SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) - The nuclear-powered Galileo probe raced across space today on its long voyage to Jupiter, while the five orbiting Atlantis astronauts who released it turned their attention to other experiments.

Zipping along at 10,000 mph, the probe was expected to travel more than 71,000 miles from Earth by early this morning, NASA said. Galileo was deployed Wednesday night about six hours after the space shuttle thundered into orbit.

"Galileo is on its way to another world," Atlantis commander Don Williams said shortly after the 6,700-pound probe was gently ejected from the shuttle's cargo bay by springs.

The shuttle crew reported a few problems aboard Atlantis with part of a cooling system that automatically shut down.

In a worst-case scenario, the scheduled five-day mission could be cut, but flight director Ron Dittemore said Wednesday night that it would be studied further in the next day or so before any decision can be made.

The successful deployment of Galileo occurred as planned at 6:15 p.m. CDT over the Gulf of Mexico near Brownsville.

"Galileo looks absolutely super," radioed mission specialist Shannon Lucid, who was in charge of the deployment. "It's too bad you all can't be here to see it."

After Williams and pilot Mike McCulley maneuvered the shuttle a safe distance away, a two-stage rocket attached to the probe fired the initial stage. The second "burn" occurred about five minutes later, and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said both were successful.

"It achieved earth-escape velocity and is now heading out-bound toward the sun," Mission Control commentator Brian Welch said Wednesday night. A spacecraft can escape the Earth's gravity when traveling faster than 25,000 mph.

Shortly after 8 p.m. CDT, Mission Control reported that the two-stage rocket and the probe had separated, and that Galileo was "on its own."

Galileo is powered by two electrical generators that are fueled by highly radioactive plutonium. Anti-nuclear activists opposed the use of plutonium but lost a lawsuit to block the launch.

Although Jupiter is the probe's destination, Galileo also will swing around Venus, the Earth and sun during its 2.4-billion-mile journey. Gravity from Earth and Venus will help the spacecraft gain momentum for its trip.

During the six-year voyage, Galileo also will provide the first close-up data about asteroids, passing within 600 miles of Gaspra and Ida.

Red Cross: helpers need help

By KAY PECK Staff Writer

Three Hereford families had food last night thanks to the Red Cross.

When those families were driven from their home by an early-morning fire Wednesday, the Red Cross was there to help.

Thousands of Californians, victims of Tuesday's killer earthquake, have food and shelter because of the American Red Cross. Nearly eight million meals were served to victims of Hurricane Hugo which recently struck the Caribbean and parts of the United States' east coast, all thanks to the American Red Cross.

Whether the disaster is next door or a continent away, the Red Cross is there to help.

Right now, the helpers need help.

"What needs to be done (to assist disaster victims) has already been done. Now we need the money to pay for it," said Betty Henson, executive director for the Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Between Hurricane Hugo, Hurricane Jerry and the earthquake in California, Red Cross resources have been stretched painfully thin in recent weeks. Nationwide, the organization is requesting the donation of funds to pay for the disaster relief which has already been given and which will be (unfortunately and unavoidably) required in the future.

"The thing we need most is money," Henson said.

Although Red Cross chapters across the country make use of food, clothing and other donated items, when disasters are "way off" it is more efficient to donate money, Henson said.

Anyone wishing to make a donation to the American Red Cross can contact Henson at 364-3761 or drop by the local chapter house at 224 S. Main.

When money is needed but goods are what's available the Red Cross has a way of dealing with that as well. Proceeds from a garage sale planned for this weekend will go to help replenish Red Cross coffers.

The garage sale will be held at the local Red Cross chapter house on South Main.

It is said that one man's trash may be another man's treasure, hence the continued success of garage sales. In this instance, it may also be a third man's salvation.

In addition to money and goods, the Red Cross is continually in need of volunteers. While the Deaf Smith County chapter needs assistance with various projects, volunteers are also required to assist at massive disasters such as California's recent earthquake.

Before an individual can qualify as a Red Cross disaster volunteer, one must undergo about two days of specific training. These training sessions are held in the area on a regular basis with the next course scheduled this weekend in Amarillo.

If a person is willing to go to a disaster scene (the Red Cross sent 746 mainlanders to the Caribbean to assist 340 local volunteers in the wake of Hugo), he must also be able to commit to a specified period of time. This is normally between two and three weeks.

Anyone interested in becoming a qualified volunteer should contact Henson at the Red Cross chapter house.

Bay area still shaky after new shocks

By ROBERT DVORCHAK AP National Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Three strong aftershocks from this week's catastrophic earthquake rattled Northern California today as relief poured into the devastated Bay area from throughout the world.

Workers dug into a mile-long slab of collapsed freeway with fading hopes that anyone might be alive. The quake killed more than 270 people, most in the highway cave-in.

An aftershock that measured 5.0 on the Richter scale struck at 3:15 a.m. and was centered near Watsonville and about 10 miles south of Santa Cruz, according to the state Office of Emergency Services.

"It was real strong," said Kelly Johnston, an admitting clerk at AMI Community Hospital in Santa Cruz. "I ran to the doorway. Most people were just standing there frozen."

Two other tremors in the area measured 4.5. The aftershocks caused the damaged steeple of a church in Watsonville to crash to the ground, and some further damage to buildings in Santa Cruz, near the epicenter of Tuesday's quake, state officials said.

As of early today, more than 1,400 aftershocks had been recorded. The strongest, 5.2 on the Richter scale, struck within 40 minutes of initial jolt, according the United States Geological Survey.

An earthquake of 4 on the Richter scale can cause moderate damage and a magnitude 5 quake can cause considerable damage.

Relief poured into the devastated Bay area from throughout the world today, while workers dug into a mile-long slab of collapsed freeway with fading hopes that anyone might be alive.

Gov. George Deukmejian demanded an investigation into the collapse of Interstate 880 in Oakland, saying it should have been built to withstand the devastating force of Tuesday's earthquake.

The collapse "raises troubling questions for the entire state in terms of the construction of our freeways," Oakland Mayor Lionel Wilson said.

Largely because of the collapse of I-880, known as the Nimitz Freeway, the quake was the second deadliest in U.S. history. It killed an estimated 270 people - 250 of them in the rubble of the Nimitz - and crippled transportation, electric power and commerce in the nation's fourth largest metropolitan area.

Besides the commuters crushed in the freeway collapse, at least 21 people died in San Francisco, San Mateo, Santa Clara and Santa Cruz counties. State officials said 1,400 people were injured throughout the Bay area, although hospitals said they treated 2,750 people, many for chest pains.

San Francisco Mayor Art Agnos said the quake caused $2 billion worth of destruction in his city alone.

President Bush, sharply criticized in South Carolina for his response to Hurricane Hugo, quickly declared the San Francisco region a disaster area and directed an initial $273 million in relief efforts. White House officials said he would tour the area, probably Friday or Saturday.

