Jury gives Faulkner 18½-year sentence

By SHAWN COCKRUM
Staff Writer

John Faulkner slightly flinched as he was sentenced to an 18½ year prison term and fined $10,000 late Thursday in 22nd State District Court. Faulkner, 38, pleaded guilty Tuesday to using whole life insurance policies belonging to 25 of his former insurance clients to gain $46,982 for himself.

The eight-man, four-woman jury deliberated over two hours before giving the sentence, which will not allow Faulkner parole for six years. "I think a sentence like this will deter other people from committing serious crimes," District Attorney Roland Saul said.

According to state prosecutors, Faulkner gained the money over a five year span by falsifying policy records to obtain the loans under the client's name.

State witnesses included one of Faulkner's friends whose policies had been used and a bank employee who told about Faulkner's deposits into three accounts.

As the last witness, Faulkner told the jury he had been blessed with the ability to get people to trust him. "I have violated that trust," he said, later adding that he had changed and could be a productive citizen.

His attorney, John Lesly, asked for the jury's sympathy Thursday. Lesly presented nine character witnesses who testified that they had known Faulkner for some time and felt he could rehabilitate himself.

Faulkner, born and raised in Amarillo, attended Caprock High School and graduated from Texas A&M University with honors. He then served a two-year term as an U.S. Army officer and was decorated with a Bronze Star for service in Vietnam.

Following the Army, Faulkner, with his wife Janice and their two daughters, moved back to Amarillo.

Faulkner began working as an insurance agent for Blue Cross-Blue Shield in the Amarillo area, then was transferred to Lubbock in 1976. He continued to work in Lubbock until 1980, when he moved to Hereford to work for Property Enterprises.

"I know that I have changed since the theft," Faulkner said. "This is something that I will have to live with for the rest of my life. It is something that I sincerely want to do something about."

"It would be easy for me to tell you that everybody deserves a second chance," Faulkner told the jury. "We all have in common things we are not proud of, but not to this magnitude. I can be a productive person in our society, I believe with all my heart that I am a person of worth."

Faulkner told the jury that the deception started when he moved to Hereford in 1980. He had taken out a loan from the First National Bank, and he did not have the money to repay it.

Faulkner said that he did not want to face the banker, so he borrowed from his clients' accounts with intentions of paying them back.

"Now I know that it was not borrowing, it was theft," Faulkner added.

He said that after he deposited client money into his personal account, he would totally forget about it.

During closing arguments, Lesly told the jury that probation was appropriate in this case.

"I don't believe that probation is easy," Lesly said. "The bottom line here is, 'What will be accomplished by sending him to the pen?'"

In the closing statement for the state, Saul said that Faulkner was a man without a conscience.

"He is a man with an education, a Christian, a man with a good job making $5,000 a month," Saul said. "You tell me why a man with all of those advantages should get probation?"

"This is a court of justice, not a court of mercy," Saul added. "You must set a punishment that fits the crime, not what is best for John Faulkner. This is a case where

Judge approves election proposal

A new proposed city voting system has been approved by U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson and has been passed on to the Justice Department for final endorsement, it was revealed today.

Judge Robinson approved a plan that separates the city into four voting districts and calls for the addition of two seats on the Hereford City Commission. The new plan is an out-of-court settlement between the city and three Hispanic residents who filed a law suit claiming discrimination.

The suit and the resulting settlement have caused the April city election to be postponed. Federal law requires cities to wait 60 days after a department decision to change election procedures.

Since 1954, commissioners had been elected by an at-large system. Candidates could live anywhere in the city and were elected by all city voters. Plaintiffs claimed the system discouraged poorly-financed Hispanics from challenging well-known Anglos and also diluted the influence of the city's substantial Hispanic voting population.

According to court documents, 42 percent or 6,635 of the city's 15,737 residents are Hispanic. Robinson said the at-large system tended to be discriminatory. She added, however, that no evidence was discovered that proved discrimination occurred.

Colby Fangman wins Junior Bee

Colby Fangman correctly spelled "renovate", then followed by spelling "rumored" to claim the championship of the Junior Spelling Bee here Thursday afternoon in the Deaf Smith County Library.

The Senior spelling bee starts today at 3 p.m. in the Heritage Room at the library, and today's champion advances to regional competition at West Texas State University April 26.

Finalists for the county bee today are Fangman, the junior winner, D'Ann Hill and Rebecca Solomon of Stanton Junior High, and Dulari Barikh and Angela Banner of La Plata Junior High.

Fangman, a sixth-grader at West Central, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donnie Fangman. He is 11 years old. He won the junior bee on the 39th round of spelling.

Marsha Barrientez, also from West Central, is a fifth grader and is 10 years old. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cruz Barrientez. Finishing third was Jill Reinauer, 10, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Reinauer and a student at St. Anthony's.

The county spelling bee is sponsored by The Hereford Brand, with publisher O.G. Nieman as county director. The winner of the junior bee won a $50 savings bond from Hereford State Bank, while second and third-place finishers were presented $25 savings bonds from security Federal Savings & Loan and Hi-Plains Savings & Loan.

Bera Boyd served as pronouncer for the event. Judges were Jane Coplen and Eloise McDougall. The same threesome will serve at today's bee.

Fourteen spellers, from a field of 21, were eliminated in the first 11 rounds Thursday. The students went six more rounds before losing one. That left six students—Fangman, Barrientez, Reinauer, Stephanie Majors, Javier Gutierrez and Gloria Herrera. Javier and Gloria were eliminated in round 20, and Stephanie lost out in round 23. Jill, the third-place winner, was eliminated in round 33.

The county champ, to be determined today, will have a chance to vie for valuable prizes at the Region Bee, sponsored by The Amarillo Globe-News and WTSU. The region winner also receives an all-expense paid trip for two to Washington, D.C., site of the National Bee.

Junior Spelling Bee Champ

scheduled this afternoon and Colby will vie with junior high students from Stanton and La Plata for the county championship. The winner goes to the Region Bee at WTSU on April 26.

European space probe blinded by dust from Halley's Comet

DARMSTADT, West Germany (AP) — The European spacecraft Giotto today beamed back the closest pictures ever taken of Halley's comet showing an egg-shaped iceberg surrounded by dust and gas, but the probe was blinded seconds before making its nearest pass.

"The signal was lost due to heavy impact of dust. But we consider the mission a complete success," said

European Space Agency director general Reimar Lust.

Giotto had been traveling at 50 times the speed of a bullet, or 155,000 miles per hour, when it hit a "wall of dust the size of grains of sand," said Peter Wenzel, head of the agency's solar and atmospheric division.

After a 25-minute blackout, the probe began transmitting data again, but there were no more pictures, he said.

The craft's monitors had told mission controllers dust particles were bombarding it 120 times a second two minutes before the signal was lost, Wenzel said.

