

Poll watcher presents his version of controversy

By BOB NIGH
MANAGING EDITOR
Randall Marshall, who was ejected from the community center last Saturday by local police at the request of election judge Jerry Jackson, has responded to charges leveled at him by Mrs.

Jackson. Marshall, an attorney with Texas Rural Legal Aid here, discounted claims by Mrs. Jackson that his presence at the polling place was an attempt by TRLA to harass her. The judge had Marshall escorted out of the community center by a pair of Hereford policemen after what she termed as a day-long confrontation with him. Marshall was a poll and ballot count watcher on behalf of school board candidate Trini Gamez.

"I believe she (Mrs. Jackson) gave a completely incorrect characterization of what happened," Marshall told The Brand Wednesday. "What I was doing had absolutely no connection with TRLA." Although Marshall admitted that "no doubt there was friction throughout the day between Mrs. Jackson and I," he denied that he challenged her on every decision she made as she charged in a story which ran in the Tuesday issue of The Brand. "The only time that I raised a question was when there appeared to be an irregularity," Marshall said. "That I was obligated to do by the oath I took." Marshall said that the one incident which caused the most problems involved him taking notes while he was in the ballot counting area with the four ballot counters. "She said that it was illegal, and that I had no right to do that," Marshall said. "I asked her to point that out to me in the election code. She failed to do so."

Marshall said that exchange prompted the first of several calls made by Mrs. Jackson to the secretary of state's office during the day. "They told her that I was allowed to take notes, but suggested that I leave them in the ballot counting room whenever I left the room, which I readily agreed to," he said.

"It turned out to be a point of contention all day long," he added. "She continually took issue with me for taking notes."

Marshall said he was surprised when the police approached him around 6 p.m. Saturday. "I was in the counting room with the four clerks, having absolutely no problems, when we heard a lot of shouting coming from the other room (the voting area)," he said. "Mrs. Jackson was having a confrontation with a woman about speaking Spanish in the voting area, and it was then that the police were called."

He added that he was surprised when the policemen and Mrs. Jackson came into the counting room to talk to him. "We actually hadn't had any confrontations since early that morning, and here it was after 5 p.m.," he said. "She accused me of causing all this trouble and interfering with the election, and told me that unless I sat down and didn't say another word, she'd have me removed."

Marshall said that an attempt by him to get the police

Block contends PIK benefits outweigh losses

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's massive land-idling program to cut crop production this year will dampen agribusiness prospects, but benefits from the program eventually will outweigh those losses, says Agriculture Secretary John R. Block.

Farmers have signed up to take 82.3 million acres from production in 1983, more than a third of their crop land, in an effort to boost sagging commodity prices and improve incomes. In return, eligible farmers will get free surplus grain and cotton as partial compensation under a payment-in-kind arrangement with the government. Block told a meeting of the National Agri-Marketing Association on Wednesday that he was aware of "possible negative effects on farm suppliers" who will sell less seed, fertilizer and other supplies because of PIK. "But those effects won't be as great as some might have predicted," Block said. "We've estimated that farmers' use of seed, fertilizer and pesticides will drop by only 12 to 15 percent. Fuel use will drop 8 to 10 percent. And machinery purchases will be down by as little as 2 to 3 percent."

Block said that the long-term benefits of PIK will outweigh those declines. "It's like cod liver oil," he said. "It may not taste so great going down — but it's good for what ails you."

Block said he believed the following benefits will result from the PIK program: —Crop production will be reduced and supply-demand will be more balanced. Commodity stockpiles and production can be reduced at the same time. —Availability of market supplies will be maintained. Farmers who cut their acreage under PIK will get

Bullock announces drop in state revenue estimate

AUSTIN (AP) — Comptroller Bob Bullock, warning legislators to get off their "butts," today decreased his revenue estimate — the amount of money the state has to spend — by nearly $1 billion.

The estimate was reduced — for the third time this year — Bullock said, because of "continued uncertainty" in oil prices and because sales tax receipts are continuing to drop.

His latest estimate fell $953 million — meaning Texas will have that much less money after the 1984-85 biennium than previously forecast. In January, Bullock reduced the estimate by $1.5 billion. In March, he reduced the estimate again $867 million.