More relief began to flow in from places as far afield as South Carolina, Japan and Great Britain. Israel and France offered to send disaster teams experienced in finding victims trapped beneath wreckage.

Officials in Los Alamos, N.M., dispatched a device used to locate survivors of last year's earthquake in Soviet Armenia.

Hope was fading, however, that anyone would be found alive beneath the devastation in San Francisco's Marina district or under the crushing weight of I-880.

In the affluent waterside Marina district, two bodies were spotted in the rubble of a four-story apartment building. Their hands were clutched in an embrace, said Dr. Charles Saunders of the city Health Department.

"There were no signs of life," he said. "It's very unlikely anyone else will be found alive."

Across San Francisco Bay in Oakland, police briefly raised hopes with the report that a survivor was heard crying out from within the tons of steel and concrete that had been the Nimitz Freeway.

That report was later dismissed as erroneous by Oakland police Capt. Jim Hahn, who attributed it to a garbled communication between officers.

By The Associated Press Summary of developments related to the earthquake that hit Northern California:

CASUALTIES
At least 270 people feared dead, with 250 believed killed in Oakland when the upper level of Interstate 880 collapsed on the lower level.

State officials put the number injured at 1,400, but a state hospital association spokesman said 2,750 people were treated for quake-related complaints. Only 250 were hospitalized.

THE QUAKE AND AFTERSHOCKS
Hundreds of aftershocks, including one registering 4.5 on the Richter scale, were recorded Wednesday. The earthquake hit at 5:04 p.m. PDT Tuesday, and lasted 15 seconds. It registered 6.9 on the Richter scale, and was centered on the San Andreas Fault 10 miles northeast of Santa Cruz and 50 miles southeast of San Francisco. It affected seven northern California counties.

DAMAGE
Mayor Art Agnos estimated damage to San Francisco city and county alone at $2 billion. Hundreds of buildings along 100 miles of the San Andreas Fault were either heavily damaged or destroyed. In Santa Cruz, 75 miles south of San Francisco, damage was put at $350 million.

A section of the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge and two spans near Santa Cruz were damaged. Officials said it would be two to three weeks before the Bay Bridge reopened. Roads in several areas were cracked, and gas and power lines were severed, starting fires.

In Oakland, where the historic Amtrak passenger terminal probably will have to be torn down, damage was estimated at $10 million.

One fire in San Francisco's Marina section on Tuesday destroyed 12 apartment buildings; another fire on Tuesday damaged downtown Berkeley.

Power, telephone, water and other services were disrupted for 1 million people overall; 300,000 customers remained without electrical power Wednesday evening.

BAKFI, the Bay Area Rapid Transit subway system, reopened and then closed again when a train operator reported a leak in the tube beneath the bay.

LOOTING
About 50 people were arrested in San Francisco for looting. Some looting also was reported in Los Gatos, a town between San Jose and Santa Cruz.

FEDERAL ASSISTANCE
President Bush signed a disaster relief declaration for seven Bay-area counties, and authorized an initial $273 million. Vice President Dan Quayle and Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner toured the area by helicopter.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency set up a center in Washington and a disaster field office at the Presidio, an Army post in San Francisco. Bush, who intended to tour the devastated area by the weekend, paid a surprise, morale-boosting visit to the Washington center.

WORLD REACTION
The Soviet Union made an unprecedented offer of relief aid and President Mikhail S. Gorbachev sent condolences in a telegram to Bush.

The Philippines, Japan, France, Britain, Switzerland and several other nations also offered aid.

Pope John Paul II was "deeply saddened" and praying for the victims.

WORLD SERIES
Baseball Commissioner Fay Vincent announced that the World Series between the Oakland Athletics and San Francisco Giants will resume Tuesday at Candlestick Park, where the quake hit as Game 3 was about to be played. Game 4 and, if necessary, Game 5 will be played in San Francisco, too.

Hereford Bull

By Speedy Nieman

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says music had a nice upbeat in the old days, but now it sounds like the musicians are being beat up.

Gene Dow, the editor down at Seminole tells about the time his pastor invited the children to come forward for the children's sermon. After they had seated themselves on the chancel steps, he announced he was going to talk about frogs. He asked the group, "When I say 'frog', what's the first thing that comes to your mind?"

Promptly, one little boy answered, "God." Surprised, the pastor asked, "Why do you think about God when I say 'frog'?"

"Cause I know you didn't bring us down here to talk about frogs," replied the boy.

Coach Don Cumpton has been one of our favorite persons since we first got to know him as an assistant football coach and track coach in the early '70s. His enthusiasm is contagious and, we believe, it is a major reason for his success on the gridiron.

Cumpton was the speaker for a Hereford Board of Realtors meeting this week and he outlined the good things about the Hereford school system. Our schools have some problems, but a lot of school districts would like to trade their problems for ours.

Cumpton is prejudiced, of course, but he believes that athletics and other extracurricular activities--where a student has to make some sacrifices--are more necessary than ever in today's society. Belonging to teams and organizations make it easier for students to say "no" to the temptations they are facing. Values are learned that are not presented in the classroom.

The Hereford athletic director also believes that this community is blessed with supportive parents, and that makes a world of difference in the educational process.

Cumpton did get around to talking specifically about athletic programs in his talk. He pointed to the success of our state-ranked teams in volleyball, girls' cross country and tennis. And the ever-optimistic coach said fans shouldn't give up on the Whiteface football team... the Herd is still hustling to get into the playoffs!

And, speaking of football, the Herd travels to Lubbock Saturday for a game with Lubbock Dunbar.

Due to scheduling problems, the Mighty Maroon Band will miss the game because of a contest appearance that day. That makes it more vital than ever that Herd fans follow the team to Lubbock and boost the Whitefaces to victory!

Medicaid labeled 'poor stepchild'

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Medicaid safety net has so many holes it lets nearly half of America's poor children slip through, jeopardizing the health of millions of young people, a children's hospital group said today.

"After 25 years of public neglect, Medicaid is nothing short of Uncle Sam's poor stepchild," said Jon E. Vice, chairman of the National Association of Children's Hospitals and Related Institutions.

"For too many children, it is not better medicine that is needed to improve their health, but better politics," said Vice.

The group said the federal-state health care system should be reformed to ensure coverage for all children and pregnant women to 185 percent of the federal poverty level, allow those with higher incomes to buy into Medicaid, and expand benefits for eligible children.

Also, it said enrollment procedures should be eased and doctor reimbursements should be raised.

The changes would cost the federal government and the states $10 billion and would add coverage for 7.5 million of the nation's estimated 11 million uninsured children. In fiscal 1988, the federal government spent $30 billion and the states spent $20 billion on Medicaid.

"There is no national health policy for children," said Vice, president of Children's Hospital of Wisconsin. "For the elderly, we have a national policy which says 'there shall be access' - and we call it Medicare.

"The closest thing we have for children is the Medicaid program - a program primarily intended to help the poor, but currently reaching only half of all poor children in this country."