Until then, the craft was transmitting pictures every four seconds and had beamed back more than 3,000 before blacking out. Giotto's signal (See COMET, Page 2)

Bordertown, South Australia is Hereford's "twin city during 1986 as both states celebrate their 150th birthdays. We received a letter this week from Lindsay Poulton, publisher of the Border Chronicle, the weekly paper published in Bordertown.

After Bert Taylor and his wife, Janet, visited Hereford the first week of December, we sent copies of The Brand and photos concerning the Australians' stay here. Taylor is chairman of the Tatiara District Council, which we assume is something like a county.

Here are excerpts from Poulton's letter:

"Your letter, newspapers and photographs arrived this week, apparently having spent 3½ months in the care of U.S. and Australian postal services.

"Janet and Bert Taylor have been back in the Tatiara for a couple of months, and duly presented the Texan flag to Tatiara District Council. It now flies daily alongside a South Australian Jubilee 150 flag in front of the Council chambers in Bordertown's main street, Woolshed Street.

"I am enclosing a copy of the Border Chronicle covering the flag-raising ceremony and Councillor Taylor's report of his visit to Texas. The Border Chronicle is a family-owned newspaper, published weekly, covering the news of the Tatiara (main towns Bordertown and Keith) and the Coonalpyn Downs. We make no attempt to cover state and national news, except where it affects our district specifically.

Jubilee celebrations began here on new year's eve, and events are coming up all the time. The next major event at Bordertown is a visit by the Trade Train, a travelling showcase of South Australian commerce and industry on March 19-20. Local businesses and community groups are planning displays, promotions, art and craft exhibitions, and we hope people will be wearing period costumes.

"I'm sure a group from Hereford would be warmly welcomed by Tatiara people. They would be advised to come in September-October when our district is at its very best, and they could perhaps visit our agricultural shows and see the gold escort re-enactment. The gold escort was an important event for S.A. and particularly for Bordertown as it led to the town's foundation."

Mother indicted in seat belt case

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — In what may be the first such case since a mandatory seatbelt law became effective Sept. 1, a Tarrant County grand jury has indicted the mother of a young boy who was killed after a January traffic accident.

Maria J. Galindo, 20, of Fort Worth was charged with criminally negligent homicide, a misdemeanor, officials said.

Police said Mrs. Galindo's son, 4-year-old Randy Galindo Jr., was not wearing a seat belt in the pickup truck, as required by state law.

The indictment accused Mrs. Galindo of not securing her son with a seat belt. If convicted, she faces a maximum sentence of a year in jail and a $2,000 fine.

The law requires that children younger than 5 be restrained by a seat belt or a safety seat. Drivers assume responsibility for the children.

The boy died Jan. 9, three days after his mother lost control of the truck on a highway, police said. The boy was thrown through the passenger side window, which broke before he was thrown, police said.

Police said they will continue to refer to grand juries cases against parents of children who die in traffic accidents while not buckled up.

North Texas State backing teachers

DENTON, Texas (AP) — North Texas State University is offering a guarantee on its teachers: If school districts are not satisfied with its education school graduates, the districts can send the teachers back.

NTSU officials said Thursday that the school will re-train any incompetent teachers it graduates through a quality assurance program scheduled to start in May.

If the teacher needs remedial training, NTSU will review the teacher, figure out where his deficiencies lie and offer counseling or professional help to the teacher and his principal, said NTSU spokeswoman Charlotte Guest.

The program offers more courses at NTSU and individual help.

"Throughout our 96-year history we always have had a commitment to quality teacher preparation," said NTSU Chancellor Alfred Hurley. "If we did not have the utmost confidence in our teacher education program, which has the highest admission standards in the state, we could not offer this kind of assurance to school districts."

All NTSU education graduates receiving Texas teacher certification — about 400 a year — will be covered by the program, Guest said.

Home improvement loans planned

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas military veterans looking for money to make substantial repairs and improvements to older homes will find it after May 1 at the Texas Veterans Land Board.

Land Commissioner Garry Mauro announced Thursday the land board will loan eligible veterans up to $17,500 at 11.5 percent interest, with no down payments.

"This will create a bunch of new jobs and it won't cost Texas taxpayers a single penny," Mauro told a news conference.

Mauro said his office had received thousands of requests for help from veterans "who have been frozen out of limited conventional home improvement money by high interest rates" of 13 to 14 percent.

Loans of up to $20,000 will be available for two- to four-family residences, including duplexes, townhouses and condominium units.

The minimum loan will be $5,000, and all loans will be 100 percent insured by the Federal Housing Administration.

"The built-in protection of using only FHA-approved lenders will help protect the interests of Texas veterans by ensuring that all work is done to FHA Title I standards," Mauro said.

At present, veterans who have outstanding veterans land purchase or home purchase loans will not be eligible.

National

Catholic Universities blast rules

NEW YORK (AP) — Heads of U.S. Catholic colleges and universities are protesting a Vatican proposal to ensure the schools' "Catholic character" as being contrary to academic freedom and other American values.

Imposition of the proposals would force some of the nation's 235 Catholic institutions of higher education to close and "jeopardize continuance of the rest," according to a joint statement to the Vatican obtained by The Associated Press.

Such measures also could drive theologians from Catholic institutions and cost the schools federal and state student aid and even accreditation needed to grant recognized academic credits or degrees, the educators warned.

At issue is the "external ecclesiastical control" proposed last year by the Vatican's Congregation for Catholic Education in an effort to ensure the schools' "Catholic character."

The "norms" proposed would require teachers to have "doctrinal integrity and uprightness of life" or be dismissed. Local bishops would be given power over hiring or firing teachers of theology and related disciplines.

The Vatican office, headed by an American, Cardinal William Baum, had requested reactions from bishops and educators around the world.

Texas due $382 million by April 15

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an agreement that could mean payment of $382 million to Texas within a month, the Reagan administration and members of Congress have reached a compromise on how to split long-disputed offshore oil revenues.

Overall, the agreement which would free up to $1.4 billion for seven coastal states.

The accord also would allow about $4.6 billion in revenues accumulated since 1978 to apply against this year's budget deficit. More than $7 billion has accumulated in escrow accounts since Congress required a "fair and equitable" distribution of revenue from federal tracts that border state waters.

Rep. Henson Moore, R-La., met Thursday morning with Republican Senate leaders, Budget Director William Miller and Interior Secretary Donald Hodel, then in the afternoon with Reagan, Miller and Hodel to nail down the compromise, said his aide Cal Odom.

The administration had offered 27 percent of up-front bonuses and annual rentals, but balked at yielding a fixed percentage of production royalties, which account for the lion's share of the economic benefit from a tract because they can run for decades.

