

EPA says ag strategy needed now

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - With more federal emphasis on the environment, agriculture producers must devise new strategies and form new alliances to protect their interests, an Environmental Protection Agency official told cattle feeders.

"There was a time when we had the numbers politically to do anything we wanted to do," said EPA agricultural consultant James R. Moseley.

However, agriculture producers now represent less than 2 percent of the population, Moseley said Tuesday. "We need to think like the minority that we are."

He spoke at the Texas Cattle Feeders Association annual convention.

The Bush administration is making the environment a high priority and is basing strategies on pollution prevention rather than pollution cleanup, Moseley said.

"It just makes sense economically and aesthetically to change pollution procedures," said Moseley, who encouraged public input. "We need your help, whether it's commerce or agriculture or ... right down to private citizens."

Moseley, owner and general manager of a hog and farming operation in Indiana, said agriculture producers can work with mainstream environmental groups, who often have similar goals.

"They can be our enemies or they can be our allies," he said.

As changes in environmental policies occur at an accelerated rate, Moseley said, agriculture producers have two possible courses: defend the status quo or think strategically and move ahead.

Also on Tuesday, Robert D. Josserrand, president of the National Cattlemen's Association and a past TCEA president, spoke to the cattle feeders association.

Josserrand also said the environment is a critical issue facing agriculture in the 1990s.

"We've got to make a difference on this one. We've got to win this one," he said, urging the group to assist lobbying efforts in Washington.

Boatwright honored at reception

Boatwright makes pitch

Ken Boatwright, Republican candidate for the Texas Ag Commissioner's post, visited Hereford Tuesday evening at a reception hosted by Bill Lyles and Bill Townsend, local seed dealers.

Boatwright, 39, has more than 16 years experience with the Department of Agriculture. He is a former director of the Seed and Grain Warehouse division of TDA. He continues his ties with agriculture by maintaining a partnership with his brother in a cattle and farming operation in Hamilton County.

Boatwright was born in Hamilton and earned a BS degree at Tarleton State College. He is married to the former Nika McNeill of Stephenville and they have two sons, Chance, 19, and Colby, 13. They are members of the First Baptist Church in Hamilton.

During his employment at TDA,

Boatwright was appointed by Gov. Bill Clements to the Texas State Seed and Plant Board, and he was also a director with the Association of Official Seed Certifying Agencies.

Boatwright said his experience with TDA, along with his ag background, "will allow me work closely on legislative matters, agricultural issues and administration of large farm programs."

Deal getting sweeter for beet, cane

By The Associated Press

Dwindling stockpiles of sugar internationally are helping pump up prices and produce a lucrative market for Texas sugar beet and sugar cane farmers.

At the end of the 1987-88 crop year, stocks amounted to 31 percent of anticipated consumption, said Imperial Holly President Robert Hanna. Since then, supplies have dropped to 29 percent and are expected to be 27.5 percent at the end of this crop year.

World sugar prices, meanwhile, have gone from 9 cents to 14.5 cents, Hanna said.

Judith Gaines, a sugar analyst with Shearson Lehman Hutton in New York, forecasts a world price of 18 to 20 cents a pound in the next three to four months - a significant rise from the recent highs of 15 cents. Import limits and federal sugar programs in the United States have boosted prices to 23 cents a pound.

A good growing year coupled with increased demand should benefit Texas growers, industry watchers say.

Overall, the state crop reporting service predicts yields of 22 tons of beets per acre on 36,000 acres, up from 21.9 tons on 33,000 acres last year.

In the Panhandle, sugar beet growers have nearly completed harvesting a hearty crop that not only is yielding more tonnage of beets per acre, but also a higher sugar content per beet.

Bill Cleavinger of Wildorado, president of the American Sugar Beet Growers Association, credited dry weather as a factor producing high sugar content in the beets.

In the Lower Rio Grande Valley, sugar cane growers said they have an expanded crop, but much lower per-acre yields, largely due to the worst drought since the 1950s hitting the western part of the Valley where most of the cane is grown.

Jack P. Nelson of Santa Rosa, president of Rio Grande Valley Sugar Growers Inc., projects yields would be down 10 to 15 percent per acre because large quantities of river irrigation water prompted high salt concentrations in the soil.

Growers of both beets and cane are encouraged by the worldwide trend of consumption exceeding production, drawing more on the sugar stockpiles. In addition, rumors that Brazil might have to suspend exports because its experiment with alcohol-fueled cars is taxing sugar sources have prompted more speculation among U.S. sugar sources.

Not only is Brazil unable to deliver on its quotas, but other countries have been buying on the world market to fill their quotas to the United States, Cleavinger said.

"If they have to buy to sell to us, something is wrong," Cleavinger said.

CSF applications taken

Applications for assistance from the 1989 edition of the Christmas Stocking Fund are now being accepted at the county Red Cross office, 224 S. Main. Applications will be taken from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays until Dec. 13.

The Christmas Stocking Fund is a community-wide holiday charity aimed at helping the less fortunate during the Yule season. It is administered by an anonymous volunteer committee.

Those applying for assistance will need to show proof of Deaf Smith County residence, such as a driver's license, rent or utility receipt, or voter registration card which indicates an address within the county.

If applicants are requesting assistance with a specific bill, they should bring the bill in order to provide information on account numbers, amount due, etc.

The local Red Cross office assists the charity by handling applications, and The Hereford Brand serves as the collection point for donations to CSF. The newspaper and KPAN Radio help promote the charity.

Fund raising for CSF will formally begin after Thanksgiving, but The Brand will accept donations anytime. The CSF committee is hoping to post a fourth consecutive year of record-setting donations to the charity. Last year, the CSF total hit the $16,000 mark, surpassing the totals from the previous two years.

Hereford schools will again participate on canned-food drives for CSF during December. School drives in 1987 and 1989 netted large quantities of food for CSF and allowed the community's youngsters to have a part in the charity.

Texas reps have collected big fees

WASHINGTON (AP) - Texas congressmen collected $765,969 in speaking and appearance fees from special interest groups over the past two years, according to a study by a self-styled citizens lobby opposed to honoraria.

While supporters say it's ludicrous to suggest honoraria buys influence, Common Cause points to studies that indicate special interest groups frequently pay speaking fees to members of committees with jurisdiction in their area.

The three top honoraria earners in the Texas House delegation have influential positions on either the Agriculture or Armed Services committees, earning a big chunk of their speaking or appearance fees from either food and fiber or defense industries and associations, according to Common Cause.

The study, released Monday, comes as the Congress prepares to consider an ethics package that would raise congressional salaries by 32.9 percent by 1991 while eliminating honoraria except fees given directly to charity.

Rep. Marvin Leath, a Waco Democrat and chairman of the Morale, Welfare and Recreation Panel of the Armed Services Committee, led the delegation in honoraria earnings, reporting receipts of $73,400 in 1987 and 1988.

Leath said there is nothing "sinister" about honoraria and doesn't buy claims of influence that it carries.

"I don't happen to think anybody up here is going to sell a vote. I don't think it's an issue when you get outside the Beltway," Leath said, blaming Ralph Nader, the Washington Post and Common Cause for making honoraria an issue.

"That's how they make their millions, getting people worked up," Leath said.

Leath said anyone who believes traveling to give a speech, staying away from family, and then giving excess receipts to charity has to be "nuts to think that's a great deal." He said his excess earnings allow him to give to churches and cancer causes.

Second in earnings was Rep. Kika de la Garza, chairman of the Agriculture Committee, with receipts of $61,800; third was Rep. Charlie Stenholm, chairman of the Agriculture subcommittee on livestock, dairy and poultry, with $61,500.

House members, however, are allowed to keep only 30 percent of their salaries of $89,500 in honoraria, while senators can keep 40 percent.

Leath reported giving $20,665 to charity and keeping $52,735 in 1987 and 1988, said the study, based on the congressmen's annual financial disclosure reports.

De la Garza, a Mission Democrat, gave $9,075 to charity and kept $52,725, while Stenholm, a Stamford Democrat, gave $12,970 to charitable organizations and kept $48,530.

De la Garza said he believes in accepting as many speaking engagements as possible as each is "an opportunity to spread the message that our citizens are the best-fed in the world at the lowest cost as a percentage of spendable income."

De la Garza said he has given considerable sums to churches and charities in his South Texas district.

"I believe that the policy which I have followed is morally, ethically and legally correct, contrary to the innuendoes of many who see nothing but evil in any action of the Congress with which they disagree," de la Garza said.

Stenholm said he would vote for repeal of the honoraria because it is in an ethics package that he favors, although he doesn't believe the fees have affected his votes.

"You can check my voting in future and it will be no different than it's been in the past," Stenholm said.

Six other Texans reported honoraria receipts above $50,000 - Reps. Michael Andrews, D-Houston, $61,450, keeping $52,725; Martin Frost, D-Dallas, $60,500, keeping $51,776; John Bryant, D-Dallas, $55,550, keeping $48,550; Tom Delay, R-Sugar Land, $53,800, keeping $50,850; Charlie Wilson, D-Lufkin, $52,500, keeping $50,500; and Jack Fields, R-Humble, $50,750, keeping $44,850.

Republican Sen. Phil Gramm received and kept $62,005 while Democratic Sen. Lloyd Bentsen does not accept honoraria.

History repeats itself because nobody listens the first time.

If you haven't contributed to the United Way campaign, please consider getting involved today! The contributions and pledges topped the $100,000 mark this week. That's great, but with a little more work we can reach our goal of $125,000 to help fund the 12 agencies!

