packers. A little more than one-half of the live cattle weight was also moved by packers to national markets, but much of this movement was done by piggyback freight on the various railways.

There are four livestock hauling companies listed in the Hereford "yellow pages" as compared to two such firms listed in the Amarillo phone book. But it's Amarillo that gets the lion's share of the truck servicing business created by the vast agribusiness industries of the Greater Hereford Area. No less than a half dozen giant truck-stops line the interstates in and out of Amarillo, with many covering 10 to 30 acres of highway frontage.

In a random check of the Amarillo truck terminals, it was found that nearly one-third of the parked vehicles were either feed or livestock haulers. marketplace in 1991 in a similar area around Hereford.

Using Barrett-Crofoot, Inc., of Hereford as an individual example of rolling stock required in commercial cattle feeding, an estimated 100 trucks a day will move in and out of their feeding operations.

A spokesman for the cattle company, which has two feedyards totaling around Crofoot will use around 50 loads of grain a day 5 1/2 days a week. The cattle feeding firm will bring in an estimated 11 loads of feeder cattle a day and ship

The Hereford-based feeders will also utilize around 16 loads of other feed supplies a day. And in turn, they will haul out about 10 percent of the total feed tonnage in the form of manure as organic fertilizer for area fields.

Though the above traffic count relates to big business in the beef business, it does not include the daily run of industry-related commercial vehicles, such as veterinarian supplies, utility service rigs, vendors stocking coin-operated snack-food and softdrink machines and mobilized welding units designed for feedmill maintenance.

Dennis Printz, agricultural manager for the Imperial Holly Sugar Processing Plant located 3 miles west of Hereford, said the 1990 million-ton sugar beet crop relates to about 40,000 loads of sugar beets delivered to the plant from area production.

Though some of the refined sugar is shipped by rail, Printz said about 1.7 million hundredweight of refined sugar will be shipped from the Hereford plant by truck. Imperial Holly does not own any trucks, handling all freight under contract agreements.

On the communications side of the industry in Hereford, Jimmy Bell, manager of West Texas Rural Telephone Cooperative, said the Communityowned Co-op maintains a fleet of about 20 vehicles.

In the current transit system of big rigs and big bucks, truck drivers are far removed from the old image of hot coffee and cold sandwiches. By law, rest periods are mandatory, whether it's in a sleeper cab or truck center. The trucking industry estimates that a trucker will spend more than $200 on an average fill-up stop--and this does not include repairs, such as tires or tubes.

An average 18-wheeler based out of Hereford will pump between $12,000 and $15,000 a year into state and federal tax coffers in the form of permits and taxes. A new set of tires for the same rig will cost at least $6,000, or something over $3,000 if you want to go the recap route with your old carcasses. A new tractor-trailer capable of handling the $110,000, depending on accessories such as grain and flour. tacked to the frame.

driving force on a local level. Almost shop but if there was a major truck every farmyard in Deaf Smith County terminal here, we'd use it a lot." boasts a line of trucks, from chromedesigned for sugar beets. And short- company owns five trailer/tractors the cow-pony count.

years ago to go into business for himself out on the west edge of Hereford. Today, West has between 65 and 70 regular customers which depend on his motor maintenance crew to keep their rolling stock rolling. His customers, or clientele, as professionals say, include truck-owners from all farmers, ranchers and local processing firms, to name a few. "My business has really been good," said West, while reflecting over the past year. "I have three mechanics who are all highly trained in heavy diesel, you know, the Class 8 over-the-road type of trucks."

The Tip Top Service Center and Oil Company on East U.S. 60 is another Hereford business which caters to the by Merrick Pet Foods which have big rigs, with double-decker livestock rigs being a common sight at Tip Top's diesel pumps. But there are no highway truck service centers in Hereford which fall into the big-league

Jimmy Ramirez, traffic manager for Ramirez & Sons food processing company on Pine Street, said the Hereford-based processors own about 40 trucks that move about 15 loads of products a day out of Hereford and 80,000-pound load limit will range in receive about a third of this amount price anywhere between $90,000 to every day in the form of raw foodstuff,

"We now have distribution centers But Hereford's billion-dollar freight in Fort Worth, Oklahoma City, Denver business in agriculture not only pumps and Albuquerque," said Ramirez. "We millions into interstate traffic-it's a also have our own truck maintenance

Oscar Williams, traffic manager for plated pickups to the rugged rigs Arrowhead Mills of Hereford, said his haul grain trucks will probably rival which move Hereford-made food products across the nation and to ports-Danny West, owner of A-1 Diesel of-entry for international distribution.

