

National Cowgirl Hall Discontinues Local Rodeo

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Ever-rising fuel costs for traveling cowgirls and higher local expenses have forced the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame board to at least temporarily discontinue the Hereford all-girl rodeo.

The board voted Wednesday night to not have the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame All-Girl Rodeo Weekend in August, when it was originally scheduled. Directors then announced plans for a special October weekend-ends rodeo.

"We are going to cancel all plans for an all-girl rodeo in August. We have postponed hall of fame weekend festivities until October. Events will be purely local in nature and won't involve people coming in from outside the community," said Garth Thomas, general chairman of the steering committee for the hall of fame weekend.

Thomas said the newly-scheduled weekend will be centered around local riding and roping activities and a dance on Oct. 18.

"We hope to continue to have an induction of people into the hall of fame,"

Thomas said. "We're not doing away with the hall of fame."

Quite the contrary, added Roy Faubion, chairman of the hall of fame board. "We are planning to have one heckuva fun weekend for the community. In no way are we letting down on development of the hall. In fact, we hope to continue to expand," Faubion said.

Thomas and Faubion blamed the cost of fuel as the primary reason for discontinuing the rodeo.

"We arrived at this decision very reluctantly after consultation with the Girls Rodeo Association, based on experiences that the Girls Rodeo Association are having with rodeos, whereby the contestants are unable to get to places because of the costs of transportation," Thomas said.

"We simply can't have a successful rodeo without contestants," Faubion added. "Some of the girls have to travel 800, 900 or 1,000 miles and they simply can no longer afford to come."

Faubion said he has been in contact with GRA general secretary Lydia Moore concerning the feasibility of continuing the Hereford rodeo.

"She told me that it's getting increasingly difficult to depend upon having an adequate supply of cowgirls for our rodeo," he said.

Faubion said resumption of the Hereford rodeo depends strictly upon the economy.

"We're anticipating the return of the rodeo to Hereford as soon as it is economically and patriotically possible. By that, I mean that we feel it's not right to encourage people to travel long distances when the country is discouraging unnecessary consumption of fuel," Faubion said.

The two hall directors said that the increased local cost of staging a rodeo also

Iran Militants To Abide by Transfer

For Water, Sewer Systems

Bond Election Set Saturday

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Hereford voters, besides casting ballots Saturday for two city commissioners, three school-board members and three hospital-district directors, will decide the fate of a proposed $1.255 million revenue-bond issue for water and sewer expansion.

If it passes, the bond issue will allow the city to pay for three wells, supply lines, 622 acres of land for future expansion and a ground-storage tank. The sewage portion of the issue, should it pass, will pay for expansion of the city's sewage-treatment facility and the construction of collector lines.

The bond issue is the city's first since 1968 and the most costly in its history.

The city last year drilled three wells and constructed supply lines connecting them to the Ave. C water station at a total cost of $217,000, which will be paid if the bond issue passes.

Also included in the water portion of the issue are the purchase of 622 acres of land 4 1/2 miles west of Hereford, a proposed 1 million-gallon ground-storage tank at the city water field, lines connecting wells at Holly Sugar to that storage tank and test holes.

The 622 acres, accepted this year by the city, will cost $194,000, and the storage tank and Holly well lines $330,000.

The city in February entered into a 20-year contract with Holly to use four wells at the sugar-processing corporation.

The sewer portion of the bond issue will enable the city to install another primary clarifier, which will cost $245,000 at the sewage-treatment facility and construct collector lines in various parts of town. The collector lines will cost $180,000.

The primary clarifier now at the treatment plant was designed for a 15,000 city population and 1.1 million gallons of sewage daily, according to City Manager Dudley Bayne. The city now sends approximately 1.3 million gallons of sewage to the plant daily.

The revenue bonds, if the issue passes as city officials expect, will be purchased through increased water and sewerage rates for residences and businesses.

The city commission voted in March to increase the water rate by 20 cents per 1,000 gallons for residences and the sewerage base charge by $1.

City residents currently pay a $1.50 sewerage charge on their water bills. That will increase to $2.50 beginning in May, regardless of what happens in Saturday's bond election.

For water usage, residents currently pay a minimum charge of $3 for 2,000 gallons and 40 cents for each additional 1,000 gallons. The base charge will remain the same, but additional charges will increase to 60 cents in May.

Businesses will pay the same water rates as residential customers. However, commercial customers, who now pay 30 percent of their water bill for sewerage service, will be charged 50 percent in May.

The base water rate for customers outside the city limits will increase from $3 to $4.50. Additional charges will increase from 60 to 90 cents per 1,000 gallons.

Saturday's issue, if passed by voters, will not result in a tax increase.

Bergland Pushes Grain Elevators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland says if grain elevators don't start offering more wheat and corn for sale to the government at realistic prices he'll soon ask farmers to sell their grain directly to the government.

The Agriculture Department bought 16.6 million bushels of wheat last week and Tuesday announced corn purchases totaling 33.2 million bushels.

Much of the grain offered by country elevators was rejected by USDA because the asking prices were too high. Bergland said if this continues other methods will be used.

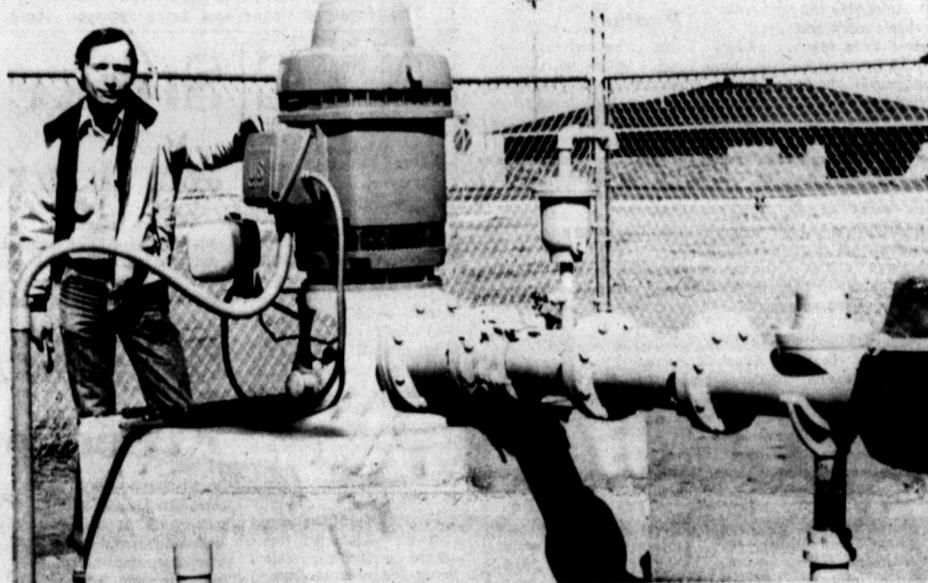

"Then our plans are to go directly to the county offices (of USDA) and buy grain right on the farms," Bergland said Wednesday.

A department spokesman, asked to elaborate, said purchase of grain directly from farmers has been discussed as an alternative but that whether it will be done depends on how grain offerings by elevators stack up in the near future.

The spokesman, Jack Keyser, said if the plan is put into effect it could involve the posting of prices for wheat and corn at county offices of the department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. Farmers then could decide whether to sell their grain directly to the government.

In any event, Bergland says the purchases will continue indefinitely, on an alternating basis for wheat and corn each

Servicing Water Well

City pumper Jerry Harrison services a new well in the 300 block of Hickory. The well was constructed last year to meet increased city water demands. Recently-constructed wells will be financed through Saturday's revenue-bond election, if it passes. The bond issue calls for $1.225 million in water and sewer expansion. [Brand photo]

TSTA Bargaining Lambasted

By LEE JONES

Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) —

The Texas State Teachers Association will be getting back talk from a new, 19,000-member teachers' organization when it asks the Legislature next year for higher pay and collective bargaining rights.

The Association of Texas

Professional Educators was formed by the merger of the Association of Texas

Educators (ATE) and the

Texas Professional Educators

(TPE).

Presidents-elect of the two organizations held a news conference Wednesday to announce the merger and denounce the TSTA for even thinking about collective bargaining.

"Our main thing will be to fight against collective bargaining and unionism and to keep school teaching a profession in this state," said Gloria McMeans of Stanton, president-elect of TPE.

Teachers and administrators who opposed TSTA's decision to unify with the National Education Association (NEA) formed ATE and TPE in 1975.

NEA has strongly supported collective bargaining for teachers while opposing unionization efforts by the American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO.

"It seems to us that TSTA's and NEA's claim to fame is controversy," said Mike Morrow, executive director of ATE.

Alafair Hammett of Santa Rosa, president-elect of ATE, said she opposes collective bargaining because she believes it interferes with "the smooth teaching of students. It usually ends with some striking or walkouts."

Both Ms. McMeans and Ms. Hammett agreed with the TSTA's view that teachers need higher salaries but said the new organization has not come up with an exact proposal.

Neither has TSTA, but Morrow said, "TSTA has made totally unrealistic demands on a salary bill. We've been much more willing to cooperate than they have."

"Nobody needs a raise any better than teachers. But when I became a teacher, I knew in advance I was not going to get rich doing it. Teaching is more of a calling than a job someone goes out and gets because there is nothing else to do," said Ms. McMeans.

The association's board will decide whether Ms. McMeans or Ms. Hammett will be the new organization's president and whether its executive director will be Jack Martin of TPE or Morrow.

2 Die During Texas Flooding

By The Associated Press

Swift currents in a rain-swollen creek swept away a Wichita Falls woman and an infant who had abandoned a car after tornado sirens sounded and sought shelter in an underground drainage culvert.

Police recovered the body of Oma Crawford, 41, but her grandson, 3-month-old Jerry Crawford, was missing and presumed dead late Wednesday night.

Another person was slightly injured Wednesday when a tornado destroyed four mobile homes, damaged two houses, demolished three barns and downed power lines near Whitt in Parker County, a Department of Public Safety spokesman said.

Funnel clouds accompanied severe thunderstorms that danced across wide areas of North Texas on Wednesday and heavy downpours triggered flash flooding in several areas.

Large damaging hail pelted Parker, Wise, Palo Pinto, Hood, Johnson, Tarrant and Ellis counties, causing extensive damage in some areas.

Wichita Falls residents — still nervous in the wake of last year's massive tornado that killed 46 persons — scurried for cover when sirens announced the sightings of twisters in Wichita and Archer counties.

Heavy rains Wednesday afternoon turned Wichita Falls streets into raging rivers that swept vehicles aside.

It was the same heavy rains that sent water racing through the two-mile-long underground culvert where Militants holding American hostages inside the occupied U.S. Embassy in Tehran said today they are ready to turn their captives over to the ruling Revolutionary Council if requested. The transfer could come Saturday, two council members said.

Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, interviewed on American television, said President Carter had met his demands for the government to take control of the hostages, and that he would ask the council to make a decision later in the day.

A spokesman for the militants said, "We will accept any decision that the Revolutionary Council takes because it is the highest body in the country which is supported by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini," leader of the revolution.

The militants had relied on Khomeini's support to defy an attempt by Bani-Sadr last month to take custody of the Americans.

Bani-Sadr, speaking to CBS and NBC News, said the Revolutionary Council would decide on the timing of the transfer, and that an Iranian Parliament to meet this summer would settle the fate of the Americans.

He also said that the hostages would be allowed visitors, but that the council would decide whether their families would be able to see them. No family members have been allowed to see the hostages since militants seized the embassy 152 days ago.

Two members of the Revolutionary Council were quoted as saying the hostages could be transferred as early as Saturday. The Tehran newspaper Kayhan reported that council members Ezzalab Sahabi and Ayatollah Mahdavi Kani discussed the issue with the militants.

Sahabi said he and another council member, Hashami Rafsanjani, are permanent go-betweens in discussions involving the council and the militants.

Kani said that Khomeini would settle any differences that might arise between the council and the militants.

Khomeini generally has backed the militants, who demand the return of ousted Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and his wealth to Iran as the price of the hostages' freedom.

The shah, recuperating from removal of his cancerous spleen in a Cairo hospital, was visited today by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, who reiterated the former monarch would be staying in Egypt permanently. It appeared to be an indirect rejection of the militants' demands.

One group close to the militants has denounced moving the hostages. The group, known as The Struggling Moslem Movement, told a Western reporter in Tehran that President Carter has been using threats and flattery to try to force Bani-Sadr to take custody of the hostages.

A spokesman for the movement said that Carter obviously hopes to pressure the Iranian people and Khomeini before the new Parliament meets.

He said Carter will call the Iranian government the only regime in history not to hand over diplomatic hostages once the Revolutionary Council has taken control of the Americans, and that this would put pressure on Bani-Sadr and Khomeini to let the hostages go.

However, the Carter administration says it will be "restrained" in its efforts to free the hostages and is urging the public to "stay cool, at least for a while."

Administration officials said the United States should know in a matter of days whether the Iranian government will make good its offer to take custody of the hostages.

Bani-Sadr was quoted as saying Carter agreed in a message delivered Wednesday not to talk publicly about the hostage situation to hopes the transfer will take place.

"As far as I am concerned, the United States has now met the condition for the Revolutionary Council to take control of the hostages," Bani-Sadr said in the CBS interview.

Packers Announce Employee Layoffs

Poor demand for processed beef has resulted in a temporary layoff of 75 employees at the Armour Foods Co. plant here, The Brand has learned.