Today's issue of The Brand includes a "Hustle Hereford" story on the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department. We often salute our firefighters each year on Fire Prevention Day, but sometimes we take them for granted. We think readers will find the story interesting and informative.

Speaking of the firemen, here's a poem, author unknown, about the volunteer firefighter:

A FIREMAN'S PRAYER
When I am called to duty, God,
Wherever flames may rage,
Give me strength to save some life
Whatever be its age.

Help me embrace a little child
Before it is too late,
Or save an older person from
The horror of that fate.

Enable me to be alert
And hear the weakest shout,
And quickly and efficiently
To put the fire out.

I want to fill my calling and
To give the best in me,
To guard my every neighbor and
Protect his property.

And if according to my fate,
I am to lose my life,
Bless with your protecting hand,
My children and my wife.

Special session near vote count

AUSTIN (AP) - A state Senate committee later today was expected to approve Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's business-backed proposal for reforming the workers' compensation insurance system.

On Tuesday, the first day of a special legislative session, Hobby sent the bill to the Economic Development Committee, which is chaired by Ike Harris, R-Dallas, and a co-sponsor of the bill.

The bill is expected to waltz through committee and then be rushed to the full Senate for consideration, probably Friday.

Lawmakers have failed in two other sessions this year to overhaul the insurance system, which is designed to compensate workers injured on the job. The current system has been criticized for high costs and meager benefits.

Gov. Bill Clements, encouraged by the developments, said, "I do believe that there's a good chance that it will be a short session."

But Hobby didn't move the bill without harsh words from some of his colleagues.

Sens. Kent Caperton and Carl Parker, authors of an alternate reform plan supported by labor and injured workers' attorneys' groups say Hobby is ramrodding his bill through.

Bush hails 'fantastic changes'

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Bush administration is trying to decipher how the "fantastic change" in Eastern Europe will alter the shape of the Soviet empire and force Western Europe to revamp its economic, political and military structures.

"I am delighted with the new moves toward democracy in Eastern Europe," President Bush said Tuesday. "We're all caught up in this."

Bush, who will meet Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev at a summit Dec. 2-3, declared himself unconcerned about the dizzy pace of change - most recently the opening of East Germany's borders and the easing of travel restrictions by Czechoslovakia.

"I don't think it's moving too fast and I don't know of anybody in my administration that feels that it's moving too fast," the president said.

Even so, administration officials acknowledge they have been surprised by the rapidly changing events.

Walesa wants more investment

WASHINGTON (AP) - Solidarity leader Lech Walesa today applauded moves in Congress to send millions of dollars in aid to Poland but said more investment is needed to rescue the country's economy from "the verge of utter catastrophe."

"We are not asking for charity, or expecting philanthropy, but we would like to see our country treated as a partner and a friend," Walesa said in remarks prepared for a joint meeting of Congress.

His appearance marked only the second time a foreign private citizen spoke to such an assembly and the first since the Marquis de Lafayette appeared in 1824.

Walesa called on those in the West who are now praising Solidarity to back up their words with economic support.

"Being a worker and a man of concrete work, I must tell you that the supply of words on the world market is plentiful, but the demand is falling. Let deeds follow words now," the 46-year-old onetime shipyard electrician said.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Nov. 15, the 319th day of 1989. There are 46 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

One hundred years ago, on Nov. 15, 1889, Brazil's monarchy was overthrown. A republic was proclaimed following the ouster of Dom Pedro the Second, the country's second and last emperor.

On this date:

In 1777, the Continental Congress approved the Articles of Confederation, a precursor to the Constitution of the United States.

In 1806, explorer Zebulon Pike sighted the mountaintop that later became known as Pikes Peak.

In 1926, the National Broadcasting Company made its on-air debut with a radio network of 24 stations.

In 1939, 50 years ago, President Roosevelt laid the cornerstone of the Jefferson Memorial in Washington D.C.

In 1940, the first 75,000 men were called to armed forces duty under peacetime conscription.

In 1948, William Lyon Mackenzie King retired as prime minister of Canada after 21 years. He was succeeded by Louis St. Laurent.

In 1966, the flight of Gemini 12 ended successfully as the capsule-carrying astronauts James A. Lovell and Edwin "Buzz" Aldrin Jr. splashed down in the Atlantic.

In 1969, 250,000 protesters staged a peaceful demonstration in Washington against the Vietnam War.

In 1978, 183 people were killed when a chartered Icelandic Airlines DC-8 crashed short of an airport in Colombo, Sri Lanka.

In 1980, Pope John Paul II began a five-day visit to West Germany, becoming the first pontiff in 198 years to visit the birthplace of the Protestant Reformation.

In 1982, funeral services were held in Moscow's Red Square for the late Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev.

In 1985, Britain and Ireland signed an accord giving Dublin an official consultative role in governing the troubled British-ruled province of Northern Ireland.

In 1987, 28 of 82 people aboard a Continental Airlines DC-9, including the pilot and co-pilot, were killed when the plane crashed on takeoff from Denver's Stapleton International Airport.

Ten years ago: The British government publicly identified Sir Anthony Blunt, a respected art historian, as the "fourth man" of a Soviet spy ring that included Guy Burgess, Donald Maclean and Kim Philby.

Five years ago: Baby Fae, the month-old infant who had received a baboon's heart to replace her own congenitally deformed one, died at a California medical center almost three weeks after the transplant.

One year ago: The Palestine National Council, the legislative body of the PLO, proclaimed the establishment of an independent Palestinian state at the close of a four-day conference in Algiers. The Soviet Union launched its first space shuttle, Buran, on an unmanned, 3 1/2-hour flight.

Today's Birthdays: Former White House Chief of Staff Howard H. Baker Jr. is 64. Actor Edward Asner is 60. Singer Petula Clark is 57. Actress Joanna Barnes is 55. Actor Sam Waterston is 49.

Thought for Today: "He too serves a certain purpose who only stands and cheers." - Henry Brooks Adams, American historian (1838-1918).

Hopes high to nab satellite

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) -

The astronaut who will command next month's space shuttle mission says his crew hopes to return home with a giant Christmas present - an experiment-laden satellite that has hovered above the Earth for five years.

Columbia's five astronauts, scheduled to begin their 10-day Christmas season flight Dec. 18, are charged with the task of retrieving the Long Duration Exposure Facility.

LDEF, an 11-ton, 30-foot-long payload carrying 57 experiments, was placed in orbit during a 1984 shuttle mission. It was to be retrieved in a year, but schedule changes and the Challenger accident have forced a long delay.

But the craft, the size of a bus, is falling from orbit and is expected to crash back into the Earth's atmosphere in February if the Columbia astronauts aren't successful in catching it during their mission.

"We hope that even though we'll be gone from our families and loved ones for Christmas, that we'll be able to bring back a great big Christmas present for all the scientists that are working on the LDEF," Columbia commander Dan Brandenstein said Tuesday.

The other Columbia crew members are pilot James Wetherbee and mission specialists Bonnie Dunbar, Marsha Ivins and G. David Low. The five astronauts conducted the traditional pre-flight press conference and individual interviews Tuesday at the Johnson Space Center.

More than 200 scientists have been waiting years to see how their science, technology and materials experiments have fared during the long exposure to the space environment. Such information could be used to build the planned space station or other long-term spacecraft.

"The vehicle is invaluable to us," said the mission's flight director, Al Pennington. "Almost every material known has been sitting up there in space being bombarded by atomic oxygen and other space materials for six years."

And Low said if the crew doesn't snag LDEF, it will mean a loss to science and a blow to U.S. prestige.

"If we don't get LDEF back, there's absolutely no science from that mission," Low said. "It's a completely passive satellite and no data has been transmitted to Earth. So it's a complete loss of that mission if we don't get it back."

"I think it looks pretty bad for the United States to allow something like that to come in and re-enter," Low said. "It's big enough and it's massive enough that there are pieces that would survive re-entry and you always take a chance of hitting something or doing some damage to something."

Babbling Brooks

By JOHN BROOKS

Gee, I can't believe I'm losing some weight and losing reluctance to companionship with and from a member of a sex different from mine, and the Berlin Wall is coming down, all at the same time.

What is the world coming to?

Just a few months ago, the last two items would have been totally unthinkable. The first was sitting back there waiting for a good time to start. That first thing, about losing weight, is not related to either of the other two. The reluctance to seek companionship and the Berlin Wall, however, both have something to do with a cold war, or Cold War, depending on your perspective.

Thanks to those of you who have noticed that I no longer list my weight as "gross tonnage." I still weigh too much, but not way, way too much. It's not easy to go on a diet up here at the Brand. It seems there is always food waiting around for me to happen by. Last week, the Key Club brought us two cakes. I'm sure the two cakes tasted very, very good, and I know several folks around here enjoyed them.

Monday, Speedy Nieman (yes, Speedy, I did the Happy 61st Birthday ad, and instead of cutting my pay I'll let the company have my other vacation week, okay?) brought some of Lavon's leftover hors d'oeuvres from a shower over the weekend. They sure looked good, and I have to admit I tried one and wanted to scarf the rest of them down. I still want to scarf the rest of them down, and a bunch of them are still back there waiting to be consumed. I can hear them calling me all the way up here in my office.

Now to the fall of the Cold War.

Today is my second anniversary. Not the second anniversary of being married, but the second anniversary of what can best be called the end of the fiasco. I should have called the police and told them that certain illegal consumables were being consumed at my apartment by someone who was soon to become my ex-wife.

For the next almost two years, I resisted letting anyone of the female persuasion getting within 500 miles of my heart.

