Fuston, Flores to run again

John Fuston and Sylvia Flores have announced they will run for reelection to the Hereford Independent School District board of trustees.

The school board, city commission and hospital board elections are on May 5. Wednesday is the filing deadline for all three elections.

Fuston, a former teacher, is the district executive director for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. He is currently serving as the president of the school board.

Mrs. Flores has completed her first term on the board. She is employed by the Deaf Smith County Appraisal District. She represents District 2.

Fuston and Dennis Newton (who previously announced his intention to seek another term) are at-large representatives.

High tech helps overcome handicap

Samantha Reed is a pretty 19 year old girl majoring in prelaw at the University of New Mexico at Albuquerque on an academic scholarship. The only thing that might slow Samantha down is her cerebral palsy.

Being slowed by cerebral palsy is not in Samantha's plans. To attend classes she uses a power wheelchair, and three aides help her take notes.

Although Samantha can talk and is understandable to people who know her, she uses a Touchtalker to communicate with people who do not know her well.

The person using the Touchtalker types what they want to say on a keyboard. A computer-generated voice then "says" what has been typed in. The voice can be female or male, depending on the preference of the user.

The Touchtalker has a crystal LED display and can print what has been typed in when hooked up to a computer.

Unlike similar devices developed in the past, the Touchtalker is small enough to fit in the user's lap. It uses a battery which can be charged, meaning it can be used anywhere Samantha goes. Devices developed in the past often had to remain plugged into a power source.

Thursday afternoon, Samantha was in Hereford explaining how she uses the Touchtalker to Keith Lindell, a Hereford student. Using a Touchtalker would also help Keith, who attends special education classes and some regular high school classes.

Earlier in the day, Samantha discussed the Touchtalker with students in Friona.

Judging from its size, one might think the Touchtalker is a simple machine. Not so: It can be used in many ways. In a conversation, Samantha can type in whatever she wants to say as it comes to mind. Or she can preprogram common responses, like "Hello. My name is Samantha." Since she is a Spanish minor, Samantha uses the Touchtalker to speak Spanish as well as English.

And if Samantha decides that she wants to change the way she uses the Touchtalker, she can change the meanings of the symbols.

Such versatility does not come cheap. The Touchtalker costs about $4,000. The Department of Vocational Rehabilitation paid for Samantha's Touchtalker.

Why was the DVR willing to pay that kind of money? Occupational Therapist Ginny Gass explained why. In the long run, it costs less to provide handicapped people with tools they need to get a job than it does for the government to support them.

In order to get DVR funds, a person must be educable and employable.

And the DVR does not pay for everything people like Samantha need. For example, her power wheelchair cost about $7,000. Half was paid for by her parents and the rest was paid by insurance.

Keith could qualify for DVR aid

if he applies, according to Gass. Samantha urged Keith to try for DVR aid. "DVR wants you to get through high school," she told him through the Touchtalker.

A smile says it all

Keith Lindell and Samantha Reed share a smile while they talk Thursday at the Stanton Special Program Center in Hereford. Reed usually "talks" through the Touchtalker, the small machines in front of her and Lindell, which "says" whatever has been typed in through a computer-generated voice.

OPI gets more help for Hereford students

By JOHN BROOKS

More Hereford students attending West Texas State University and other colleges will be able to take advantage of The Opportunity Plan thanks to a $1,000 donation made to the Hereford Division of The Opportunity Plan by La Madre Mia Study Club of Hereford on Thursday.

Carla Baxter, an administrative assistant with The Opportunity Plan, accepted the donation from Bettye Owen of the club. Mrs. Owen also serves on the board of the Hereford Division along with John Aikin, Lynton Allred, Lois Lomenick, Carolyn Baxter and Mike McKinster.

There have been 285 Hereford students who have been assisted by The Opportunity Plan. They have attended 30 different institutions and have received $677,000.86. The aid has come from several sources.

The Hereford Division was established on March 19, 1972 to aid Hereford students. There have been 133 students helped through the Hereford Division.

The Jim Hill Memorial Loan Fund was established Sept. 11, 1964 by the trustees of the Jim Hill Estate. There have been 68 students who have received $132,691 from that fund.

Anderson marks 5 years

WASHINGTON (AP) - Terry Anderson's friends and family are marking his fifth year as a hostage in Lebanon today as President Bush tries to dampen speculation the captives might be released soon.

"I wish I could tell you that there was a serious immediate effort that would pay off, but that isn't the case," Bush told members of the National Newspaper Association on Thursday.

He said he was perplexed by the "wave of speculation" a week or so ago that hostages might be released.

"I was wondering if it was some private initiatives on the part of lawyers or those representing the families of individuals held hostage," the president said. But he said his administration is "trying every avenue to free the hostages."

Bush's comments came as Anderson's relatives and the families of the other hostages arrived in Washington for a commemorative ceremony today in Lafayette Park, just across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House.

Anderson, 42, the chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, is the longest-held of the American hostages in Lebanon. All told, 18 Westerners are believed to be captives there.