States insisted on a flat 27 percent of all royalties, and wrote that figure into the budget reconciliation bill. The measure calls for about $19 billion in spending cuts in the current fiscal year.

The compromise reached Thursday did not necessarily mean passage of the reconciliation bill, as unrelated disputes remained to be settled.

was lost when it was 415 miles from Halley's nucleus, at 1:10 a.m. (7:10 EST), said Roger Bonnet, the space agency's director of scientific programs.

Despite a loss of data, scientists believe that two seconds later Giotto passed the comet at a distance of 335 miles.

The craft's last photographs were flashed on West German television and showed an egg-shaped comet with a bright white center, surrounded by green, violet and red circles representing different layers of dust and ions.

As the signal died, the photos suddenly flickered, then blacked out, but Bonnet said it did not affect 10 experiments the craft was performing on the dust layers surrounding the comet's nucleus.

"All the experiments performed beautifully. We have achieved a fantastic series of results," he said.

Horst Keller, the West German professor who participated in designing the craft's multi-color camera, said Giotto was less than 620 miles away from the nucleus when the last photograph was received.

David Dale, the project manager, said the craft started rotating dramatically in the last two minutes before the signal was lost.

One hostage believed dead

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — A mediator indicated that two days of secret talks in Beirut led him to believe a Frenchman held captive there has died, and a British television network said today it received film of three other hostages.

Visnews, the British television network, said that a statement accompanying the black-and-white video tape of the three hostages warned France that time was running out to accept the captors' demands.

Razah Raad, a Lebanese-born French heart specialist, arrived in Damascus on Thursday after negotiating for the release of the Frenchmen in secret meetings with their Shiite Moslem abductors.

Raad, 43, said he will leave for France today to brief the government on the outcome of his mission.

In an interview published today in Beirut's independent an-Nahar newspaper Raad was quoted as saying he would return to Beirut after France's National Assembly elections Sunday in which he is a candidate.

"A deal on releasing Marcel Carton, Marcel Fontaine and Jean-Paul Kauffmann will be wrapped up after the French elections. I shall return to Beirut after Sunday, March 16, to resume my mission," Raad was quoted as saying.

"I am optimistic. We have made long strides on the course of freeing the hostages," Raad was quoted as saying.

Islamic Jihad, or Islamic Holy War, a Shiite group believed to have ties to Iran, said last week that it killed hostage 37-year-old French researcher Michel Seurat, and on Monday it released photographs that it said proved its claim.

London-based Visnews Ltd. said its Beirut bureau had received a tape purportedly showing the other three hostages — diplomats Fontaine and Carton, and journalist Kauffmann.

The hostages spoke in French, sending messages to their families and appealing to the French government to secure their release, said Visnews. It said it was distributing the film and an accompanying statement to its subscribers.

Islamic Jihad says it is not holding a four-man French television crew that disappeared in a Shiite section of Beirut last Saturday.

Raad, the only man with whom the pro-Iranian kidnappers say they will negotiate, began his latest independent mission Sunday. He has been to Lebanon several times before, trying to win the release of the four.

Islamic Jihad claims to have kidnapped six Americans missing in Lebanon. They are diplomat William Buckley; the Rev. Lawrence Jenco, a Roman Catholic priest; Terry Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press; Peter Kilburn, librarian at the American University of Beirut; David Jacobsen, director of the university hospital; and Thomas Sutherland, dean of agriculture at the university.

Last October, Islamic Jihad said it killed Buckley and released photographs that it claimed showed his body. However, no body was ever found.

U.S. advisors would train contras

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional approval of military aid for Nicaraguan rebels would likely lead to weapons training for the guerrillas by U.S. military advisers, Pentagon sources say.

The advisers would be prohibited from operating alongside the guerrillas during military forays inside Nicaragua, the sources stressed.

Approval of President Reagan's aid package in congressional votes as early as next week could also lead to the sharing of U.S.-gathered intelligence information with the Contra rebels, they added.

The statements by the sources, who agreed to discuss the matter Thursday only if not identified, provided a clear indication the administration envisions more than just the transfer of guns and ammunition to the Contras.

The sources discussed the use of military advisers Thursday in the context of weapons training and not schooling in tactics. Although the officials declined to discuss what type of weapons might be provided that would require training, one source hinted that ground-to-air missiles for use against Soviet-made helicopters was an example.

President Reagan has been strenuously lobbying Congress to approve an aid package worth $100 million, of which $70 million could entail military assistance. But administration officials have repeatedly refused to discuss exactly what type of aid or weaponry is being considered.

The Defense Department and Central Intelligence Agency are banned from providing any intelligence information, military training or lethal equipment to the Contra guerrillas under a law that authorized $27 million in humanitarian assistance last year.

One Defense Department source said Thursday it was "almost a foregone conclusion that if the president gets what he wants from Congress, there will be some training by our advisers."

A second high-ranking official at the Pentagon refused to be so categorical, but agreed the Defense Department was prepared to offer such training.

"The fact is, we have no request for training assistance," this source said. "But if the president were authorized the unrestricted funding, we can see a situation where the Contras would receive weaponry and might need a limited amount of training on how to use the equipment."

The sources stressed, however, that U.S. troops or military advisers would not be allowed to operate alongside the Contra guerrillas inside Nicaragua, as U.S. advisers did with South Vietnamese units during the initial stages of the Vietnam War.

"It is absolutely ridiculous to think we have anything in mind other than a very limited number of (U.S.) people at some location outside Nicaragua that is safe at which we can show them how to use the equipment," added one.

"But as for a request for training, conceptually, that is something that we would want to do."

Young singer not to sing certain songs

TEXAS CITY, Texas (AP) — Songs of broken dreams and part-time lovers mean little to 11-year-old Debra Folwer, but her parents say they caught the attention of one preacher, who told them their daughter could not attend his private school if she continued to sing such lyrics.

"You say you love me. I know it isn't true. You only want me to share a bed with you," goes one of her songs.

Her parents said that Rev. Tom Campbell told them the girl could not sing the songs and attend Trinity Baptist Christian School in Texas City.

"He told us she could stay if she sang gospel music only," said Jo Ann Fowler, the girl's mother. "He said he preaches against some of the words used in country songs, and he couldn't accept her singing them in public."

Mrs. Fowler concedes that words in "Traveling Lover," a song the girl has been working on in recording sessions, are a little strong for an 11-year-old. But she added that "it's only a song, and this is the 1980s."

Miss Fowler began attending classes at Trinity Baptist last month. She has been working in recording sessions on two songs since last October.

Canada is the world's second largest country in total land size.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Terry mats keep water spots neat

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — Cut an old or new terry tub mat into pieces shaped to fit your soap dishes or as mats under your houseplants. Keeps soap in place and pots from sliding. I also place some pieces under my cutting boards and they stay in place when I am using them. — MRS. G.

