Lyles hopes publisher picks up his story

By JOHN BRIDGES
Managing Editor

Michael Soner has just met Jason Scallard, a boy who just moved in next door. They make quick friends, form the "Really Awesome Boys Club" (RABC) to do, well, boy things.

That's how "Shadow Cavern," a mystery, begins.

It's a good story.

When you consider it was written by Hereford's Chris Lyles, your pride picks up a little.

When you find out Chris started writing the 65-typewritten-page story in the fourth grade, you realize someone should have better watch out.

"I finally finished it last year," said Lyles, now a seventh grader at Hereford Junior High School. "I just started writing it to fill my time, to give me something to do. I just wrote at first when I had the time, but it kept getting bigger and bigger.

"I thought it was going to be a short story, something like I would write for school, but I just kept writing and writing."

Michael and Jason have just discovered an old trunk with a briefcase belonging to J.W. Warner. After finally breaking open the lock on the briefcase, they find a map with an "X" marking the location of a secret cave. It's "Shadow Cavern," which is the story's name. The boys think it will be a great place for Really Awesome Boys Club meetings.

But...

"I just thought of things as I went along," Lyles said. "I would write a page or two a day, left it, then would come back and write some more. I just did it off the top of my head."

Chris says he has no idea of how many hours he actually spent on the book. "I guess a lot of hours," Chris said. "It ended up being 100 pages of notebook paper." It's 65 typewritten pages, double-spaced, in better watch out.

Lyles wants his stories to appeal to a general audience, not just to kids. But school students won't have trouble identifying with homework, teachers who are a bit strict, tests and so forth.

"I've tried to get the story published, and I've written to four different publishers," Chris said. "Vantage Press wrote me back and said it would cost me $7,000, so I wrote them back and said, 'Not yet.'"

Michael and Jason find the faded trail that leads to the cave, but Jason lost a shoe. The shoe went sailing down the mountain about 15 feet, and Michael, trying to get it, ends up breaking his leg.

Jason realizes that the Uma River flows right by the cave, and he gets his dad to fix up Uncle Fred's boat so Jason can go on a little boating expedition and take Michael along. They get stuck in tall grass on one of the river's forks on the first try, so they have to wait two days (they can't go out on Sunday).

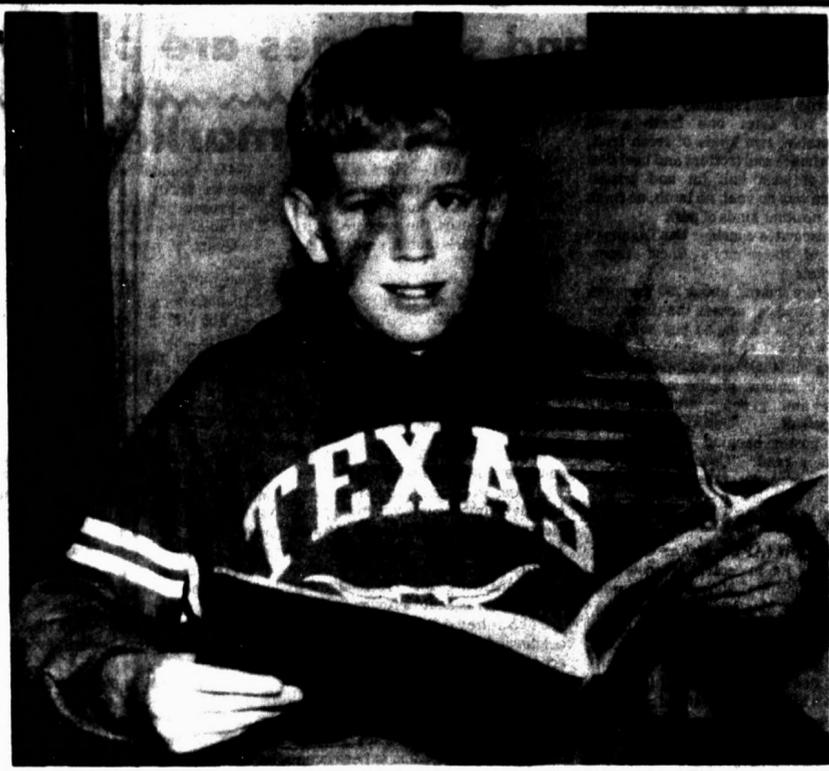

On Monday, the boys try the other fork, and are almost run down by a high-speed motorboat.

"I really love to read," Chris said. "I've read ever since Kindergarten. When I read a really good story, I just can't put it down. It puts me in another world."

Chris said his favorite author is J.L.L. Tolkien, "but I like any kind of mystery. I don't know if I could ever write like Tolkien. He's out of this world."

The boys go out on the river again, and are suddenly in the middle of a rock-throwing attack. They tell the police about it, and go back out on the river for a two-day expedition (it's spring break). They finally find the cave, and find out someone else, a gang of thieves, has discovered it, too

(See CHRIS, Page 2A)

Young author
Hereford seventh grader Chris Lyles has already written one 65-page story, Shadow Cavern, and has started another. Chris hopes he can find a publisher for his first story and somehow find more time for writing.

Mixer is Tuesday

The Hereford Chamber of Commerce and the local cattle feeding industry will co-sponsor a "Beef is Best" after-hours business mixer from 5-6:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Hereford Country Club.

Doorprizes will be given away, and there will be a drawing for a free beef give-away.

Cost of the mixer will be $3 for Chamber members and $5 for non-members.

Sponsoring the mixer will be

AZTX Cattle co., Barrett and Crofoot, Cattle Town, Champion Feeders, Circle Three Feeders, Hereford Feedyard, Southwest Feedyard, Sugarland Feedyard, Tri-State Cattle Feeders, Bar-G Feedyard, Keeling Cattle Feeders and Seven-X Cattle Feeders.

Persons planning to attend the mixer should call the chamber by noon Monday at 364-3333, and should bring plenty of business cards to the mixer.

State begins farm survey

The Texas Agricultural Statistics Service will begin contacting farmers and ranchers across the state soon for 1988 acreage, yield and production totals and end-of-year livestock and poultry inventories.

"Changes in the national farm program and this summer's dry weather certainly had an impact on Texas agriculture, and these surveys should help us summarize where the industry stands at the end of 1988," state statistician Dennis Findley explained.

Information from these confidential surveys conducted by mail, telephone or in person will also help producers make their plans for the coming year.

"Sound production and marketing decisions require good, reliable information and some advanced planning, and our reports provide producers with solid facts and figures they can incorporate into their plans," Findley added.

The Texas service will be trying to keep survey costs at a minimum this year because of budget cuts, so Findley is urging producers to return their mailed questionnaires as soon as possible.

"Remember, these are sample surveys, so if you are contacted it is important to provide the requested information, since one producer represents similar operations of the same type and size. Our estimates can be no better than the numbers producers provide," Findley noted.

Results of the surveys will be published in early 1989. Anyone wanting a copy of the results can write Information Section, Texas Agricultural Statistics Service, P.O. Box 70, Austin, Texas 78767.

CSF has had recent success

Looking back can sometimes be a healthy reminder of where we've come from, and an indicator of where we're going.

The holiday charity Christmas Stocking Fund can look back on some great successes in recent years, and look forward to a continuing tradition of helping the less fortunate of Hereford and Deaf Smith County during the Christmas holidays.

"The caring and sharing attitude of the people of our community has made a major difference in alleviating some of the hunger and need among the less fortunate the last couple of years. We know the good people of our community will be rising to the occasion once again this year," said a CSF spokesman.

Touching the lives of people in need has been the forte of CSF and a brief look back gives evidence of heartwarming successes made possible by the donations of caring individuals.

Among beneficiaries of CSF assistance were a father who didn't have the means to get his sick child to a medical specialist downstate. A call from the CSF committee to the local Elk's Lodge brought the money necessary to accomplish the task. A leukemia-stricken father of three got assistance with pressing medication bills, along with clothing for his children.

Many families who were cold and without heat or suitable clothing for their children got help with both. Senior citizens without means received clothing, food, and the warmth of caring human contact at a time of year when loneliness hits hard.

A patient whose Social Security check simply wouldn't stretch far enough to cover all expenses received needed medical items that couldn't have been afforded without the help of folks who care.

A family who lost everything they owned in a tragic house fire got assistance with clothing for their small children.

"These are only a very small sampling of the type of human needs that are addressed by CSF. To see these needs, and to see them resolved because local residents exercise the sharing spirit of the Yule season is especially rewarding," said a member of the volunteer committee which administers CSF.

Even though there are success stories, CSF is limited in the amount of assistance it can provide. Help can be extended only so far as donations allow, and there are always many more applications for help than it's possible for CSF to cover.

"We were able to help more of the community's needy than ever last Christmas, and we hope to reach still more this year, but every bit of assistance CSF extends is based on the funds caring individuals donate to the effort," said the CSF spokesman.

Donations to CSF may be left at the offices of The Hereford Brand, 313 N. Lee, or mailed to CSF c/o The Brand, Box 673, Hereford. Contributions will be published by The Brand at regular intervals during the holidays.

Group urges farm pay cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) - President-elect George Bush should make a top priority of slashing aid to farmers, particularly those subsidies that reward farmers for high production, the conservative Heritage Foundation think tank said.

The report said farmers are generally better off than commonly believed and should be forced to operate in a more competitive environment with fewer government handouts.

The Bush administration should develop a farm policy that would "help American farmers break out of a cycle of dependence" on federal subsidies, Charles Grizzle wrote in the Heritage Foundation's forthcoming policy guidebook.

Grizzle, a former senior official in the Agriculture Department, said the key to weaning farmers from government aid is to "decouple" subsidy programs from production requirements.

The idea of decoupling has been around for a while but has not taken hold in Capitol Hill. As Grizzle sees it, government payments to farmers would be based on a flat rate and targeted to those most in need of help.

Congress and the next administration will have no choice but to deal with the subsidy issue, since the 1985 farm law will expire in 1990. According to Agriculture Department finance officers, farm subsidies rose to a record $25.8 billion in 1986, the first year of the new law, from $17.7 billion in 1985.

"Despite the media portrayal of the typical farmer as hard-pressed, farm families have had higher incomes than the median American family in every year since 1980," Grizzle said. "More important, the net worth of farm families far exceeds that of the American family."

With few exceptions, he said, the farmers and rural bankers who went broke during the hard times of the early 1980s, or who remain under financial stress today, are those who borrowed and invested heavily in "get-rich-quick speculative fever" of the 1970s.

"They bet on rapidly inflating land values — and bet wrong," Grizzle said. "It is unfair to force the taxpayers to pick up the tab."

Earlier this week, outgoing Budget Director Joseph R. Wright said in an interview that farm subsidies will be a principal place that President Reagan will look for savings in his effort to avert tax and deficit increases.

Bush, vacationing in Kennebunkport, Maine, turned aside reporters' questions about areas where he will seek budget cuts.

Robert A. Denman, director of international and public affairs of the National Farmers Union, said he wasn't surprised by the Heritage Foundation's blueprint because "it's the same thing they're always talking about" when it comes to farm policy.

"If George Bush is really thinking about running a kinder, gentler administration, I have an idea he'll probably reject a lot that's in that report," Denman said in an interview. "Now, if he doesn't, I think it could be just exactly like what happened to the last report (by the foundation) — the Congress will probably reject most of it."

But if lawmakers accept the Heritage Foundation's view, there would be "a period of economic and social chaos for rural America," he said.

Grizzle's chapter on agriculture is just part of the 953-page volume, "Mandate for Leadership III," scheduled for publication on Jan. 2, the third in a series of policy guidebooks published by the foundation. Others were published after Reagan's election in 1980 and again in 1984.

Feeding Russia

Prices are high, there's no variety, and shortages are plenty

MOSCOW (AP) — On a recent Saturday, the Tagansky Gastronome had for sale: one fresh green vegetable, two kinds of fresh fruit, pig's heads and trotters and beef that was at least half fat and gristle. There was no veal, no lamb, no fresh fish, no other kinds of pork.

