

Whitefaces Host Palo Duro Dons

★ Herd Picked to Win By Two Touchdowns ★

BY BOB NIGH
MANAGING EDITOR

Palo Duro head football coach Ken Ozee was a bundle of nerves last Friday night as he watched the Pampa Harvesters play host to the Hereford Whitefaces. After, all he had seen his highly-touted Dons raked by the Clovis Wildcats 33-13 just the evening before in the season opener. And, the Dons were to face the Herd a week later.

The butterflies are fluttering even more today for Ozee, who will try to find some way to get on the winning side of the ledger against the Whitefaces, who are a good two touchdown favorite when they toe-it-up at 7:30 tonight at Whiteface Field.

Hereford, which more than held its own against the Wildcats in a scrimmage a week before they clawed the Dons, will be a challenge for Palo Duro, which managed only 105 total yards against Clovis. The 'Faces, meanwhile, shut down the Harvesters, allowing only 62 yards total offense in a 21-0 shellacking.

Fullback C.M. Martin led the way for the Dons last week with 55 yards on 16 totes. He combines with quarterback Kenny Ozee and split end Jay Jefferson to highlight the Dons offense.

Defensively, Palo Duro was without the services of Cody Allen and Danny Delgado against Clovis, and they are expected to be in full battle dress tonight. "I think it will help to get our injured players back on defense because we had a lot of players go both ways against Clovis," Ozee said.

The Herd has won the last two encounters between the two squads with a 14-0 decision last year and a 10-6 win in 1979. The Dons last won in 1978 when they handled the 'Faces by a 28-0 count during Herd coach Don Cumpston's first season here.

While the Whiteface defenders were blanking Pampa last week, the HHS offense finally got things going in the second half, and amassed 327 yards total offense despite four turnovers. "Our offense was good in spots, but overall we were just too inconsistent," Cump-ton said. "But, that was probably due to our young linemen."

Hereford had 33 players experience their first varsity game last week out of 48 on the roster, so the inexperience is still a factor this early in the season.

The Herd offense will again be led by senior signal-caller Alan Wartes, who passed for 112 yards and rushed for 21 more, including a four-yard TD scamper against Pampa. Wartes relinquished the helm of the ship only briefly against the Harvesters, and his stand-in performed admirably despite being thrown into a difficult situation.

Senior Shannon Ritchie replaced Wartes, who got a sudden cramp in a foot in the final stanza last week, and found Rudy Hernandez on a 20-yard scoring strike with 5:41 remaining to give the Herd a 14-0 lead.

Wayne High, who finished with 77 yards against Pampa on eight carries, will join Jeff Coupe in the backfield, along with Wartes.

U.S.-Israeli Combined Military Exercises Possible

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Israel may conduct joint military exercises as part of their new "strategic partnership" to protect the Middle East from any Soviet threat, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. says.

The strategic relationship between the two nations became a key theme of the meetings between President Reagan and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin despite Begin's denunciation of the pending $8.5 billion U.S. weapons sale to Saudi Arabia.

Haig cautioned Thursday that the new relationship has practical limitations, especially because of budget constraints in the United States.

He described it, however, as "the strategic relationship, the strategic partnership, the alliance, if you will, between Israel and the United States."

Meanwhile, both Begin and

U.S. leaders predicted a quick and successful conclusion to new talks aimed at granting autonomy to the Arab residents of the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

Begin said the long-stalled Israeli-Egyptian talks, scheduled to resume Sept. 23 in Cairo, "hopefully" would be concluded by the end of the year. Haig said he hopes they will be over by next April.

Specific proposals for the new U.S.-Israeli partnership will be worked out by Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and Israeli Defense Minister Ariel Sharon.

Haig told reporters that such cooperation might consist of joint military exercises, especially naval exercises, some limited storing of military supplies in Israel for use in an emergency, and joint planning against possible Soviet threats to the region.

Haig said Israel had a

Foreign Cars Still Top Fuel Economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. automakers are making progress in their quest to increase the fuel efficiency of their cars, but the ratings for the 1982 model year show Detroit has a way to go to beat the imports.

Only one domestic car, a diesel-powered Chevrolet Chevette, cracked the top 10 list issued Thursday by the Environmental Protection Agency.

However, that was one more car than Detroit managed to put on the 1981 top 10. Overall, eight U.S.-made cars came in with better mileage than the best-rated domestic car last year.

But for the fifth straight year, a Volkswagen Rabbit with a diesel engine ranked No. 1. Its rating of 45 miles per gallon was 3 mpg better than was posted by the 1981 Rabbit.

Seven of the 1982 top 10 cars have diesel engines, compared to only two diesel cars on last year's list.

Diesel cars made up less than 1 percent of the autos on U.S. highways in the 1970s, but analysts predict diesels will capture 25 percent of the market by 1990, their sales spurred by motorists attracted to the higher mileage

Reagan Reaffirms Nation's Economic Recovery is Steady, Slow Process

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, outlining a broad range of new budget cuts to his Cabinet, says his administration "can't be stamped out by frustration or fear" just because the economy didn't recover instantly after passage of his economic program.

"We never promised it would be easy," Reagan was quoted as saying. "And we never promised it would be quick...We must stay on a steady, long-term course."

After the president's preparatory pep talk, budget director David A. Stockman gave Cabinet members their first look at the new round of budget cuts Reagan has in mind. They include across-the-board trimming of every department's budget in the fiscal year that begins next month and cuts of $500 million to $4 billion in each department in fiscal 1983 and again in 1984.

Reagan's chief spokesman, David R. Gergen, refused to give any figures for 1982, when the administration hopes to hold the federal deficit to $42.5 billion despite projections by congressional analysts and private economists of a much higher shortfall.

But he said the cuts for all departments are expected to total $30 billion in 1983 and $44 billion in 1984. That would be within the range administration officials have been discussing for months, but Gergen did not dispute reporters' suggestions that still further cuts are likely to be needed.

Although the Defense Department will be among those targeted for spending reductions, Reagan reportedly has not decided what level of cuts will be required in the Pentagon budget.

Sources who asked not to be identified said Reagan probably would make his final budget decisions by late Monday and would announce them Tuesday.

Gergen gave reporters an account of Wednesday's Cabinet session but refused to reveal many details. He insisted that many of the cuts remain tentative and were expressed only in ranges of highs and lows.

One senior White House aide, speaking privately, said there would be some "sacred cows" that would escape the budget ax and that a few "heartburn programs" would be continued, not because the administration wants them, but because the political cost of cutting them would be greater than the budget savings would warrant.

Republican congressional leaders, meanwhile, expressed frustration and anger with the pessimistic response Reagan's economic plans have received on Wall Street, where the stock and bond markets have continued their decline.