According to Ed Speer, director of public relations with Armour's Phoenix office, the second shift, which fabricates beef cuts, was "temporarily discontinued" effective Monday.

"The reason for the layoff is simply an economic one. There's been a poor market for the past several weeks and processed meat is moving slowly at this time," stated Speer.

"We don't know how long the layoff will last at this point in time, but it is not intended to be a permanent layoff," Speer added.

The layoff at the local meat processing plant points up the current situation in the beef industry where price declines for the finished product remain a problem while high interest and inflation have cut into beef purchases by processing firms.

The local Armour plant announced a similar layoff during 1979 when unfavorable conditions cut demand and slowed the market.

That temporary layoff lasted approximately one month.

Elderly-Insurance Report Forthcoming

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The State Insurance Board soon will send out 13,000 questionnaires in the most intensive effort ever made to learn of obstacles that handicapped and aged Texans encounter when they want to buy insurance.

Legislators expect a report from the board next January outlining any changes in state law that might be needed to assure that old people and the elderly can get the policies they need.

The board held several days of hearings in December and plans another one, probably in June, after its staff completes its tentative findings. The second hearing will enable insurance companies to give their side.

A number of persons testified at the hearings last year they were unable to get auto or hospitalization insurance because of their age or handicaps. There also were complaints of policies that did not pay the advertised benefits and of high-pressure tactics to sell old persons unneeded coverage.

Scientists Debate

Volcano Eruption

COUGAR, Wash. (AP) - After a day of violent eruptions, Mount St. Helens was being rocked by harmonic tremors - a type of quake that has preceded eruptions at other volcanoes - and scientists were debating whether the 9,677-foot peak will spew lava in a major convulsion.

The new seismic activity Wednesday night apparently means magma - molten rock - is moving to the surface of the volcano that came to life last week, said Dave Endicott, a spokesman for the University of Washington geophysics department in Seattle.

"It is the kind of seismic occurrence often seen before an eruption," Endicott said. "It's impossible to say how deep the magma is...let's just say we're watching this one real close."

Wednesday night's seismic readings showed very smooth curves, while previous quake readings have been very erratic, he said.

Activists Seek

Food-Stamp Help

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Some of the 1.1 million Texans who depend on food stamps might starve to death in June if Congress does not find $2.5 billion to pour into the foundering program, according to a coalition of social activists.

"Last month the federal government sent Texans $44 million in food stamps," said Velma Roberts of the Austin Welfare Rights Organization.

The food stamp flow will end in June unless Congress allocates the $2.5 billion for the system by May 15, she said. Food stamps again would be available after the federal fiscal year begins Oct. 1.

"The food stamp program is out of money. Inflation, unemployment, and skyrocketing medical and utility costs have forced more people to turn to food stamps. Last year Congress expanded eligibility for the program, but did not appropriate any extra money to pay for those who were nearly eligible," Mrs. Roberts said at a Wednesday news conference at the Capitol.

Reserve Board Wants

Account Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Federal Reserve Board has moved to protect customers from "unfair surprises" by requiring lenders to give 30 days' written notice of any change in credit-account terms.

The board's decision Wednesday covers a wide variety of changes in credit account terms, including increases in finance charges, imposition of additional credit fees, a rise in minimum monthly payments, a lowering of borrowing limits on credit cards and revisions in the way monthly bills are calculated.

If customers stop using an account, they may pay off their outstanding debt on the original terms, the board decided. However, a borrower who continues to charge on an account must pay the entire balance in accordance with the new terms, the board said.

The board's action is retroactive to March 14, meaning that any lender who has changed credit terms since then will have to renotify customers.

week. The aim is to help boost sagging grain prices and remove from the market all of the wheat and at least part of the corn that was dumped when President Carter embargoed further sales to the Soviet Union.

"We have a lot of what we call blue-sky bidding," Bergland said in a telephone interview with a group of farm broadcasters. "People come in with an offer to sell us corn at $4 a bushel and they're playing games with us. We don't regard those as serious offers, we reject those out of hand."

Although prices paid so far by USDA have varied greatly, according to geographic locations and other local market factors, wheat purchase have averaged $3.99 a bushel and corn $2.35 a bushel.

The plan calls for USDA to buy all of the 4 million metric tons of wheat - 146.8 million bushels - and hold it for use in overseas aid programs.

Up to 9 million metric tons of corn - 354.6 million bushels - could be bought, officials have said, although no specific total has been announced.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat or 39.4 bushels of corn.

Bergland was told that a grain trader in Chicago commented, "Are you kidding?" when told of the amount of corn bought by the government, indicating he thought it was a relatively insignificant volume.

"We had to accept bids (for corn) which we regarded as reasonable, and many were not," Bergland replied.

quoted Bani-Sadr as saying. "We asked Carter to say he will speak no more about this matter until Parliament convenes and he has sent us a note saying he accepts that."

The Washington Post, which had a similar report, said the new U.S. message only repeated past U.S. assertions that the hostages should be freed as soon as possible and noted Iran's intention to have their fate decided by the new parliament.

Bani-Sadr said Tuesday his government would take custody of the hostages if the United States issues an official statement promising to refrain from hostilities, propaganda or provocation against Iran until the Parliament takes up the matter, probably in midsummer.

Carter delayed any new political or economic sanctions against Iran in response to Bani-Sadr's offer, but Bani-Sadr said that action didn't satisfy Iranian demands that the United States refrain from eight Crawford family members and a friend sought refuge from what they thought was an advancing tornado.

Terry Crawford said the family followed tornado warning advise it heard on the radio.

"The first thing you do is get in a ditch and get out of the car," said Terry

Crawford. Gary Don Crawford, 14, said they tried to walk out of the culvert when the water began rising, but the current was too strong.

"The water suddenly rushed through and knocked us all down," he said.

He said the baby was not seen again after the child was knocked out of an infant seat and swept down the culvert.

Police found the body of the woman in a weeded area of the creek bed two miles away. Officials called off the search for the infant Wednesday night, but said they would begin again Thursday morning.

"We have not given up hope," Jerry Crawford, father of the missing child, said Wednesday night.

The sirens sounded in Wichita Falls after police reported a funnel cloud 200 feet off the ground just west of Wichita Falls. There were also other public sightings south and west of the city.

The DPS also confirmed sightings near Holliday in Archer County and three miles north of Lake Kickapoo.

Residents in the southwest quadrant of the Wichita Falls - plowed under by the April 10, 1979 tornado - heeded warnings and ran inside their homes.

"When the sirens sounded, I had to go tell people on the street who weren't here last year what the sirens meant and what they should do," one resident said.

Thunderstorms also dumped rain in far South Texas, far Southeast Texas and along the coast Wednesday.

The storms were a continuation of bad weather that covered central portions of the state, along the Red River and in Northwest Texas.

Forecasts called for clearing skies in the eastern half of the state and for continued fair skies in the western half.

Highs were to range from the 60s in the Panhandle to the 80s in Southeast Texas and in the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas. Most areas were to have highs in the 70s.

Dense fog covered much of the eastern third of the state ranging southward from the Tyler area all the way into the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Many areas had visibility below one half mile. The fog was mixed with some light drizzle, causing hazardous driving conditions.

encouraged the board to discontinue the event.

"The cost of contracting approved GRA rodeo stock and the cost of hauling that stock has gone out of sight," Thomas said.

Faubion added that the rodeo purse also would have had to be increased to attract contestants.

The Hereford rodeo would have been in its sixth year. The chamber of commerce sponsored the event until 1978 before the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame assumed control.

The rodeo made a profit the last two years. Because of that profit, the local purse was the second-largest of any GRA rodeo in the country, Faubion said.

The rodeo has attracted top-ranked cowgirls from throughout the country, in its five years of existence.

NYC Strike Continues

NEW YORK (AP) - Footsore commuters began a third day on the hoof today as the Metropolitan Transportation Authority was taking defiant bus and subway union leaders to court, hoping a threat of jail might break the "strike fever" union leaders say won't cool before next week.

Meanwhile, suburban commuters climbed aboard Long Island Rail Road trains that returned to service today after union officials ordered the rank-and-file to end a two-day strike.

But motorists, already under firm police pressure to car-pool, faced the prospect of even more jammed streets as city tow-truck operators threatened to put abandoned cars in the way unless they get a rate increase.

The New York Times reported negotiators for the MTA and the striking bus and subway unions had agreed to resume bargaining today.

"There indeed has been movement," said mediation chairman Walter Gellhorn. "It is premature to talk of a contract, but there has been a clarification of issues."

However, union leaders warned New Yorkers not to expect a quick end to the mass transit collapse that has stranded 5.5 million daily passengers, filled up hotels and brought an additional 500,000 persons into the borough of Manhattan.

"It's going to take at least a week to get this out of their system," Transport Workers Union local president John Lawe said of his membership. "They have the strike fever." Union leaders were due in court today to face contempt charges for calling the walkout in defiance of an injunction. The union leaders could be jailed. In addition, state law prohibits strikes by public employees and provides for fines for strikers of two days pay for each day off.

On Wednesday, traffic jams 14 lanes wide and extending for two miles were reported at major Manhattan entry points as commuters left behind by the walkout of 33,000 bus and subway workers streamed into the city. It was the first crowded day of the strike - Tuesday was the first day of Passover and other people just stayed home.

Traffic accidents were up more than 40 percent, but reports of major crime dropped 23 percent as the city doubled the number of police pounding pavement already crowded to overflowing with walkers, joggers and roller-skaters.

Emergency coordinator Eugene Connell estimated Manhattan's population of 1.4 million had swelled by 500,000 as residents of outlying areas moved in with friends or relatives, took hotel rooms or camped in offices.

The strike began Tuesday when the MTA offered a 12 percent wage increase. Workers, who make an average of $18,000 a year, are demanding a 25 percent increase.

LIRR employees are seeking a three-year contract and a 21 percent wage increase. There was no settlement, but union leaders ordered the 6,200 employees back to work at the request of a mediator and warned the strike could resume if no progress was made.

'Death Angel' Freed on Bail

By NORM CLARKE
Associated Press Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. - "A marshmallow indictment," scoffed attorney Melvin Belli after his client, a 32-year-old nurse, was indicted in the hospital "Death Angel" case on an open murder charge alleging she tampered with a patient's life-support system.

Jani Adams turned herself in Wednesday and was freed on $15,000 bail after a Clark County grand jury returned an indictment stemming from the death at Sunrise Hospital of 51-year-old Vincent Fraser.

The grand jury, after interviewing about 20 witnesses, alleged that Fraser, a critically ill lawn sprinkler repairman from Miami, died March 3 when his life-support system was tampered with.

Arrestment for the night nursing supervisor was set for Friday. Miss Adams, a former English instructor at Clemson University, burst into tears when court officers manacled her wrists.

During a press conference, county District Attorney Bob Miller said his staff presented evidence linking Miss Adams to a second death at Sunrise Hospital's intensive care unit, where she worked. However, the grand jury did not return an indictment in the death of Marian Bartlett, an 85-year-old New York woman.

Authorities have alleged that workers at the Las Vegas hospital made bets on the life expectancy of patients. Miller said there was evidence that "there might have been betting" in the hospital as to when a patient might die, but he said the indictment of Miss Adams had nothing to do with gambling.

Belli said he would appeal the grand jury's decision. He predicted the case would not reach trial "because I think we'll beat it in the appellate court."

A key witness in the case was Bertha Fraser, the victim's widow. She told the grand jury her husband, who had been hospitalized two months with kidney failure, died one day after a nurse asked her to sign a release for a mortuary.

"I had a feeling that something was wrong, that he wasn't receiving the right care," she told The Associated Press.

Woman Arrested In Felony

Hereford police this morning arrested Bonnie Sue Stewart, 21, of 816 Blevins, for felony criminal mischief in connection with a broken window in a car.

Doris Chavers, Blue Water Garden Apts., reported the broken window. Ms. Stewart was arrested shortly after midnight today.

A 19-year-old Hereford man was charged with driving while intoxicated Wednesday night, and a 16-year-old juvenile was arrested in connection with a recent house burglary. A camera was stolen in that break-in.

Police Wednesday investigated two minor accidents and wrote 10 traffic citations.

Convicted Man Flies into Rage

GROVETON, Texas (AP)

- A 23-year-old Livingston man convicted of murdering a young woman flew into a violent rage and had to be subdued and held by deputies after jurors returned a death sentence in the case.

Sheriff's deputies placed handcuffs on the defendant, Johnny Penry, and sat on either side of him, holding him as he continued to struggle during the end of his trial Wednesday. He wept and shook his head from side to side.

Prosecutors said Penry sexually assaulted and then stabbed to death Pamela Moseley Carpenter, 21, the sister of Washington Redskins placekicker Mark Moseley, last October.

The jury of seven women and five men deliberated less than an hour Tuesday before finding Penry guilty of capital murder, and then took only 31 minutes Wednesday to recommend death by lethal injection for the accused killer.

Penry stood quietly while District Judge Joe Ned Dean read the verdict, but then went into a rage, knocking an ashtray and other items from the defense table across the courtroom. Trinity County Sheriff Lynn Evans and two deputies rushed to subdue him.

Prosecutors said Penry forced his way into Mrs. Carpenter's apartment last Oct. 25, raped her, and then stabbed her to death with a large pair of orange-handled scissors.