Because the Texas Constitution prohibits deficit spending, lawmakers can only spend what Bullock estimates the state will have. Bullock met with freshman Democrats early today and told them about his revised estimate.

"He started off with admonishing us, just kind of telling us off," said Rep. Billy Clemons, D-Pollack. "He just said we need to get off our butts. He always heard we were the smartest freshman class to come along. He said, 'When y'all going to get off your butts and do something?'"

Clemons said he told Bullock the freshman Democrats are "just as frustrated as you are. I said to him, 'There's not one member of the appropriations committee in this room.'"

Ramirez fired by police chief

LT. Paul Ramirez, a 16-year veteran of the Hereford Police Department, has been dismissed by Chief Don Brush for conduct unbecoming a police officer.

"I can't give you too much, the way the courts are these days," Brush told The Brand today, but said the unbecoming conduct charge was defined as conduct which was "adverse on the affect of the public image on the police department."

Ramirez said today that the allegations "are groundless." "I'm innocent of the allegations," he said, "I'm prepared to fight them."

He added, "I would like to tell you and put it on the front page, but my attorney has advised me not to."

Ramirez' attorney, Tim Hoffman, told The Brand, "Right now we are just in a position of investigation and not prepared to make any statements." Ramirez was hired in May of 1967 as a patrolman and served as sergeant before he was promoted to lieutenant. Brush indicated that there had been several things that led to the dismissal, but would give no further comment.

Rep. Alex Moreno, D-Erdinburg, said Bullock warned the lawmakers, "If we are going to get something done on it we better get moving."

Rep. Bob Barton, D-San Marcos, said Bullock was "pretty feisty."

But Moreno said Bullock is "very passionate about everything he does. It's hard to characterize his remarks" (See REVENUE, Page 2)

Chinese cut off cultural exchanges

PEKING (AP) — China canceled all 1983 sports and cultural exchanges with the United States today in retaliation for America's granting political asylum to Chinese tennis star Hu Na.

Radio Peking said the All-China Sports Federation had decided not to compete in 10 international competitions in the United States this year, including water polo and women's softball tournaments.

"The U.S. government action has ruined the normal atmosphere of Sino-U.S. sports exchanges," a leading official of the federation was quoted as saying. The official was not named.

The decision, which threatens to put U.S.-China relations under the greatest strain since diplomatic ties were established in 1979, also affects performing arts, art exhibitions, film festivals and journalism and publishing exchanges.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Mark Croker responded, "We deeply regret the Chinese overreaction to the Hu Na case."

The Ministry of Culture said all remaining exchanges for 1983 will be stopped as of today, the official Xinhua News Agency reported.

"The Chinese government has no choice but to take the above measure," said Ding Gu, director of cultural relations with foreign countries. "The U.S. government should be responsible for the consequences arising therefrom."

On Monday, the United States granted political asylum to 19-year-old Miss Hu, despite months of Chinese protests that it would encourage other defections, and that Miss Hu did not face persecution if she returned home.

Miss Hu sneaked away from the Chinese tennis team on July 20 in Santa Clara, Calif., where she was playing in an international tournament. She has been staying with Chinese-American families in the San Francisco area.

Foreign diplomats said they had expected China to cut off certain sports and cultural exchanges in retaliation for the granting of asylum.

Space walk set

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Two astronauts eagerly readied their suits and lifelines today for their space walk into Challenger's open cargo bay — the first Americans in nearly a decade to challenge the boundless, hostile arena outside their spaceship.

All four astronauts were roused by Mission Control playing the theme song from the old TV series "F Troop." NASA gives each shuttle crew an alphabetical designation, and since this is the sixth flight, Challenger's crew is the "F crew."

Mission specialists Story Musgrave and Donald Peterson were to slip into the 60-foot-long cargo bay in late afternoon, clad in cumbersome $2 million space suits that provide life-giving oxygen and protect them from meteorites, radiation and extremes of heat and cold.

After breakfast, they were to enter the airlock between the ship and the cargo bay, put on their suits, and breathe pure oxygen for 3½ hours to purge their systems of nitrogen that could give them the bends once in space.

