Jurors in court only briefly as trial starts

Resisting Photo

The goose in the foreground seems rather camera shy this morning during a light drizzle. Though rain may continue through tonight, it is expected to be gone by Friday afternoon. The animals are property of Robert Holmes, a Hereford resident.

Jurors selected to try a theft case against Hereford farmer Robert Strain made only brief appearances in the courtroom Wednesday afternoon and Thursday morning because of witnesses being called to testify outside the presence of the jury.

Jurors were sent home this morning after hearing a brief explanation from District Judge Wesley Gulley. He told jurors the testimony being taken "might avoid you being moved in and out" later in the trial. They were instructed to return at 1:15 p.m. today and cautioned not to discuss, read or hear anything concerning the case.

The seven-man, five-woman jury was in the courtroom Wednesday morning only long enough to hear the grand jury indictment against Strain read to them.

The delay was caused by a "motion in limine filed by defense attorney Travis Shelton, who asked 222nd District Judge David Wesley Gulley to rule before allowing the jury to hear certain pieces of evidence.

At issue is whether testimony concerning Strain's alleged purchases of other stolen items, aside from the shop equipment listed in the one county now being tried, can be brought before the court as evidence. Shelton claimed that under the law, it must be proven that Strain took part in similar transactions, which he referred to as "extraneous offenses," before those offenses are admissible as evidence.

To do that, Deaf Smith County Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul on Wednesday began questioning witnesses gathered from throughout the Panhandle, including those who claimed merchandise stolen from their farms or residences turned up during the Aug. 15, 1983 raid on Strain's barn northeast of Hereford.

Shelton raised numerous objections during testimony given by the first witness, Texas Ranger Jim Mull. Mull and Rangers Ronnie Griffith, Warren Yeager and Joe Hunt, along with District Attorney's Investigator Terry Colston, served the search warrant on Strain last summer on a country road near

More testimony needed

Strain's farm. It was Mull who read Strain his rights.

Shelton complained about a statement Mull made to Strain as the barn was being searched.

"I told him it would be easier on him and on us if he would cooperate with us by pointing out which items were his and which ones he had recently purchased," Mull testified. He said by that he meant Strain's personal belongings would not have to be removed and sorted through later if Strain would point them out to the officers.

Shelton argued that Mull had no authority to make such a statement, and that it could be interpreted as a promise to convince his client to do something he might not have done otherwise.

The defense attorney claimed that statement also had bearing on Strain's admitting to officers that there were also items in his garage that they needed to see. Since the search warrant was for the barn alone, Strain signed a written document drafted at the farm that served as a warrant to search the garage.

Shelton suggested that Strain's written permission to search the garage should not be admitted, because his client believed it would be easier on him if he cooperated. He again pointed out his opinion that Mull had no right to indicate such a thing to Strain.

Shelton's objection to the original search warrant, obtained after an anonymous tip was given to a crime line at Lubbock, was that one officer signed the affidavit based on what another Texas Ranger told him. The second Ranger got his information from a "reliable informant."

"That's not only hearsay, that's double hearsay," Shelton argued. "We object to any of the testimony because we feel the search warrant was faulty." Gulley overruled that objection.

Travis also told the court he did not feel "probable cause existed to satisfy the magistrate" when the search warrant papers were drawn up. Saul argued that Justice of the Peace O.K. Neal had the information he needed to execute the warrant and the judge again found in his favor.

Gulley told the attorneys he would accept the warrants as evidence in the trial unless Shelton could produce additional information to convince him the documents were faulty.

Mull testified that during the time merchandise was being transported from Strain's barn to the Little Bull Barn in Hereford, officers obtained serial numbers from items not listed on the search warrant. He said a computer check revealed many of those items had been reported as stolen in various Panhandle counties.

K.R. Lindsey was the first of 20 additional witnesses who testified during the hearing Wednesday. Lindsey was the reported owner of shop equipment listed on the indictment against Strain. Strain allegedly purchased those items from Thomas Martinez Sr. of Lubbock.

Lindsey told the court his barn was broken in to in October of 1982, when about $5,000 worth of items were stolen from his farm in Lubbock County. He identified the tools in pictures taken during the raid and said he had serial numbers for the items because he had them insured.

Additional testimonies were heard from farmers who traveled to Hereford from such towns as Littlefield, Brownfield, La Mesa, Abernathy, Hale Center, Olton and Panhandle. All these witnesses had identified property found in the barn as belonging to them.

Two local men said they bought air compressors from Strain which were later determined to be stolen, while one man, a former business partner with Strain, said he traded work he performed for Strain for an air compressor.

Witnesses testifying this morning included Tom George, Jessie Celaya, Josie Martinez and Thomasina Martinez who admitted buying or selling items to Strain. George, an electrician, said he purchased several items from Strain when he saw them after doing some work at the farm. He later reported the items to the sheriff's department on the advice of his attorney.

Celaya testified he bought a freezer and two mini-bikes

Single living sessions slated

Successful single living is to be the topic of a weekend seminar hosted by Hereford Church of the Nazarene.

All area singles are invited to attend the event, which has no charge though an offering will be taken. Friday's session begins at 8 p.m., with registration to be at 7:30 p.m. Saturday's slate includes 8 to 9 a.m. coffee and doughnuts, 9 a.m. to noon sessions, workshops from 1 to 4:45 p.m. and a 6:30 p.m. session after dinner.

Harold Ivan Smith, who is conducting the seminar, will also be guest speaker in the Sunday morning worship service at the Church of the Nazarene.

Smith, executive director of Tear-Catchers, a ministry devoted to training sympathetic sufferers, has an extensive writing background. He has authored a number of books and articles, in 1979 winning the Henrietta Mears Award for Excellence in Christian Literature.

He served as the first general director of single adult ministries for the International Church of the Nazarene and as editor-at-large of Solo magazine. Smith was reportedly instrumental in organizing the first continuing education programs for training single adult ministries.

