AUSTIN (AP) — A West Texas senator looking out for his own switched his vote and enabled the Senate to approve a bill that would legalize pari-mutuel betting on horse races in Texas for the first time in 46 years.

"Sometimes, being from West Texas, you've got to fight for what you get, so here we are," said Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock.

Rep. Froy Salinas, D-Lubbock, brought word of the bill's passage to the House on Tuesday — "I have a message for the House. The ponies are coming."

Senate bill sponsor O.H. "Ike" Harris, R-Dallas, said Montford volunteered to switch his vote and give Harris the two-thirds — or 21-10 — count he needed to get the horse race bill before the Senate for final passage.

After that vote on suspension of the rules, Montford won 25-6 approval of an amendment that would raise the state's share of the proceeds from total horse race bets from 5 percent to 8 percent. The extra 3 percent would go to the state water development fund, which could be important to Montford's water-short area.

The other 5 percent of the state's share would be used for welfare payments to families with dependent children. The track and race winners each would get 5 percent, and the rest would go to bettors.

The bill was finally approved 18-13, with Montford voting against the measure, but at that point Harris only needed a majority.

Asked how he felt about the water amendment, Harris said, "I'd rather not have it, but it was important to take it — not only for the vote but for the cause which he was shooting for, which I'm in sympathy with."

The Senate bill would legalize betting on a local-option basis if voters pass a November 1984 statewide referendum.

Harris had been trying since Thursday, when the Senate tentatively approved the bill 17-12, to collect enough votes to bring it up for a final vote, but he said he would not have made the attempt Tuesday if Montford had not offered to switch.

"I'm against horse racing," Montford told reporters, "but we're not really voting on horse racing or pari-mutuel betting. I think the issue is shall we give the people the right to vote on it."

Although a majority of eight members of the 15-member House Committee on Urban Affairs are on record against the bill, Harris says he has heard "from good sources over there that things will change when we get the momentum going here and get the bill over to them."

Texas has horse racing at 16 tracks, but pari-mutuel wagering — where money goes into a pool to be shared by the state, track, race winners and betters — has been outlawed since 1937. Pari-mutuel betting had been in effect only four years at the time.

The bill would create an eight-member commission, with six appointed by the governor, plus the state comptroller and director of Department of Public Safety, to administer the Texas Horse Racing Act.

If local voters rejected or approved horse race betting, another election to change the results would be held in five years.

Reagan hopping jets today to focus on economy, domestic and foreign policies

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, racing from Washington to New York and then to Capitol Hill, is appealing for support for his domestic program by day and for his Central American aid program by night.

The president was making a series of public appearances in a nine-hour span today intended to focus first on his accomplishments in taming the economy, and then on what he hopes to do in Central America.

Reagan was flying to New York this morning, to visit the Midtown South precinct, where more arrests are made than in any other part of the city, and then to address the 97th annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

In the evening, he is making a nationally broadcast speech to a joint session of the House and Senate, hoping to win support from middle-of-the-road members of Congress as he tries to boost U.S.

funds for forces fighting the leftist insurgency in El Salvador.

"It's a two-cushion shot," said deputy White House press secretary Peter Rousell. "He's pretty much trying to generate support for his domestic program by day and his foreign program by night."

Rousell said the president, in addressing the publishers before a brief question-and-answer session at the meeting at the Waldorf-

Astoria Hotel, would point to economic achievements: improved economic indicators, a rebounding stock market, and the slowed growth in the rate of federal spending. He also was expected to touch on his Central American policy.

The visit to the police station was intended to highlight a decline in the crime rate, Rousell said.

The New York Daily News invited a group of New Yorkers to the police precinct house as part of a crimefighter campaign intended to honor local citizens for contributions in stopping crime.

Midtown South contains fewer than 23 miles of streets and covers less than one square mile, but according to White House data, an estimated 5 million people pass through it during a business day.

The precinct handles an average of 47,260 complaints a year and the 351 officers assigned to it make approximately 21,600 arrests a year.

Reagan's speech tonight, a direct appeal to Congress in a joint session, is an unusual step. Presidential appearances before both houses are generally limited to State of the Union addresses.

The speech follows a recent surge in congressional interest in El Salvador and the other nations of the troubled region as the president tries to boost the flow of U.S. dollars there.

Shultz to ask Begin to be more flexible

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz arrived in Israel today to ask Prime Minister Menachem Begin to be more flexible in U.S.-sponsored troop withdrawal negotiations with Lebanon.

The meeting will be the first ever between the two men and could prove pivotal to the success of Shultz's trip, his first to the Middle East as secretary of state.

Shultz, on arriving from Egypt at Ben-Gurion International Airport near Tel Aviv, pledged aid and security for Israel's northern border.

"A number of difficult issues remain, but so much has already been accomplished in this negotiation that none of us can allow it to fail," Shultz said before leaving in a motorcade for Jerusalem.

Shultz said he would also discuss "the broader process of helping to bring peace between Israel and all its neighbors. President Reagan is committed to this process, as he is committed without qualification to Israel's survival, security and well-being."

State Department spokesman John Hughes said earlier in the day that Shultz thinks he has "a fair shot" at getting the Israelis to agree to pull out their estimated 25,000 troops from Lebanon.

At the Cairo airport, before flying to Israel, Shultz said his stopover in Egypt gave him with "renewed enthusiasm and greater determination to do everything possible to seek a greater element of peace in the Middle East."

He spoke of "overriding importance" of "bringing an environment where Lebanon is sovereign territory and free of all forces."

So far the Israelis have insisted that any withdrawal from Lebanon be conditional on letting their Lebanese ally, renegade Maj. Saad Haddad, command forces in the southern part of the country bordering Israel. The Lebanese government of President Amin Gemayel rejects this as undermining its army and its sovereignty.

Shultz received a solid endorsement of his mission Tuesday from Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak during a meeting in Cairo that lasted nearly four hours.

"We will do everything we can in bringing about a resolution of the Lebanon (See SHULTZ, page 2)

POWER gearing up for public hearing

Members of POWER (People Opposing Wasted Energy Repositories) are gearing up to present a sound opposition to the proposed nuclear waste site when the public hearing is held here May 16.

About 30 POWER members met Tuesday night to toss around ideas on gaining more public interest on the issue and to ready the community for the hearing. The group will be sponsoring several activities in May as part of a Nuclear Issues Awareness Month.

Dale Klueskens said Steve Frishman of the TENRAC office has offered to help anyone prepare statements for the hearing and will plan a date for that soon. POWER is planning to have several persons prepare oral statements for the hearing and have as many people as possible give their views through written statements.

U.S. Rep. Kent Hance is scheduled to attend the hearing after meeting with constituents on that Monday.

On May 3, POWER is bringing Marvin Resnikoff of the Council for Economic Priority for a meeting at 8 p.m. in the Community Center. The group plans a petition drive on May 7. Mary Tucker of the Nuclear Information Research Center will meet here May 12.

Dr. Tim Revell, president of POWER, said he has contacted all of the legislatures of states which are fed by the Ogallala Aquifer to notify them of the hearing.

Revell said the Department of Energy has also tentatively obtained three more leases for drilling sites. Not all have been signed, but Revell noted that the DOE is proceeding as it pleases and urged POWER members to continue the protest.

Klueskens said concerned residents need to keep writing letters to public officials. He said Gov. Mark White's stand against the repository was directly related to public outcry in letters and phone calls.

Land bank to lower loan rates

Interest rates on Land Bank variable-rate loans will be reduced to 11 percent on farm loans and to 11.5 percent on rural residences and farm-related business loans, it was announced today by Dave Peterson, president of the Federal Land Bank Association of Hereford.

The new rates will be effective May 1, 1983. In addition, the Land Bank has reduced its bank-closed loan fees to 1 percent on farm loans and 2 percent on rural residence and farm-related business loans, according to Thomas H. Benson, president of the Federal Land Bank of Texas. These reduced rates were effective April 25.