DEAR MRS. G. — Not only do they keep the soap and plants in place, but they also absorb water. This helps keep the soap from melting in its dish and water rings from around your potted plants.

Your helpful Pointer earns you the Pointer of the Week award, a copy of my book "Polly's Pointers: 1081 Helpful Hints for Making Everything Last Longer." Others who would like this book can order it for $6.50. Make check payable to POLLY'S POINTERS and send to POLLY'S POINTERS, Box 1216, Dept. 55, Cincinnati, OH 45201. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I find that pantyhose last longer if washed after each wearing in cold water, with no soap. Add a little vinegar to the water to remove body oils. — SANDRA

Just movies, eats

Dollar movies offer no frills

MESQUITE, Texas (AP) — A dollar may not go as far as it used to, but it'll still get you into the movies — if you'll settle for a dollar's worth of luxury.

A thriving example of today's no-frills movie houses is Big Town 9 in Mesquite, which compensates for nine small screens, Spartan trappings and older films with one irresistible attraction: All seats go for $1. It is the largest dollar-movie operation in the Dallas-Fort Worth area with seating for more than 1,500.

Ronnie James, a 41-year-old Tyler native and assistant manager of the operation owned by Texas Cinema Corp., says the cost of tickets for first-run movies is prohibitive for many customers, especially those who bring the whole family.

The lobby design follows the family theme. No elaborate chandeliers here. Instead, Bugs Bunny, the Pink Panther and several multicolored kites dangle from the ceiling. A few wooden benches are scattered about the utilitarian lobby. In a nearby room, pinball and video machines ping and whir under flashing lights and a parachute canopy.

In the center of the lobby is the key to profits at the dollar movies: the concession stand. "Our goal is to average $1 in concession sales for each customer," James says.

Here a small bag of popcorn costs as much as a ticket. A small drink is 75 cents. A popular special is the $2.50 barrel of popcorn. Eat one and get a free refill. "We sell a lot of popcorn," says James. "We use about 10 50-pound bags of popcorn (kernels) a week."

Families may come here together, but generally they split up after the concession stand. Parents go to one movie; children, another. On a recent Thursday night the fare included one G-rated, four R-rated, four PG movies.

The crowd is diverse, racially mixed, ranging from infants to senior citizens. There are fewer couples, more families than at the standard first-run theater. If there's a common denominator, it's the attire. Not a necktie or three-piece suit in sight. The jeans of the customers are older than the movies on the screens. Sweaters are decorated with holes, not alligators.

The individual theaters are small and plain. The largest (showing "Jagged Edge") seats 228; the smallest ("Teen Wolf"), 125. In the rear of theater No. 4 lies a metal ladder, used for changing letters on the marquee. Beside the ladder is a commodious trash barrel, complete with plastic liner.

Maintaining low overhead forces James to be a jack of all trades. On a typical day, he takes tickets, threads film into projectors, sweeps the floor, makes emergency repairs to the games — and fields complaints about sticky floors.

Most of the employees are students at Skyline High School. John Foreman threads film into projectors; Tammy Johnston changes the marquee; and Terri Franklin works the concession stand, while her twin, Sherri, sells tickets.

Then there's Leo Thomas, 18, selling concessions with a broad grin and rapid patter. "I've been here from the first," proclaims Thomas. "I was here for the bad times. I've been through blackouts..."

Blackouts? The previous night a power failure sent everyone home early, refunds or replacement tickets in hand.

Life in the dollar movies. Movie times are staggered so one person can thread all projectors. With so little help, what happens if two films break simultaneously? "I've had four break at one time," says James ruefully. "You've just got to keep your cool and fix 'em one at a time."

The audience may get service, but James says most patrons are dollar-movie veterans who realize they're watching film "that's been through all those other machines."

After all, plush theaters may be a thing of the past, but the romance of the movies lingers. Even in dollar houses.

Ann Landers

Hugging is good

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My heart went out to that 19-year-old college sophomore who said he wasn't on the make (I believe him) and that all he wants is a nice big hug when the going gets rough and he feels a little down. I clipped this from a newsletter last year and can't remember which one. Please print it. It might lift the kid's spirits and who knows, it may even encourage others to give more hugs.

HUGGING--THE PERFECT CURE FOR WHATEVER AILS YOU
 No movable parts
 No batteries to wear out
 No periodic check-ups
 Low energy consumption
 High energy yield
 Inflation proof
 No monthly payments
 No insurance requirements
 Theft proof
 Non-taxable
 Non-polluting
 And, of course, fully returnable.

HUGGING IS HEALTHY
 It relieves tension
 Combats depression
 Reduces stress
 Improves blood circulation
 It's invigorating
 It's rejuvenating
 It elevates self-esteem
 It generates good will
 It has no unpleasant side effects
 It is nothing less than a miracle drug!—FLORIDA TEDDY BEAR

DEAR TEDDY: Here it is—with a hug from me!

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Sometimes I think there are more crazy people in the world than sane ones. For example: I read where more than 100,000 nearsighted people in this country have had their eyeballs slit because they don't like to be bothered wearing eyeglasses. The operation was developed in the late '70s.

Now they are finding that nearly 35 percent of the people who have undergone this surgery to correct nearsightedness are having trouble with their vision about a year later. It seems the cornea heals very slowly and there is no way to tell in advance which patients are going to have a problem. What do you think about this surgical procedure, Ann?—DUMBFUNDED IN DAYTON

DEAR DAYTON: My consultants tell me the operation (radial keratotomy) is a simple one and relatively safe "if nothing goes wrong." Since something "goes wrong" about 30 percent of the time (those are terrible odds!), no way would I recommend it.

Are you, or is someone you care about messing around with drugs - or considering it? Are all drugs bad? What about pot—in moderation? Ann Landers' all-new booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope," separates the facts from the fiction. For each booklet ordered, send $2.00, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Rouse gives program to Lone Star members

Wilma Goettsch introduced Gerda Rouse who gave the program on needlepoint when members of Lone Star Study Club met Tuesday afternoon in the home of Ruth Womble. Lucile Naylor served as co-hostess.

The speaker told how she came to America and how she became interested in the art of needlepoint. She also showed pictures of where she had lived and presented facts about her native country. She displayed a picture of a German castle that Walt Disney used as a model for his castle in Disneyland.

Rouse's needlepoint patterns came from Germany and all are framed by a firm in Amarillo. On the back of each, she recorded the number of hours it took to complete, some as many as 300 hours.

Verna Sowell presided over the business meeting. Bertha Dettmann read the resignation of active membership from Evadne Cox. Refreshments were served to Juanita Boynton, Margaret Ann Durham, Hilda Haven, Bibby Morgan, Ruby Stevenson, Grace Tinnin, Zoe Williams, Jessie May Dodson, Dettmann, Goettsch and special guest, Gerda Rouse.