Rain to subside Friday

Light rain began falling early this morning in the Hereford area, remaining at a drizzle through most of the morning.

Tonight's forecast calls for a 40 percent chance of additional moisture, with that figure decreasing to 20 percent Friday morning. No precipitation is anticipated for Friday afternoon and evening, which should be partly cloudy.

Eddie Matthews from Easter reported 3 inches of rain had fallen in that vicinity, similar to the amount in Walcott as given by Paula Hudman. JoAnn Jesko of Westway said .15 inches fell there, while Vega reported minimal accumulation and J.E. McCabe, who lives two miles east of Dawn, said no rain had descended.

Political conventions set

The Democratic County Convention is to be held Saturday at 10 a.m. Saturday in Hereford State Bank's community room, it was announced Wednesday by Roy Dale Messer, county chairman.

A sign-in time for delegates is supposed to be conducted from 9 to 10 a.m., according to Messer. He said there were approximately 70 delegates and 70 alternates.

The Republican County Convention is slated for the same time Saturday morning in Deaf Smith County Courthouse.

THURSDAY'S HIGH: 77 (normal high this date: 79 record: 100 (1927))

OVERNIGHT LOW: 58 (normal: 52 record: 38 (1945))

OUTLOOK: Cloudy tonight with a 40 percent chance of showers and thunderstorms. The low should be in the upper 50s, with southerly to southeasterly winds of 5 to 15 miles per hour.

Friday is expected to be cloudy with a 20 percent chance of showers and thunderstorms in the morning. Decreasing cloudiness is foreseen for the afternoon, which should see a high in the upper 70s. Winds are projected to be southerly, 10 to 20 miles per hour.

Reagan settles for trimmed MX plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will get fewer than half the MX nuclear weapons he wants and even those missiles will be tied to renewed U.S.-Soviet arms talks under a compromise approved by the House and supported reluctantly by the Reagan administration.

"The White House supported us only after they saw they couldn't win the whole thing," said Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chief architect of the plan, which won 229-199 House approval late Wednesday after seven hours of debate.

Minutes before Aspin's deal was approved, MX opponents

Fewer than half desired failed by only six votes, 218-212, to kill the weapon Reagan has made the centerpiece of his record Pentagon buildup.

Reagan sought 40 MX weapons in the fiscal 1985 budget. But the vote by the Democrat-controlled House authorizes only 15 of the giant 10-warhead weapons, and then only if the Soviets don't return by next April 1 to the arms talks they walked out of last year.

That proviso is intended "as a carrot to the Soviets," Aspin explained. "If they're as afraid of the MX as they say, they can return to the talks and try to bargain it away."

Left untouched by the House decision was last year's congressional approval of the first 21 of the 100 MX weapons Reagan wants to build.

Assistant White House press secretary Kim Hoggard said after the vote, "We are pleased... but there are more hurdles along the way."

Hoggard is right. The House vote was part of a $285 billion Pentagon authorization bill. If the Republican-controlled Senate later approves a different MX package, the differences will face a conference committee and more House and Senate votes. There will also be future votes on whether to appropriate the authorized money.

Still to come as the House continues voting on the defense bill are decisions on a number of other weapons, such as new nerve gases, space weapons and Pershing 2 nuclear missiles.

Reagan had pushed for the full MX package, but House Minority Leader Robert H. Michel, R-Ill., bluntly told the president in a meeting hours before the vote that Aspin's package was the best Reagan would get.

The president telephoned some members of Congress and met personally with others seeking support for the weapon he and the Pentagon say is needed to replace the aging missiles in the land-based part of the U.S. nuclear force.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said earlier in the week that MX opponents would win, but conceded Wednesday that Reagan had changed some votes.

The president has proposed putting 100 of the weapons he calls "Peacekeeper" into existing Minuteman silos near Cheyenne, Wyo., starting in 1986.

During the seven hours and thousands of words of debate, MX opponents continually noted that the Pentagon wants the MX chiefly because the Minuteman is vulnerable to a Soviet first strike.

They argued that putting the MX in Minuteman silos makes the weapon just as vulnerable and makes no sense.

Floodwaters whack western city

By RON SIRAK Associated Press Writer

Floodwaters swirled 4 feet deep through Baggs, Wyo., today after a burst dam sent hundreds of people scurrying for higher ground, while in Idaho workers raced against time to channel water from a brimming reservoir away from a town of 700 people.

In Colorado and Utah, hundreds of volunteers worked into the morning piling sandbags into makeshift canals to siphon off water from the melting record snowpacks, and residents dug out from mudslides that damaged dozens of homes.

Wednesday was "the wildest day in Baggs since Butch Cassidy was in town," said schoolteacher Wayne

Hundreds seek higher ground

Wagner. Even one of the cabins the famed turn-of-the-century outlaw supposedly lived in was "nearly floating away," he said.

Cooler temperatures today were expected to slow the melting, said Nolan Duke of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo. But he said the mercury would jump back into the 80s this weekend, triggering a new round of rapid melting.

"We've had such a cool spring, the snowpack has hung in there until now," Duke said today. "With a record snowpack like we have you want gradual melting, but that's not what we've had."

The tiny southern Wyoming communities of Baggs, Dixon and Savery were turned to watery ghost towns Wednesday when an earthen dam 32 feet high on Sweetwater Creek just across the border in Colorado collapsed and spilled the Grieve Reservoir into the already swollen Little Snake River.

All 400 people were driven from their homes in Baggs as floodwaters flowed through 95 percent of the town's buildings, Mayor Linda Fleming said. Another 200 people along the 20-mile stretch of the Little Snake winding through Savery and Dixon scrambled for safety.

In Baggs, where water was 4 feet deep along Main Street, a curfew was imposed from 10 p.m. to dawn for everyone but emergency crews, the mayor said.

