

Fuel tanks concern county

By KAY PECK
Staff Writer

New regulations concerning underground fuel storage tanks were the subject of much discussion during Monday's regular meeting of the Deaf Smith County Commission.

County officials like many large quantities of fuel are buried in a number of buried, but not enclosed storage tanks. These tanks are buried at locations throughout the county. Mike Hull, field investigator for the Texas Water Commission, was on hand Monday to answer commissioners' questions concerning the effects new regulations will have on the storage tanks.

By Dec. 31, 1993, all fuel storage tanks must meet the new regulatory specifications required by the Environmental Protection Agency and the Texas Water Commission. Individual tanks will be subject to scheduled deadlines according to the age of the tank.

County officials indicated that none of the county tanks were in the category of 25 years or older or of unknown origin. Tanks in this category will be subject to inspection and must meet requirements by Dec. 31, 1989.

"If you have a fuel release, it's a serious problem," Hull said.

He mentioned one case in Amarillo where contamination was found in the soil around an underground fuel tank. Hull indicated that property owners have already spent $250,000 in attempting to decontaminate the soil, and the project is not yet completed.

In many, if not most, instances, all that will be required is that a monitoring system be placed in the pit where the tank or tanks are buried. A minimum of four monitor wells must be digged at the site with a well on each side of the pit containing the fuel storage. If more than one tank is placed in the same pit, monitor wells are required on each side of the pit, not for every tank in that pit.

One exception to this rule would be farmers with tanks of 1,000 gallons or less, Hull indicated. In this instance, farmers are given an exemption from monitoring requirements. Although monitoring is not required in this instance, Hull was careful to point out that farmers would still be responsible for any contamination caused by their fuel storage.

Monitor wells must meet some very stringent specifications, including locking caps to prevent the pipe from being mistaken for a filling inlet to the tank. Each well must be from 18 to 24 inches deeper than the depth of the fuel tank.

Only certified water or monitoring well drillers are permitted to drill the required test wells, Hull said. A property owner, or a county worker, would not be allowed to dig a monitor well.

"Seems to me a hole is a hole, no matter who digs it," said County Commissioner Johnny Latham (Precinct 4).

Hull mentioned several examples of problems caused by unqualified individuals digging monitor wells.

"If it's not done right, we make them do it over," Hull said.

Something as simple as using WD 40 as a lubricant while digging can cause false readings in the finished monitor well. The well must also be constructed so that it limits the risk of overflow contamination through the monitor hole itself.

Once the monitoring system is in place, tank owners must then begin the process of determining if there

Mike Hull, field investigator for the Texas Water Commission, was on hand Monday at the Deaf Smith County Commissioners meeting. Hull answered a number of questions concerning the effects of newly implemented regulations on underground fuel tanks.

UWDSC nears $100,000 mark

The campaign drive for the United Way of Deaf Smith County inched slowly upward this past week as total contributions and pledges climbed to $97,477 or 83 percent of the goal of $117,000.

The formal campaign period ended two weeks ago, but the slow return of prospect cards caused the UW board to call for a mop-up drive. The total is at about the same stage as last year's fund-raising drive.

"It's frustrating when we know a lot of contributions are still out there, but we have to realize that the same thing happens each year," said Dr. Trow Mims, campaign chairman. "Some volunteers have not made their contacts yet, and some businesses have simply put it off for one reason or another."

Boyd Foster, UW president, urged volunteers to complete their contacts this week, or follow their cards that have been distributed.

Of the 10 divisions formed for the fund-raising effort, all but three are now past the 83 percent mark in reaching their respective goals.

The division totals and percentage of their goals are: Packwater, $22,612 (103%); Special Services, $14,966 (91%); Golden Age, $9,467 (91%); Whiteface East, $2,799 (86%); Corporate Gifts, $5,008 (84%); Agriculture, $4,106 (83%); Professional, $5,370 (67%); Major, $2,813 (67%); Whiteface West, $1,630 (54%).

Link praises King's Manor

Members of the King's Manor Founders Association were congratulated for their accomplishments and challenged to not be afraid to dream at the group's 24th annual Founder's Dinner held last Thursday.

Dr. W.C. Link, president emeritus of McKendree Village, a retirement center in Hermitage, Tenn., told the 250 persons in attendance that "As King's Manor provides a ministry of care and service to so many people as a result of dreams of earlier years, so King's Manor must continue to set goals and dream dreams, to build on the present as we find additional ways to serve people and their needs."

Bill Bookout, chairman of the King's Manor board of trustees, presented founder donor recognition to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vogel and Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Trotter. Life memberships were awarded to Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Allison, Mr. W.V. Dell, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Parks, Mrs. Ruby K. Sears, and Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Walker.