"The adjustments follow reductions made earlier this year," Benson said. The bank's interest rate on farm loans was lowered to 11.25 percent on Jan. 1 of this year.

In February, bank-closed loan fees were reduced from 4 to 2 percent on farm loans, and from 7 to 4 percent on rural residence and farm-related business loans. The fee reductions were made possible, said Benson, by the decrease in the bank's cost of funds.

The Federal Land Bank Association of Hereford makes long-term real estate loans in the counties of Deaf Smith and Farmer.

Witnesses aid police efforts

Witnesses to crime halted a theft and led police to a criminal mischief suspect Monday.

A juvenile was taken into custody after witnesses told police he was the subject who had slashed some tires on a car parked at Galaxy Arcade.

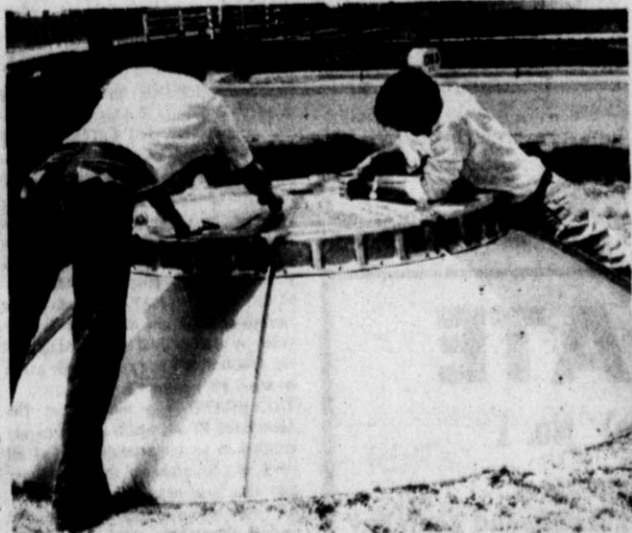

A high school girl called police while some neighborhood boys chased off three juveniles who were attempting to steal a three-wheeler motorcycle from a neighbor's home Monday.

Three thefts were reported

Monday. At a grocery store, a woman who laid her billfold down lost it and $30 to a thief.

Skeet's Diagnostic Center reported an impact wrench taken. McGee Furniture is missing a set of brass rabbits and a set of brass cats valued at $80.

Police arrested one person each for drunk in control of a vehicle, public intoxicant by inhalant and driving while license suspended. One minor accident was checked and patrolmen issued 13 citations.

Court denies claim in Hughes case

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court today denied the appeal of a Las Vegas woman who said she was entitled to part of the Howard Hughes' fortune because she was his illegitimate daughter.

Clare Benedict Hudenburg said she first believed she was Hughes' daughter in 1974 when she saw a photograph of the billionaire industrialist.

"I was kind of stunned by the physical resemblance between Mr. Hughes and myself," she said in a deposition.

She also said a man who had worked for Hughes walked up to her and said, "You're Howard Hughes' daughter."

The man showed her a picture of Hughes and said, "Look at the chin, the cheekbones, look at the wrinkles on your forehead, look at your hands," she said he told her.

Hughes died April 5, 1976, on a flight from Mexico to Houston. His death sparked many lawsuits from people claiming to be heirs.

Ms. Hudenburg was born in Chicago in 1940. A birth certificate filed with court records showed that her mother was unmarried.

A Houston trial court denied her claim, as did the 14th Court of Appeals in Houston.

The Texas Supreme Court, without writing an opinion, found no reversible error in the lower court rulings.

Willie Nelson barred from Special Olympics

AUSTIN (AP) — The sponsor of a sports event for mentally retarded people says he had to cancel a scheduled benefit appearance by Willie Nelson because University of Texas officials feared the popular singer would attract "undesirables" to the UT campus.

"It's a great disappointment to us," Denis Poulos, executive director of the Texas Special Olympics, told the Austin American-Statesman.

University officials had no immediate comment today. Amy Jo Long, director of the university's publicity office, said, "All executive officers are in a meeting every Wednesday morning at this time."

Poulos said Nelson had agreed to perform free on May 25 for 15 to 20 minutes to kick off the three-day event. Poulos said he met with UT officials Friday to discuss arrangements for the games, which will take place in the university's Memorial Stadium.

"There was also discussion about the type of people who would come out to a Willie Nelson concert. They said they might anticipate some undesirables," Poulos said.

Sarah Key, a UT housing official who attended Friday's meeting, said Special Olympics officials withdrew their request to have Nelson appear after being told of the security arrangements required for a concert.

She would not say whether the discussion included the type of audience expected to attend if Nelson performed.

Poulos said security would have cost Special Olympics nearly $12,000.

"UT has extended to us a very cordial working atmosphere," he said. "We are just disappointed that we couldn't go this one step forward."

He said the Special Olympics board, however, has advised him to begin looking for alternative sites for next year's events.

Schools fighting frozen tax for elderly

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — More than a dozen Texas school districts are banding together to fight tax regulations that they say unfairly penalize communities with high ratios of older citizens, the San Antonio News reported today.

The effort could culminate in a court battle that could affect taxpayers statewide, the News said.

Spokesmen for the districts say "frozen" property owned by Texans over age 65 is not taken into account when state aid to local districts is computed. The tax value on such property is frozen when citizens reach age 65, but it is reported at full market value to determine state aid to the school districts.

"They count it, whether we can collect the money or not," said Calvin Gross, superintendent of the school district in Alamo Heights, a San Antonio suburb. "They ought to subtract the amount of the frozen valuation."

Attorney Richard Gray, representing the school district in Highland Park, a Dallas suburb, said he was filing a lawsuit contesting the issue in Austin state district court.

Gray said the situation is "severely affecting" several Texas school districts and "is a form of double jeopardy for the other taxpayers."

Other districts fighting the regulations are Brady, Burleson, Burnett Consolidated, Childress, Fredericksburg, Goldthwaite, Hamilton, Hico, Hitchcock, Kerrville and Lindale, Gross said.

Appeals to the state property tax board have been unsuccessful, Gross said.

Salt cleanup hits legal snag

ALTUS, Okla. (AP) — Questions of a cost breakdown and concern over the legality of an interstate compact are holding up approval of an agreement to clean up some of the natural salt pollution in the Arkansas and Red River Basin.

Members of the Red River Compact Commission heard the Army Corps of Engineers' division engineer explain the proposal Tuesday, then agreed to have their advisers look into several aspects of the proposed agreement.

Representatives of the four states involved — Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana — said they wanted their legal advisers to go over the agreement again to make certain it is legally permissible for them to enter into it.

In addition, they said they would direct their engineering advisers to look at the benefit figures provided by Maj. Gen. Hugh Robinson, engineer for the Southwest Division of the Army Engineers.

Robinson cited figures showing that Texas would receive 83 percent of the benefit of cleaning up the salt. Oklahoma would receive 10 percent of the benefit, Louisiana 6 percent and Arkansas 1 percent.

Although Robinson said the agreement needs only the signature of the secretary of the Army to become effective, there still is no agreement on how the cost of the project will be split among the four states and the federal government.

Panel told reform bill could stick taxpayers

AUSTIN (AP) — Representatives of MCI and U.S. Tel have told a House panel that a Senate-passed utility "reform" bill could allow Southwestern Bell and AT&T to undercut long-distance competitors and charge off the loss to local ratepayers.

Southwestern Bell Vice President told a House subcommittee on Tuesday that the charges are "preposterous."

AT&T is under a federal order to divest itself of regional companies such as Southwestern Bell. The order goes into effect on Jan. 1, 1984.

The bill that the Senate sent to the House earlier this month largely concerns the Public Utility Commission and its regulation of electric companies.

But a section covering telephone utilities was amended with Bell-proposed language to deal with the AT&T divestiture.

A federal judge has accepted an AT&T plan for Texas under which 15 multi-county market areas would get long-distance service from Southwestern Bell, while AT&T would provide long-distance service between the market areas.