In Idaho, the Army Corps of Engineers has been working to prevent the Oakley Reservoir from overflowing. Burley police chief Lemman Messley said Wednesday it's almost certain to spill over next week.

Terry Bingham, Cassia County disaster services director, said officials are working to channel water away from the business district of Oakley, a town of 700 people. Twenty homes are in the path of the planned drainoff.

Education committees study draft

AUSTIN (AP) — Senate and House legislators have completed two days of public hearings on a public education reform bill that at least some of them think will please both houses along with Gov. Mark White.

"What we're going to do now in the House is hold work sessions to be ready when and if a special session is called," said Rep. Bill Haley, D-Center, chairman of the House Public Education Committee.

Much of Wednesday was spent listening to witnesses who urged the lawmakers to remember individual students while attempting statewide reform.

"We don't need any lengthening of the school day as some suggest," said Eddie Derr, superintendent of the Walcott Independent School District northwest of Amarillo. "We have some students now who spend 10 hours on the bus and in the classroom each day."

Some think world flat: Perot

HOUSTON (AP) — Someone on the elected state school board probably still thinks the world is flat, says the head of the state Select Committee on Education, which has called for an appointed board.

Continuing his campaign for an appointed "high-talent" nine-member school board, school reformer H. Ross Perot attacked the current elected 27-member board in a speech to the Houston Chamber of Commerce on Wednesday.

"This is the group that gave us textbooks that look like People magazine," Perot told about 380 members of the Houston Chamber of Commerce. "This is the group that allows teachers that are illiterate to get teaching certificates. And I'm sure that somewhere on that board there's someone who thinks the world is flat."

German soldiers attend reunion

HOUSTON (AP) — They were captured in wartime, transported across the ocean to the homeland of their enemy, the United States, and placed in prisoner of war camps in strange surroundings.

Yet 40 years later, a group of 15 former German soldiers is returning for a reunion in Louisiana, where they spent the latter part of the war under what they described as pleasant conditions.

Friedrich Stempel will visit the camp where 40 years ago he wrote a poem about the futility of war and he also plans to see the girl he wanted to marry.

Otto Fernholz wants to show his wife where he spent three years of his life during World War II.

Gerhard Hennecke would like once again to see the "fields and fields of wheat" where he spent time working as a prisoner field hand.

Congress deadlocked on extra aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — House-Senate conferees are deadlocked on aid to Nicaraguan rebels, with key Democrats standing firm against any money and administration supporters pleading for at least enough to wind down the operation.

"This is an item that is not negotiable," Rep. Edward Boland, D-Mass., chairman of the House Intelligence Committee, said as the conference committee held its first meeting Wednesday. Boland opposes any extra money for the rebels.

Rep. Joseph B. Addabbo, D-N.Y., chairman of the Appropriations subcommittee on defense, added that House conferees "will definitely not recede" from their opposition to the Nicaraguan funds.

However, Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, chairman of the corresponding subcommittee of the Senate, argued for "some kind of windup concept," saying, "There are still people out in the field right now and the money is running out."

Study says divorce hurts adults

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Contrary to popular belief, people between 18 and 23 whose parents have recently divorced suffer an emotional toll at least as great as that faced by young children whose parents split, a new study suggests.

When Penn State University sociologist Gunhild Hagestad interviewed college students whose parents had been divorced less than three years, "I found kids who felt that the bottom had fallen out of their lives."

"Many said 'I thought it was just me' who felt that way," Hagestad, who conducted the study with three researchers, said Wednesday.

Thirty-nine Penn State students — 18 men, 21 women — between 18 and 23 years old filled out questionnaires and were queried at length on their responses.

Meeting on tanker attacks slated

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Foreign ministers of six Persian Gulf nations scheduled a meeting today in response to repeated air raids on Arab oil tankers, and a Kuwaiti official said his country would continue shipments even if it lost one tanker a day.

A Saudi tanker on Wednesday became the fifth Arab tanker attacked since April 25 as an offshoot of the Iran-Iraq war. The air raids have threatened Persian Gulf oil shipments and forced an increase in shipping insurance premiums.

In response to the latest attack off the eastern Saudi coast, the Saudi-led Gulf Cooperation Council scheduled the meeting in Rayah to consider combined action to protect gulf navigation. Member nations are Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates, Bahrain, Qatar and Oman.

Ardito-Barletta wins election

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Nicolas Ardito-Barletta, political heir to the late Gen. Omar Torrijos and the military-controlled government's preferred candidate, has been declared the winner of Panama's first direct presidential election in 16 years.

Twice Wednesday, once before dawn and again after sundown, the secretary-general of the Supreme Election Tribunal, Everardo Tomlinson, proclaimed Ardito-Barletta, 45, the winner of the May 6 election.

Supporters of opposition candidate Arnulfo Arias Madrid, 82, reacted with fury to the confused series of announcements, accusing the government of fraud and vowing to challenge the result, possibly with street demonstrations.

The first time Tomlinson announced the winner, he was overruled by the tribunal's president, Cesar A. Quintero.

Mondale warns

'President in for surprise of his life'

By WILLIAM M. WELCH

Associated Press Writer
Walter F. Mondale is warning President Reagan to prepare for "the biggest surprise of his life" in the November election as the Democratic presidential candidates concentrate on California, New Jersey and the final round of primaries before the convention.

The candidates barely paused for Gary Hart to collect his twin wins this week in Nebraska and Oregon — trouncing Mondale and the Rev. Jesse Jackson by better than 2-1 in each state — while looking on to the June 5 primaries.

Hart resumes campaigning today with a foray into New Jersey, where 107 delegates are at stake in the primary less than three weeks away.

Jackson remained in California, then in Detroit Wednesday night on his way back to Washington. He appeared before a loyal audience where he avoided mention of his Democratic challengers.

"When this campaign started, everybody said Mondale is nominated. I never believed that," Mondale said. But, he added, "I don't believe in polls, but Mr. Reagan is in for the biggest surprise of his life."