Mark Hicks was elected president of the Founder's Association for the coming year. Other new officers include Jeff Brown, vice president; Joan Bookout, secretary-treasurer; and John Bunch and Johnny Trotter, directors, replacing board members B.F. Cain and Wanda Hoover.

Ag paper study proposed

By SPEEDY NEUMAN
Editor/Publisher

Deaf Smith and area farmers could be harvesting grain sorghum residues as a cash crop and producing pulp for making paper in the next few years if a projected research project for a new industry materializes.

Ken Rogers, a past president of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce and ex-chairman of the industrial development committee, invited interested persons to an informational meeting on the project here Saturday.

"This offers more potential for economic development in this area than any idea that has come along in years," said Rogers. "If it proves to be economically feasible, we can get this up and running faster than anything I have ever looked at. If it's not feasible, we can drop it without making a large investment."

Dr. Patrick L. Odell, Baylor professor of mathematics, explained the research he had done, starting in the early 1970s, with agricultural residue pulp. Chris Peterson, a paper technology expert from the University of Miami of Ohio, outlined the advantages and disadvantages of the project.

Rogers, who had presented the idea to the Hereford Industrial Foundation, announced Saturday the HIF board had agreed to fund up to $8,000 for updating the study on ag residue paper pulp. Rogers believes such an industry could return about $50 million to farmers in the Deaf Smith, Parmer and Castro area.

Odell explained that his research on making paper from crop residues started in 1973. He first made paper from Johnson grass, then grain sorghum residues. He also worked with Quaker Oats engineers on the study of extracting the chemical furfural from the crop residues.

One of the largest uses for furfural is as a selective agent for lubricating oils. Furfural alcohol is used in foundries as a sand mold binder for making castings. Polymed, a furfural product, is used in making rubber rollers, shoe soles, golf balls and many other products.

Samples of paper made from grain sorghum stalks were shown at the meeting here Saturday afternoon in Hereford State Bank. Dr. Odell visualizes a number of digesters located around the area. The digesters would convert the crop stubble to a pulp, which could be shipped to a paper mill, or a paper plant could be built in the area.

Peterson, who gave a brief history of the pulp and paper industry, pointed out that the industry now ranks fifth in dollar volume. The U.S. produced over 70 million tons of paper last year.

The technology for making paper from ag residues is all in place, said Peterson. Not much is being done in the U.S. but countries where there is a shortage of timber are actively producing paper from crop residues.

Peterson said all the raw materials for the proposed project are in this area except for digesters to make the pulp, or paper mills to produce the paper. A key point in the study of the project would be to develop a market niche, said Peterson.

The big key to the opportunity, of course, is how much farmers would be paid for the pulp materials. The time, trouble and expense of harvesting, plus transportation costs, would determine response.

Rogers told the group of about 20 citizens here Saturday that further study would get underway on the proposed industry, and another meeting would be called when more information is available.

Some of the local advantages for such an industry, according to Peterson, include: Quantities of byproduct raw material—sorghum, corn stubble and wheat straw presently under-utilized; available land and infrastructure including transportation; ground water supply adequate to supply operation with modern water conservation technology; critical mass of talented labor available; large quantities of under-utilized bio-manure could be used to produce energy supply; effluent treatment by land application seems feasible in dryland farming areas.

Some of the disadvantages: Uncertainty as to market for pulp product or paper; uncertainty as to costs; present industry acceptance of non-wood pulps unknown; present industry pre-occupied with other issues, including recycling of paper; current level of research on use of non-wood fibers is not on raw materials locally available; predicted shortages of pulp for paper have not materialized.

While the demand for trees and timber is huge and expanding, said Dr. Odell, no shortage has materialized. About half of all the timber cut worldwide is burned to cook food or to warm homes. Development of alternative sources of raw materials would be a relief for both the paper and lumber industries, conserving forests for their beauty and recreational values, while catching up on the vast tree planting programs.

Accompanying Dr. Odell and Peterson to the meeting was Dovie Dorsett, professor of manufacturing at Baylor University. Rogers explained that he became interested in the proposal after a chance meeting and conversation with Dr. Odell while attending a meeting at Baylor.

Murphey wins football contest

Jackie Murphey missed just three games and was closest on the Berger vs. Hereford tie-breaker to claim first place in last week's Hereford Brand Football Contest.

Murphey will win $25 in Hereford Bucks for coming closest on the tie-breaker score among four persons who missed just three games.

Claiming second prize of $15 in Hereford Bucks is Elvis Davis of Hereford. Winning third place and $10 in Hereford Bucks was Linda Peace of Hereford. Mary Cramer also missed three games but was a little farther off on the tie-breaker.