Well, maybe the iceberg attitude toward relationships with people of the female persuasion is about to end, just as what the heck quickly as the Cold War is seeming to end. A month ago I wouldn't have taken a million-to-one bet (my $1 to your $1 million) that I would even think about having a relationship with someone or that East Berlin residents would be shopping in West Berlin's stores.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My sister (I'll call her Wanda) has a drinking problem. She starts with vodka early in the morning and by noon she can't talk.

Wanda and her husband have two children. He is a loving, caring, hard-working husband and father. The kids are adorable. My sister must take a nap in the afternoon to be functional by the time her husband gets home from work. She manages to have dinner on the table and things appear to be normal.

Last week the school called and asked Wanda to come get her son because he was ill. She showed up bombed. The teacher refused to let the child go in the car with her. Wanda phoned me in tears. I went to school and got them. She made me promise not to tell her husband.

I don't know what to do, Ann. I love my sister and have suggested that she seek help. She insists she doesn't have a problem. I'm sure the children have noticed that their mother is not like the mothers of their friends.

I want so badly to reach out and help my sister, but my arms just don't seem to be long enough. Can you suggest something? -- Frustrated and Hurting in the South.

DEAR F AND H: If you have not told your sister's husband about the incident at the school, I urge you to do so.

Round up the family doctor, close friends and family members. Include the schoolteacher. Perhaps if Wanda is confronted by all of you at once, in a loving, compassionate manner, she will admit that she needs help and will accept it. Alcoholics Anonymous is still the most effective way to go.

If this fails, I suggest her husband, you and other concerned relatives start attending Al-Anon meetings and learn not to be "enablers." A change in your behavior hopefully will produce a change in hers.

I hope your sister gets the help she needs. Good luck to all of you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please warn your readers about dating clubs. I saw an ad for one on TV that said everyone who is permitted to join is carefully screened. It looked like a good idea and I decided to give it a try.

A salesman came to my home and told me that every month I would receive the names and phone numbers of three to five men.

When I paid my initial "fee" I was given 15 names with instructions to call the ones I might be interested in. I was assured that they would know who I was and would be cordial. I called 10 men and not one had ever heard of me.

Two had not been members for some time and not one had anything good to say about this outfit. Some of the men lived 75 miles away. (I was told I would meet people in my area.)

This service cost $1,000 for six months, $2,000 for a year. It's a shame how unscrupulous companies prey on the lonely. What can be done? -- Another Florida Sucker

DEAR FLORIDA: You should report this "club" to the district attorney and the Better Business Bureau at once. Have the evidence ready and blow the whistle on the crooks.

One of the reasons these sleazy operations continue to fleece the public is that people are ashamed to admit they were taken. I urge you to get going. It would be a public service.

Students honored by national program

Principal Terry Russell of Hereford High School has announced that Angela Banner and Corey James have been named Commended Students in the 1990 National Merit Scholarship Program.

A letter of commendation from the school and National Merit Scholarship Corporation, which conducts the competition, will be presented to these outstanding seniors.

About 35,000 Commended Students nationwide are being honored for their outstanding performance on the 1988 PSAT/NMSQT, which ranks them in the top five percent of more than one million students who entered the 1990 Merit Program by taking the qualifying test. Commended Students scored slightly below the level required to continue in the 1990 competition for Merit Scholarships, but they have shown exceptional academic promise.

An official of the Merit Program stated that "to be designated a Commended Student is this extremely competitive program is an attainment deserving of public recognition and is a credit to these young people and their schools. Commended Students were included in a Merit Program service through which they could be referred to two colleges or universities of their choice. We hope that the referral service and the recognition they are now receiving will enhance the higher education opportunities of Commended Students and increase their motivation to use their abilities to the fullest. The continued educational and personal development of academically talented students will benefit the entire nation."

Girls drop Fillies, 48-19

The Hereford Lady Whitefaces got the basketball season off to a winning start Tuesday with a 48-19 drubbing of the Denver City Fillies at the Texan Dome in Loveland in Coach Dickie Faught's debut.

Hereford enjoyed a good night shooting from the floor, hitting 21 of 39 shots, all from two-point range, for 54 percent. The Herd boosted its shooting average with a five-for-five second quarter.

Hereford was led by Stacy White's 14 points while Shantel Cornelius added 13.

The Lady Whitefaces added a six-of-nine effort from the free-throw line, including three-for-three by Cornelius.

The Herd had some foul trouble as D'Ann Hill and Chandra Brown both fouled out of the contest, but Denver City could convert only five of 19 tries from the charity stripe.

Hereford grabbed 24 rebounds in the contest, including 15 on the defensive end. Cande Robbins led with five boards while Laynie Souter had four.

The Herd was also plagued with 13 turnovers on the night, but made up for most of them with nine steals. Brienna Townsend and Cornelius had two each to lead the team.

Both teams got off to a slow start in the first quarter with Hereford hitting only three of six field goal attempts while the Fillies never got the ball through the hoop in the opening eight minutes. Brown put three points on the board to lead the Herd while Robbins and Donna Grotegut added two each to give Hereford a 7-0 lead.

The Herd controlled the ball in the second quarter, working the offense until a shot opened up. White connected on her only two shots of the period with Robbins, Grotegut and Brown each getting a bucket as the Lady Whitefaces took a 17-3 halftime lead.

Hereford opened up in the second half for 31 points as Cornelius scored all of her points and White poured in 10 more. Souter added a bucket in each of the final two periods and Patricia Martinez added single free throws in both quarters for the Herd.

Lady Whiteface assistant coach Donnie O'Rand said the Herd has made quick strides after a pair of scrimmages.

"We played better offensively than we have been," O'Rand said. "We saw some improvement from last week and shot really well from the floor."

"We saw a lot of things can improve on, but, overall, we were pleased."

The Lady Whitefaces will open the home season at 6:30 p.m. Saturday against Palo Duro at Whiteface Gym with the junior varsity playing at 5.

Lee back tops prep field

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ

AP Sports Writer

Midland Lee's Farris Strambler made an early exit from last week's game against Abilene Cooper.

But a call from his uncle got him back on the field and he finished in record-setting form.

Strambler gained 313 yards on 40 carries and scored six touchdowns in a 57-14 victory over Abilene Cooper that earned mention in The Associated Press Schoolboy Honor Roll.

Strambler went back into the game in the fourth quarter and got enough yards to break the school record of 1,999 yards in 1983 by Isaac Garnett. Strambler now has a record 2,003 yards. His touchdown runs went for 57, 18, 1, 6, 6 and 17 yards.

"My uncle was keeping up with the stats," Strambler said. "The coaches took me out but when they found out I needed just a few yards for the record, the let me go for it."

Strambler's 313 rushing yards was a single game school record and his 25 touchdowns also set a school mark.

No. 1 teams stay on top

By The Associated Press

Converse Judson in Class 5A, Groveton in 2A and Munday in A will move into the state playoffs with season-long No. 1 rankings in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll.

Those three teams, along with West Orange-Stark in 4A, Southlake Carroll in 3A easily retained their top ranks in the final week of voting by Texas sports writers and sportscasters.

After reaching the No. 1 spot after the first week of the season, no team

Vargas named top 4A net coach for 1989

Former Hereford tennis coach Ruben Vargas has been named the 1989 Class 4A coach of the Year by the Texas Tennis Coaches Association.

Vargas is now head coach at Vernon High School.

Vargas is a 1979 graduate of Hereford High School, where he teamed with Jimmy Ramirez to play in the Region 1-5A tennis tournament in 1979 and was named co-Outstanding Tennis Player, along with Ramirez, in 1978 and 1979.

Vargas played tennis for 3 1/2 years at West Texas State University, then returned to Hereford as tennis coach.

During his six years in Hereford he had several individuals and doubles teams advance to regional and state competition, and in team tennis his teams from 1986-89 finished 21-0 in District 1-4A, advancing to the regional semifinals twice and the regional finals once.

Vargas will receive his award Saturday, Dec. 2 at the TTCA coaching clinic at Newk's Tennis Ranch at New Braunfels.

Rusk tailback Quincy Hart outgained the entire Huntington team by 169 yards with 366 rushing yards on 35 carries and four touchdowns in a 30-14 victory.

"Quincy is an outstanding back and he should be in line for All-State honors," Rusk coach Louis Caviness said. "He's a very hard runner. This is the most yards we've had around here in one game since the 1950s."

Former Heisman Trophy runner up Jim Swink played for Rusk in the 1950s.

Corrigan-Camden's Kevin Morris gained 297 yards on 26 carries and scored on runs of 62, 70, 23 and 17 yards in a 52-14 victory over Hull-Daisetta.

Orange Grove beat previously unbeaten Freer with a potent pass-catch combination of Orlando Alanis to Jared Johnston.

Alanis completed 12 of 20 passes for 308 yards and touchdowns of 82 and 37 yards to Johnston, who caught 6 passes for 229 yards in a 37-23 victory.

has dominated its classification like Southlake Carroll.

Carroll was the unanimous No. 1 pick five weeks and received all but one first place vote on two other occasions.

West Orange-Stark started the preseason ranked No. 6 but by the fifth week had assumed the No. 1 spot after preseason choice Paris, the defending champion, lost to Wilmer Hutchins 38-25.

Third ranked Houston Lamar was tied by Houston Waltrip 21-21 and Versatile Farwell quarterback Greg Actkinson accounted for 258 rushing and passing yards in a 48-3 victory over Hal Center.

Actkinson completed 5 of 10 passes for 150 yards and a 73-yard touchdown and rushed 12 times for 108 yards and touchdowns of 21 and 4 yards. Actkinson also intercepted a pass from his corner back position.