Speaking to about 1,500 people at the Service Employees' International Union convention, Mondale said the Reagan administration has "done everything they can to undermine the legitimate rights of working people in this country."

Mondale made no mention of his losses — by identical 59 percent to 27 percent margins — in Nebraska and Oregon. But he was looking on to the next round.

"It's shoot out time at the OK corral, and I want your help," he said.

Jackson, in Sacramento, said Hart and Mondale would take the nation down the same path on defense policy as Reagan.

"Hart and Mondale, like Reagan, want to raise the military budget in peacetime. Do not be deceived by a hawk in sheep's clothing," Jackson told a rally at California State University.

"We do not need to raise the military budget in peacetime. We can cut the defense budget without cutting defense."

Mondale and Hart put aside their differences for a bit, jointly sending a letter to congressmen urging opposition to the MX missile authorization sought by Reagan.

"Our defense dollars should not be wasted on a weapons system which is not survivable, which is not a credible deterrent, and which will raise the risk of a pre-emptive Soviet attack in a time of crisis," their letter said.

The primary schedule is empty through the next three weeks, leaving the three hopefuls free to concentrate on five big confrontations that decide 486 delegates, and perhaps the nomination itself.

Houston plans $17.4 billion

HOUSTON (AP) — Officials in Houston, a city slowly strangling on its own success, announced a $17.4 billion highway construction and mass transit plan designed to restore mobility to the nation's fourth largest city.

The updated Regional Mobility Plan, announced at a news conference Wednesday, includes construction of 175 miles of new freeways, widening of 64 miles of existing freeways, 896 miles of new arterials, streets and roads, and construction of $1.5 to $2.5 billion in high-capacity transitways for mass transit use.

More than a billion dollars would be dedicated to the rapid construction of four projects to relieve the most heavily congested freeways.

"Transportation, we recognize, is our number one problem," said Harris County Judge Jon Lindsay. "We've got a serious problem here."

The plan was drawn up by representatives from the City of Houston, Harris County, the state highway department, the Harris County Toll Road Authority, the Houston-Galveston Area Council and the Metropolitan Transit Authority.

In addition to enhanced freeways, it calls for additional buses, a $400 million bus maintenance facility and more park-and-ride lots.

All of the construction is designed to restore Houston to the freeway mobility it enjoyed in 1975.

John B. Turner Jr., a board member of the Metropolitan Transit Authority, said the plan would take 13 years to implement and would require $8.3 billion in funds from outside of Houston, such as state and federal sources.

He said the plan was designed to relieve areas now seriously congested and also to prepare for the forecasted growth of Houston.

"The growth rate will add another million people to the area by 1987," said Turner. He said the highways, freeways and streets must be prepared for thousands upon thousands of more cars.

Louie Welch, president of the Houston Chamber of Commerce and former Houston mayor, said the state's role in the plan was "critical."

"For many, many years we have received significantly less (in state highway funds) than is fair by any criterion you can use as a measure," said Welch. He characterized the city's congestion as an "emergency" and said it must be corrected.

"We're looking at another 10 to 15 years before we can see daylight (in correcting the problems)," he said.

Lindsay and Houston Mayor Kathy Whitmire led a delegation of officials to Austin to present the plan to the state highway department. They said it is hoped that Harris County's efforts could be coordinated with those of the state, but they acknowledged that there were many demands on state highway funds.

The delegation said they were also offering a unified support from the Houston area officials for increased state gasoline taxes and for other state legislative issues that would funnel money into the state highway construction fund.

Mrs. Whitmire also announced that "approximately half" of a capital improvement plan she will present this summer will be dedicated to transportation.

Perot confirms possibility

DALLAS (AP) — Billionaire H. Ross Perot, founder and chairman of Electronic Data Systems Corp., confirmed that EDS is discussing the possibility of a friendly acquisition by an unnamed company but said he does not want to sell.

from Strain, and returned them for a refund, at Strain's request, after the barn had been searched. Josie and Thomasina Martinez testified they sold Strain items, which had been shoplifted, at half price to Strain. Under questioning, both women said they didn't tell Strain the items were stolen and he didn't ask.

Other witnesses included Tony Cortez, manager of White's Auto, who testified about a gun that was stolen from his store and one he identified last week at the police department. Former Deputy Dean Butcher was on the stand at 10 a.m. today, testifying about the events of the day the barn was searched and a statement taken from Strain.

Petitions in circulation for Lassiter

A group of local citizens have initiated a petition which asks the Amarillo Globe-News to reconsider its position with respect to the discharge of O.L. Lassiter as the Hereford distributor of the daily newspapers.

Vi McDonald, The Vacuum Store, reported that petitions are being circulated. She said interested persons could find a petition at her store, Troy's Sweet Shop, or at Park Avenue Barber Shop.

reached, and it is not possible to say what will be the outcome of the discussion," EDS said in a prepared statement. Perot, contacted in Houston, said "I don't want to sell the company." He said EDS had entered the discussions with the unidentified company out of a sense of obligation.

"When you're a public company, you're obligated when people show up to talk to them. I'm just being hospitable," he said.

EDS, which provides software, hardware and computer personnel for a variety of companies and federal and state governments, had fiscal year 1983 revenues of $651.6 million and earnings of $58.6 million. It reported a 22 percent increase in profits and a 19 percent rise in revenues last quarter.

Stock prices have fluctuated from just above $40 per share to just under $30 per share. EDS stock closed at $35.50 Wednesday, up $4.63 from Tuesday's closing. EDS had 56,491,000 shares outstanding at the end of the third quarter ended March 31.

Analysts figure EDS could command $45 to $50 per share, or $2 to $2.6 billion if it were sold today. Richard Salwen, EDS associate general counsel, told the Dallas Times Herald the discussions are still "very conditional."

