Citizen of the Year

Veteran agronomist George Warner was named "Citizen of the Year" by the Hereford Lions Club at Thursday night's annual Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce banquet. Warner was honored for his development of the seed industry in Deaf Smith County and his numerous civic contributions.

George Warner named county's 'Citizen of Year'

For his development of the seed industry and his civic contributions, George Warner was named "Citizen of the Year" and for its service and protection, the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department received the Community Service Award at the annual Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce banquet Thursday night.

Hereford Lions Club president Don Hicks presented Warner with the award. The Lions sponsor the annual "Citizen of the Year" award for the Chamber.

Warner, a Mississippi native, moved with his family to Abilene, Texas, where he finished high school.

He worked his way through college milking cows and earned his bachelor's degree in agronomy. He earned his master's degree in plant breeding and spent two years as an agronomist with the Texas Experiment Station in College Station.

In 1941 he joined the U.S. Army. He served in field artillery during World War II in the European theater. He became the Army's youngest lieutenant colonel when he was 27. In 1946 he was discharged with that rank.

During another stint as an agronomist at the Texas Experiment Station, he developed a keen interest in native grasses for the southwestern states. He realized the need for a stable source of grass seed. Contrary to advice that the native grass seeds could not be cultivated, he left Waco in 1952 and moved to a farm near Summerfield with his wife.

There he began producing native grass seed with irrigation. During that time his wife was teaching school.

After the introduction of hybrid sorghum, Warner started producing field seeds and set up a one-man seed cleaning operation in Hereford. Today that company, George Warner Seed, provides employment for over 30 families.

Warner also helped with the organization of Arrowhead Mills of Hereford.

He and his late wife Ruth were very active in support of the Community Concert Association, the Chamber Singers, and the Hereford Day Care. From 1976 until 1973 he served on the board of directors of the Hereford Day Care Center and was chairman for two years. During that time the center doubled its capacity by obtaining another building. Warner was instrumental in planning for and supervising in the remodeling of the building, now known as the Ruth Warner Memorial Center.

He and his current wife Dorothy are members of the First Presbyterian Church where his is an elder. Warner also has served on the United Way board.

Warner is a strong supporter of rural youth and has contributed time and money to the Hereford Young Farmers, 4-H and Future Farmers of America.

Hereford's firemen were honored for their volunteer work which saves taxpayers approximately $500,000 annually since it is volunteer. Fire Chief David Spain accepted the award for the department and all volunteers at the banquet were recognized.

Candidates seeking county salaries below state average

By SHAWN COCKRUM
Staff Writer

Candidates vying for the five county offices in the spring election will be looking at positions that pay slightly below the state average, except in the county judge's race.

The local county judge position pays a yearly salary of $29,151. The average salary for that job in other counties near Deaf Smith's size is $28,511. The spread goes from the $37,286 paid in Chambers County to the Comanche County salary of $11,726.

Deaf Smith County commissioners fall below the state average by $4,720. The average pay for a county commissioner is $22,356. In Deaf Smith County, the commissioners earn $17,636. Their Falls County counterparts make a scant $6,600 per year. But, in Ward County the commissioners make $29,500.

The Deaf Smith county clerk is another whose pay falls below the state average of $23,356. In Deaf Smith County, the county clerk is paid $23,153. Chambers County pays its county clerk $31,944, Comanche County pays $11,726.

Deaf Smith's treasurer earns $23,153 per year, slightly above the state average of $23,006. Again, Chambers County leads the way with by paying $31,944. Bosque County pays its treasurer only $7,000, plus expenses, annually.

The Justice of the Peace post draws a $23,153 annual salary. The Deaf Smith county sheriff, whose position is not up for election, earns well above the state average of $24,566 by making $27,947 annually, plus he is furnished a vehicle.

In order for county officials to get a pay raise, it must be approved by the commissioners court. Pay raises for Deaf Smith County employees are usually made in January of each year. In 1986, the officials of Deaf Smith County did not receive a pay raise.

To solve revenue problems

Officials say state doesn't need special session

AUSTIN (AP) — Although plummeting oil prices are predicted to leave the state $1.34 billion short of its two-year revenue forecast, top officials say they don't need a special legislative session to cut spending.

"It's nothing we can't handle," Gov. Mark White said after the gloomy revenue news was released Thursday by Comptroller Bob Bullock.

"It's too early to say that we need a special session," added Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

Bullock's forecast said the oil price drop and other problems will leave the state $1.34 billion short of the $37.2 billion total budgeted for the 1986-87 fiscal years.

"Texas is facing a real financial crisis, to say the least," Bullock said. "We don't look for the situation to get much better. It's possible it may get much worse."

State Treasurer Ann Richards also sounded an alarm.

"I think the cash flow of the state of Texas is in a critical period," she said, predicting that if oil prices don't increase beyond $20 per barrel, the state could hit a severe cash-flow crunch by October.

But White said spending restraints he has requested from state agencies and other actions will resolve the situation without a special legislative session.

"We can take appropriate actions in state government to restrain spending ... There doesn't seem to be any necessity for a special session," White said.

Hobby called the anticipated short-

Hands needed for chili

The Sesquicentennial committee needs a few extra hands for its Chuck Wagon Chili Supper on March 1 which will kick-off the county's Sesquicentennial celebration.

Individuals or organizations wishing to participate in the Chuck Wagon Chili Supper should send a delegate to the Sesquicentennial Committee at 4 p.m. Monday in the Hereford Community Center.

Several sub-committee chairmen will be looking for volunteers for ticket sales and to find cooks for cobblers and cornbread.

Grant Hanna will be the chief cook for the chili supper, scheduled to be in the Bull Barn. Whiteface and Noon Kiwanis Clubs will assist in cooking and cleaning up.

The gov's furniture is missing

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White's top accountant says his staff has found 445 items previously listed as missing. The state auditor says that cuts the missing-in-action list to 346 items.

Still missing is "everything from chairs to desks to odds and ends," but nothing bought since White took office in 1983, said Mike Regan, head of the governor's accounting office.

The property problems were noted in a management letter released Thursday in conjunction with the routine audit of the governor's office.

"Included in the asset inventory listing were 791 items which had not been physically observed in recent years. The number of unobserved items has since been reduced to 346," audit manager Leslie Ashton said in the letter.

As of February 1985, the inventory showed 791 missing items, valued at

Chamber Service Award

All members of the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department were called to the front for recognition Thursday night when the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce honored the group with the Community Service Award. David Spain accepted the plaque at the Chamber's annual banquet. The volunteers responded to 385 fire calls in 1985 and annually save taxpayers about $500,000.

Congratulations to George Warner on being named the "Citizen of the Year" at the Chamber banquet Thursday night, and a big salute also to the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department on being honored with the Community Service Award. Both presentations were greeted with standing ovations by the audience. The banquet was almost postponed

Thursday morning because of the weather and a leaky roof at the Bull Barn, but the event went off without a hitch. The banquet was over before 9 p.m., and banquet chairman Rex Easterwood deserves credit for a well-planned and fast-moving event.