Penry's lawyers said he was insane due to organic brain damage at birth and does not know the difference between right and wrong. Prosecutors conceded Penry was "mildly retarded" but said otherwise, he was just plain mean.

A statement introduced as evidence quoted Penry as having told police, "I loved her and hated to kill her, but I had to so she wouldn't squeal on me."

Producer Fired For Joke

BOSTON (AP) - The executive producer of the 6 p.m. news on station WNAC-TV, Channel 7, has been fired after showing an April Fool's Day report of a fake volcanic eruption in the Boston suburb of Milton.

Homer Cilley, 33, was fired for "his failure to exercise good news judgment" and for violating station and Federal Communications Commission rules about showing library film footage without identifying it as such, the station management said Wednesday.

Banks Up Prime To Record 20%

NEW YORK (AP) - The prime rate has jumped to a record 20 percent at many of the nation's leading banks - the fourth time the widely watched lending index has risen in the last week.

The latest round of increases was started Wednesday by Chemical Bank, the country's sixth-largest, which moved to 20 percent just one day after a 19 1/2 percent rate was set at Chase Manhattan Bank.

Several major banks, including top-ranked Bank of America, quickly joined Chemical at 20 percent. Last Friday, the rate moved from 19 percent to 19 1/2 percent.

The prime, which stood at 15 1/2 percent in mid-February, has been climbing sharply since the Federal Reserve Board imposed new credit controls on March 14.

Thomas Johnson, Chemical's executive vice president, said his bank believes the new, higher rate is consistent with the government's anti-inflation program.

"The rise in the prime reflects the cost of bank funding in the open marketplace as well as strong seasonal loan demand," Johnson said from the bank's New York headquarters.

The Fed has sought to make lending more expensive for borrowers as well as lenders in hopes of curbing inflation by slowing the growth of borrowing debt.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Speedy:
Please help me express to all my friends in Hereford a big "I love you" for their prayers, their kindness, and their thoughtfulness during these past couple of weeks. Words cannot express what Carolyn and I have learned about our friends and what they really mean to us.

It's great to be back home, and to all our friends "we love you and thank you very much."

Sincerely,
Waldo Baxter

Mexican Says Effect 'Nil'

By The Associated Press
SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The huge oil spill from Mexico's blown-out Ixtoc 1 oil well caused no permanent damage to the environment along the Mexican and Texas gulf coasts, claims the environmental chief of the Mexican national oil company.

The Pemex well blew out last June 3 and wasn't completely capped until March 22. It dumped more than three million barrels of oil, and soiled miles of Texas tourist beaches last summer.

But Jose Luis Garcia Luna, appearing here Tuesday at the 5th International Petrochemical Conference, said the beaches are now clean, no dead or sick fish have been found, and fishermen caught 10 times as many octopus this season as in previous seasons.

"Ixtoc's effect on the marine environment is nil, according to studies we've conducted," he said.

American environmentalists still worry, however, that severe damage might yet be discovered.

Garcia Luna disagreed. "The impact was minimal."

Garcia Luna acknowledged that he was "tremendously concerned" at the beginning of the spill.

But he said the fire at the well itself destroyed many of the toxic hydrocarbons in the oil. He added that oil from a blown-out well is less hazardous to marine life than a massive, instantaneous spill from a tanker.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — California Gov. Edmund G. Brown is out of the presidential race but his name will still be on the May 3 Democratic presidential primary ballot in Texas.

State Democratic headquarters confirmed Wednesday that Brown's name will appear along with the names of President Jimmy Carter and Sen. Edward Kennedy, plus a space for "uncommitted" votes.

Officials said the ballot could be changed only by the State Democratic Executive Committee and members of that governing body have decided against another meeting.

The 64-member committee voted 35-27 on March 10 to hold a non-binding referendum, often called a "beauty contest," in connection with its May 3 primaries. The voter opinion poll would have no direct influence on selection of national delegates which will be named at the June state convention.

Later 25 SDEC members asked State Democratic Chairman Billy Goldberg to call a special session so the presidential straw poll could be eliminated. Goldberg said he would call the special meeting only if a majority, or 33 members, wanted it.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong figures the state's oil and gas lease sale Tuesday made a profit of at least $5 for every adult Texan.

"Our lease sale was very profitable," Armstrong told a news conference in reporting that bonuses received on oil and gas leases for state lands totaled $33,626,000 or an average of $79 per acre.

"And this is only the beginning," he said. "The school land fund will be getting the proceeds of the one-fourth royalty which means $1 out of every $4 produced will go to our school system."

Armstrong said a new trend was noted at the lease letting. "The major oil companies are coming back to Texas," he said. "They have been looking at continental offshore leases and leases in the North Sea but this month they are back on Texas lands. This means Shell, Exxon, Conoco and Texaco."

"There is a very wide range of interest on the part of all oil interests in state lands."

Armstrong predicted the new federal windfall profits tax would produce $266 million for the public school land fund and about the same amount for the Permanent University fund for the next four years.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — U.S. Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, Mayor Lila Cockrell and City Manager Tom Huebner were subpoenaed Wednesday for the trial of one of five Iranian students charged in connection with an anti-shah protest at City Hall last December.

Farshad Rafizadeh has pleaded innocent to a misdemeanor charge of obstructing a passageway.

Five students were charged after they staged a two-day hunger strike at City Hall to protest the shah's presence at nearby Lackland Air Force Base and the city's ban on anti-shah parades.

Huebner, who had denied parade permit requests, ordered the arrests after an anti-Iranian mob threatened violence.

Gonzales was an outspoken critic of the students' actions.

The student's court-appointed attorney also subpoenaed a television

Stars and Stripes

The present U.S. flag originated in a resolution of the Marine Committee of the Second Continental Congress adopted June 14, 1777, at Philadelphia. It called for a flag of 13 alternating red and white stripes with a union of 13 stars on a blue field. There is no record, however, of the designation of a designer. Despite repeated request, Gen. George Washington did not receive flags for his forces until 1783, after the Revolutionary War was over.

reporter and attorney Louis Linden, who represented the students at the time.

Two of the Iranians charged in the incident have reportedly returned to Iran, officials said.

AMARILLO, Texas (AP)

Detectives questioned a 17-year-old man Wednesday about the slaying of an Amarillo woman who was stabbed repeatedly while her three children slept undisturbed in an adjacent room, police said.

Police called the Amarillo man, arrested Tuesday night for trespassing, a "good, likely suspect" in the Oct. 26 slaying of Sarah Donn Lawrence.

Medical examiners said Mrs. Lawrence died of suffocation induced by a stab wound in the throat. The examiners said the body had 20 knife wounds.

Detectives said the man's palm print would be compared with a print found at the scene of the murder.

Cancer Developments Heard

Members of the Hereford Lions Club heard some new statistics and a report on late developments into cancer research when WTSU professor Dr. Myron Dees presented a program to them at their meeting Wednesday in conjunction with Cancer Control Month (April). Prison Fights Rats

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Rats are real pests at the Caddo Correctional Institute, where guards make a game of chasing and kicking at them in the kitchen and dining areas.

The prison farm on 1,200 acres of mostly wooded land 28 miles south of Shreveport has 400 inmates.

Superintendent Gene A. Scroggy said rat poison would be put at strategic points inside the building walls, but added that an anti-rat campaign was completed by the prisoners.

"I am reluctant to put rat poison out for the simple reason that you don't know what inmate will attempt to put rat poison in the food," Scroggy said.

Shreveport Journal reporter Bill Hensel Jr. worked two weeks at the prison farm as a guard trainee. He said rats running about on top of the tiled ceiling sounded like tiny pebbles rolling around overhead — a rustling noise that became part of the routine. Hensel also said the kitchen help seemed none too clean.

"I think the kitchen should be GI'd on a daily basis and after the close of the evening, completely GI'd and disinfected," said Scroggy, a former Marine. "But I cannot stay here 24 hours a day to make sure that is being done."

The superintendent said he finds some guards shirk security regulations, from not performing routine shakedowns in search of tools, drugs or weapons to leaving doors and gates unlocked.

Marriage Found Too Costly by Some

By JAY PERKINS
 Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twice, Angela and David Boyter divorced each other and twice they remarried. Finally, they ended their marriage altogether — finding it literally too taxing — and simply lived together.

The reason had nothing to do with romance, the Maryland couple told the House Ways and Means Committee. They were just saving money come tax time.

The Boyters are among a growing number of Americans who are disdaining marriage to avoid a provision in federal tax law that taxes working husbands and wives at a higher rate.

The House committee, which opened hearings on the "marriage penalty" Wednesday, was told that one woman and her fiancé decided against marriage because of the higher taxes. Another couple married only to give their child a legitimate birth certificate and others, like the Boyters, divorced to lower their tax bill.

The issue was brought to attention of the public last October when the Internal Revenue Service took the Boyters to U.S. Tax Court to argue that their divorces and remarriages were a "sham transaction." The case is pending.

The Boyters, from Elliott City, Md., earn about $30,000 each as federal employees. They told the committee they have saved almost $15,000 in taxes over the past five years by divorcing to take advantage of lower tax rates for single persons.

"I ask you, is this the kind of behavior you want to promote?" the Boyters asked rhetorically.

The Carter administration says no, but officials told the committee they haven't decided what to do about the dilemma.

Emil Sunley, deputy assistant secretary of the Treasury for tax policy, said the administration wants to make certain that single taxpayers are not hurt by eliminating the marriage penalty and that the tax code remains progressive, with higher income being taxed at a higher rate.

So long as the tax code is progressive and the government taxes combined income, Sunley said, "the marriage penalty cannot be reduced without making the situation for single taxpayers even worse."

He said the administration "believes high priority should be given to reducing" all penalties on married or single taxpayers.

The Treasury Department says the United States is the only industrialized nation with an income tax that does not distinguish between one and two-income families.

The marriage penalty occurs because the tax code treats income earned separately by two members of the same family as one income. Since the tax structure is progressive — that is, the higher the income, the higher the tax rate — each extra dollar brought in by a working spouse pushes the family's total income into a higher tax bracket.

HHS Girls Drop Contest 6-1

Whiteface Netters Split Duel Match

By MAURI MONTGOMERY
Brand Sports Editor

PORTALES, N.M. — Head varsity tennis coach Robert Cox must have laughed when the Portales head mentor boasted that his New Mexico squad was one of the best in that part of the country and was sure to win the district race before going all the way to state.

But, in the end it was hard to say who got the last laugh as the two teams split duel competition right down the seams this past weekend—with the Whitefaces taking the boy's squabble 5-4 while Portales netted the girl's conflict decisively 6-1.

"When he told me that he had a good team it was no laughing matter as far as the girl's team was concerned," said Cox after watching his girl's squad net only one doubles win in the affair. "They have a girl—Jan Elliott—who played both ways in singles and doubles competition and was a state finalist last year, and man I'm not pulling any punches when I say that she hits the ball harder than I do."

Elliott went on to sweep a straight set victory over Hereford's No. 1 singles player Clarie Montemayor 6-1, 6-1. And the PHS netter comboed with teammate Carpenter to win a doubles match over Montemayor and Carol Zinser 6-3, 6-3.

The only match the HHS girls were able to jot down as a win in the contest came as Lisa Snyder and Dolly Montemayor crammed in a two set 6-3, 6-2 victory over duo Hollaman-Flynn.

In the other girl's competition of the tournament; PHS's Tonya Carpenter beat Carol Zinser relentlessly 6-1, 6-2. Lisa Snyder took a second set 7-5 win over Leigh Ann Hollaman, but lost the first and final sets 6-3, 6-4. Portales netter Debra Flynn overcame Castro, Raymond Duncan and Danny Perez landed wins in their respective matches of the tourney.

Castro beat Jack Monday 6-1, 6-2 in his contest, Duncan delivered a two set loss to Curt Powell 6-2, 6-3 and Perez knocked off Ronnie Keller 6-3, 7-5.

In doubles play Roy Rodriguez and Adolfo Garcia whipped PHS pair Newsberry-Hawk 6-3, 6-2 and partners Thomas-Perez topped Monday-Powell 6-4, 6-1.

"One thing that sort of hampered us was spring break because it came at an unopportune time. I gave everybody the option of taking off and if it hurt us anywhere along the way it was that my No. 1 doubles team wasn't there. But we were still strong enough

Kim Simms 6-2, 6-1 and Dolly Montemayor dropped straight sets to Pam Combs 7-5, 7-5.

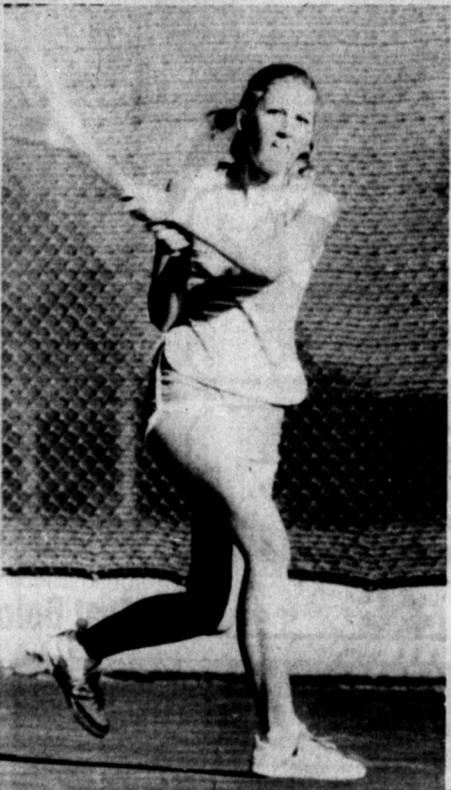

But in the boy's segment of the struggle, the story turned out a little different.