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., told his colleagues that if the prevailing record-high interest rates don't come down soon, he would sponsor legislation to tax the "windfall profits" of financial institutions.

Reagan, who has resisted suggestions that he intervene to try to bring down interest rates, was quoted by Gergen as telling the Cabinet: "I know that many of you are aware of nervousness on Wall Street and Capitol Hill, and I can certainly understand that. We have just passed milestone legislation, and some people are frustrated because we don't see instant recovery."

But he reminded his listeners that the budget and tax cuts Congress enacted won't take effect until Oct. 1 and that the administration had said all along that the economy could not be expected to respond for several

Boy Who Can't Breathe Going Home

PRINCEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Four-year-old Jason Sloan, who walks around pulling a red wagon holding oxygen tanks because of his rare breathing disease, is going home after spending nearly his entire life in hospitals.

Jason's divorced father, a contractor who built a house especially for his son, is making arrangements for the child to leave the hospital Nov. 16 and live at home in the care of 10 nurses.

Jason hasn't been told he is leaving the hospital, and his father is trying to keep it a secret.

"I'm nervous about him coming home," Jerry Sloan said. "Yet, I'm so happy I wish he were coming tomorrow. I want to spend a lot of time with my son. I love my son very much."

The blond-haired child suffers from central hypopventilation, a disorder in which the body's breathing organs are not properly signaled by the brain. Estimates by doctors on how many children suffer from the disease have ranged from seven worldwide to less than a dozen in the United States.

Doctors say technology may one day enable Jason to breathe by himself, but in the meantime, air is carried through long pipes to an opening in his throat, a tracheostomy.

Jason walks around in the hospital and even rides a tricycle, but everywhere he goes he trails the little red wagon that carries his life-sustaining oxygen tanks.

In a backpack, he carries a transmitter that signals electrodes implanted in his chest to activate his diaphragm for each breath.

When Jason sleeps, the hose connected to his tracheostomy is connected to a machine that mixes and humidifies air and oxygen.

His 31-year-old father spends weekends at Children's Memorial Hospital in Chicago, where Jason has lived most of his life.

The boy's mother, Debbie Sloan, lives in Chicago and holds down two jobs, including a secretarial position at the hospital so she can be close to her son.

Sloan and his wife were divorced last year and the father was granted custody, in part because he had built a house for Jason, equipped with individual circuit breakers in every electrical outlet in the boy's bedroom and an

World Wide Barrow Show Here Sept. 19

The World Wide Barrow Show will be held Sept. 19 at the County Bull Barn. Organizers for the show, Marcus Phillips, Hereford, and Ed Standee, Dimmitt, say 33 percent of each class will win money.

Grand champion barrow will win $500, reserve champion will receive $300, and breed champs and reserve breed champs will win $100 and $50 respectively. The winnings are guaranteed, and the purse will increase with entries.

Entry deadline for the show is Sept. 12, and Phillips said he will accept phone-in entries. Entry fee is $20 per animal.

Arrival will be 8 a.m. Sept. 18 through 10 a.m. Sept. 19. Judging will begin at 7 p.m. Saturday evening by Judge Jay Winters, Wintex Farms.

Both barrows and gilts will be allowed to show with no weight limit. Each exhibitor will turn in a weight card and all entries must meet Texas animal health requirements.

All breeds will be classed, and each weight class will be determined by the number in each breed.

The public is invited to attend the show.

Goal Planning, Hard Work Pay Off for Mercer

By DEBE GRAVES
Staff Writer

The climb from custodian to loan officer of a bank seems like something from a fairy-tale or an old Jerry Lewis movie but it does happen. One such success story is that of Robert Mercer.

Mercer moved to Hereford in June of 1958 with his family and was forced to quit school in the eleventh grade to help support his grandmother, mother, and a younger brother and sister.

At first Mercer earned wages as a field hand for Hugh Clearman of WAC Seed Company, then he took a job as custodian at the First United Methodist Church, where he is still an active member.

Later Mercer was hired as custodian at First National Bank, a position he held for eight years while he took his high school equivalency tests (GED), and began taking night courses through Amarillo College.

"If I saw something that needed to be done, I'd do it before anyone had to ask me," said Mercer who spent free time rolling coins, doing heavy work, and taking care of the inside printing jobs of the bank. Mercer feels that his willingness to take on more work than designated by his job helped in his upward climb.

Though a sign on his desk reads, "Third Assistant to the Eighth Vice-President," Mercer is officially now a loan officer with First National Bank, a position he was promoted to a year ago. But this isn't the end of the climb for the enthusiastic man, his next goal is to complete work toward a college degree and then who knows?...the sky is the limit.

Mercer attributes much of his success to goal planning and the friendship he maintains with Virgil Slentz who Mercer claims has been a positive influence in his life.

"I used to be a person who started out in high-gear when I wanted to do something but I would burn myself out. I credit Virgil with showing me how to set a goal, write it down, and stick with it," said Mercer who advises, "You have to make up your mind what you want in life, set the goals, then write them down to remind yourself and keep from getting off track and to give yourself something with which to check on your progress towards attaining what you want." "Whatever you accomplish in life it has to be through hard work, determination, and goal setting."

Mayor Will Probably Drop from Race

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Former El Paso Mayor Tom Westfall says he "probably" will cancel his campaign for governor because he has been stripped of the issue he expected to lead to his victory.

Westfall said he plans to decide next week whether to resume or drop his suspended campaign for the governorship.

Westfall started his grass-roots campaign July 6 in Dell City — the first stop on a planned 10-month campaign into the state's 254 counties.

But Westfall abruptly postponed the campaign two weeks later when he learned the Legislature would delay implementation of a bill to reappraise property until after the November 1982 election.

At the time, he called the Legislature's action "a politician's trick" to avoid voter wrath during an election year.

Brown Returns Funds For Second Year

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said Thursday he is returning to the state treasury a total of $600,000 that had been appropriated to his department by the 1979 Legislature.

"For the second biennium in a row, I have found it possible to return unspent funds to the treasury," Brown said in a statement.

"This has been possible in part by running a 'tight ship' and brings to $1.4 million I have saved the taxpayers of this state since becoming commissioner of agriculture four years ago."

Brown explained that while his department receives funds appropriated by the Legislature, his department also brings into the state's general revenue fund about $2.5 million a year from fees that are collected through the enforcement of 47 agriculture and consumer protection laws.

Radioactive Waste Dumped in Laredo

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — Thirty-seven canisters containing low-level radioactive wastes were to be unearthed today at a city landfill where they were inadvertently buried last week, state officials said.

The one-quart containers will be shipped to a low-level nuclear waste disposal facility at Richland, Wash., said Bob Free, an official with the Department of Health's Radiation Control Board.

Workers at a Laredo oil well servicing company mistakenly threw the canisters filled with iridium sand into a metal trash bin Tuesday, Free said.