A report released by the association said fewer than half of the nation's children living in poverty are covered by Medicaid.

Income limits vary from state to state. This year, an average income of $407 per month - about 48 percent of the federal poverty level - disqualifies a family of three from Medicaid, the report said. In Alabama, the limit for a family of three is $118 per month. Ten states deny Medicaid coverage to children who live with two parents, regardless of income.

Many children who are eligible don't receive benefits because parents are unable to complete the complicated application and documentation forms, the report said.

Often, children on Medicaid can't get care because reimbursement rates for physicians are so low it's hard to find one who will take on a Medicaid patient. Almost a quarter of the states pay less than half the amount Medicare allows for a typical office visit, the report said.

Medicaid payment shortfalls for health care facilities hit children's hospitals particularly hard because these institutions serve a disproportionate share of the Medicaid population, the report said.

"Skimping on Medicaid for children is shortsighted public policy," said association President Robert H. Sweeney, explaining that short-term savings from Medicaid cuts later turn into huge costs in care for chronic conditions.

"In this sense, Medicaid coverage for children may be among our best investments in poverty prevention for adults," he said.

White 'looking forward' to debates in governor's race

AUSTIN (AP) - It appears former Democratic Gov. Mark White is nearing a decision on a comeback bid.

Chiding the two announced Democratic candidates for governor, White says he looks forward to "getting into debates on the issues" and that he will announce his political plans soon.

In an interview with The Dallas Morning News published Wednesday, White had harsh words for both of his potential primary rivals, state Treasurer Ann Richards and Attorney General Jim Mattox.

"They're sitting over there in a name-calling contest, and I think the people of Texas deserve better," White said. "We need to be out there talking about the issues that people are concerned about and the new ideas with which we will deal with those issues."

"That's what I'm looking forward to at the time of the announcement - of getting into debates over the issues."

Speaking to a University of Texas audience Tuesday night, White said he expects to announce his political plans "probably toward the end of this month or the beginning of the next."

White said education would be the top issue in the upcoming election, and he touted his role in passage of the 1984 school reforms that included teacher testing and the no-pass, no-play athletics rules.

White called the gubernatorial candidates in both parties "Johnny-come-latelys when it comes to this issue. They weren't here on the first day of the battle and they haven't been there since."

In other political developments: Ms. Richards joined Mattox in accepting a new code of campaign ethics proposed by Democratic Party county chairmen that would have candidates sticking to issues and avoiding personal attacks.

The party officials plan to form a special monitoring committee to watch over conduct of Democrats seeking statewide office. Participating candidates who go beyond the boundaries of fair campaigning would be publicly reprimanded.

Monte Williams, a spokesman for Ms. Richards, said the treasurer, too, accepts. "Not only will we sign it (the pledge), we've been doing it all along," he said.

Houston businessman Rob Mosbacher said he's received the endorsement of more than 2,000 Republicans in his bid for lieutenant governor.

Among those signing on, Mosbacher said, are GOP National Committee members Ernie Angelo of Midland and Penny Butler of Houston.

Two Democrats - Comptroller Bob Bullock and state Sen. Chet Edwards - are seeking their party's nomination for the post.

Changes promised in E. Germany

BERLIN (AP) - East Germany's new leader, 52-year-old Egon Krenz, promised a "new course" in a speech to the nation but indicated the ruling Communists have no intention of allowing unofficial opposition groups a say in reforms.

The Communist Party's governing Central Committee named Krenz Wednesday to succeed his hard-line mentor, Erich Honecker, who had ruled the country for 18 years and overseen construction of the Berlin Wall.

Honecker, 77, said he stepped down because of health reasons, but rising public dissatisfaction with his authoritarian rule had fueled pressure for his resignation.

Tens of thousands of East Germans have fled to the West this year and the country's largest street protests since 1953 broke out this month.

Krenz, who took over as party chief, head of state and head of the military, is the youngest member of the Politburo. He had long been considered Honecker's heir apparent.

Addressing East Germans a few hours after his elevation, Krenz called discussion of change important and said the ruling party "would initiate a new course."

"We all sense and recognize the great opportunity to determine, in dialogue with all the citizens of our country, a new socialist course," Krenz said in the hour-long speech carried by state-run television.

But he also stressed that "without the Communist Party there would be no German Democratic Republic" and indicated he does not intend to enter a dialogue with opposition groups agitating for a more open society, for free elections and a free press.

"Our society already has enough democratic forums in which different interests from various parts of the population" can express themselves, Krenz said.

Reinhardt Schultz, a founder of New Forum, the country's largest pro-democracy group, said: "I don't think that the protest movement will settle for a few cosmetic changes."

The government has refused to register New Forum.

The far-left Greens Party in West Germany called the leadership change "old wine in new bottles."

Krenz has a reputation as a conservative opposed to reforms such as those under way in Hungary and Poland.

West German politicians and news commentators suggested the choice of Krenz was transitional, until next year's East German Communist Party congress considers the nation's future course.

During a recent visit to Beijing, Krenz expressed support for the way Chinese leaders had troops crush the student-led pro-democracy movement in June, killing hundreds of unarmed civilians.

However, party sources also said it was Krenz who asked police to stop attacking demonstrators in East Germany this month. Police had beat protesters during demonstrations that coincided with the Oct. 6-7 visit of Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev to mark East Germany's 40th anniversary.

Gorbachev called for reforms during the visit, saying leaders who do not react to the times are later punished. But Honecker resisted change.

Krenz is not expected to stray from that hard-line course, but he did say that "problems in recent months had not been sufficiently assessed" and that timely solutions had not been found.

He hinted that rigid restrictions on travel abroad could be modified or lifted. The difficulty of getting permission to travel outside the country has been a chief complaint.

The new leader also attacked West German officials for what he called meddling in East Germany's internal affairs.

Economist addresses food safety role

Whether the issue of food safety is specifically identified in a farm bill or not, the issue is going to keep growing, said a policy specialist here this week.

Dr. Karen Behm, policy specialist with the Louisiana Cooperative Extension Service, said food safety is an old issue that started getting more attention after the Alar incident.

"Since the Alar incident this summer, there have been steady streams of reports relating to food safety and chemicals," she said.

"Most of the response to this has been that pesticides and other chemicals are carefully regulated and are not used unless they have been approved for that purpose, she said.

Behm, who addressed a beef cattle policy symposium, said the involvement of popular movie stars in food safety or animal rights projects has added to the confusion.

She said consumers are going to demand some alternatives for food safety, therefore, it's important to have a good understanding of consumer attitudes to look at food safety and the implications for the 1990 Farm Bill.

Behm said a 1987 survey indicated 80 percent of consumers were concerned about chemicals, and 18 percent of these changed their behavior.

Behm said a Food Marketing Institute survey of consumers revealed that concern about antibiotic and hormone residues in poultry and livestock products increased from 42 percent in 1985 to 61 percent in 1988.

"It is somewhat problematic that consumer concerns are so different from those expressed by the scientific community," she said.