Trent Thomas grabbed a straight set win over Greg Pippin 6-4, 6-4 while Robert depth wise to win the duel match 5-4," he added.

The next scheduled competition for the Herd is slated to be in Lubbock in the District Tournament Friday and Saturday, which will determine who will compete in the regional competition.

HHS netter Carol Zinser unleashes a backhand shot during the duel match between Hereford and Portales N.M. this past weekend in Portales. Texas Leads Golf Field

HOUSTON (AP) — Greg Young shook off a battle with a virus and carded a 4-under-par 68 to help Texas earn a share of the opening day lead in the 26th annual All-America Intercollegiate golf tournament.

Texas and Houston were deadlocked with team totals of 280, two strokes ahead of their closest competitor in the 29 team field after Wednesday's round in the 72-hole tournament at the Atascocita Country Club in Houston.

Ray Barr of Houston was one of four golfers who trailed Young by a stroke at 69. The others included Kent Hilburn of Lamar, Dave Davis of TCU and Jeff Walser of Oklahoma State.

Oklahoma State was in third place at 282 after the first day, followed by Lamar, 286; TCU, 287; North Carolina, 289; South Florida and Furman, 292; Florida and Oral Roberts at 293.

Only the top 18 teams will play in the final two rounds of the tournament.

76ers Beat Bullets 111-96

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The home teams took advantage of their home-court advantage as the National Basketball Association playoffs got under way, and they did it largely with defense.

"We had to win this first one because it's the key in a short series," said forward Caldwell Jones, who had 18 points and 26 rebounds as the Philadelphia 76ers turned off Washington's power game and beat the Bullets 111-96 Wednesday night in the opener of their best-of-three mini-series.

"Tonight was the most important game," added Jones. "Hopefully we'll get one more important one Friday night."

All three other home teams also won Wednesday night and can wrap up their first-round series on Friday.

The best defense of the four opening games was played by the Houston Rockets, who held San Antonio, the league's highest scoring team, 34 points below its average and beat the Spurs 95-85.

"We decided to defend the fort," Houston Coach Del Harris said after his club circled its wagons to stop the run-and-gun Spurs in the third period. San Antonio went 5-41 without a point and was outscored 24-11 in the quarter as Houston overcame a 51-42 halftime deficit.

In the Western Conference, the Phoenix Suns beat the Kansas City Kings 96-93 in what Suns Coach John MacLeod called "typical of every game we play against the Kings, a tough defensive battle all the way." And in the only game where the scoring was higher than normal, the Seattle SuperSonics opened defense of their title with a 120-110 decision over the Portland Trail Blazers.

76ers 111, Bullets 96
Kevin Grevey of Washington led all scorers with 34 points, including four three-pointers, but said his scoring total only emphasized Philadelphia's defensive dominance. "We couldn't get inside," said Grevey. "That's why I started bombing."

Washington scored the first eight points of the game but had little to celebrate after that as the Sixers quickly took command with a 12-3 spurt for a 56-45 halftime lead. The Bullets hung within striking distance until midway through the final period, when Philadelphia's fast-break attack resulted in a dunking exhibition by the Sixers.

Suns 96, Kings 93
Paul Westphal hit 23 points and five other Phoenix players scored in double figures as the Suns beat the Kings.

Phoenix limited the Kings to 30 percent shooting from the field in the first half and built a 41-32 lead at intermission. The Suns led by as many as 19 points in the third period and by 17 with 4:16 remaining before Phil Ford led a Kansas City rally that fell short.

The loss was the Kings' sixth in a row to Phoenix. Sonics 120, Blazers 110
Gus Williams scored 19 of his game-high 35 points in the third quarter, making all seven of his shots in the quarter as the Sonics built a 19-point lead before a Kingdome crowd of 26,412.

Portland closed to 95-85 entering the fourth quarter and limited Seattle to just three baskets in the final period. But the Sonics stayed on top by hitting 19 of 20 free throw attempts. For the game, the Sonics were 40 of 45 from the foul line.

Billy Ray Bates, a late-season pickup from the Continental Basketball Association, led Portland with 29 points, including 19 in the second half.

Portland has now lost six of its seven meetings with Seattle this season and Blazers forward Jim Brewer summed up the situation by saying, "They're the champs until somebody beats them."

Coffman Takes

Decathlon Lead

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Bob Coffman captured four of five events in the opening day of the Texas Relays decathlon to take commanding lead over the field.

Coffman won the 100-meter dash, long jump, shot put, the 400-meter dash and finished 4th in the high jump to amass 4,233 points — a meet record for the first day of competition.

Bill Blackburn of Auburn, Coffman's closest competitor, collected 3,778 points Wednesday.

Golfers Devoted To One Tourney

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Although the Masters, one of golf's most revered events, is only a week away, its proximity has no effect on the players in the $250,000 Greater Greensboro Open, Ray Floyd and Gary Player said.

"I'm here to play in this golf tournament," Floyd said. "That's all I'm thinking about. I'm not thinking about any other golf tournament."

Both have records which indicate they have followed those philosophies. Each is a former winner of the Greensboro Open, and both ranked high among the list of favorites this time.

Floyd is the defending champion and has played well coming previously this year, beating Jack Nicklaus in a dramatic playoff at the Doral Open.

Player, 44, has had one of the best winters of his globe-trotting career. The little man in black won four of six foreign starts and has finished eighth and third in his last two American appearances.

Although this old tournament, traditionally placed in the schedule immediately before the Masters, often is bypassed by some of the game's premier attractions, it has attracted six of the top 10 money-winners this season.

In addition to Floyd, the 144-man field contains four other winners of 1980 PGA Tour events, Dave Eichelberger, George Burns, Andy Bean and Doug Tewell, a playoff winner over Jerry Pate in the Heritage Classic Monday.

Other standouts in the chase for a $45,000 first prize include Lou Graham, Masters champ Fuzzy Zoeller, Larry Nelson, J.C. Snead and Leonard Thompson, a title contender in two of his last three starts.

Dissidents Gnaw At Carter's Resolve To Boycott Moscow Olympics

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

As winter turns to spring and the sun moves higher in the sky, dissidents, like termites, are gnawing away at President Carter's resolve that there be a boycott of the Summer Olympic Games in Moscow.

A ranking member of the U.S. Olympic Committee reports a deterioration of support among the men who must make the final decision. Some athletes, not all, have drawn up a petition beseeching the President to change his mind. Almost daily, some Olympic figure surfaces with a statement criticizing Carter's possessive stand. Even the president of the USOC, Robert Kane, an honorable man, has given an interview reeking with equivocation. Meanwhile, the ruling sports federations of the NATO nations, meeting in Europe, detecting frays in American determination, joined the chorus, "On to Moscow."

By July, Uncle Sam may find himself up the pole all alone, swinging in the wind. What a pity. One can just imagine, across the expanse of oceans, the bemused smiles of the USSR's politicians as they gloat over the latest show of Yankee lack of steel in a crisis. It wasn't that way at first. At the first threat of a boycott following the Soviet invasion of neighboring Afghanistan, the Russians were alarmed. They were on the verge of panic.

Not that they were concerned over the money and effort spent in preparations. For the Russians, the Olympics, the first behind the Iron Curtain, were to be their propaganda coup of the age — a chance to exploit Communism in its brightest light. They didn't want to blow it.

Make no mistake about it. If you want to strike back at the Russians, short of war, there is no more effective shot than the Olympic boycott. More than wheat, more than small engine parts, more than agreeing to SALT II, it's their solar plexus.

The two things the Russians glorify are sports and science — "Mind and Body" — as they say in the signs on the hotel walls. They are proudest — and well they might be — of their cosmonauts and their athletic heroes.

With the boycott, the United States had a weapon to show the Russians — and the world — there is hypocrisy in playing games and promoting good will among men in the front yard while shooting and pillaging neighbors in the back.

The U.S. effort to condemn such an exercise in international deceit was blunted by its own Olympic brass. The responsibility for the present dilemma rests solely at the feet of the USOC.

When Carter called for the boycott, the entire country and virtually all of Congress rallied behind him enthusiastically. Overseas, the NATO nations, with West Germany in the forefront, were ready to fall in line. Boycotters were expected to number between thirty and fifty countries. All the USOC had to do was take a strong stand behind the President. It didn't. It pussy-footed. It procrastinated. It gave the world a lesson in double-talk. The news conferences at Lake Placid to explain the USOC position were ludicrous.

"We support the President, but..."

"Our first obligation is to the athletes, but..."

"We must wait for the House of Delegates to act on it in April."

"The deadline for entry is not until May 24."

Such indecision proved contagious. Supporting countries started looking for escape hatches. Sentiment in our own country began to take on a marshmallow fiber instead of that of iron.

In a situation of such import, the USOC could — and should — have acted immediately. Then there would have been no doubt. The interests of the whole country, and maybe the world, would have been served at the cost of the interests of a few.

Aging Kansas Infielder, Terrell Refuses To Confirm His Lone Dissension

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Spurred by deep religious convictions, Jerry Terrell, an aging utility infielder fighting for a job, has become a footnote in the history of baseball.

Still-unborn generations of trivia experts will some day recall that it was Terrell who cast the lone negative vote in the 971-1 tally by which major league players authorized a strike in 1980.

That Terrell was the union's player representative for the Kansas City Royals at the time will only add to his mystique.

Patiently, the slender Terrell refuses to confirm or deny he was the lone dissenter. But a few days before union head Marvin Miller came to Kansas City's spring training complex in Fort Myers, Fla., to get the Royals' strike authorization vote, he was overheard telling a teammate, "I'll be a scab if I have to."

And a few of his teammates, while bearing him no animosity, have confided that he is indeed the lone dissenter. They also believe Terrell took his stand because of religious considerations, not because he supports the owners in their bitter dispute with players.

"I am just 1-39th of a team's opinion, and the majority feels the other way," Terrell said. "It is not hard to cast the vote. The players know my views and there is mutual respect."

A lifetime .255 hitter,

Terrell came up with the Minnesota Twins in 1973, at one time or another playing every position but catcher. He signed with the Royals as a free agent in 1978, but the most significant year in his career and life, he says, was 1975.

"I'm comfortable at any position," he said. "But if I hadn't given my life over to Christ in 1975, I would have had an ulcer."

Since he refuses to say whether he cast the lone anti-strike vote, it follows that he would refuse to say why he cast it.

But he stayed in Florida this week when player representatives met in Dallas to vote to cancel the rest of the exhibition season and put off a strike until May 22. Terrell's wife was in Kansas City expecting their third child any time and he wanted to be able to get home at a moment's notice.

"You know me," he said. "God first, family second and baseball is way down there third on the list."

Terrell says he's not concerned that his spot on the Royals' 25-man roster is in jeopardy.

"God doesn't care if I'm a ballplayer or a gas station attendant," he said. "Somebody should be able to use a good utility man."

Fans Attend Owens Funeral

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Joggers, children, athletes and political officials were among the many to pass slowly by the blue casket of Jesse Owens, Olympic gold medalist who died Monday of lung cancer at 66.

Funeral services will be held Friday in Chicago.

Owens' body lay in state in the Arizona Capitol Rotunda Wednesday in a casket emblazoned with an Olympic flag as religious and political leaders praised him as a champion of the black race and of humanity.

Flowers from President Carter, the U.S. Olympic Committee and youths Owens had worked with were placed around the casket as members of the Arizona Army and Air National Guard stood at attention.

"For Jesse Owens, the American dream came true in 1936 in Berlin," said Gov. Bruce Babbitt. "Then he came home. The dream fell apart. It fell apart because Jesse Owens was a black man in a white society."

But Owens overcame bigotry and racism, Babbitt said: "He showed us how to live and he showed us how to die."

Born on a sharecropper's farm in Oakville, Ala., in 1913, Owens gained acclaim when he won four gold medals at the Berlin Olympics. Adolph Hitler, using the Games as a showcase for his white-supremacy doctrine, turned his back to Owens when the medals were awarded.

Feature Producer Balks At Possible Boycott NBC To Lose Millions With Boycott

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

If there is a Summer Olympics, if members of the United States team go and if NBC televises it, producer Ginny Seipt will have something to show for nearly three years of work.

As it looks now, the Moscow Games will survive without American athletes and — almost certainly — without NBC. So much of Seipt's pieces as NBC Sports' senior features producer will never see the light of day.

NBC will recover around 85 percent of the $61 million it has already paid to the International Olympic Committee and the Moscow organizers through an insurance policy. In all, between $10-15 million will not be recoverable. But who can relate to that kind of money anyway? Besides, NBC is a giant corporation; it will manage. Does anyone expect Fred Silverman to start taking a bus instead of his limousine to work?

But what the public can understand is Seipt's sense of loss.

"I'll miss people saying 'Was that your piece?' That was terrific," said Seipt. "I get my kicks from that. My pieces don't produce ratings."

In August of 1977, Don Ohlmeyer, executive producer of NBC Sports, assigned Seipt to spearhead the Olympic features project. Her job was to give NBC a reservoir of profiles, the kind ABC calls "Up Close and Personal."

These short pieces complement the Games coverage of winners and losers. They're insightful and provide the human touch. It's always nice to be shown that the athlete who just performed like Superman is really a homebody who has nothing to fear from Kryptonite.