Many citizens in the community take the chamber of commerce for granted, and guest speaker George McKinney made some key points on what such an organization means to a community. Since it is a volunteer organization, the enthusiasm and optimism of the members must be translated into action.

We are fortunate to have volunteer leaders, year after year, that work to help make Hereford and Deaf Smith County a better place to live, work and play!

Whether you are going to the Bluegrass Concert tonight or not, we hope you will consider buying tickets. Proceeds from the show will benefit the Crimestopper program here, providing rewards for persons with case-solving clues to crimes. The project is a big asset to the community. The concert is scheduled in the Bull Barn, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Humans use flowers, but animals seek valentines in other ways

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Humans may rely on roses, candy and diamonds to pitch woo on this Valentine's Day, but the animal kingdom has to lean more on dances, nuzzles and — like the blue-footed booby — whatever Mother Nature dished out.

Male peacocks puff up and fan their spectacular tails, and woodpeckers preen their brilliant red feathers to attract a missus, but the booby isn't so graceful. His only attribute is big, electric-blue feet. Undaunted, the brave bird stands on a rock and rocks from foot to foot, wagging his free foot in the air as if to say, "Hey chick, check out the feet."

The booby doesn't care if he looks ridiculous, as long as he catches the eye of that special bird, according to Texas A&M University researchers.

Wolves have an engaging way of seeking each other out, says Jane Packard, an assistant professor of wildlife science who spent two seasons observing a pack of wolves in captivity.

When courtship begins, the male and female wolves prance back and forth for each other. They go through stages of shyness, eventually coming close, she says.

A female who is "going steady" with a male will tenderly lay her chin across the male's shoulders or back. Finally, in the animal equivalent of exchanging rings, they will each mark a spot on the snow with their urine, mingling their scents and establishing a permanent relationship.

Various kinds of "showing off" are common among male animals trying to get a female to choose them — for instance, Attwater's prairie chickens, an endangered species native to Texas, serenade their females with volleys of not variety.

The males have bright orange plumage at the base of their necks. At mating time, they inflate loose skin covered by the orange feathers (See ANIMALS, Page 2)

Weather forces nuke train back

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Heavy rains that flooded railroad tracks in Georgia forced an armored train hauling nuclear weapons to return to the Pantex Nuclear Weapons Assembly Plant, officials say.

The 22-car train, bound for a submarine base in Charleston, S.C., returned to Amarillo just after midnight Thursday, about 24 hours after it left, officials said.

Officials at Pantex, the final assembly point for all nuclear weapons in the United States, refused to say what the train carried, but anti-nuclear activists estimate it bore 180 hydrogen bomb warheads.

Owen Pride, a spokesman for Seaboard Coast Line, said recent heavy rains and storms have caused high water that threatened many railroad bridges in south Georgia.

The bridges were monitored and sandbags used to keep water from reaching the track beds on either side, but trains have continued to run over all but one of the bridges, Pride said.

Pride refused to say which track would have been used by the train. He said the Department of Energy has instructed the railroad not to comment on the route.

Dave Jackson, public information officer for the Department of Energy in Albuquerque, N.M., said the shipment was turned back at Fredonia, Kan.

"It was one of our routine special rail shipments from Pantex. We normally do not disclose the destination or the route the train will take or the train's contents," Jackson said.

"The railroads involved said they would have to inspect the tracks involved so that not only our train but other trains as well could go over the tracks," he said. "Our primary concern is safety and security."

Fitness council recommends PE

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas youths are worse off physically than they were 10 years ago, and their poor conditioning may lead to chronic diseases as they grow older, a state council study shows.

To combat that problem, the Interagency Council on Nutrition and Fitness has recommended that physical education be required for every student each year from kindergarten through high school.

The council also recommended development of a physical education curriculum "whose primary objective is the production of physically fit students."

"The concern is not so much to produce athletically superior kids, but to produce healthy ones," the council said Thursday.

The council's two unanimous recommendations were forwarded Jan. 31 to Gov. Mark White, chairman Jon Brumley of the State Board of Education and State Education Commissioner W.N. Kirby.

Texas Education Agency spokeswoman Terri Anderson said the public school curriculum already calls for physical education that produces "life-long physically fit students."

Students in grades 1-4 are required to take physical education each year, and students in grades 7-8 must take one year. High school students, grades 9-12, must take 1½ years of physical education, she said.

The council said it had recently reviewed the Texas Youth Fitness Study, which was described as the largest fitness-health study ever done in the state.

Four frat members suspended

AUSTIN (AP) — The University of Texas has banished four students who took part in a fraternity hazing that left two people hospitalized and included pelting pledges with raw eggs, a fraternity member says.

Ron Brown, UT vice president for student affairs, said Thursday several members of Alpha Tau Omega had been suspended from school until 1986. The fraternity was banned from campus activities until at least January 1989.

Brown would not say how many students were suspended, but an ATO member said it was four. The student, who would identify himself only as a 23-year-old senior from Dallas, said he was one of the four.

"There will never be hazing around this place anymore," he said. "It was part of initiation, I guess. There was no intention of hurting anyone."

Brown said nine ATO pledges were injured during the "Hell Week" hazing that began Jan. 29 and continued for three days. Two were hospitalized.

A UT release said the hazing also included "isolation of pledges resulting in their missing three days of classes."

"A fraternity can be a way to have roots and colleagues and fellowship. It's too bad it has to be corrupted by what amounts to torture," Brown said.

"Over a three-day period the pledges were subjected to repeated pelting by raw eggs, creating a perfect growing medium for staph bacteria and causing severe infections of the skin in a number of pledges," he said.

Crew involved in landing mishap

WASHINGTON (AP) — The pilots and flight engineer of an American Airlines jetliner that struck landing lights at a Texas airport last week will not be permitted to fly for at least a year, the Federal Aviation Administration says.

The FAA said Thursday that it had revoked the operating certificates of the two pilots and the flight engineer, saying they had acted "in a careless manner" and that they had failed to officially report the mishap.

The aircraft was flown three more times before damage to the Boeing 727 was noticed.

FAA spokesman Fred Farrar said the three men may request reinstatement of their licenses in a year, but would be prohibited from operating an aircraft as of Thursday.

The incident involved American Flight 844, which had 125 passengers and seven crew members aboard when it tried to land at Harlingen, Texas, in poor weather last Friday night, according to officials. The flight began in Dallas, 500 miles away.

After two attempts, the pilot tried a third approach and struck a station of approach lights 450 feet from the beginning of the runway and another set of lights 200 feet closer to the runway before again becoming airborne.

Troubles may have begun at liftoff

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Photographs of a puzzling puff of black smoke between Challenger's right solid rocket booster and fuel tank indicate the ill-fated shuttle probably was in trouble the moment it left the launch pad, NASA officials say.