"Consumers tend to rank their concerns as pesticide residues, antibiotics, food additives and preservatives, coloring agents and irradiation.

"Scientists see the food safety issues as food-borne diseases, malnutrition, environmental contaminants such as lead or mercury, naturally occurring toxins, pesticide residue and deliberate food additives," she said.

This is ironic, Behm said, since the biggest food safety issue according to scientists, food-borne illness, is one where consumers have a fair amount of control.

Researchers estimate that anywhere from 6.5 million to 33 million Americans become ill each year from micro-organisms in their food, Behm said.

Behm said part of the food safety concern may be because the idea of the wholesome family farm is rapidly disappearing. Consumers see agriculture as another big business and this affects their perception of information from commodity groups and associations.

"It's hard for consumers to believe that safety concerns would be more important than economic gains," she said.

Behm said to maintain confidence, it's important that agents and spokespeople deal with issues fairly and don't just become a conduit for a particular industry.

She said it would be a lot easier if the food safety issue was dealt with in one piece of legislation. "Dealing with all of the food safety issues is going to be a lot like picking up mercury. Just as you get hold of one issue it's going to drop and split into 10 more," she said.

The debate over food safety becomes frustrating when participants are defining the problem differently, Behm said.

"The farm manager looks at controlling environmental concerns from the standpoint of the farmer's production. Environmentalists see the issue from the standpoint of environmental quality," she said.

"Food safety may not be a new issue and it may not even seem to be that controversial," Behm said. "Yet we all want a safe adequate food supply.

"The fact that food safety affects every single person in the country will assure it of remaining a top issue for some time to come," she said.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I must respond to the woman who had a 40-year affair with her boss. That letter hit me right between the eyes because I also set my cap for a man with a lovely wife and family, who was highly respected in the community.

After a great deal of effort, I did get the man to leave his wife and marry me. I'm sorry to say the marriage was not nearly as good as either of us thought it would be. He feels guilty and holds me responsible for "tricking him into an affair" when he was undergoing middle life crisis. I'm reminded daily that if it weren't for me he would be enjoying life with his first wife, his children and grandchildren.

I have reason to believe that this man is now cheating on me. I keep wondering why I wasn't smart enough to know that if he would cheat on his first wife he would also cheat on his second. This isn't the whole story, Ann, it gets worse.

I think I am falling in love with his son. We are the same age, and I have a lot more in common with Junior than with his father.

If I had it to do over again, I would never look at a married man, Ann. The price I had to pay was definitely not worth it. -- New England

DEAR NEW: Thanks for telling us the inside story of your membership in a large and growing sisterhood. Read on:

FROM NORTH CALIFORNIA: I was fascinated by the way your readers ganged up on the woman who had a long-time affair with her boss. I wonder why people are so quick to pass judgment without knowing both sides.

I am not married and I never want to be again. Once was enough. My husband was extremely abusive and my life with that animal was plain hell. Because of our two beautiful children, I felt obligated to play by society's rules. I stayed in that marriage until he almost killed me.

For the past five years I have been involved in a love affair with a wonderful married man. My lover has quite a lot of money, but I am not interested in it. If he wants me to have any of it, fine. If not, that's perfectly OK. I have never asked him for a thing.

I do not envy my sweetheart's wife and I don't want to be in her place. I respect her and even admire her. She is well thought of in the community and has raised a lovely family. It's too bad that she cannot give her husband what I give him, but that's another letter to Ann Landers.

I guess the reason I am writing is to add an honest dimension to the discussion. I believe that an affair need not be destructive and immoral. Sometimes it can serve a very useful purpose. -- T.M.S.

FROM NEW ORLEANS: I am a woman who has been on every conceivable side of the controversy. I've been the wife, the other woman, the one who was cheated on and the one who did the cheating.

Why does everyone blame the wife or the other woman? If she's the cheated-on wife, they say she was too busy with the children or her club work or her bridge games or her career. If she's the other woman, they call her a tramp, a gold-digger or worse.

More to the point, why does the man in the triangle always manage to escape criticism? It's never his fault. He is inevitably cast as the innocent victim of a trollop. To borrow a line I read in your column a long time ago, Ann, "Bullfeathers, Dearie."

Do you have questions about sex, but no one you can talk to? Ann Landers' booklet "Sex and the Teenager" is frank and to the point. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Teen, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada send $4.45.)

JV-Dunbar game canceled; frosh White to play Friday

The Hereford Whiteface junior varsity football game against Dunbar has been canceled, according to Hereford High School Athletic Director Don Cumpton.

Cumpton said the game, which was scheduled for 7 p.m. today at Whiteface Stadium, was called off because Dunbar lost a majority of its team to the state's no pass-no play rule. The Lubbock Independent School District began classes on Aug. 28, a week earlier than most Texas schools, and ended its first six-week grading period last week.

Cumpton said Hereford officials are trying to arrange a game with Denver City for next week, which had been scheduled as an open date for the Herd JV.

Cumpton also announced the rescheduling of the freshman White game with Plainview Red. The game was originally set for 5 p.m. today at the South Field, but was moved to 5 p.m. Friday because the Plainview varsity is playing on Thursday.

The moves leave the sophomore game against Coronado as the only game in town today. That contest will be played at 4:30 p.m. at Whiteface Stadium.

Lewis takes River Road All-Around Cowgirl title

Regina Lewis on Saturday took her fourth All-Around Cowgirl title in seven weeks at the Tri-State High School Rodeo Association event at the River Road.

Lewis used a win in barrel racing and third place in both pole bending and breakaway roping along with a fourth-place finish in breakaway roping to compile 25 points for the overall competition.

Lewis posted a time of 17.686 in winning the barrels while running the poles in 21.814. She had a 4.533 in the breakaway roping and 10.337 in the goat tying.

Marcie Smith, who won two of the all-arounds Lewis didn't, gave Lewis some stiff competition with a win in goat tying, second place in poles and fourth in barrels. Smith had times of 9.509 in goat tying, 21.537 in the poles and 18.027 for the barrels.

In the boys' events, Burt Noland scored his second straight win in steer wrestling with a time of 5.336. Noland teamed with River Road's Twister Cain to take second place in team roping in 7.813.

Kyle Vanlandingham placed eighth in calf roping in 14.896.

World Series to resume Tuesday

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Life in the Bay Area will go on and so will the World Series.

Baseball officials wrestled on Wednesday with the question of whether to finish the Series between San Francisco and Oakland after a powerful earthquake caused death and destruction in northern California 31 minutes before the scheduled start of Game 3 on Tuesday.

During a news conference on Wednesday morning, Commissioner Fay Vincent announced there would be no game Wednesday night.

Vincent met with representatives of both teams, city officials and ABC-TV, and decided not to play baseball before next Tuesday.

"We just had a long discussion," Vincent said. "It's becoming clear to Major League Baseball that our issue is a modest one. There will be no baseball before next Tuesday."