Service in Hereford, chucked a career With 12 to 15 loads of specialized food with a leading construction firm seven products moving out of Arrowhead a week, the company uses a number of leased rigs, either at the selling end or buying end of the business. The incoming freight traffic to the food factory is about one-half as that of the out-flow in the form of rig-count, not necessarily tonnage.

Hereford Bi-Products, Inc., and walks of life--commercial haulers, Merrick Pet Foods, both owned and operated by Garth Merrick of Hereford, ship out between 22 and 28 truckloads of processed products a > Rodney Caison, plant manager for the Hereford-based company, said shipments are now earmarked for nearly every area of the United States, including Alaska. The Southwest marketplace is fast becoming saturated caught the attention of pet-owners by both, high quality food and attractive labeling.

> "Basically, our trucks move out to all points of the country, but we ship eavily to the West Coast, Arizona, Florida, Massachusetts, and Nevada and have shipped products as far as Alaska," said Caison. "In addition to the processed pet foods, we ship a lot of bonemeal, hides and fresh meats nder refrigeration."

On the receiving end, Hereford Bi-Products take in about five, 50,000pound loads of bulk ingredients a day, most of which is purchased locally-wheat-mids from Farmers Elevator at Dawn, corn gluten meal from American Fructose at Dimmitt, with corn, wheat, mile and soybeans coming from local grain handlers.

"We'll use two truckloads a day of just wheat-mids," said Caison, while pointing out that their dead animal removal servine is only a part of their overall business. "This time of year is our busy season, producing about 700 to 800 tons of dry dog food a week. So you see, we must have a considerable amount of bulk ingredient to take care of this production. Some goes out pelletized and some goes out in refers."
Most of Merrick's truck drivers are ocal residents. However, since Merrick processes products for other labels, a number of these drivers may originate at distant points outside of Hereford. During the past year, Merrick production has risen from around 2200 tons a month to a projected 3,000 tons of processed products for January..."Beef 'N' More dog food has really caught on - we've got a good set of people who want to put out a quality product. It's your staff that makes a plant work."

In addition to an old line of customers across the nation, Merrick has now moved into the chain of Sam's stores with his Beef'n More labels. The Hereford firm also manufactures a special formula for a California company which is delivered to the West Coast market by Merrick's freight line.

With the main processing plant located on the east edge of Hereford just off U.S. 60, Merrick has expanded operational facilities to include a special transportation center in Hereford on U.S. 60 East and a rendering/feed processing unit located in the old Swift meat packing plant 8 miles southwest of the city.

Caison said he is now taking two to three processed loads a week out of the south plant that is now being operated as Nutra Feeds production center by Billy Salter, transportation manager for Merrick, said Hereford Bi-Products is now running between 120 and 125 of the smaller trucks and about 30 overthe-road trucks (18-wheelers). The smaller trucks, which are not very small, will include delivery-type vans for area delivery of processed products and heavy-duty 2-toners designed for dead animal pickup service.

"We have these smaller trucks scattered out from Hereford to Waco, north to Stratford and into New Mexico," said Salter, in describing the five-state pickup service for the livestock industry. 'We opened this transportation center about a year ago it solely for our own equipment. We've got 10 to 12 mechanics on duty all the time, and we do everything from rebuilding engines to rebuilding trailers."

Salter said that taxes (including fuel tax) and permits on one of the big rigs would run between $12,000 and $15,000 a year..."When our trucks go out here, we have them ready to reach any point in the United States.'

Wes Fisher, co-owner of Barrett-Fisher Produce Co. on New York Street, said his company shipped 380 trailer loads of potatoes in 1990, plus a little

"We actually shipped out 450 trucks of potatoes but some of them were partial loads...loads under 43,000 pounds," said Fisher, who is also mayor of Hereford.

Fisher noted that his freight business is seasonal, generally running through July and August, a point in time which Hereford spud packers have found a "window" in Midwest and Eastern markets.

Fisher said that the five active vegetable packing and processing sheds in Hereford will create more than 2,000 trailer/tractor loads of vegetables each growing season. This will include potatoes, onions, carrots and cabbage, with smaller shipments of watermelons, cantaloupe turnips and pumpkins going out in bobtails.

"You could add another 10 percent if you figure in the partial loads going out," Fisher added. "However, on an area basis which is served by U.S. 60 and U.S. 385, I'd say between 7,000 and 8,000 loads of vegetables will go out of here each season."