Anderson was kidnapped on a street in Beirut on March 16, 1985, after playing an early-morning game of tennis. Since then, he has been held in windowless rooms in the slums of Beirut, according to other hostages. Sometimes he has been chained and blindfolded.

During his five years as a hostage, Anderson's daughter has been born and his father and brother have died. "Who would have ever thought in their wildest nightmares that this would last so long?" asked Peggy Say, Anderson's sister, who has traveled to the Middle East and Europe trying to free her brother.

Penny Anderson, his sister-in-law, and Carl Anderson, a cousin, were among those who attended an interfaith church service Thursday evening in the Buffalo suburb of Orchard Park, N.Y., about 40 miles from Anderson's boyhood home of Batavia.

The congregation signed pledges to sacrifice food or something else of importance in honor of Anderson and the other hostages. "Our commitment is to see the hostages released from their captivity and reunited with their families without any further delay," the congregation recited during the service.

No Greater Love, a Washington-based humanitarian organization, was sponsoring today's ceremony, as it has other observances on behalf of the hostages. Most recently, the group honored Anderson on his 42nd birthday.

In Tokyo, the Foreign Correspondents' Club of Japan was holding a ceremony tonight to honor Anderson, who was assigned to the AP Tokyo bureau from January 1977 to August 1981.

Members of the club were to raise symbolically empty glasses in a toast to Anderson, a salute that planners said also would be made at the National Press Club in Washington, D.C., and at the Association de la Presse International in Brussels.

"Obviously our hearts are with Terry, a friend and former colleague here," said Mike Sharp, club president and bureau chief of U.S. News and World Report, "but our efforts are also directed at encouraging those who hold all hostages to release them. That would clearly be in everyone's best interests."

In Beirut, meantime, Moslem extremists released a communique threatening to kill three American professors being held hostage unless the United States meets its unspecified demands.

The group, the Islamic Jihad for the Liberation of Palestine, made its threat in a statement delivered to the independent newspaper An-Nahar. It was accompanied by a photograph of Robert Polhill, one of the captives.

Thursday's handwritten statement in Arabic said: "The organization of Islamic Jihad for the Liberation of Palestine denounces media reports about humanitarian moves to free the hostages and close this file."

"It asks the authors of these moves not to interfere in this matter because we are holding agents and spies against our people, and they will be executed if the American administration fails to meet our demands."

Polhill, 55, of New York City, was one of three American educators kidnapped from the campus of the U.S.-affiliated Beirut University College on Jan. 24, 1987. The others are Alann Steen, 50, of Boston, and Jesse Turner, 42, of Boise, Idaho.

"This is the first we have heard from that group in a year," said Steen's wife, Virginia, who had come from Michigan to attend the ceremony for Anderson.

A State Department official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, denounced the threat as a "cynical manipulation" of the hostage relatives timed to coincide with the ceremony for Anderson.

Recent speculation about the hostages stemmed in part from statements attributed to Iranian President Hashemi Rafsanjani that he would like to see the hostages freed.

Mrs. Say said her impression from talking to various people is that Iran knows it will not get Western aid to rebuild its economy until the hostages are released. Iran's economy was devastated by its eight-year war with Iraq.

The hostages are believed being held by elements within Hezbollah, an umbrella group of radical Shiites. But the captives apparently are kept by different factions of Hezbollah.

Plans were all set for St. Patrick's big deal until animal activists started to squeal.

A full-blooded Irishman - a sight to be seen! - planned to carry, dear Colleen, a pig dyed bright green.

But Grand Marshal James Monahan, who will lead the parade, got grief for the ham-handed plans he had laid.

The porker might suffer emotional shock if paraded by Monahan block after block.

So Monahan said he'd instead buy a stuffed one - perhaps a toy pig will be almost as much fun.

$1.2 billion school finance bill proposed

AUSTIN (AP) - A school-finance bill approved by a Senate education subcommittee was called a "giant step forward in equalization" among rich and poor school districts, but key lawmakers and Gov. Bill Clements say its $1.2 billion price tag may keep it from being adopted by the state.

The cost of the legislation was raised Thursday from $817 million for the 1990-91 school year by an amendment requiring the state to give extra funding to school districts for students who need special education, including bilingual, vocational and remedial programs.

Without the amendment, the bill would have considered only the basic allotment given to school districts based on the size of their populations of students with special needs. As amended, the bill also would consider the guaranteed - old, or "second tier," funds allotted to school districts by the state based on the rate of their property tax.

The full Senate will vote Monday on the bill.

The amendment, which was sponsored by Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, was approved by the subcommittee 9-7. Truan said the measure is necessary because poor districts often have more students with special needs.

"As a result of the passage of this amendment, we are seriously considering equalizing education in the state of Texas," said Truan. "If we want to have a school system that meets the constitutional test, we must talk about dollars."

The chair of the subcommittee, Sen. Carl Parker, said he is not hopeful about the chances the more expensive bill will have when the Senate begins negotiations with the House, which is considering a $450 million measure.

He said the bill could allow lawmakers "to do right by Texas" and lower property taxes. But he said if it is not fully funded, it could lessen the amount of money the state guarantees to each school district.