"What's brought it about it we're talking about making a lot of money," Salwen said. "It's very conditional. We don't know that anything is going to happen yet."

Companies mentioned as possible suitors are American Telephone & Telegraph Co., the Dallas Morning News reported. The News said none of the companies would confirm or deny interest in EDS.

Perot and his family trusts hold more than 50 percent of the firm's stock. Perot's share is said to be worth more than $625 million and pays him more than $5 million a year in dividends.

Perot, a former salesman with International Business Machines known for his conservative political crusades and daredevil rescue of two employees held hostage in Iran, founded EDS in 1962 with a $1,000 check.

The 53-year-old chairman currently is leading an effort to revamp Texas' public education system.

La Plata Study Club meets for dinner

La Plata Study Club met for a salad dinner Tuesday evening, at which time new officers were installed for the coming club year.

Members set in the home of Mary Herring and she and Lois Lemons (Something Special) catered the meal. The serving table and individual dining tables were laid with pink cloths and decorated with bouquets of iris.

Argen Draper installed new officers using "Colors" as her theme. Sunny Brush will succeed Sarah Hazelrigg as president. Others installed were Beverly Jayroe, vice-president; Patti Brown, recording secretary; Julie Helms, corresponding secretary; Peggie Fox, treasurer; Lavon Nieman, reporter; Mozelle Neill, historian; and Mrs. Hazelrigg, parliamentarian.

During the business meeting, members voted to ask Mary Lyles to join the club. Also, a letter was read from Bay View Study Club inviting La Plata Study Club to a tea on Sept. 20.

Dorothea Prowell reported that the Viola Chisholm

Award would be presented again this year to an outstanding art student at Hereford High.

Discussion was held on what the club would do this year to participate in the Town and Country Jubilee Aug. 4-11. Members decided to sell popcorn and Kool-aid in the park the day of the parade.

Members drew for secret pals. Names will be revealed at the first club meeting in September.

The new president named the following committee chairmen: Mrs. Jayroe, yearbook; Betty Taylor, tender loving care; Mrs. Fox, finance and projects; Betty Quillen, gifts; Donna VanderZee, telephone; and Mrs. Hazelrigg, membership.

Others attending who have not been mentioned included Clara Brown, Audine Dettmann, Elizabeth McDowell, Dorothy Mercer, Margaret Schroeter, Avis White and Virginia Woodford.

Impotence and diabetes

DEAR DR. LAMB — My doctor told me my body calcium is high due to hyperparathyroidism. It was 10.2, then four months later it was 10.6; after another month, 10.9.

The doctor said my condition was stable and I didn't need to do anything except avoid medicines that could increase my calcium, such as diuretics, and to avoid foods that contain large amounts of calcium.

This put me in a dilemma because I'm 65 and my height has decreased from 5 feet 6 inches tall to 5 feet 4 inches tall. I have the beginning of a hump between my shoulders. I'm terrified that the calcium in my blood may be from my bones rather than my diet. I eat a well-balanced diet and have never been one to use a lot of milk, cheese or dairy products.

DEAR READER — From your letter I'm not sure why your doctor told you that you have hyperparathyroidism. While your calcium levels are on the high side, they're within the range of some normal values. These vary within a wide range of 8.5 to 11.0.

Results of personality quiz returned to group

Mike Moon, director of the Hereford Family Services Center, returned the results of a personality quiz which members of L'Allegra Study Club had taken earlier in the year during a recent club meeting at Cameron Gault's office.

Argen Draper presented a humorous program on stress following the business session conducted by President Betty Martin.

A salute of officers for the coming year was presented and an astrological description of each person being nominated was read by Mrs. Gault. The slate of officers was accepted by acclamation.

Mrs. Gault, the hostess, assisted by Kathy Allison, served a fresh fruit tray, sweets, juices and coffee to Jeanette Caviness, Kay Lynn Caviness, Janice Conkwright, Barbara Kerr, Mary Kay McQuigg, Mary McWhorter.

Also, Susie Mannschreck, Selsey Metz, Karen Payne, Hilda Perales, Susan Perrin, Jody Skiles, Ella Marie Veigel and Judy Wall.

The word queue is the only word in the English language that is still pronounced the same way when the last four letters are removed.

Seattle leaves Motown confused

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Sports Writer
The Seattle Mariners, like the rest of the American League, have discovered only one way to deal with the runaway freight train that is the Detroit Tigers - leave town.

"Let's get the heck out of this twilight zone," a frustrated Bob Kearney said Wednesday night as the Mariners left Detroit after their third straight defeat at the hands of the Tigers, who ran their record to 29-5 with a 10-1 rout.

Detroit put the game away with a five-run first inning as they held on their eight-game lead in the AL East over the frustrated Toronto Blue Jays, whose .618 percentage is the second best in baseball. Not only Toronto is frustrated. "I honestly don't look at the papers any more," said Dave Winfield of the New York Yankees, who have actually lost half a game to Detroit while winning eight of their last 10 games.

"That's the one team we're not gaining on," lamented Yankees Manager Yogi Berra. "Has anyone ever been that far in front?"

In other AL games, Kansas City topped Chicago 7-6, New York downed Oakland 7-6 in 10 innings; Toronto beat Minnesota 8-7; Boston beat Cleveland 5-2; Baltimore shut out California 5-0, and Milwaukee beat Texas 5-1.

Milt Wilcox ran his fifth game without a loss for Detroit, allowing four hits in sixth inning before Manager Sparky Anderson gave Doug Bair, Willie Hernandez and Aurelio Lopez, his three top relievers, an inning's work.

Alan Trammell had a triple that drove in the first run, but laughed when he was credited with a game-winning RBI.

"That's a farce statistic for a first-inning hit," he said. He wasn't laughing about the effect Detroit's first-inning outburst had on Seattle, the same sort of effect the Tiger start has had on the rest of the East.

"I'm sure a first inning like that puts the other team in a hole," he said.