The Senate bill allows the PUC to create its own market areas for purposes of setting rates, within which non-dominant carriers would be unregulated.

If the PUC created market areas where Southwestern Bell and AT&T service overlapped, Bell opponents argued, Bell and AT&T would split the market and neither would be dominant. They could then lower long-distance rates to undercut the smaller long-distance companies, the smaller companies said.

AT&T, they argue, could make up its split profit by seeking higher long-distance rates in the mostly rural long-distance area where it still would be dominant.

Southwestern Bell, on the other hand, the smaller com-

Instructors acquitted on child injury charges

HOUSTON (AP) — Two elementary school instructors accused of force-feeding broccoli to a 9-year-old student have been acquitted on charges of injury to a child.

County Court-at-Law Judge Robert Musselwhite returned the verdict Tuesday, moments after a classmate testified the alleged victim, Calvin Charles Herring, "always" lies.

Special education teacher Rosemarie Barbalato, 22, called the two-day trial "an unexpected and undeserved ordeal" for herself and aide Patricia Williams, 35.

But Ms. Barbalato said, the trial may have saved the public the painstaking job instructors have.

Defense attorney Carol Vance said the case may have already frightened other teachers into abandoning methods that are productive, yet controversial.

After charges were filed in the Jan. 12 incident at John F. Kennedy Elementary School, Vance said, there was a surge of complaints from parents about treatment of students.

Vance criticized prosecutors for accepting the charge, saying the alleged victim was allowed to "take charge" in the preliminary probe of the case.

Futuristic dart-gun debated in House

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) — A House committee is trying to decide if Texans should have the right to bear Tasers — a futuristic weapon now used by some Texas police.

"I'd a heck of a lot rather have them using a Taser than a .38," said Rep. Ed Emmett, a Kingwood Republican pushing a law that would allow Texans to plunk down their $400 and buy the weapon.

The Taser looks somewhat like a flashlight and shoots

two small darts. Thin, 14-foot wires trail behind the darts and lead to the Taser. Basically, the Taser immobilizes a victim with a low-amp, 50,000-volt jolt. The darts have very little penetration power, and the idea is to get them stuck in a victim's clothing.

At a recent House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee meeting, the Taser's force was demonstrated on Roy House, a Houston policeman who volunteered to be the "Taseree." House shook and crumbled to the floor when the charge was put to him.

He quickly rose to his feet and said he felt OK, but a little shaken.

"It's very humane," Emmett said after the startling demonstration. "Although it does look very violent."

The legal problem, according to Emmett, is that no one is quite sure if a Taser is a firearm as defined and regulated by Texas law.

"It's like trying to make airplanes function under traffic laws," he said.

There's apparently no doubt that police can use the weapon. Emmett said Houston Police SWAT teams are Taser-equipped, as are a Houston constable's deputies.

But now Taser Systems Inc., of California is pushing the Taser as a self-defense device.

"Maybe tomorrow's headline will convince you to buy a Taser," says a company brochure that calls the device an "electronic defense weapon."

"We believe the Taser is the first means of defense that does not depend on the destruction of living tissue or vital organs to be effective. If you fire it at a fellow human, you are not left with irrevocable consequences for the rest of your life," says the brochure.

Taser inventor Jack Cover told the committee that the electric impulse leaves no lasting damage.

Department of Public Safety Col. Jim Adams, who saw the demonstration, said he doesn't believe it would be a good idea to let Texans buy Tasers for self-defense.

"I was concerned when I saw the prompt effect of it on a human being," Adams said.

The DPS director said the Taser can be a good law enforcement device (although DPS has none), but "My concern would be in the area of having these available without any restrictions as to their use in the civilian market."

"I can visualize a highway patrolman walking up to a car and some drunk in there with this type of device," he said.

The Texas Civil Liberties Union, in a rare occurrence, shares some of Adams' concerns. But TCLU goes further and questions whether even the police should have electronic weapons.

Schultz

issue," Schultz told reporters afterwards with Mubarak at his side.

He said U.S. and Egyptian views are "identical on the need to get a troop withdrawal from Lebanon that will honor the necessity of a sovereign Lebanon able to rule itself."

Schultz said during the flight from Washington on Sunday that he will tell Begin the United States is prepared to help guarantee protection for Israel from terrorist attack across the border after a withdrawal. He said the possibility of an expanded U.S. security role in Lebanon will be part of their discussions.

Following his talks in Israel, Schultz is expected to visit Beirut, where he will confer with Gemayel and meet with survivors of last week's terrorist bombing of the U.S. Embassy.

Officials say Schultz is likely to make several trips between Beirut and Jerusalem in an effort to complete a withdrawal agreement.

Once he has an agreement with the Israelis, Schultz said he will try to get Syria and Palestinian guerrillas to follow through on previous promises to withdraw their forces.

But Hughes cautioned that Syria is likely to decide the status of its 38,000-man Lebanon force based on the kind of conditions Israel sets for withdrawing its troops. He said the Palestinians, with an estimated 7,000 fighters in Lebanon, are likely to do whatever the Syrians decide.

Lebanon has a population of less than 3 million.

A senior State Department official who asked not to be identified said Begin may be pressured to withdraw by "growing restiveness in Israel over the mounting number of Israeli casualties in Lebanon."

The Israelis invaded Lebanon last summer to drive out Palestinian guerrillas. The Syrians have had troops in Lebanon since the end of the 1975-76 Lebanese civil war.

In the interview, Reagan said he will make it "difficult, in fact, impossible" for Nicaragua to arm guerrilla movements in El Salvador. Condemning the Nicaraguan government, Reagan said:

"The arms and the training and even the direction of guerrilla military movements are all centered in Nicaragua...The operation of Salvadoran guerrillas are directed by radio from the capital of, near the capital of Nicaragua."

Reagan has asked Congress for $110 million in additional military aid for El Salvador this year, and for an extra $85 million for fiscal 1984, which begins Oct. 1. The aid was included in aid programs transferred to the El Salvador account.

Also on Tuesday, the Senate met in closed session to discuss whether the administration was waging a covert campaign against the Sandinista government in Nicaragua.

During the day, the administration disclosed in a letter from Secretary of State George P. Shultz to Rep. Clarence D. Long, D-Md., chairman of the House appropriations subcommittee, that Reagan would name "a senior U.S. official of ambassadorial rank" as a special envoy to Central American governments.

One administration source said that it was possible the appointment would go to former Sen. Richard Stone, D-Fla., who has represented Reagan in special missions to the region.

Guest speaks at Women's Forum luncheon

The Women's Forum met in regular session Monday afternoon for a luncheon.

An interesting program was presented by Mrs. Jeanne Hull, wife of Dr. Ivan Hull of Borger. She is a graduate librarian who donates her time to Frank Phillips College in Borger. Florene Watson, a teacher at Frank Phillips College, was with her as her assistant.

Mrs. Hull was dressed in a beautiful authentic 18th century costume. The program included a slide presentation of the interior and exterior of Mount Vernon, home of Martha and George Washington.

Mrs. Hull prefaced her talk on the Washington and Dandridge families with the King and Queen lineage from Queen Elizabeth, the last of the Tudor House, to the present Queen Elizabeth. This gave a background as to why the immigrants founded Jamestown, which is present day Williamsburg.

The talk and luncheon were enjoyed by about 30 ladies. Hostesses for the luncheon were Summerfield Study Club, Sugar Works Cake Decorating Club and VFW

Ladies Auxiliary.

Women's Forum President Leatrus Clark set a special meeting for May 23 at 3 p.m. for all officers of the Forum as well as the incoming and outgoing presidents of each of the member clubs. This will be a planning meeting for next year.