"One of our customers, Halliburton Services, dumped the containers into one of our bins by mistake and our people hauled it to the dump without knowing it was there," said Eddie Garza, president of Sanitation Services.

Garza said an official at Halliburton realized the canisters were missing Wednesday and called the sanitation company.

Hit and Run Kills Father, Daughters

DENTON, Texas (AP) — Police have launched a search for the driver of a blue pickup truck believed to have been involved in a hit-and-run in which a father and his two young daughters were killed while riding bicycles.

Kelly Amanda Blanchard, 2, was pronounced dead at the scene after the Wednesday night accident, and her father, Robert Earle Blanchard, 43, died later at Westgate Hospital.

Kristie Michelle Blanchard, 10, died Thursday morning at Methodist Hospital in Dallas after undergoing surgery for head and abdominal injuries. She had been transported by helicopter.

Blanchard apparently was carried a short distance on the truck's hood, suggesting that the driver could not have been unaware of the impact, police Capt. Bill Cummings said.

The truck was last reported sliding through a nearby intersection where a bicycle seat was found, Cummings said.

Police believe the 2-year-old was riding on her father's bicycle when the three were struck.

Solidarity Demands Controls

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — The independent Solidarity labor federation adjourned its first convention after demanding free national and local elections in a direct challenge to the Communist Party's control of Poland.

The 896 delegates also adopted a policy statement Thursday demanding that workers be given control over the hiring and firing of managers at state-run enterprises and more say in how those organizations are run. It also called for public control of the media and freedom for "political prisoners."

Tass, the official Soviet news agency sharply criticized the congress as an "anti-socialist, anti-Soviet orgy" that foreshadows an attempt to restore capitalism to Poland.

A Western diplomat in Moscow characterized the Tass attack as "pretty tough, about the strongest language we have seen in a long time."

A Soviet armada of 60-80 ships — one of the largest fleets seen in the Baltic Sea since World War II — was expected to stage an amphibious landing over the weekend only 15 miles from Poland, according to the Danish Defense Intelligence Service.

The naval maneuvers are in conjunction with widespread war games involving some 100,000 Soviet troops near the Polish border.

In Washington, the State Department said Moscow appears intent on reminding its allies and Poland in particular about its "military might." But spokesman Dean Fischer said there is no indication the maneuvers mean the Soviets plan to intervene in Poland.

In an apparent reference to the Soviet maneuvers, the Solidarity congress issued a declaration saying, "The actions of various forces creating a sense of external threat will not deprive us of the will of struggle for the ideals of August 1980..." Solidarity, the first independent labor federation in the Soviet bloc, was formed in the summer of 1980 following a crippling wave of strikes that began in the shipyards of Gdansk.

Solidarity leader Lech Walesa, who faces re-election when the congress reconvenes Sept. 26 to choose new leaders and consider an economic program, easily defeated a challenge to his leadership and strong central control of the union.

By a margin of 500-343, the delegates voted to allow regional union chiefs to sit on Solidarity's ruling presidium after Walesa urged them to be "fast, operative and a little dictatorial" when it comes to calls for immediate industrial democracy in Poland. Walesa is both the Gdansk regional chief and the national union leader.

The call for free elections came after delegates agreed to shelve a proposal that would have deleted a clause from Solidarity's charter that acknowledged the Communist Party's leading role in Poland. The government insisted the clause be included before it would recognize Solidarity as a legal union.

The Communist Party, which dominates candidate selection through the National Unity Front, has about 3 million members in Poland. Solidarity has 9.5 million members, and presumably would offer its own candidates under the proposal.

O'Connor Shares Views Of Many Conservatives

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court nominee Sandra Day O'Connor is sending out the word: she shares the views of many conservatives.

But the Senate Judiciary Committee has yet to find out — even though most of its members appear anxious to know — if she will be a truly conservative Supreme Court justice.

As her confirmation proceedings entered what's scheduled to be their final hours today, that fact did not seem to matter.

Ten of the committee's 18 members already have gone on the record as supporting Mrs. O'Connor's nomination, and confirmation by the full Senate appears assured.

In more than five hours of testimony Thursday, the first woman ever nominated to the nation's highest court divulged these personal views:

—She abhors abortion.

—She thinks it "inappropriate" for women to participate in combat during times of war.

—She opposes forced busing to achieve school desegregation.

—She favors the death penalty for certain crimes.

—She believes a 67-year-old legal doctrine that bars the use of evidence seized illegally by police may be adding to the nation's crime rate and perhaps is being applied too stringently.

—She favors a limited role for the nation's courts.

But, as she has since the Capitol Hill hearings began Wednesday, Mrs. O'Connor emphasized that her "personal views and philosophies" would not affect her Supreme Court votes.

And she disavowed any hint that she will be President Reagan's conservative envoy to the court. "I was not asked to make any commitments about what I would do or how I would resolve any issue to come before the court," she said about her pre-nomination conversations with Reagan.

About abortion, the issue generating the most committee questions during the hearings, Mrs. O'Connor said Thursday, "It is simply offensive to me. It's something that's repugnant to me and something in which I would not engage."

But she told conservative Sen. Jeremiah Denton, R-Ala., that "we are obligated to recognize that others have different views" and that the Supreme Court's landmark 1973 decision legalized abortion.

"Asked by Denton about women in combat, Mrs. O'Connor said, 'I have never felt, and do not feel, that it is appropriate for women to participate in combat...in a battlefield situation.'"

The 51-year-old state appeals court judge, recalling that for one year she endured 75-mile round-trip bus rides between her family's ranch and her school, said busing "can be a very disruptive part of any child's education."

Police Check Disturbances

Hereford police checked out two disturbance reports Thursday but found no evidence at either scene.

At 211 E. Park, Gracie Manning reported a noise in her back yard that sounded to her like someone hitting a wall. Officers did not find anyone on the premises.

Marcy Varner, 512 J. said she heard gunshots in the ally behind her residence, but no shells or bullet markings were found.

One person was put into protective custody by authorization of a psychologist and 15 traffic citations were issued.

ratings.

The top four spots were held by diesel cars this year — all of them manufactured by Volkswagen. The four-speed VW Rabbit was followed by a VW Rabbit and a VW Jetta with five-speeds, which got 43 mpg. A four-speed Jetta was in fourth place at 42 mpg.

The highest-rated gasoline-fueled car was the Honda Civic, which tied with a new Japanese import, the diesel-powered Isuzu I-Mark, for fifth place at 41 mpg.

The top-rated domestic car, the diesel Chevrolet Chevette, came in seventh at 40 mpg. The Chevette, which did not have a diesel model last year, and Ford's Escort and Lynx were rated the best domestics in 1981 at 30 mpg.