Muscovites consider the Tagansky one of their city's finest supermarkets.

Before 9 a.m., about 200 shoppers were lined up across the dirty concrete floor waiting to buy soft gray sausages that looked like knockwurst. Others snapped up bunches of onions, plastic sacks of apples and green, unripe Cuban grapefruit.

A poster hanging by the bread counter read: "Conserve bread — it's the property of the people."

At the store . . .

MOSCOW (AP) — Before clocking in at her job in central Moscow one recent morning, Nina Ivanova was already working to find the makings of that night's dinner for herself and her husband.

By the time she finished, she had spent two hours 17 minutes in lines, taken a side trip on a streetcar, and paid a total of 14 rubles ($22.80). Although Ms. Ivanova earns more than the average industrial worker's salary of 200 rubles ($322) a month, the meal turned out to be an expensive one not only in money but also in time.

In the morning, Ms. Ivanova stood in line for 20 minutes at a Moscow supermarket to buy two frozen chickens. The scrawny looking fowl, sold in plastic bags, cost 4.72 rubles ($7.69), or $1.30 a pound, heads and feet included.

Mrs. Ivanova was late to work because of the delay. She worked until 6 p.m., and then took the subway to Lenin Prospekt in the city's southwest.

At a butcher's shop, Mrs. Ivanova waited in line for 43 minutes to buy beef for the beet soup, or borsch, she had decided to prepare. The meat, enough for generous helpings for two people, cost her 3.75 rubles ($6.11).

She then hopped on a streetcar and rode for 15 minutes to a vegetable store. Once more she stood in line, this time for 37 minutes, and bought beets, cabbage, potatoes and some grapes for dessert. Cost: 3.43 rubles ($5.59).

One ingredient was still missing for the borsch — sour cream. Lugging her purchases, Mrs. Ivanova walked to a milk shop, where she waited 22 minutes to buy an enormous dollop of the cream the Russians call "smetana." It cost 1.70 rubles ($2.77).

There was one final stop for Mrs. Ivanova — the bakery. She stood in line there for 15 minutes to buy two loaves of bread for 40 kopecks (65 cents).

When Mrs. Ivanova returned home to her one-room apartment, it was 8:30 p.m. By the time she and her husband sat down to a dinner of borsch, fried chicken, mashed potatoes and grapes, it was 11:30 p.m.

According to Mrs. Ivanova, it was an all-too-typical day.

Moscow market

MOSCOW (AP) — Here is a list of food items offered recently in state-run food stores in Moscow. For comparison purposes, the average Soviet factory worker's monthly wage is 200 rubles ($325):

- Loaf of bread, slightly under a pound: 22 kopecks (39 cents).
- 10 eggs: 90 kopecks ($1.47).
- Half pound of margarine: 45 kopecks (73 cents).

—4½ pounds wheat flour: 92 kopecks ($1.50).

—Frozen turkeys, from Hungary: 3.20 rubles a kilo ($2.37 a pound).

—Quart of milk: 36 kopecks (59 cents).

—Cauliflower: 80 kopecks a kilo (59 cents a pound).

—Cabbage: 8 kopecks a kilo (6 cents a pound).

—Quart of tomato-flavored drink: 69 kopecks ($1.12).

In the eight aisles of the southeast Moscow store, and others like it nationwide, President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's ambitious economic vision runs smack into gritty Soviet reality.

In the fourth year of Gorbachev's tenure, what people here euphemistically call "the food question" seems as acute as ever.

Gorbachev himself has acknowledged that his program of economic reform depends in large part on his government's ability to improve the food supply and convince the public his program is worth the greater effort it demands.

In a country that has experienced at least two disastrous famines in a lifetime, many if not most Soviets gauge Gorbachev's drive for "perestroika," or restructuring, by what it puts on their grocery shelves.

Nikolai G. Belov, deputy director of the state committee on statistics, told reporters recently that food supplies reaching Soviet stores are short by more than 1.3 billion rubles ($2 billion at the official exchange rate) of the annual need and the 1988 economic plan.

Gorbachev told a key Communist Party meeting on agriculture that even factories in the Soviet defense complex have been put to work making farm implements with the goal of improving the nation's harvest, and consequently, its diet.

"Life demands that the earth should produce, and that livestock units should produce, because that produce is greatly needed by our society," Gorbachev told the Oct. 12 meeting.

To better feed Soviets, Gorbachev, himself the son of a Russian peasant, has broken with 60 years of Marxist-Leninist orthodoxy to call for the leasing of arable land around the nation to individual farmers.

For Americans accustomed to year-round abundance, freshness and a choice of supermarkets, the food situation in the other superpower is frankly bleak. At the delivery end of the food chain, in stores like the Tagansky Gastronome, what the Russians call "deficits" — chronic shortages — are wide-ranging and frequent.

"It is humiliating that we still aren't able to feed ourselves, buying even bread, and oil, and meat, and fruits, and vegetables abroad," the poet Yevgeny Yevtushenko lamented in a much-discussed essay published this year. "The rationing system that we have in many regions is our shame."

After 70 years of Soviet power, some food items regarded in the West as staples are rationed in eight of this country's 15 constituent republics. According to recent reports in the state-run media:

—Food shortages are so acute in parts of the Russian Federation that meat is rationed in 26 regions, butter in 32, and sugar in 53. Some regions cover more territory some individual U.S. states.

—In the Ural mountain city of Berezniki, meat is so scarce that residents can buy only 300 to 400 grams of sausage a month, the equivalent of five or six good-sized hot dogs.

—Food is so short in Ryazan, Kalinin and other Russian cities that their residents stream into Moscow and each year carry off a half-million tons of meat and meat products alone. A joke goes: What is long, green and smells like sausage? Answer: The Moscow-to-Tula train.

The Soviet Union is no land of freeze-dried, vacuum-packed, microwavable, one-stop food shopping either. For many, finding something good for the dinner table is an ordeal and challenge that can mean hours of being jostled in line, dealing with surly shop clerks, and frustration over long-term "deficits."

"You get mad at city officials every time you go shopping after working hours or try to get a bite to eat downtown," the weekly Moscow News groused in a recent criticism of the capital's state-run stores and restaurants.

Many Soviets have alternate food sources. One Yaroslavl factory runs its own pig farm and greenhouses to supply employees with pork and cucumbers. Peasants with private plots can sell their produce in special markets for more than the price fixed in state stores.

Outside the Tagansky, a man with a moustache hawks persimmons from the southern republic of Moldavia. He belongs to a cooperative, one of the free associations of producers and vendors that Gorbachev is counting on to relieve the country's consumer shortages.

Perks for top party and government officials include food parcels and access to a special network of shops selling meat, sturgeon, caviar and other hard-to-find items. Bureaucrats' black Volga sedans regularly pull up to the rear door of the Tagansky, and drivers enter to fetch cardboard boxes crammed with delicacies.

Not all news from the farm is bleak. Belov said overall agricultural output increased 4 percent in the past nine months compared to the same period in 1987. There will be less grain and fewer potatoes than last year, but more corn, he said.

But as Nikita S. Khrushchev, the late premier, once said, "You can't make pancakes out of statistics."

CHRIS

"I don't have time to write now, with school and athletics," Chris said. "I started another story during the summer, but I didn't get into it much. I'll probably start again when I have the time."

As much as Chris likes to read and write, he says English isn't his favorite subject.

"I like math the best," Chris said. "I made a 94 in English the first six weeks, and again this six weeks. I made 100 in math the first six weeks, and I think I did again this six weeks."

"I really don't know what I want to do when I grow up. I guess get some kind of technical job, working with computers or something."

We won't tell you how the story ends. After all, there may be a book to buy one of these days . . .

Christmas help for Girlstown

David Ruland, left, boss lion of the Hereford Lions Club, presents a check for $1,000 to Dr. Milton Adams, the club's Girlstown chairman, for the Girlstown Coat and Shoe Fund. Girls from the various Girlstown campuses will use the money donated by area Lions clubs to buy coats, shoes and other needs during December. The Hereford club raises the money through its annual bean supper, which is scheduled Dec. 9 from 5:30-7:30 p.m. at the HHS cafeteria. Tickets, at $3 per person, are available from any member of the Hereford Lions Club.

Hereford phone users pay less than most

Southwestern Bell Telephone (SWBT) customers in Hereford and across the state pay less for basic residential local telephone service than most customers across the nation, according to a recent study by the Federal Communications Commission.

"In Hereford, residential one-party customers pay only $8.15 per month which is about the same as the price of a large pizza," said Gary Stevens, area manager-external affairs. "Or, on a daily basis, the basic rate here is 27 cents per day for a service that's always available, providing contact with friends, relatives and emergency services," he said.

Nationally, the average monthly rate for basic residential service is $12.19. In Texas, residential service rates range from $8.15 to $11.05 per month depending on the size of the local calling scope.

Rates quoted in the FCC study include only rotary dial, unlimited calling, one-party basic service. The monthly rates do not reflect federal subscriber line charges, state and local taxes, long distance, custom calling, touch-tone or other optional services.

Southwestern Bell Telephone subscriber in Texas also have a lower-cost option available to them. Economy service, available throughout most of the state, allows 25 outgoing calls and unlimited incoming calls, for half the basic charge.

"We don't sacrifice service to achieve lower rates," Gary Stevens said. "Customer satisfaction levels in Texas are at record-high levels."

The company's customer surveys show that 96 percent of those customers questioned say they are satisfied with their telephone service.

"The survey demonstrates our employee dedication to hold down costs," said Gary Stevens. "We're proud of our service and the value our customers receive for their hard-earned dollars."

The FCC study compared basic monthly residential telephone rates in 95 cities. The rates range from a low of $6.60 in Fort Dodge, Iowa, to a high of $23.39 in Huntington, West Virginia.

Six Texas cities included in the study rank near the lower two-thirds of the 95 cities surveyed nationwide. The Texas cities, where each ranked in the survey, and the basic monthly residential rate for each: Houston - 57 ($11.05); Dallas-67 ($10.40); Fort Worth and San Antonio-both 69 ($9.85); Corpus Christi - 78 ($9.10); and, Brownsville-81 ($8.80).

Panhandle Community Services

report

Panhandle Community Services, a private non-profit corporation chartered by the State of Texas in October - 1985, currently serves clients in the 26 counties of the Texas Panhandle. The Administrative operation consists of a central office in Amarillo and 13 satellite centers strategically located throughout the area. The primary purpose of the agency as a human delivery system is to marshal the available resources from the public and private sectors. We efficiently provide for the needs of the poor, unemployed, underemployed, children, youth, elderly, disadvantaged, disabled, and disenfranchised of the Panhandle.

The Training and Employment Department of the agency delivers the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) to the Panhandle residents.

Throughout the years there have been many short-term employment, training, and educational programs in our country. Congress passed the JTPA in October - 1983 providing, for the first time in our nation's history, a permanent program for people needing training in order to get a job, to keep a job - to be productive.

We at Panhandle Community Services are requesting your help in getting the message concerning the FREE SERVICES available to the people of your area. For your benefit I have attached information on these valuable services. Any Public Services Announcement time or space your business could provide would certainly be appreciated. This type of outreach provides Panhandle residents with the awareness needed to utilize these services. PCS, with YOUR help will continue to HELP PEOPLE HELP THEMSELVES.

Festival of Trees scheduled in Amarillo

The Amarillo Garden Center will present its 25th annual Festival of Trees on Saturday and Sunday, December 3-4. The Festival of Trees is open to the public on both days from noon until 6 p.m. at 1400 Streit Drive (the first building south of the Discovery Center).
 Santa Claus will be present to visit with attending children on both Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m.
 The Garden Center will display nine Christmas trees which will be decorated with handmade ornaments and decorations. The overall theme of this year's Festival of Trees is "Collections of Christmas."
 Among the handmade ornaments will be found angels, reindeer families, country geese, potpourri ornaments, farm animals, fans, the 12 days of Christmas, antique ornaments and swans.
 A beautiful queen-size, handmade quilt will be on display. This quilt has 30 large squares, each depicting a different scene of hummingbirds.
 Also on display, encased in a glass dome, will be a miniature Christmas Tree made from beads. This tiny tree is fully decorated and even has lights, presents and a child's train beneath it.
 As a part of the Festival there will be a miniature version of an entire southwestern adobe village as it appears at Christmas time.