"My greatest fear and concern about this bill is that if the House fails to fund it at the $1.2 billion or thereabouts, then what we will end up with is having to reduce the basic allotment... which delivers more money to fewer districts," he said.

Sen. Kent Caperton, a sponsor of the Senate bill and chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, agreed with Parker.

"The cost - We just don't have it," said Caperton, D-Bryan, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. "You know, $1.2 billion really strains your credibility."

The Legislature is meeting in a special session to address a Texas Supreme Court ruling that the school finance system is unconstitutional because it allows disparities between property-rich and poor school districts. The $13.5 billion-a-year system relies on a combination of state aid, local property taxes and some federal funds.

Clements, who favors a plan that would pump $234 million in additional money into public schools in 1990-91, has vowed to veto new taxes for school-finance reform.

Bush gives green light to supercollider

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) - The Bush administration has given the final green light to the $8 billion atom-smasher known as the superconducting super collider, endorsing expensive changes and promising to fight for funding.

On Thursday, the Department of Energy approved the exact siting of the 54-mile ring, W. Henson Moore, deputy secretary of energy, told 650 super collider officials and scientists meeting here.

That allows Texas to begin a land-buying binge outside of Dallas with some of the $1 billion it pledged in a successful effort to lure the project, and enables scientists to begin planning construction that could take a decade.

The gigantic atom smasher will expand by 20 times mankind's knowledge of the sub-atomic particles that are the fundamental building blocks of the universe, said Roy Schwitters, director of the program.

The ring will be built underground and is intended by its backers to be the world's premier high-energy physics laboratory.

It will hurl streams of protons, guided by powerful electromagnets, through the ring at almost the speed of light until they smash together and break up into even smaller particles. But scientific and technical obstacles must be conquered first.

U.S. Rep Joe Barton, R-Texas, said that despite jokes about a "quark-barrel project," Congressional support continues strong for the super collider. He said even a budget freeze agreement would be unlikely to kill the project.

Police shoot Amarillo man in armpit

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) - An Amarillo man who exchanged gunfire with police here was hospitalized Friday after holding police at bay for about two hours, then demanding something to eat before he surrendered.

Police said the man, identified as Antonio Martin Tenorio, 20, underwent surgery for a bullet wound to the armpit Thursday. He surrendered Wednesday night.

No charges had been filed by mid-afternoon Thursday.

Police said they found Tenorio dressed in black standing on a balcony when they were called to the Palm Villa Apartments Wednesday night. They said he started shooting after they told him to come down.

After about two hours, the man demanded that he be allowed to talk to his girlfriend and be given something to eat. When they complied, with hamburgers and soft drinks, he surrendered.

Officers said they discovered that Tenorio was shot when he was taken into custody.

OPPORTUNITY

by Mrs. Audine Dettmann and gives preference to Hereford students who wish to enter the medical field, especially to study cardiovascular medicine. Three students have received $19,579.08.

Mrs. Dettmann and Bonnie Wuerflein of Hereford also serve on the OPI board.

The Opportunity Plan was founded in 1954 by Milton Morris with an initial contribution of $500. Over 7,000 students have received loans of more than $10 million, of which 98 percent was or is being repaid to be loaned again. There are also scholarships and merit awards administered by the organization.

To obtain a loan is relatively simple. Students must complete an application form and budget, listing estimated income and expenses for the coming semester; a transcript of high school and college work; a summary explaining why they need financial aid; and four letters of recommendation.

Students have certain rules to live by while accepting aid from OPI: they can't make large purchases, can't drop a class without permission of OPI, and may use money only for school-related expenses or for needs outlined in their budget.

Stacy Lea was one former Hereford student who took advantage of OPI. She's now a teacher at Hereford High School and said she couldn't have made it without OPI's help.

"The help meant probably much more than I could say at the time they helped me," said Lea. "I had to make a budget and make the grades to continue to be on the Opportunity Plan."

"They told me my first intent was to get an education. They kept confirming this and told me I would be gratified in the end. They were not necessarily saying I could do better, but they instilled in me the reward of graduation and they would be with me as long as I was there."

"It's going to be even more rewarding when I get my loan paid off. With the little bit I send to them it's one more student's fees, someone's tuition."

Lea said it was sometimes hard to stick to the budget, which she had to detail for every semester and live by. "I had to keep a record of every cent, but that's helped me, too. I admire people who go to school and work, or have a family. But I don't think I could have done that. It would have been a long road without their help."

"You couldn't ask for better persons than Mr. Morris or Cathy Wright (president of the executive committee). They are all still in touch with me, wanting to know how I'm doing. They did more than just help me, they have been like family to me."

Cholesterol screening Saturday

The American Red Cross will be holding a blood cholesterol screening at Hereford Community Center Saturday, March 17, from 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Other tests will be non-fasting total blood cholesterol or glucose test and 12 hour fasting triglyceride test. The price will be $6 per test or $15.50 for all three.

Non-fasting-cholesterol is one of the fat-like nutrients transported in the blood. Your body probably already makes all the cholesterol it needs. Any excess enters the blood stream when you eat foods that contain cholesterol and foods that are high in saturated fats. When there is too much cholesterol in your bloodstream, it becomes trapped in the walls of your coronary arteries and can cause clogging that can lead to chest pains (angina), a heart attack, or sudden death.