That mark was beaten or tied by 13 U.S. cars for the upcoming model year. Four models of the Dodge Omni and Plymouth Horizon came in at 35 and 34 mpg and 1982 Escort and Lynx models got 31 mpg. General Motors' new J-cars, the Chevy Cavalier and the Pontiac J2000, got 30 mpg.

The best mileage rating for models of GM's popular front-wheel drive X-cars, including the Chevy Citation, was 26 mpg, the same mark obtained for Chrysler's front-wheel drive cars, the Dodge Aries and Plymouth Reliant.

Chrysler was the only other Detroit representative to have cars included in the top 10 list. However, its Dodge Colt and Plymouth Champ are built by Japan's Mitsubishi Co. and are thus listed by the EPA as imports. They got 39 mpg and tied for eighth place along with a diesel-powered Isuzu I-Mark.

Isuzu, one of Japan's leading automakers, used to sell its cars in the United States under the Buick Opel label but is now manufacturing them under its own name.

EPA cautioned that its mileage ratings should be used for comparison purposes only since they are obtained in laboratory tests which do not make allowances for different road and weather conditions.

Mercer arrives at work at 5:30 or 6 each morning to "...partake of the quietness. I start my day off right with a happy mental attitude by taking time to read the Book, the Bible, and then I try to have it be a part of the rest of my everyday life."

Having served 19 months in the Army, 13 months of that time in Vietnam, Mercer finds that the people of Hereford are the friendliest he has come across and said, "This is the best place in the world."

Mercer and his wife,

Sloan intends to hire 10 nurses by Oct. 22 so they can undergo training to care for Jason when he arrives. Plans call for around-the-clock care for about six months before the staff can be reduced.

The expense will be far less than the cost of hospital care, which has averaged between $250,000 and $300,000 a year. The cost of keeping Jason at home will be cut to about $8,000 a month. Much of the bill is being paid by state public aid, Sloan said.

The big problem now is keeping the homecoming secret. "I'm afraid he'll get nervous or excited too far in advance," said Sloan. "Everytime I leave the hospital and say I'm going home he wants to come with me."

"So one day I'll tell him, 'Yes, you can come with me,' and that this time it's for keeps."

Linguists Say 'Spanglish' a Dialect

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Some linguists believe a dialect spoken by some Mexican-Americans should be considered a separate variation of English, much as Black English has been accepted in the past couple of years.

"We're trying to do something similar to what has been going on in Black English which has been recognized as a separate variety of English," said Gustavo Gonzalez of the University of California at Santa Barbara.

About 40 linguists, educators and speech specialists from across the country are attending a three-day research conference at the University of Texas at El Paso, the first such conference to deal exclusively with Chicano English. The conference ends Saturday.

"The major thing we're trying to accomplish is to describe just what Chicano English is," Gonzalez said. "We're trying to see just what is the difference between Chicano English and standard English."

The researchers say determining that Chicano English is a legitimate variation of English could spell differences in bilingual education approaches and in the way the Mexican-American community looks at itself.

Jacob Ornstein-Galicia, a UTEP professor emeritus who organized the conference, said some Mexican-Americans are discriminated against because they speak Chicano English.

"If I go in and ask for a job speaking Chicano English, then the man who's doing the hiring may say, 'He's got a bad accent. People won't be able to understand him.' And he won't hire me whether my accent is incomprehensible or not," Ornstein-Galicia said.

"We need to study the dialects and find out what their meaning is in our culture," said Ornstein-Galicia, who added he planned to publish the findings of the meeting to help spread interest in Chicano English.

Gonzalez said the forms taken by Chicano English usually depends on the person's level of fluency in English.

He said the dialect can include plugging Spanish words into otherwise English sentences, dropping words, misusing standard English verb forms, using different intonations and forming "Spanglish" words that combine Spanish and English.

"It depends on how fine the analysis is," said Gonzalez. "It may show in ways that are almost imperceptible to the lay person, but would be perceptible to a linguist or speech specialist."

Ann Landers

'Friend' in Every Town

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I would like to give "Falsely Accused in Green Bay" a little advice, too!

My ex-husband is a truck driver. We were married 25 years - have children and grandchildren. When truckers started using CBs, women like her began to pop out of the woodwork.

My husband had a "friend" in every town he went through. Most of the time he would tell me about them, say they were just "nice people." Then he started to bring gifts home around Christmas and Valentine's Day. Naturally, he said he bought the stuff.

One night he announced that he had to move into an apartment for a while "to sort things out," he assured me there was no other woman. His girlfriend moved in with him the next day.

So, you tell Green Bay to give her CB away. She will be better off and save a lot of heartache for some trucker's wife.-Been There

DEAR BEEN: It appears your husband was driving a pick-up truck, not an 18-wheeler. If he was a pushover for any seductive siren with a CB, I suspect he was looking for a detour and those who look usually find something.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You are right, Ann, riding is an expensive hobby. However, I hope you will urge your readers to keep safety in mind when they encounter a horse and rider along the roadside.

I can't tell you how many times a stupid motorist has spooked my horse by honking the horn, yelling and even throwing firecrackers when passing us. Horses can jump out in front of a car, throw the rider or run wild.

Back at the barn, visitors are welcome as long as they ask permission to be on the property and use common sense. A person should never approach a strange horse. Some horses bite and kick. Even the sweetest horse can step on your foot accidentally.

I am just as devoted to my horse as some people are to their dogs and cats. The money I have invested is nothing compared to the time and love. When you see us out riding, please don't jeopardize our safety--just wave.-Atlanta Horse Lover

DEAR LOVER: Thanks for some useful information. As a city girl who gets around horses only now and then, I learned something.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Where do you get off telling singles they should not expect a wedding invitation to include a guest?

Don't you realize single friends of the bride have to give expensive shower gifts and wedding presents the same as their married friends who always receive an invitation for two?

I intend to inform the bride when I RSVP that I'll be there with an escort--even though Ann Landers thinks it's bad manners. If she doesn't like it, she can tell me not to come.-Tired Of Traveling Alone

DEAR TIRED: Do as you please, but I stick to my original statement. In many instances the guest list must be held to a minimum for reasons of space and budget.

A wedding isn't just a party. If you don't like "traveling alone," you might inquire about other invited guests who live nearby and ask if someone could pick you up.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

I have always been enamored of antiques. Show me anything that is ten years older than I am and I'll buy it.

The more children I had, the more respect I had for anything that lasted longer than 15 minutes. At one point in my life, I had grave concern as to where the antiques of tomorrow would come from.

Would anyone find any value in chenille bedspreads with spit-up stains all over them? Would a chest with a decal of Miss Piggy on the drawers, held together with Play-Doh, ever be considered a "find"? Would a dealer ever coet a one-owner playpen inhabited only by a 34-year-old mother during a mid-life crisis?