Commander Paul Weitz and pilot Karol Bobko were to monitor from Challenger's cabin during the 3½ hours the space strollers were to work outside, testing the suits and the tools and techniques for future satellite service and repair missions.

At White Sands, N.M., meanwhile, engineers firmed up plans to correct the orbit of the huge communications satellite that went astray after being ejected from the shuttle on Monday. They said they would start firing the craft's jet thrusters on Sunday to move it into its intended high orbit over a period of several days.

To prepare for their excursion, Musgrave and Peterson thoroughly checked their suits in the ship's depressurized airlock on Wednesday, doing everything short of leaving the spacecraft.

"The checkout ... was totally normal," Musgrave reported.

"We're all looking forward to tomorrow. I'm sure you are," Mission Control said. "You bet!" was the reply.

Later, as the astronauts relayed television pictures of the cargo bay to the control center, Peterson said: "You're going to see some additional stuff out there tomorrow."

The purpose of the test was to pinpoint any troubles in advance. On the fifth flight of the shuttle Columbia in November, technical problems developed in the suits just hours before two astronauts were to take a space walk and the exercise had to be canceled.

Directory Decoration

Pampa artist Gerald Sanders shows off the sculpture which adorns the new telephone directory. The piece, titled "After the Storm," was made by Sanders, a former SW Bell lineman. Almost, 20,000 copies of the local directory have been printed, and will be distributed beginning Friday.

Phone directory distribution set

The 1983 Hereford telephone directory, in its usual array of colors, is scheduled for distribution beginning Friday according to Gary Stevens, Community Relations Manager for Southwestern Bell.

The new directory contains 44 white pages and 139 yellow pages. The new cover features a sculpture by retired Southwestern Bell lineman Gerald Sanders of Pampa.

The bronze sculpture titled, "After the Storm," authentically details a telephone lineman repairing a pole and crossarm damaged by a 1949 ice storm that swept through West Texas.

Each residential customer will receive one copy of the directory. Additional copies may be obtained by calling any Southwestern Bell business office or visiting any Customer Service Center after April 12, Stevens said.

Approximately 19,248 directories will be printed. Of that 7,760 directories will be mailed to customers by April 12. Extra books are for customers moving into the area throughout the year and customers requesting additional copies, he added.

Giant ape balloon 'In-Kong-ruent'

By LAWRENCE KILMAN Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A partly inflated King Kong drooped from the Empire State Building early today like a shapeless garbage bag, hardly a good imitation of the ape that first terrorized movie audiences 50 years ago.

An eight-story fabric replica of the giant ape was supposed to be inflated with cold air Wednesday night and come to rest with its arm looped around a mooring mast atop the 102-story building.

But engineers ran into problems and could only partially inflate the 3,000-pound balloon.

"It's a very slow process that's never been done before," said Charles Guigno, director of building operations. "You put it on paper but when it comes to reality you run into problems."

After several delays, workers began to inflate the balloon at 3 a.m. today, but a twist in the fabric made it a stop-and-go operation. They said part of the problem was that numbered straps used to position the balloon were assembled out of sequence.

Dan Wolfson, spokesman for Robert Keith & Co., which created the $100,000 balloon, said before dawn, "They're raising his right arm and raising his head. All the ropes are in place, and mainly he just needs air."

Putting the ape-like balloon on the building is part of a stunt to publicize the 50th anniversary of the movie "King Kong." It is also a bid by the Empire State Building to attract tourists and by the San Diego company that makes "inflatable product replicas" — gargantuan balloons, soda bottles, beer cans and the like — to attract business.

The classic film, starring Fay Wray, retold the beauty and the beast legend and ended with Kong falling from what was then the world's tallest building.

Workers struggled through the night to prepare the giant ape for morning ceremonies, including the unveiling of a plaque in Kong's honor, a display of King Kong memorabilia and the re-creation of the movie's ending, complete with two biplanes hired to fly around the Kong balloon.

"We'll try to create a realistic scene, but not so realistic that he'll fall off the building," said Robert Keith Vicino, owner of Robert Keith & Co.