The presidential commission investigating the Jan. 28 explosion that killed Challenger's seven crewmembers reviewed film, video tapes and still photos of the smoke Thursday, and the evidence was released to reporters hours later.

The investigation continued to focus on the possible rupture of a seal in the right booster.

Two mothers considered for criminal charges

EL CAMPO, Texas (AP) — Marsha Owens, 30, and her two small children had been staying for about a week with Jackie Williams, 24, and her five small children in a ramshackle, two-room, wood-frame house in the southeast part of El Campo.

About 7 p.m. Wednesday night, Police Chief J.C. Elliott said, the women — both separated from their husbands — left the seven children unattended at the house while they went bar-hopping, 30 miles away in Bay City.

When the women returned about 3:30 a.m. Thursday, they found the still-smoldering remains of the house and learned that all seven children had been killed by a fire shortly after midnight.

Elliott said he was considering pressing criminal charges against the women for leaving the children alone in the house. He said he would present information on the case to the Wharton County district attorney's office.

Ms. Williams, who had lived in the house since summer, had been investigated previously for suspected child neglect, Elliott said.

El Campo is an oil and farming town of about 13,500 people, about 70 miles southwest of Houston.

Killed were Monica Williams, 8;

Jeremy Williams, 7; Veronica Williams, 6; Jason Williams, 3; Claressa Williams, 9 months; Demetris Johnson, 3; and Nathan Johnson, 2 months.

Ms. Williams also has a 10-year-old son, Xavier, who was staying with a grandmother at the time of the fire, officials said.

Efforts to rescue the children failed because the back door and windows were boarded shut and the only escape route, the front door, was burning so intensely that entry to the house was impossible, firefighters said.

A preliminary investigation indicated the children accidentally started the fire by placing paper or some other combustible material inside a burning kerosene heater, El Campo fire marshal Garland Myers said.

"We found particles that look like paper," in the heater, Myers said. He said it is undetermined whether the children were playing with the heater or if they got cold and placed paper against the burners to make them burn brighter.

Flames raced through the house in a matter of minutes, and the seven children inside were trapped by windows and a back door that were covered with plywood and nailed shut. The only escape route was the front door, where the fire started, Myers said.

Temperatures were in the 40s at the time of the fire.

Friends and neighbors said Thursday that Ms. Williams made a tragic mistake by leaving her children alone, but was a good mother.

"Let this be a warning to mothers never to leave their kids alone," said Henrietta Taylor of Houston, Ms. Owens' sister.

Darrell Williams, estranged husband of Jackie Williams, told the Houston Post that he repeatedly warned his wife not to leave the children alone in the house.

"When she got the notion, she just left. I'm not saying she was abusive to the kids. I just say they were neglected. She was wrong leaving them here by themselves," he said.

"I told her and told her but it's too late. It's all over with," he said. "This is an example for all mothers who leave their kids unattended. It just had to be my kids who were the example," he said.

Officials with the Texas Department of Human Services in Houston said Thursday that Ms. Williams had been reported on four occasions — twice for leaving her children alone unattended, the last time in 1983.

On another occasion, in 1980, the agency was asked to investigate a report the woman had left her children alone with a babysitter for a long time, agency officials said. In 1981, a doctor reported that she had failed to pick up medicine that had been prescribed for one of her children.

In 1982, someone referred Ms. Williams to the agency because she took some of the children with her to a bar.

and use the envelope of air as a bagpipe.

The prairie chickens produce a low "booming" sound — similar to that produced by blowing across the top of a soft drink bottle — that can be heard half a mile away. When a dozen or more get together, the chorus can be deafening.

Jealousy is certainly not unique to humans. The males of one species of fly, after mating with the females, use a gelatinous substance to plug the female's sexual orifice. Thomas Payne, a professor of entomology at Texas A&M, refers to that as an "insectine chastity belt."

Men who complain about the expense of taking a date out to dinner should listen to the tale of the crickets, and think themselves lucky.

Male crickets entice females by allowing them to feed on an attractive substance produced on the males' wings. But if a male takes too much time with the female, she doesn't stop eating and will chew his wings off.

Love and misery are entirely too intertwined, both in humans and animals. Central American frogs bravely risk being eaten by fringed-lipped bats attracted by the mating croak of the frogs.

fall "disturbing," but he also said temporary solutions are available until lawmakers return for the regular 1987 session.

"The collapse of oil prices creates severe problems for state government, but those problems aren't as important as the very real hardship that can result throughout the state. We need to be concerned about the lost jobs and the loss of purchasing power that could afflict Texans," Hobby said.

Rep. Stan Schlueter, chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, said temporary adjustments could include transferring money from some of the state's numerous separate funds to others that come up short.

Schlueter said this crisis has been years in the making and is too complex to be solved in a brief special session.

"The worst thing that could happen to us is to get into a 30-day special session and try to address a situation that's going to be around for the next 20 years," he said.

$411,249, the audit report said. "We have reduced that to 346 that we are still not sure where they went," said Regan.

The management letter indicates a history of disappearing goods in the governor's office, stretching back before the White administration.

A "sizable" portion of the missing things are "mansion items" now in storage, according to the report. Regan said former Gov. Bill Clements' administration did an excellent job of documenting those items and they are accounted for.

Ms. Ashton said some of the missing items are gone for good.

"Many older items, some of which date back to the 1950s, are probably permanently missing," she said in the letter.

White's office said the value of the 346 items still listed as missing is $75,458.

Police respond to attempted burglary

City police arrested two individuals Thursday on traffic charges and a warrant. Police also responded to an attempted burglary of a residence, a family disturbance, the theft of gas and mischief.

"You can look at the figures all you want to. You can look at the price of oil all you want to. It tells us we no longer can depend on the oil and gas industry to finance state government. It's very simple," Bullock said.

"The truth of the matter is, Texas is moving into a diversified economy — one of personal services, one of retail and wholesale trade, one of finance," he said.

"Although it hurts the Texas economy, although this hurts state government very badly, as far as the country's concerned it's going to help consumers. Already, the interest rates are going down. The price of gasoline is going down."

Despite the other factors, Bullock said, nothing hurts more than slumping oil prices.

"As has often been the case in Texas since 1982, oil is the key. Without the oil price collapse, the other problems become the normal obstacles of state fiscal management. With the oil price collapse, their impact on the state's budget is intensified and magnified," he said in the report.

Bullock's outlook for the 1988-89 budget is even worse.

Assuming a continuation of recent spending increases, Bullock said the state budget could be as much as $6 billion short by those two years.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

There will be a hearing Tuesday, Feb. 18, 7:30 p.m. in the County Courthouse in the Deaf Smith County Courthouse.

The meeting is one of many that is being conducted by the Regional Alcoholism Council, to assess and evaluate the alcoholism program of this region. It is important that we, as taxpayers be informed and know what our tax money is being spent for.