Wichita Fall Hirschi safety Randy Gatewood helped his team record its fifth consecutive shutout in a 42-0 victory over Burk Burnett with three pass interceptions. The Huskies allowed 43 points this season, a school record.

Malakoff quarterback Jerry Paul Cotton completed 15 of 22 passes for 210 yards and touchdowns of 21, 13, 11, 31 and 21 yards in a 32-13 victory over Wills Point.

On the receiving end was Jerome Lise, who caught 11 passes for 173 yards and three touchdowns.

In other outstanding performances: --Hereford's Russell Backus caught 6 passes for 133 yards in a 42-21 victory over Borger.

Nos. 4 and 9 Houston Sterling and Lake Highlands were losers in Class 5A games. Lamar dropped to No. 6, Houston Sterling fell to No. 9 and Lake Highlands was replaced by Marshall, 8-2, in the No. 10 position. Silsbee shocked No. 2 ranked Jasper to force a shuffle in the 4A ranks below West Orange-Stark. No. 8 El Campo also was a loser.

Jasper fell to No. 7 and New Braunfels, 9-0, replaced El Campo in the No. 10 spot.

Southlake Carroll received all 20 first place votes in 3A while Sweeny edged past Cameron into the No. 2 spot. No. 4 Barbers Hill was the lone 3A loser and dropped to No. 10.

Barbers Hill lost to No. 7 Hampshire-Fannett 35-6 in a battle of Class 3A ranked teams.

The top three teams in 2A held firm but No. 4 Schulenburg lost to No. 10 Manor 34-20 in 2A and in Class A, No. 5 Baird lost to Rotan 26-20.

Reid doubles up against Orlando

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

What got into J.R.?
Charlotte rookie J.R. Reid, who shot 34 percent from the field and averaged eight points and six rebounds as the Hornets lost their first five games, had 25 points and 20 rebounds Tuesday night in a 130-116 victory over the Orlando Magic.

The Hornets were the last NBA team without a victory this season, and Reid said he was happier with getting into the win column than with playing well.

Reid said it was his big rebounding game that got his offense in gear. "If I'm hitting the boards well, I think my all-around game improves," he said.

Reid started slowly, with a 3-for-9 shooting performance in the first half. He was 5-for-7 in the second half.

In other NBA games, it was Boston 96, Philadelphia 94; Cleveland 103, New Jersey 92; Miami 101, Houston 99; Milwaukee 108, San Antonio 97; Minnesota 101, Golden State 98; Dallas 113, Seattle 109 in overtime; the Los Angeles Clippers 129, Denver 121; Chicago 96, Sacramento 94 and Portland 118, New York 117.

Reid's offensive rebound and follow shot with six minutes to go in the third period sparked a 17-4 run that put Charlotte in control. Before the surge, neither team led by more than four.

Rex Chapman also played well for the Hornets, scoring 23 points and holding Reggie Theus, the Magic's leading scorer, to 15 points.

Charlotte's Kelly Tripucka scored 24 points.

Jerry Reynolds scored 22 points and rookie Nick Anderson 19 for the Magic.

Bucks 108, Spurs 97

Jack Sikma tied a team record for 3-point baskets in a game with five in the first quarter.

He missed his remaining three long attempts in the game, but finished with 29 points.

Milwaukee led by 18 after three quarters, but the Spurs rallied with a 13-2 run to get within seven.

The Spurs, who got 22 points from Willie Anderson and 19 from David Wingate, got no closer than six after that.

Trail Blazers 118, Knicks 117

Portland survived a 43-point performance by Patrick Ewing as rookie Cliff Robinson scored 22 points and Terry Porter 21.

Ewing, who had 16 of his 26 first-half points in the first period, had a chance to tie the game with 35 seconds remaining, but made only one of two free throws, leaving the Trail Blazers with a 116-115 edge.

Celtics 96, 76ers 94
Larry Bird scored only 10 points, but his 10-foot jumper with one second left won the game.

Kevin McHale's 15 points led six Celtics in double figures. Ron Anderson led Philadelphia with 23 points.

Cavaliers 103, Nets 92
Cleveland got outstanding performances from guards Craig Ehlo, Ron Harper and Mark Price.

Ehlo was 9-for-11 from the field and scored 19 of his 23 points in the second half, while Harper added 22 points and Price 21 for the Cavaliers.

Trailing 60-59 midway through the third quarter, Cleveland went on a 29-7 spurt to seal it.

Heat 101, Rockets 99

Kevin Edwards came back from a scoreless first quarter to finish with 33 points.

The Rockets, who got 23 points from Buck Johnson, led 72-61 midway through the third quarter, when the Heat mounted a 17-2 run that featured six of Edwards' 10 third-period points.

Timberwolves 101, Warriors 98

Minnesota recovered from missing its first eight shots.

Scott Roth scored a career-high 22 points, including 18 in the first half, to rescue the Timberwolves from their horrible start, and Tyrone Corbin's three-point play snapped a late tie.

Corbin then made a layup with 2:08 to go, was fouled and hit the free throw to put Minnesota ahead for good.

Mavericks 113, Sonics 109
Seattle, which lost a five-overtime game last week, lost in one overtime. Derek Harper's 18-foot jumper with 1:34 left put the Mavericks ahead to stay and Roy Tarpley had 26 points and 20 rebounds for Dallas.

Xavier McDaniel led Seattle with 31 points.

Bulls 96, Kings 94

Scottie Pippen's layup with two seconds left after a pass from Michael Jordan gave Chicago a victory.

Jordan led the Bulls with 27 points. Kenny Smith scored 22 for the Kings.

Clippers 129, Nuggets 121

Gary Grant scored 27 points and reserve center Ken Bannister scored eight of his 15 points in the final four minutes.

Lafayette Lever scored 14 of his 25 points in the third quarter and Michael Adams had 24 points, leading six Nuggets in double figures.

Tech duo sweeps SWC weekly honors

LUBBOCK (AP) - Two Texas Tech Red Raiders - a freshman who was in high school six months ago and a senior who looks forward to the NFL draft - are this week's Southwest Conference offensive and defensive football players of the week.

Running back James Gray rushed 19 times for 209 yards and scored three touchdowns Saturday in a 37-7 shellacking of Texas Christian in Gray's last game in Lubbock.

Safety Tracy Saul caught two interceptions - and almost a third - and had 10 tackles, eight solo. He caught two interceptions the week before at Texas.

Saul, who graduated from Idalou High School just northeast of Lubbock this spring, wasn't expected to contribute so much so soon.

As the Tech media guide said: "Saul is coming off a sensational high school career in which he was selected the South Plains player of the year in football and basketball, but making the transition from Class 2A football to the major college level in a matter of weeks probably is expecting too much."

That was written before the six-foot, 180-pound safety caught an interception in Tech's first game of the season and before he started in the fifth game, against Texas A&M.

"I did not think Tracy Saul would do this well," coach Spike Dykes said. "He's had an outstanding year as far as big, visible plays."

Defensive coordinator Carlos Mainord said: "It's unusual to have a freshman come in and adjust like Tracy did. He's a very intent player as far as watching and listening. He's going to be a great one before he's through."

Similar things were said last year about All-Southwest Conference safety Donald Harris, who left Tech after being drafted by the Texas Rangers. Saul's job was to replace him.

"I like to work hard every day and try to make a workout as much like a game as you can," Saul said.

Gray's work habits are just as hard, but there was heavy pressure at the beginning of the season for him to produce. Dykes called him the only name player on a no-name team.

The 5-foot, 10-inch, 210-pound Gray said he didn't feel pressured.

"As in anything, you can have a name player, but you have 10 other guys around you, kind of like a supporting cast, to take the pressure off you," he said. "That's what I told the guys at a team meeting we had this year, was that the pressure was not only on me, but it's on the rest of the team to get the job done, also."

Against TCU, Gray rushed for more than 200 yards for the third time this season. He has 1,177 rushing yards this season with games remaining against Southern Methodist and Houston. With 46 career touchdowns, he needs four more to set a conference touchdown record. He's third behind Bill Burnett of Arkansas, with 49, and SMU's Eric Dickerson, with 48.

Gray consistently gives much of the credit for his success to the rest of the team, especially the experienced offensive line.

"There's just something special about this team, something magical," Gray said. "I really don't know what it is. Some of the teams we face, we don't have as much ability or as much talent, but I think the heart is there, and we've got great work habits."

'Bows bow in to Top 25

By RICK WARNER
AP Football Writer

Hawaii has long been known for beautiful beaches, wonderful weather and fabulous food. Now it also has one of the country's best college football teams.

The Hawaii Rainbows are 24th in this week's Associated Press poll, only the second time in school history that they've been ranked. They were No. 19 for one week in 1981 after starting the season 7-0.

The Rainbows returned to the rankings after beating Pacific 34-26 Saturday. The victory gave them an 8-2 record with home games remaining against Oregon State and Air Force.

"We're certainly happy to get national recognition - it's something we've been striving for," Hawaii coach Bob Wagner said. "If we can continue to play good football, hopefully we'll get even more attention."

One of the reasons Hawaii has had a hard time getting attention this year

Texas adds six to roster

ARLINGTON (AP) - The Texas Rangers have promoted six players from its minor league system to the major league roster, the team announced Tuesday.

The contracts of righthander Robb Nen, 20, and outfielder Kevin Belcher, 22, have been purchased from Triple A Oklahoma City of the American Association.

The Rangers also purchased the contracts of four players from Double A Tulsa of the Texas League: lefthanders Brian Bohanon, 21, and David Lynch, 24, righthander Mark Petkovsek, 24, and catcher Bill Haselman, 23.

is its schedule. The Rainbows have played only two away games and lost them both, Western Athletic Conference games at Wyoming and Colorado State.