Seipt and other NBC producers were in the process of editing 150 profiles, history pieces and explanatory segments last week when President Carter said he was prohibiting the export of technical equipment to the Soviet Union. That is considered the death blow to NBC's hopes of broadcasting the Games.

Some of the features can be salvaged. NBC will show Olympic trials, so some segments can fit in there. Some will pop up on this

Saturday's "Olympic Diary: A Salute to the Athletes," and there's always NBC's anthology show, "SportsWorld."

Seipt has a history piece on nearly every Olympic sport.

For Olympic basketball, she got film of the United States' first gold medal in 1936, when Universal Pictures sponsored the AAU team which beat Canada 19-8 in the finals on an outdoor court in a painstorm.

Erich Segal does a piece on women in ancient Olympic history. In Greece, females couldn't compete or watch. Segal called those Games "stag parties." Eventually, women were allowed to participate, but their sprints were always shorter than the men's.

plant 'em both

This hybrid's record for consistency has made it one of the most popular hybrids on the High Plains. In 77 comparisons over the last four years against competitive hybrids, 3184 has shown an average yield of 183.7 bu./A. with a yield advantage of 14.3 bu./A. over competitors. Bred with outstanding drought tolerance, 3184 can adjust ear size and kernel depth to match growing conditions. And strong stalks keep 3184 standing straight for speedy harvest. It's just what High Plains farmers need in a dependable, high-yielding corn hybrid. And its maturity makes it a good companion for 3183.

Push this one for highest yields! In 43 comparisons on the High Plains in 1979, this hybrid averaged 192.1 bu./A. A sampling of yields from 1979 includes 216 bu./A. for Sheldon Rapp at Hooker, Oklahoma... 210.4 bu./A. for Larry Kemp of Muleshoe... and 196.7 bu./A. for Doyle Underwood at Dimmitt, Texas. 3183 has demonstrated very good standability and ear retention in this area. Excellent drought tolerance helps 3183 maintain outstanding consistency year after year. And it has been especially impressive on gray soils. Plant 3183 along with 3184. Spread genetic risks and get top performance, too.

Learning What Public Life Is About

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK (NEA) — Frances Tarlton Farenthold — whom everyone has been calling "Sissy" since her childhood in Corpus Christi, Tex., because her brother couldn't say "sister" — is exhausted.

She rests her cheek on her hand and her elbow on the table in an office of the public relations firm representing Wells College, the small, liberal arts women's college in upstate New York which Mrs. Farenthold has been president of for three years.

She's tired because when she's not "presidenting," she's lecturing here and there or fulfilling her duties as a public person. Since graduating from the University of Texas School of Law in 1949 (one of three women in a class of 800) and serving two terms in the Texas House of Representatives, she's gathered enough titles to fill a phone book: a founder of the National Women's Political Caucus; member, the National Advisory Council of the American Civil Liberties Union; member, Board of Trustees of the Mental Health Law Projects, etc., etc.

It all takes its toll. "Public life is particularly tough," she says, in a soft drawl. "There's a lot of wear and tear, but from my own experience, there's some compensation as well being involved in public policy, helping to make decisions that are worthwhile."

She began making those decisions years ago the only way women did, then. "You would finally get to participate in the public sector by going through 20 years' work in the community and then running for the legislature, and you weren't getting any encouragement along the way."

Well, other women weren't, perhaps. Mrs. Farenthold's family always supported her. "Even after I married and started having children, my father, a lawyer, was still paying my bar dues. He'd say, 'you'll come back to the law, which was extraordinary for a person born in the Edwardian era.' A person who, unlike most, didn't think women were only suited for private affairs.

So she was the female exception to the rule — which still applies and which she's trying to change. "Whether we want it or not, women are public people as well as private people, but the whole idea of public leadership for young women as an alternative hasn't ever been discussed with young women. And by public life, I don't just mean electoral politics, which is where I come from. There are all kinds of ways of being in public life, opportunities for women in public administration, government. The foreign service, for instance, was closed to women but now that it's getting hazardous, ironically it's open to women."

FRANCES TARLTON "Sissy" Farenthold: "We'd like women to consider public life much, much earlier than they did before, so they don't just stumble into it in later years."

And when women know about those opportunities, they want them, says Mrs. Farenthold. "Between '72 and '76, I spoke at many colleges around the country and many young women would come to me and say, 'we're interested in getting into politics. How do we get started? All I could say was, 'get into someone's campaign and see if you like it. I knew that wasn't adequate but it was the only suggestion I had."

But not her final one. She came up with the concept of PLEN — the Public Leadership Education Network, which in now in its second year at five participating women's colleges. Its purpose — to tell those women what public life is all about.

"PLEN is a network of five women's colleges (Carlow in Pittsburgh; Goucher in Towson, Md.; Spellman, the oldest black women's college in the country, in Atlanta; Stephens in Columbia, Mo.; and Wells) and two resource groups, the National Women's Education Fund and the Center for the American Woman and Politics. The project is funded by the Carnegie Corporation, and this is the first funding of its kind." Each college has its own program, for academic credit or not; limited to the campus or open to the community; but all programs encourage young women to consider public life as a career.

"At Carlow College," she says, "they reach out to women in the community to familiarize them with campaign techniques. They have workshops on public speaking, for instance, which is terribly important for public life. Goucher fosters one-semester internships for its students with women in the Maryland legislature; Spellman calls on a great number of black women in Atlanta who lecture on different aspects of leadership and how they came to take that forward step."

"And at Wells, we hold Saturday seminars trying to look at public issues as issues that concern women. How, for example, energy shortages affect women, and discrimination against female athletes in college."

"These give women the scope of political life," she says. And as far as she knows, no other program is doing that. No other program is saying, "We'd like women to consider public life much, much earlier than they did before, so they don't just stumble into it in later years."

"And these days, we are seeing younger women running for office, young women with children." So the interest is obviously there. Yes, she says, managing public and private lives takes juggling and it's tiring and frustrating, but Sissy Farenthold wants other women to have the opportunity to be just as tired as she is.

Census Contest Counts One New-Born Twin

WILLINGBORO, N.J. (AP) — On the first of the year, there are contests for the first baby born. On the first of April, census day, Gov. Brendan T. Byrne held a contest for the last baby born in time to make the 1980 census.

The winner is a twin who beat the midnight deadline by one minute. His brother missed the census day count by four minutes.

Elizabeth Heath had twin boys, one born at 11:59 p.m. Tuesday, the other at 12:03 a.m. Wednesday.

Under census rules, only people living on April 1 are included in the official count.

The boys, not yet named, weighed in at just over six pounds each. They got a visit from Byrne on Wednesday at Rancocas Valley Hospital and received two sterling silver baby mugs.

The timing of the births means the boys, though twins, will have different birthdays.

Looking for an Investment? Try a Llama

BUCKEYSTOWN, Md. (AP) — Some people invest in gold or art or books or stamps. Linwood and Norma Broughman invest in llamas.

In three years, the cost of a llama has skyrocketed from $300 for a pair to $2,750 each.

The Broughmans have a herd of seven llamas on their 138-acre farm outside Richmond, Va., cared for by Broughman's brother.

Why the animals are selling for up to $3,000 each, they don't know, but they do know there's a market for them among zoos, animal parks and people who want exotic pets.

Gentle creatures, llamas stand about 4 feet high and weigh about 450 pounds when full grown.

"They're very dainty eaters," Mrs. Broughman says. "They usually eat one strand of hay at a time. We can feed our seven llamas for about the same cost as feeding one horse."

April Fools! It's an April Fool

GRANDVILLE, Mich. (AP) — For most people, April 1 was April Fools Day. For Mike and Jill Shields it was April Fool Day.

Their "neutered" Shetland mare Cocoa, a long-time companion of Areba, a Pinto gelding, presented them with a spindly legged colt.

"We bought him (Areba) for $150 because the guy thought he was a gelding," Shields said. "It's a registered Pinto and if he (the seller) knew it was a stud he never would have sold him."

Mrs. Shields also thought Cocoa had been neutered when she adopted her through HORSE, the Humane Organization Representing Suffering Equines, which places abused or neglected horses with new families.

Malfunction of Kidneys Changes Youth's Life

By DENISE SMITH
Brand Staff Writer

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article is the last in a series of stories profiling local kidney patients. Although The Kidney Foundation drive has ended here, anyone wishing to make contributions can do so at either local bank.)

Twelve-year-old Kody Ruland was recently diagnosed in Galveston as having Focal Segmental Sclerosis, his kidneys were not properly filtering the urine causing the young boy to lose the needed protein in his body.

The frightful illness began in November when the seventh grader developed swelling in his body. Since the five-month duration, Kody has been hospitalized seven times.

Currently the Kenneth Ruland's are relying on medication to control their son's kidney disease. The boy is on a low sodium diet and until recently was allowed only 500cc's of liquid a day.

The disease, having no determined cause or cure at this time, has hampered the La Plata student's schooling and physical activity.

"It hasn't really changed my life. I do get depressed about it but I try to keep it out of my mind. This summer I plan to be able to get more involved in summer activities," Kody remarked.

The medication Kody is presently relying on has side affects of loss of hair, stunted development, a slight chance of tumor growth and sterility.

The 12-year-old student has been unable to attend school regularly since November. In March, he went back to school allowing himself only three hours a day in the classroom.

"I'm just too weak to attend full-time right now. If I'm up alot I'll start swelling again," stated the young kidney patient.

Kody having a low blood count, presently, is in fear of an infection settling in his body.

"That is really the only thing his doctors and family are worried about," commented Kody's mother, Karren Ruland.

The Ruland family, unsettled and unsure about the difficult situation, hope to avoid a kidney transplant or dialysis treatment. In June, Kody will be tested more to determine if the present medication he is on is working effectively. If not, the family has one more hope for cure by medication, but the alternate treatment is suspected as a cancer causing agent.

Mrs. Ruland has stated that the doctors recommend a transplant before dialysis, "but we're not yet looking that far in advance. We're taking this thing a day at a time, that's all we can do now," Mrs. Ruland stated.

Currently the Kidney Foundation has not yet given financial help to the Ruland family in defraying medical expenses which Mrs. Ruland figures are running past the $10,000 mark. "The foundation doesn't offer help until a kidney patient is on the dialysis machine, and we are hoping that it doesn't come to that," the mother commented.

Kody's younger brother, Clint, age 10, and his mother and father find no difficulty in adjusting their home life. The only real handicap is in the youngster's diet.

Mrs. Ruland is a beautician at the Carousel Beauty Salon. She has resided in Hereford for 14 years coming from Amherst. Her husband is a native of Hereford and is self-employed as a carpenter.

The Ruland family is indebted to the Elks Lodge and Beta Sigma Phi Sorority Chapter for establishing funds and the people of Hereford for their support during Kody's illness.

Kody sends special thanks to both local banks where funds are established in his name.

Ending Conversations

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was amused by that woman who moved to Chapel Hill, N.C. She was amazed at the number of people who ended phone conversations with

"bye-bye." I'm a secretary in Chicago and I say "bye-bye." Chicago is populated by Polish, Irish, Italians, Latinos, blacks, etc. We all have accents and phrases that reflect the neighborhoods we grew up in. I was from the West Side. My "goodbye" sounds like "Gugh-by." My Polish sister-in-law said "Goo-by." A friend from Wilmette said "Byeeee."

It's hard to unlearn and relearn deeply ingrained speech habits, but I shall try. GOODBYE -- Italian Rose them the exact location of the disabled car. They thanked me and said a crew would be dispatched immediately. So please let all the Sir Galahads out there know there is an alternative to stopping -- and this is it. -- Friend Indeed

DEAR FRIEND: You did, and I thank you in behalf of motorists everywhere.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please let that woman in Medford, Ore., know she is not alone. I'm also married to a goof-off. My "problem" has been going on 20 years. My husband comes to the breakfast table every morning with the newspaper in his hand. He props it up in front of his face and reads until the food is cold. At night I have to compete with the TV. I must call him to the dinner table at least three times before he will budge. Again, the food is cold.

What do other women do about this problem? I really work hard to prepare good meals--never serve frozen or canned food. I even bake my own bread. His stubbornness infuriates me. How about an assist from Ann Landers? -- Unappreciated In Mass.

DEAR UN: Sorry you didn't write 20 years ago. I would have told you there's no way to solve the breakfast problem -- it happens in every city where a morning paper is delivered. But you CAN beat the dinner game. Here's how: Don't put any hot food on the table until the mule is seated.

Parents, what should you do if your teenager is having sexual relations? Ann Landers' new booklet, "High School Sex and How to Deal With It -- A Guide for Teens and Their Parents," give no-nonsense advice on how to handle this delicate situation. For each booklet, send 50 cents plus a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

DEAR ROSE: Thanks for your sweet letter. Here's another one from Durham, N.C., with a little thorn in it:

DEAR ANN: As a former resident of Chapel Hill, now living 10 miles northeast, I would like to say this: Chapel Hill is a very lovely town, and the people there are extremely friendly. Only a damned Yankee would be critical of the sign-off, "bye-bye." My advice: put your heart in Dixie or get your rear end out. -- A True Belle

DEAR BELLE: One Civil War is enough. Please don't start another. Meanwhile, hang on to your Confederate money. Honey -- the south may rise again.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: There IS a better way to help a motorist in distress than stopping and risking robbery, rape or murder. My suggestion is prompted by your reply to "No Sir Galahad and Ashamed." (He was afraid to stop and offer assistance because he was black and the lady in trouble on the lonely road was white.)