Everyone is encouraged to attend this meeting and express their point of view, both those who are aware of the program and its services and have a wish to increase or improve those services and those that have a negative feeling about the alcoholism programs and feel that it is not working or wish to see a better way of handling the problem, all are asked to attend and express their opinion.

Your input is needed, please come to this meeting.

Respectfully yours,
W. Glen Nelson

Ann Landers Lady makes sense

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Regarding "Awaiting a Reply in Calif." on how to recover from an affair with a married man: I'm no psychologist, but the following might work for others. It worked for me.

An affair is something, believe it or not, one has psyched oneself into, intentionally or unintentionally, because of a need to be paid attention to, or a rebelling against something. If you can psych yourself into it, you should be able to psych yourself out of it.

One must work through the process by facing the anger, resentment, grief and the sense of loss following the breakup, the same as after a divorce or a death.

Get angry, but use the anger in a positive way. Ask yourself, "Why am I letting this man manipulate me? Why am I not master of my fate and captain of my destiny?"

Don't try to block out the rosy moments you've shared. They will return. Look at the relationship realistically, in the light of the day-to-day routine. Ask yourself if such passion could be sustained in the face of difficult demands of married life. Common sense will tell you that passions cool. Life must be lived in a practical way. You must get out of bed sooner or later.

At first you may doubt that this process will work. Keep at it. Will. Remember, you've spent a lot of time and energy fantasizing and building up the man as your romantic ideal. You now must exert as much energy dismantling it and laying it to rest, like the corpse that it is. I am signing myself—One Who Did It, Thank The Lord.

DEAR ONE: You make a lot of sense, lady. I hope the women who need your advice will take it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was widowed recently. I was not left well-provided-for but neither am I destitute. How do I deal with a well-meaning friend who insists on sending me food that is partly used and freezer-burned? I've also received baked goods from her that were "failures"—things she would never serve her own family. I need your advice, Ann.—Not Starving in Wyoming

DEAR WY: Tell her politely that you feel guilty accepting food when so many people are hungry. Suggest that she seek out some families who are truly in need.

IS IT HOT OR NOT?

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) Whatever lies at the heart of the Milky Way galaxy is more peculiar than has been thought. That's what data collected by astronomers at the University of Rochester suggests.

Using a very sensitive detector, university scientists have obtained the clearest infrared images to date of the galactic center. Current theory holds that a massive black hole lies there, swallowing gas, dust and whole stars and emitting enormous energy in the process.

But, the material being sucked into such a hole should be very hot and therefore show up clearly in infrared images. No such tell-tale "hot spots" show up on the new images, the scientists say, adding that the black hole theory may therefore have to be modified.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A woman in our group declined dessert when we were dining out. She asked instead for a tall glass of ice cubes. When it arrived she commenced to chomp on the ice with her teeth, then tried to use a tablespoon to crack the ice into smaller pieces. It didn't work so she wrapped the cubes in the napkin and banded it on the leg of the table.

The racket created a good bit of attention. The head waiter said nothing but was visibly upset. I was ashamed to be in the group.

I believe the woman's behavior was the ultimate in bad manners and said so. My husband put me down for being "super critical." Was I? I'd like your opinion.—Hate Vulgarly (Austin, Tx.)

BUSINESS SCHOOLS

BOSTON (AP)—A recently published guide to the nation's business schools lists the top 10 as: Harvard, Stanford, Pennsylvania (Wharton), Chicago, MIT (Sloan), Northwestern, Michigan, UCLA, Columbia, and Dartmouth.

The author says the selection process is somewhat subjective. "Picking the top 10 business schools is like choosing an economic policy—everyone has a strong opinion and is convinced he or she is right, but no consensus is ever reached," he said.

In ninth grade boys' basketball contest

Stanton defeats La Plata, 56-54 in OT

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

Seven ties and 10 lead changes in regulation time meant a close game all the way Thursday when Stanton and La Plata battled it out in ninth grade boys' competition, and Stanton prevailed in overtime, 56-54.

La Plata, which was behind 47-39 with 5:38 left in the fourth quarter, rallied to tie the game at 48-48 with 2:28 left.

Stanton missed a shot with 1:59 left. Jason Scott put La Plata into the lead, 50-48, with a basket with 1:37 left.

With 1:12 left in regulation, Roger McCracken of La Plata rebounded a missed shot by Stanton, and La Plata appeared to be head for a victory.

In a span of about 10 seconds, La Plata missed four shots before Stanton got possession of the ball with 33 seconds left.

After calling a timeout, Stanton had 28 seconds remaining to attempt to tie the contest at 50-50. Pat Mercer did just that with 16 seconds left.

With six seconds left, McCracken was fouled and La Plata had an opportunity to gain back the lead. But McCracken missed the shot and the game went into overtime.

Keith Brown gave Stanton a 52-50 lead to open the overtime, and within half a minute, McCracken scored for La Plata to put the game into its eighth tie, 52-52.

Mercer sank a shot from the corner with 1:35 left, giving Stanton a 54-52 lead. La Plata missed a shot with 1:05 left, and moments later Stanton also missed, but got the rebound.

Stanton then committed a turnover, but La Plata failed to capitalize on another opportunity when the Mavericks missed a shot with 37 seconds left.

Brown hit a pair of pressure-packed free throws with 15 seconds left to put the Stanton Dogies ahead by four points, 56-52.

A basket by La Plata's Brad Smith with six seconds left cut the Stanton lead to two points.

Mercer of Stanton was fouled with three seconds left. He missed the free throw, but there was not enough time on the clock for La Plata to even get off a desperation shot.

Pat Mercer fired in 32 points to lead Stanton to its victory. Mercer's points included 10 of 14 free throws, 14 points in the first half, and 11 points in the third quarter.

Keith Brown was also in double figures with 14 points, including his four overtime points.

Four La Plata players scored in double figures, led by Clint Cotten with 13 points. Jason Scott scored 11 points, and Brad Smith and Roger McCracken each scored 10 points.

La Plata led 12-10 when the first quarter ended, but Stanton outscored La Plata 16-10 in the second period for a 26-22 halftime lead.

La Plata's biggest lead of the first half was four points at 10-6. Stanton had a six-point lead at 26-20.

La Plata tied the game up at 26-26 in the first two minutes of the third quarter, and the score was also tied at 28-28.

The Mavericks held leads of 30-28, 32-30 and 34-31 before Stanton gained the lead on a Mercer basket with 3:01 left in the third quarter, 35-34.

The lead changed hand a couple of time before another tie took place, 37-37. A basket by Mercer and two free throw and a field goal by Brown gave Stanton a 43-37 lead by the end of the third period.

Stanton then had its biggest lead of the game, eight points, when Pat Rhodes scored with 5:38 to make the score 47-39.

That set the stage for La Plata's rally, and the overtime period.

Stanton's final won-loss record for the season is 9-7. La Plata, which plays at home against Gattis of Clovis, N.M., had a 10-5 season record.