Letter writing updated

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In a recent column you had a letter form a Tulsa secretary whose boss decided the conventional salutations on business letters were old-fashioned. It reminded me of an article I clipped in July 1966, by Jane Goodsell. Perhaps you would like to share it with your readers.—Devoted Fan In Bellville

DEAR DEVOTED: That piece is as good today as it was 17 years ago. Thanks for hanging onto it. Here's a condensed version:

Letter writing is still being conducted by rules of etiquette that must have been established by the Persians. Or maybe it dates back to the Age of Chivalry, when people were very polite to each other—no matter how they felt. Actually, I don't know who laid down those silly rules, but they are long overdue for revision. They bear no relevance whatever to modern life, and therefore I propose the following changes.

"Dear" should be eliminated when it is totally out of harmony with the contents of the letter. For example, it makes no sense to write, "Dear Mr. Follansbee: If you don't keep that terrible dog of yours out of my yard and away from my rose bushes, I am going to call the police." A more fitting salutation would be, "Now see here, Mr. Follansbee, you wretch."

Don't you feel silly addressing your congressman as "Dear," and declaring yourself to be very truly "his" or "hers"? Such sentiments might be appropriate on a valentine, but surely not in a letter denouncing the recipient as a scoundrel and a nincompoop.

When you sit down to write a letter to a book club, declaring that this is the third time you have informed them of your wish to discontinue membership, that you have no intention of paying the bills they keep sending for books you did not order and that you intend to initiate legal proceedings if they do not cease and desist, is it befitting to address them as "Gentlemen?" Wouldn't "You idiots" be more suitable?

When a bank manager writes a letter informing you that your request for a loan is being denied because you are a hopeless credit risk, isn't it sheer hypocrisy to sign such a letter "Cordially?" A better choice would be "Ruthlessly."

In case my suggestions strike you as too bizarre, you might prefer to model your correspondence on a letter I came across the other night while browsing through a book of great letters. It was written by Benjamin Franklin to William Strahan, an old friend and a member of the British House of Commons. It accomplishes the seemingly impossible task of expressing fury with grace and style:

"Mr. Strahan: You are a member of Parliament and of that majority which has doomed my country to destruction. You have begun to burn our towns and murder our people. Look upon your hands! They are stained with the blood of your relations! You and I were long friends. You are not my enemy, and I am,

B. Franklin"

Dickerson's dream coming closer to reality

By The Associated Press
Southern Methodist running back Eric Dickerson's dream of playing for the Los Angeles Rams came closer to reality in the National Football League draft.

Dickerson was the second player taken from the first round — going to the Rams, after Houston dealt its pick to Los Angeles.

"It's always been a dream of mine that I would play for the Rams," said the All-America Dickerson. "I would not have been as happy playing for Houston as I would here (Los Angeles). I would have played, though."

Nine Southwest Conference players and a Lone Star Conference star were selected in the first two rounds of the draft Tuesday, with Arkansas and Baylor joining SMU on center stage.

In later rounds, NFL teams began drafting some of the players now signed to contracts with U.S. Football League teams, and Dickerson's SMU running mate, Craig James of the Washington Federals, was selected by the New England Patriots in the seventh round.

By the end of seven rounds, 21 SWC players had been named, including five from both Arkansas and Baylor and four from SMU.

Linebacker-end Billy Ray Smith of Arkansas was taken by San Diego in the first round as the No. 5 pick; Arkansas' Gary Anderson, a nifty running back who can be used as a receiver, went to San Diego as the 20th choice, and Tech's Gabe Rivera, the "Senior Sack" of the Red Raider defense, was chosen by the Pittsburgh Steelers No. 21.

The final choice in the first round was defensive back Darrell Green of Texas A&I, who went to the World Champion Washington Redskins.

Five SWC players were chosen in the second round. SMU safety Wes Hopkins was taken by Philadelphia as the 35th player chosen.

A third Razorback, offensive lineman Steve Korte, was selected by the New Orleans Saints as the No. 38 pick.

Two Baylor Bears were the 44th and 45th players taken. Defensive back Cedric Mack was taken by St. Louis and Tampa Bay grabbed center Randy Grimes.

Texas A&M's speedy running back, Johnny Hector, was the 51st player, taken by the New York Jets.

Starting off the third round, a third Baylor Bear was selected. Defensive end Charles Benson was taken by the Miami Dolphins.

Rivera, speaking to the Pittsburgh media over a telephone hookup, admitted he has constantly battled weight during his career but is now looking forward instead to battling opposing NFL offensive linemen.

"I can't wait to get to Pittsburgh," he said. "Mean Joe Greene and the Steelers' line have always been idols for me."

Rivera called his selection by the Steelers "a surprise."

"I didn't expect it, really," he said. "It was a real surprise. But I'm glad for it; I'm just waiting for the season to start so I can show what I can do."

Rivera said that if he

"slacks off" watching his weight "it always goes up."

Rivera is said to favor Mexican food and hamburgers, and once ate 23 enchiladas and 14 hamburgers at one sitting.

"My weight can be a problem," he said.

NFL teams selected three more Southwest Conference players in the fourth round and three more in the next two rounds.

San Diego selected Arkansas defensive back Danny Walters in the fourth round, giving the Chargers three Razorbacks among their first four draft picks. Bo Scott Metcalf, a defensive back from Baylor, went to Pittsburgh and Greg Townsend, a defensive end from Texas Christian, was tabbed by the Los Angeles Raiders.

The first Houston Cougar to be drafted was linebacker Weedy Harris, in the fifth round by Denver. The New England Patriots chose Darryl Lewis, a tight end from Texas-Arlington, in the fifth round.

Two Southwest Conference players and three other Texas collegians were drafted in the sixth round.

Linebacker Darrell Patterson of TCU went to the New York Giants, Texas linebacker Kiki DeAyala went to the Cincinnati Bengals, wide receiver Rheugene Branton of Texas

Southern to Tampa Bay, offensive guard Kevin Belcher of Texas-El Paso to Buffalo, and center Grant Feasel of Abilene Christian to Baltimore.

Five more SWC players, including James, were selected in the seventh round.

Houston picked Texas wide receiver Herkie Walls, San Francisco chose SMU linebacker Gary Moten, New England picked James, Green Bay took Arkansas running back Jessie Clark, and Pittsburgh selected Baylor offensive guard Mark Kirchner. Carlos Scott, a center from Texas-El Paso, was drafted by St. Louis.

Two Texas A&M players were selected in the eighth round. Quarterback Gary Kubiak went to Denver, while running back Earnest Jackson was selected by San Diego. Defensive back James Durham of Houston was picked by Buffalo.

In the ninth round, two SWC players and another Texas collegian were selected.

Tampa Bay picked up defensive tackle Hassan Ar-bubakrr. Green Bay grabbed center Robin Ham of West Texas State and Washington selected running back Marcus Gilbert of TCU.

In the 10th round, wide receiver Byron Williams of Texas-Arlington went to Green Bay. Chicago picked running back Anthony Hutchinson of Texas Tech and Washington went for Baylor linebacker Jeff Gandy.

Round 11 saw Clenzie Pierson, a Rice defensive tackle, go to the New York Giants. New England picked Steve Parker, an Abilene Christian wide receiver, and defensive back Calvin Eason of Houston. Tampa Bay went for North Texas State tight end Mark Witte.

Texas Southern wide receiver Karl Williams led off the 12th round, going to Baltimore. Philadelphia nabbed Baylor quarterback David Mangrum and Pittsburgh selected running back Roger Wiley of Sam Houston State.

NBA playoffs

Spurs rip Denver, 152-133

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — To hear San Antonio's Mike Mitchell tell it, his team's record-breaking National Basketball Association playoff game with the Denver Nuggets was, no hum, high scoring.

"The high score didn't surprise me," Mitchell said. "I think the whole series will be like that."

The Spurs dominated the Rangers' pitching very solid

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Rick Honeycutt and Mike Smithson are giving the Texas Rangers something they, in the past, have had very little of — outstanding pitching.

Honeycutt leads the American League with an ERA of 0.59 while Smithson, who scattered five hits to beat Toronto 2-1 Tuesday night, moved into a third-place tie with Milwaukee's Don Sutton at 1.74.