Vicino said the 84-foot balloon will remain atop the building for a week and then tour the world. Vicino hopes to place it atop other famous buildings, such as the Eiffel Tower.

As workmen hoisted the balloon up to the 88th floor where its feet will rest, high school students stood on the 86th floor observation deck chanting "We want Kong!"

Robert Tinker, the building manager said, "We hope the problems getting King Kong back to his original perch will be more than worth it. They started their relationship 50 years ago and it's only right that we put ourself out to get them back together."

Reagan to be big draw for Tower's fund raiser

HOUSTON (AP) — Aides to U.S. Sen. John Tower say they hope a Houston fund raiser featuring President Reagan later this month will bring in more than $1 million.

"We're expecting to raise as much as we did at the Dallas dinner" in January 1982, staff aide Anne Jones said Wednesday.

That event, which featured then-Gov. Bill Clements and Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., put $1.2 million in the Texas Republican's coffers.

Staff workers hope the latest affair, scheduled April 29 at the Albert Thomas Convention Center, will draw 3,000-4,000 Tower supporters. Tickets will range between $200 and $1,000.

Tower's state director, Molly Pryor, said a fund-raising dinner in Houston has been in the works since the first of the year, but plans have only recently included Reagan.

She said she did not know exactly when Reagan was added to the program. She said Tower's staff had expected Reagan to help the senator campaign this year and the president's schedule allowed him to appear at the dinner.

"It worked out very well for us," she said.

Tower expects a strong challenge when he seeks re-election in 1984. Former U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger, whom Tower defeated by less than a 1 percent margin in 1978, said Tuesday that he will seek the post again.

State Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, also has indicated he will run.

In addition to the president, Ms. Jones said the dinner committee expects Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn.; Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.; and Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., among others.

Tower, in the Senate since 1961, is its second-ranking Republican. He waived his seniority over Thurmond when the South Carolina senator changed parties to become a Republican in the early 1960s.

Reagan was the chief draw at a January dinner which raised more than $1 million for Percy. He was last in Houston in June for a fund-raising dinner for Clements, whose defeat in November by Democrat Mark White left Tower the only statewide GOP officeholder in Texas.

Son could face life term for father's mercy killing

HOUSTON (AP) — A man who police said killed to end the suffering of his already "brain dead" father has been accused of murder and could be sentenced to life in prison if convicted.

Billy Clore, 25, was indicted on a murder charge Wednesday in the death of his 62-year-old father, Robert Clore, who had been in a coma for four months.

The elder Clore died Saturday and the Harris County medical examiner ruled the death a homicide. Police said doctors told them Clore already was "brain dead" when he was shot March 21 in a nursing home.

Investigators said Clore shot his father with a .45-caliber pistol then waited in the nursing home room until police arrived. He was charged with attempted murder and later freed on $10,000 bond.

"I felt my father was suffering, and I felt my shooting him would stop his suffering," police quoted Clore as saying after his arrest.

The father had suffered from kidney ailments and had been comatose since December. Relatives said the father and son worked in a tire business together and were close.

District Attorney John B. Holmes Jr., who said he does not believe mercy killings can be justified legally, said it would not have been proper to have referred the case to the grand jury without charges.

Trial delayed in Odessa for accused priest killer

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — The trial of a man accused of beating a Roman Catholic priest to death has been delayed until June so a psychologist can examine the defendant, a defense attorney says.

James Harry Reyos, 26, had been scheduled to go on trial April 18, but State District Judge Gene Ater on Wednesday granted the defense time for a psychological evaluation.

Reyos is accused of killing The Rev. Patrick Ryan, who disappeared from his Denver City parish during Christmas week in 1981. Ryan's battered body was found in an Odessa motel room.

Defense attorney John Cliff said he requested the evaluation to "assist me in understanding the psychological makeup of my client to most appropriately present him in trial."