Desirable levels for adults are below 200 mg/dl.

Triglyceride (floating fats), 12 hour fasting, is the main type of fat found in foods. It is the main lipid found in the fat tissue of the body. A growing body of thought implicates triglycerides in the destructive process of atherosclerosis.

Desirable levels for female is 35-135 md/dl and male 40-160 mg/dl.

Glucose (blood sugar) - Nonfasting is the most important carbohydrate in body metabolism. High blood sugar or glucose could be indicative of diabetes (hyperglycemia). Inability to maintain normal blood level for glucose could be an indication of an insulin deficiency (hypoglycemia).

Desirable levels for fasting is 70-110 mg/dl and nonfasting up to 160 mg/dl.

Concert Sunday

Peter Zhu of Beijing, China will be performing classical Chinese music during a concert at the First Baptist Church Sunday at 3 p.m. Among the spectators attending the concert will be Mrs. Hester West Moore, a longtime friend of the Zhu family. The public is invited to attend the event at no charge.

Public invited to concert

The public is invited to hear Peter Zhu, concert pianist and composer from Beijing, China, Sunday, March 18, at 3 p.m. in the First Baptist Church.

Zhu teaches ballet and music at an academy in China. Selections for the event will be classical Chinese music, folk songs and compositions he has written.

While in Hereford he will be visiting with a longtime friend, Hester West Moore. Zhu met Moore in 1932 when she was a missionary nurse in China. She became acquainted with Zhu through his sister, Yoehing. Yoehing spoke English and was a companion to Moore, helping her by translating for her. Moore attended many events with Yoehing and became a part of the family.

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) - Sammy Davis Jr., who's recuperating from recurring throat cancer, canceled an engagement at a Lake Tahoe casino, a spokeswoman said.

Davis was scheduled to appear at Harrah's Tahoe April 4-8, but withdrew because of illness, the casino said Thursday.

The entertainer was released from Cedars-Sinai Medical Center in Los Angeles on Tuesday, and his publicist, Susan Reynolds, said he went to his home there to recover.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Is it too late to add my two cents' worth about the stick-it-to-the-insurance-company-or-patient syndrome?

A male neighbor who was hospitalized for treatment of cancer was charged for "use of delivery room." After several telephone calls and intervention from his physician, the charge was finally removed from his bill.

A 70-year-old man, in the hospital for eight days, received a bill for $8,000. The hospital agreed to lower the bill, when it was brought to its attention that many of the charges were for pregnancy tests.

Charges for a prosthesis for my wife's fractured hip included $1,000 for a pacemaker. Both the doctor and the hospital agreed that this charge was an error. It was removed from the bill. Medicare, however, went ahead and paid the whole thing. When we informed Medicare that they had this refund coming, they thanked us but did not bother to ask for it. (Medicare must by very rich to throw away money like that.)

Are these rare occurrences or malicious rumors? No, they are documented facts. One could fill a book with outrageous examples of questionable and unethical conduct associated with our present health care system.

When are we going to demand that something be done about these inequities and all the craziness? -- Weslaco, Tex.

DEAR WES: Good question. I'm bummed out on this subject. These examples, however, demonstrate the wisdom of examining all medical bills carefully and not assuming that the bills are accurate.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a shy 29-year-old male who is not into the bar scene, so I have a difficult time meeting women. Most of the women I've approached have said they are not interested or are just too busy to date.

I try to maintain a positive attitude and a good self-image, but when you've asked at least 40 women out and have had only two dates in your life, it's pretty depressing. I have never had sex, but I was kissed about five years ago.

I was belittled as a child and had a miserable time as a teen-ager. In high school, I was ridiculed and harassed. I never had a date, never went to a prom and never held a girl's hand. All those things that most teen-agers take for granted never happened to me.

It seems that if you are tall, handsome, outgoing and aggressive, you can have as many women as you want. These are the things that seem to matter in today's world. I can't understand why I am such a failure.

I consider myself a nice guy. I am honest, decent, caring, considerate, open-minded and reliable, and I treat women with respect. I need some advice, Ann. Please help me. -- Dateless in Milwaukee

DEAR MILWAUKEE: With so many women out there who would kill for a man with the sterling qualities you describe, it's difficult to understand why you are so lonely.

Perhaps something is wrong with the way you come across. You need constructive feedback from a professional who can assess the problem. This cannot be done through the mail. I suggest some counseling. You need to hear from a therapist what it is about you that turns people off. Let me know if you followed through. I'll keep my fingers crossed. Good Luck.

The territories of Nebraska and Kansas were established in 1854.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Years ago in your column I read about a method of washing a chamois. To my regret, I failed to clip it. Since this is such a helpful hint, could you please give some consideration to running a repeat? -- J.W. Williams, Omaha, Neb.

I'd be happy to, because a chamois cloth will last a long time if taken care of properly.

Wash it after each use in a mild soapy water, leaving a little soap in the cloth to help keep it pliable between uses.