Vincent said that before Game 3 would be played at Candlestick Park, he would need the approval of San Francisco city officials.

"I don't think cancellation of the World Series is appropriate," Vincent said. "Right now, we're hopeful we'll be able to play next week."

If possible, Games 3, 4, and 5 would be played at Candlestick Park next Tuesday through Thursday. The A's hold a 2-0 lead in the best-of-7 Series.

John Lind, the stadium manager at Candlestick Park, said minor repairs could be made by next week.

"We have found no major structural damage," Lind said.

"There are some minor repairs and cleanup. From the city standpoint, this is not of the highest priority."

The earthquake, measured at 6.9 on the Richter scale, resulted in more than 270 deaths and hundreds of injuries.

It was the worst quake in the Bay area since 1906, when it was an estimated 8.3 on the Richter.

The Bay began the task of recovery on Wednesday, and baseball didn't want to get in the way.

"We will not play while this community is in a state of recovery, while the hunt for victims goes on," Vincent said.

Late Wednesday night, much of San Francisco was still without electricity and water. Businesses were closed and people were told not to come into the city.

The Marina district was hardest hit, and hundreds of tourists gathered to see what an earthquake can do.

Hotels were jammed with people who were stranded in the city and guests who couldn't get out.

Some people walked the streets armed with video cameras to record the glass on the sidewalks and the frozen hands of a tower clock.

Radio broadcasts alerted the public of the roads and bridges that were closed and how to get around. But by the end of the day, there were also announcements that several school districts and businesses would re-open today.

And today, the A's and Giants have planned workouts.

For awhile, they will not be the Bay area's top priority.

'Shootout' was big

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) - President Nixon entered Razorback Stadium and the crowd erupted. Not for Nixon, but because Bill Burnett had scored from the 2 and Arkansas was in front of Texas, 7-0.

It was Dec. 6, 1969, the original Shootout.

Texas vs. Arkansas: No. 1 against No. 2 on the final day of the 100th year of college football.

Before the season began, Boone Arledge of ABC called in Beano Cook and asked him about the upcoming season. Arkansas and Ohio State will go undefeated, Cook told Arledge. Oh, and Texas should be good.

Arledge got on the phone with Frank Broyles of Arkansas and Darrell Royal of Texas, the coaches who faced each other in big games throughout the 1960s. The two friends agreed to move Texas vs. Arkansas from mid-October to December.

When Ohio State, the national champion in 1968, broke its 9-0 streak by losing to Michigan, Texas moved from No. 2 to No. 1, Arkansas from No. 3 to No. 2.

The stage was set.

Early on, Jim Bell, sports information director at Arkansas, wrote many of the country's major newspapers and explained that Texas would play Arkansas on Dec. 6. It could be important, he said, and, after all, it would be the only game in the country. He figured on a couple of takers.

With pressbox seating for 62, about 200 writers roamed the sidelines. All the big names were there. Many were housed at Bella Vista, 40 miles north on U.S. 71. A helicopter was used to ferry some media members for Broyles' daily news conferences.

On game day, Nixon's helicopter landed on the practice field, below the stadium. His entourage included a congressman from Texas named George Bush. Billy Graham gave the invocation.

Texas fumbled early and Bobby Field recovered at the Texas 22. A 20-yard, third-down pass from Bill Montgomery to John Rees reached the 2 and Burnett scored two plays later. The game was 87 seconds old.

Later in the first quarter, Montgomery's 26-yard touchdown pass to Chuck Dicus was called back for offensive interference away from the ball.

Arkansas 7-0 at the half.

Terry Stewart recovered a Cotton Speyrer fumble at the Arkansas 47 and five plays later, Montgomery to Dicus was good for 29 yards and 14-0.

On the first play of the fourth quarter, on second-and-nine, James Street dropped to pass and wound up scrambling 42 yards for a touchdown. A two-point conversion and it was 14-8.

Montgomery completed three passes and Arkansas had a first down at the Texas 9. On third down from the 7, Montgomery rolled left and underthrew Dicus. Danny Lester intercepted.

With 6:10 to go, Texas started from its 36. On fourth-and-three,

Street heaved down the left sideline and Randy Peschel made the catch for 44 yards, despite double coverage. Jim Bertlesen eventually scored from the 2 and Happy Feller kicked it to 15-14 - the final.

"Every now and then, you have to suck it up and pick a number," Royal said about the fourth-down pass. "You don't use logic and reason, you just play a hunch."

Nixon congratulated the winners, complimented the losers.

"This was one of the great games of all time," he said.

Broyles, then 44, walked off the field, his twin daughters clutching his hands. There were tears.

A few hours later, with snow falling, he graciously fed dozens of media members at his home. And answered questions. And relived the heartbreak. And looked 65.

Herd favored by 13 over Panthers

The Harris Rating System has posted the Hereford Whitefaces as 13-point favorites for Saturday's District 1-4A matchup with the Dunbar Panthers.

The Herd (3-2 overall, 2-1 in district) is coming off a 28-15 win over Levelland while Dunbar (1-5, 1-3) shocked league-leading Estacado, 21-13, for its first win of the year.

The Herd maintained its Harris power rating of 173 with the win, but dropped four places to No. 45 in this week's Class 4A rankings.

The Panthers vaulted 28 places to No. 104 after upsetting the Matadors and boosted their rating 12 points to 160.

The game will be Dunbar's sixth of the year at Lowry field.

In other District 1-4A action, all on Friday, Estacado visits Randall, Pampa travels to Levelland and Frenship plays host to Dumas while Borger enjoys this week's open date.

Estacado (4-2, 3-1) at Randall (4-1, 2-1) -- Estacado not only had its home-coming spoiled by the loss to Dunbar, but saw its rating drop four points to 172 while falling 21 places to No. 48. The loss also dropped the Mats into a tie for the district lead with Borger at 3-1, just one win ahead of Hereford and Randall.

The Raiders rebounded from a 42-0 thrashing at the hands of Borger two weeks ago to dump Dumas, 21-14. Randall held steady at No. 93 with a rating of 162 after the win. A victory over the Mats would send the two-year-old school into the district lead heading into next week's game at Hereford.

Estacado is listed as a nine-point favorite for the game.

Pampa (2-3, 1-2) at Levelland (3-3, 1-3) -- Both teams will be looking for their first win since Sept. 22 when they hook up at Lobo Stadium. The Harvesters have losses to Estacado and Hereford to go with an open week while the Lobos have lost three straight, to Dumas, Estacado and Hereford.

Neither team's place in the Harris standings was affected much by last week's action. The Lobos remained at No. 101 with a 161 rating after losing to the Herd while the Harvesters moved up two spots to No. 64 and held on to their rating of 168.

Pampa gets the nod by seven points, according to Harris.

Dumas (2-3-1, 2-2) at Frenship (2-3, 1-2) -- The Demons had their two-game winning streak snapped by Randall last week while the Tigers lost their second in a row, 26-23, to Borger. Frenship's two district losses have been by a total of nine points.