Wagner bristles at suggestions that Hawaii is a bully at home and a weakling on the road.

"We were 3-0 last season on the road and only 6-3 at home," he said. "As a matter of fact, since we joined the WAC in 1979, we've had a better record on the road than at home."

Hawaii's most impressive win this season was a 56-14 demolition of perennial power Brigham Young.

"I think people started to notice us after that," Wagner said. "You don't beat BYU unless you have a good football team."

Also breaking into the Top 25 this week was Duke, which had been out of the rankings even longer than Hawaii. The Blue Devils, who improved to 7-3 with a 35-26 win over North Carolina State, were last ranked in 1971.

"One of our goals was to be in the Top 25 this year," Duke coach Steve Spurrier said. "It's an honor for our program and a credit to our players that we made it. But what we really want is to be ranked at the end of the season."

While there were changes at the bottom of the rankings, the top seven remained unchanged - Notre Dame, Colorado, Michigan, Alabama, Florida

State, Nebraska and Miami.

Notre Dame, which clobbered Southern Methodist 59-6, received 57 first-place votes and 1,497 of a possible 1,500 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Colorado, which beat Oklahoma State 41-17, received the other three first-place votes and 1,439 points.

Michigan defeated Illinois 24-10, Alabama downed Louisiana State 32-16, Nebraska routed Kansas 51-14 and Miami beat Pittsburgh 24-3. Florida State did not play.

Rounding out the Top 10 are Southern Cal, Tennessee and Arkansas. Southern Cal moved up one spot after beating Arizona 24-3, Tennessee went from No. 11 to No. 9 after crushing Akron 52-9 and Arkansas remained No. 10 following a 19-10 win over Baylor.

Auburn is No. 11, followed by Illinois, Houston, Texas A&M, Clemson, Virginia, Penn State, West Virginia, Pittsburgh, Texas Tech, Brigham Young, Ohio State and Fresno State. Ohio State moved into the Top 25 after blanking Iowa 28-0, while Florida, N.C. State and Arizona dropped out following losses.

Of the teams still ranked, Illinois, Pitt and Penn State fell the farthest. Illinois dropped from No. 8 to No. 12 after losing to Michigan, Pitt plunged from No. 14 to No. 19 after losing to Miami and Penn State went from No. 13 to No. 17 after tying Maryland 13-13.

Fire Marshal Jay Spain--HVFD leader since November, 1971

Volunteer leaders--Ted Higgins, oldest active member, and Mike Watts, fire chief.

From bucket brigade in 1899, volunteers have been vital to community

Hereford firefighter unit among the best

"No greater love hath no man than this, than a man lay down his life for his friends."--John 15:13

Fire has struck fear in the hearts of men since the dawn of time, an awesome phenomenon that remains a mystery to scholars of nature...a small smoldering line between life and destruction.

But down in the center of Hereford, there's a brigade of volunteers who stand as a human barrier to the devastating--and sometimes deadly--flames of fire. Folks around town know this band of men as the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department, individuals from all walks of life who leave fame and family to help the one in need.

"Whenever you hear a fire alarm, there's either someone hurting or someone is losing something," said Jay Spain, a veteran firefighter who serves as fire marshal for the city of Hereford. "Sometimes, it is difficult for one to understand the magnitude or power of fire--a given blaze will multiply eight times a minute as long as there's adequate fuel and no resistance."

But the city of Hereford and the surrounding Deaf Smith County has a volunteer force of resistance to the deadly flames of destruction--the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department that has no weekends, no holidays, or vacations. It's a 37-man force that remains on alert 24 hours a day, seven days a week, 365 days a year. From the tornadoic seasons of spring, to the killer colds of winter, these volunteers move on call without hesitation, without question--they move and they move fast.

"My greatest fear with these men is that they sometimes move too fast," said Spain, as he voice reflected a deep feeling for his volunteer firemen. "There's something about a fireman that sets him apart from the rest...he'll risk his life day or night to help someone in trouble--they're that way the world over."

The Hereford Volunteer Fire Department is one of the largest volunteer firefighting units in the United States, relative to the area and number of people served. The unit is also recognized statewide as one of the most efficient and reliable fire departments of the Southwest, having set a track-record in service that out-shines most paid departments in cities the size of Hereford. Spain is the only paid firefighter in the entire department.

From the raging wildfires of wheat fields and rangeland to the smallest of fires in a backyard garden, the Hereford force takes each call with equal concern. "Here's last month's records," said Spain, as he handed a clipboard of fire calls. The volunteer head-count averaged around 25, and in many calls, the number rose to the 30s--the only ones that didn't "show" were those out of town or in the hospital...industry workers, businessmen, professionals, agribusiness.

"I guess one of the largest grass fires we've had since I've been here was one that started about 5 miles west of Westway and was finally put out a mile or so east of Westway," recalled Spain, as he spoke of the department's responsibility to both, the city and the countryside. "Our responsibility includes every acre in Deaf Smith county and every person in it."

Pinpointed in the downtown business district, the Hereford Fire Department is headquartered in a four-bay structure that was built new in 1986. Containing the latest in building codes, the fire station contains 13,000 square feet of floor space that includes a radio command post, maintenance shop, classroom, recreational room, kitchen and business offices. The spacious bay area is home-base for three fire engines (one new unit delivered last May), three boosters, a 5,000-gallon tanker truck, a second reserve tanker and two submersibles for transporting firemen. A fully-equipped rescue unit is also on stand-by at all times, with trained paramedics numbered among the volunteer force.

"We work hand-in-hand with all phases of law enforcement divisions, such as Hereford City Police, Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department and the Department of Public Safety," Spain noted, in showing how the fire station had direct radio connection with the various law enforcement agencies.

Spain also pointed out that fire alarms do not mean that all calls contain fire--"Many calls come in for the life-saving units of the paramedics or for fire prevention, such as washing down gasoline from car wrecks or maybe fetching a stranded pet...you name, we'll get it and we'll do our best to take care of it."

In the event of a citywide or regional emergency, the Hereford Fire Department would immediately become command post for emergency operations for Deaf Smith County. This division, or responsibility, of the Hereford Fire Department is not just a weekend hobby for the volunteers. Every volunteer is a highly-trained person in the field of emergency and rescue. Working under the auspices of Deaf Smith County and the City of Hereford, the basic emergency operations plan follows guidelines of the Federal Civil Defense Act of 1950, the Disaster Relief Act of 1974, the Texas Disaster Act of 1975 and the Emergency Management Assistance Code of Federal Regulations.

As an added measure in rescue work, all fire engines are equipped with AC generators and floodlights. "The generators came about following the tornado that came through in the early 1970s," said Spain, who was a career newspaperman at that time, but serving as a volunteer fireman. "After that tornado, we put generators on every engine."

In addition to needing generators in the aftermath of storms, Spain pointed out that one of the first moves in fighting a structural fire is to cut off electrical currents--"Almost every major night fire leaves you in the darkness, so those generators and flood lights have become indispensable in our work."

With more than 400 calls already counted for 1989, this year may go down as the heaviest year in history for the Hereford Fire Department. "We've been real lucky in not having had many real large fires this year but we've had a lot of small ones, due largely to the exceptionally dry weather."

Ten of the 37 volunteers are relatively new members, having been on the force for a year or so. But 14 have Class II certificates that requires a minimum of 471 hours of training. This includes the Basic, Intermediate and Advanced courses in the firefighting field. The force also includes 21 with basic training (162 Hours) and 19 intermediates (122 hours).

Spain and Ted Higgins are the senior members of the force, with Mike Watts now serving as Fire Chief and David Spain as assistant fire chief. David is the eldest son of the fire marshal, with his other son, Kirk, being a member of the Hereford Police Department. In an organized effort for the firemen to stay abreast of new developments within the department, each member must report for fire drills at least six hours a month whether or not there are any calls.

The Hereford volunteer fire organization is older than the city of Hereford--a devastating fire that swept through Dewey Street in 1903 placed in action a volunteer firefighting force that has spanned nearly a century of time. The city of Hereford was not incorporated until 1906.

As historians tell it, all of the wooden buildings in the first block along the west side of Dewey Street (Main Street) were destroyed by fire on a cold January morning in 1903 at an estimated cost of $27,000.

An account of the Hereford Brand reported that "at about 1:30 a.m. Tuesday the citizens of this city were awakened from their usually peaceful slumbers by the rapid firing of pistols and the terror-stricken cries of 'FIRE! FIRE! FIRE!' and the clanging of church bells from the hands of volunteer firemen. On Oct. 8, 1909, the Hereford City Council approved $2,400 for a chemical engine and 1,000 feet of fire hose. The equipment, however, did not arrive until February, 1910, at which time the volunteers were officially organized and a city fire department established.

The first Hereford fire marshal was C.L. Sullivan, with R.L. Doss serving as the first city fire chief and R.L. Witherspoon, treasurer. In a city-backed move to furnish power for the chemical wagon, a team of horses was purchased to pull the firewagon. However, due to the "heavy maintenance costs" of caring for the two horses, the horsepower was abandoned in April of 1913 when the department sold the horses for $400 and reverted back to strictly manpower--a hose reel mounted on two steel wheels.

According to descriptions of this early-day rig, when a fire alarm sounded, firemen would head to the fire on foot, pulling the hose cart along. There was nothing ever mentioned on what happened when a fire was farther than 1,000 feet--bucket brigades and snowballs? In May, 1913, the city of Hereford purchased its first fire truck at a total cost of $1105.50. Mayor William Knight noted at the time that the city would be responsible for 22 monthly payments of $50.25 each... and the fire truck would belong to the city at the end of that time.