After each washing, wring it out gently and pull it to its original shape. Lay it out to dry but not in the direct sunlight or near a heat source.

One important thing to remember is that a chamois should not be used with any strong chemicals, oil, grease or as a sponge when washing the car. -- Heloise

Lady Whitefaces ready for DSCCCI

The final event of Super Sports Weekends will get underway at 9 a.m. Saturday with the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce girls' track and field meet at Whiteface Stadium.

Field events will begin at 9 a.m. with running preliminaries scheduled for 10:30 a.m. Finals are set to start at 2 p.m.

"We'll have a pretty good varsity division here Saturday," Lady Whiteface coach Martha Emerson said. "Some of the teams that will be here are bringing some outstanding athletes."

The varsity division will include Plainview, Clovis, N.M., Pampa, Randall and Canyon. The same schools will also enter in the JV division along with Levelland and Dalhart. Emerson said Hereford will enter separate junior varsity and freshman teams in the lower division.

Emerson said one factor that will add to the varsity competition is that all teams running Saturday competed at last week's Raider Relays at Randall.

"We've already run against every body that's going to be here," she said, "so we know pretty much how we match up. But they had 15 teams over there and we're going to have six, and that will effect the point distribution."

"It's really going to make a team's depth, or lack of it, show up at the end of the day. We already know who has the quality, now we'll find out about quantity."

Emerson also said the meet will give here team another chance to compete with Pampa before the District 1-4A meet in April.

"I really think they're the team we have to beat if we're going to have a chance at the district meet," she said. "They only beat us by seven points over at Randall, but I think we'll be able to pick a few more fourth, fifth and sixth places."

Emerson added that the balance of each team will make a difference in the team race.

"It seems like everybody has someone that can win an event or two," she said. "Plainview has a couple of sprinters, Pampa is strong in the field events and relays, and Canyon has some good people. It ought to be a really competitive meet out there."

Pistons, Blazers continue to chase Lakers

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

The Detroit Pistons and Portland Trail Blazers just keep rolling along, putting pressure on the Los Angeles Lakers.

The defending NBA champion Pistons won their ninth straight and 22nd in 23 games Thursday night, defeating San Antonio 110-98 and pulling a game ahead of the Lakers in the race for the league's best record. Los Angeles lost 112-96 to Cleveland.

Portland won its seventh consecutive game and fifth straight on the road by defeating Golden State 128-121. The victory pulled the Trail Blazers within two games in the Pacific Division.

"Our ultimate goal is to catch the Lakers and win the division," Portland guard Clyde Drexler said. "If we can keep playing well like this, particularly on the road, we may catch them."

The Spurs, who need to win 13 of their final 20 games to become the most improved team in NBA history from one season to the next, were impressed by the Pistons in the first meeting between the two teams.

"The whole game, they executed better than anyone we've seen all season," Coach Larry Brown said.

Joe Dumars scored 21 points and James Edwards 20 for the Pistons, who held rookie sensation David Robinson to 16 points.

In other NBA games, it was Minnesota 102, New York 82; Milwaukee 96, Washington 91; Utah 117, Seattle 95 and Houston 92, Sacramento 86.

The Spurs stayed with Detroit until being held scoreless for 6 minutes, 26 seconds of the second half. In the third quarter, the Pistons extended a three-point halftime lead to 16.

Isiah Thomas had 18 assists for the Pistons, who are 29-5 when holding an opponent to less than 100 points. Terry Cummings had 25 points for San Antonio.

Trail Blazers 128, Warriors 121. Terry Porter scored 28 points for Portland, which outrebounded Golden State 53-35.

Kevin Duckworth had 10 of his 20 points in the final quarter for the Trail

Blazers, helping hold off a late Warriors' rally from a 14-point deficit. Chris Mullin scored 26 points for Golden State.

Cavalliers 112, Lakers 96. Cleveland handed Los Angeles its second loss in two nights, with Mark Price and Craig Ehlo each hitting key 3-pointers.

Ehlo scored 23 points, including a 3-pointer that finished a 13-2 run in the third quarter, and Price had 24 points. His 3-pointer highlighted a game-ending 19-7 flurry.

A.C. Green led the Lakers with 20 points. Jazz 117, Sonics 95.

Karl Malone had 38 points and 16 rebounds and John Stockton had 20 assists.

Olden Polynice came off the bench to lead Seattle with 18 points.

It was the 20th 20-assist game in Stockton's six years with the Jazz.

Timberwolves 102, Knicks 82. Minnesota kept alive New York's streak of losing in its first visit to expansion cities.

Tony Campbell scored 27 points, Pooh Richardson had 20 points and 12 assists and Tod Murphy had 17 rebounds for the Timberwolves, the fourth straight expansion team to defeat the Knicks in their first visit.

Patrick Ewing scored 24 points for the Knicks. Bucks 96, Bullets 91.

Milwaukee rallied to beat Washington as Jay Humphries scored 11 of his 17 points in the fourth quarter, including a go-ahead three-point play with 47 seconds left.

Jeff Malone led the Bullets with 26 points. Brad Lohaus had 17 points and a career-high 16 rebounds for Milwaukee. Rockets 92, Kings 86.