"The whole staff has pitched well. It's incredible that they have kept us in every ballgame that we have played," Ranger manager Doug Rader said after the win.

Smithson, 3-0, struck out seven of the last 13 batters he faced to preserve the win for the Rangers, now 10-8 with a team ERA of 2.36.

"I think I finally found a breaking ball. I didn't find it until the sixth. But I felt good through the rest of the game," Smithson said.

"My breaking ball is definitely my strikeout pitch. You just can't keep pumping fastballs in there."

Between Smithson and Honeycutt stands Toronto's ace, Dave Stieb, who came up on the short end of the game to drop to 3-2 on the year with an ERA of 1.61.

Nuggets throughout Tuesday's first game of their best-of-seven Western Conference semifinal game, winning 152-133.

The teams meet again here tonight.

San Antonio's George Gervin had 42 points and 10 rebounds, but he was only looking forward.

"Denver will play better ball tomorrow," he said. "They know if they win tomorrow, they go home with a split and that's good for a series on the road."

Gervin's game-high points

were one highlight of the record-breaking game, in which playoff marks were set for most points and most assists by both teams in a game and most points by one team in the first half.

The combined 285 points bettered by six the 279 points St. Louis and San Francisco scored in a 1967 playoff game. The Spurs' 82 points at intermission was five more than Milwaukee scored against Philadelphia in 1970.

The Spurs and Nuggets combined for 78 assists to break the mark of 76 set by Milwaukee and Denver in 1978 and tied by Phoenix and Los Angeles in 1980.

San Antonio's biggest lead Tuesday came in the fourth quarter, when Gervin hit an 18-foot jumper to put the Spurs up 146-123 with 2:51 left in the game.

Denver had jumped to a 4-0 edge in the game's opening seconds, but never led after that.

The Nuggets managed to knot the score at 39-all on an Alex English stuff with 11 seconds left in the first quarter, but San Antonio scored 43 points in the next period to put Denver away.

English, the NBA's leading scorer, finished with 26 points, racking up 20 of those in the first half.

"We've got six more games," English said. "We're not going to die for them."

San Antonio led 62-68 at the half, and 116-105 after three periods.

Denver started a comeback in the fourth quarter, closing the gap to only seven points, but two 3-pointers by the Spurs' Mike Dunleavy killed the rally.

"I was totally shocked when we were only seven points behind," Denver Coach Doug Moe said. "Then the 3-pointers broke our back. ... We were lucky to get within seven."

Johnny Moore had 24 points and 17 assists for the Spurs, and Mitchell and Gene Banks both added 22.

Dan Issel was high scorer for Denver with 28 points and Kiki Vandeweghe had 22.

Both teams were hot on free throws, with the Nuggets hitting 91 percent and the Spurs, 81 percent.

5 positions in 5 years

Brewers' Molitor finally ready to settle down

ANAHEIM, Calif. (NEA) — As a major-league ballplayer, Harvey Kuenn, the manager of the Milwaukee Brewers, played six different positions in a 14-year career — everywhere but pitcher, catcher and second base.

It didn't seem to matter where Kuenn played, he always hit the ball, leading the American League once in batting. He finished with a career average of .303.

"Never did I let where they put me in the field affect what happened when I went up to the plate," says Kuenn. "They're two different phases of baseball."

Ostensibly, Paul Molitor, who is one of Harvey's minions, should feel the same way.

In five seasons with the Brewers, Molitor has toiled at five different positions. He hit over .300 in three of those years. As a leadoff man in 1982, he hit 19 homers, batted in 71 runs, stole 41 bases, whacked 201 hits, averaged .302, and scored more runs (136) than any player in the American League since Ted Williams.

But Molitor, who now occupies third base for the defending American League champions, doesn't mind telling you that it has bothered him to shift from position to position.

There is a lot of similarity between Molitor and Kuenn. Both came out of college as highly touted, big-bonus prospects — Harvey from the University of Wisconsin, Paul as the number one choice in the 1977 free-agent draft from the University of Minnesota. Both reached the majors quickly — Harvey after 63 games with Davenport, Paul after 64 games with Burlington. Both became regulars immediately. Both were shortstops. Neither wound up playing that position.

And that's where they diverge, philosophically. Molitor started 1978, his rookie year, at shortstop only because Robin Yount, the Milwaukee incumbent since 1974, was injured. When Yount returned to the lineup later that spring, Molitor was moved to second base, a strange position to him, and made the transition without a hitch.

In fact, Molitor was voted the starting second baseman in the 1980 All-Star Game, which he missed because of a rib injury.

By 1981, Molitor was in center field. The Brewers wanted his speed out there and felt they could move veteran Gorman Thomas to right field. They also had Jim Gantner ready to step in as a regular at second.

That May, Paul stumbled over first base running out an infield hit and tore ligaments in his ankle which required surgery. When he was ready to play again in September, Thomas was solidly in center again. Molitor, still stepping gingerly, was put in right field, still another position.

In the spring of 1982, the Brewers had a void at third base. Sal Bando had retired.

Don Money, no kid, was having problems. Roy Howell, used mainly as a designated hitter, didn't seem to be the answer. Back to the infield went Molitor.

Did it bother him? Was his concentration affected? "I don't know if you actually feel it," Molitor shrugs, "but it's something that's undermining."

Sure. He fielded the new spot slickly, and hit more home runs, batted in more runs, stole more bases and played more games (160) than he had in any previous season. In the World Series, he collected five hits in the opening game, a record, and batted .355 for the seven-game set.

So, is third base a good position for him? "I wasn't sure at first," he answers. "It'll be two or three years before I find out if I'm going to be an average third baseman or a great third baseman — that much time to decide how good I can become there. On this club, it's where I belong right now."

"If I had my druthers, I would have been a major-league shortstop. My college experience and all my minor-league seasoning was there. That's where I feel I could probably have been at my best. But there's a guy in front of me."

Says Molitor: "I feel Robin's going to stay in Milwaukee, and I had to find another position if I'm going to stay. This past winter, I signed a five-year contract. I decided Milwaukee is where I want to be, and they want me to stay."

For their money, the Brewers are getting a versatile player with the type of ability that could win an MVP award some day. Articulate, with Gallic good looks, Molitor also does some promotional work for the club between seasons.

Molitor has no obvious flaws. Although not big, at 6 feet and 175 pounds, he hits with power because of fine bat speed. At 26, he hasn't even peaked, despite five increasingly productive seasons.

"Last year," he says, "I finally disproved the fallacy that I'm injury-prone. I led our team in games played. To be an everyday player is what I want to be labeled. Along with playing a lot, consistency."

"I'm fortunate that I've had the opportunity to play five positions in five years at a young age. I hope that I have eight, nine or 10 years in addition — at one position — and become a two-way player, batting and fielding."

At third base, of course.

PAUL MOLITOR of the Milwaukee Brewers became a good hitter while shuffling through five fielding positions in five years. Says Molitor: "I don't know if you actually feel it, but it's something that's undermining."

Could happen at Los Colinas

Try two-putting across Texas

IRVING, Texas (AP) — It's entirely possible that someone among the 159 golfers in this week's $400,000 Byron Nelson Classic will be faced with the problem of 2-putting across the width of Texas, from Beaumont to El Paso.

That may be possible. But from Amarillo to Texarkana? Forget it. The wasteland of Oklahoma is in the way.

The green on the first hole at the new Los Colinas Sports Center course, which will serve as the site of the tournament that begins Thursday, is shaped precisely like the map of Texas. A pond is situated at the Gulf of Mexico. Oklahoma is a huge sand trap.

The early arrivals marked possible pin settings by the names of cities, Dallas for north-central, Abilene well to the left of that position, Port Arthur in the front-right corner, etc.