There is no need for concern. I have just discovered that today's antiques are not the survivors of things that were a part of daily lives. They're the things that were never used at all.

My candidate for antique status in our house is a rocking chair. I bought it when our first child was born because it was "cute." It looked like a rocking chair ought to look like. Everyone said so. It was never meant to hold a person or to rock back and forth. The seat was designed for something other than a human form, the chair was too close to the floor, and the rockers were so short you fell out of it every time you rocked forward.

Every time someone came into the house, they headed for the rocker and had their knees bent to sit down before we yelled, "NOT THAT CHAIR!"

The chair also had other qualities. The wood was hard. The kids couldn't even carve an initial in it or make a scratch on it with a nail. They tried.

Why haven't we gotten rid of the chair, you may ask. If you have to ask that question, you do not know women at all. "Cuteness" will get you anything including a spot in the front hallway.

Besides, there is no doubt in my mind that I am saving a piece of history for generations to come. Someday it will be in a little shop in the window with a sign on it that reads, "200 years old! Mint condition! and some naive little couple will exclaim, "What a wonderful home that must have come from. It doesn't have a scratch on it. We'll rock our first baby in it."

And that, dear readers, is the logic behind a boot scraper (circa 1700) I bought that scrapes the sole right off the shoe like a saber.

Library Plans Films Exhibits, Discussion

The Deaf Smith County Library will be the site of the first program Monday Sept. 21, 7 p.m. in a series of 6 films, museum exhibits and discussions on "The Great Plains Experience."

Funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities, the series is a project of the University of Mid-America at Lincoln, Neb., and implemented by nine libraries nationwide. UMA is a consortium of 11 universities in 7 midwestern states created in 1974 to develop and experiment with nontraditional programs for adults. UMA chose the Amarillo Public Library to implement the project in Texas.

Cooperating with the Amarillo library is Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum in Canyon. Also involved are program leaders from PPH Museum, West Texas State University, and the public libraries and museums of 4 area towns: Dalhart, Hereford, Shamrock, and Spearman. These libraries and museums will utilize local art artifacts, library sources, relevant art, and special museum exhibits created for the series.

Discussion leaders are Dr. Frederick W. Rathjen, Dr. Peter L. Petersen, and Dr. Garry Wall, professors of history, WTSU; William C. Griggs and Bobby Weaver, PPH Museum; and Roberta D. Speer, archaeologist with Killgore Research Center.

Each will introduce the film with a presentation of the theme which adapts it to the special Panhandle-Plains experience.

"The Land," according to Rathjen, is about the environment of the Plains, how it affects all its inhabitants, and how man has affected the environment since his first appearance on the Plains in prehistoric times. During the widely-attended Amarillo and Canyon series, Rathjen recalls concern expressed for dwindling water supplies on the Plains.

Other program themes are "The Lakota: One Nation on the Plains;" "Clash of Cultures;" "The Settling of the Plains;" "Heirs to No Man's Land (The Dust Bowl

Years)" and "Four Portraits: Challenges and Changes." The project's purpose is to promote understanding and appreciation of area history as it relates to the interaction of the land and the people, according to Byron Price, PPH Museum curator of history.

Price, together with Carol Daffern, curator of exhibits design at PPH Museum, has participated with local museums in planning exhibits for each program. Mary Louise Loyd of Amarillo Public Library is project director, with Anite G. Pitts, assistant. Dr. Joe F. Taylor, retired, Amarillo College history department, is evaluator for the project.

Simpson, Speaker For ACLD Meeting

North Plains Association for Children with Learning Disabilities, Inc., will meet Thursday, September 17, at 7:30 p.m. at St. Luke's Presbyterian Church, 5701 Brinkman, Amarillo, for its monthly meeting.

State Representative Bob Simpson of the 64th legislative district will be the speaker for the evening. His topic will be on "Funding and your LD child--parents rights and responsibilities."

The North Plains ACLD, Inc. is an organization for parents and teachers or for anyone interested in children and adults with learning disabilities. NPACLD, Inc. is affiliated with both the state and national organizations. All meetings are held on the third Thursday of September, October, November, January, February, March, April and May.

All meetings are free and open to the public. The main purposes of NPACLD, Inc. are to make the public aware of learning disabilities, to give support, encouragement, and understanding to parents dealing with an LD child, and to keep abreast of funding for programs for special education.

They offer films and speakers to PTA groups and to civic organizations throughout the Panhandle area and they publish a newsletter seven times a year. For further information concerning this organization call Cathy Wright, president, after 5 p.m. at 806-355-1322.

Board Hears Council Reports

The Hereford Council of Camp Fire, Inc. Board of Directors held its first meeting for the fall season Tuesday evening in the Camp Fire Lodge to hear reports on summer activities of the members and leaders.

Camp Fire Horizon Club members attended the National Horizon Conference held in July at the U.S. Air Force Academy, Colorado Springs, Colo. 25 girls attended, and sponsors, Mrs. Cindy Norvell and Mrs. Phillis Dawson, accompanied them.

The conference offered workshops, recreational activities and excursions to such attractions as Pike's Peak, Royal Gorge, and the historic gold mines of Cripple Creek. The conference theme "A Rocky Mountain Horizon on Behalf of Tomorrow" emphasized preparation for a changing world.

Workshop topics included self awareness, leadership, interpersonal relationships, careers, personal safety, time management and futurism. Some sports workshops also were offered. They included a session on canoeing and kayaking led by U.S. Olympic coach Bill Bragg, and a riflery session led by U.S. Olympic coach Frank Briggs.

The Camping committee chairman reported a successful summer with three camping opportunities offered. Blue Bird Day Camp theme was "Woodsy Owl"-(Give a hoot-don't pollute). Registration included 167 boys and girls and 20 adult leaders. The camp was held in the city park east of the city golf course. Outdoor training was held with 12 youths and six adults participating.

The local council offered two resident camp opportunities during the summer. El Tesoro Camp Fire Camp, at Ft. Worth, Tex. was the choice for seven girls. Camp Summer Life, located near Vadita, N.M., was attended by 74 youths and 17 adults.

Members attending this camp were offered opportunities in outdoor cooking, horse back riding, swimming, riflery, and other fun-filled activities in the beautiful Sangre de Cristo Mountain setting.

Camp Fire members participated in the Hereford Town and Country Jubilee, held in August, by entering a float in the parade. The float won the Lions Club President's Award.

Mrs. Dee Dee Drake reported that brochures announcing group organization for boys and girls attending the first grade were sent to the public schools this week. Registration will be Sept. 14 at 3:30 p.m. at the Camp Fire Lodge. On September 15, Adventure Clubs will register at the lodge at 3:30 p.m.

Training will be held for new leaders on September 17 and September 22. These sessions will be held at the lodge at 7:30 p.m.