I'm a small woman who couldn't possibly dig someone's car out of the snow, but I DID manage to help. Here's how: I was driving behind a car that suddenly lost a tire in a blinding snowstorm. The tire bounced toward me, and the car in trouble slid off the road. I knew if I stopped I'd get stuck, so I kept on going. When I reached home I called the state police and gave

Bank Employee Attends Seminar

Irene McKinster from Hereford State Bank attended the eighth annual SOS (Special Organizational Services) Seminar in Dallas March 28-April 1.

SOS trains bank and savings and loan personnel in basic financial planning. The SOS trainees then offer the service, free of charge, to their community. SOS helps young single adults, newlyweds, married couples, the divorced, disabled, retired and widowed get their financial affairs in order by helping the individual make complete inventories of their personal and household items and develop a basic budget and financial statement. They suggest records and documents to keep and have a simple bookkeeping system to help with budgeting. Hereford State Bank is the only SOS affiliate in Hereford.

SOS was developed in 1971 by Bill Walker, a former insurance agent from Athens and is now available in more than 1,000 locations across the United States.

More than 150 representatives from 63 cities and 21 states attended the meeting held at the Sheraton-Dallas Hotel.

Jane Bryant Quinn was the guest speaker. Mrs. Quinn is a columnist for Newsweek, Women's Day, The Washington Post, and more than 100 other newspapers. She also authored "Everyone's Money Book" which is a complete guide to personal finance, and is published by Delacorte Press.

Wallace Sheltons To Be Honored

Friends of longtime residents, Wallace and Glessie Shelton, are invited to a reception honoring the couple's 47th wedding anniversary from 2-5 p.m. Saturday, April 5, in IOOF Temple. The Shelton family will also be celebrating his 80th birthday at this time.

The former Glessie Finney and Wallace Shelton were married April 5, 1933 in Monroe City, Mo. They moved to Hereford in 1949 and he has been employed as a dispatcher by Hereford Police Department for the past 15 years. Mrs. Shelton has been employed as kitchen supervisor by Deaf Smith General Hospital for more than 25 years.

He is active in the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and his wife is a member of the local Rebekah Lodge, as well as Avenue Baptist Church. Shelton is also a member of the Sheriff's Reserve.

The Sheltons are the parents of nine children, including Nora Summers of Hereford, Buddy Shelton, Floyd Shelton and Dorothy Franklin, all of Amarillo, Bobby Shelton of Fort Worth, Shirley Adams of Washington, D.C. Linda Warren of Hereford, Reva Weatherly of Amarillo and the late Wallace Shelton Jr.

The couple has 23 grandchildren and ten-great-grandchildren.

Panhandle Youth Attending OST

Three students from north-west Texas are among 2,657 full-time students enrolled for the spring trimester at Oklahoma State Tech, Okmulgee, Okla.

Local students attending Tech, and their program of study, include: Pedro M. Coronado, printing, and Michael Southward, auto body and paint, both of Friona; and Allen D. Parson, culinary arts, Hereford.

Tech, the residential, technical branch of Oklahoma State University, is recognized nationwide for the quality of its instructional programs. Students may select a career area from 46 college-level programs of study offered. All programs earn college credit.

More than 4,400 full-time students enroll annually at the post-secondary technical college campus. Students enrolled for the spring trimester represent 76 of Oklahoma's 77 counties, 36 other states and 18 foreign countries.

The flying wedge was outlawed in football when President Theodore Roosevelt threatened to ban the game by executive edict unless players quit being so rough.

April Artist

Suzy Wall, mother of one daughter, Andrea, was selected as April's Deaf Smith County Library's Artist of the Month. The young mother has been painting for 10 years studying under Eunice Petersen and Jean Lyles. She has also attended several workshops. She enjoys western art and oils. Other than her painting, Mrs. Wall is active in Camp Fire and currently a GA [Girls in Action] leader for the Frio Baptist Church. She is married to Billy Joe Wall, and the couple resides at 817 Country Club Drive. The 10 paintings on display in the library are for sale and anyone wishing to purchase one may contact Mrs. Wall at 364-4209. [Brand Photo by Denise Smith]

Lodge Discusses Area Convention

The upcoming meeting of the Panhandle Association of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs was discussed Tuesday evening by 15 members of Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228 who met in regular session at IOOF Temple.

Noble Grand Martha Bridges called the meeting to order and urged all Odd Fellows and Rebekahs to attend the Association meeting, scheduled April 26-27 in Amarillo. President Merl Bridges and Susie Curtsinger will be presiding at the area meeting.

District Deputy President Wilma Wise of Friona will make an official visit to the Hereford lodge Tuesday, April 8 and local Rebekahs are asked to bring a salad for the supper which has been planned in her honor. Mrs. Wise is the newly-appointed District Deputy President of District #5 for the year 1980.

Mrs. Curtsinger gave a report of the recent Rebekah Assembly of Texas held in San Antonio. She presented to the lodge a plaque from the State Assembly in recognition of the most publicity by any lodge in Texas.

The president's commission was read to Edna Mathes, newly appointed lodge deputy for 1980.

Karrol Rettman sent refreshments for the enjoyment of Faye Brownlow, Mary Flowers, Verna Sowell, Ola Hacker, Bessie Saulcy, Helen Sowell, Blanche Williamson, Peggy Lemons, Ada Hollabaugh, Sadie Shaw, Edna Mathes, Ursalee Jacobsen, Lydia Hopson, Martha Bridges and Susie Curtsinger.

Students Need Sleep

COLLEGE STATION -- Is your schoolchild getting enough sleep?

Different children need different amounts -- but each child needs to get enough sleep.

There are ways to tell if a child is getting enough -- and to make sure he does, says Dorothy Taylor, a family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Here's the major rule of thumb: if a child has trouble waking up in the morning, he's not getting enough sleep. To be sure a child does get the right amount of sleep for him, you can do several things:

1) Establish a definite hour for bedtime.

Schoolagers can tell time, so let the clock tell him it's bedtime -- with a gentle reminder from you, if necessary. This will help eliminate a parent-child power struggle every night.

2) Appeal to a child's independence by telling him he can rest, at least, if he isn't sleepy. Sleep usually will overtake him naturally. Never force a child to sleep.

3) Establish bedtime rituals that allow a child to wind down before bedtime.

4) Allow a child the comfort of a light or open door if he feels scared, lonely or isolated.

5) Be flexible enough to allow later bedtimes on special occasions.

6) Make the sleeping area quiet and comfortable for him.

In general, remember, age is not the only indicator of sleeping needs.

Consider the fatigue levels of each child. Each schoolager has individual needs -- and this includes his need for rest.

Shower Honors Vega Resident

Miss Janice Spinhirne of Amarillo, bride-elect of Melvin Betzen of Hereford, was the honoree at a pre-nuptial shower Sunday from 3-5 p.m. in the Hospitality Room of First State Bank in Vega.

The serving table was covered with an ecru linen cloth edged with a wide lace border. A centerpiece of blue and peach-colored flowers with babybreath in a rustic basket was flanked by two peach candles. Crystal services completed the arrangements.

Out-of-town guests were Dorothy Betzen, mother of the groom-elect, Joyce Betzen, Jennifer Betzen, Jan

Betzen, and Pat Miewes all of Hereford; Laurie Grady, Marla Overstreet, and Linda Spinhirne of Amarillo; Jan Britten of Groom.

Hostesses included Beth Taylor, Martha Thompson, Gladys Cagle, Mary Kuhler, Josephine Pancoast, Mary Jentzen, Helen Robinson, Charlene Vard, Jan Britten, of Groom, Eva Linger, Virginia Kennedy, Marguerite Thompson, Dorothy Armitage and Juanita Fulton. The hostesses wore recipe cards instead of corsages to give to the honoree.

Refreshments of finger sandwiches, orange punch and coffee were served.

Musical 'Texas' To Open In June

"Texas", the musical romance of the Panhandle, will open June 18 and play through August 23. The run will be Mondays through Saturdays and one Sunday, July 6. The show begins at 8:30 p.m.

The fifteenth season of the show will be held in Palo Duro Canyon consisting of eighty actors, singers, and dancers. It is the story by the famous playwright, Paul Green, of the people who used to live near the canyon and their trials and joys and uses of the land.

For tickets and information one may write "Texas", Box 268, Canyon, Texas 79015. It is encouraged to make reservations in advance. On weekends, prices range from $3.50 to $6 for adults with half price for children in most seats. Week days are a little lower prices. One can also call 806-655-2181 for more information.

Mrs. Packard Addresses Cultural EH Clubwomen

Guest speaker Louise Packard presented a program on family living Friday afternoon for members of Cultural Extension Homemakers Club who met in the home of Jewel Rogers.

Jewell Hargraves, president, called the meeting to order. Welcomed as guests were Mrs. Packard and Maxine Rankin.

Ruth Gandy read "Lessons for Living" by Mary

Woodward Sosa.

Other members present were Mildred Lewis, Tillie Scott, Winnie Wiseman, Edith Hunter and Bertha Dettmann.

Preparing for Easter

The First Baptist Kindergarten will have Open House, Sunday, April 20 at 2:30 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall. The students have been involved in a number of Easter activities the last couple of weeks. Those pictured above in Mrs. Eugene Sparks class are making "Enchanted Eggs" using balloons and papier-mache.

Looking Over Details

The Hereford High School Aeronautics Class will display their model airplanes ranging over a period of eight years old at the Deaf Smith County Library this month. The display, organized by Robert Parsons, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Eual David Parsons, is shown looking over the details of a World War II Mustang Model, which flew with the Fly Tigers during that period of time. There are 12 planes total in the library display. Planes used by the British, Germans, Japanese and Americans are shown. [Brand photo by Denise Smith]

Spring Fashions Promise Fun

COLLEGE STATION -- Spring '80 fashions promise fun and romantic fantasy -- full of color, texture and action, says Nancy Brown, a clothing specialist.

Miss Brown is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

COLOR EVERYWHERE
A wonderful spectrum of color is everywhere, beginning with fresh pastels -- soft, pretty and feminine, she says.

Super brights are a second group, often mixed in bicolor and tricolor combinations.

White is the biggest accent color, also used as backgrounds for rich bright colors.

Greens lean toward jade and aqua.

For the backbone of the spring '80 fashion-conscious, burgundy, navy or black-and-white are important.

Gray is emerging as a major color, rather than a neutral.

PRINT FANTASIES

Prints are in abstracts, tropicals, orientals, seagoing themes and whimsical fantasies.

Big bold plaids are making a comeback, as are stripes of all kinds -- shirtings in new colors, optical-illusion stripes and bold stripes.

FABRICS GO TEXTURED

Seersucker and madras are the base fabrics for the revived plaids and stripes. Stretch terry appears in crayon-brights.

Textures are in infinite variety. Crisp fabrics, such as Bedford cords and seersucker, coordinate with dotted swiss, while denim teams with chambray and railroad or ticking stripes.

Velours and terries take on new texture looks with loops, stripes or diamond patterns. Knit-dressing is a major trend of the 80's in mixes of different yarns and lusters.

Chenilles, lenos, cotton string-knit sweaters and other opened-up fabrics will create a whole new spring world that will move right on into summer.

Wovens, have more body, being crisp, tightly woven and shaped.

More constructed fabrics included linens, lightweight tweeds and silky slubs and nubs.

Traditional fabrics that will lend to the nautical inspiration are chino, poplin, duck and canvas.

Filmy fabrics will make romantic blouses.

All in all, spring '80 promises soft, bright excitement in a whirl of color.

At Wits End

By ERMA BOMBECK

In 1949, I married my husband for better or for worse -- but not for movies.

He said they put him to sleep and the seats were too small for him to stretch out.

For over 30 years, I never understood a single joke at the Academy Awards.

That is why I couldn't wait until we got subscription television beamed into our home so I could watch all the films everyone talked about.

In watching them I realized that movies had changed considerably since Bambi almost died in the fire.

Profanity has become a second language. Not only that, it has not added a single creative new cuss word since I was a kid.

Have you any idea how boring a vocabulary consisting of five four-letter words, one five-letter word, one seven-letter word, and one 11-letter word can be?

We're talking about nine words that often have to carry a two-hour movie. After the shock of hearing the same words over and over were off, I began to listen to them in the context in which they were used and made another discovery. The profanity was not grammatically correct. Sometimes, the subject never went with the verb and more often, the noun was used as an adjective and most of the sentences were incomplete. There is nothing more unsettling than an incomplete profane sentence that is just strung together. The language definitely needs work if profanity is to continue on television.

You just cannot have John Travolta being edited for commercial television in "Saturday Night Fever" with his lips forming an S and hearing him say, "For corn's sake."

American's second language either needs help or should be discontinued altogether. It is becoming tawdry and predictable. If those who use the language are serious about keeping it alive, then why not appoint a Creative Cussing Committee that would introduce new words from time to time? We've fallen behind the entire world in profanity.

When was the last time you saw the words, "Deleted Expletive"? How often are "bleeps" being used on regular TV? When did you last see a new word on the restroom wall in lipstick? Dirty words are being used up at an astronomical rate.

If someone doesn't do something soon, one of these mornings you'll hit your finger with a hammer and do you know what you'll say? Nothing. You won't have a word for it.