Vernon Maxwell scored 12 of his 18 points in the final 7 minutes. Buck Johnson scored 19 points and Akeem Olatunji had 17 points, 22 rebounds and eight blocks for the Rockets, who trailed by as many as 14 points late in the third quarter.

Danny Ainge led the Kings with 32 points.

Hogs, Sooners survive

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Billy Tubbs pledged that his top-ranked Oklahoma Sooners wouldn't take Towson State for granted.

He said that last year's scare in the first round of the NCAA tournament, when top-seeded Oklahoma trailed by 17 before beating East Tennessee State, would provide all the incentive needed to play inspired basketball in this year's first-round game.

Then again, maybe not. The Sooners were sluggish most of the way Thursday and had to hang on to beat 16th-seeded Towson State 77-68 in the opening game of the Midwest Regional.

"We were outmanned, outcoached. ... The only thing we did was outscore 'em," Tubbs said.

"The first game is scary. There's no electricity. It's just yuk, and that's kind of how we played."

Oklahoma wasn't the only high seed to struggle Thursday. Fifth-seeded Illinois lost 88-86 to Dayton, and fourth-seeded Arkansas blew a 13-point second-half lead before beating Princeton 68-64.

Also Thursday, eighth-seeded North Carolina beat No. 9 seed Southwest Missouri State 83-70.

Oklahoma (27-4) grabbed led 12-2 and was on top by as many as 14 three times late in the first half. But Towson State, making its first NCAA tournament appearance, put on an inspired second-half rally that had the Sooners sweating.

"We did the things you need to do to beat a team like Oklahoma," Towson State coach Terry Truax said.

The Tigers had few problems with Oklahoma's press, and in fact had the Sooners playing a zone much of the time. Towson State (18-13) also shot well while Oklahoma shot poorly (35 percent) in the second half.

Kurk Lee sparked the Tigers, scoring 18 of his 30 points in the second half. He scored six straight points to bring the Tigers to 60-58 with 6:45 remaining.

"Many people counted us out. But we know they put their uniforms on just like we do," Lee said.

After the Tigers came within two points, Terry Evans made a 3-pointer and Smokey McCovery added another as Oklahoma rebuilt the lead to 66-60.

Towson State was lurking at 70-66 when Evans made another 3-pointer, this one with 1:41 to play, and that virtually sealed the victory. Towson State got no closer than five after that.

"I think we made a statement," said Truax, whose team got here by winning the East Coast Conference tournament. "Anyone who watched this game today, I don't think they'd have any trouble selling an Oklahoma-Towson State rematch."

Oklahoma will play North Carolina in Saturday's second-round game. The Tar Heels (20-12) used their superior inside strength to wear down Southwest Missouri State (22-7) in the second half, giving Dean Smith his 20th consecutive 20-victory season.

Smith wasted no time poor-mouthing his team's chances against Oklahoma.

"They could blow us out," he said. "They blew out Missouri and Kansas-Kansas twice. We run the same offense and defense (as Kansas), so that doesn't sound very good, does it?"

Playing Princeton, the master of the slow tempo, never sounded good to Arkansas coach Nolan Richardson. He saw how Princeton nearly beat Georgetown in last year's first-round game.

"I remember talking to John (Thompson) and he told me, 'You don't want to play Princeton,'" Richardson said. "He was right. It was very difficult. The fat lady didn't sing, but she was a hummin'."

Princeton took a 20-9 lead before

Tagliabue making mark

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) - If the five days of the NFL meetings are any indication, the league is in for a lot of changes in the Paul Tagliabue era.

Tagliabue's first meetings as commissioner adjourned Thursday with his stamp in evidence - on television, labor, officiating, realignment and a steroids policy. Now he will focus on items as varied as street drugs and corporate ownership.

Tagliabue not only got $3.64 billion over four years from television but was able to save instant replay for another year in the face of heavy odds, to implement random year-round steroid testing, to bridge the gap between coaches and officials, and to put into place a new committee that he hopes will end the labor impasse.

He also took the first step in two decades to realign divisions into more realistic groupings when he appointed a committee on expansion and realignment.

"With a little bit of luck, things kind of fell into place," Tagliabue said of a week that went just about as well as he could have planned.

The next step will come May 23-24 at Dallas, when the owners will meet again to tie up loose ends and perhaps break new ground in keeping with the slogan, "Carry the NFL into the 21st century."

One item yet to be resolved is hiring of a drug adviser to replace Dr. Forrest Tennant, who resigned under much fire before the meetings began. Tagliabue said he had interviewed several candidates and would interview others before making a decision. He also said that he was working with a Minnesota drug counselor Peter Bell, although Bell is not a candidate for the job because he is not a physician.

Corporate ownership, which lacks the pizzazz of drugs, is almost as

Spartans outrace Murray St. in OT

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Kirk Manns found himself in midair under the basket, holding the ball and Michigan State's season in his hands. "I didn't know what I was going to do," he said. "I got myself in a bad spot, getting myself up in the air like that. I don't stay up in the air that long once I get there, so I had to do something."