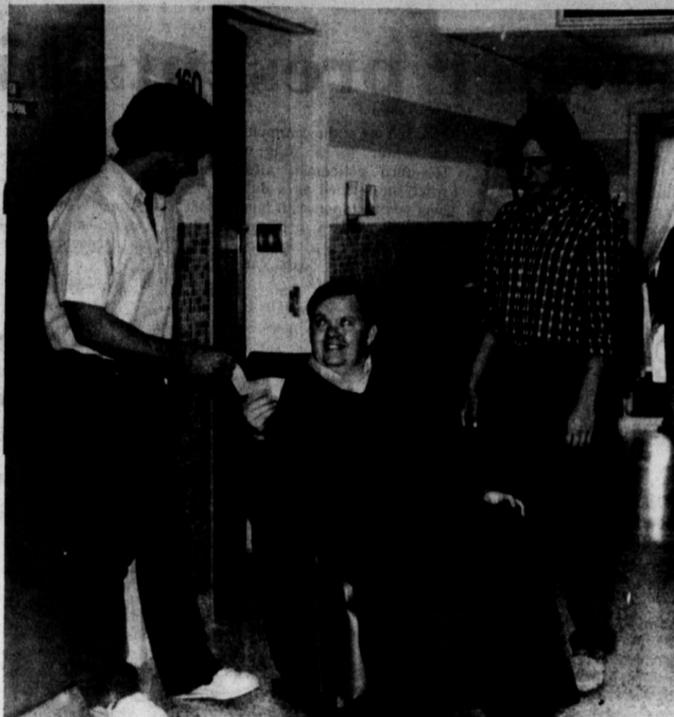

Reyos was arrested Nov. 18, 1982, in an Albuquerque, N.M., hotel after he called investigators and claimed he had information about the slaying, authorities said.

The defendant refused to waive extradition, delaying his transfer to Odessa by about two months.

Ryan's nude, bound and beaten body was discovered Dec. 22, 1981, in a room at the Sand and Sage Motel.

Campaign's racial venom drips from buttons, shirts,

CHICAGO (AP) — The racial venom of Chicago's mayoral campaign drips from buttons, leaflets and T-shirts.

"Punch 2 — Vote For The Jew. Punch 9 — Vote For The Shine," says a flier.

These are not the correct ballot numbers for Republican Bernard Epton or his black Democratic opponent, Harold Washington, in next Tuesday's election, but that doesn't matter.

"The venom is there. Just as long as the numbers rhyme, the point is made," said A. Abbot Rosen, Midwest director of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

Examples abound: "Water Tower Place Will Become Watermelon Place." — A Northwest Side bartender had 2,000 watermelon buttons made, gave some away and sold most for $1. They were all gone in 10 days.

— A woman spots Epton, throws open her jacket and shows a T-shirt: "Vote Right, Vote White," it says.

"I've never seen such racial tones in a Chicago election before, but we've never had a black man heading the ticket before," said Rosen. "The language is in its most vulgar racist form. It has churned up and re-stimulated fears of the impact of integration."

"The campaign is conjuring all kinds of images," he said. "But there is no evidence that the racial issue in the form of buttons and literature is traceable to the candidates or their entourages."

James Lucien III, South Side executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, is alarmed.

"Whoever is responsible for disseminating this race literature is doing nothing more than polarizing an already racially tense city," he said. "In these trying times, a healing process should take place and brotherhood and decency should prevail."

People do not wear watermelon buttons in the open. They usually are kept under lapels and flashed. But some people who bought them could not resist spreading them around — even to Washington's campaign headquarters.

"The only one I ever saw came in a letter and I just threw it away," said Dortha Washington, an assistant in the candidate's precinct operation. She is not related to the candidate.

The button-making bartender said he had watermelon buttons made up by a novelty shop "as a joke" and to make a few bucks.

They came in two versions: one the size of a quarter shows a slice of watermelon in color; the other is a slice of watermelon with a bold, black, slash running through it.

The bartender, who spoke only on condition that his name not be used because "some crazy guy might throw a rock through my window," defended his buttons and insisted they are not racist. Jim Maniatis, manager of the Button Farm in suburban Oak Lawn, says he has seen a button with a side view and a front view of Washington, who served time in jail for failing to file federal income tax returns, with a number under it.

Engineers vote strike, not pay cut

HOUSTON (AP) — A union official says operating engineers are willing to keep the same wages in a new contract, but draw the line at any suggestion of a pay cut.