Dumas dropped two places to No. 117 while keeping its 154 rating after the loss while Frenship actually gained ground after its loss - two places to No. 88 and one rating point to 164.

Frenship has been made a 10-point favorite for the contest.

Harris picks of area games: Amarillo High by 13 points over Coronado; Monterey by 1 over Tascosa; Palo Duro by 43 over Caprock; Plainview by 6 over Lubbock High; Dalhart by 4 over Sanford-Fritch; Littlefield by 10 over Dimmitt; Canyon by 20 over River Road; Childress by 8 over Perryton; Floydada by 19 over Muleshoe; Tulia by 26 over Friona; Canadian by 1 over Quanah; Abernathy by 2 over Farwell; West Texas High by 49 over Highland Park; Stratford by 13 over Boys Ranch; Wellington by 26 over Clarendon; Shamrock by 13 over Memphis; Panhandle by 14 over Spearman; Olton by 1 over Hale Center; Hart by 2 over Lockney; Vega by 9 over Happy; Nazareth by 2 over Springlake-Earth; Sudan by 39 over Kress.

Dallas considers park for Rangers

DALLAS (AP) - Dallas City Council members said they'd like the Texas Rangers to move from suburban Arlington to downtown Dallas.

The council Wednesday urged the city staff to look into getting the team as a tenant for a new stadium in the Farmer's Market area of downtown.

A stadium is part of a proposed agreement between the city and a private developer, Dallas International Limited. The two own most of the land in the Farmer's Market area. The proposal did not include an estimated cost.

"Let's do it," council member Al Lipscomb said. "We're not doing anything underhanded."

Council member Glenn Box said, "I'm ready to play ball downtown."

The council will be asked to formally approve the proposed agreement once lawyers from both sides have looked at it.

Under the proposal, the city would make street and other public improvements to the area to aid development. The city and the developer would also swap land that would allow the city to build a baseball stadium near the intersection of Interstates 30 and 45.

"It's at such a conceptual level, it's almost impossible to put a rational estimate on it," Assistant City Manager Cliff Keheley said. Arlington Mayor Richard Greene said his city will fight to keep the baseball team, which brings in $50 million to $60 million annually.

"The events of the last couple of days are old news, as far as I'm concerned," Greene said. "What Dallas is doing is in no way setting Arlington's agenda. We will set the pace. We will have a deal to beat.

"We continue to have some contact with the Rangers, and we are responding to their timetable and issues they are interested in," Greene said.

Lynn Northrup Jr., whose development company controls Dallas International, said his company has mixed emotions about the possible stadium, but believes there is room for it.

"It's an exciting thing. I'm glad (the city council) reacted as they did," Northrup said.

Deputy Mayor Pro Tem Diane Ragsdale said, "This is good for downtown. It's good for the whole city."

Rangers President Mike Stone said the team has not talked to Dallas officials and is conducting a marketing study to decide what move, if any would be best for fans and the team.

George W. Bush, the primary owner of the Rangers, has declined to comment on Dallas' plans.

NCAA charges Maryland hoops

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) - The Maryland men's basketball program is accustomed to having something hanging over its collective head.

For three years, the Terrapin program has been forced to operate in the aftermath of the cocaine-related death of Len Bias.

So, even though the NCAA officially informed the university Monday of 19 violations uncovered by an eight-month preliminary investigation, the program is not wavering.

"The players have been through a lot here," Maryland coach Gary Williams said Wednesday prior to the Terps' practice at Cole Field House. "I think the school owes it to the players to run a normal college basketball program. ... I don't think this will have an effect. ... It won't be an excuse for how we play this season."

School officials received a letter of inquiry detailing a list of charges against the program, including unethical conduct by former coach Bob Wade and the scalping of tickets to the 1988 Atlantic Coast Conference tournament. The program is also charged with offering improper inducements to recruits, including Alonzo Mourning, who signed with Georgetown, and ex-Terrapin Brian Williams, who now attends the University of Arizona.

Athletic Director Lew Perkins spoke with team members about the contents of the letter Wednesday morning. He was addressing an informed audience.

"We've been talking, ever since I took over, about the situation," Williams said. "We've tried to keep the players up to date so there are no surprises."

The official letter arrived five months after Maryland elected to buy out the final two years of Wade's contract and replace him with Williams, the former Ohio State coach.

Wade had been hired just weeks before the 1986-87 season after Lefty Driesell was forced to resign in the aftermath of Bias's death in June 1986.

"We're a lot further along than you might think," said Perkins, who added that the university participated in the investigation and was aware of the facts as they unfolded.

"When you look at other investigations, this one has been relatively short. I read that the University of Kentucky investigation took three years."

The NCAA began its preliminary investigation into the Maryland basketball program last February, shortly after Wade admitted that members of his staff were involved in providing transportation to and from classes at a nearby junior college for former Terrapins guard Rudy Archer.

"It's not pleasant, of course," Perkins said. "We're not happy about getting the letter from the NCAA. ... But I'm looking at this as the final chapter of this episode. We're that much closer receiving the letter. I think everybody wants this situation to be over with. It's time to move on."

October Seafood Month

WASHINGTON (AP) - October is the time to come out of your shell and enjoy the bounty of wholesome fish and shellfish. With 31 days devoted to one of America's healthiest and most natural fast-foods, now is the time to get cracking!

The National Fisheries Institute says consumers can expect excellent supplies of shrimp, salmon, trout and catfish. The supply of these species has become stronger and more consistent in recent years due to aquaculture in the United States and abroad, the Institute says.

Consumers can also expect cod and swordfish and a variety of molluscan shellfish such as mussels, oysters, clams and scallops to be in good supply. Look for good buys on regional species such as tuna or shark steaks as well as your local favorites.

In addition to fresh and frozen, there is a wide variety of processed seafood products - breaded seafood items, surimi seafoods, canned and smoked products - that offer busy cooks convenience, taste and economical alternatives.

SOME GOOD REASONS FOR EATING SEAFOOD

Research indicates that eating seafood in place of high fat and cholesterol-laden foods can help lower the risk of cardiovascular disease primarily by reducing the intake of total fat and saturated fat. Consider these seafood nutrition facts:

- A 4-ounce portion of seafood contains approximately 100 calories.

- The Omega-3 fatty acids found in fish and shellfish are believed to play a role in reducing the risk of heart disease.

- Seafood is nutrient-dense. It offers large quantities of protein and significant amounts of vitamins and minerals, without high levels of saturated fats and cholesterol.

- Seafood is an excellent source of complete protein. A single serving of seafood can provide a large portion of daily protein needs, and it's easily digestible.

- Seafood is generally low in sodium. Most fresh finfish contain very low amounts of sodium. Sodium levels of shellfish and processed finfish tend to be slightly higher depending on processing and can be incorporated into a low sodium diet.