Manns decided to do what came naturally, spinning a blind shot off the backboard and in to give Michigan State a two-point lead on the way to a 75-71 overtime victory over 16th-seeded Murray State in a first-round NCAA Southeast Regional game on Thursday.

"I feel like we got a reprieve today," Spartan coach Jud Heathcote said after his Big Ten champions, the region's No. 1 seed, outscored Murray State 8-3 in the final 2:19 of overtime. Michigan State (27-5) survived to advance into the second round against another team that benefited from late heroics, UC Santa Barbara.

The Gauchos (22-9) slipped by Houston 70-66.

On the other side of the bracket, LSU (23-8) beat Villanova 70-63, handing Wildcats coach Rollie Massimino his first-ever loss in 10 first-round NCAA games, and Georgia Tech (25-6) dumped East Tennessee State 99-83 to run its record outside the Atlantic Coast Conference to 17-0.

Michigan State survived a 37-point performance by Murray State's Popeye Jones, whose basket gave the Racers a 68-67 lead with 2:52 left in overtime.

Steve Smith, who led Michigan State with 22 points, hit consecutive jumpers for a 71-68 lead.

A 3-point basket by Frank Allen tied the game before Manns pulled off his aerial basket to put the Spartans ahead for good at 73-71 with 42 seconds to play.

"A game like this should help us. We overcame some adversity and we can build on it," Manns, who scored 21 points, said.

The loss ended a dream season for Murray State, champion of the Ohio Valley Conference.

"Our guys took us on a magic carpet ride this year," said Coach

Steve Newton, whose Racers (21-9) began the season 1-5.

Santa Barbara led most of the way against Houston, but fell behind 66-65 on a jumper by the Cougars' Craig Upchurch with 1:17 to play.

Eric McArthur hit a follow shot to put Santa Barbara up 67-66 with 59 seconds remaining, added a free throw with 28 seconds left and then came up with a steal with 10 seconds left.

The final-minute plays capped a game in which McArthur, the Gauchos' career rebounding leader, had 20 points, 11 rebounds, five blocked shots and four steals.

"We came in with two goals: to hold them under 70 points and to play well on the defensive end. We did both," McArthur said.

Santa Barbara coach Jerry Pimm said he could not have asked for better execution.

"Our plan was to be patient and look for the quick shot. We took them out of their game. They had only one layup," Pimm said. "We had a very successful game. These guys believe in what we want them to do and that will help us win."

Carl Herrera topped Houston (25-8) with 19 points.

LSU hurt itself with 26 turnovers, but held Villanova to 30.4 percent shooting and outrebounded the Wildcats 47-38.

LSU bolted to a 25-8 lead, held a 44-31 advantage in the second half, then withstood a rally that saw Villanova get to 63-58 late in the game.

The Tigers have blown large leads in several games this season, but LSU coach Dale Brown said he took heart in his team holding off the Wildcats for 40 minutes.

"We came into the game with our lunch bucket. We played good defensively and we had the best (offensive and defensive) balance we've had all year," Brown said.

"I was pleased to see we did not lose our composure tonight. Although we are young, I never once saw us panic in the huddle. We could have lost our composure, but we didn't."

The Tigers got 16 points each from

All-American guard Chris Jackson and Maurice Williamson, who hit four 3-point jumpers in the first half.

Massimino, who won an NCAA title in 1985, thinks LSU is a team with a chance.

"I give LSU a very good future in this tournament. They have an outstanding rebounding team and they are very aggressive," Massimino said. "We have played with some of the best teams in the nation (in the Big East Conference) and LSU certainly fits into that category."

Chris Walker led the Wildcats with 20 points.

Georgia Tech had no trouble with East Tennessee State, which in last year's first round took Oklahoma to the final second before losing 72-71.

The Atlantic Coast Conference tournament champion led tyhroughout, jumping to a 14-4 lead in the first four minutes and building a 49-24 halftime lead behind Dennis Scott's 21 first-half points.

Scott scored 36 and Kenny Anderson added 21 points and 10 assists.

"We respected East Tennessee State and we came out ready for them," Georgia Tech coach Bobby Cremins said.

"Kenny is our key," Cremins said. "He shot the ball extremely well (eight of 11 from the field, including three of four from 3-point range) and runs the show. It was a great start into the NCAA tournament."

Calvin Talford and Keith Jenning topped East Tennessee (27-7) with 17 points each.

NFL MEETING CONTINUES

controversial among the league's owners.

For years, league bylaws have prohibited corporate ownership for fear of selling NFL stocks over the counter and because a wealthy corporation would have far more money to spend on players than a family-owned team.

Tagliabue said he might favor such ownership under the right circumstances. He noted that NHL and NBA teams have been owned by corporations and cited what he called responsible corporations "like Disney and Coca-Cola" that might be brought in.

Asked if he envisioned teams someday being called the 3-M Vikings or the Coca-Cola Falcons, he replied: "That's when I will no longer be commissioner."

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have been through a nightmare, but hopefully I'm on the right track. I was treated for over a year for bronchitis. I was coughing so badly and wheezing that I never slept more than an hour at a time in six months. My cough was so bad I was bringing up streaks of blood. The doctor and nurse thought nothing of it even after I brought the telltale tissues in. I insisted on another chest X-ray and they said all was normal. I really thought I was on death's door.