Just for the records, a city ordinance establishing fire regulations was passed Dec. 11, 1906, and on Aug. 2, 1911, the city joined the Panhandle Firemen's Association. The first fire alarm authorized Dec. 26, 1913. On Aug. 13, 1915, the fire alarm was connected to Southwest Telephone & Telegraph Co., and the same year, Dec. 4, 1915, the city passed an ordinance creating the post of fire marshal. An electrical fire alarm was purchased March 20, 1922.

On Oct. 10, 1927, an election was conducted for the issuance of $25,000 bonds for a new city hall and fire station, and on Oct. 25, 1927, a contract for the unit was awarded to George Parr of Amarillo in the amount of $24,635. Five months later, on March 24, 1928, the city authorized the purchase of a fire engine from American LaFrance and Foamite Corp. An identical unit of this 1928 model fire engine is now being restored by the Hereford volunteer firemen.

In 1935, the Hereford unit joined the Texas Firemen's Association and its first portable resuscitator was purchased in 1951. As a point of interest in the history of the Hereford organization, the volunteer firemen took over as night patrol in the fall of 1952 when the entire Hereford police force resigned en masse, and on Nov. 3, 1958, the fire department agreed to make available the 1929 American LaFrance Fire Truck to the Khiva Temple for public parades and displays.

The Plectron Alert System was established in 1961 (individual beepers), and on Jan. 19, 1970, the city commission approved the purchase of the Jack Wright property for a new fire station, a unit that would not be completed until 1986.

Spain received his first experience as a volunteer fireman in 1961 at Muleshoe, Tx., where he worked for the local newspaper and after coming to Hereford in 1967 as plant superintendent for the HEREFORD BRAND, he became a volunteer fireman for the Hereford Fire Department.

On Nov. 5, 1971, Spain left a career in the newspaper business to start a new career as fire marshal of Hereford and Deaf Smith County. County fire runs are prorated to the cost of running the Hereford Fire Department. The 1989 budget for the Hereford Fire Department was $172,200. The rolling stock inventory includes 11 vehicles, with the newest fire engine delivered last May at a cost of $107,000. About $7,000 in accessories were installed free of labor costs by the volunteer firemen.

Another fire engine, which is a real eye-catcher in its polished white enamel, was built entirely by the efforts of the volunteers, from the chassis up. Much of the material for this engine was donated by local businessmen, manufacturing companies and agribusiness industries.

"This truck is a real good example of community effort," said Spain, who took great pride in pointing out the excellent workmanship of the volunteers. "Poarch Brothers built the water tank, and Holly Sugar furnished the pipe and we did about everything else. The truck was appraised at between $95,000 and $105,000, and if I remember correctly, it cost us $48,000."

Spain and his wife make their home adjacent to the Hereford Fire Station, thus, being a fireman is not a way of life with Spain, it is his life.

Emergency fire calls are answered initially at the Hereford Police Department which maintains a 24-hour dispatch unit. "If we find it's a big fire, we'll put our own dispatchers to work here in the station, but the smaller fires are handled directly out of the Hereford Police Department. Spain estimated that the average length of time to put a unit in service is about 2 minutes.

Shortly after taking over as fire marshal, Spain saw the need for outlying support stations in some of the more distant areas of Deaf Smith County. The Walcott Community station was organized in November of 1975 with 30 volunteers on roll call. The first officers were Bill Page, fire chief; Bobby Hammock, assistant chief; and Ernest Brown, secretary-treasurer. Through the years, the Walcott Community has been an active force in providing volunteer firefighters for this rural region, with firefighting units now housed at Walcott and at Bootleg Corner.

In 1976, Deaf Smith County furnished a 1200-gallon fire engine for the Dawn Community where a volunteer fire department was formed by 25 residents. Founders of the Dawn Department were Pat Smith, Fred Boren, Dick Hager, Vincent Morasco, Jim McCabe, Ed Sowell, Gene Guyenes and Bob Strain, with John Wilson serving as fire chief.

In the latter part of 1976, a firefighting unit was organized at the Simms Community under the leadership of Willis Duggan, Jerry Roberts and Hubert Bronniman. Spain recalled that the most spectacular fire he had witnessed in Hereford during the past 25 years was the blaze at Consumer Oil Co. in 1971 shortly after he had assumed the fire marshal post.

"There was an 8,000-gallon gasoline tanker filling up some large overhead storage tanks," said Spain, in recalling the big blast. "The pumps worked off the truck's power-takeoff, and when a hose ruptured, the truck engine sort of had a runaway, sucked up the gasoline fumes and exploded...it was really a spectacular fire but miraculously, there were no injuries."

In earlier times, the Pitman Grain co. was hit with an explosion and fire on May 26, 1948, followed in the 1950s, with two fires at the old Fraser Elevator and flour mills. Fire later took one life at the old Savoy Hotel blaze that wiped out three stories, later rebuilt to a two-story unit, which was then moved to make way for a new City Hall. A rescue unit plucked Carcy Black from the sliding hands of the Crowe-Guilde Concrete Plant in the 1960s and a tornado in April 1971 damaged a big section of town but there were no fatalities.

Spain recalled the day a boiler exploded in 1973 at a milk processing plant near the corner of U.S. 60 and Main, hurling chunks of steel and concrete hundreds of yards—"This was really the miracle of miracles...a group of 38 children had just completed a tour of the milk plant and were no more than 10 minutes away when the boiler exploded. We found out later that someone had plugged the pop-off valve." There were no injuries or fatalities in the blast.

The veteran fireman also recalled the day that a Santa Fe train derailed, penning one of the train crewmen—"It took us about five hours to get him out but he was still alive...that was in about October and I believe he died just before Christmas." He added that the department had handled about eight or 10 grain suffocations during the past 20 years.

It's not a simple matter to become a volunteer fireman on the Hereford Fire Department. First, one must attend three fire drills that are conducted at the station on the first, second and third Tuesdays of every month--night sessions from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m., followed by business meetings. On the third session, if the prospective applicant is still around, his applications is then voted on by the firemen. Fire drills consist of all phases of firefighting--from air pacs to fire science, from arson to engine maintenance.

After being voted into the force, new members remain on probation for one year, a period of time, to let other firemen take a look at their new volunteer, knowing full well that in times of infernos, the life they save may be their own. Teamwork is top priority among firefighters.

"It can get pretty hairy out there in the middle of a blaze where the people you're working with are hurting and maybe you're hurting yourself, so that's when the fireman next to you may become the most important person you'll ever see," said Spain, as he spoke of the risks in working as a fireman. At a recent call to King's Manor on the north edge of town every volunteer fireman in Hereford was on the scene.

Spain was also on the scene when a train began derailling at the crossing on Main and continued to plow the trackage until coming to a stop on the west side of U.S. 385, and he worked around the clock in rescue efforts of the tornado in 1971.

In tracking the movement of the Hereford Fire Station, Spain noted that the department was moved to its present location in 1969 from the basement area of the old City Hall. The move was intended, in the beginning to be a temporary one to an old feed store, but it took nearly 15 years before the present facilities were opened for service at 215 N. Miles.

In showing the high-level of training among the Hereford firemen, Spain noted that at least 14 of the 37 have instructors' certificates, giving them the authority to conduct fire training sessions across the state of Texas.

Spain holds such a certificate, along with an arson investigator's certificate. He is a licensed peace officer. "we have a good working relationship with the District Attorney's office along with the law enforcement agencies, so we try to make it pretty tough on anyone with arson on his mind," said Spain.

A son of Jadie and Virginia Spain, Spain was born and reared at Childress, Tx., in a family of four. He graduated from Childress High School in May, 1953. He and Wanda Hadley were married the following month, both having been in the same graduating class.

Spain's first newspaper job was on the Childress Reporter in 1953, and on April 1, 1956, he went to work for the Moore County news in Dumas, Tx. He moved to the Muleshoe Journal in 1961, where he remained until coming to Hereford in 1967.

While working for the smaller newspapers, Spain learned early in his career that printers sometimes do it all—"I wrote a lot of features and covered sports along with the printing...I really enjoyed covering sports." His parents are now retired in Plainview but spend much time jaunting around the country, such as Las Vegas and other points west.

Spain has two hobbies--guns and model airplanes, having a quarter-scale J-3 Cub, with a 9-foot wing span. Most of his time is weaved around fire engines and those who make them work. But once in a while when the southwinds are calm, Jay Spain may be found out somewhere in a vacant pasture guiding his sleek remotes in acrobatics of the air--a small bit of relaxation from the tension-teasing post as fire marshal for this agribusiness center of Texas.

Debate: tax burden on land or property?

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - There is a tax in America that, it is argued, takes money from almost everyone, hinders economic progress, penalizes the innovator and risk-taker, and rewards speculators.

It is the real estate tax, generally assessed more heavily on buildings and other improvements than on land, even in cities that desperately need to rid themselves of empty lots and abandoned structures.

Steven B. Cord, a retired professor, has devoted years to correcting this situation. Studies all over the world, he says, demonstrate that cities improve once the burden of taxes is shifted to land rather than structures.

Why, then, has it not been accepted more widely? Could it be that a stigma attaches to the notion, which is generally credited to Henry George, the 19th century American economist, who believed a tax on land was the only tax needed?

George antagonized academic scholars, indicating they were monkeys with microscopes.