Enough is enough to drugs, says Ueberroth

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Major league baseball is saying "enough is enough to drugs" and will work toward becoming an example for others in overcoming drug problems, Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth says.

"We needed to pledge to baseball fans everywhere that in 1986 you can take your kids to a game and watch a drug-free game," Ueberroth said this week.

Ueberroth addressed the Houston Forum Club and later unveiled the official logo for the 1986 all-star baseball game scheduled for July in the Astrodome.

"If our institution (baseball) can't cure it's problems, how can a junior high school solve its problems," the baseball commissioner said. "We feel if we can rid our sport of drugs it will have a domino effect."

He said he hopes to see major league athletes serve as role models for society.

"Seven hundred major league baseball players are not a major portion of the population, but they are the idols for millions of kids in this country," Ueberroth said.

Ueberroth, who was the executive for the 1984 Olympic Games, said doomsayers predicted a massive failure for the Los Angeles games.

"But the theme of what I am saying is don't listen to the doomsayers," he said.

Ueberroth said he did not anticipate more boycotts at the 1988 Olympic games in Seoul, Korea.

"I think the super powers have both learned that boycotts hurt athletes and nothing else," he said.

Ueberroth also delivered a pep talk for the city, which will be hosting the all-star game for the second time since 1968.

"That is a time when 82 million people will stand still and watch the greatest players alive playing on that day," Ueberroth said.

BASEBALL

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball players scored a 3-2 victory over the owners in salary arbitration cases, with Kansas City first baseman Steve Balboni, Detroit pitcher Dave LaPoint and Cincinnati catcher Dave Van Gorder the big winners.

Los Angeles first baseman Greg Brock and Houston pitcher Bill Dawley were the losers, but will receive substantial raises this year over their 1985 salaries.

Pitchers Mark Thurmond of San Diego, Mark Langston of Seattle, and infielder Ed Jurak of Boston avoided arbitration by signing with their clubs.

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox denied that former coach Tommy Harper was dismissed because he complained that the Red Sox distributed passes to the segregated Elks Club at the team's spring training site.

Harper, who is black, filed a racial discrimination complaint Jan. 30 with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. He claimed he was fired because he objected publicly to the Red Sox' relationship with the Elks Club. Harper's contract expired last Dec. 31 and was not renewed.

Somebody's Getting Mobbed!

The Stanton cheerleaders were among the first fans to congratulate their school's ninth grade boys' basketball team after Stanton defeated La Plata 56-54 in overtime Thursday night. The excitement and delight came on a night when Stanton had lost seventh and eighth grade games to La Plata. Stanton's victory came in its season finale. (Brand photo by Gary Christensen)

Agreement reached on 'UT' trademark

HOUSTON (AP) — Rather than undertake a prolonged and expensive court battle, the University of Texas and the University of Tennessee have agreed on a compromise regarding use of the "UT" trademark.

In a meeting here Thursday, University of Texas regents approved a proposed agreement under which Texas will control commercial rights west of the Mississippi River.

Tennessee gets to use the trademark east of the Mississippi River and in Louisiana's West Baton Rouge Parish, home of Southeast Conference rival Louisiana State University.

The agreement also gives the Texas Longhorns and the Tennessee Volunteers limited rights to the use of the logo in each other's territory during bowl games or other special events.

At stake was revenue from use of the trademark and the popular interlocking design of the letters on beer mugs, key chains, T-shirts, customized toilet seats and other souvenirs.

The dispute loomed because the University of Tennessee had applied to the federal government for the right to use the trademark on many items that were not covered under Texas trademark rights.

"While this is not an ideal solution, it is the only practical agreement that could be negotiated with the University of Tennessee," said a staff recommendation to the Texas regents. "It does avoid a costly and protracted administrative and court proceeding."

SOUND LOGIC
ATLANTA (AP) — There are different strokes for different folks and also different quotes, as witness this one from Kevin Willis of the Atlanta Hawks: "I try to keep my head out of the clouds. It might rain some day and I don't want to drown."

Willis, by the way, is 7 feet tall.

The height of the crossbar on football goal posts is 10 feet.

Mavericks led 18-7 at end of third quarter

La Plata 8th boys beat Stanton 27-20

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

La Plata's eighth grade boys' basketball team held off a late Stanton rally Thursday, and scored a 27-20 win over Stanton.

La Plata went into the final quarter with an 18-7 lead. The Mavericks later held a 24-11 lead with 3:01 left.

Freddie Melindrez of Stanton scored a three-point play with 2:24 left in the game. A field goal by Benny Gonzales with 1:55 left, and a basket by Mason Morgan off a steal with 1:30 left sliced the La Plata lead to six points, 24-18.

Stanton's Robert Miriam missed a one-and-one free throw attempt with 39 seconds left, but a teammate rebounded the ball and Miriam scored a field goal with 33 seconds left, moving Stanton within four points, 24-20.

A one-and-one free throw was missed by La Plata with 33 seconds left. Stanton failed to close the gap to two points when a shot was missed with 17 seconds left.

Time then ran out on the Stanton Dogies, and the La Plata Mavericks went on to win by a margin of seven points, 27-20.

The victory gave La Plata a 5-10 season record. La Plata plays Gattis of Clovis, N.M., at the La Plata gym on Monday. The 1985-86 season ended for Stanton with Thursday's game. Stanton's record for the year was 3-14. The first half of Thursday's contest was a low-scoring one. The game was scoreless until Stanton's Melindrez scored a field goal with 4:35 left in the first quarter.

Stanton later had a 4-1 lead with 2:45 left in the quarter when Morgan scored a basket. With 1:50 left in the quarter, Jim Andrews of La Plata scored to tie the game at 4-4.

One free throw by Tate Smith and two free throws by Andrews gave La Plata a 7-4 lead for the first period.

Just two points were scored in the second quarter—free throws by Smith with 5:52 left in the first half. That gave La Plata a 9-4 halftime lead.

La Plata then increased its lead to 18-7 in the third quarter.

Tate Smith helped lead La Plata to its 27-20 victory by scoring 11 points. Russell Backus and Jim Andrews each added five points for La Plata.

Mason Morgan scored eight points to lead Stanton. Freddie Melindrez scored six points.

STANTON EIGHTH GRADE: Mason Morgan 6 0-4; Freddie Melindrez 22-3; Robert Miriam 2 0-1; Benny Gonzales 1 0-0; Jason Waltershead 0 0-1; Edward Castillo 0 0-0. Totals: 62-28.

QUICK MOVES
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mike Quick, the crack wide receiver of the Philadelphia Eagles, says the reason for his success — three straight 1,000-yard seasons — is his deceptive style.

"My style frequently deceives defensive backs," Quick said. "It's something I practice. The trick is to run full speed without showing a lot of motion or running half speed and showing plenty of motion. That way the defender can never be sure about you."