AESTHETIC MOVEMENT

NEW YORK (AP) — The first comprehensive exhibition ever organized on the subject of the Aesthetic Movement in the United States will be shown at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, Oct. 23, 1986-Jan. 11, 1987.

The exhibition, "In Pursuit of Beauty: Americans and the Aesthetic Movement," will contain some 250 works in a great variety of media from furniture, stained glass, ceramics, metalwork, textiles, wallpaper, and book design and illustration, to painting and sculpture.

The Aesthetic Movement was the first broadly popular decorative arts movement in the United States. In the decade from the mid 1870s to the mid-1880s, it had a pervasive influence on American culture, and it continued to affect aesthetic attitudes well into the 20th century.

THREE PRINTMAKERS

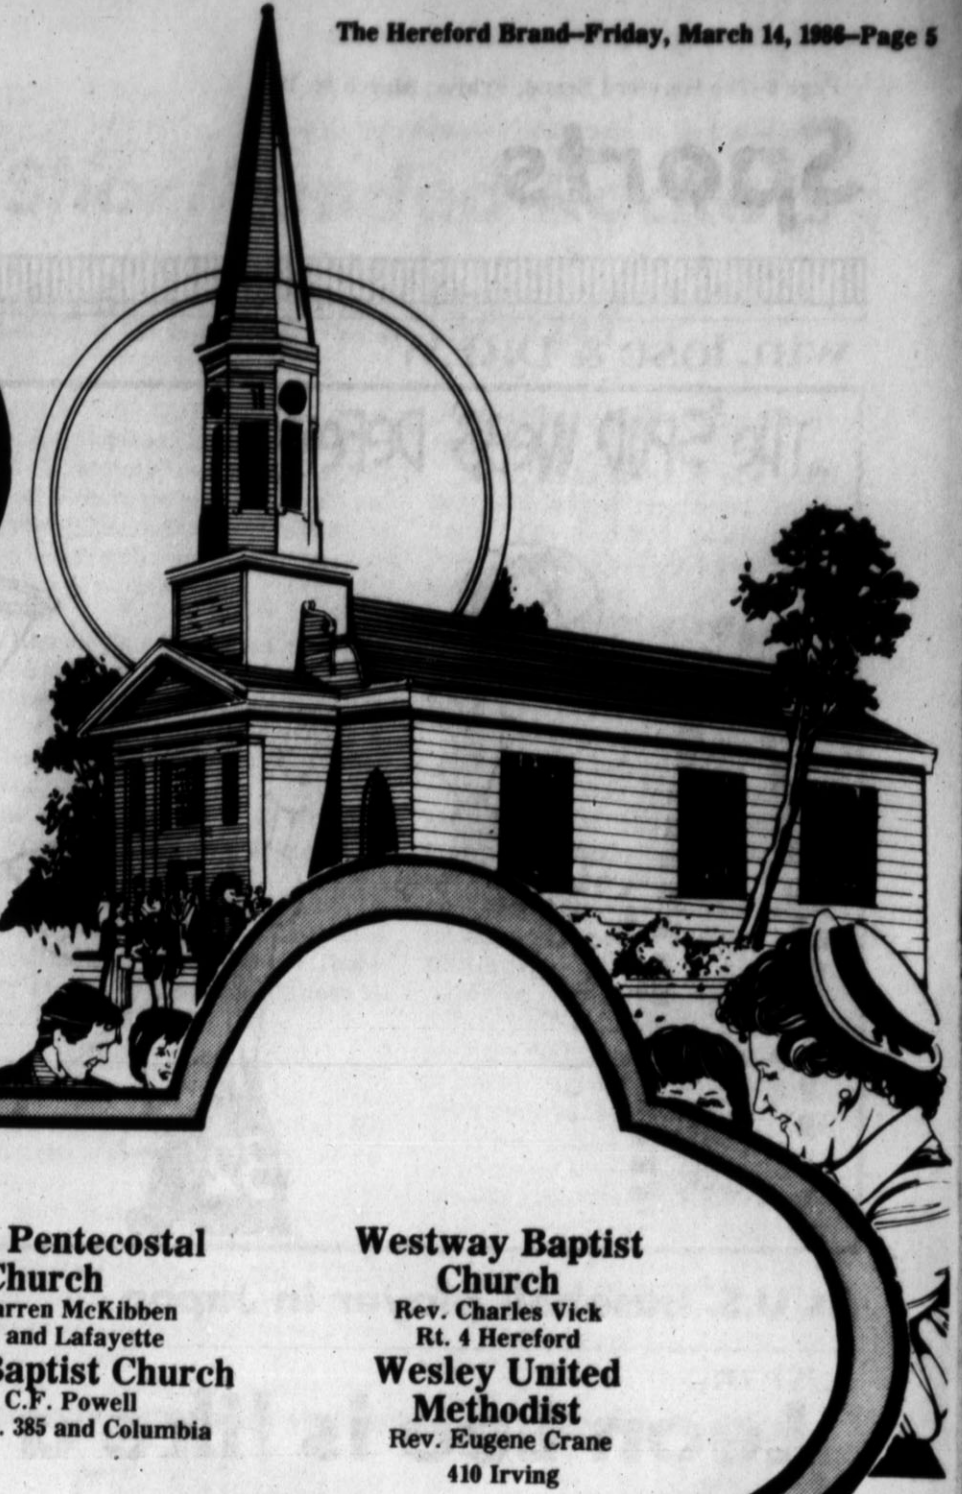

NEW YORK (AP) — "Three Printmakers: Selected Prints by Jennifer Bartlett, Susan Rothberg, and Terry Winters" is on view at the Whitney Museum of American Art through April 27.

The exhibition includes about 10 works by each of the artists and presents an overview of a variety of graphic techniques and approaches.

As U.S. baseball player in Japan

Leon Lee is like a diplomat

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

YUMA, Ariz. (AP)—He does not carry an attache case with him, but Leon Lee still is a diplomat, every bit as much as George Schultz, Henry Kissinger or any of the other folks who have worked at the State Department in Washington.

Lee doesn't frequent Foggybottom, though. He is instead on what has developed into a permanent overseas assignment—an American playing baseball in Japan.

If you don't think that's diplomatic work, you've never seen a strike zone expand and constrict, depending on whether the batter is a native Japanese or a gaijin—an imported foreigner whose work is endured rather than celebrated.

"American players are there strictly as helpers," Lee said. "The teams are company-oriented. They function as an advertising medium for the company that the team belongs to. Their employees have a job, maybe on the assembly line, maybe in center field for the company team. The guy on the assembly line works 9-to-5. The guy on the baseball team puts in the same kind of hours."

There are long, hard practices and endless meetings. Lee's team, the Yakult Swallows, has just finished spring training at the Yuma, Ariz. complex of the San Diego Padres.