 All the $1 donations for tickets will go to the Amarillo Garden Center. Donation tickets, along with the admission tickets, may be purchased from members of the Amarillo Garden Club or at the Amarillo Garden Center. Prizes will be offered.
 During the entire Festival of Trees, the Garden Club members will host a food service and a homemade goods section. On the lower level the food service will serve chili, sandwiches, desserts and beverages. The homemade goods section will sell items such as breads, cookies, cakes, candies, pies and canned goods.
 The Gift Shop normally operated by the Garden Center will have its inventory increased to include many seasonal items.
 The Herb Society will be selling herbs, potpourri, dried flower wreaths and other dried flower decorations. The Iris Society will conduct their ever-popular sale of grab bags.
 The proceeds from the Festival of Trees are used to support the Amarillo Garden Center. The Amarillo Garden Center is open to the general public on a regular schedule throughout the year.
 This Christmas-oriented festival is always a highlight of the Christmas season for Amarillo and Panhandle residents.

CHIROPRACTIC FOR BETTER HEALTH

Dr. Gerald Glasscock

JOINT PAIN AND MUSCLE BALANCE

If you've developed symptoms that make you think you have arthritis, it would be wise to have an examination to see if the muscles in the affected areas are out of balance. Muscles help keep a joint stable and assist it through its normal range of motion. But if the muscles on one side of the joint are weak, this puts a strain on the joint. It may also cause arthritic-like symptoms. The doctor of chiropractic will test the muscles to determine their balance and strength. He will also evaluate nerve patterns and may take an x-ray to study the joint structure involved. Perhaps some laboratory procedures will also be needed. If the problem is in the muscles around the joint, treatment can be given to strengthen and return them to proper balance. Once this is achieved, the arthritic-like pain and discomfort may be greatly relieved or eliminated.

Please be brutal

The following item first appeared in a Topeka, Kan., publication a number of years ago. While times have changed and law enforcement people, school officials and even the judicial system, are limited to actions because of supreme court rulings stating how the vandal and the lawbreaker must be coddled and treated, the article is good reading. It makes sense even if laws, at times, do not.

PLEASE BE BRUTAL

An open letter to the Chief of Police:
 "One of the most common phrases heard in our society today is police brutality. Perhaps I Don't understand the meaning, but I would like to give you one mother's viewpoint on the subject.

"To begin, I should tell you that I have two teen-age sons and being a mother, I cannot help but want the very best of everything for them. I am a typical mother in that I don't want them hurt by anyone. I am not a typical mother, for I see things many mothers never hear of, much less become involved in, because my husband is a minister and we see the very best and the sordid worst.

"I would like for you to be brutal with my sons. Is that a surprise? If you find them speeding in a car; please be brutal. I have sat at a hospital holding a grieving mother's hand because of someone's mistake. That was brutal. I have always gone with my husband to tell a wife her husband was killed. That was brutal. I have helped nurse a beautiful teen-age girl crippled in a wreck. That was brutal. I have played organ music at funeral services for babies, teenagers and adults because someone drove too fast. That was brutal.

"If you should catch my under-age sons, with liquor in their possession; please be brutal.

"I have sat all night by my husband's side trying to piece together two under-age young men's lives, both broken by drinking. That was brutal. I have listened to the horrors experienced by another man while he was drunk and heard him recall the many jails he had served time in. That was brutal. I have helped feed hungry children because a drunken father didn't come home. That was brutal. I have tried to console a mother whose daughter was killed after being struck by a drunken driver. That was brutal.

"If you should find my sons with drugs in their possession, please be brutal.

"I have tried to rehabilitate a woman just out of prison for shooting her unfaithful husband. That was brutal. I have seen a handsome young man turn into an old ugly one because of drugs. That was brutal. I have seen a young mother who was addicted to a drug scream and rave for lack of a fix. That was brutal.

"If police ever see my sons doing something that isn't thoroughly in the interest of society, please be brutal. I have walked into a husband church building that was stripped of everything by vandals. That was brutal. I have seen a lovely, expensive home and yard completely torn up by vandals. That was brutal. I have seen a school and its marvelous equipment torn apart by young vandals. That was brutal. I have wiped a little boy's tears and helped him hunt for his stolen bicycle. That was brutal.

"If you should ever catch my sons doing anything illegal, please be brutal. I have come to realize that your kind of brutality cannot in any way compare with the brutality that comes from breaking the laws.

"My husband and I have tried to teach our sons that their rights end where someone else's rights begin. We believe they have learned this lesson, but in case they forget, we look to you and others who influence their lives—teachers, coaches, etc.—to see that they remember.

"I do not want my sons to grow into two grownup boys. I want them to become men; able to assume their places in this world and make good contributions to it. I sincerely hope they do. I sincerely hope they won't need your help; but if they do, and if you must, then be brutal...

Bootleg Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnsongrass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek reports on an odd dream he claims he had.

Dear editor:
 I guess it was a reaction to all that televised to-do over those trapped whales, but the other night I had a dream.

I dreamed a mountain climber, half-way up a sheer cliff, discovered a single begonia growing out of a small crack in the rock wall. It was out of his reach, and because he saw he couldn't make it to the top of the mountain he returned to the ground and reported the plight of the flower.

A concerned scientist was helicoptered up to get a closer look at the struggling begonia. He examined it through binoculars and radioed back that there wasn't enough soil in the crack of the rock to sustain the flower very long. "I estimate a week or so at the most," he said.

Hearing this, television crews from all three networks swarmed to the scene and broadcast daily pictures of the helpless flower and the efforts being made to rescue it. Homes throughout the civilized world and South Africa were tuned in. "Save the begonia" cries were taken up by certain elements of the population, from professional, television-hungry environmentalists to people who had to be informed what a begonia is.

With no ladders in the world long enough to reach and as time was running out for the valiant begonia, a Japanese fisherman came forward and volunteered to help. Using blocks and tackles used on his ship to haul aboard mammoth fish after dark, he lowered himself from the top of the cliff, reached the begonia, carefully lifted it up and brought it to safety as cameras whirred and even hardened reporters cheered.

The begonia was flown to Washington and planted on the White House lawn, where special guards were hired to keep the President's dog from digging it up.

At a banquet honoring the Japanese fisherman for his heroic rescue, it was reported by some that he was seen suspiciously picking his teeth with what looked like a slender, polished piece of whale bone.

Yours faithfully,
 J.A.

U.S. Chamber Voice of Business

Nation gives Bush mandate

By Albert D. Bourland
 U.S. Chamber of Commerce
 Make no mistake about it. The 1988 general election produced a clear mandate. The conservative George Bush beat the liberal Michael Dukakis in 40 out of 50 states. He did it by saying with crystal clarity that marketplace economics will continue to sustain the longest period of peacetime prosperity in the history of this nation.

When Americans marked their ballots on Nov. 8, they knew:

-The economy has been growing as never before.

-More than 17 million Americans are at work now than in 1982. The new jobs are good jobs at good wages—two-thirds of them pay more than the median wage.

-Real family incomes and standards of living are rising.

-Inflation has dropped from the double digits to 4.2 percent.

There can be no question that Bush received a national mandate. He won the Electoral College by 426 to 112 votes, a margin of nearly four to one.

To the people in the voting booths, the most important concepts were "conservative" and "liberal", not "Republican" and "Democrat." Many more Americans identify themselves as conservatives than liberals, and they saw that difference between the two candidates.

The American people sent a message to Washington. They want the government out of their pockets and off their backs. They want a strong defense and an end to soaring increases in entitlement spending.

They don't want higher taxes or government-mandated benefits that amount to hidden taxes.

If there is any question about the importance of the conservative or liberal positions of the presidential candidates, just consider their party platforms.

The conservative and pro-business platform of the Republican party called for holding the line on the minimum wage and working for a youth training wage. The liberal and pro-union platform of the Democratic party would keep raising the minimum wage by indexing it to inflation.

The platforms called for different ways to create more jobs. Bush's would create jobs through public and private programs like the Job Training Partnership Act rather than by adding new government programs. Dukakis' would create expensive federal training and employment programs which would provide child and health care for participants but made no mention of how to fund them.

The Republicans pledged to resist efforts to replace equal rights with discriminatory quotas and preferences, while the Democrats called for affirmative action quotas in hiring and promotions.

The Republican platform backed reducing the burden of government regulation on businesses. The Democratic platform backed an increase in unneeded occupational safety regulations in the work place and the expansion of OSHA's enforcement powers.

Bush's election program included other key proposals, such as:

-Defend the authority of states to enact right-to-work laws. Oppose the use of compulsory union dues for partisan purposes. Strengthen laws against union violence.

-Oppose "comparable worth" legislation that would allow the government—not employers—to set pay scales for jobs held mostly by women.

-Allow employers and employees—not Congress—to determine worker benefits, including child-care needs.

-Let parents—not bureaucrats—select child-care programs for their families.

-Expand petroleum exploration and development both onshore and offshore, in a manner that protects the environment.

Dukakis' election program proposed to:

-Limit business' rights to fight unionization.

-Enact "comparable worth" legislation.

-Require employers to give parental leave and leave for care of ailing parents, regardless of the impact on their businesses.

-Let the federal government—rather than the states—control child care.

-Enact tough new environmental laws, including a ban on most, if not all, offshore drilling.

The mandate, for conservative, stay-the-course government was not limited to the presidential election or the Republican party. Moderate and conservative Democrats also won. For example, Virginia elected Chuck Robb to the Senate and Tennessee elected John Tanner to the House.

With a majority of Americans in 40 states supporting Bush, the message of the voters should be heeded by all members of Congress—conservatives and liberals alike. After all, they want to be reelected and the American people have left no doubt about what they want.

Members of Congress representing areas with large numbers of union members would be wise to listen to the voice of the workers, not the voice of their union bosses.

Some union leaders listened to their members this year. Both the auto workers and teamsters endorsed Bush. But once again in this election, many union leaders ignored the wishes of their members and continued to push for the bankrupt liberal policies that the American people—including their own members—have rejected.

Michigan voted for Bush. Pennsylvania voted for Bush. Ohio voted for Bush. Indiana voted for Bush. These are all states with large blue collar populations.

The American people have spoken. Now is the time for Congress to work with the new president and implement the economic growth agenda the voters demanded on Nov. 8.

Guest Editorials

By The Associated Press

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from around Texas:

A Crusade for Literacy

While Nancy Reagan won widespread attention for her involvement in the "Just Say No" campaign against drug abuse, first lady-to-be Barbara Bush has quietly been involved in an equally important crusade, leading a nationwide fight against illiteracy.

...The more literate our society becomes, the more competitive we can become in the marketplace, creating a greater number of skilled workers and increasing the overall quality of life for us all.

—The Lufkin Daily News, Nov. 16.

Taming IRS Gorillas

When President Reagan signed Congress' latest tax bill, he gave life to something new, overdue and welcome: a Taxpayers Bill of Rights.

Under the bill of rights, many taxpayers no longer will be hit with additional taxes or penalties if they relied on erroneous written advice by the IRS.

The bill permits the taxpayers to sue the IRS for wrongful treatment and, if successful, to collect damages and reimbursement for legal and accounting fees.

And, most important, the IRS will have to stop its hated practice of seizing bank accounts and other property on 10 days' notice. The notice period is tripled to 30 days.

—San Antonio Express-News, Nov. 21

Revised Furlough Plan Sensible

The new restrictions on furloughs for Texas prison inmates are not as tough as many officials would like, but they offer a reasonable balance between eliminating the leaves altogether or granting them to almost everybody. The amended guidelines offer more protection to the public from murderers, drug dealers and sex offenders.