The 1981 Camp Fire Congress, the biennial meeting of Camp Fire, will be held in Dallas, Tex., Nov. 4-8 at the Hyatt Regency Hotel. The camp fire board will send two staff members, the president of the council, who is a voting delegate, and two youth advisors, Kim Sims and Reecie Willson.

Hancock County Becoming Haven For Intellectuals

BROOKLIN, Maine (AP) — Essayist E.B. White settled into his white clapboard farmhouse beside the sea here in the 1930s.

His neighbors, authors Helen and Jose Yglesias, are relative newcomers, living in a 200-year-old Cape Cod cottage they bought in 1969.

Hancock County, once regarded as a coastal summer enclave for America's super-rich, is becoming the year-round home for a surprising number of well known writers, musicians, artists and scientists, a haven for intellectuals.

Full-time residents include a 1980 Nobel Prize winner and the only woman ever elected to the prestigious French Academy. In the county seat of Ellsworth, the weekly newspaper and radio station are owned and run by transplants from Washington, D.C., who were among the pillars of that city's journalism establishment.

Like others who fled New York, Boston or Washington for the slower pace of Castine, Brooklin or Mount Desert, the intellectuals who settled in Hancock County were lured by small-town tranquility in a place where the biggest distraction is the scenery.

"Visually, it is one of the most beautiful places in the world," said Helen Yglesias, who does her writing in her house instead of in her waterfront studio to avoid being distracted by the view.

"It's so beautiful," her husband, Jose, agreed. "I tend to think it's the beauty that brought the intellectuals."

Helen and Jose Yglesias first came to Brooklin 12 years ago, to look at a house which had been donated to the Authors Guild.

"We just fell in love with it," Mrs. Yglesias recalled. The family, which had been living on Manhattan's Upper West Side, bought the house and moved there permanently the next year.

White, who spent summers in Maine as a child, bought his farm overlooking Blue Hill Bay in 1931. He liked sailing; his wife, Katharine, loved gardening. They became year-round residents in 1938.

The local news media in Ellsworth are heavily influenced by former Washington journalists who summured in Hancock County before migrating there to begin second careers.

J. Russell Wiggins, a former editor of the Washington Post, bought the weekly Ellsworth American in 1966 and became its editor-publisher three years later.

Richard and Helen Dudman, longtime Washington print journalists, recently started a career in broadcasting at the Ellsworth radio station, WDEA.

Mount Desert Island, once famous as a summer haven for Rockefellers, Fords and Vanderbilts, is the home of Marguerite Yourcenar, the French poet and novelist who last year became the first woman elected to the French Academy.

Miss Yourcenar, who left France before World War II and became a naturalized U.S. citizen, has lived for more than three decades in a small white cottage in the town of Northeast Harbor.

"I detest the literary circles and chitchat of Paris and New York. I like the village rhythm and friendly people here, and it is extremely beautiful," she told an interviewer in 1979.

Another full-time resident of the island is George Snell, who shared the 1980 Nobel Prize for medicine for his work in genetics. He carried out his research at the Jackson Laboratory in Bar Harbor, a world-renowned center for the study of mammalian genetics and one of the county's biggest employers.

Some well-known writers have maintained summer homes in the area but never became permanent residents. Political columnist Walter Lippmann, who died in 1974, had a home in Seal Harbor for 30 years. Robert Lowell, the late poet, spent part of the year in Castine.

Expatriate novelist Mary McCarthy, who lives most of the year in Paris, spends summers in a Federal-style home in Castine, overlooking Penobscot Bay. Castine is perfect and unreal, she told an interviewer two years ago: "It isn't like living in America."

Other part-timers include R. Buckminster Fuller, the author, architect and inventor of the geodesic dome, and children's author Robert McCloskey, both of whom live on islands off Deer Isle. Dutch mystery writer Janwillem van de Wetering lives year-round in Surry.

Musicians who have settled in Hancock County include

"Anchors Aweigh," theme song of the U.S. Navy, was written in 1906 by three sailors on shore leave.

opera singer Eileen Farrell, who lives in Orland; conductor Erich Kunzel, who has a 19-acre estate on Swan's Island; and Noel Paul Stookey — "Paul" of Peter, Paul and Mary — who runs a recording and animation studio from a refurbished henhouse in Blue Hill.

Most of the nationally known figures who moved to the county maintain their ties to people and institutions outside the state, rather than supplant them with new ones in Maine. Their links are to Boston, New York or even overseas, not to each other.

"Each is more attached to whatever intellectual resources he had when he came," said Wiggins. Hancock County, a rural area with a population of just over 40,000, is just a short drive from Bangor, with convenient air connections virtually anywhere.

Some of the writers who settled in Maine have a reputation for being reclusive. Wiggins, whose newspaper refrains from badgering local celebrities, agreed that "people up here respect their privacy."

Jose Yglesias agreed. "You notice that nobody here has an unlisted phone number," he said.

'Summer is Officially Over'

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Forget about waiting for Michaelmas, the autumnal equinox and the first harvest moon. Summer is officially over. Finis. Dead and gone.

The first Christmas catalogue arrived this morning. So did the bill for the last big vacation splurge at that lobster house on Cape Cod.

Corduroy trousers are on sale at the local men's store, and snow blowers have replaced power mowers in the hardware store window.

A posse of moms was sworn in to capture the 5-year-old across the street and deposit him kicking and screaming on the school bus for his first day at kindergarten. You could tell he wasn't the first or the last in that family to go off to school. He went off howling but the young mother went back to the house smiling the smile of sweet release.

Each day's mail brings a batch of magazine subscriptions up for renewal. The kids up the street have put away their Little League bats and gloves and are tossing a football around. The supermarket has a special on Halloween candy. That jumbo bottle of ketchup I bought for backyard barbecues came up empty yesterday. And whatever became of that case of quinine water that was supposed to last for a summer of sundowners?

The Interstate is lined with blue-denimed hitchhikers holding up cardboard signs with the names of various colleges.

Summer's got to be over. The raccoons already have the bird feeder staked out, waiting for me to provide the free groceries. The paperboy, the garbage collector and the fuel oil deliveryman don't leave the gate open anymore and already are smiling their December smiles of Great Expectations.

A huge white American egret stood on one leg in a shallow cover of our lake yesterday afternoon, as if waiting for John James Audubon to come by with his paint box. They say that's a sign of an early winter. You can't tell by the Canada Geese anymore. Our sizable squadron must have left home without their Canadian Express Cards because year after year they just hang around here, fat and ground bound.

World Series fever isn't exactly in the air because with the split season, nobody seems to know who will play whom or why, what George Steinbrenner is mad about in the first place, which is where the Yankees were before the nation's first millionaires' strike.