The course is listed at 7,002 yards but plays longer. It has a par of 71. It replaces the Preston Trail Golf Club in Dallas, which served as the venue since 1968 and provided Tom Watson with his most productive hunting ground. He won four times at Preston Trail, including three in a row, once lost in a playoff, was second on another occasion and holds a membership there.

"Naturally, I hate to leave Preston Trail," Watson said Tuesday. "I'd like to have stayed there forever."

"I've played this course," he said, "and with a north wind, it's going to be extremely long."

Los Colinas was designed by Robert Trent Jones Jr., with help and advice from Hall of Famer Byron Nelson. The course is spread over rolling terrain and features 110 bunkers. The two nines are separated by an arterial highway and requires a walk of about one-quarter mile.

sought medical help. He insisted he would play, however.

Jack Nicklaus, holder of a record 17 major professional titles and a twice a winner of this event, and Lanny Wadkins join Watson as the leading attractions. Wadkins scored his second victory of the season last weekend in the Tournament of Champions and now leads the year's money-winners with $229,048.

PGA champion Ray Floyd, who leads the Tour in stroke average this season, is seeking his first victory of the year. Among his opponents are 1983 Tour title-winners Keith Fergus, Gil Morgan, Bill Rogers and Hal Sutton.

By a special act of Congress in 1939, baseball was the first sport to be honored with a commemorative postal stamp.

Benefits near for farmworkers

AUSTIN (AP) — A Democrat from one of the state's poorest areas and a Republican from a well-to-do Houston suburb have resurrected a measure that would extend workers' compensation benefits to many Texas farmworkers.

Reps. Juan Hinojosa, D-McAllen, and Ed Emmett, R-Kingwood, persuaded the House on Tuesday to approve by an 83-57 margin Hinojosa's bill — two hours after a 70-61

House vote that appeared to kill it.

In every session since 1977, the Legislature has refused to extend workers' compensation to farmworkers. Hinojosa now believes he is two votes short of the two-thirds vote needed to get the bill to debate in the Senate, where he believes a majority favors the measure.

"These are poor, powerless people who get hurt on the job and whose annual wages are $3,600," he said of farmworkers.

"The problem is that any time you have a farmworker bill, just the word farmworker gets a negative reaction from most (House) members," said Hinojosa, a Rio Grande Valley native who journeyed to Illinois to do farm work as a youth.

The bill requires farmers with more than 12 employees and an annual payroll of more than $50,000 to buy workers' compensation coverage for the farmworkers.

Rep. Tom Uher, D-Bay City, said the coverage is "very, very expensive insurance" that could put farmers out of business.

"Farmers today are being gouged from every side," he said. "Financially, this is one more little burden on them that's going to put some folks out of business."

But Hinojosa said the bill does not require the insurance for workers on small and family farms.

"We're talking about corporate farms, agribusiness, Teneco," he said.

Hinojosa later said the bill would cover 45 percent of the state's estimated 100,000 farmworkers, but less than 5 percent of the farms.

Emmett, drawing applause

from colleagues as he took the microphone, said there's no reason to feel more sorry for farmers than for other Texas businessmen.

"I think everybody in this room needs to understand something, all businesses are hurting to some degree. (Stafford Rep. Tom) DeLay's pest control business might be hurting. My advertising agency with four employees is certainly hurting," he said. "We're covered by workers' compensation."

"There's no reason for us to come down here year after year after year and separate out farmers who, in many instances, will tell us that they are in business like everybody else, and then in the other instance they tell us, 'But we don't want to have the same rules apply,'" Emmett said.

Thirty-one states require workers' compensation coverage for farmworkers, according to Hinojosa.

Soybean prices improving

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soybean prices have improved significantly in recent weeks, says the Agriculture Department.

"In mid-April, cash prices in central Illinois were over $6 a bushel, nearly 40 cents more than a month earlier," the department's Economic Research Service said Tuesday in a new outlook report.

Also, prices of soybean futures for next November were $6.60 per bushels, up $1 from the contract low earlier this season, the report said.

For the entire 1983-84 marketing year, soybean prices at the farm are expected to average $5.50 to $7.50 per bushel, compared to $5.60 now estimated for 1982-83.

Car Winner

Hereford farmer Ernest Flood, (right), congratulates Bob Dendurent, local Mighty distributor, on the 1983 Camaro Z-28 he received as grand prize winner in a national incentive program sponsored by Mighty Distributing System of America.

Area salesman wins Chevrolet

The local distributor for Mighty Distributing System of America is driving a new car, thanks to his farm customers and a little luck.

Bob Dendurent, of Plainview, received a 1983 Chevrolet Camaro Z-28 as the grand prize in a sales incentive program, at the recent Mighty annual National Sales Meeting in Atlanta.

Dendurent was one of 346 Mighty salesmen nationwide who participate in "Operation Turn Key," an incentive program to encourage new business. The four top salesmen in three categories were designated as finalists and winners of an all-expense paid trip to Acapulco. Those 12 finalists also drew an envelope containing a duplicate auto door key.

At the convention's concluding banquet, each of the 12 tried his key in the door of the Camaro Z-28 with Dendurent's the only one that fit. The Z-28 was one of two automobiles and more than 170 total prizes awarded at the meeting by Mighty, a company specializing in wholesale automotive equipment, air compressors, hydraulic jacks and high pressure hot water washers.

Two other area Mighty salesmen were also among the 12 finalists, Virgil Lowery of Plainview and Steve Briski of Lubbock.

Dendurent serves farmers in the Hereford area and all of Deaf Smith County as well as east of Canyon and south to Earth, Springlake and Olton. He has been with Mighty for the past four years. Mighty Distributing System has franchises in 49 states and has 190 franchises operating 400 trucks.

Rural heroism awards presented

HOUSTON — Eleven-year-old Chris Wilhite and his ten-year-old sister Amy of Saltillo (Hopkins County) received the 1983 Rural Heroism Award here Monday for their role in saving the life of their father who severely mangled his right arm in a farm accident last June.

The presentation was made by Millard Shivers, awards chairman of the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council, during the annual meeting of the Texas-Southwestern Safety Conference and Exposition. Ben Bullard, assistant director of the Texas Farm Bureau Safety Department, is the council president.

Two other nominees, Mrs. Paul Fox of Desdemona (Eastland County) and John Henshall of Beeville (Bee County), received honorable mention.

Mrs. Fox probably saved the life of her husband when she jumped on a runaway tractor and stopped it, after the man had been knocked unconscious by a tree he was pulling down with the tractor. Henshall used a front-end loader to lift a tractor which had overturned on a co-worker, Leroy Robbins, as the two were excavating dirt to build some terraces.

Last June 23, Steve Wilhite,

30, was working with a hay baler on his 160-acre dairy farm near Saltillo in northeast Texas when he slipped, pinning his right arm in the rollers of the baler.

Responding to Wilhite's cry for help, Chris and Amy came running from a nearby lake. Chris shut off the tractor's power takeoff and then lifted the tailgate of the baler, allowing the elder Wilhite to remove his severely mangled arm.

Accustomed to pasture driving but never highway traffic, Chris started the family pickup and Amy kept their ailing father awake so he could shift gears as Chris sped 75 miles per hour the eight-mile distance from their farm to Franklin County Hospital at Mount Vernon.

Emergency treatment was given to Wilhite, but hospital officials determined that the only chance Wilhite had of keeping his right arm would be to take him to a Dallas hospital.

J.W. McKay, who lives near Mount Vernon, has an agreement with the hospital there to use his helicopter to fly patients in need of more specialized care.

McKay flew Wilhite with his injured arm packed in ice to Parkland Hospital in 38

Migrant Act meeting set

The U.S. Dept. of Labor will hold a meeting at 1 p.m. Sunday in the Hereford Community Center to explain the new Migrant and Seasonal Agricultural Worker Act.

The Act replaces the Farm Labor Contractor Registration Act, and went into effect on April 14. Darrell E. Krenek, a Farm Labor Specialist with the labor department out of Lubbock, will be here to explain the Act Sunday.