"(Padres catcher) Terry Kennedy was watching our workouts and he couldn't believe it," Lee said.

Japan's American baseball imports—players like Warren Cromartie, Dick Davis, Bombo Rivera and Lee—function strictly as assistants.

"We're there to help them win, sort of like mercenaries," Lee said. "But

NEW YORK (AP)—Rookie center Patrick Ewing will undergo minor knee surgery today and be lost for the final month of the NBA season, the New York Knicks announced.

Ewing, an All-America at Georgetown, averaged 20 points and nine rebounds in the 50 games he played after coming to the Knicks as the No. 1 pick in the NBA draft.

Ewing joins Knick stars Bernard King, last year's leading scorer in the NBA who has missed the entire season, Bill Cartwright, who has missed most of the past two seasons, and Pat Cummings on the injured list.

GENERAL

NEW YORK (AP)—Former President Nixon will receive the National Fitness Foundation's Public Service Award for his contributions to health and fitness in this country, the organization announced.

Nixon was the first chairman of the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports from 1956-58, when he was vice president in the Eisenhower Administration.

Previous recipients of the national award include former President Gerald Ford, Bob Hope and Nancy Reagan.

BASEBALL

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP)—Millions of fathers have played catch with their sons, but the Kansas City Royals' Hal McRae has become the first to play in a major league game with his.

The 39-year-old designated hitter batted third for the American League team in a 7-5 exhibition victory Thursday over the Philadelphia Phillies. Batting second was 18-year-old shortstop Brian McRae.

"I was less nervous than I thought I'd be," said Brian, who went 1-for-3 with a double and a run scored. "My knees were shaking a little bit, but I wasn't real tense or anything."

The elder McRae, who went 0-for-2 with two runs scored, said his son's presence in the lineup didn't make him feel old. "What makes me feel old is when I can't turn on a fastball and you get your pitch."

EXCLUSIVE CLUB

HONG KONG (AP)—The Hong Kong racing fraternity is a tough one to break into, especially for an owner.

Steve Schaeffer, an American race track conditioner, visited the track here on a combined vacation and business trip.

"It is really difficult to own horses at the Hong Kong track," he said. "A potential owner must be a member of the Hong Kong Jockey Club for three years before he can even be considered. Then a lottery of prospective owners is held and the lucky ones get a chance to race some horses."

Bird leads Celtics over Spurs, 135-119

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Larry Bird scored 33 points, missing just two shots, and the Celtics shot 80 percent from the field in the first half.

But that was not quite good enough for Boston Coach K.C. Jones.

"We had 80 percent shooting in the first half, but we also had 16 turnovers. That's not a good combination, and it showed because we only had a 10-point lead," Jones said Thursday night after the Celtics stormed to a 135-119 NBA victory over the San Antonio Spurs.

"Larry was having a great shooting night and probably would have had a lot of points. But he and the other starters needed rest and they got it," said Jones, who rested his starters for the last quarter and a half.

Bird — whose only misses were a free throw and a three-point attempt, long after the game had been decided — made four three-point shots, eight field goals and five free throws.

"I know we scored a lot of points in the first half, but we really didn't play much defense," Bird said. "I started out good tonight by getting some easy baskets and that helped."

The rest of the Celtics didn't miss much in the first half either as they raced to an 80-69 lead, hitting 32 of 40 attempts before the intermission.

San Antonio, which has lost 10 of its last 11 games, was led by Mike Mitchell's 30 points. The 6-foot-7 forward scored 24 first-half points, single-handedly keeping the Spurs within striking distance.

But Mitchell was held scoreless in the third quarter and tallied six last-period points after his team's fate already had been sealed. The Spurs played without three injured starters.

"Bird can do everything on the floor. He has range past the three-point line and that makes it tough to guard him. They are definitely the best team we've played all year," Mitchell said.

The Celtics, who received 24 points from forward Kevin McHale, are now 52-13. San Antonio is 31-36.

"Bird is just awesome," Spurs Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons said. "As our players say, 'He's some kind of bad dude.'"

A&M, SMU lose in NIT; Texas wins

Associated Press

Texas A&M, which felt it deserved an NCAA bid after winning the regular-season Southwest Conference basketball championship, lost its first-round game in the National Invitation Tournament Thursday night.

The Aggies went on the road and were beaten 79-70 by Wyoming, which got 23 points apiece from Dennis Dembo and Les Bolden.

The Cowboys ran off a 10-0 spurt midway in the second half. The run, which included a layup and a 15-foot shot by Dembo, gave Wyoming a 63-53 lead with 5:16 remaining. Wyoming then sank 11 free throws in the closing minutes to seal the victory.

Don Marbury, who led the Southwest Conference in scoring, paced Texas A&M with 22 points.

Three other teams from the state of Texas also were in action and the University of Texas was the only winner, downing New Mexico 69-66. However, Brigham Young turned back Southern Methodist 67-63 and George Mason edged Lamar 65-63.

In other first-round NIT action, it was Florida 81, Southern Mississippi 71; Georgia 95, Tennessee-Chattanooga 81; Clemson 99, Middle Tennessee State 81; Marquette 79, Drake 59; Louisiana Tech 67, Northern Arizona 61; Cal-Irvine 80, UCLA 74; and Loyola-Marymount 80, California 75.

Texas 69, New Mexico 66
Raynard Davis grabbed a crucial offensive rebound with 54 seconds left and then hit a pair of free throws that secured the victory for Texas, which was making its first NIT appearance since it won the tournament in 1980.

Senior center John Brownlee, the Southwest Conference Player of the Year, led the Longhorns with 17 points while Davis and Patrick Fairs added 16 each. New Mexico's Johnny Brown ended his career with a 30-point effort.

BYU 67, SMU 63
Tom Gneiting scored 20 points, including a pair of critical free throws with 12 seconds left to break a 63-63 tie. SMU, led by Kevin Lewis' 27 points, had a chance at overtime when Scott Johnson missed a shot with five seconds left and Lewis rebounded. But Lewis' turnaround jumper missed and the rebound was pulled down by BYU's Jeff Chatman, who was fouled and sank two free throws.

George Mason 65, Lamar 63
George Mason's Ricky Wilson hit a desperation 50-foot shot with two seconds left. Lamar led 36-29 at intermission and by as many as nine points in the second half but Wilson scored 15 second-half points to lead the Patriots' comeback, including a pair of free throws to tie the score with 41 seconds left.

Kenny Sanders led George Mason with 23 points and 13 assists. Lamar was led by Anthony Todd's 23 points. The Cardinals' leading scorer, James Nance, who averaged 13 points a game during the season, was passed to the basket DALLAS (AP)—In the talk sessions that preceded the NBA All-Star Game on Feb. 9, somebody brought up the unusual shot made in the 1957 game.