The new TV season must be under way because several of the new comedy shows already have disappeared, unwept and unlaughed at, and a tavern in a nearby town is touting "Cosell-free Mouthless Monday Night Football."

Alas, John Keats' "season of mists and mellow fruitfulness" is definitely upon us. Last night on the backporch a blood red maple leaf fluttered into my martini glass. "The third act of the eternal play," as the actor-poet Richard LeGallienne called it, had begun.

Mud Bowl Scheduled

Hereford's Mud Bowl IV, a gritty, grueling football game in the mire, will be 4 p.m. Saturday at the corner of Fifteenth and Ironwood.

All junior and senior high students attending the free event will be divided into teams according to birthday months. The "Spotless Saints" and the "Dirty Dozen" (of which you can't tell the difference after the first quarter) will face off.

The contest is sponsored by the First Church of the Nazarene and is open to the public. Players and spectators are admitted free.

Energy Program Planned

"Wise Use Of Energy In The Home" will be the topic of a program to be given to area residents on Tuesday, Sept. 15 at 2:00 p.m. in the County Barn, Vega.

Eva Venable of Southwestern Public Service Company in Amarillo will be presenting the program. Oldham County.

Everyone is invited to attend the free program hosted by the Oldham County Extension Homemakers Council and Clubs.

VICA Club Hosts Weiner Roast

Hereford High School's Cosmetology Chapter No. 489 and Building Trades Chapter No. 265 held a weiner roast at Veteran's Park Tuesday evening, to get acquainted with new students entering the two programs. The outing was sponsored by instructors, Ms. Billie Young and Mr. Rex Manley.

Cakes for the event were donated by Cosmetology students Mary Iruegas, Becky Rodriguez, Liz Tice and Martha Alaniz.

Building Trades furnished the weiners and each student brought food. Mr. Manley was Chief Cook.

Frisbee and Football were played after eating.

Mr. Manley's Football Team won the score 45-42.

Coleman Stumps State For Campaign Support

By The Associated Press
No one is saying how much Attorney General Marshall Coleman, the Republican candidate for governor, may have raised for his campaign from two fund-raising receptions held on his behalf in Texas.

But in accepting the aid of Texas' Republican Gov. William Clements, who arranged the receptions in Dallas and Houston Thursday, Coleman was enlisting the aid of a first-term governor whose fund-raising abilities already are legion.

The founder and chief executive officer of an oil-drilling company, Clements raised $7 million for his gubernatorial campaign in 1978.

And it was to the key contributors of his campaign — including oilmen, bankers and investors — that Clements introduced Coleman.

Coleman, his wife, Niki, and several campaign aides partied with Clements and about 40 other Texans for just over an hour at Dallas' exclusive Petroleum Club. Reporters, who had been assured by the Coleman campaign that they would be admitted, were kept outside.

"It's a tradition here in Texas," Clements said.

The stop in Dallas was the last of two for Coleman on a one-day swing through the Lone Star State. The candidate was in Houston at noon for another Petroleum Club reception, this one organized by Robert Mosbacher, national finance chairman for George Bush's 1980 presidential campaign.

As one person who attended the Houston luncheon said: "We weren't asked to pay a certain amount. We just came in with our checkbooks."

Also meeting Coleman in Houston was a television film crew, hired to photograph the Republican nominee by Robert Squier, the Washington-based advertising consultant who is producing commercials for Democratic nominee Charles S. Robb.

"I thought it would be interesting," Squier said by telephone from Washington, to have pictures of Coleman in Texas. "I'll have to see what they got," he added, before deciding whether any of those pictures will show up in Robb commercials.

Given Coleman's use of Robb's Texas connections as a campaign issue, Squier said, voters should be reminded that Coleman has those connections as well.

Coleman argues that Robb's ties to Texas and the money Robb probably will receive from friends in Texas are part of the reason he came to the state looking for cash. Robb raised more than one-third of his 1977 campaign budget for lieutenant governor from Texas interests, Coleman said.

Much of that money came from friends and associates of Robb's mother-in-law, Lady Bird Johnson, widow of the former president.

Robb claims that no more than 2 percent of his 1981 campaign budget will come from Texas, and Coleman admits he is "not keeping up with what (Robb's) doing this time." But Clements said he is aware of several Robb fund-raising efforts across the state.

Clements, who has roots in Augusta County and owns a home near Middleburg, said his involvement in the Coleman campaign was suggested by Virginia Gov. John Dalton, who also had heard about Robb's money-raising efforts in Texas. "There is nothing unusual about outside money" in any governor's race, Clements admitted.

The governor had met with Coleman "three or four times" before Thursday, he said. He's never met Robb, Clements admitted, "but I know his mother-in-law." Several of the all-male crowd at the reception, interviewed as they left, had warm words for Coleman. "He's a real fine Republican. He's done an excellent job up there," said Herbert Shiff, who described himself as an oilman and real estate investor.

Coleman made a short speech to the group, Shiff said, and mentioned Robb only to remind them that the lieutenant governor is Mrs. Johnson's son-in-law.

Burt Hurlbut, an Austin oilman, said the reminder was all he needed to know about the Virginia governor's race. A member of the board of the National Conservative Political Action Committee, Hurlbut said he had met Coleman before Thursday night. They were introduced, he said, by Dalton.

"I believe Lady Bird is calling in the chips" for Robb, he said. And he will send Coleman a check, he said, to try to offset that. Robb may be a conservative, Hurlbut said, but the Johnson family "owes too many favors" to liberals.

Commercial Banks Will Decline Says Economist

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business A

NEW YORK (AP)—The 14,600 commercial banks that exist today will dwindle to fewer than 100 important institutions and maybe several hundred small community banks by the 1990s, says Thomas Thamaras.

Should that surprising — and to some, alarming — forecast come true, it would constitute one of the biggest upheavals ever to hit an industry. Measured one way — financial assets involved — it would be unequalled.

As Thamaras sees it, the process already has begun, with larger banks and regional networks beginning to absorb weaker competitors. "We may expect to see the pace of extinction quickening," he says.

Those disappearing, largely through mergers into larger institutions, would include many thousands of banks that manage less than $1 billion in assets. However, the forecast sees some very small banks surviving.

Thamaras' forecast won't be taken lightly, since it is issued by the Strategic Planning Institute. Based in Cambridge, Mass., the institute became independent of the Harvard Business School in the mid-1970s, and is now operated at a nonprofit membership organization to which 250 corporations contribute strategic marketing data and other information.

The essence of Thamaras' thesis about the coming structure of banking is contained in a synopsis of findings just sent to members.

In it, he argues that low savings rates, sophisticated customers who demand creative services, stiff competition, deregulation, high capital costs, and inflation create pressures medium-size banks cannot meet.