SEAFOOD SAFETY

All fish and seafood is subject to inspection by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

These agencies inspect plants to assure compliance with sanitation and processing regulations. They also spot check products for conformance to regulations on pesticides and other contaminants.

Other seafood safety facts from the National Fish and Seafood Promotional Council:

- All imported products are subject to inspection at the port of entry by the Food and Drug Administration.

- Many major seafood companies subscribe to a voluntary federal inspection program provided by the U.S. Department of Commerce.

- Fish and seafood are subject to inspection by state authorities. Coastal states monitor local waters and, in the case of shellfish, close any beds that are polluted.

- Oysters, clams and mussels are siphon feeders, which means they nourish themselves by eating nutrients in the water; therefore, they can ingest pathogens. For this reason, a special program has been established by federal and state authorities to monitor shellfish-growing waters and close beds that have become polluted.

- More than 90 percent of the fish consumed is caught 3 miles or more from shore; that distance from coastal waters offers protection from direct pollution.

- Fish caught by recreational fishermen close to shore should not be eaten if caught in polluted waters. States routinely issue warnings to recreational fishermen.

- Available data on reports of human illness indicate that most problems relating to seafood have been caused by a few species known to federal and state authorities. Steps have been taken to reduce risk to consumers.

(Red Lobster, a nationwide restaurant company, has developed a collection of six light seafood recipes that are quick and easy to prepare. The collection includes Grilled Shrimp Kabobs, Snapper Veracruz, Garlic Shrimp on Linguini, Lobster Stuffed Eggs, Crab Salad and Lobster DeJonghe. For a free set of these recipe cards, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Red Lobster Recipes, Box 593330, Orlando, FL 32859.)

The basketball dribble was first used professionally by Bert Loomis in 1896.

Heart-shaped candies, cakes for special day

NEW YORK (AP) - Chocolate and Sweetest Day - what could be a sweeter combination?

Sweetest Day, celebrated Oct. 21, is designated as a day to remember those who have made you happy. One way to express your gratitude is with Fudge Cut-Outs and Heavenly Heart Cakes, sure to please the special people in your life.

Heart-shaped cookie cutters are used for both recipes, which are provided by Hershey's Cocoa.

FUDGE CUT-OUTS

1/4 cup butter or margarine, melted
1/2 cup cocoa
1 3/4 cups sugar
1 cup marshmallow creme
3/4 cup evaporated milk
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Line a 9-inch square pan with aluminum foil; lightly butter foil. In medium boil blend melted butter and cocoa until smooth; set aside.

In a heavy 3-quart saucepan combine sugar, marshmallow creme, evaporated milk and 2 tablespoons butter. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a full boil.

Boil, stirring constantly, to 234 degrees F on a candy thermometer (soft-ball stage) or until syrup, when dropped into very cold water, forms a soft ball that flattens when removed from water. (The bulb of the candy thermometer should not rest on the bottom of the saucepan.)

Remove from heat; immediately stir into cocoa mixture. Add vanilla; do not stir. Cool at room temperature 15 minutes without stirring. Working quickly, beat with wooden spoon just until mixture loses its gloss. Immediately spread into a prepared pan. Cool.

HEAVENLY HEART CAKES

6 tablespoons butter or margarine, softened
3/4 cup sugar
1 egg
1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 cup all-purpose flour
1-3rd cup cocoa

1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
2-3rds cup water

Fudge Frosting (recipe follows)
Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Line bottom of a 13- by 9- by 2-inch baking pan with wax paper. In a small mixer bowl beat butter and sugar until creamy. Beat in egg and vanilla.

In separate bowl, combine flour, cocoa, baking soda and salt. Add flour mixture alternately with 2-3rds cup water to creamed mixture. Pour into prepared pan. Bake 15 to 20 minutes or until wooden pick inserted in the center comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes. Remove from pan; carefully peel off wax paper. Cool completely.

With heart-shaped cookie cutter (3 1/4 inches in diameter), cut cake into 6 pieces. Spread top of each piece with frosting; layer two hearts together. Frost sides, decorate as desired. Makes 3 filled cakes.

Fudge Frosting
3 tablespoons butter or margarine

1/4 cup cocoa
1 and 1-3rd cups confectioners' sugar

3 tablespoons milk

1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
Melt butter in a small saucepan over low heat. Add cocoa; stir until mixture is smooth. Pour mixture into small mixer bowl. Cool. Add confectioners' sugar alternately with milk, beating to spreading consistency. Blend in vanilla. Makes about 1 cup frosting.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have a small polyp in the colon. For the past two years I have had the smear test and taken the samples to the doctor. Both tests were negative. But because of the publicity about President Reagan's colon cancer I decided to have mine checked. There was no pain or bleeding that influenced me to have the examination. The doctor said he will soon operate and remove the polyp and any others that he may find following a more complete check with a colonoscopy.

I have not inquired what to expect if the polyp proves cancerous. Can you tell me more about that? What does the future hold for me under the circumstances? Is there a pamphlet you can send?

DEAR READER: Cancer of the colon and rectum (colorectal cancer) is the second most common cause of cancer deaths in the United States.

Usually it does not cause symptoms until after it is rather well advanced. That is why one needs to use screening tests such as slides of stool samples studied for blood, rectal examinations, colon X-rays and colonoscopies to look inside the colon.

Actually, colorectal cancer is usually curable if it can just be found early enough. The death rate is so high only because many of them are not found early.

Polyps are little growths in the lining of the colon. Some of these are little more than an enlargement of the normal cells but others, called adenomatous polyps, originate from cells of the glands in the colon. These are the ones that may be malignant.

You can't be sure just what a polyp is without looking at the tissue under a microscope. The practical point is that all polyps should be removed and studied. Frequently there are nests of cancer cells inside adenomatous polyps. If the cells do not involve the stalk of the polyp attached to the colon, removal of the polyp is often a cure. Of course, careful follow up is necessary. What you can expect otherwise really depends on how extensive the cancer is when it is found.

You will want to read about tests to detect colon cancer, prevention and treatment. Everyone should be aware of these facts. I wanted to send you the Special Issue, Colorectal Cancer Is No. 2 Killer, you requested, but your address was not on the letter itself and I don't see the envelopes. But you and others can send $1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER 33-10, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

DEAR DR. LAMB I have numbness and a burning feeling in my toes. It seems to be slowly spreading into my feet. I have been told that this is alcoholic neuropathy. Can this be cured or reversed? Please advise as to the best course of action.

DEAR READER: Most people do not realize that alcohol attacks the nerves and the brain. Brain involvement is a frequent factor in senility. Degeneration of nerve fibers in the feet cause burning, heat sensations and degeneration of muscles. Alcohol also attacks the skeletal and heart muscle fibers.

The first and most important step is to not use any alcohol at all. The second is to have a good balanced diet and to take vitamin B supplements as recommended by your doctor.

State's worst school-bus accident prompts lawsuits

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) - The state's worst school bus accident has prompted lawsuits from families of more than 50 students, including some who were not on the bus when it plunged into a water-filled pit.