The defenders were caught napping on one play in the 1985 season, a 99-yard touchdown run by Quick on a pass from Ron Jaworski. The play which started at the Eagle one-yard line was the sixth 99-yard scoring aerial in NFL history.

La Plata 7th grade boys wallop Stanton, 51-11

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

Thirteen members of the La Plata seventh grade boys' basketball team scored Thursday night when the Mavericks walloped the Stanton Dogies 51-11 at the La Plata gym.

La Plata led 12-3 after one quarter of play, and then increased the margin to 32-3 by halftime.

The victory improves La Plata's season record to 6-8, with one game remaining on its schedule—at home on Monday against Gattis of Clovis, N.M. Thursday's game was the season finale for Stanton, which finished with a 6-11 season record.

Toby Decker scored 12 points in the first half for La Plata, and finished the game as the leading scorer.

Chris Blair and Amado Lopez each scored six points for La Plata, and Garrick McPherson, Jason Fowler, Kent Sinnacher, and Aaron Higgins each scored four points.

For Stanton, Miguel Casas had four points and Andrew Tijerina scored three points. Tijerina's points all came within the last five seconds of the first quarter.

STANTON SEVENTH GRADE: Miguel Casas 2 0-4; Andrew Tijerina 1 1-2 3; Mark Lindsey 1 0-2 2; Max Mangia 1 0-1 2; Anthony Gale 0 0-1 0; Stephen Banner 0 0-3 0; Aaron Kesse 0 0-3 0. Totals: 14-11.

FOOTBALL
ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals owner William V. Bidwill is seeking a federal court order to prevent the owner of Busch Stadium from asking him about the National Football League team's finances and plans to move to another stadium.

An attorney for Bidwill filed the documents in U.S. District Court as part of a lawsuit against the club filed by Civic Center Corp., which owns Busch Stadium. Bidwill has said he is not happy with the seating capacity at Busch Stadium, the second lowest in the NFL.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Jan. 26 Super Bowl in which the Chicago Bears beat the New England Patriots 46-10 was the most-watched television show of all-time, the NFL said. NBC figures put the estimated audience for the game at 127 million. The NFL said that surpasses the previous high of 121.6 million for the final episode of MASH, which was aired Feb. 28, 1983.

Local Church News

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH
Emphasis will be on two United Methodist institutions in West Texas — Methodist Hospital in Lubbock and McMurry College at Abilene—in the morning worship service of First United Methodist Church Sunday. Then, the first all-church Family Night is scheduled at 6 p.m.

Rev. Raymond P. Wolfe, associate chaplain in the Lubbock hospital, will fill the pulpit at the morning service, in observance of Methodist Hospital Month. A member of the host church, McMurry sophomore Brenda Barnes, will make a statement about the college and her fellow-students Susan Robe of El Cruces, N.M. and Brian Walsh of Las Paso, will add their voices to the music program of the service.

For the Family Night, "admission charge" will be two cans of food to be given to the Good Shepherd Food Pantry. Each family is to bring sandwiches or cookies for the supper, which will be followed by games for adults and youth. Small children will be entertained by a film showing.

Church youth will have popcorn and drinks on sale during the games. Family Life Coordinators, Tom and Betty Conaway, Terry and Tina Langehennig, Bob and Sue Sims are in charge of arrangements.

A new organization for women, Body and Soul, is being formed in First UMC and invites all interested women to the Fellowship Hall at 7 p.m. Tuesdays. Twenty minutes of exercise, with tapes or videos as the leaders, will be followed by 40 minutes of study. The book, "Ages and Stages" will be the basis for the study at present.

GRACE GOSPEL CHURCH
Linda Morgan of Borger will be ministering at both services Sunday at Grace Gospel Church, 13th St. and Ave. K. The morning worship will begin at 11 a.m. and the evening worship at 7 p.m.

Morgan recently spoke at the women's Lock-in at First Christian Church in Hereford. She is an able minister of the gospel and is used in the gifts of the spirit.

The speaker was dying of cancer a few years ago and has since been healed and has been ministering to various churches and organizations including the Women's Fellowship Aglow.

She and her husband pastor at a church in Fritch.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
Good News America Revival is planned April 20-23 with guest speaker Dr. Reid Doster.

This Sunday at 5 p.m. the church will begin evangelism training for all who are interested during YOUTH DISCIPLE.

Adult VI and VII members will have a Valentine party at 7 p.m. today in the fellowship hall.

Dean Herring will be kidnapped on Feb. 23. The ransom will be 150 cans of food to be left in boxes beside Sunday school classrooms.

The Adult V class will have a Valentine box supper at 7 p.m. today at the home of Butch and Mary Beth White, 326 Elm. Bring a box supper for two.

CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE
For all basketball jocks, Meadowlark Lemon, the one and only world famous Globetrotter, will be at the church at 7 p.m. Feb. 19 during L.I.F.E.

Another fun Sunday night is planned in a series of "Cheap Nites" this week. It's pizza time at the Rev. Bob Huffaker's house and it's free.

Caravans, a Christian scouting program for children in grades 4-6, will have their awards program at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 26.

The children and teen talent contest will be held at 6 p.m. Sunday.

Katherine Chapman will begin her Bible study at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the fellowship hall. The study is open to everyone.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
The First Presbyterian Church's worship service begins at 10:30 a.m. Rev. Bruce Kochsmeier's sermon is titled "It's Time to Go Home Again" and the scripture is from Deuteronomy 26:1-11.

The Lenten film series, "Ordering Your Private World" begins Wednesday night at 6 p.m. with a soup and cornbread potluck supper. All are invited.

The Women's Bible Study meets this Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. to hear a taped presentation entitled: "Friendship—Being There for Each Other". Don't miss this great opportunity for growth and fellowship.

It's Valentine's Night as the youth gather at 138 Liveoak Street. Have a heart and come to this heartwarming event. We'll be talking about friendship and cliques so get your valentine and join us for a great time of fun and fellowship. Jr. High is at 5:30 p.m. Sr. high is at 7:30 p.m. Supper for both groups is at 7 p.m.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH
A new daytime class on "Christian Basics" will be offered for those unable to attend the Sunday evening sessions. The class will be given at 1 p.m. on Tuesdays.

The beginning session will be held on Tuesday and continue for six weeks concluding March 18. Class sessions will last until 2:30 p.m. A nursery will not be provided although Mom's Day Out is available.

A committee, under the leadership of John Perrin, is now in the process of beginning to take the steps for the construction of a new addition which will be used primarily for the growing needs in the nursery. There is currently $60,000 in a building fund to aid in this construction.

The time for the marriage retreat is drawing near. Please consider this worthwhile investment. The event is planned March 7-9 at the Amarillo Hilton Inn.

COMMUNITY CHURCH
The public is invited to attend worship service beginning at 10:30 a.m. to hear Jacob Kurien of South Houston.

Kurien is with World Outreach Ministries, Inc.