Royals 7, White Sox 6
After the A's broke a 5-5 tie when Joe Morgan scored on Andre Robertson's throwing error in the top of the 10th, Winfield cracked a two-run homer off Bill Caudill with none out in the bottom of the inning to win it. It was Caudill's first loss after five wins.

The A's had tied it on Bruce Bochte's RBI single with two outs in the ninth. Winfield also had an RBI single for New York and Don Mattingly and Butch Wynegar each had two-run homers for the Yankees. Rookie Clay Christiansen picked up his first major-league win.)

Orioles 5, Angels 0
Mike Boddicker, who led the American League last season with five shutouts, worked hard for his second whitewash of the season. He allowed six hits and stranded eight California runners in scoring position.

"That was a struggle," said Boddicker, who improved his record to 4-3.

Mike Young's two-run single was the key blow or a three-run fifth for Baltimore.

Blue Jays 8, Twins 7
Rick Leach, the former Michigan quarterback cut loose earlier this season by Detroit, ripped a pinch-hit triple with the bases loaded to climax a six-run eighth-inning rally for Toronto.

Minnesota held a 5-2 lead entering the eighth. But Jesse Barfield's smash off starter Ed Hodge's right shin knocked Hodge out of the game and the Jays battered relievers Larry Pashnick, Pete Filson and Ron Davis for five more hits, climaxed by Leach's belt.

Astros beat Pittsburgh

Ryan express whiffs 11 Pirates

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates got derailed by Ryan's Express.

Nolan Ryan didn't throw a curve at the Pirates — he didn't have to. Mixing his famed 95-mile-per-hour fastball with a change-up that one Pirate said "ought to be illegal," Ryan pitched a five-hitter for his 53rd career shutout Wednesday night in the Houston Astros' 1-0 victory.

"He made some pitches at the end of the game that were unbelievable," Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner said of the 37-year-old Ryan. "He threw some pitches that nobody could hit."

"This is the best I've seen him," said four-time National League batting champion Bill Madlock. "What makes him so tough? That 95 miles per hour makes him so tough.

That ball just explodes on you."

Madlock said the only other N.L. pitcher in recent years who could throw the ball so hard for so long was former Astros' star J.R. Richard.

"Not even (Tom) Seaver or (Bob) GIBSON HAD THAT KIND OF EXPLOSION," Madlock said.

Ryan struck out 11 and walked just two, the 153rd time in his 17-year career he has fanned more than 10 batters in a game. He scattered four hits over the first three innings, then retired the next 19 batters he faced until Madlock lined a two-out single in the ninth.

"I think he's getting better and better," Madlock said.

Ryan, despite being at an age when many pitchers have long since lost the their fastball, is a better pitcher now than he was when he was younger, Madlock said.

"(Goose) Gossage can come in and throw hard for one or two innings but he does it for nine innings," Madlock said. "It used to be that he tried to embarrass you, he always wanted to strike you out. Now he's satisfied with getting you out."

Ryan, who has allowed more than 2,000 career walks, said he has better control now than he ever has.

"They say that 10 years ago I didn't know how to pitch and that's not true," Ryan said. "But when you're behind in the count all the time you don't really have a chance. You have to go with your best pitch and that meant I always had to throw the fast ball. I have better control now. That makes it a that great heater of his."

But he is even harder to hit now because he will mix an occasional change with his fastballs and hard-breaking curves, the Pirates said.

"That off-speed pitch makes him so much better," Madlock said. "It ought to be illegal for him to throw that pitch."

Ryan and loser John Candelaria, 3-4, were locked in a scoreless duel until Enos Cabell led off the sixth with a single. He then broke on the pitch just before Phil Garner doubled inside third base and was able to score standing up for the only run Ryan needed — and the only run he got.

"You like to pitch a game like that when you only get one run," Ryan said.

Candelaria singled and Marvell Wynne walked in the Pirates' third, but Ryan got Johnny Ray to fly out and Madlock to ground into a double play.

The Pirates didn't manage another base runner until the ninth, when Jason Thompson flied out deep to center field to end the game after Madlock singled.

Both teams are off today. The Pirates at home for three games against the Atlanta Braves beginning Friday, while the Astros play a three-game series in Chicago against the Cubs.

In Colonial tournament

Colbert hopes to repeat 1983 golf win

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Jim Colbert, on the first tee, gazed at the tablet inscribed with names of the former winners of the Colonial National Invitation Tournament.

Ben Hogan, Sam Snead, Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper, Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino...the list went on. At the bottom, the name of the 1983 winner: Jim Colbert.

"It's absolutely awesome to have your name on a list like that. That's pretty fast company," said Colbert, who opened defense of the biggest title of his two-decade career today.

"As professionals, we're trying to make a living out here," said Colbert. "But there's a great, great tradition in golf. We're aware of it and we appreciate it."

"This is a special tournament. Because of the great course, the great organization, the people, the galleries, the history, this has become a national tournament. This tournament is part of golf's tradition.

"I've won eight tournaments. This is the one that I'll carry to the grave."

Colbert, a 43-year-old grandfather now in his 19th season on the PGA Tour, had the best season of his career last year when he won twice and collected a career-high $223,810.

Among the other leading contenders are Lee Trevino, Ray Floyd, Johnny Miller, Lanny Wadkins, Craig Stadler, winner of last week's Byron Nelson Classic, and Gary Koch, a 2-time winner already this year.

Lakers threaten Phoenix

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) - The Phoenix Suns consider themselves fortunate to have gotten to the Western Conference finals this season, but the Los Angeles Lakers are threatening to make their stay a short one.

Los Angeles takes a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven National Basketball Association playoff series into Game 3 here Friday night at a sold-out Arizona Veterans Memorial Coliseum.

After posting victories of 110-94 Saturday and 118-102 Tuesday night at the Forum, Laker backers are predicting a series sweep over the Suns - much like in 1981-82 when their club won the NBA world championship.