Local Texas Employment Commission Manager Lester Rape will also be on hand.

The meeting is basically intended for crew leaders, shed operators, growers, and other labor contractors, but the general public, including migrant farm workers, are welcome to attend Rape said.

Brucellosis bill approved

AUSTIN (AP) — A threatened federal quarantine of Texas cattle could be averted by passage of a bill scheduled for a final House vote today.

The bill, which spells out authority for Texas animal health officials to inspect cattle for brucellosis, was tentatively approved Monday.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has notified state officials that Texas faces a quarantine if it does not institute a brucellosis testing program that conforms to federal rules.

Brucellosis is a contagious disease that causes cattle to miscarry or bear weak calves.

Under a quarantine, Texas cattlemen could not ship live cattle out of state, unless they are non-breeding cattle headed for quarantined feedlots and slaughter.

Rep. Bruce Gibson, D-Godley, sponsor of the legislation, told the House that a quarantine could cost Texas cattle raisers $130 million a year.

The Texas Animal Health Commission's brucellosis program was declared unconstitutional by a state district judge.

Uvalde rancher R.J. Nunley won a permanent injunction against the testing program after he argued in court that he could not afford to round up and test the cattle on his 12-county range.

Ranchers fearing Nunley's action would precipitate a quarantine also went to court, but their suit backfired when an Austin judge ruled the whole Texas brucellosis program unconstitutional.

State District Judge Harley Clark said the state commission went beyond the authority given it under the law when it instituted regulations.

Gibson said he talked with former Gov. Dolph Briscoe two weeks ago, seeking a compromise to satisfy Briscoe's problems with the legislation. Briscoe, a business partner of Nunley, is opposed to the brucellosis testing program.

Briscoe prefers simply a vaccination program and is still opposed to this bill, Gibson said.

Under the federal rules, tested cattle found to be infected must be slaughtered. Gibson said it is too expensive to try to cure diseased cattle, unless they are especially valuable stock.

Ranchers who lose their cattle under the program are reimbursed.

The Newspaper BIBLE

DON'T GET DISTRACTED; FOCUS ON HIM!

Jesus said to all, "Anyone who wants to follow Me must put aside his own desires and conveniences and carry his cross with him every day and keep close to Me! Whoever loses his life for My sake will save it, and whoever insists on keeping his life will lose it; and what profit is there in gaining the whole world when it means forfeiting one's self?"

"When I, the Man of Glory, come in My glory and in the glory of the Father and the holy angels, I will be ashamed then of all who are ashamed of Me and of My words now."

"But this is the simple truth--some of you who are standing here right now will not die until you have seen the Kingdom of God!"

Eight days later He took Peter, James, and John with Him into the hills to pray. And as He was praying, His face began to shine, and His clothes became dazzling white and blazed with light.

Then two men appeared and began talking with Him--Moses and Elijah! They were splendid in appearance, glorious to see; and they were speaking of His death at Jerusalem, to be carried out in accordance with God's plan.

Peter and the others had been very drowsy and had fallen asleep. Now they woke up and saw Jesus covered with brightness and glory, and the two men standing with Him.

As Moses and Elijah were starting to leave, Peter, all confused and not even knowing what he was saying, blurted out, "Master, this is wonderful! We'll put up three shelters--one for You and one for Moses and one for Elijah!"

But even as he was saying this, a bright cloud formed above them; and terror gripped them as it covered them. And a voice from the cloud said, "This is My Son, My Chosen One; listen to Him." Then, as the voice died away, Jesus was there alone with His disciples.

Luke 9:23-36

Miss Hollen's beauty more than skin deep

By Connie Passalacqua

During the last few years physical beauty has perhaps become more of a factor than acting talent when it comes to landing a role on a soap opera.

Says Rebecca Hollen, who won the role of Trish Lewis on "Guiding Light" a year-and-a-half ago over hundreds of other hopefuls: "I've been in this business long enough to know that getting something has to do with so many factors, it's not just a case of winning out over someone else. Maybe I have the right qualities -- like my nose or something."

Miss Hollen's talents have lived up to her undeniably beautiful looks. Trish was originally brought on "GL" as a potential romance for the much older Mike Bauer (Don Stewart), but that storyline never got off the ground.

Trish remained a minor character for more than a year, kept around by the producers because of their trust in her talent. But now that other characters in Trish's socially elite family,

Rebecca Hollen

model. But soon she was back to acting.

"I don't want to make a profession of looking pretty all the time. I wanted to work at developing my insider

Professionals expect prices to rise

NEW YORK (AP) — The small investor is back in the market these days, and that means, the professionals say, that you can expect the rise in prices to peak, if only temporarily.

The American Association of Individual Investors, a non-profit group based in Chicago that seeks to aid individuals through education and research. The association sent questionnaires to 5,000 of its 70,000 members recently and concluded from the first 2,000 responses that 71 percent believe the individual investor can outperform the professional investment manager.

"This, of course, does not imply that they can outperform the pros, but they at least think they can," the rather conservative association announced, underlining "think."

Fifty-two percent of the respondents said they had earned "excess" rates of return on their investments, the association said, without explaining what "excess" meant. And only 15 percent felt their performance was subpar. As always, money speaks louder than words, and while the association didn't say how much their members made on their investments it did release their overall earnings. The average was "in the $60,000 to $79,000 range," it said.

Compare that with an average family income of about $20,000 or so, and the $40,000 of the "typical" mutual fund shareholder, as revealed in an industry survey.

But no matter how the individual investor stereotypes the pro or the pro the individual investor, this has been a pretty good half-year for investors in general.

In the six months ended March 31, the New York Stock Exchange Composite Index rose 27.2 percent, but at least 205 mutual funds beat that figure, some by rather impressive amounts.

Fidelity Select Portfolios' Technology Shares rose 93 percent to lead the list of 534 funds surveyed by the Wiesenberger Service. And First Investors Discovery Fund jumped 74.7 percent. Not bad by any means or measure.

Extension Service launches program to help homeowners, cities

COLLEGE STATION — The Texas Agricultural Extension Service has launched a statewide program to help homeowners and cities improve lawns and save money.

Called the "Waste Saver Lawn Care Plan," the program emphasizes paying special attention to watering, fertilizing and mowing lawns to eliminate bagged grass clippings while at the same time promoting community beautification.

"This is a total community program," says Dr. James I. Mallett, Extension leader for community development. "We are encouraging our county Extension agents to work closely with homeowners and local municipal officials in developing a conscientious plan that will foster community pride and also keep personal and public expenses in check."

Various demonstrations have been conducted to show that proper lawn and grounds maintenance can reduce watering and trash collection costs, says Mallett.

Dr. Bill Knoop, Extension turfgrass specialist at Dallas, found that the city of Plano saved more than $100,000 in the past two years by following the Extension Service's Waste Saver Lawn Care Plan. Before initiating this program, some 700 tons of grass clippings were hauled to the city dump every week during the spring and summer in this town of 22,000 homeowners.

"Heavy fertilization and watering and improper mowing can result in huge quantities of grass clippings, which when bagged, can add tremendously to trash collection costs," says Knoop.

To inform the citizens of Plano and other communities about proper lawn maintenance, Knoop developed a Waste Saver Lawn Care Plan leaflet which includes all the prescribed recommendations for proper lawn watering, fertilizing and mowing. These were distributed to thousands of homeowners through a cooperative effort with city officials. In most cases the leaflet was mailed to homeowners with their regular monthly utility bill.

Proper watering also has enabled homeowners and municipalities to reduce water costs — as much as 40 percent in some cases.