There were 13 contestants who missed just four games. All contestants were given credit for the "Vandal" High Palo Duro tie.

Contestants have just two more weeks to qualify for the grand prize game coming up next week. Persons who have placed during the season will be eligible for the grand prize of $100 in Hereford Bucks.

The games for this week's contest appear in today's Brand.

Boatwright visit scheduled today

Ken Boatwright, former director of the Seed and Grain Warehouse division for the Texas Department of Agriculture and a Republican candidate for the ag commissioner's post, will visit Hereford for a reception at 6 p.m. today at the Hereford Country Club.

Boatwright, 39, lives in Hamilton and has 16 years experience with TDA. For the past six years, he has been the division's program director.

"The time that I spent as a director allowed me to work closely on legislative matters, agricultural issues and administration of large programs," Boatwright said. "I also relied heavily on my ag background to make many decisions."

Boatwright said he feels the race will go beyond partisan politics "because the people in agriculture are ready for a change and will unite behind one candidate."

The public is invited to attend the reception today.

Ag paper discussion

Dr. Pat Odell of Baylor, Eldred Brown and Ken Rogers were among a group of citizens discussing the possibility of a new industry in Deaf Smith County during a Saturday afternoon meeting at Hereford State Bank. Rogers, active in the chamber's industrial development work, called the session to discuss the potential of making paper from milo, corn and wheat stubble. The Hereford Industrial Foundation will help fund further study of the project.

Strenuous exercise not recommended

A recent survey by the National Center for Health Statistics indicates that we are a nation of overweight people who hate to exercise. The statistics show that 55.8 percent of all Americans over the age of 18 years are overweight. Our national health problem with obesity is compounded by the fact that only 40 percent of Americans have a well-planned, scheduled exercise program.

The reason cited by some health professionals for why many of us do not continue with a formal exercise program is that it does not fit into the American lifestyle, which includes busy schedules that preclude a time-consuming exercise program.

CHOLESTEROL PORT WASHINGTON, N.Y.--(AP) - Cholesterol is the No.1 food issue among consumers this year, according to The NPD Group's Fourth Annual Report on National Eating Trends, which surveys consumer eating patterns and attitudes.

Other findings:
- Nearly half of all meals purchased at a restaurant are consumed outside of the restaurant - up from one-third of all purchases in 1983.
- The hottest trend in restaurants today is the "drive-thru" window, which is now used four times more often than restaurant delivery services.
- Some 44 percent of all main meals made at home include at least one completely homemade item.
- Americans carry nearly as many meals from home as they purchase lunches at restaurants.

Centers clients nationwide to add Health Walk, a moderate walking activity, to their weight loss program. "Within 30 minutes of walking, stored fat is burned for energy," said Dr. Sutkamp. "This is not only helpful for weight loss, but it also helps people get over stubborn weight plateaus."

Our society has been further removed from pursuing an ongoing exercise program by observing the lifestyles of some public figures, who seem to be saying that in order to condition our bodies effectively, we have to spend money on health clubs and high-tech health gear-not to mention pounding and pummeling our bodies into shape. "Not so," said Jerry Sutkamp, M.D., President of the American Society of Bariatric Physicians, and National Medical Director of Physicians Weight Loss Centers of America, Inc.

"What people don't realize," said Dr. Sutkamp, "is that a simple walking activity is ideal for people interested in losing weight. This moderate activity is so effective for weight loss, that we now are advising Physicians Weight Loss

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After reading your advice to housewives it was obvious that you have a lot to learn about repairmen. Your advice to keep dogs locked up when repairmen come in is not only ignorant but dangerous.

I had a big black springer spaniel who was so smart I sometimes thought he had the brain of a human. He was a gentle dog, but the size of him frightened a lot of people. "Sparky" knew how to get the door open from the outside and I always left it unlocked so he could come and go at will.

When friends or family members would drop by, Sparky stayed outside, but when a repair person or salesman appeared at the door he would come right in and sit between the stranger and me.

One afternoon a man came by to fix my washer-dryer. He worked for about 30 minutes and then came in the kitchen where I was canning and asked for a cold drink. Like a flash, Sparky was in the house. He positioned himself between the man and me, and for some unknown reason began to growl and show his teeth. The man quickly said, "Forget the drink. I'm just about finished." In less than three minutes he was gone.

I now know that Sparky sensed something was wrong. He came in the house to protect me. After I thought about it, I didn't like the look on that man's face when he asked for a cold drink.