Moreover, says Cord, to even allow cities to consider raising taxes on land values and lowering them on improvements might involve amendments to state constitutions, an impediment that can discourage even zealots.

George, nevertheless, has advocates, including academics. His philosophy is expounded by the Henry George School in New York, and by the nonprofit Center For the Study of Economics, based in Columbia, Md., and run by Cord.

And by people in power everywhere. More than 20 years ago, the conclusion of a conference on the crisis of cities, attended by elected officials, tax authorities, business people and academics among others, concluded that real estate taxes were being applied to produce the opposite of what was intended.

In spite of this, very few cities tax land at higher rates than structures, many of them prevented from doing so by state law. Pennsylvania, with Pittsburgh the shining light, is an exception.

In town after town in that commonwealth, says Cord, who for years taught economics and history there - at Indiana University, Indiana, Penn. - his studies show that reversing the usual formula has led to strong development.

It is only logical, he says. He and others who share his view contend that the value of land rises because of the investments of others in schools, buildings, bridges, sewers, power lines and other improvements.

In most if not all cities, these improvements are the basis of jobs and other economic advances that benefit everyone, but perhaps most especially the landowner who might have done nothing to improve his property.

In fact, unimproved property deprives the city of jobs and revenues, and in some instances hinders other economic activity. The owner takes little or no risk and pays low taxes, but is rewarded by the risks and taxes of others.

Walls, coach square off

DALLAS (AP) - There's discord at Valley Ranch.

Veteran Everson Walls is still Jimmy Johnson's starting left cornerback. For now.

Walls and Johnson traded words after the Dallas Cowboys' 24-20 loss to the Phoenix Cardinals on Sunday. It's escalated to the point that the nine-year veteran doesn't see himself as a member of the team next year.

Walls said Johnson was trying to replace him with Issiac Holt, who was obtained by Dallas in the Herschel Walker trade.

Walls, who has 44 career interceptions, charged that Johnson is trying to ease him out, saying "he's setting me up to make a change."

Johnson countered that he's only trying to get Walls to play better.

"I'm not trying to run him (Walls) off but Holt will play against Miami (on Sunday in Texas Stadium) just as we planned," Johnson said. "Everson will start but he can play better than he has without question."

Johnson blamed Walls' "breakdown" in coverage on the first of two fourth-quarter touchdown passes by Tom Tupa in Dallas' eighth loss in nine games.

Walls and Johnson had a shouting match after the game while Walls visited with several of his friends on the Phoenix team.

"Different people take losses different ways," Johnson said. "When you have a loss like the one we had on Sunday I'm not in a jovial mood. I'm not one to carouse with friends. It eats at my insides. I'd just as soon see my players go to the lockerroom so we can visit about the game."

The 29-year-old Walls said other players were also visiting with the Cardinals and that Johnson's action "embarrassed me. Only college coaches and Mike Ditka (Chicago coach) do that. He treated me like a child. Around here you're damned if you do and damned if you don't."

Johnson tried to quieten down the controversy by saying "more is being made of it than what there is. No one player or players causes a team to lose a game. There are a lot of plays that go into a game."

He said he doesn't mind if players express their opinions but added "I can accept it more when a player is performing up to my expectations. I'm not as concerned about a player talking who is performing. Everson has done a good job but can do much better."

Johnson added "I've expressed my disappointment to him."

Walls doesn't have an interception this year.

"I guess they'll Plan B me," Walls said, talking about the NFL's unprotected list. "I wonder about my future here."

Walls has led the NFL in interceptions three times. Five years he has been the club leader.

Holt was obtained from Minnesota in the Herschel Walker trade and has been getting more practice time in Walls' position.

"We've planned all along to get Holt more action," Johnson said. "We had this planned a long time before Sunday's game."

Carter plans court fight

DALLAS (AP) - Supporters of Dallas Carter High School were to meet with lawyers today to discuss whether to seek a court order that would let the team play in the state football playoffs.

The Dallas Independent School District board decided Tuesday not to pay for a legal appeal of the University Interscholastic league's disqualification of Carter's football team.

"It's really up to the community now," said Royce West, a partner in Brown, Robinson and West, which successfully fought to have Carter reinstated after a UIL squabble last year. The Cowboys went on to win the Class 5A title.

West said that if Carter supporters decided to pursue court action, he would file for a temporary restraining order in state district court Austin.

"I'm just waiting to hear from (the supporters) finance chairman to see if they have the resources to employ a law firm," West said.

A District 11-5A executive committee last month voted unanimously to deny Carter a chance to defend its state championship after the Cowboys used an ineligible player during a game in October.

The executive committee banned Carter from this year's playoffs because the school was already on probation for a 1988 grading dispute that threatened the team's playoff eligibility last year.

Carter was banned from the playoffs last season after playing a student who didn't meet academic requirements. But a state district court reinstated the team, which went on to win the Class 5A championship.

Farm, ranch families honored in Austin

"At a time when the average person moves at least five times and makes three or more career changes during a lifetime, we celebrate 103 Texas families who have maintained their farming and ranching properties in continuous agricultural production for 100 years or more," Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said.

"These families, representing the full ethnic diversity of Texas, are symbols of the year-in-and-year-out stamina, the pioneering spirit, and the entrepreneurial drive that has made Texas the enduring and innovative state it is today."

Hightower made these comments at the Texas Department of Agriculture's 16th Annual Family Land Heritage Ceremony held at the LBJ Auditorium on the University of Texas campus. State Representative Dudley Harrison of Sanderson, chairman of the House Agriculture and Livestock Committee, was the guest speaker at the ceremony. State Representative Renato Cuellar of Weslaco also participated in the program.

Officers elected at meeting

Officers for the coming year were elected when the Cultural Extension Homemakers Club met Friday at the Senior Citizens Center.

Those elected were Jewell Hargrove, president; Perry Keyes, vice-president; Edna Marnell, secretary; Fannie Townsend, assistant secretary; Byrdie Fellers, treasurer; Vernis Parsons, reporter and Carrie M. Doak as assistant reporter. Nell Pope will continue as council delegate and Townsend as cheer chairman.

Edith Hunter voiced a prayer and Parsons, hostess, gave a reading entitled "Dilemma" by Sidney Wilson. Virginia Sumner led the group in pledges to the United States and Texas flags and roll call was answered with "My plans for Thanksgiving."

Plans were made for the annual family holiday dinner to be held in the Reddy Room Nov. 28 at 6 p.m. The clubs Christmas luncheon will be Dec. 8 at the Community Center.

Others attending the meeting were Winnie Wiseman, Jewel Rogers and Naomi Hare.

Keep warm with right insulators

Now is the time to start thinking about dressing warm for cold days ahead, according to a clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Dr. Ann Beard said new synthetic fibers have become increasingly popular as insulating materials for cold-weather wear.

"Down feathers, the old standby, may still be the most effective insulator against dry, bitter cold weather, but down has disadvantages that synthetics have been able to overcome," she said.

Beard said down mats and loses its insulation quality when wet, although a sufficient water resistant outer shell can help prevent this problem.

She said another concern is bulkiness. Down filling limits design potential because of the volume needed for insulation.

"Synthetic insulators can be used in sleek fashionable outerwear and other apparel," she said. They can be used to line underwear, gloves, socks and hats and even serve as fillings for coats of classic styling.

Beard said synthetics are considered more economical than natural ones since they can be used in a variety of weather conditions, are extremely durable and easier to clean.

"Down can be machine washed, but a long drying time is necessary to reduce chances of mildewing and to thoroughly fluff the garment so that insulating qualities are retained," she said.

Synthetic insulators are readily machine washable and required a short drying time, Beard said. But the cleaning method may vary depending on the fabric with which it is used.

Panhandle Community Services

How do you break the monotony of seven people traveling together to the Dialysis Center three times a week?
The Panhandle Transit driver and her dialysis clients decided to have a Halloween Party on their Oct. 31 trip. Two of the clients chose to wear costumes, and refreshments were served on the return trip to Hereford.

Panhandle Transit is an arm of the Panhandle Community Services and is designed to help the elderly, the disabled and the poor by providing transportation for those in need.

One such service is for the dialysis patients who must undergo treatment three times a week in Amarillo.

The service also provides transportation for those who need other medical attention in Amarillo, and for local trips to the doctor's office, hospital, pharmacy, dentist, bank or grocery store.

Persons who would like more information about Panhandle Community Services and Panhandle Transit can call 364-5631. The PCS office is open from 8:15 a.m. to noon and from 1 p.m. to 5:15 p.m. Monday through Friday.

We are truly "People Helping People."

Breaking the monotony

The Panhandle Transit had a Halloween party for dialysis clients on the Oct. 31 trip to Amarillo. Driver Carolyn Eichman is shown with two clients who dressed for the occasion--Susie Sledge and Tracy Warren--and Panhandle Community Services director Celia Serrano.

Bippus officers elected

The Extension Homemakers Bippus Club met recently for the election of officers.

New officers elected were Kathy Hammock, president; Mariellen Homfeld, vice-president; Juanita Perrin, secretary and reporter; and Kathy Bradley, treasurer and council delegate.

Nine women were present for the luncheon consisting of "make your own ham sandwich with chips and dips" and "build you own banana split".

Mrs. Dean Bradley gave the program on Seminole patchwork and demonstrated ways to decorate skirts, sweat shirts and shopping bags.

The next meeting will be Wednesday, Dec. 13, in the home of Mariellen Homfeld at 2 p.m.

Guests present were Beverly Harder, Alta Mac Higgins, Christine Larson, and Sue Thweatt.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Actor Robert Redford owns a ski resort in the mountains east of Salt Lake City, but he's opposed to widening the road that leads to it, and has mixed feelings about bringing the Winter Olympics to Utah.