Bill Sharman of the Eastern team, a Boston Celtic Star, tried a long pass, estimated at 70 feet, to another Celtic, Bob Cousy. The ball went in the basket for two points.

Afterwards, Cousy glared at Sharman in mock anger and inquired: "Don't you know how to pass the ball?"

Shorthanded Rockets defeat Portland

HOUSTON (AP) — The shorthanded Houston Rockets managed a 126-118 victory over the Portland Trail Blazers despite having all-star center Akeem Olatunji sitting on the bench with injuries and the unexpected loss of starting guard John Lucas.

Thursday's win raises the 41-25 Rockets to a two-game lead in the Midwest Division over Denver.

Lucas, an 11-year-veteran, missed a team practice on Wednesday citing family problems as the reason, but was subsequently tested for drug usage Thursday, Rockets' publicist Jim Foley said.

Lucas was briefly waived by Houston last year for drug-related problems. The results of the Thursday's tests were expected by noon today, Foley said.

With two starters out, Houston Coach Bill Fitch relied on 7-foot center Ralph Sampson, who led the Rockets with 32 points and 17 rebounds.

"Stick was really something. We needed a lift and Ralph really came to the floor to play tonight," Fitch said. "When we needed someone to take control at the end of the game he came through."

Sampson was shifted to power forward last season when Olatunji arrived.

"I'm getting to be at my best," Sampson said of his recent transition. "I'm learning more about myself and the position. I would have learned it anyway but with Akeem being out it speeded up the process."

Sampson usually connects on dunk shots, but his hook shot was his best weapon against Portland.

"It was a reincarnation of (Kareem-Abdul) Jabbar's sky hook," opposing center Mychal Thompson said. "His effectiveness is around the basket. His quickness there is better than Akeem."

Fitch said he was confident about Lucas' return despite previous bouts with drugs.

"We're convinced talking now to John that's there's no drug problem," Fitch said. "We practice at noon (today) and I expect everyone to be there," he said.

The major league baseball record for three-base hits in one season was set in 1912 by Owen Wilson of Pittsburgh who hit 36.

Arnie Risen of the Boston Celtics fouled out five times in a seven-game NBA championship series against St. Louis in 1957.

DR. GOTT See specialist about blockage

DEAR DR. GOTT - When I was younger I had bouts of trichomoniasis, candidiasis, gonorrhea, genital warts and herpes. I had them all taken care of and never had any more problems. My doctor now says that my left Fallopian tube is blocked due to salpingitis. Can an operation open my tube? Is this something I should have taken care of or should I leave it alone? I'd like to get pregnant at some point.

DEAR READER - Most of the gynecological infections you mention are venereal diseases, so I suspect that one or both of your Fallopian tubes was infected in the past and has become scarred. Gonorrhea is notorious for doing this.

Microsurgery may open your blocked tube and permit fertilization of an egg from the left ovary. On the other hand, if the right tube is open, you can certainly get pregnant from that side. Because you have had repeated infections of your reproductive tract, I think you need a specialist's opinion as to whether you should ignore the situation or seek further treatment. Ask your gynecologist to discuss your problem in depth.

DEAR DR. GOTT - For almost a year I've had pain in my left leg, from the hip to the knee. Could this be caused by the vitamin B6 I take daily?

DEAR READER - Vitamin B6 (pyridoxine) has not been reported to cause leg pain. However, large doses can cause unsteady gait, liver damage and numbness of the feet and hands. I advise you to check with your doctor to determine if you have inflammation of the muscles, bones or joints of your leg.

DEAR DR. GOTT - My doctor told me I have trichomoniasis. I have taken metronidazole. With the medical care that I have had, can I quickly get back to a normal lifestyle without the worry of vaginitis?

DEAR READER - The treatment you have taken is appropriate for the vaginal infection known as trichomoniasis. Remember that the condition can be recaptured and is commonly passed back and forth between sexual partners. Therefore, both you and your partner will need simultaneous therapy.

DEAR DR. GOTT - Every time I stand up for a while, a feeling of numbness starts at the bottom of my spine and goes down both my legs to my feet. I have to sit down for a minute or two to get rid of the numbness. I also get pain. I have told my doctor about it; he says it is a pinched nerve and that I have arthritis on my spine. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR READER - A pinched nerve can certainly cause the symptoms you describe. Ask your doctor for a neurosurgical opinion. If an arthritic spur is the cause of your problem, surgical decompression is an alternative that may be appropriate for you.

DEAR DR. GOTT - A relative has been told by her doctor that she has an embolism in her stomach. He said when it bursts it will kill her. What can I expect when this happens? Will there be time to get to the hospital? Will there be pain?

DEAR READER - I suspect that you misunderstood the doctor. Your relative probably has an aneurysm near the stomach.

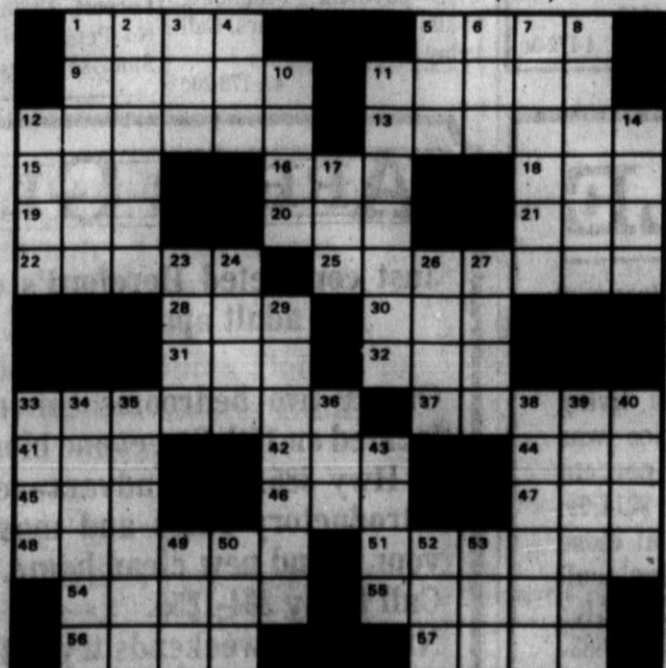

The aorta is the major artery supplying blood to the body. It loops up from the heart into the chest and then passes through the diaphragm muscles, past the stomach and into the abdomen. As people age, portions of the aorta can become weakened and balloon out like a thin spot on an inner tube. This dilation is called an aneurysm. It can leak blood, causing pain, or it can suddenly burst. Obviously, a rupture is a disaster; it results in sudden pain, internal bleeding and death within seconds.

Modern surgical techniques allow specialists to remove diseased portions of aorta and implant plastic substitutes. The operation is common and lifesaving, because once the untreated aneurysm gives way, there is little time to correct the problem.