Please, Ann, don't tell housewives to lock up their dogs when repair people come in. Those are the times when dogs can be most useful. -- Palo Alto

DEAR PAL: Your letter certainly proves that there are two sides to every story. When a reader complained about how repair people get snapped at and bitten by family pets, I agreed that they should be kept locked up. But now I'm not so sure. Readers? Where do you stand?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read with interest your letter from "XXX" who stated that she has been sexually abused by her stepfather for the past seven years.

As a police investigator of sexual assaults on children, I can tell you that this child will continue to struggle with conflicts between her own guilt and her anger toward her stepfather, along with a fear of destroying her mother's marriage. Your advice to seek therapy was excellent. I hope she listens.

The girl's stepfather is a pedophile, and we now know that pedophiles do not stop when confronted. They continue to sexually abuse until they are forced to stop by the judicial system.

This individual has almost certainly abused other children. The pedophilic condition is described as being similar to that of an alcoholic. He may come to a point in therapy where he is no longer abusing but will always be a pedophile.

While sexual abuse of children has for years been considered "the family secret," you need to emphasize repeatedly to your readers the incest and sexual assault on children are felonies and deserve to be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law. Years of dealing with damaged victims has convinced me that the only way they can become well-adjusted adults is by finding the courage to come forward and make a full report to law enforcement and social service agencies. Please, Ann, help us to get this message across to your readers. -- Walt Parsons, Detective, Investigations Division, Arvada Police Department, Arvada, Colo.

DEAR WALT PARSONS: You got the message across and I thank you.

Wildlife art topic of study club program

Ken Rogers presented a program on wildlife art when La Madre Study Club met Nov. 9 at the Oak Tree. Rogers gave historical background on wildlife art and told of the different duck stamp prints.

Rogers mentioned that each year the federal duck stamp goes up in value. He told of the different artists who paint the ducks and explained the duck stamps on hunting license. He showed a collection of pheasant prints reproduced from a book in 1872 and gave proper framing methods.

Lucy Rogers served as hostess and roll call was answered by "I collect..." Carolyn Baxter, president, conducted the business meeting and Sharon Hodges sent a letter asking to become inactive for the remainder of this year.

The yearbook committee reported that the next meeting will be the Christmas party scheduled for Dec. 4 in the home of Merle Clark.

Georgia Sparks and Mary Herring gave a report on the 20th Annual Christmas Tour of Homes scheduled for Dec. 3. Homes for the tour will be Jan and Ron Weishaar, 102 Rio Vista; Elizabeth and Herb Vogel, 415 19th; and Cindy and Bill Cole, Dimmitt Highway. Refreshments will be served at the Oak Tree at 607 Main Street.

Members present were Joyce Allred, Baxter, Francyne Brownlow, Clark, Herring, Hodges, Betty Lady, Barbara Manning, Gladys Merritt, Lavon Nieman, Bettye Owen, Nancy Patzold, Susan Robbins, Lucy Rogers, Tricia Sims, Mysedia Smith, Sparks, Betty Taylor Marline Watson, Mary Beth White, and Judy Williams.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Engelbert Humperdinck will appeal a judge's dismissal of his $50 million lawsuit against The National Enquirer for its report that the mother of the singer's daughter fears he had the AIDS virus. Robert Rotstein, an attorney for the singer, said Monday the U.S. District Court lawsuit was dismissed last week but Humperdinck would appeal. Humperdinck has tested negative for the virus, Rotstein said.

Vehicles on display

Navarrow Mariscal, a fifth grader at Bluebonnet school, is showing his collection of miniature and larger vehicles at the Deaf Smith County Library this month. He has been collecting toy cars, trucks, race cars, airplanes, road graders, army vehicles, ect. for the past two years.

The sea cucumber, although it looks very much like a garden cucumber, is actually an aquatic animal.

DIETARY GUIDELINES FOR INFANTS

CHICAGO (AP) - "Dietary Guidelines for Infants" is a free brochure from Gerber Products, based on statements by the American Academy of Pediatrics' Committee on Nutrition.

Each section of the booklet tells why infant needs are different from adults and provides dietary information for babies. Among the recommendations: don't restrict fat and cholesterol too much; don't overdo high-fiber foods.

Dr. Guy Johnson, director of infant nutrition for Gerber, says avoiding fat and cholesterol is becoming more popular among health-conscious adults, but "it may be too restrictive for rapidly growing babies who need two and one-half times more calories per day, pound for pound, than adults."

The booklet also reminds parents that babies are individuals: "Ask your doctor for specific feeding recommendations for your baby."

Hints from Heloise

WINTER FEEDING

Dear Heloise: I read with interest a column concerning the feeding of birds in the winter. We do this also and I have a money-saving hint.