... The furlough program is not a major problem in Texas. On an average day, fewer than 50 prisoners are on furlough out of a total inmate population of 40,000.

... Furloughs are considered an effective tool in managing the prison population and the Texas Department of Corrections has done a good job screening inmates so that leaves are not given to bad security risks. Out of more than 43,000 furloughs approved since the program was initiated in 1977, only 362 have escaped, a rate of less than 1 percent.

The furlough program, like the parole system, is a vivid reminder that all of the 40,000 TDC inmates, except for the few who are executed, eventually will return to their home communities. The biggest challenge facing the prison system is the development of programs which will return prisoners to society who are better able to function in a responsible manner.

—Dallas Times Herald, Nov. 21

Carter Controversy

The public school system in Texas is here for one purpose—to educate young people. Regardless of the vast publicity given to school victories and defeats in athletic competition, the future of this state is riding on results in the classroom, not on the playing field.

That is why the controversy over grades given to two athletes at Carter High School is the most troubling development yet in Texas' sometimes bumpy road to real educational reform...

Carter Principal Clarence Russeau changed the grades from failing to passing simply by discarding their low scores on final exams. The principal's explanation was that Carter High School has a complex grading system that factors in class attendance and participation to determine the final grade.

The procedure may be helpful to a school such as Carter which has been in the bottom quarter of overall Texas test scores in recent years. But it cuts the heart out of the no-pass, no-play rule, which is so critical to the success of educational reform legislation in this state.

... The only way to bring reform and improvements to public education is through consistency and uniform application of rules. If individual schools are allowed to create their own grading plans to keep athletes eligible or bolster their ratings among other Texas schools, there is no use hoping for the kind of public school system envisioned when House Bill 72 was adopted. Texas will again become a hodgepodge of school districts, setting their own standards and achievement goals. And educational reform will be nothing more than another hollow political promise at election time.

—The Dallas Morning News, Nov. 18

U.S. Needs Steadfast Immigration Policy

Faced with a flood of Soviet citizens who have applied to immigrate to the United States, the State Department suddenly is trying to figure out how to handle all those applications. But the question should have been asked, and answered, a long time ago.

Whether this country should continue to serve as a refuge for oppressed foreigners is not the issue. Numbers are. Having just given the OK to 3,000 Soviet applicants to come here, another 9,000 suddenly are clamoring at the gates...

Washington finds itself in an embarrassing spot. Having pressed long and hard for Moscow to relax its emigration policies, the U.S. is balking at accepting all who want to come, now that the Soviet government has opened the Iron Curtain for some citizens.

The lesson here is that Pollyanna is not a good role model for policy-makers. Instead of leaving the impression that things would somehow take care of themselves, the U.S. should have made it clear from the outset that its own refugee ceiling and its own criteria for establishing who qualifies as a refugee would be steadfastly respected.

... As the Soviet economy continues to flag, experts believe many refugee applicants are in fact economic migrants. In the face of that complexity, the U.S. should pursue a prudent policy that distinguishes between genuine and false refugees beforehand...

Lone Star Con Game

Two state legislators have announced they'll carry bills next year to establish a Texas state lottery. The state doesn't need this grief, and neither do its people. One of the legislators, Rep. Ron Wilson of Houston, admitted that poor Texans might spend a higher percentage of their disposable income on lottery tickets, but excused it as offering them "a sense of hope." What it offers them is a con. With a lottery, the state tries to gull the suckers into playing the numbers game by holding out a million-dollar carrot when the odds are better they'll be elected governor than that they'll hit it big. Stripped of the glitz, it's tricking the poor into carrying a heavier burden than do the wealthy. Texas doesn't need to crawl down that far.

—Corpus Christi Caller-Times, Nov. 19

You've come a long, long way in six big games

One of the reasons for the resurgence of the Hereford Whitefaces has been tailback Keith Brown, the maturing of the offensive line and a mid-season overhaul of the Hereford offense. Brown has been the full-time tailback in the last six games, while Glenn Parker is at wingback and Kyle Andrews remains at fullback. After five games, Brown had just 55 carries for 206 yards. Here's a look at Brown's resurgence.

vs. Tascosa	5 for 13 yards
vs. Palo Duro	12-58, 2 TDs
vs. Estacado	13-60, 1 TD
vs. Pampa	10-35, 2 TDs
vs. Levelland	15-46
vs. Dunbar	24-112, 2 TDs
vs. Randall	6-94, 3 TDs
vs. Frenship	22-180
vs. Borger	15-125, 4 TDs
vs. Dumas	16-244, 3 TDs
vs. Sweetwater	39-182, 2 TDs

'88 Herd gridgers edge higher in stats

By SPEEDY NIEMAN
Hereford's high-scoring Whitefaces will be in quest of another regional football crown when they take on Cleburne's Yellowjackets in Mustang Bowl at Sweetwater Saturday afternoon.
If the team keeps moving along the playoff trail, it could rack up the most points ever scored by a HHS squad. The Whitefaces have tallied 328 points in 11 games, or a 29.8 per-game average. The 1981 team scored 357 points in 14 games before losing in the state semifinals.

The record the Herd would treasure the most, however, would be in bringing home the school's first state championship trophy. This year's team was tops in total offense for a 10-game regular season schedule, recording 2,184 yards on a good mix of rushing and passing. That was 10 yards better than the 1981 team, which went on to total 4,247 in 14 games.
Quarterback Jason Scott, tailback Keith Brown and receiver Pat Mercer have an opportunity to improve their places in the school's all-time offensive record book. Scott is already the school's top percentage passer, connecting on 61.4 percent of his throws in 11 games. He also has the most touchdown passes in a regular season, hitting 11 this year. He is seventh in average-yards per game passing.

Jason is third in career passing yardage with 80.4 a game. Mike Scott, his brother, is tops in career yardage, passing for 96.9 yards a game in two seasons (83-84). Keith Kit-chens (71-72) is second with 93.6 a game.

Brown is the fourth-top rusher for a regular season and seventh in total yards including playoff games. Brown now has 1146 yards in 11 games, an average of 96.4 per game. Prior to the Cleburne game, Mercer had 24 catches for 503 yards, which ranked him sixth in the record book. His per-catch average of 20.9 is second on the list, however. Bobby Baker (85-86) is far ahead as the pass reception leader with 61 catches for 814 yards and 11 touchdowns in a 14-game season. His career total is 86 passes for 1269 yards and 16 touchdowns.

SWC scandals nothing new: Even BAYLOR had one - in 1915

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
WACO, Texas (AP) — Yeh, they had a football scandal at Baylor once. Old J. P. "Bubs" Mosley used an ineligible player in 1915 and it cost the Bears the Southwest Conference title and spoiled a 7-1 season. The school has been pretty clean since, except for a problem in the basketball program in 1985 that cost coach Jim Haller his job. A player tape recorded a chat with Haller over holiday expense money and the NCAA took Baylor to task, putting the Bears on probation for 1986 and 1987.

Considering the league in which they compete (the cynics say SWC stands for "Sure Will Cheat"), the Bears are remarkable for their squeaky clean appearance.

Why is it you never hear any bad things about the Baylor Bears' football program?

How does Grant Teaff get players like Mike Singletary, Dennis Gentry, Alan Rice, Alfred Anderson, Robert Williams and Ron Francis to attend a Baptist school with subpar facilities in a Central Texas town away from the big city bright lights?

What's the one-liner about the SWC: No pay, no play?

Teaff, who has been at Baylor 17 years and recently concluded his fourth consecutive winning season, won't allow no triffin' around his program.

The handouts don't go any farther than the Baylor bear mascot.

While NCAA gumshoes have visited Texas, Texas Tech, Texas A&M, Texas Christian, Houston, and Southern Methodist (hung by its neck until the football program was dead), there are no sleuths holed up at the Motel Six in Waco trying to get the goods on Baylor.

Baylor, Arkansas, and Rice are the only SWC football programs without tarnish of one kind or another.

"We're going to do it right or we're not going to do it," said Teaff, who has coached Baylor in its only two Cotton Bowl appearances. "We try to abide by the strict letter of the rules."

Teaff won't let Baylor alumni get out of hand. Some coaches say they can't control the alumni. Maybe they don't try as hard as Teaff does.

If he never wins another game at Baylor, he has already proved you can be successful in the highly competitive SWC without checkbook recruiting.

Teaff is sad about what has happened to the other league schools.

The recent George Smith incident at Texas A&M has put the conference in bold, bad headlines again.

Smith told The Dallas Morning News that A&M coach Jackie Sherrill paid him "hush" money to silence him during the NCAA's recent investigation. Then Smith recanted the story two days later.

"No matter what the outcome will be it was another black eye for us (the SWC)," Teaff said. "And we've still got Houston to go."

The Cougars have been accused of 250 violations in the football program during Bill Yeoman's regime. The NCAA was expected to give Houston its verdict sometime soon.

"I keep thinking we'll get past all this but evidently we're not," Teaff said. "You just hope it will be cleared up quickly so we can go on. You just hope we'll finally hit bottom and get everything cleaned up."

But that isn't the nature of the SWC football beast, is it? Somebody's always trying to get an edge on the neighbors.

Rules-abiding Baylor won't be in a bowl game this season.

But the Bears' players, coaches, administration, fans, and alumni have something else that they can celebrate.

They can find joy their own self-respect.

Ominous manual hard to understand

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer
The sentence begins rather directly:
"The term 'financial aid' as used in By-law 6 includes all institutional funds such as scholarships, grants, loans..."

Then it winds its way through a maze of parentheses, dashes and other grammatical paraphernalia, eventually ending just as directly as it began:

"... available to all students and administered on the same basis for all students, shall not be considered accountable financial aid."
That clause in the section of the NCAA Manual dealing with limitations on financial aid awards, consumes 120 words, some of them well chosen, some of them not so well chosen, all of them in a single sentence that sags under their weight. Abraham Lincoln needed only 286 for the Gettysburg Address and he had the good sense to separate them by a series of periods, not to mention occasional paragraphs.

When Dr. Charles Knapp moved from scandal-scarred Tulane into the president's office at the University of Georgia, he was asked about the sea of NCAA rules and regulations. Knapp eyed the ominous Manual and called it, "The most complex, convoluted book I've ever read."

Give the man credit. At least he had the patience to read this foreboding tome that runs better than 400 pages. Dr. Wilford Bailey, president of the NCAA and chairman of the committee that has restructured the book, suspects the Georgia president is in the minority. "Most places, they just put it on the shelf and then call the NCAA staff if they have any questions," he said.
Bailey and the staff hope that changes when the streamlined, easier-to-understand Manual makes its debut in January. He expects it to be embraced enthusiastically at the NCAA convention because the new version makes a sincere effort at being comprehensible, something that did not always concern its predecessor.

Their task was something like trying to translate ancient Egyptian without benefit of the Rosetta Stone.
"It was far harder, much more difficult than we had anticipated," Bailey said. "Over a 36-month period, we met 27 times covering 64 working days. It was a monumental project."
There was, for example, the existing language on eligibility, no small bit of business. "There were two by-laws dealing with the subject, one on individual eligibility, the other on NCAA Championship eligibility," Bailey said. "But the by-law on membership conflicted with that. The answer was there, but to get to it, you had to travel a circuitous route. Everything in there seemed that way."

Bailey and his helpers hope they have changed all that, presenting the same rules and regulations in simpler language that is easier to locate in the master Manual. As an adjunct, the NCAA will publish separate volumes on specific areas of legislation. So now a recruiter can be equipped with a pint-sized version that deals only with recruiting and no longer will have to fight his way through pages of verbiage that do not apply to his specialized activities.

Walker, 5A leader, crippled since birth

IRVING, Texas (AP) — When Rodrick Walker was a baby, his legs twisted inward so drastically they formed an oval, with the toes almost meeting.

A doctor put him in casts — "from heels to pampers," his mother said.