When buying a fan, the pitch or angle of the blades is important, says Sue Young, housing and home furnishings specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Keep highly perishable foods, such as deviled eggs, meat spreads or poultry, "refrigerator cold," if held two or three hours before eating, cautions Mary K.

The deeper the blades are angled, the better they will propel air forward.

Old Ironsides actually had a wooden hull but earned the nickname when a cannon shot in the War of 1812 fell harmlessly off her side and a sailor is said to have shouted, "Huzza! Her sides are made of iron."

St. Louis Takes Lead in Murders

By ROBERT BURNS
Associated Press Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Street violence — most of it in the blighted black neighborhoods on the north side of St. Louis — has put this midwestern river port on top of the national heap in murder statistics.

Police recorded 230 murders in St. Louis in 1978, 46 for every 100,000 residents — highest ratio in the nation and more than double the rate in New York City.

Last year the killings increased by 24 percent, pushing the rate to 57 per 100,000. So far this year, 46 persons have been killed, down from last year's figure of 68 murders at this time.

"A stickup in St. Louis used to be 'Your money or your life,'" said a cab driver. "Now it's 'Your money AND your life.'"

The St. Louis rate-per-100,000 was highest despite dramatic jumps in homicides recorded in other big American cities last year.

Atlanta had a 60 percent increase in killings — from 144 to 231 — which translated to a rate of 51 per 100,000. Houston's murder total rose from 462 in 1978 to 632 last year, or 42 killings per 100,000. Dallas, Miami and New York also recorded more murders in 1979.

St. Louis civic leaders say the predominantly black enclaves on the north side, where murder is most frequent, have become virtual war zones.

St. Louis' chief prosecutor issued a public plea for help in curbing the violence. In an open letter to black church leaders, Circuit Attorney George Peach said 84 percent of the 285 persons slain last year were black.

In the cases that were solved, all the black victims were killed by other blacks, he added.

"With these harsh figures before us, it is not difficult to say that blacks are killing each other at an alarming rate," Peach, who is white, said in his letter.

"The slightest arguments often result in bloodshed. We've got to stop the quick rush to the gun to settle disputes," Peach said.

The typical murder victim in St. Louis is a black male in his 20s, gunned down by a neighbor in a street near his home. In 64 percent of the killings a handgun is used. The victim may have resisted a robbery, fought over money or been targeted by drug dealers.

"The law enforcement agencies take the attitude that, 'Well, there's another black killed. That's one less black we have to deal with,'" said state Rep. Fred Williams of St. Louis, who is black.

But Police Chief Eugene

Camp commented, "You can't patrol against murder. If someone wants to kill somebody, how can we stop it?"

Black leaders say the business community has virtually abandoned the crime-ridden north side. What's left, they say, is unemployment and poverty.

St. Louis has lost 58,000 manufacturing jobs in the last 10 years. It stands to lose another 5,000 jobs over the next couple of years as General Motors abandons its north side assembly plant, the city's single largest source of tax revenue and one of its biggest employers. The operation will be relocated in rural Wentzville, 45 miles west of St. Louis.

Names in the News

MIAMI (AP) — Daredevil Evel Knievel faces a $100,000 damage suit over a luxury yacht that he says he can't afford to buy though he fixed it up by adding a teak deck, carpeting and extra bedroom mirrors.

Transit Charter Inc. contends Knievel's improvements damaged the 116-foot yacht and he broke a contract to buy it. The company convinced a federal judge Tuesday that the motorcycle stuntman was liable for any damage to the luxury vessel.

Judge William Hoewer set a hearing later this month to determine the extent of damage to the yacht Knievel says he chartered in mid-1977 to take his family to motorcycle races in Daytona Beach.

In a deposition, Knievel said the $50,000 he made in yacht renovations plus the costs of several speedboats, two Lear jets, two motorcycles and two jet skis "broke me financially. It put me in debt to the tune of $4 million. I just never recovered."

Knievel's attorney, John Spittle Jr., said he withdrew from the case because Knievel didn't make good on promises to pay him. Knievel also faces a multi-million-dollar judgment in California and an Internal Revenue Service property lien for $1.6 million, Spittle said.

PLEASANT GROVE, Utah (AP) — Robert Redford, who owns a ski resort and is active in environmental causes, took a helicopter to go skiing and illegally landed in a federal scenic area, says the U.S. Forest Service.

The service issued a citation against Sundance Ski Resort, which is owned by the actor. Service district manager Harry Opar said the helicopter on Tuesday dropped Redford and some friends in the Mount Timpanogas Scenic Area for skiing.

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor Jane Byrne told reporters she planned to replace all 11 members of the city school board, then boarded a plane for a 10-day trip to Jerusalem.

Mrs. Byrne was accompanied by her press secretary, daughter and two bodyguards when she left Wednesday to attend an international conference of mayors focusing on city problems. Expenses of the trip are being paid by the American Jewish Congress.

Mrs. Byrne, who last week returned from a vacation to Palm Springs, Calif., said she intended to replace Board of Education members, with one possible exception, and emphasized her previously announced goal of a black superintendent.

— Evangelist Billy Graham says Mayo Clinic physicians have told him he must slow down or face possible medical consequences.

Graham, at the clinic for two days of medical tests this week, said doctors told him to cut out virtually all activities for the next six months, making it quite clear that "my ministry would be cut short" otherwise.

The 61-year-old world evangelist from Montreat, N.C., said the doctors found "three potentially serious medical problems," but he declined to reveal them. Graham, who broke three ribs when he fell in a London hotel bathtub in January, did rule out two of his known medical problems, high blood pressure and phlebitis.

Students File Privacy Suit

BAYTOWN, Texas (AP) — Three students who say their constitutional rights are being violated by a school policy that allows drug-sniffing dogs to randomly search students have challenged the policy in federal court.

A class action suit filed Wednesday in Houston on behalf of the students by the American Civil Liberties Union asks U.S. District Judge Robert O'Connor to halt the searches at Baytown Sterling High School.

The students — Robby Horton, 18, his sister Heather, 15, and Sandra Sanchez, also 18 — have been singled out by the dogs and searched, according to Arthur Val Perkins, their attorney.

Perkins said none of the three were found to have drugs in their possession. The suit says only a bottle of perfume was found when a purse belonging to Ms. Sanchez was searched Jan. 10.

The suit claims "the dogs are escorted unannounced by their trainers and school administrators into the classrooms of the school district during class periods."

The dogs, German Shepherds and Doberman Pinschers, are allowed to sniff the students until drugs are allegedly found and the student is then taken to the principal's office and searched.

Rick Peebles, attorney for the Goose Creek Independent School District of which the school is a part, declined to comment on the suit until it had been read by school officials.

SAY, THIS STUFF IS GOOD!

Two days later Jesus' mother was a guest at a wedding in the village of Cana in Galilee.

And Jesus and His disciples were invited too. The wine supply ran out during the festivities, and Jesus' mother came to Him with the problem.

"I can't help you now," He said. "It isn't yet My time for miracles."

But His mother told the servants, "Do whatever He tells you to."

Six stone waterpots were standing there; they were used for Jewish ceremonial purposes and held perhaps 20 to 30 gallons each.

Then Jesus told the servants to fill them to the brim with water. When this was done He said, "Dip some out and take it to the master of ceremonies."

When the master of ceremonies tasted the water that was now wine, not knowing where it had come from (though, of course, the servants did), he called the bridegroom over.

"This is wonderful stuff!" he said. "You're different from most! Usually a host uses the best wine first, and afterwards, when everyone is full and doesn't care, then he brings out the less expensive brands. But you have kept the best for the last!"

This miracle at Cana in Galilee was Jesus' first public demonstration of His heaven-sent power. And His disciples believed that He really was the Messiah.

After the wedding He left for Capernaum for a few days with His mother, brothers, and disciples.

Paul Harvey News Combat Women Will Die

Women will die, anyway. President Carter would prefer to register and draft women alongside men.

Congressmen will not even consider drafting their daughters.

But two studies by our Army indicate that women in uniform will be casualties in the first hours of any next war—even if they are restricted to positions presently designated "non-combat."

Even in communications, transportation, administration and maintenance—there will be many women killed or maimed.

While women may be more brave than men about "being killed," they may not, I think, necessarily be braver about being "maimed."

The recent 30,000 person demonstration in Washington against military registration was half and half, men and women.

There is evidence that President Carter's political setbacks in New York and Connecticut resulted, at least in part, from opposition to military registration.

Sen. Kennedy has pronounced himself "opposed to military registration."

So unpopular is the very idea of conscription that Selective Service officials expect more than half of all selectees will proclaim themselves "conscientious objectors."

The Pied Pipers of war do not have the blind following they formerly enjoyed.

An enlightened generation is convinced that there just has to be some better substitute for oil—than blood.

On a separate but related subject:

Even in politics there remains one unpardonable sin.

Not the acceptance of bribes; that remains forgivable. Not the concealment of income; that remains forgivable.

Indeed, many professional politicians casually refer to their unofficial collections as "the flower fund" or as "walking-around money."

Constituents will shake hands with their favorite candidate or public official—and pass him twenty or fifty or a hundred dollars cash—and they'll say, "Some walking-around money for you."

The donor expects to be remembered for his generosity. The candidate is expected to use the money for campaign expenses—though many just pocket and spend it.

Indeed, we have come to accept the fact that public officials on a minimal salary mysteriously accumulate lavish estates. This was done more overtly in the days before there was a "net worth law."

L.B.J. got very rich in public office.

Yet, forgiving as Americans are of political payola—there remains one unpardonable sin.

Illinois' Attorney General Bill Scott was accused of income tax fraud—five counts. The jury found him innocent on four counts. The ten-man-two-woman jury was willing to believe Bill Scott's explanation for four years—but convicted him for the same crime during the fifth year. Because that fifth year he was accused of using the money to take overseas vacations with "another woman." His peers would go easy on him with his taxes, but not when they thought he cheated on his wife.

Conservative Union Rips Senators

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Conservative Union attacked the national security records of eight Democratic senators today, saying they voted "for appeasement and weakness" on all of 21 selected issues over the past five years.

Several of the eight, including Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, responded personally or through spokesmen that the ACU report was a distortion of their positions and that the votes chosen for checking were not representative.

The eight senators singled out for special criticism by the conservative political organization were Kennedy, Paul Tsongas of Massachusetts, John Culver of Iowa, George McGovern of South Dakota, Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio, Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin, Claiborne Pell of Rhode Island and Donald Riegle of Michigan.

The ACU said 14 senators, all Republicans, voted "for strong defense" on all of the selected issues. It said 21 others usually voted "pro defense."

In a similar analysis of House votes, the ACU concluded that 64 Democrats had zero records and 65 lawmakers, most of them Republicans, had 100 percent records of voting for "peace through strength."

The ACU said the ratings were compiled under the direction of John Tierney, former chairman of the political science department at Catholic University in Washington and now the organization's legislative director.

The issues selected included votes on the B-1 bomber, the Panama Canal treaties, Vietnam reparations, arms sales to nation's judged to have violated human rights, nuclear-powered aircraft carriers and the Minuteman missile.

"In light of the current emergency in U.S. national security as demonstrated by events in Iran and Afghanistan, these ratings have a unique urgency," said Rep. John Bauman, R-Md., chairman of the ACU.

Jan Kalicki, a national security aide to Kennedy, said "a real cross-section, instead of a selective cross-section" would show that Kennedy often supported military assistance abroad and supported weapons, such as air launched missiles, which he believed to be in the nation's security interests.

Riegle called the ACU report "a fictitious, misleading analysis" and said that only Wednesday he voted for selective increases in defense spending as a member of the Budget Committee.

McGovern described the report as "phony" and said, "I have always supported a tough and lean American defense posture adequate to defend our country, deter aggression and protect our allies."

Other senators named either could not be reached or declined comment until they had seen the report.

The 14 senators named as having 100 percent records were Thad Cochran of Mississippi, William Cohen of Maine, Jake Garn of Utah, Orrin Hatch of Utah, Jesse Helms of North Carolina, Gordon Humphrey of New Hampshire, Roger Jepsen of Iowa, Paul Laxalt of Nevada, James McClure of Idaho, Harrison Schmitt of New Mexico, Alan Simpson of Wyoming, Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, John Warner of Virginia and Malcolm Wallop of Wyoming.

SHIMON PERES would likely replace Menahem Begin as prime minister of Israel if elections were held today. Polls indicate that voters would currently give Peres's Labor Party a majority of seats in the Israeli Knesset.

Transmission Line Threatens Amish Way of Life

MIDDLEFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Crist Miller unhitched his bay horse from his black buggy, put the horse in the barn and gazed out across a long slope of farmland to the creek winding through the valley.

"It's going to take away the look of the farm and the way we do things," he said softly.

Miller was searching for words to explain the impact a proposed high-power transmission line would have on him and his Amish neighbors — people who still live much the way their ancestors did when they settled in this corner of northeastern Ohio a century ago.

The proposed 52-mile transmission line is to carry electricity from a nuclear power plant being built at North Perry on Lake Erie to an Ohio Edison Co. station in Rootstown, a few miles east of Akron.

The line has become a high-voltage issue among residents of three counties, and one sociologist has testified it could erode the Amish way of life. The opponents have been supported by the three county governments.

State officials have scheduled further hearings before finalizing the path of the power line.