Things came to a head at a Chinese restaurant. I was having more difficulty than usual breathing. Fortunately, I was a block away from an emergency room. I was nearly dead. If I had been without help for a couple more minutes it would have been too late.

After all the tests, they found I had congestive cardiomyopathy. The 20 pounds of fluid I had gained has gone and I'm being treated for congestive heart failure.

My former doctor would not return my call, but I bumped into him at the hospital one day and confronted him. He said he was sorry, and that hindsight was 100 percent. I pray that watching my diet, no sodium and low-fat, I will have a few more years. Would you please comment on this situation?

DEAR READER: I'm glad you have been diagnosed and are being treated for the real cause of your wheezing and coughing.

Anything that damages the heart muscle or prevents it from being able to pump with enough strength, will cause congestive heart failure. In your case, your diagnosis suggests a form of inflammation of the heart muscle must have occurred. Regardless of the cause, a common symptom of congestive heart failure is shortness of breath, coughing and wheezing, and you can cough up blood.

When the left heart fails, fluid accumulates in the lungs and makes it difficult to breathe. In some cases this is actually called "cardiac asthma." The increased pressure in the veins in the lungs that return blood to the heart causes blood to leak into the air sacs and you can cough up blood.

You will understand all of this better after reading Special Report 64, Congestive Heart Failure, which I'm sending you. Others who want this report can send $2 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. As the heart muscle regains its capacity to pump, the symptoms are relieved and often a person can do a great deal without difficulty.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Where can a person go for a sex change operation? My 36-year-old son has made up his mind to do this. He lived away from home for five years and has thought it all through. He has been home now for over a year. Now he dresses as a female, complete with bust. It is an embarrassment to me and his younger brother, who is threatening to leave home. I can't ask my oldest son to leave home as he cannot go out into the work world as a woman and he refuses to dress as a male. He claims he is not a cross-dresser. I'm not well and am indeed frustrated. We have just enough money to pay our bills.

DEAR READER: Your son will not be able to get a sex operation without a complete psychiatric examination. I would suggest he see a psychiatrist, who may be able to guide him as to the best decision for him, what measures he should take, if any, and where.

Sex operations have been discontinued by many centers because they may not resolve the basic psychiatric conflicts and may simply add to the problem in the long run.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I had a series of little strokes the doctors called TIAs. They think they were caused by a blood clot and high blood pressure. My tongue felt swollen and my face and mouth twisted. I couldn't talk. After four days they were able to stabilize my blood pressure, and with medication it is now fairly constant at 115/80. The doctor told me to change my lifestyle and lose weight. I've lost 8 pounds and am continuing to lose. I weighed 180 and am 5 feet 8 inches.

My only problem is some spells of shortness of breath and some tightness in the chest and sometimes chest pain. I had two EKGs in the hospital and they were OK. My doctor said the spells could be spasms. My husband says it was nerves because of the experience. What do you think it could be?

DEAR READER: You were lucky. Small strokes or transient ischemia attacks (TIAs) present all the symptoms of a stroke, but last for a short time, from seconds to 24 hours.

The two factors that are most likely to increase a person's risk of a stroke are high blood pressure and smoking cigarettes. Controlling your blood pressure is extremely important. You can certainly help by gradually getting rid of every pound of excess body fat you may have. You may need less medicine if you do that.

Electrocardiograms (EKG or ECG) may be normal at rest even if you are having a heart problem unless they are taken during chest pain. Otherwise, exercise tests and perhaps other procedures are necessary to tell if a person has coronary artery disease causing the chest pain.

Individuals who have a stroke are more likely to have a heart disease than those who do not. In fact, many stroke patients who recover die later from a heart attack. Keeping your weight down, staying active and keeping your cholesterol level as well as your blood pressure down, along with not smoking, are important.

Read Special Report 78, About Strokes, for more information. I'm sending you a free copy. Others who want this report can send $2 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/78, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

I wouldn't want to guess about your shortness of breath and chest pain without additional studies, such as an exercise electrocardiogram or additional tests to completely evaluate your coronary arteries.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am inquiring about a ganglion on my wrist. I had it operated on, but it came back as big as it was before the operation. Do they ever get, or are they malignant? What can I do now to get rid of it forever? I am worried about it because it came back so soon after the operation.

DEAR READER: No, it is not cancer and it will not become cancer. Actually, it is a cyst connected to the joint space. It has a pedicle for the connection. Some small ones on the finger may be broken and heal. But the larger ones, as on your wrist, must be removed surgically. It is best to have the ganglion injected with methylene blue dye so the pedicle can be identified before surgery. Then the entire ganglion and its pedicle connecting to the joint capsule it connects with is identified and removed. If the joint capsule is left open to heal later, the joint fluid does not accumulate and you are less likely to have a recurrence. Of course the other structures over the joint through the skin are closed.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

It has been estimated that as the Aral Sea shrinks, 43 million tons of salty grit are whipped up from the dry seabed each year and carried away by the winds.