But Johnnie Ray Walker couldn't stand the sight of his son dragging those encased legs across the living room rug. He immersed Rodrick waist-high in vinegar to soften the plaster and cut off the casts with a carving knife.

About 17 years later, Rodrick Walker's toes still point inward, leaving him a pigeon-toed gait that shouldn't be confused for a lack of speed. Little has slowed him since his father set free those long, skinny legs — not two knee operations, not an ankle injury, not opposing defenses.

Walker, just a junior, was the leading rusher and scorer in Class 5A over the 1988 regular season. He carried 178 times for 1,691 yards and scored 164 points to lead Nimitz to an 8-1-1 record and into the state playoffs, where the Vikings have won two more games. Nimitz plays Saturday afternoon at Odessa Permian.

Counting the playoffs, the 6-0, 175-pound Walker has 2,048 yards and 196 points and has 3,154 yards in his two varsity seasons.

Walker, who has run 40 yards in as fast as 4.43 seconds, has come far since the days he wanted to be a bodybuilder. When he was young, he worked on his speed by throwing a football for his dog to fetch and then outran the pup to the ball.

With help from his best friend, 6-1, 220-pound senior fullback Byron Myles, Walker has become arguably the state's best high school running back.

They have been inseparable since they were little and spend their spare time thinking up rap songs, finishing each other's sentences and relishing their role as the state's top rushing combination. Through 12 games, Walker has 2,048 yards and Myles has 1,271.

Usually it's Walker wide and Myles up the middle.

Two scenes have become commonplace at Nimitz games: 1) Walker taking a pitch right, putting his left hand on Myles' back and popping sideways from behind his friend's block to break a long gainer; and 2) Walker and Myles jogging off the field hand-in-hand after another victory.

Richland's Carlos Berry said he and his staff spent all week trying to figure out how to stop Nimitz's running game. Then Walker rushed 14 times for 183 yards and Myles carried 25 times for 122 yards in a 35-3 Nimitz romp.

Haltom's Carl Copeland said: "This is my 18th year, and Walker is as good a back as I've ever coached against. I think the thing that really is impressive is that he's such a team player. He recognizes the contribution that Myles gives him. You can't load up to stop Walker, but he'll break it on you if you don't. That makes life tough."

Walker moves to rap music as well as he jukes defensive backs.

"I like the rhythm, I like the beat," Walker said. "It's something I can fall back on if football doesn't pan out."

He and guard Robert Banda are founding members of the "Emperors of the Universe," a group that finished second in a contest designed to create a rap commercial for the public libraries.

Dallas fans cashing in on Cowboys

IRVING (AP) — It was bring your own turkey day on Thursday at Texas Stadium — but not without some Dallas Cowboys fans undoubtedly suggesting a few might be suited up for the game.

Still, many of the once-proud Dallas fans who showed up early to munch their Thanksgiving turkey dinners in a festive pre-game tailgate party said they have managed to keep a sense of humor about the team's miserable season.

The Cowboys lost their ninth straight game to drop to 2-11 and the only top spot they are competing for anymore seems to be the league's top draft choice.

Some die-hard Cowboy fans have improvised, and even have taken financial advantage of the situation.

"I've been a Cowboys fan from the beginning," said a Dallas businessman, who asked not to be identified by name because he said he feared a tax audit. "But last week I took Cincinnati, the week before I took Minnesota, and I took Houston today."

Standing next to his Chevy van, he wiped gravy from his paper plate with a biscuit and said: "I'm thankful for the Cowboys."

Marcia Wegner of Hurst was philosophical as she shared food with 23 others at a 12-foot buffet table loaded with three turkeys, a ham, gravy, stuffing, scalloped corn, pies and candles.

"It's not whether you win or lose," she said. "What matters is that the dressing is hot."

American Airlines pilot Jim Osborne had a season sign taped to the bottom of his table. It read: "Happy Thanksgiving: Welcome To Plymouth Rock Bottom."

Jack Deaton, a retired oilman from Fort Worth, told the Dallas Times Herald that he has watched his team fall faster than the price of West Texas crude. Yet he took comfort Thursday in a turkey and champagne dinner party with 13 other members of the "Gate 7 Club" — a 16-year-old group united by football and a love of the paved outdoors.

"We're thankful," said Deaton. "We're thankful that the Cowboys would come and play, as sorry as they are."

Robert Brown, a Dallas school administrator, said he preferred to find other reasons to give thanks.

"I'm thankful for my wife. I'm thankful for Jack Daniels," he said, then went back to enjoying a meal served up from the trunk of a friend's car.

Accent on Health

In 1987, some 2,127 of the more than 400,000 Texans known to have diabetes died from the disease or its complications. Another 400,000 Texans may have diabetes and not yet know it.

To help prevent death and illness from diabetes this year, the Texas Department of Health has urged the public to become more aware of the importance of proper health care for diabetics.

Nationally there are nearly six million persons diagnosed as having diabetes and an estimated five million more may unknowingly have the disease.

Diabetes is a group of disorders characterized by unusually high levels of sugar in the blood, caused by the body's inability to make or use the hormone insulin. Some people with Type I, or insulin dependent, diabetes require daily insulin injections to control their blood sugar levels. Most people with diabetes however, have non-insulin dependent, or Type II, diabetes which often can be controlled by a combination of dietary therapy and regular exercise. Type II patients may also take oral medications to stimulate their insulin production.

In either type of diabetes, dietary management is crucial to controlling blood sugar levels. Diabetes therapy is intended to strike a balance between the effects (on blood sugar levels) of food intake, physical activity, and medication. Each person with diabetes should have a prescribed nutrition plan, designed to meet that individual's specific needs.

In most cases, by following the doctor's treatment plan the patient can lead an otherwise active, "normal" life. Failure to do so can lead to kidney failure, blindness, heart disease, amputations—even death.

People with a family history of diabetes who also are 40 or older, and who may be overweight, are especially at risk of having diabetes. Also, for reasons not fully understood, American Indians and Mexican-Americans are more likely than others in the U.S. to develop diabetes.

Studies in Starr County, Laredo, and San Antonio indicate the occurrence of diabetes among Mexican-Americans 35 and older may be more than five times as likely as among the general population. Blacks also have higher rates of diabetes than whites and the general population.

Mortality rates from diabetes in all ethnic groups increase dramatically among those 45 and older. But diabetes is by no means a disease restricted to adults. Diabetes is second only to cancer among leading chronic illnesses of children under 16.

MUCH ADO ABOUT MUSHROOMS
NEW YORK (AP) — Mushrooms are a popular food and their flavors range from buttery to beefy while their textures range from tender to chewy.

Here's a rundown on mushrooms from Family Circle magazine:

— White Button: Easy to prepare, these are all-purpose mushrooms. Their meaty taste and firm texture are a plus in soups, stews, casseroles and stuffings. They can be prepared using any cooking method.

— Shiitake: This exotic Oriental variety has a smoky taste. The dark brown cap with its creamy-white underside can grow to be as large as 8 inches in diameter. Perfect for soups, sauces and stir-fry dishes, shiitake can be bought fresh or dried.

— Chanterelle: Trumpet-shaped with a dainty reddish-yellow color, this mushroom has a delicate apricot-like flavor. Ideal with fowl or in stews and casseroles, chanterelles are sold fresh or dried.

Christmas gifts galore

The 8th Annual Festival of Arts and Crafts will feature numerous handmade crafts from local artists as well as those from several surrounding towns. Pauline Lovan (at left) and Carol Lavon display their ceramics, woodcrafts and sweatshirts that will be at the festival. The public is invited to attend the event, sponsored by Wesley United Methodist Church, from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 3, at the Hereford Community Center.

RANDY VILLARREAL

Villarreal relinquishes title

Randy Villarreal has played in the Angelo State University Golden Ram Marching Band for the past four years and has held the title of drum major for the past two years.

Villarreal, a 1985 graduate of Hereford High School, also was drum major while at HHS. He is a senior government/pre-law major at ASU and is a candidate for graduation in May, 1989. He hopes to further his education in law school.

While at ASU, he has served on the Student Senate, on the Hospitality Committee as an official ASU host and assistant chairman, as a representative to the Interfraternity Council, as a reporter for Alpha Lambda Delta honor society, as vice president of the Association of Mexican-American Students, and as treasurer for Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

He is the son of Hector and Lupe Villarreal of 112 Star Street.

Hints from Heloise

WASHER/DRYER ADVICE

Dear Heloise: A reader recently sent in a hint on cleaning the lint screen on dryers with soap and a brush. Keeping the lint filter scrupulously clean can add years to the life of a dryer.

Here are a few hints for washer/dryer owners that I've picked up in the couple of years I've been doing appliance repair here on the Big Island of Hawaii.

Always clean pockets before washing clothes. Items like pencils, nails and pocketknives destroy pumps and as a result can sometimes burn out motors.

Never overload a washer or dryer.

It's always better to underload a bunch than overload a bit. When washing small things like children's underwear and socks, put them in a pillowcase or other bag.

Small items can sometimes wash over the top of a washing machine and cause problems with the pump.

Try using a softener sheet every other load to prevent softener build-up in your dryer. — Noalana, Paho, Hawaii

Teacher recognized

Mary Brinkman, in center right of photo, was recognized by the Parent-Teacher Fellowship of the Nazarene Christian Academy for her "spirit, dedication to her profession, and for her devotion to her students." Currently in her second year with the children in K-5, Brinkman graduated from Eastern New Mexico University. She and her husband, Weldon, are parents of Brock, 13, Derek, 8 and Denae, 5. Her hobbies include sewing, cross stitch, and reading. Doris Huckert, seen center left, president of the PTF, presented Brinkman with a gift certificate compliments of K-Bob's Steak House. The PTF plans to honor a teacher each month.

Appreciation expressed

Northwest Elementary School PTA president Sherri Huckins, left, gave a certificate of appreciation to Jim Scott, manager of McDonald's Restaurant. He was cited for his efforts in enlisting the fast food eatery in the Adopt-A-School program benefiting Northwest School. Scott, who lives in Canyon, has managed the Hereford McDonald's for the past one-and-a-half years and will become manager of McDonald's in Canyon. Yolanda Valdez, right, will take over as manager of the local eatery Monday. Valdez noted that she hopes to continue the Adopt-A-School program with Northwest School.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I read your column about Lanoxin. You said that Lanoxin was for congestive heart failure. My doctor has me on Lanoxin for palpitations of the heart. I am 75 years young and active for my age. This seems to be contradictory. Would you care to explain?

DEAR READER: Lanoxin is a trade name for a rapid acting purified product from digitalis. Digitalis and such purified products have been used for years to treat congestive heart failure. Congestive heart failure is characterized by retaining fluid, causing shortness of breath and swelling. William Withering, a famous British physician, discovered that an old lady made tea from the leaves of foxglove that caused swollen patients to eliminate large volumes of water. The digitalis in the foxglove was acting on the heart to produce this effect.

Like many medicines, digitalis has more than one action. Aspirin may be used to relieve a headache or it may be used to prevent blood clotting. Digitalis, which includes Lanoxin, can be used to treat congestive heart failure as William Withering noted, or it can be used for certain heart irregularities.

Social Security

Medicare health insurance, including both hospital and medical insurance, is available to people in the Amarillo area who have permanent kidney failure and who need kidney dialysis treatment or a kidney transplant, Jim Talbot, Social Security manager in Amarillo, said recently.

A person, regardless of his or her age, who needs dialysis or a transplant because of permanent kidney failure is eligible for Medicare if he or she:

- Worked long enough to be insured under Social Security, or already gets Social Security benefits, or
- Is the husband, wife, or dependent child of someone insured or getting benefits.

Medicare coverage for an eligible person generally begins on the first day of the third month after the month the person starts receiving maintenance dialysis treatment.

Medicare coverage can begin the first month of a course of dialysis treatments, if the person takes part in a self-dialysis training program in an approved facility during 3-month Medicare waiting period, and the person expects to complete training and self-dialyze afterwards.

Coverage can also begin the month the person is admitted to an approved hospital for a kidney transplant, or preliminary procedures for a transplant if the transplant takes place that month or within 2 months, therefore.