Utah voters on Tuesday approved a referendum calling for spending $56 million to build ski jumps, a speed skating oval and bobsled-luge runs required by the International Olympics Committee, which will pick a 1998 site in June 1991.

Redford said he personally was not opposed to the Games - none of which would be held at his Sundance resort - but felt the state should make sure the Olympics did not lead to further damage of the Utah environment.

"What is Utah going to do to protect its future rather than squander it for a 16-day event?" he said.

Redford criticized proposals to expand to four lanes the two-lane Provo Canyon highway, which leads to his resort.

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (AP) - Talk-show host Oprah Winfrey will launch the Michigan Office of Children and Youth Services' fall campaign to recruit foster and adoptive parents for black children.

Winfrey will appear in the 30-second public service announcements that will air next month, urging black families to adopt or become foster parents of abandoned or orphaned youngsters, the office announced Thursday.

One Church One Child of Michigan Inc., which focuses on the need for more adoptive and foster parents for black children, also is sponsoring the ads. They will air statewide.

Calendar sales underway

Girl Scouts from the Texas Plains Girl Scout Council will be taking orders for 1990 calendars in your neighborhood until Nov. 29.

Proceeds from the sale of Girl Scout calendars support Girl Scout activities such as camp and a variety of learning activities.

The Girl Scouts will be selling the calendars and pocket planners for $1.50 and each girl will be earning her calendar patch. A portion of the cost will go to the individual troops. If you are unable to locate your neighborhood Girl Scout, you can purchase your calendar or pocket planner at Texas Plains Girl Scout office located at 800 S. Crockett in Amarillo.

Pageant for area underway in Amarillo

The Miss Amarillo Area Scholarship Pageant is underway and the new Committee is excited about the upcoming year. The pageant is open to women from Texas' top 33 counties, hoping to gather the talented and the bright from Amarillo and the surrounding area, said Patti Stapp, executive director for the pageant.

The pageant, set for Feb. 3 at the Amarillo Little Theatre, 2019 Civic Circle, is open to women ages 17 to 26 (as of Sept. 1, 1990) with entry deadline Jan. 5, 1989. No entry fee is required.

Contestants will be judged on talent, interview, swimsuit competition and evening gown competition with talent accounting for 50 percent of the judges consideration.

The winner of Miss Amarillo Area will go on to compete in July at the Miss Texas Scholarship Pageant in Fort Worth with Miss Texas advancing to the Miss America Pageant in Atlantic City, N. J.

"We have a great potential to bring in some really good talent from Amarillo and the surrounding area," said Stapp. "If a young woman is talented, bright and interested in enhancing her college education, she should contact us for more information."

Leah Kay Lyle, from Plainview, winning the Miss Haltom-Richland Area Pageant, went on to win Miss Texas 1989 and was listed in the Top Ten at the Miss America Pageant this September.

The Miss Amarillo Area Scholarship Pageant is decades old with many fine outstanding young women representing us well at Miss Texas in the past. Our committee is large and includes three former Miss Amarillo's -- Guy Del McCabe, Miss Amarillo 1950; Andrea (Lamb) Hooten, Miss Amarillo 1983 and Misty Neef, Miss Amarillo 1984.

The winner of Miss Amarillo Area will receive scholarships, wardrobe allowances, personal grooming for a year and will make numerous public appearances.

For any young lady interested in entering the Miss Amarillo Area Scholarship Pageant, call 359-6690 for information.

Big Ben is not the clock and not the tower, but the bell that strikes the hour. It weighs 13 tons and was named for Sir Benjamin Hall, commissioner of works when it was installed.

These people are shouting with joy.

Why? Because they're just two of the people who have enjoyed the success of Hereford Brand classifieds. They were able to target what they had to offer to their prospective customers. Like many customers, it cost them less than $11 a week to run their ad every day in the Brand. Because they ran their ad every day for a week, they received a free ad in the Reach 4 More, reaching customers in Hereford, Dimmitt, Friona, Vega and Adrian. You can be a success, too. Navy to conduct worldwide safety check

WASHINGTON (AP) - Navy commanders around the world are under orders to "leave no stone unturned" during an unprecedented operations cutback and 48-hour safety check designed to stem the string of deadly accidents plaguing the service.

Adm. Carlisle A.H. Trost, the chief of naval operations, on Tuesday ordered that a "safety stand-down" be conducted at all Navy facilities within three days.

"Prudent leadership demands that we take a look at everything that might be a possible cause for this recent spate of accidents, regardless of their severity," Trost told reporters at a Pentagon news conference.

The order requires ships, flying squadrons and shore facilities to interrupt normal operations and review basic safety and operating procedures.

However, it will allow such operations as U.S. ship movements in the Persian Gulf and drug interdiction activities to continue, the four-star admiral said.

"A stand-down ... does not say, bring ships in from sea, stop flying airplanes completely. ... Clearly, operations around the world must continue," Trost said.

In his statement, Trost told fleet commanders and other senior Navy leaders that they should "leave no stone unturned to ensure the safety of operations is foremost in the minds of all hands."

The order also requires all commanders to report their findings after the 48-hour interruption in operations.

The action came as the Navy has suffered through a series of mishaps since Oct. 29 in which 10 people have been killed or lost at sea and at least 53 people injured.

Between Jan. 1 and Nov. 1, the Navy counted 101 "operation and training related" fatalities in the service, including 47 in the explosion aboard the USS Iowa on April 19.

The admiral defended the Navy's safety record, saying that absent the Iowa fatalities, this would be the service's safest year in this decade.

Trost said he has found no common thread in the recent spate of accidents, that some were due to mechanical failure while others were caused by human error, such as a lapse of attention to procedure.

He said he did not believe commanders were working their sailors too hard, but he wanted to ensure that no short cuts were being taken during the many dangerous activities that Navy personnel must conduct every day.

Overall, the Navy has 599,000 full-time personnel and some 566 ships - and usually a third of those are at sea for training operations at any one time.

The announcement came as three more incidents were added to the Navy's accident list:

-A Navy F-14 jet fighter crashed in the Gulf of Mexico 60 miles northwest of Key West, Fla., with the crew escaping serious injury.

-A fire broke out aboard the amphibious assault ship USS Inchon in Norfolk, Va., injuring 31 people, as the vessel was undergoing shipyard maintenance.

-A Navy ordnance technician suffered minor burns and possible eye injuries when an experimental explosive mixture detonated in a research laboratory at the Naval Surface Weapons Testing Center in White Oak, Md.

In recent weeks, the service has been plagued by a number of deadly accidents including a training jet crashing into an aircraft carrier off Florida in which five people were killed; sailors who have been washed overboard on two different aircraft carriers and the accidental bombing of a ship by a Navy pilot in the Indian Ocean.

On Monday, the destroyer USS Kinkaid and a freighter collided in the Malacca Strait, 240 miles northwest of Singapore, killing one Navy crewman, injuring five, and starting fires on both vessels.

Last Thursday, a Navy reserve pilot flying an A-7E jet crashed into an apartment complex in Smyrna, Ga., killing two civilians and injuring two others, including himself.

'Knight,' protestors join lawmakers

AUSTIN (AP) - The Legislature's back in town. So are those who want to give lawmakers a message. Any message. Almost every message.

The special session called by Gov. Bill Clements, and limited to workers' compensation reform, seems unlikely to take up the issue that drew some 200 motorcycle helmet law protesters to the Capitol.

Nor are lawmakers likely to consider repeal of the death penalty, as sought by a group Tuesday that chanted, "Hey hey, ho ho, Death Row has got to go."

And no action is expected from the Legislature to free Death Row inmate Clarence Brandley, whose case is pending before the Court of Criminal Appeals. But a protester's banner urged that action, too.

They came anyway, all part of the sideshow that accompanies the legislative process.

The knight - actually Garland mechanic Dennis R. Coker - was among the helmet law protesters.

Sweating beneath a slightly scratched and dented suit of armor rented from a costume shop, Coker wore a sign around his neck that declared: "This could be next if you do not stand up for your rights."

Arriving at 8 a.m., he worked his way through the four-story Capitol, trying to visit the offices of all 150 representatives and 31 senators. He said he wanted to tell them the other side of the helmet story - that helmets also can cause injuries and motorcyclists ought to be able to decide for themselves whether to wear them.

"I think I've covered almost every office in the Capitol," Coker said, although he was having trouble finding legislators who would listen. "I've been talking to their aides and their receptionists."

He was a popular prop for tourist photos, however. "I bet I've had at least 300 pictures taken today."

Among other early arrivals were members of a high school marching band, sporting their purple-and-white uniforms. In town for the University Interscholastic League competition, they posed for a photo on the Capitol steps and left. No protest slogans were heard.

In the House, several protesters were removed from the spectator gallery by security guards after they unfurled a banner saying, "Jobs not jails. Abolish the Death Penalty. All-People's Congress," while chanting, "Money for jobs, not for jails."

Members of the Texas High School Rodeo Association presented a jacket to House Speaker Gib Lewis and made him an honorary member.

But the motorcyclists made the most noise - in a demonstration that included several riders rumbering across the sidewalk outside the Capitol and hissing from the spectator gallery when the Senate roll call reached the name of Sen. Ted Lyon. Lyon, D-Rockwall, sponsored the helmet law.

If they hoped to change the statute, however, the governor who controls the legislative agenda spoiled their plans.

"That (repeal) is not going to happen," Clements, 72, declared. "I always wear my helmet when I ride."

When did that happen last? "About 50 years ago."