"I've never seen the Amish people with their hackles raised as they have over this," said Uria Byler, superintendent of the Amish community's 22 schools. "Usually they take something like this in an indifferent manner."

The bearded Byler, 65, wearing blue work clothes and a black wide-brimmed hat, came out of the one-story frame schoolhouse tucked behind his home to talk to a reporter.

He said the tall power line towers would intrude on an Amish community already pressured by industrial expansion from Cleveland suburbs to the west.

"There is no more land available for farming. It's become very expensive," said Byler. "In the past 10 years about 100 families have moved away."

Despite the exodus, the Amish community of about 6,400 is holding its own, Byler said. "Fortunately, the young people are getting married faster than they move away. They're very prolific."

However, rising taxes and living expenses have forced many Amish to leave their farms for jobs in shops and factories, he said. "They have no choice but to take the lunch bucket and go to the shop."

"Forty-five years ago, when I was starting, 95 percent were farmers," he said. "Now it's a lot less."

He said he doesn't like to see the young people going into the factories "because of the atmosphere." For the same reason, the Amish maintain their own schools.

"We don't think they (public schools) fit our way of life," he said. "We try to stay on the farm. What we want our children to be is not what the public schools want them to be."

The Amish community raised about $6,000 through a bake sale and auction last fall to help support the organization fighting the transmission line.

Prime mover of the Committee to Preserve Our Community is Middlefield tire dealer Charles White, who owns a scenic parcel of land near the proposed route of the line "with those 15-story erector-set towers."

White, 38, says the group is not "against electricity" but believes the existing four transmission lines in the region are adequate. After studying information from electrical engineers, "We just say they don't need a fifth transmission line. And if they did need one, they could put it in one of the existing corridors," he said.

The Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. and Ohio Edison say the fifth line is needed as a backup in case of power failures and that the existing corridors aren't wide enough to accommodate the added capacity. The proposed 346,000-volt line would require at least a 150-foot-wide corridor.

No telephone or electric lines are connected to Amish homes such as Miller's, where he was born 51 years ago and where he and his wife raised seven sons and a daughter.

Pointing with his hand, Miller showed where the proposed high-power line would run through a neighboring "sugar bush" (where maple syrup is made), past a pond he dug a few years ago, down across one of his fields and across a marshy area where he says hundreds of wild geese feed every summer.

"Hands," said the lean, tanned farmer.

"In the summer, we put the wheat and oats up in shocks — like the shocks they show on the seal of Ohio," he said. "I try to imagine how it's going to be stacking shocks around one of those towers."

FTC Trims Food Guideline

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission, reeling under congressional criticism of its pro-consumer regulations, is cutting back one of its major projects, a rule designed to end deceptive food advertising.

The commission has approved for publication in the Federal Register a proposal to drop a four-year effort to write industry guidelines on nutrition claims for food products, such as a cereal ad that claims to provide the full minimum daily adult requirement of a particular vitamin.

The FTC still could monitor such advertisements and take action against individual companies if a claim were found to be false, but there would be no industry standard.

The commission said it will continue to work on rules for energy and calorie claims in food advertisements, but with less regulation than originally proposed.

The actions come as congressional conferees are trying to reconcile bills passed by the House and Senate amid many criticisms of FTC "overregulation" of industry. Among provisions are ones that would end FTC consideration of rules over television advertising aimed at children and funeral homes.

The guidelines, which have not been implemented, were intended to "ensure that when the food industry chooses to use certain claims about the nutritional value of foods in selling its products, it does so in a non-deceptive and fair manner and does not exploit the public's lack of sophistication."

When first proposed in 1974, the rule was said to result in part from a 1969 White House conference on nutrition at which experts told of problems with the American diet.

Because of the scope of the project, it was divided into three phases in 1976. Phase I concerned claims about energy and calories provided by a product, Phase II concerned nutritional value such as vitamins provided and Phase III would have required most food advertisements to include information about nutritional advantages.

Thomas J. Donegan, FTC assistant director for food and drug advertising, said the proposal to end Phase II and Phase III is "an experiment in deregulation."

He noted that the Federal Register notice, which was released to the Associated Press on Wednesday, asks for suggestions from the public about voluntary actions by food manufacturers and retailers to make food advertising more accurate and useful.

"The nature of food advertising has changed and there might be more effective ways of improving the flow of nutritional information than dealing with specific claims," he said.

What people are saying...

Farrah Fawcett

"I certainly wish I didn't have to be compared to her because I think she's really beautiful. ... Maybe after a couple of years and they dissect her the way they dissect me... I will feel better."

— Farrah Fawcett, former star of TV's "Charlie's Angels," referring to Bo Derek, star of the movie "10." (ABC-TV)

"It is my intention neither to fall off bulls and horses that he thinks you have to fall at the finish line in skiing, too."

— Yasir Arafat, chief of the Palestine Liberation Organization. For the first time, he was said to have denied (in the Vienna newspaper Die Presse) that the PLO wants to destroy Israel.

"Inflation has affected the cost of costumes in my show!" — Norman Kean, producer of Broadway's nude musical, "Oh! Calcutta!"

"The war we are fighting is a fight between two hostile ideologies: communism and Islam."

THOUGHTS

"Not to know from Adam" is an expression meaning not to know at all. It is sometimes ascribed to Genesis.

"Male and female created he them; and blessed them, and called their name Adam, in the day when they were created." — Gen. 5:2

Women have always been sensitive about their age. Generally the age of Biblical woman is "about" with one notable exception.

"... And shall Sarah, that is ninety years old, bear?" — Gen. 17:17

Poll as a verb means not only to sample voters but also, as in the Bible, to "cut short the hair."

"Neither shall they shave their heads, nor suffer their locks to grow long; they shall only poll their heads." — Ezek. 44:20

Living at home through diversified farming is the modern version of Biblical advice.

"... eat ye every man of his own vine, and everyone of his fig tree, and drink ye every-one of his cistern." — II Kings 18:31

-Texas Political Briefs-

By The Associated Press
 AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State Republican Chairman Ernest Angelo said Wednesday that GOP presidential candidate Ronald Reagan has been endorsed by 36 members of the 62-member State Republican Executive Committee.

Angelo, also state chairman for Reagan, announced that Reagan would visit Lubbock and Amarillo on Wednesday, April 9.

"With Governor Reagan's impressive victories in Wisconsin and Kansas, it is clear that his appeal is broad-based in all parts of the country," Angelo said.

Reagan's Wednesday schedule calls for him to arrive in Lubbock at 12:30 p.m. for a news conference and airport rally, then fly to Amarillo for 2:30 p.m. news conference and airport rally.

Reagan will leave Amarillo at 3:30 p.m. for Nebraska.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Buddy Temple, a Democratic candidate for the Railroad Commission, said today he sees merit in the "Texas triangle" plan for passenger service, but not the "bullet train."

"It is the kind of pie-in-the-sky scheme which voters have accepted on face value and which politicians have pushed to fruition without any consideration of the cost-effectiveness of the idea. It should be killed quickly," he told a news conference.

Temple said one of his opponents, Railroad Commission Chairman John Poerner, has endorsed the "Japanese bullet train" to link Dallas-Fort Worth, Houston and San Antonio with an elevated two-way electric powered 750-mile rail system. He estimated it would cost about $20 billion instead of the $6 billion estimated by some.

"The Texas Triangle idea grew out of Department of Transportation study done at the urging of passenger train advocates, including several Texas congressmen," Temple said. "The Texas Triangle has merit. It should be examined."

He stressed that neither plan would have sufficient ridership to operate without government subsidies, including state help to finance the project.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — President Jimmy Carter will be campaigning in Texas this fall but not before the May 3 primary elections, Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong said Wednesday.

Armstrong, a co-manager of the Carter-Mondale ticket in Texas, said he felt the Wisconsin and Kansas returns followed the pattern that Carter has established in the early primaries.

"I think the pattern is pretty well established of about 2-to-1 favoring Carter over (Sen. Edward) Kennedy," he told a news conference. "I do not see any other states, except maybe California or Pennsylvania, that would interrupt that pattern."

Armstrong said he did not think Carter's position in Texas would be changed should Rep. John Anderson, Republican, run as an independent in Texas. "I have heard that any votes from Anderson might come from Carter's supporters, but I do not think that would change the pattern in Texas. We are not worried."

Anderson Still Battling

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Anderson insists he "won't be hounded out" of the race for the Republican presidential nomination, but he's still clutching the option of trying another track to the White House.

And an Associated Press survey shows he could, in fact, get his name on most state ballots as an independent or third-party candidate in November, though he could face some formidable obstacles.

"A third-party candidacy is being urged on me by a lot of people," Anderson told students at George Washington University Wednesday night. "I will consider that matter very carefully."

That was just about as far as the Illinois congressman can be pushed these days on the subject.

If the choice in November is "between the incumbent and (Ronald) Reagan, millions and millions of people aren't going to have any choice," he told the GWU students.

But he vowed to "continue to march," meanwhile, for the GOP nomination in spite of his failure to win a single primary.

Anderson already is too late to get on the ballot as an independent in Ohio and he stands little chance of making it in Michigan.

The state with one of the toughest requirements for listing an independent presidential candidate is California, which requires petitions signed by 101,296 voters. Petitioners must obtain the signatures between June 9, six days after the California primary, and Aug. 8.

Carolyn Stewart, the California director of the Anderson campaign, when asked if she were gearing up for a possible petition drive, said, "Not really. Until I am told to do otherwise, my priority is to work very hard on our voter registration drive."

However, when asked if she thought there would be any problem obtaining the necessary signatures should the Anderson strategy shift to an independent candidacy, she replied, "It would be a piece of cake."

Among the major states where Anderson could easily qualify for listing on the November 3 ballot are New York, Illinois, Minnesota, Florida, as well as Pennsylvania.

Anderson's third-place finish in the Wisconsin's open Republican primary on Tuesday revealed he has weaknesses among the very groups he would have to win in any independent campaign. He did draw support from younger and liberal voters. But overall, he shared with Ronald Reagan and George Bush the votes of Democrats and independents who cast their ballots in the Republican contest, whereas he had hoped for the vast majority of those crossovers.

Owners List Prompts Suit

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A federal lawsuit has been filed in Delaware by two Texas International Co. investors seeking a court order instructing that company to hand over a list of stockholders, a local newspaper has reported.

The Thursday editions of the Daily Oklahoman said Miami, Fla., businessman John Bertoglio and Texas financier James Ling want the list of shareholders so they can solicit support for their candidacy for election to the oil firm's board of directors. The Oklahoma-City based firm is registered in Delaware.

Ling and Bertoglio together own just under 5 percent of TI's 10 million shares outstanding.

Bertoglio, Ling, and New York investment banker Ronald Shifan have all filed their 14-B documents with the Securities and Exchange Commission, formally declaring their intention to run for the board seats.

The three were narrowly defeated last May in TI's last stockholders' election.

But a Delaware federal court judge on March 7 found federal proxy law violations by both TI's management and the Bertoglio-Ling-Shifan group. The judge ruled the results of the 1979 election invalid and ordered a new election. TI had set that new election for May 16, complying with the judge's order that the election be held not less than 45 days and not more than 75 days from his March 7 ruling.

However, sources reported Wednesday that TI's board had voted to postpone the May 16 election and annual meeting after learning that Ling and Bertoglio might wage another proxy fight over the election of directors.

TI's New York-based attorney, Fred Gerard, said Wednesday the board voted for that postponement Tuesday. He added that the company also plans to try to get a stay of the Delaware federal court judge's election deadline by appealing the case to the Third Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia.

Ancient Organ

The 17th and 18th centuries were the golden age of organ music, but music for the organ was being written and played even in the days of Rome. Ktesibios, a Greek engineer, described a "hydraulic" or water-powered organ around 250 B.C. Saint Hieronymus, who died in A.D. 420, told of an organ in Jerusalem whose notes could be heard at the Mount of Olives almost a mile away.

Hightower Critical of Nugent

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Jim Hightower claimed Wednesday that a political opponent, Railroad Commissioner Jim Nugent, only sold off "obvious conflicts of interests" before taking office.

"He and his immediate family still have a personal financial stake in several corporations engages in business activities that, either directly or indirectly, bring them under the jurisdiction of the Railroad Commission," Hightower said.

The Democratic candidate made the statements in morning news conferences in Houston and Dallas and later in Austin. A planned trip to San Antonio was cancelled because of flying weather.

Hightower said Nugent still had holdings in a number of oil and gas exploration and drilling companies, a regulated trucking firm, coal companies, one of the state's largest gas utility companies, a company which holds sizeable lignite leases and a financial corporation with holdings in railroads and utilities.

Hightower also said that

Nugent's campaign reports filed with the Secretary of State show that more than $100,000 of the $112,000 received by Nugent by January "had been given by special interests under his jurisdiction."

Which will make the better "retirement home" (we will buy it outright) -- a beautifully fenced and landscaped, 10-year old house or a new house without lawn and fence and $2,000 higher in price. "Put a pencil" to your decision. Survey the older house. Make a detailed list showing Age, Condition, Estimated Use-Life and Estimated Replacement Cost for: heating and cooling systems, major appliances now on site and structural elements (roof, wiring, plumbing, etc.). Then, get a quote on fencing and landscaping for the new house. Figure in your own physical contribution to the project. You may find the physical and financial "start up" costs of the new home, with its energy-efficient construction and appliances, will be more desirable than the older home which could make burdensome financial demands in the future with repair and replacement programs.