"Of the 14,600 banks now existing in the United States, all but about 200 are small banks that manage less than $1 billion in assets," Thamaras observes. Many are in communities with almost no competition.

"Today, however, they are threatened by a new environment in which capital shortages create explosive competition, and advancing technology mandates change," he reasons, continuing:

"The very smallest institutions — those with less than $100 million in assets — will probably survive, by virtue of an ability to provide their strictly local customers with empathy and hometown contacts.

"The remainder are probably doomed. They lack the advantage of the very small banks' personal touch; they also lack the economies of scale that allow large institutions to provide funds transfer, rapid transactions, and specialized services."

Iranian Troops Kill Insurgents

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iranian troops killed "tens of insurgents" in the Tehran government's latest campaign to stamp out the Kurdish guerrilla rebellion in western Iran, the official Pars news agency said.

The report Thursday came only two days after the central government of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini claimed to have recaptured a string of "strategic" guerrilla-held outposts in Azerbaijan, western Iran, killing 21 Kurdish rebels.

Pars said the latest casualties were inflicted in a cluster of sio villages on the Bijar-Dehgolan road to Sanandaj, capital of Kurdistan province. It said the hamlets were "cleared from counterrevolutionary forces."

Pars also said the "strategic" heights of Aqbalaq in the northwestern province of Azerbaijan also were recaptured from guerrillas of the outlawed Kurdish Democratic Party.

The Kurds, non-Persian followers of the minority Sunni Moslem sect, have been fighting for autonomy in northwestern and western Iran. The KDP, headed by Ab-dulrahman Qassemlou, controls much of the countryside in Azerbaijan and Kurdistan. The government frequently has claimed that the rebels have been receiving military assistance from Iraq since the war between the two Persian Gulf oil nations broke out Sept. 22.

The Kurdish party also is a major ally of the underground Mujahedeen Khalq in the current urban guerrilla war the Islamic Marxist organization is waging in almost all other parts of Iran to overthrow Khomeini's fundamentalist Moslem regime.

Tehran Radio reported that five government officers were killed "fighting against American mercenary hypocrites" on Wednesday in the Iranian capital. The Khomeini regime regular refers to the Mujahedeen Khalq guerrillas as "hypocrites" and American mercenaries.

The United Nations has supported adoption of international traffic signs that use standard shapes, drawings and symbols to overcome language barriers, so motorists can recognize road hazards and regulations wherever they drive.

GOVERNOR'S REPORT

by William F. Clements Jr.

I had great expectations of the 67th Legislature, and a vast majority of those expectations have been realized.

Of 44 basic legislative proposals I advanced to the regular session early this year, 34 were approved.

We maintained excellent communication with the leadership of the House and Senate, and there was a high degree of cooperation and coordination of efforts.

We addressed some sticky issues which have been on the agenda for a long time and through the administrations of several governors. Our regular session batting average has been something like .770 per cent, and few administrations can top that.

The programs I submitted in the areas of law enforcement, education, better management of State government and other major fields, in general, won approval.

Of the five "leftover" tasks which I assigned as the initial business of the special session concluded August 11, four — or 80 per cent — were successfully completed.

In addition, many other significant measures — some 25 bills — were passed in the July-August special session.

No legislative session in modern history passed more potent, far-reaching measures to combat crime and the drug traffic than did the 67th. Fourteen of the 16 key elements in my anti-crime and War on Drugs programs were adopted.

Major new legislation includes the first Texas wiretap law, authorizing court-ordered electronic surveillance in narcotics cases. The Legislature also funded the Criminal Justice Division at a level of $25 million a year, permitted use of recorded oral confessions in felony trials, reorganized the Board of Pardons and Paroles, provided halfway houses for parolees, established a separate juvenile probation commission and strengthened control of the bail bond system.

All of the bills sponsored by Ross Perot and the Texans War on Drugs group were adopted.

Some of the most substantial changes in the Texas public school system since passage of the Gilmer-Aikin laws three decades ago were enacted without fanfare by the 1981 regular session.

Among the important new laws was the curriculum revision or back-to-basics act which cleans up the present, legislative-mandated course requirements and allows the State Board of Education to provide greater emphasis on basic subject matter.

A constitutional amendment which I have long advocated to grant to a State finance management committee power to manage expenditure of certain appropriated funds and thus permit government to respond to unanticipated critical funding needs when the Legislature is not in session will be submitted to voters this November. This, together with several other measures which I recommended, will improve fiscal management of State government.

The special session completed action on congressional redistricting; submitted a constitutional amendment to create a State Water Trust Fund, dedicating a portion of future surplus revenues to water development; revised the property tax code to make it less burdensome on Texas taxpayers and resolved lingering differences over the medical practice act.

In addition, the special session offered a constitutional amendment to issue another $250 million in veterans land bonds and increase interest on the bonds to make them saleable; exempted gasoline from highway taxes; required health insurance companies to offer optional group coverage for alcoholism and drug dependency; appropriated $1.5 million for control of the Mediterranean fruit fly and passed implementing legislation for regulation and taxation of bingo games.

Failure of initiative and referendum was a major disappointment of the regular session. I regret that the Senate, in the special session, refused to go along with repeal of the 10 cent State ad valorem tax, as I had strongly recommended. The tax, if upheld by the courts, could cost Texas property owners $430 million a year. A three-cent rate, as advocated by the Senate, would cost them $135 million.

On balance, I am pleased and gratified at our achievements. We are undertaking a total assessment of the 1981 Legislature's work, and will be taking a close look at the reasons for our relatively few losses, with a view to providing effective guidance on these issues prior to the next regular session.

Legal Notices
PUBLIC NOTICE ON REGISTERING LIVESTOCK BRANDS
The attorney general is reminding every citizen who has registered a brand prior to Aug. 30, 1981 that citizens must re-register each brand with the county clerk within six months in order to protect their right to it. If everyone follows the registration schedule set out by the law, county clerks will have a correct, revised set of records every ten years, and there should be no dispute about the correct ownership of livestock.

LET FAITH BE YOUR GUIDEPOST AT THE CROSSROADS

Have you come to a fork in the road? Are you confronted with a major decision which you must make and make wisely, in order to travel the road of greater benefit to yourself and your loved ones? Each of us must at some time decide whether to move, to change jobs, to begin a new life in a different area, or some such question of far-reaching consequences. As others before you have done, let your faith in God give you the wisdom, strength and resolution to make the correct choice. Beginning this Sunday, go to your Church and trust Him to point your footsteps in the right direction for all concerned.

Have you come to the Red Sea place in your life, Where, in spite of all you can do, There is no way out, there is no way back, There is no other way but through?
— Annie Johnson Flint

"But let him ask in faith, nothing wavering, for he that wavereth is like a wave of the sea driven with the wind and tossed."
— James 1:6