In the summer, when we eat lots of melons, I save and clean all the seeds and put them in the freezer. When winter comes, the birds just love them, especially the cardinals.

I must admit that this chore is a little messy. I remove all the membranes from the seeds, dry them in the oven or microwave, seal them in a plastic jar and freeze them.

They soon accumulate and, best of all, they are free. — Mrs. Richard Hoggatt, Indianapolis, Ind.

HOLIDAY PREPARATIONS

Dear Readers: I'd like to share some of my favorite holiday ideas and recipes with you, so I have a special offer. Send $2 and a stamped (45 cents), self-addressed, legal-sized envelope to Heloise/Holiday, P.O. Box 19765, Irvine, CA 92713, and I'll send you two pamphlets, Heloise's Holiday Hints and Heloise's New Holiday Recipe Collection. — Heloise

Taste the Arts in November scheduled

Over the past six years, Taste the Arts has been established as a preholiday season tradition in Amarillo.
The seventh edition, scheduled for Saturday Nov. 18 at Westgate
Mall will help make the tradition even stronger.
"We're thrilled at the participation this year," Sharon E. White, chair of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce's Arts Committee said.
"This is the largest ever. We'll have 23 performing groups and eleven displays. The first year, there were only 10 groups."

The idea behind Taste the Arts is to give the public a glimpse at a variety of arts programs in Amarillo; to whet their appetite. "There are people who are particular fans of only one or two art forms," Ms.
White said. "That's fine. But we think people need to know what else is going on. It helps broaden the support base."
What's going on this year
includes theatre, dance, puppetry, mimes, choruses from area schools and of course, the displays. "This is an opportunity for those in the non-performing arts to show off their talents, in painting, photography and dozens of other ways," Ms.

White observed.
The Taste the Arts show will run from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Nov. 18 at Westgate. All performances will be free and balloons will be given to the youngsters.

Post-nuptial shower honors Hall

Tyna Hall, who recently married Don Hall, was honored with a post-nuptial shower Saturday afternoon in the home of Nance Perrin, 1818 Plains.

Receiving guests, along with the honoree, were mothers of the bridal couple, Lois Moon of Brownfield and Kay Hall. Hostesses presented corsages to the honoree, mothers, and grandmother of the bridegroom, Mrs. Tom Hall. Mr. Hall also attended the shower.

Guests were invited to the refreshment table where a variety of sweets and fingers sandwiches, hot tea and coffee were served by Wanda Hoover.

The table was covered with an ecru crocheted cloth over mauve and centered with an arrangement of mauve and blue flowers. Also, appointing the table were mauve tapers in crystal holders, which flanked the centerpiece, powder and crystal appointments, and mauve and blue napkins.

Special guests included four of the honoree's friends, Susan Bruns and Lora Underwood of Amarillo, Nansi Pieper of Carlsbad, N.M. and Renee Winn of San Angelo.

Relatives of the groom attending included several aunts, Barbara Womble and Jo Reynolds of Amarillo and Marn Tyler and Vel Simpson of Hereford. The groom's sister, Rhonda Nieman of Lubbock, was also a special guest as was his sister-in-law, Lori Hall.

Hostesses included Perrin, Hoover, Jean Lyman, Pat Graham, Joy Stagner, Mary Duggan, Connie McGill, Judy Mitts, Rosalia Gilbreath, Ann Washington, Shirley Easterwood and Lavon Nieman.

Fire safety topic of program

The Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post #4818 met in regular session Nov. 6 with Jay Spain giving a slide presentation and talk on fire safety. Betty Boggs, safety chairman, presented Spain with an engraved appreciation plaque for the Fire Department.

Marta Williams presided over the meeting after a supper for VFW and Auxiliary members.

Arrangements were made for the purchase of a stuffed toy to be given to the state children's center. The toys are to be taken to the District 13 Convention in Dimmitt Nov. 18-19.

There will also be a box of toiletries from each auxiliary in District 13 to go to the Veterans Hospital in Amarillo.

Plans were made for an auction sale on Friday, Dec. 8, with a free chili supper preceding the sale. Auxiliary members are selling tickets for a king size quilt as the door prize.

The next meeting is scheduled for Dec. 4, at 7:30 p.m. A supper will precede the meeting at 6:30 p.m.

Members present were Darleen Carroll, Anna Conklin, Maisie Heath, Boggs, Williams, Jo Irlbeck, Erma Loving, Essie Martin, Ruth Morris, Erma Murphey, Terrye Rhyne, Sadie Shaw, Greta Short, Ruth Stehem, Doris Wilson and Marie Goheen.