Medicare coverage generally ends 12 months after the month a person no longer needs maintenance dialysis, or 36 months following a kidney transplant.

For more information about Medicare coverage because of permanent kidney failure, call the Amarillo Social Security office, located at 3601 W. 15th. The telephone number is (806)376-2241.

Better Business Bureau's Tips for the consumer

FURNACE REPAIR & MAINTENANCE

Is your furnace ready for the winter heating season? To find out, have it professionally serviced by a reputable company. Don't let a con artist scare you into costly, unnecessary repairs.

These scammers often travel door-to-door offering their services because they "just happen to be in the neighborhood." Once they inspect your furnace, they may claim it is leading dangerous gases or about to explode.

Try not to panic. Ask your utility company to come and inspect your system. If you feel there is a danger, go to a hotel or stay with relatives.

Also be wary if you're told the unit is too small or needs a complete overhaul. In this case, always get a second opinion.

When choosing a contractor for your furnace, ask friends, neighbors and colleagues for recommendations. Also check the company out with the Better Business Bureau.

If your furnace needs repair, get several written estimates. These estimates should fully describe the services and materials that will be provided. When comparing estimates, look at price, energy efficiency, and warranty. And don't forget to find out whether any repairs or replacements are covered.

If your unit needs to be replaced, chose a replacement unit that is energy efficient. While it may cost more initially, it may actually be less expensive to use over the course of its lifetime. Remember, the unit should be big enough to handle the demands of your household. But don't waste money on one that's larger than you need. To help decide what size is best for you, ask a dealer or trade association for advice.

To keep your furnace running smoothly and efficiently, have it professionally inspected each year and clean and replace the filters regularly. You can also ask your serviceman for tips on reducing your energy bills.

Annual project begins

The Thanksgiving holiday has passed and the Christmas season is beginning. With the thoughts of giving on most people's minds, residents are reminded of Project Christmas Card which is celebrating its 32nd anniversary. Citizens are encouraged to donate to the project instead of spending money normally used for mailing holiday greetings and postage. All money received benefits Deaf Smith County. Donors names will appear in a full-page community holiday greeting of The Hereford Brand in the Christmas edition. Placing donation canisters throughout town are (from left) Priscilla Ham and Judy Detten, members of L'Allegra Study Club, the project's sponsor organization.

'88 Project Christmas Card beings 32nd year

1988 Marks the 32nd anniversary of Project Christmas Card, a major community-wide fundraiser in which local residents are urged to express their yuletide greetings by contributing to the project.

In lieu of using the money normally spent on mailing local Christmas greetings and postage, citizens may donate to the annual project and have their names published in a full-page spread to appear in The Hereford Brand's special Christmas edition.

Members of L'Allegra Study Club assumed the responsibility for the project in 1986 from the Medical-Dental Auxiliary who began the fundraiser in 1956. Club members have placed brightly decorated canisters throughout town to receive contributions. Donations may also be made at both Hereford State and First National Banks by signing your deposit slip as you wish your name to appear in the one large greeting and marking it "Project Christmas Card."

In 1986-87, approximately $10,000 was received from the combined fundraisers to purchase a cardiac enzyme machine for Deaf Smith General Hospital. The hospital has been the recipient of numerous pieces of needed medical equipment including a transport incubator, O.B. table, electrical surgical unit and mattress, diagnostic ultra sound unit, anesthesia machine, life support system, cryostat and KDC warmer for the infant intensive care unit, fetal monitoring system, infant, medi-call emergency radio communication system, closed circuit TV and cardiac monitor system, four-bed defibrillator, infant resuscitator, O.B. anesthesia machine.

Donations have also been used to purchase furniture for the children's ward at the hospital, drapery for the obstetric floor, a surgery table, an isolette, renovations in the hospital's kitchen, dental equipment, a hospital intercom system and new furnishings for the Hereford Community Center.

Red Cross

This year, at the Red Cross office, we are thankful for all of the wonderful volunteers who have helped us all of this year. We are thankful that we live in a caring community, willing to help out if at all possible.

The First Aid Instructor Update had to be postponed. The class will be held Saturday Dec. 3, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Red Cross office. Those coming should bring a sack lunch and snacks. Those attending are asked to call the Red Cross office.

Applications are being taken for the Christmas Stocking committee and for the Christmas Toys Program. The office is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday at 224 South Main Street.

Chamber Singers to perform

The public is invited free of charge to "A Choral Fanfare for Christmas", a holiday musical performed by the Hereford Chamber Singers, at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 4, in the Hereford High School auditorium. Although there will be no charge for admission, donations will be accepted to defray expenses of the concert.

Christmas musical to be Dec. 4

The Hereford Chamber Singers will be presenting a musical concert, "A Choral Fanfare for Christmas," at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 4, in the Hereford High School auditorium.

The public is invited to attend the concert free of charge, however, donations will be accepted to help defray expenses of the concert.

The concert will feature the choir in both sacred and secular favorites, including, "The Many Moods of Christmas" by Robert Shaw; Anita Kerr's "Rockin' Around the Christmas Tree," "Wexford Carol" by Catherine Bennett; and "Merry Christmas With Love," by Linda Spivecek. Bill Devers directs the group which is entering its 15th year of spreading its motto, "Human Relations Through Music." Elva Devers is the piano accompanist and will be joined by Jan Metcalf on the clavichord for this concert.

A special number for this concert will be Marvin Curtis' "Ring out Those Bells" sung by the Singers and accompanied by the Handbell Choir from the First Baptist Church directed by Archie Coplen. The handbell choir will also be ringing a selection of their own.

In addition to the choral numbers for the concert, Jan Walser and Linda Gilbert will be featured in a piano duet, and the ladies' sextet, "Gentle Touch," will also perform a selection.

The Chamber Singers began a new season this fall with 45 members and a new president, Dr. Trow Mims. Other members of the board of directors are Bobby Boyd, secretary; Terri Laing, treasurer; Ann Meyer, Rose Ann Smith, Sandi Blevins, and Bill Devers. Elva Devers and Susan Shaw are co-chair persons for this Christmas concert.

In June of 1988, the group performed at World Expo 88 in Brisbane, Australia, and received accolades for their musical performance as well as for their friendliness and amiability.

Recently, the choir provided entertainment for the District II meeting of the Texas Library Association held at the Deaf Smith County Library and at a special family dinner which featured a meal of Korean food at the First United Methodist Church.

The only boxer to win two titles in one Olympic meet was Oliver L. Kirk of the U.S. who took both bantam and featherweight titles in 1904.

G.E.D. Testing

For adult residents of Texas, 17 years of age and up. Parent's permission for 17-year-olds required. I.D. required. Satisfactory scores qualify for Texas Education Agency Certificates of High School Equivalency. $25.00 Fee. Next test December 7th and 8th, 1988 at 6:00 p.m. at Hereford High School, Room 122.

Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony scheduled Dec. 5

The public is encouraged to attend the 10th Annual Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony, sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Women's Division, at 7 p.m. Monday, Dec. 5, on the courthouse lawn. Santa Claus will be making a special guest appearance.

Janice Carr is serving as this year's lighting ceremony chairman, and she is being assisted by Joann Hill, Barbara Yavornik, Mary Hamby, Juanita Koetting, Betty Drake and Brenda Reinauer.

Because this is a special year for the ceremony, committee members are trying to add a new twist to the event. They are encouraging Hereford residents to have their homes decorated and Christmas lights turned on at 7 p.m. that day so that those returning from the courthouse can enjoy them. Plans are also in the making to have not only the community Christmas tree lit, but the courthouse and the surrounding downtown area synchronized in their lighting. It will be Hereford's own celebration of lights.

The idea for a community Christmas tree and lighting ceremony was conceived by the Women's Division in 1979 under the presidency of Margaret Formby. That year a three-and-a-half foot Douglas fir tree was planed in the southwest corner of the courthouse lawn with the consent of county commissioners who also agreed to supply electricity for lighting of the tree. The tree is now approximately nine feet tall and will be decorated with red bows.

Past entertainment has been provided by a variety of community choirs and bands as well as Santa who has arrived in everything from a horse-drawn wagon to a three wheeler.

CREDIT HISTORY

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Not establishing a credit history in both spouses' names is a major error many families make, according to Aetna Life Insurance & Annuity Co.

Aetna says that even though there is more protection than in the past, it is unwise to rely solely on the husband's credit rating. "In case of divorce or death, it takes time, effort and money for the wife to get credit in her own name," it says.

A new drug now available through doctors helps cancer chemotherapy patients to deal with the treatment's nauseating side effects.

LeGate pledges

Tiffany LeGate, daughter of Tom and Carol Sue LeGate of Hereford, has pledged Delta Delta Delta Sorority at Texas Tech University in Lubbock. She is a freshman fashion merchandising major.

GET WELL PUFFS

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Aerosol medications, popular in treating asthma, soon will be used to treat or prevent many more illnesses, predicts Dr. Juraj Ferin of the University of Rochester Medical Center.

"Take vaccines, for example. Instead of getting flu shots, patients may inhale a puff of aerosol vaccine. Or, diabetes patients may take their insulin through an aerosol spray," Ferin said.

Between the Covers

By REBECCA WALLS
 Many of you have been waiting for Sidney Sheldon's new book called The Sands of Time; it is now available for checkout.

During this troubled time in Spain four nuns are forced to flee the secure environment of their Spanish convent and face a hostile world they had long ago abandoned. Megan, Lucia, Graciela, and Teresa find themselves pawns in a violent struggle between the outlawed Basque underground movement and the Spanish army.

Army leader Colonel Ramon Acoca is determined to destroy the charismatic underground leader, Jaime Miro, and all who are sympathetic to his cause. Megan, an orphan, finds herself fighting the attraction she feels to the idealistic Jaime Miro. Lucia, wanted by the police, will risk everything to save a dying revolutionary. Graciela's nightmares of the past continue to haunt her. Teresa's confused conscience drives her to seek help from Colonel Acoca which proves to be a near-fatal mistake that will betray her friends.

White Light by Campbell Armstrong brings to life a hidden world in Moscow and Washington. An old Russian man, whose body is rotting with disease and death, races against time to destroy the plans of the New Soviet Premier. An amazing revolution called Glasnost, which will convert Russia into an Open Soviet Society, a plan applauded by Russia's former enemies, is soon to be implemented by the new Soviet leader.

A former KGB director plots the downfall of Glasnost with the aid of many of the old guard who prefer the repressions of Stalin to the freedoms of a new society. Scotland Yard Irregular Frank Pagan stumbles onto the secret plan and now finds his life in danger. Pagan knows he is on to something but what? Then the lovely Estonian woman appears and leads Pagan to the center of it all. Readers of Jig will be thrilled with another heart-stopper book.

Other novels of interest are: Henry McGee is not Dead by Bill Granger, "a November Man novel." Transported to the remote tundra outposts and rough Alaskan cities, Bill Devereaux, code named November Man, follows the trail of a mysterious dead man named Henry McGee.

Fireflies by David Morrell is the uplifting and moving real-life account of 15-year-old Matthew Morrell's fight against a rare form of bone cancer.

Three days after son Matthew's death, David experienced several extraordinary almost "mystical events." These revelations are the core of this passionate and inspiring book that leads one to find hope in loss and salvation in sorrow. "No thriller Morrell has ever written can equal the force of the actual events described here."

One biography you may be interested in along with upcoming T.V. programs is The Marcos Dynasty by Sterling Seagrave. This is the incredible inside story behind the corruption of Imelda and Ferdinand Marcos and the involvement of American business, organized crime, the CIA, the Pentagon, and the White House.

Theo and Me: Growing Up Okay by Malcolm-Jamal Warner with a foreword by Bill Cosby. Warner plays Theo Huxtable on "the Cosby Show" one of America's most visible teenagers. This book was inspired by the hundreds of letters received by Malcolm weekly. Kids seek in him an outlet for their fears and frustrations about growing up in a time that seems lacking in direction.