"You can't say we're dominating the series before they even play a home game," said Los Angeles guard Earvin "Magic" Johnson. "We know they're going to be tough down there."

Lakers Coach Pat Riley, who played for Phoenix in 1975-76, said: "I know all about the Madhouse on McDowell (the Coliseum). I played there a year and I know the Suns."

However, Phoenix has not lost nine straight times to their Pacific Division rival in the playoffs and dropped 13 of the past 14 meetings.

Ann Landers

Dealing with fat mate

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Some of the people who write to you are just plain nuts. For example: The woman whose husband is grossly overweight. She refers to him as "a tub of lard." If this is what she calls him in a letter to Ann Landers I can imagine what she calls him to his face. The dumbbell then complains because their sex life is no good. How, pray tell, can a man get excited over a woman who is so insulting? Reading between the lines I saw a hint that they couldn't have sex because his belly is so big he couldn't get close enough to do her any good. Well, my husband weighs 240 pounds and our sex life is terrific. Take it from me, people who love each other find a way. Enough said.—San Juan

DEAR S.J.: Right you are, lady. Here's more on the same subject.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was disappointed in your advice to the wife who says she's married to a fat slob. You told her she couldn't do a thing for him—that he'd have to help himself. I disagree. There are many things a loving wife can do.

Since she probably does the food shopping she can load up on fresh fruits and vegetables, chicken and fish, low-cal soda and iced tea mix, canned diet fruits, water-packed tuna and many other low-cal foods.

When he "waddles" into the library to watch TV she can bring him a pitcher of iced tea, a bowl of unbuttered popcorn and a tray of carrot and celery sticks with low-cal dip.

Once he sees that dieting doesn't have to mean starvation, he probably will think of more ways to help himself.

When she makes his problem their problem, she will win his everlasting devotion.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read that an 18-year-old girl in San Jose filed a civil suit against her stepfather alleging that he sexually molested her when she was a child. She won a $210,000 judgment—the man's net worth. He was left with only his car, tools, clothing and pension.

The victim agreed to talk to reporters because she wanted to encourage victims of abuse to tell someone what was happening. She believed financial compensation might be an excellent incentive. What do you say?—Mae in Miami

DEAR MAE: I'm strongly in favor of compensation for the victim. Too long our courts have ignored this approach. Let's hear it for the decision in San Jose.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please disregard the letter I sent to you dated March 1, 1984 and signed "The Jerk." It was from Grand Forks, N.D.

The lady I was referring to has been living here in town for more than a year. I didn't know it. She has become a severe alcoholic, crazy as a loon and does all sorts of bizarre things to her neighbors. If she saw that in the newspaper, she'd know I wrote it and my life would become a nightmare. Thank you.—"Jerk"

DEAR JERK: Your letter is in the shredder. Get a good night's sleep.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Traveling a way of life

By LINDA CAUDLE
Lifestyles Editor

To most Americans, countries like India are only faraway places one reads about in books or hears of on the news.

Images conjured up in one's mind about such a place are not always accurate, but according to Shelley Hacker, a former resident of Hereford, many of the mental pictures we have of this Eastern country still do exist.

It was almost like going back in time, he found while spending five weeks in India, working for Gujarat Petrosynthese Limited as a process engineer for Cosdon Oil and Chemical, a subsidiary of American Petrofina based in Big Spring.

He described a common street scene as including camels and elephants, hand carts pulled by oxen, and women hauling water long distances from wells and carrying large containers on their heads.

There is, however, a very noticeable clash between the Indian and Western cultures, he noted. Along with the scenes just described, and often on the same street, one could also see modern day cars and buses.

Especially in the larger cities, blue jeans and other familiar articles of Western clothing are seen alongside traditional Indian attire, which is different in each state, according to Hacker.

There are many beggars in the streets, and the poorest workers live in tiny shacks with thatched or burlap roofs, many earning as little as 13 cents an hour. The standard of living is so much lower, Hacker noted as he referred to the culture shock he experienced when first arriving in India.

The people work hard, and most of labor is done manually rather than with machines because time-saving devices would tend to eliminate jobs, he explained.

The young bachelor traveled halfway around the world with two co-workers to begin operations of a plant producing polybutenes products, one of the first of its kind in India.

He and one of the other men will be returning for about two weeks to finish the project, and then Hacker will leave for Belgium, where he expects to be working approximately a month.

"I have never been to Europe, so I am really looking forward to that trip," he stated.

Traveling has become a way of life for the 1974 Hereford High graduate since he began working for the company almost three years ago, after earning a bachelor's degree in microbiology and a master's in chemical engineering from Texas Tech University.

He has been all over the United States, and also spent two months in Taiwan, visiting Japan and Hawaii enroute.

He was back in Hereford last week for a brief visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hacker, and family and remarked that he has enjoyed the variety afforded by his job but admitted that "you do get tired of it - only being at home three or four months out of the year."

Hacker and his co-workers in India organized plant operations near Baroda, a "small" town of about 850,000 along the Western coastline, but he especially noted the population density when visiting the larger cities, Bombay, with a population of 8½ million, and Delhi and New Delhi, population 20 million.

"That is where you see most of the tourists - there were not too many Westerners in the area we were working," he said.

Hacker commented that they had no trouble communicating because the engineers with whom they were working were all college educated and spoke English. They purchased most of their souvenirs and others items at the hotel shops, where the prices were generally higher but communication was not a problem.

He said that when they return to India they do plan to visit the open markets, which are crowded and reserved mostly for the Indians themselves, as they've already made decisions regarding purchases and prices. There is a certain amount of bargaining over the price, and when a tourist is spotted, the price is usually raised, he noted.

Though he wasn't in India long enough to learn much

Shelley Hacker
...with items he purchased in India about the national language, Hindi, or the many state dialects, Hacker said that he did learn to recognize certain foods on the menu.