Some 15 million gallons of pure spring water-enough to float the ocean liner Queen Elizabeth II-flows naturally each year from a spring near Hot Springs, Ark. The spring, estimated by geologists to be about 3,500 years old, has the same flow today that it did when it was discovered by Spanish explorer Hernando DeSoto, who came to what is now the state of Arkansas, seeking gold. The natural phenomenon is known at the Mountain Valley spring.

The Newspaper BIBLE
GO AHEAD, INDULGE IN YOUR SIN, BUT --

Go ahead and sacrifice to idols at Bethel and Gilgal. Keep disobeying--your sins are mounting up. Sacrifice each morning and bring your tithes twice a week! Go through all your proper forms and give extra offerings. How you pride yourselves and crow about it everywhere!
"I sent you hunger," says the Lord, "but it did not good; you still would not return to me. I ruined your crops by holding back the rain three months before the harvest. I sent rain on one city, but not another. While rain fell on one field, another was dry and withered. People from two or three cities would make their weary journey for a drink of water to a city that had rain, but there wasn't enough. Yet you wouldn't return to me," says the Lord.
"Therefore I will bring upon you these further evils I have spoken of. Prepare to meet your God in judgment, Israel. For you are dealing with the one who formed the mountains and made the winds, and knows your every thought; he turns the morning to darkness and crushes down the mountains underneath his feet: Jehovah, the Lord, the God of Hosts, is his name." (Amos 4:4-8, 12:13)
Be good, flee evil--and live! Then the Lord God of Hosts will truly be your Helper, as you have claimed he is. Hate evil and love the good; remodel your courts into true halls of justice. Perhaps even yet the Lord God of Hosts will have mercy on his people who remain. (Amos 5:14-15)

'Young' columnist has no plans to retire

PETTUS, Texas (AP) — Margaret Moore was 9 years old when she began writing about people and events in this South Texas community.

Ninety-one years later, she has no plans to quit.

"I never think of retiring," said the 100-year-old columnist for the Beeville Bee-Picayune. "I don't know any different kind of job. I don't know what people would do if they retire."

Mrs. Moore began writing in 1895 for the then-Beeville Picayune.

The publisher wanted Mrs. Moore's father, Henry Dahl, to write about events in Pettus, a new community 10 miles north of Beeville.

But Dahl, a German immigrant, could not write English very well. So he drafted his daughter.

In the first few years, she wrote about new people coming to the bustling town. She wrote about townspeople having visitors. She wrote about new businesses. She wrote about newborns and deaths.

She would go with her father from home to home in a horse-and-buggy looking for stories. Sometimes the news came to her — people would visit their farmhouse, located a few miles from town.

"I just wrote about anything I wanted to, about people. That was the main thing," said Mrs. Moore, a frail white-haired woman with a spry humor.

"My daddy was a good storyteller. I don't mean he'd lie; he was just good at telling stories," she said. "He was educated in Germany and he talked and read English. He just couldn't write it."

Mrs. Moore said newspaper editors did most of the true writing in her early years. She said she enjoyed it and got better at it.

But at age 14, Mrs. Moore took a 23-year break from the newspaper business.

She went to college for four years, married Begley Moore and began teaching school and raising a family.

In 1923, she returned to Pettus and continued to write about church and school activities and visitors in town.

In 1928, the Picayune merged with the Beeville Bee and Mrs. Moore continued writing, even though some townspeople got mad at some of the things she wrote, including the marital problems of one couple.

Joyce Latcham, whose grandfather hired Mrs. Moore, said that the elderly woman has a great personality. "She's a woman who obviously likes people and likes to be with people. She likes to congratulate people," said Mrs. Latcham, whose family owns and operates the newspaper.

"There's still a place for a woman like her — with a variety of interests and a general interest in people," she said.

The newspaper is now published twice a week and Mrs. Moore's column, Pettus Potpourri, is published on Thursdays.

Mrs. Moore still writes about visitors, church and school events, and now, the declining population of Pettus, which today numbers about 400.

"People come and go. They move off ... get work somewhere else. I think I'm the only person who has lived here all this time," Mrs. Moore said.

Mrs. Moore's hearing is not too keen anymore and she gets around with the help of a walker.

One of her four children, Inez Turner, helps her with the typing and wants her to quit. But Mrs. Moore says no, adamantly.

"I just say keep on, keep on going," she said. "I just live a day at a time. I don't feel like I'm a hundred years old."

Home-grown stars stage reunion

SNYDER, Texas (AP) — In old Hollywood, Frank Capra made movies about small town folks who achieved greatness by never forgetting their small town values.

Capra himself might have written the script for Saturday night in Snyder.

The script begins with five talented youngsters each attending the same 800-plus high school, each banking the same creative fires and each willing to be driven by this fire from the safe confines of their city of 13,000 to the Land of Babylon itself.

This Saturday, the five will return from Hollywood to face the toughest audience of all — the hometown folks they left behind.

Returning to Snyder will be Powers Boothe, lately of "The Emerald Forest" and HBO's "Phillip Marlowe;" Barry Tubb, who is soon to be featured in two major movie releases, "Top Gun" and "Valentino Returns;" Brad Maule, "Dr. Anthony Jones" on the daytime soap opera "General Hospital;" Dane Witherspoon, who plays "Tyler McCandless," on another soap, "Capitol;" and Ann Patterson, a former Miss Texas finalist and leader of the all-female jazz band "Maiden Voyage."

Their appearance will be the featured entertainment at an event normally reserved for politicians, motivational speakers and ex-Dallas Cowboys — a West Texas local chamber of commerce banquet.

"This will be a little different, but we like to do everything a little different in Snyder," said Jerry P. Worsham, the Snyder High School drama coach who first injected a bug called theater into three of the five.

First came Ms. Patterson, who held her own with Johnny Carson on a recent "Tonight" show appearance; then Boothe, who won an Emmy for his portrayal of the Rev. Jim Jones on the television movie "The Guyana Tragedy."

They graduated from Snyder High School in 1964 and 1966 respectively.

In 1967, Worsham took over as director of the Snyder High theater department, providing the first nudge which has propelled Maule, also a popular Las Vegas singing act; Witherspoon, and Tubb, who recently co-starred with Marlo Thomas and Martin Sheen in the TV movie "Consenting Adult."

Maule is a 1970 graduate of Snyder High, Witherspoon a 1976 graduate and Tubb a 1981 grad.

"It is a story almost too good to be true," commented Helen Hatter, a volunteer worker who has been the chief organizer of the chamber event.

"I was on the phone to one of the five's agent in Hollywood, trying to tell him something about Snyder. He kept saying, 'we've got a bad connection here. I thought I heard you say they all came from a town of 13,000 people.'"

"I told him that's exactly what I said, and he still didn't believe me."