Public invited to meeting

Jacob Kurien of South Houston will be the guest speaker at the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship meeting set for 7 p.m. Saturday at the Hereford Community Center.

Tickets for the meal, which will be catered by Savage's, are $4.50 per person and may be purchased at the door. The dinner will be served at 7 p.m. and the meeting is planned for 7:45 p.m.

Kurien, who is with World Outreach Ministries, Inc., was in his 10th year as an officer and jet pilot in the Indian Navy when his plane crashed. His friend and co-pilot was killed instantly, but he survived.

The speaker will tell how he received Christ and was baptized in the Holy Spirit.

JACOB KURIEN

Coke party scheduled

Girls interested in entering the Miss Hereford Scholarship Pageant, set for 7 p.m. March 8 in the Hereford High School auditorium, are invited to a coke party Saturday.

The party will begin at 2 p.m. at the Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center.

Girls planning to enter the pageant may pick up forms at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office or from any of the participating local merchants.

Stengel named to honor roll

Michael Stengel of Hereford made the President's honor roll at Seward County Community College for the fall 1985 semester.

To be named to the honor roll, students must maintain a 4.0 GPA with no less than 15 credit hours, no withdrawals recorded after the sixth weeks and no incompletes.

The Egyptian Lock, invented around 2,000 B.C., was the first device that was a true key-operated lock.

There's a tax tip: donations and medical expenses paid by credit card are deductible the year they are charged, not necessarily when they are incurred or paid off.

Classified advertising rates are based on a minimum of 20 words. One day is 13 cents per word or $2.60 minimum. Rates below are for consecutive issues, no copy change, and apply to solid ad lines only.

TIMES	RATES	MIN.
1 day per word	13	2.60
2 days per word	22	4.40
3 days per word	31	6.20
4 days per word	40	8.00

5th day FREE
Add 9 cents per word for additional days: 10 days (3 free) is 15.20 minimum; 15 days (3 free) is 22.60; month 27.30.

Classified display rates apply for special captions, paragraphing, bold type or larger type, and ads not set with full lines. $2.60 per column inch, $2 a column inch for additional insertions, or $1.75 a column inch per month.

LEGALS
Advertising rates for legal notices are $3.50 per column inch for the first insertion and $3 per column inch for consecutive issues.

Deadlines for classified ads are 3 p.m. daily for the next day's edition; 3 p.m. Friday for Sunday's edition.

Cash is required on advertisements under $10.

ERRORS
Every effort is made to avoid errors in Classified Ads and legal notices. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. In case of errors not the fault of the advertiser, an additional insertion will be given.

Valentine hopefuls get advice

NEW YORK (AP) — The would-be Valentines ran the gamut from a bearded ex-roped rider and professional dog-walker to a bookish-looking man in a rumpled tweed jacket. But they all had something in common: an interest in meeting significant others through the personal ads.

They got the whys, the hows and the unabashed encouragement they were seeking Wednesday night at a Greenwich Village panel discussion with a psychiatrist, a sex therapist, two sociologists, an expert on flirting and the classified ad director of the Village Voice, the New York weekly newspaper.

"A decade ago ... most of them (personal ads) came from sort of lecherous males whom one wouldn't wish to meet anyway," said panelist Barbara Heyns, a sociology professor at New York

In 1777, American troops defeated a Hessian force under British command at Bennington, Vt., during the Revolutionary War.

Grayson County man has one-man, small-town long distance service

POTTSBORO, Texas (AP) — Amid the confusion and intense competition surrounding long-distance telephone service, a Pottsboro man is offering what he describes as a simple, local option to national long-distance companies.

The company, named MetroLine, is the brainchild of D.A. McGuire, a 42-year-old former insurance company operations vice president. Although based in Pottsboro, the company offers discount long-distance calling from many areas in Grayson County to points across all of Texas.

And, depending on the calls a business makes and which long-distance carrier it uses, McGuire said his company can save businesses between seven and 30 percent on long-distance bills.

Founded in March 1983, MetroLine is called by McGuire an outgrowth of the changes since the breakup of AT&T. "I felt there was an opportunity, with all the changes coming in long-distance service, to move into the area and prosper," he said.

After a year of studying the long-distance business, McGuire changed his original plan of servicing giant Dallas companies and moved to Pottsboro. "I dealt with long-distance companies in Dallas (while working for General Aviation Insurance), and something seemed to be missing in their approach. They weren't as customer-oriented as insurance was."

With that in mind, McGuire began a service for Pottsboro, Sherman and Denison residents to call the Dallas area. In March 1985, the company expanded its service to include calls to most of North Texas, including Fort Worth, Denton and Paris. Recently, MetroLine began service to all of Texas.

The business basically runs off a computer in McGuire's office, which contains a software package that makes the system work. To make a long-distance call, McGuire said, "The customer picks up the phone and makes a local call that reaches my computer." The computer answers with a beep, the caller enters a personal authorization number which identifies the caller, and three more beeps sound.

After the three beeps, the caller dials a one, the area code, and phone number of the party he is calling. The computer tracks the length of the call, which determines the cost.

Recently, McGuire switched from Southwestern Bell lines to AT&T WATS lines, which he says upgrades the quality, service and calling area MetroLine offers to customers. The phone companies, McGuire said, have line-lease rates set by the Public Utility Commission. Faced with a rate increase by Southwestern Bell, the company turned to Ma Bell.

"We were looking at a rate increase (from Southwestern Bell), and it would have meant bringing our prices up," McGuire said. "But I found that, with the rates on WATS lines within the state, I could charge the same price and allow my customers to call all over Texas."

Unlike most long-distance carriers, which charge by the length of the call and the distance from the call's point of origin, MetroLine charges only for the minutes the callers are on the line. Thus, McGuire said, a call to El Paso costs the same as a call to Dallas.

"The further away in our area you call, the better price break (over other carriers) the customer gets," McGuire said.

Although the rate structure helps callers to far-away points, calls to near cities such as Bonham and Denton may be more expensive on MetroLine, a fact McGuire readily tells his customers, both in letters and in a map each customer receives. "We advise them (of the higher cost for near calls) because we want to save them money," he said.

MetroLine has no minimum monthly charge or fees, except for an initial $10 sign-up fee.

McGuire, who is "president and janitor," is the company's only full-time employee. He also repairs the equipment himself, lowering the company's overhead, and thus its price. "Our discount (price) is less than any competitor I'm aware of," he said.

Not all businesses can profit from using MetroLine. "One of our services is we will analyze a company's phone bill and see which calls could be made over MetroLine and how much we could save the company for the same call at the same time of day," he said. "So it's worth people's while to consider us."

Savings for the average customer, he says, is 15 to 30 percent over AT&T and seven to 15 percent over such companies as MCI and Sprint. McGuire also offers his service to residential customers because, he said, "I offer a good deal to them on the lowest rates on evenings and weekends," though "my bread and butter is small- and medium-sized business."