Malcolm speaks candidly about family problems, school, sex, depression, drugs, birth control, love and friendship. He doesn't claim to have all the answers, but tries to shed some light on a few of the troubled spots kids face. "No, I'm not a psychologist or social worker" says Malcolm. "I'm not in any position to give advice or counseling... This book is about being a friend, about opening our eyes, about listening. On those subjects I think I'm qualified." I found this book to be very interesting.

One of the best, or most helpful books I have seen in a long time is Better Homes and Gardens Tasty Timesaving Cookbook. These recipes seem to have few ingredients and require few utensils in preparation. To me, time-saving cooking includes time-saving cleanup.

NOEL AVERY, KENNETH HUTSON

Couple to wed

Noel Jeanine Avery of Amarillo and Kenneth Earl Hutson of Hereford plan to exchange wedding vows Jan. 7, 1989, in First United Methodist Church.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Jeanine Avery of Amarillo and John D. Avery of St. Louis, Mo. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Lee of Hereford and Shorty Hutson, also of Hereford.

Both Miss Avery and Hutson are 1988 Hereford High School graduates. The bride-elect is currently attending West Texas State University.

DSC Program Council to meet

The annual meeting of the Deaf Smith County Extension Program Council will be held Tuesday at 7 p.m. at K-Bob's Steak House in Hereford.

Speaker for this event will be Dick Cummins who has served as project coordinator for the Texas Volunteers for Rural Families Project. This project trained volunteer counselors who are equipped to help farm and ranch families assess the financial situation in their operation, identify problem areas and offer alternative strategies to improve profitability. In addition to this project assisting farm and ranch families, it has application for family budgeting and planning.

Following the meal and speaker, special awards will be presented to members serving in committee service on crops, livestock, home economics and family issue, 4-H and community development.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion, handicap, or national origin.

Youth may visit with Santa

Local youngsters will have the opportunity to visit and have breakfast with Santa on Saturday, Dec. 3, when Texas Classroom Teacher's Association will sponsor "A Breakfast With Santa."

The event will be held at the Hereford High School cafeteria from 9-11 a.m. Cost for the breakfast is $1.50.

Proceeds will go for scholarships for teachers who are continuing their education. All children, from 0-12 years of age, are invited to come and enjoy breakfast and visit with Santa.

The original manuscript of Lewis Carroll's Alice's Adventures in Wonderland was sold in 1928 for $75,250.

BEWARE OF BOTULISM
 ORADELL, N.J. (AP) — The traditional suspect in cases of botulism has always been the consumption of home-canned food.

But it may masquerade as various other diseases before a positive diagnosis is made, says Patient Care magazine. If abdominal distention, constipation, fixed and dilated pupils or dryness of the mucous membranes persist for days on end, it's time to test the symptoms. If botulism is confirmed, prompt treatment with an antitoxin is required.

The best reason for supporting Channel 2 is a little one.

The typical American child spends twice as much time in front of the television as in a classroom. That's why it's comforting to know that public television is the major source of quality programming for children and teenagers.

Outstanding series like SESAME STREET, MISTER ROGERS' NEIGHBORHOOD, 3-2-1 CONTACT, WONDERWORKS, SQUARE ONE TV, DEGRASSI JUNIOR HIGH and READING RAINBOW make learning fun and television for young people worthwhile.

Invest in a child's education by supporting Channel 2. Your KACV-TV membership makes innovative children's television possible. Choose a membership level listed below and return the response card to Channel 2. Because little ones are the best reasons for supporting KACV.

Wilma Bryan presented life membership at club meeting

Members of Bud to Blossom Garden Club met recently in the home of Jane White with roll call answered with "where my compost pile is located."

During the business session, a resignation letter from Tracey Duncan, who is moving to California with her family, was read and accepted by members and a get-well card was signed and sent to member Cathie Richardson.

A life membership to the Texas Garden Clubs was presented to Wilma Bryan, who has been a club member since 1971 and has held numerous club offices. She enjoys flower arranging and makes many corsages and bouquets for local weddings and other special occasions.

Ursalee Jacobsen and Pat Robinson reported on the recent zone meeting in Pampa. Those attending from Hereford were Bryan, Naomi Hare, Mildred Fuhrmann, Jacobsen and Robinson.

Members were reminded of the next meeting Dec. 1 at Westgate Nursing Home. They will decorate the halls for the Christmas season and then adjourn to the home of Ursalee Jacobsen for a holiday social.

Robinson also reported on the district board meeting in Lubbock and Bryan and Maria Escamilla reported on the Hereford Garden Center.

A program on mulching was given by new club member, Maria Escamilla, and White presented the conservation series entitled "A Growing Concern." White gave several useful tips on mulching and told the group that mulching provides year-round benefits. She also explained that there are organic and inorganic forms of mulch a gardener can use and that mulched soil warms earlier in the spring than bare soil.

Making decorations

With the assistance from Bud to Blossom Garden Club members, Westgate Nursing Home resident Orville Culp, made a Christmas wreath recently. The club will meet Dec. 1 at the Home where members will decorate the halls for the holiday season.

The most Olympic gold medals won in field events is ten individual medals by Ray C. Ewry of the U.S. between 1900 and 1908.

Public may participate locally in Handel's 'Messiah'

St. Thomas Episcopal Church, in conjunction with the Hereford Chamber Singers, will again sponsor a "sing-along" of Handel's "Messiah," to be held on Sunday, Dec. 11, at 3 p.m. in the nave of the church.

The community is invited to take part in singing the Christmas choruses of this work. If you do not wish to sing, you are invited to come and take part in listening to this great work.

If you would like to sing solo parts, or play an instrument contact either

Bill Devers at 364-4063 or Linda Gilbert at 364-0677.

An offering will be taken during the event, with the donation going to the United Way Fund of Deaf Smith County.

In 1849, Elizabeth Blackwell was the first American woman to become a doctor.

Thank You

To all our friends who knew & loved Nell, we would like to express our deepest gratitude. The giving of such wonderful foods, flowers, prayers & cards has been a blessing to our family. You were here when we needed you most & we have been comforted in knowing that you have shared our loss.

The family of Nell Miller

BEWARE OF FLOOD WATER

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — After a hurricane, eat nothing that has been touched by flood waters.

Dispose of all mattresses, pillows and cushions that have been in flood waters.

Disinfect all cans and utensils before use if they have been touched by flood waters.

Comfortable sitting area

La Madre Mia Study Club members, (from left), Mary Herring and Marlene Watson, enjoy resting in the intimate sitting area of the master bedroom in the Earl Brookhart home at 200 Kingwood. The home will be one of the residences featured on the club's 19th Annual Christmas Tour of Homes set from 2-5 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 4. Also open for public viewing will be the homes of Lee Roy and Erma Rickman, 500 Union, and John and Jodi Meyer, 328 Fir. Tickets are $2 per person and may be purchased from club members or at the three homes. At the conclusion of the benefit tour, the winner of the door prize, $25 in Hereford bucks, will be announced at the E.B. Black House where refreshments will be served during the afternoon. Club members who will be serving as home tour hostesses will be wearing white aprons.

HIDDEN MESSAGE

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — During the 1930s, the comic strip "Orphan Annie" carried a hidden message to untold numbers of Americans who were troubled by the liberalism of the New Deal programs, says University of Rochester historian Jesse Moore.

Unlike the strips of the early 20th century that were meant to be funny, strips of the 1930s began focusing on adventure and social commentary.

"The fact that Orphan Annie took care of herself and surmounted adversity on her own is significant," says Moore. "It implied that the government should not be taking care of an individual's problems."

Extension News

By BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent
EVERYONE SHOULD KNOW HIS OR HER
BLOOD CHOLESTEROL LEVEL

The National Cholesterol Education Program recommends that cholesterol tests become a routine part of all physical examinations, and all adults should know their cholesterol count. If the results show a cholesterol level:

-Under 200 mg/dl: The person is probably in a low-risk group. He or she should be retested at each complete physical and certainly every five years.

-Over 200 mg/dl: A second blood test should be done to confirm the findings of the first one.

-Over 200 but less than 240 on the second test: The person should be advised to go on a low-fat cholesterol-lowering diet.

-Over 240 on the second test: The testing laboratory will be asked to provide a breakdown of HDLs, LDLs and other blood lipids. People with existing heart disease or major risk factors such as high blood pressure, diabetes, obesity and cigarette smoking should have HDL and LDL levels tested regardless of the total cholesterol count.

Depending on results, a strict diet and lifestyle changes may be prescribed.

If not totally successful, drugs may be necessary along with the diet.

NCA winners

Schumacher, 2nd place winner of a cassette tape recorder; and Brack Bryant, 3rd place winner of a radio.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a woman who has held executive positions in a major firm for 20 years. People have always confided in me for reasons I am not sure of.

I am disturbed at the number of men and women who tell me they are unhappily married and say the problem is in the bedroom. At least half of the couples would get a divorce if they could do so without suffering financially.

As I listen to the sad stories from both men and women I almost always hear, "Our sex life was great—until we got married, then it went to hell." Why does this happen? I'm eager to hear your views.—Oil Country Q

DEAR OIL COUNTRY: Good question—no that has many answers, I'm sure. I'll put it to my readers.

Please drop me a post card (Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562) and tell me. You need not sign your name, just say if you are a male or female, your age and if your sex life has gone downhill since marriage and why. I'll print the results in a few weeks.

First-time home buyers might consider a foreclosed home. The price of a foreclosed home may be lower than similar homes and financing may be more attractive.

Storybook characters

Local residents of all ages have observed November as 'I'd Rather Read' month, emphasizing the importance of reading. Teachers and students at Northwest Elementary School dressed as their favorite storybook heroes Wednesday. Tricia Sims, left, appeared as Mary Poppins while student Jerri Rule dressed as a ladybug during the school's Book Character Parade.

Arts, crafts bazaar set

Dimmitt Young Homemakers will have their annual Christmas Arts & Crafts Bazaar on Saturday, Dec. 3 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Expo Building at Dimmitt (403 S.E. 4th).

Approximately 30 individuals and groups will be selling items such as woodworks, paintings, metal crafts, ceramics, baskets, stained glass, jewelry, homemade candy and foods, needlework, painted T-shirts, sweatshirts, dresses and more.

On average, Salt Lake City, Utah gets 17 inches more snow a year than Fairbanks, Alaska.

Rowton, May attend War on Drugs

Dianne Rowton and Rene May, members of the Hereford High School WATCH team (We Are The Caring Helpers) attended the Texans' War On Drugs Annual Adult Leadership Conference held Oct. 20-22 in Austin.

They were among over 200 concerned members of Texas communities, as well as individuals in the field of education, mental and physical health, government, business, and law enforcement came together to learn and share new drug use prevention strategies as well as hear representatives from the national arena.

Gov. William P. Clements Jr., addressed the conference during opening ceremonies, along with John C. Lawn, administrator of the Drug Enforcement Administration. Other keynote speakers during the TWOD conference included Dr. Donald Ian Macdonald, special assistant to the President for Drug Abuse Policy, in addition to Dick Hays, director of the Drug Abuse Prevention Oversight Staff, U.S. Dept. of Education.

Headquartered in Austin, with regional offices throughout the state of Texas, Texans' War on Drugs works in partnership with all segments of society in a united effort to raise public awareness of the harmful effects of drugs and to promote a drug-free lifestyle.

TWOD, the only statewide organization dedicated solely to drug use prevention, was inaugurated in 1980 by Gov. Clements and was cited in 1987 as a model program by the National Association of State Alcohol and Drug Abuse Directors and the National Prevention Network.

For more information about Texans' War on Drugs, write to 11044-D Research Blvd., Suite 200, Austin, Texas 78759. Or phone (512)343-6950.

Farm and Ranch

INS crackdown is Dec. 1

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Farm Bureau Federation says it fears federal agents are waiting with "bated breath" to corral farmers who hire undocumented aliens when the immigration sanctions take effect Dec. 1.