A San Antonio lawyer is accused in one petition of trying to bribe a family $700 to keep him involved in the case against Valley Coca-Cola Bottling Co. Inc.

One of the company's trucks on Sept. 21 knocked a Mission Consolidated Independent School District bus over a 40-foot cliff into a roadside pit in the Hidalgo County town of Alton, killing 21 junior and senior high students and injuring 59.

Unspecified actual and exemplary damages are sought in the lawsuits, some accusing the company of "conscious indifference for the rights and well-being of the public."

An attorney designated as spokesman for attorneys representing Valley Coca-Cola was not in his office Wednesday and did not return a phone call by The Associated Press.

Families for at least 15 of the 21 dead students are represented in the lawsuits. Most of the cases are consolidated in 275th District Court in Edinburg, but cases also have been filed in three of Hidalgo County's other state district courts.

Most of the cases are on behalf of relatives who lost loved ones, or on behalf of students who escaped the bus and suffered various physical or emotional injuries.

One suit states that "Normalinda Perez was at the scene of the accident in question and observed the bus under the water in the pit as her daughter, Veronica Perez, still trapped in the bus, drowned."

At least five of the students for whom suits were filed were not on the bus. Those children allegedly suffered mental and physical anguish after arriving at the scene while their friends and family members were drowning.

The family of 12-year-old bus wreck survivor Nora Manriquez last week filed for a temporary restraining order to prevent San Antonio attorney Roberto Guerra from contacting them.

The Manriquez family hired Guerra Oct. 4, but chose to terminate their relationship with him and hire another attorney on Oct. 9, according to the petition.

They accuse Guerra of trying to bribe the family $700 to re-hire him.

The petition also alleges that Guerra threatened to "harass and pressure" the family by seeking to have an attorney appointed to ensure that parties are acting in the minor's best interest.

Guerra said the $700 was a loan the Manriquez family had asked him to provide. He said he had a written contract with the Manriquez family "obtained at their initiative."

"If that's what they are calling a bribe, well you know I hope my side gets heard," Guerra said. "It's a lot more sensational to say an attorney offered a bribe to pursue a fat case than to say he honored a commitment on an advance."

Guerra said he had the impression the Manriquez family was unhappy with him because he brought the loan a day late.

No ruling had been issued on the restraining order.

Law to ban flag-burning comes under renewed attack from foes

WASHINGTON (AP) - Democratic opponents of President Bush's proposed constitutional amendment to ban flag-burning are expressing confidence as the Senate moves toward a showdown on the measure.

"By now I think most of you know that this amendment is not going to pass the United States Senate," Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., said Wednesday.

Concerns that the flag issue might be turned against the amendment's critics at election time appeared to ease, as Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said Americans "are not clamoring at us to amend the Constitution."

The Senate was expected to vote today on the amendment, which would authorize state and federal governments to pass laws to ban burning or desecrating the flag.

The amendment came under renewed attack Wednesday when three Democrats who are Vietnam veterans, Sens. Bob Kerrey of Nebraska, John F. Kerry of Massachusetts and Tom Harkin of Iowa, took to the floor to denounce it.

"My first reaction was to see if we could take those people who burned the flag and strip them of their citizenship," Harkin said. "... But there's a difference between America and North Vietnam, there's a difference between America and China - and that difference is freedom."

Republican sponsors said the measure would end once and for all the controversy over whether laws against flag-burning are unconstitutional.

The Supreme Court in June threw out the conviction of Texas flag-burner Gregory Lee Johnson, ruling that his freedom of speech had been violated. Within days Bush called for a constitutional amendment.

The House approved last week and sent to the president a bill that would ban flag-burning by simple statute. Bush said he would allow it to become law without his signature and vowed to press on for the amendment.

Democratic critics said the amendment amounted to tampering with the Bill of Rights. They said a simple statute would be better and that amending the Constitution should only be a last resort.

Some Democratic senators said there was concern among lawmakers that opponents of the amendment would find their patriotism under attack at election time. Others said most Americans were not worried about the issue.

Democrats also directed fire at Bush over his support for the measure.

"I would have to be naive if I didn't think his motives have a political bias," said Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark. After the vote, he predicted, "the politics will have favored those who voted for this ill-conceived amendment - tragic but true."

Sen. Trent Lott, R-Miss., said he had heard the theory that passions have cooled on the flag issue but said they could be reignited.

"Just wait," Lott said. He told the Senate that if there were another high-profile flag-burning incident "the American people will rise again."

Metzenbaum said the amendment demanded a "kind of loyalty (that) is a hallmark of communist countries and right-wing dictatorships."

Kerrville ex-nurse is denied parole

AUSTIN (AP) - The prosecutor who won the conviction of ex-nurse Genevieve Jones, sentenced to 99 years in prison for killing a baby girl, says he's happy she was denied parole.

"I'm pleased with the actions of the Board of Pardons and Paroles. She still maintains her total innocence. She still thinks she's a savior. She's dangerous," Kerr County District Attorney Ron Sutton said.

The State Board of Pardons and Paroles voted 3-0 Wednesday to deny parole to Ms. Jones, whose case sparked more than 1,000 letters to the board, said spokeswoman Karin Armstrong.

The board scheduled Ms. Jones' next review for February 1993, Ms. Armstrong said.

CHICAGO (AP) - Philanthropist Barbara Piasecka Johnson, working to save the shipyard where Poland's Solidarity trade union was born, is urging other Americans to join her in helping that country rescue its economy.

The widow of Johnson & Johnson co-founder J. Seward Johnson pledged $100 million to save the Lenin shipyard in Gdansk. She also is working to set up the first private bank under Poland's newly liberalized government.

"Poland does not need charity now, but your investment. Be a pioneer like me," Mrs. Johnson said after receiving the Polish Heritage Award on Sunday from the Polish-American Congress.

This was the first time Ms. Jones was eligible for parole since being sentenced in 1984 to 99 years in prison for killing 15-month-old Chelsea McClellan by lethal injection.

Chelsea died Sept. 17, 1982, after suffering mysterious seizures while in the care of Ms. Jones, who worked as a nurse in a Kerrville pediatrician's office.

The case was publicized last month on the syndicated television show "Gerald," and since then the parole board had been besieged with letters.

"As of this morning, over 1,200 letters had been received," Ms. Armstrong said.

She said the board considers protests from prosecutors and others, but that is only one factor in determining whether to grant parole. The sentence, seriousness of the crime, how well a prisoner is adapting and other factors also are considered.

Ms. Jones, then 33, didn't testify during her trial.

According to evidence presented then, there was a history of problems at the pediatrician's office. From Aug. 27 to Sept. 27, 1982, six children - including Chelsea McClellan - suffered unexplained seizures while in Ms. Jones' care. All had been brought to the office with relatively minor complaints.

Chelsea had been scheduled to receive routine immunizations, and the nurse gave her the injection while the child was in her mother's arms.