The meals were not nearly as exotic as the eel and snail dishes which were served in Taiwan, but rather the more common vegetables and other foods were unique because of the Indian spices.

He explained that there were many different types of breads, some similar to flour tortillas, sopapillas and such, but with Indian seasonings.

He visited several famous sites such as Taj Mahal, the huge white marble mausoleum which dates to 1632 A.D.

The trip was memorable, and Hacker was impressed by the hospitality of the Indian people, but he said it felt good to get back to the familiar surroundings of the United States.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The National Endowment for the Arts has given nearly $2 million in grants to 135 presenting organizations, state arts agencies and regional organizations that help bring performances to audiences throughout the country.

The endowment says the presenting organizations make it possible for people in Texarkana, Ark., and Helena, Mont., as well as those in New York and Los Angeles, to enjoy live performances and special exhibitions.

Test leftover seeds

DEAR POLLY - I still have tomato, pepper and lettuce seeds left over from last year. If I plant these seeds, will they grow this year? I did not store them in any special manner. - JOAN

DEAR JOAN - There's a chance that the seeds will grow, especially if they've been reasonably well-protected from air and kept in a cool place.

You can test them before you actually plant them. Wrap 10 to 15 seeds in a moist paper towel and keep them in a warm place for a couple of weeks. Be sure to keep the towel moist. Every few days, check to see if the seeds have sprouted. If, after two weeks, more than half the seeds have sprouted, you know you can count on a germination rate of at least 50 percent. (Of course, your germination rate may also be a lot higher.) Go ahead and plant them, knowing you'll have a reasonable return for your efforts.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter, "Polly's Vegetable Garden Pointers" with more information that will help you get your garden off to a good start. It includes instructions for soil preparation, planting, insect control, general care and ways to increase your harvest. Other readers who would like this newsletter should send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1216, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to include the title. - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - When your shoe needs a new or extra inner sole, cut one from an old piece of felt by tracing around the shoe. Trim to fit, if necessary, then glue it in and enjoy more comfortable shoes. Small pads of felt can be placed inside the shoe wherever there is too much pressure. A pad of felt placed in the heel will add height. - RUBY

At age 20, you feel you've got nothing to lose; after 40, you're ABSOLUTELY CERTAIN of this.

LARRYMORE STUDIO

Dance, Karate & Exercise

364-4638 Veteran's Memorial Park

Dear Wing,

Sorry I didn't get back for Larrymores' recital. I heard it was great - Lots of variety - Dancers from age 3 to 75, doing everything from ballet to break to a full house.

I can hardly wait to get started back in Karate class. That tournament will be here June 23rd.

A complete video tape was made of the stage performance, and will be shown in the studio at Riva's birthday party Sunday, May 20th, as part of the entertainment. Tapes will be made for each & every student. What a wonderful service.

Lover Boy,
Buck

Dear Buck,

Your letter came today. Get back here so we can enroll in that summer tap class. Wish you could have seen the recital - it was very, very good.

Mr. L. said the mothers were the best he had ever worked with back stage. I think the combined effort of all is what made the program such a big success.

Did you mean 3 yrs. or 3 months, the twins made their debut and they are only 3 months. That was cute, in back packs on their mom & dads backs.

I'll see you at Riva's birthday party Sunday afternoon.

Keep Smiling,
Wing

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Elementary and junior high school teachers will receive raises of 20 to 25 percent beginning Wednesday, a teachers' union official said.

Alberto Miranda Castro, secretary general of the National Education Workers Union, said the raises "are not enough, we cannot deny it, but they constitute an important advance."

The increases boost pay for elementary school teachers to $152 a month and for junior high school teachers to $182 a month, the official newspaper El Nacional said.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The differing Mexican and U.S. positions on Central America are typical of the "duality in relations" between the two countries — "clear agreement on the ends and antagonism on the means," the newspaper El Universal said in an editorial on Wednesday.

In the editorial on the meeting Tuesday between President Reagan and Mexican President Miguel de la Madrid, El Universal said "it is impossible to ignore the preparations for the great conflagration that are being carried out in Central America; Mexico and the United States are too close to the conflict."

"But de la Madrid has proposed for its solution the lines of Mexican foreign policy and the preeminence of social and economic over military affairs, while Reagan insisted on the problem of foreign subversion, which, if it well may be a factor, should not be considered the root of the conflict," the newspaper said.

Novedades praised the "frankness" and "clarity" of the talks, saying it was unusual for countries so close to each other.

Reagan accepted "the importance and high moral quality represented by Mexico," Novedades said.

"It appears evident that within the limits of correctness Reagan said all he could say about the differences with Mexican policy," it added. "There was no harshness, but there was precision" in his comments, the newspaper said.

It said that "fortunately, between the two nations there are only the natural differences between civilized countries..."

MERIDA, Mexico (AP) — A five-hour downpour flooded streets in this city on the Yucatan peninsula and caused temporary interruptions in telephone and electrical service, the Excelsior news service reported Wednesday.

Drainage systems in the city on the Gulf of Mexico were inadequate to handle the torrential rain, which began at 3 p.m. Tuesday, and water a foot deep flooded the streets, the news service said. No injuries were reported.

Don Henslee

Q. What should I do to get my car air conditioner into shape for warm weather?
A. Although most air conditioner repairs should be done by professionals, there are several things you can look for in terms of preventive maintenance or to remedy small problems. First, it's a good idea to turn the air conditioner on occasionally for brief periods during the winter months when the system isn't being used. This will circulate the refrigerant and, possibly avoid a recharge. If the system isn't blowing cold air, the first thing to look for is a low refrigerant charge. Kits are available for this do-it-yourself procedure. Check the air conditioner drive belt for proper tension. There should be no more than one inch give if you press the belt with your finger between the compressor and drive pulleys. If the air conditioner does not operate at all, the first thing to look for is a blown fuse.