But a spokesman for the Immigration and Naturalization Service says those worries are unfounded and that the agency will be evenhanded in enforcing the employer sanctions against farmers.

Nevertheless, a labor specialist at the U.S. Department of Agriculture acknowledged that some farmers are afraid of an INS crackdown.

Most employers, including farmers of non-perishables, dairy farmers and cattlemen, have been barred from hiring undocumented workers since June 1987, and have been subject to fines on the first offense since this past June. But perishable crop farmers won a reprieve from full sanctions until Dec. 1 under the 1986 Immigration Reform and Control Act.

On the eve of the sanctions, officials of the American Farm Bureau, the nation's largest farm organization in membership, say they believe the decks are now clear for the INS to target agriculture. They also complain the law is tightening up the farm labor market, which could lead to shortages come next year's harvests.

"Any farmer starting Dec. 1 who knowingly hires an undocumented worker ought to have his head examined because he's more than likely to get caught," said Chuck Fields, an assistant director of national affairs for the American Farm Bureau.

"The INS is waiting with baited breath to get some farmers. They're waiting in line to pounce on the farmers and we're warning farmers that they should not take the risk of employing anyone illegally," Fields said.

Fields said the INS fought giving farmers the extra time, but "we beat their hides on that and they never liked that."

Texas Farm Bureau spokesman Vernie Glasson said the INS, with its ranks boosted by the legislation, is obligated to carry out the law "and I fully expect they'll carry it out to their fullest."

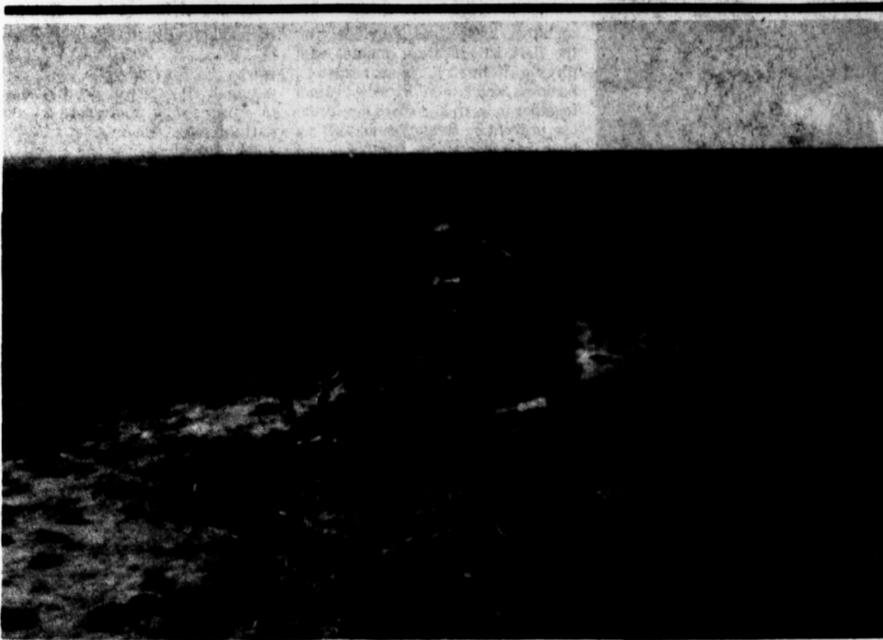

INS spokesman Verne Jervis said the agency has no reason to treat farmers any differently than other businesses and "our approach to employer sanctions is a very reasonable one. We're not interested in collecting fines, we're interested in compliance."

Al French, labor specialist at the U.S. Department of Agriculture, said emotions among farmers range from a little paranoia to a fear of being scorched by complacency toward the INS because of beliefs it will be impossible to enforce the regulations.

"We can expect constant, steady enforcement activity on the part of the INS," French said.

French said it is too early to tell whether farmers will face labor shortages because of the law, which included a provision that allowed aliens who had worked in perishable U.S. agriculture to seek amnesty through Nov. 30. Under the special agricultural worker (SAW) program, the INS said more than 1 million aliens have sought amnesty. But it is unknown how many will continue to work in the fields and how many will seek other jobs.

USDA and the Labor Department will monitor the situation through the coming growing season to determine whether the replenishment agricultural worker (RAW) program should be opened in late 1989 to provide workers for the 1990 season.

Fire damage

A Thursday fire destroyed most of a section of CRP grassland and several bales of hay owned by Shirley Garrison about 20 miles west of Hereford. The field adjoins a public road, from which the fire is believed to have started. Firebreaks can be designed by local Soil Conservation Service personnel and added to existing CRP contracts. For more information, contact the SCS office at 364-6995.

Aggies clone big 1015 onion

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Researchers at Texas A&M University used tissue culture techniques to develop a way to clone a female version of the softball-sized "1015 super onion."

The process is expected to improve profits for growers in a matter of years and also improve the quality and yield of the onions.

The team of researchers, which has been perfecting the onion for more than 15 years, now can use tissue culture techniques for developing thousands of identical plants from one flower head. A flower head normally contains 300 to 400 tiny flowers and each can be used to regenerate about five plants, each eventually transplanted into the field for seed production, said Leonard Pike of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

"We've just brought the onion industry into the 21st century and now can develop new strains in a matter of years," Pike said.

Gault, Griffin TCVA inductees at McAllen hall

Two Hereford men, one deceased, were recently honored by the Texas Citrus and Vegetable Association (TCVA) by being selected into the first Produce Hall of Fame.

Among the 18 pioneers honored were Jack Griffin and the late Howard Gault. The association selected 11 deceased and seven living inductees. About 500 people attended an awards ceremony in McAllen last week.

The pioneers were selected for their demonstrated leadership in the produce industry and involvement in the TCVA. Former Gov. Dolph Briscoe was featured speaker and presented the awards.

"The establishment of a Texas Produce Hall of Fame is a proud moment in our association's history," said TCVA leader Bill Weeks. "There are many people who helped pioneer our state's fresh produce industry and deserve special recognition."

Inductees into the hall must be 70 years or older, with deceased leaders having no age limit requirement at the time of death.

Handling drugs correctly can make the difference in value and safety. The Animal Health Institute offers these suggestions for getting the most value for your investment in dosage-form animal drugs and to avoid the possibility of illegal drug residues. First, always read and follow label instructions for preparing the product and to determine the proper dosage. Instructions may also tell the best time to administer the drug and any necessary prelaughter drug withdrawal times. When using implants, check the instructions for implanting in the proper location and in the correct manner. When using a syringe, use the correct needle gauge and length. Select the correct injection site. If using two injections, use two different syringes and two separate injection sites. Properly dispose of empty drug containers. Do not use these containers again or for any other purpose.

Party Walnut Broccoli

3 10-oz. packages frozen chopped broccoli
 6 tablespoons margarine
 4 tablespoons flour
 1 cup chicken broth
 2 cups skim milk
 2/3 cup water
 2 cups herbed poultry stuffing (crumbly type)
 2/3 cup chopped walnuts

Cook broccoli according to package directions until just barely tender. Drain well and place in oiled 2-qt. casserole. Melt 2 tablespoons margarine in a saucepan. Stir in the flour; cook briefly, and then add milk. Add chicken broth and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Set aside. Melt remaining margarine in water. Mix with herb dressing and walnuts. Pour chicken broth sauce over broccoli, sprinkle evenly with walnut mixture and bake at 400 degrees for 20 minutes or until crusty on top. Serves 6.

Texas pecan crop one of best

COLLEGE STATION — While not a bumper harvest, the 1988 Texas pecan crop has the makings of one of the best ever. And that should be good news for consumers.
 "This year's pecan crop should total about 50 million pounds and be of high quality," said Dr. George Ray McEachern, horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "That projected yield does not include backyard trees that are not harvested for commercial sale."
 According to McEachern, the 1988 crop came a long way from a poor start in the spring and a season-long drought that caused considerable nut shedding in July and August.
 However, disease and insect problems were only minor in this year's crop. For example, pecan scab disease was virtually nonexistent due to the dry weather. And pecan nut casebearers, pecan weevils and aphids did not cause major problems.

 "The dry weather early in the season reduced nut size," McEachern said, "but, because of this, the kernel filling or percent meat is generally good over most of Texas."
 Because this year's crop is plentiful, of good quality and at a favorable price, consumers should stock up on the tasty morsels for the coming year, said McEachern. Should a dry winter follow this year's drought, pecan production would suffer in 1989. So consumers may want to buy larger amounts and store them in a refrigerator or freezer.

"With proper storage, pecans will maintain their quality almost indefinitely," he said.
GALLONS OF 'MUD'
 BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) — It's hard to drill for oil without mud.
 Into almost every well, oil drillers pump thousands of gallons of "mud" — actually a scientifically formulated mixture of chemical additives and oil or water — to cool the drill bit and carry rock fragments to the surface.
 Drilling Specialties Co. says special additives to the mud help control unstable conditions deep in the ground, enabling drillers to reach record depths.

Use Thanksgiving leftovers to slim down

NEW YORK (AP) — What do you do with a refrigerator full of holiday leftovers and a house full of overfed people complaining about their weight?
 Forget turkey sandwiches dripping with mayonnaise and pumpkin pie topped with whipped cream. Instead, slim down the weekend's fare with a few simple yet tasty dishes made with yogurt.
 Curry yogurt turkey pita sandwiches make a quick, light lunch while watching football games, a Mexican turkey and yogurt casserole appeals to waist-watching Sunday dinner guests, and sweet potato yogurt bread satisfies sweet tooth cravings at any meal.

CURRY YOGURT TURKEY PITA
 1 cup low-fat plain yogurt
 2 teaspoons honey
 1 teaspoon curry powder
 1 rib celery, chopped
 1 carrot, grated
 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
 2 cups coarsely chopped cooked turkey
 1/4 cup raisins
 3 pita pocket breads, halved
 Lettuce leaves

In bowl combine yogurt, honey and curry; stir in celery, carrot and onion. Fold in turkey and raisins; cover and chill. To serve, line each pita half with lettuce; fill with turkey mixture. Serves 6.
 Per serving: 210 calories.

thoroughly combine flour, milk, eggs, baking powder, salt, yogurt and 1/2 cup cheese. Pour evenly over turkey mixture. Bake 25 to 30 minutes or until custard is set. Sprinkle with remaining cheese. Return to oven until cheese melts, serve immediately. Serves 8.
 Per serving: 265 calories.

SWEET POTATO YOGURT BREAD
 2 cups all-purpose flour
 2 teaspoons baking powder
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/4 teaspoon baking soda
 2 teaspoons pumpkin pie spice
 1 cup cooked, mashed sweet potato (or pumpkin)
 1/2 cup sugar
 1/4 cup vegetable oil
 1/2 cup low-fat vanilla yogurt
 2 eggs
 1/2 cup nuts (optional)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Spray an 8- by 4-inch loaf pan with no-stick cooking spray. In medium bowl, combine flour, baking powder, salt, baking soda and pumpkin pie spice; set aside. In another bowl, beat sweet potato, sugar, oil, yogurt and eggs until smooth. Add flour mixture, stirring only until flour is moistened; do not overmix. Fold in nuts; turn into prepared pan.
 Bake 55 minutes or until toothpick inserted comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes; remove from pan. Cool completely before slicing. Serves 16.
 Per serving: 175 calories.

MEXICAN TURKEY AND YOGURT CASSEROLE
 3 cups cooked turkey, cut in pieces
 One 16-ounce jar mild thick and chunky salsa
 2 cups canned or frozen corn, drained
 1/2 teaspoon chili powder (optional)
 Dash cayenne pepper (optional)
 1/2 cup flour
 1/4 cup low-fat milk
 2 eggs
 1 teaspoon baking powder
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 8 ounces low-fat plain yogurt
 1 cup shredded Monterey jack cheese or jack cheese with jalapeno peppers.

Preheat oven to 375 degrees F. In 2 1/2-quart oblong baking dish, combine turkey, salsa, corn, chili powder and cayenne pepper. In bowl