Is society confused?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forty percent or more of Americans believe flying saucers are real, that rockets change the weather and certain numbers bring good luck, says a new poll whose author suggests the results show a technologically confused society.

Those survey results and others indicate that while some of the American public is somewhat informed on technological issues, "a substantial portion is not well informed in these areas," Jon D. Miller, director of the Public Opinion Laboratory at Northern Illinois University, said Thursday.

"I think sometimes when you get the personal response you have to judge the kind of paper it's written on," said London. "Sometimes you have to make a judgment based on whether there's all kinds of food stains on the letter you're receiving."

For example, he said his poll, sponsored by the National Science Foundation, found 95 percent of Americans agreeing with the statement that "smoking causes serious health problems" — a contention the medical profession strongly supports.

However, 75 percent also agreed with a statement that "there are good ways of treating sickness that medical science does not recognize."

Of the second finding, Miller said in a telephone interview, "It is not clear whether this result is an endorsement of folk medicine ... or a vote of no confidence in the medical profession. Whatever its origins, it appears inconsistent with the idea of technological literacy."

Such literacy — or perhaps illiteracy in some cases — was the focus of a weekend conference beginning today in Baltimore. The poll also was released in Washington.

An announcement of the conference said, "Evidence abounds that we are graduating students who are unprepared and unable to grasp even day-to-day issues — the technical content of issues ranging from the safety of contraceptive devices or nutrition to robotics, geneplicing or the recent explosion of the space shuttle Challenger."

Other findings in Miller's poll, conducted among 2,000 randomly selected adults late last year, indicated:

—Forty-three percent agreed with the statement that "it is likely that some of the unidentified flying objects that have been reported are really space vehicles from other civilizations."

—Forty-one percent agreed that "rocket launchings and other space activities have caused changes in our weather."

University. But today's ads, she noted, are written by people "looking for everything from 'Thursdays at 3' to backpacking ... to nouvelle cuisine and ballgames."

Many of the advertisers seek long-term, committed relationships, the panelists agreed.

"The generation that had that freedom of the '70s and enjoyed it ... has started to lose its enchantment. Now people are saying to me, 'I want somebody to be close to,'" said sex therapist Shirley Zussman.

Today's ads also are "much more self-congratulatory. Narcissism is alive and well in the United States," Ms. Heyns said, prompting laughter.

In the Feb. 18 issue of the Voice, for instance, a single page of personals advertises nine people who describe themselves as "handsome," six "extremely handsome," six "attractive," one "extremely attractive," four "good looking," two "pretty" and one "very pretty."

Judith Krueger Lee, the Voice's classifieds director, jumped quickly to the defense of such descriptions. "You're advertising yourself. It's important, I think, for all of us, to some degree, to reflect on our best side," she told the audience.

One man in the audience asked the panelists to suggest attention-grabbing words to use in ads. Instead of catchy phrases, the SWM (personals lingo for a single, heterosexual, white male) got a pep talk from Ms. Lee.

Women outnumber men in New York, she told him, and "if you're single, available, can hold a job and don't have contagious diseases, you're way ahead."

Specifics were offered, however, to the ex-roped rider and professional dog-walker, who wanted to know how to avoid unwelcome surprises. "I had this experience in San Francisco — I found out she wasn't a she," he told the panelists.

Judging the responses is "very subjective and very personal, because what I would think is a very strange advertisement, to someone else would be super," said Dr. Robert London, director of short-term psychotherapy at New York University Medical Center.

"I think sometimes when you get the personal response you have to judge the kind of paper it's written on," said London. "Sometimes you have to make a judgment based on whether there's all kinds of food stains on the letter you're receiving."

HEADED FOR HOME...TO FIND MORE TROUBLE!

After parting from the Ephesians elders, we sailed straight to Cos. The next day we reached Rhodes and then went to Patara. There we boarded a ship sailing for the Syrian province of Phoenicia. We sighted the island of Cyprus, passed it on our left and landed at the harbor of Tyre, in Syria, where the ship unloaded. We went ashore, found the local believers and stayed with them a week. These disciples warned Paul -- the Holy Spirit prophesying through them -- not to go on to Jerusalem.

At the end of the week when we returned to the ship, the entire congregation including wives and children walked down to the beach with us where we prayed and said our farewells. Then we went aboard and they returned home.

The next stop after leaving Tyre was Ptolemais where we greeted the believers, but stayed only one day.

Then we went on to Caesarea and stayed at the home of Philip the Evangelist, one of the first seven deacons. He had four unmarried daughters who had the gift of prophecy.

Chaplains add new dimension

DALLAS (AP) — When the young daughter of the sales manager of SYSCO Food Systems was diagnosed as having cancer in 1984, SYSCO president David E. Wicker III called Gil Strickland.

Strickland, a chaplain under contract to the Dallas food distributor, rushed to the employee's home to meet with the family.

SYSCO is among corporations that traditionally have tended to the physical needs of employees — through health care and insurance programs — that now are retaining corporate chaplains to add a spiritual and emotional dimension to benefits.

It was only a matter of a few weeks between the diagnosis and the death of the sales manager's 6-year-old child. But in that time, SYSCO's chaplain spent endless hours with the family, in the hospital and at their home.

"It was a very traumatic experience," Wicker said. "I called and visited a couple of times, but (Strickland) spent time doing what I would not have been able to do. The family thought so much of him, they asked him to perform the funeral service."

Wicker's Dallas food distributorship employs the services of Marketplace Ministries Inc., an industrial chaplaincy corporation founded two years ago by Strickland, who is its president. It is a non-sectarian program, with seven full-time and two part-time chaplains — representing Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faiths.

Companies sign contracts for the service, for which they pay hourly or monthly fees.

"The chaplains are on call for employees," Wicker said. "It's a personal matter between them and Gil (Strickland). He gives me no names, and I do not ask for any. I just felt a need to give our employees something more than a job and a weekly salary. I know it is successful because of the letters I receive from the employees."

The Marketplace Ministries' chaplains, who are all trained in seminaries and have business experience, offer services ranging from counseling for drug problems and family crises to marriages, baptisms and funerals.

Geoff Hammond was named chaplain for the ERA-Clements-Prinzhorn Co. Realtors, for the past year. Besides counseling and making home and hospital calls, Hammond attends weekly sales meetings, as well as plans and forecasts sessions. There he presents brief motivational or inspirational talks.

"I consider him part of the management team," said Dick Clements.

"We pay Hammond a monthly fee, and his counseling sessions are confidential — between him and the employee," Clements said. "I don't know who he talks to or how often he sees them, and I don't want to know."

Hammond, a native of England, came to the United States three years ago. He is an ordained minister and is pastor of a small congregation in Lewisville.

"I am on call whenever one of the employees needs me," Hammond said. "At recent sales meetings, I have spoken on subjects ranging from the importance of keeping confidences and how to forgive, to dealing with conflicts and megatrends."

There are an estimated 30,000 full-time chaplains in