Fisher pointed out that most of the Panhandle and South Plains vegetable production, along with that of Eastern New Mexico, goes to Eastern markets, such as Kansas City, St. Louis, Chicago and New York, with very little going west. There are also excellent markets for Panhandle produce in Florida and the Carolinas.

Instead of owning trucks, Fisher said his firm uses truck brokers for deliveries--"We'll call up a truck broker and he'll spot the trucks any place we want them. This way we don't have to get into the trucking business to handle our produce."

Fred Rivera, owner of Rivera Produce Co. of Hereford, is one of the leading truck brokers of the Greater Hereford Area, providing brokerage service for all types of freight from the Rio Grande in South Texas to the Arkansas River Valley in Colorado.

"You tell me where you want a truck--or how many trucks--and I'll have them there waiting for you," said Rivera, in a recent interview.

Dick Montgomery, assistant manager of the Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative, Inc., said the electric company maintains a fleet of 25 vehicles which includes everything from pickups to over-the-road diesels.

"We have two aerial basket rigs, a digger, crew-trucks and units which are classed in the heavy-duty range of over 30,000 pounds," said Montgomery. "It would really be nice if we had a large truck terminal here in Hereford--it's something that is really needed."

Montgomery pointed out that Deaf Smith Electric crews service 3391 miles of overhead transmission lines and around 3736 miles of energized lines in Deaf Smith, Castro, Parmer and portions of Oldham counties.

James T. Hull, President and manager of Deaf Smith Electric, has been a leading force in trying to get a major truck terminal located in Hereford, but pointed out that most of the larger truck service chains are locating on interstates.

'We have a hard time convincing them that the truck traffic is really here," said Hull. "They don't seem to take into consideration that much of U.S. 60 is now four-lane and that U.S. 385 has been upgraded into a major highway artery across mid America.

"And then there's the vast local freight business linked directly to the local beef processing business, commercial cattle feeding and the food factories."

In a truck traffic count conducted at 2 p.m. Friday, Jan. 25 at the intersection of U.S. 60/385, one to six commercial units moved through the intersection during every light change in a 30-minute interval, showing an average of just more than three trucks per light.

And this was an off-season count in January when the chill factor was running just a little above zero.

Outdoor drama planned

Several interested persons representing various church congregations in Hereford are pooling their energies and resources to put together an outdoor dramatization of the Passion of Jesus Christ based on the Gospel of St. John, to be held on Good Friday, March 29, at noon in Dameron Park.

To bring all this to life, the following are needed: actors, people who would be willing to play characters without any lines, etc.

There will be a casting and organizational meeting on Tuesday evening, Feb. 12, at 7 p.m. in the St. Anthony's Catholic Church gymnasium. This project is open to the public, so please come forward to be part of it, and be sure to invite anyone else you know who would be interested.

The Texas Department of Health that causes AIDS.

Created by The Richards Group, a Dallas advertising agency, the new campaign was produced specifically for Texas audiences and includes English and Spanish television ads and posters.

The new campaign follows one released in December 1989 and continues to focus on what health officials call the "geometric risk" of AIDS. It is aimed at heterosexuals who have more than one sex partner. A TDH survey showed that while 25 percent of all Texas adults were sexually at risk of contracting the AIDS-causing human immunodefi-ciency virus, or HIV, only 10 percent actually believed themselves to be at

"If you don't see yourself as being in danger, you're not likely to take precautions against that danger," Rod Underhill, a Richards Group spokesman, said. "We want to heighten the awareness of personal risk among sexually active heterosex-uals who have more than one sex

The first edition of the campaign (TDH) has unveiled a second round resulted in a 288 percent increase in of public service advertisements calls to the health department's tollaimed at convincing sexually active free Texas AIDSLINE. TDH non-monogamous heterosexuals that officials also credit the campaign they are at risk of getting the virus with a 32 percent increase in the total number of persons tested for HIV infection and a 41 percent increase in the number of heterosexuals tested at TDH-affiliated sites.

Dr. Robert Bernstein, Commissioner of Health, said that these numbers do not include the unknown number of Texans who were motivated by the campaign to seek counseling or testing from private sources. "Neither do they include these Texans who were motivated to say, 'Wait a minute, I am at risk,' and to, accordingly, alter their sexual practices."

Bernstein encouraged all Texas television stations and cable companies to use the new public service advertisements, and urged all Texans to "pay attention." "AIDS," Bernstein warned, "is not going to just go away."