Because of its success, the Waste Saver Lawn Care Plan is now being promoted across Texas, says Mallett. County Extension agents have a special Waste Saver Lawn Care kit in addition to a special slide set on the waste saver plan. Agents are encouraged to work with city officials in calling attention to the plan so that homeowners and municipalities will become more conservation-

Despite Dioxin scare, waters of Tittabawassee beckon

By JEFF MAYERS
Associated Press Writer
MIDLAND, Mich. (AP) —
Spring has come to the banks of the wide and muddy Titta-bawassee River along with hundreds of anglers aware
that their catch may be contaminated with the toxic chemical dioxin.
But some aren't sure there
is a danger.
"My hair hasn't fallen out,
my arm hasn't dropped off,"
said George Riedel, owner of a bait shop on the river about 20 miles downstream from Midland and a sprawling Dow

Chemical Co. plant that produces more than 200
chemicals and plastics.
"Give me some solid proof
(of danger to humans) one way or the other."
Dioxin was among the more than 40 chemicals found
in wastewater discharged
from the plant into the river,
according to a preliminary report issued in March by the

Environmental Protection Agency.
"I'm sure the dumping (of chemicals by Dow) was worse 15 years ago than it is now," said Riedel. "I've had walleye out of the Titta-bawassee and couldn't tell
the difference between what I caught up north."
Bottom-feeding fish like
suckers and carp, bullheads,
catfish and certain panfish in-
habit the river year-round.
Walleye, trout and salmon
make annual spawning runs
through its waters.

On a nice spring Saturday
or Sunday you'd probably find "a couple hundred"
fishermen on the river between Midland and Saginaw,
a distance of about 20 miles,
Riedel said.
But he conceded his sales of nightcrawlers have been
"way down" since the latest
publicity about dioxin, a byproduct of herbicide
manufacture and a known
carcinogen in laboratory animals. Its toxicity in humans is not known for certain.

Earlier this year, the EPA
advised against eating fish
caught in the Tittabawassee
below the Dow plant because studies found potentially harmful levels of dioxin in carp and suckers taken from
its waters.
The state of Michigan has warned against eating fish
from the lower Titta-bawassee since 1978.
The Food and Drug Administration has established 50 parts per trillion as the tolerance level of dioxin in edible parts of fish.

Dow spokesman Garry
Hamlin said the dioxin found in the fish are in such minute
quantities that it is no health
hazard.
Even "at the 100 parts per trillion level, you would need to eat 25 tons a year to reach a level of dioxin that has been shown to cause cancer in animals," he said.

But some fishermen are being cautious.
"At this point, (fishermen)
are taking a wait-and-see attitude," Riedel said. "What it will do (to business) this summer... I don't know."
Other anglers said the renewed publicity over the dumping of lethal dioxin is merely "a big scare." Some said they were fishing just for the fun of it, and hadn't eaten
fish caught south of the Dow
plant since the state issued its warning nearly five years ago.

"I don't eat 'em," said tractor
mechanic Randy Miller,
fishing for suckers about five miles downstream from Dow.
"I was giving them to my cat,
but decided I wouldn't give them to her either."
"I know they (the fish)
ain't right," added Miller,
who says he fishes on the Titta-bawassee about once a week. "In the summer, they stink. You can smell it (the chemicals) in their mouths."
"It smells like a Laundromat to me — soapy water,
ammonia, bleach."

"What they catch (below
Dow), they don't eat," said 19-year-old Jeff Fauver, who was behind the counter at his father's bait shop in Sanford,
eight miles upstream from Midland.
Leo Mrozinski, a fish
biologist for the state Department of Natural Resources,
pointed out that although he wouldn't advise eating fish
from the river because of the dioxin, the Tittabawassee
could become a fine sports
fishery.

"The river's really changed
in the last 10 years," said Mrozinski who fishes for white bass below the Dow
dam. "The water quality has increased tremendously."
Fauver and Duffy Dux-
tader, a local parcel delivery
man, said they thought the media and government attention was "a big overreaction."

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

When legs don't match

DEAR DR. LAMB — Our son is a grown man in the armed services. Upon his induction he was found to be in excellent health.
When he started jogging he started having back pain.
He was found to have one leg three-eighths of an inch shorter than the other. From infancy until he left home
for the service I faithfully
took him for a health
checkup. How could this condition have been overlooked? Could the doctor
have been negligent?
I've been blamed for this condition, yet the doctor who attended him all those years
was a child specialist, one of the best.

ple without backache will
have that degree of shortening. But when the body is placed under excessive strain, the difference can become important. If your son had not been jogging, it could be that the minor difference would never have caused any pain.
The well-publicized case
of President Kennedy's back
problems were a combination of defects. Remember that he had an old football injury. The bad back required avoiding any excess strain on his back muscles. Under the skillful supervision of his physician,
Dr. Janet Travell, a heel lift and other measures were employed to keep the pelvis
level and avoid any tilt that in turn strained his already injured back.

If there is no underlying
back defect and the trunk muscles are strong — that includes the abdominal muscles and muscles along the spine — a minor shortening
of the leg is easily tolerated.
It is only when problems
crop up that such minor differences need extra attention. So I do not think you can fault either yourself or your son's doctors for not having noticed a difference
of three-eighths of an inch.
And if it is now important in providing back support, the measures to elevate the heel
on the short leg side are quite simple and effective.

Your son may need to do
more to help protect him
from future back problems.
This includes what to do
about the furniture he uses
and the exercises he should use. I'm sending you The Health Letter 13-10, Backache and What to Do About
It, to provide this information. Others who want this information can send 75
cents with a long, stamped,
self-addressed envelope for
it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio
City Station, New York, NY
10019.

The constant strain on the muscles along the spine and even in the neck can cause muscle spasm and pain. This can be relieved temporarily
by inducing muscle relaxation, but the underlying cause must be found and corrected. In this instance increasing the heel height or including a pad inside the shoe of the short-leg side
may balance the pelvis.
Now, three-eighths of an inch is not much. Many peo-

AUSTIN — Current agricultural trucking regulations
have forced Texas consumers to pay higher prices
for Texas products. For example, if you wanted to send a livestock shipment
from Stratford, Texas to Amarillo it would cost you about $250. If you sent a livestock shipment from Stratford to Liberal, Kansas, the price you would
pay would be approximately $150. The distance between Stratford and Amarillo and Stratford and Liberal is the same, so why is the price different? The reason is that intrastate (within Texas) rates are regulated and interstate (across state lines) are not.
The problem exists not only in Texas but in several other states. Currently,
about 20 states, including Texas, are working on legislation which would support
trucking deregulation for agricultural commodities.

certificate of convenience
and necessity if he or she holds an agriculture permit
issued by the Commission.
A person holding an agricultural permit would,
under this legislation, be permitted to transport eligible agricultural commodities from any point of origin to any destination, within the state, at a competitive rate.
Free competition in agricultural trucking will lower
the costs of delivering agricultural products and provide a profit to the producer
with a lower total cost to the consumer. Lower cost to the agricultural producer
means he can sell his delivered product at a lower price and still stay in business. Texas consumers will likely see more economical prices when free
competition is allowed in agricultural trucking.
We feel this legislation will also open up agricultural trucking to a larger number of carriers and help drive
down the cost of transporting agricultural products. There will be more intrastate business when the large grocers realize they no longer need to send their trucks out of state to buy produce and instead they can buy at home.
The legislation we have proposed will have a positive impact on the consumer, producer, shipper
and trucker. We feel deregulation for agricultural commodities will help
bring state regulation in line
with federal regulation.
If you have any questions
about this legislation or if we can be of any assistance
to you, please let us know
by writing, Senator Bill Sarpalius, P. O. Box 12068,
Austin, Texas 78711.

In Texas, the regulation of the trucking industry is in the hands of the Texas Railroad Commission. The Commission regulates the trucking industry by setting
rates for hauling freight, deciding who can carry that freight and by setting insurance requirements. For instance, under the current law, if you decide to haul
freight between Amarillo
and Houston, you must first apply to the Railroad Commission for a certificate
of public convenience and necessity.
We are sponsoring legislation in the Texas Senate
which supports deregulation
for agricultural commodities. Specifically, the legislation stipulates that a person transporting eligible
agricultural commodities is not required to obtain a