"All we're asking is for what the other crafts have received: a freeze in wages," N.F. "Burt" Renaud, a local official of the International Union of Operating Engineers said Wednesday. "We want to keep our money where it is."

Renaud is business manager of Local 450, whose members in Houston, Texas City and Freeport walked off construction projects Wednesday after wage talks with contractors were called off.

Associated General Contractors, a trade group representing 32,000 construction firms, had proposed to cut wages from $1 to $5 an hour. The local, which represents 4,500 workers in a 16-county area, voted in favor of the strike Tuesday.

The absence of the striking equipment operators slowed work at an undetermined number of construction projects Wednesday as project managers looked for people who could take over those duties.

Local 450 was one of the major building and construction trade unions negotiating with the contractors in March.

The eight trade unions involved in the talks, including iron workers and carpenters, agreed to work rule concessions in exchange for no cuts in wages.

The concessions included giving up the right to strike and agreeing to reductions in coffee breaks and in pay for days when inclement weather stops work.

Students testify to House committee

AUSTIN (AP) — Despite instructions to remain quiet, students opposed to raising the legal drinking age from 19 to 21 broke into loud applause when their side was argued to a House committee considering tougher liquor laws.

Rep. Billy Hall, D-Laredo, chairman of the House Committee on Liquor Regulation had to pound for order after University of Texas Students' Association President Paul Begala argued that an 18-year-old can be called for jury duty, sign contracts, vote, be sent to war and marry, but would not be able to drink under the proposed law.

Begala said students favor tougher DWI laws, but do not think teen-aged drinkers should be singled out.

"Capriciously changing the drinking age to try to keep young adults from drinking will be about as fair — and about as effective — as trying to make it illegal for state officials to drink simply because there have been a few who have not been able to drink responsibly," Begala said.

Penny Young of Corpus Christi testified in favor of raising the drinking age. She said her best friend was killed at 17 in a wreck in which the 20-year-old driver had been drinking.

"I feel like my life is just beginning," Miss Young testified tearfully. "I don't want to end up like Mary Helen."

Begala said he, too, had lost a friend in a drunken driving accident.

"But that drunk driver was 50 years old," he said. "I would not stand here and irresponsibly tell you that all 50-year-olds should not be allowed to drink."

"The students who have come here today are not radical or irresponsible and don't want to throw beer cans at you," Begala said. "They're here like me because they think it's fundamentally wrong to set up a separate class of citizens in this state."

Col. Jim Adams, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, told the committee that there is a "disproportionate involvement of young people in DWI accidents."

He said 19 and 20-year-olds make up 4 percent of drivers but account for 13 percent of the traffic fatalities. Adams said the youngest DWI offender DPS has arrested was 10 years old.

"We can deal with the tip of the iceberg, we can scrape the bodies off the highway, but the only way to deal with the problem is to develop better attitudes toward responsible drinking," Adams said.

CETA gives details of job training program

Part of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, (CETA) deals with the On-The-Job-Training (OJT) Program. This program is designed to place unemployed persons in training positions with the goal of permanent employment. These training periods range from two weeks to 3½ months depending on the skill level desired.

Qualified applicants will be provided to the employer for interview for the open position. The employer is not required to hire anyone in the program.

When an applicant is selected to fill the position, he or she is placed on the employer's payroll. The participant will be treated as any other employee of the employer. The employer will be reimbursed for 50 percent of the participants' wages, not to include fringe benefits, for the training period. This reimbursement will be paid at the end of each month requiring only a short reimbursement form.

The participant may be terminated by the employer at anytime during the training period. The position may then be refilled by another participant or left unfilled for the duration of the training period. This decision will be left to the employer.

The OJT programs are available in most occupations which provide opportunities not otherwise available, lead to economic self-sufficiency, and provide upward mobility.

Details concerning the OJT program may be obtained by calling Texas Panhandle Community Action Corporation, Employment and Training Department, (806) 364-5722, Hereford, Texas, or (806) 647-2322, Dimmitt, Texas.

as being more heated today than they are any other day." Clemmons said he was not surprised by the revenue estimate drop, adding he would reserve judgment, on its accuracy.

"Bullock wants a tax bill, I think. Not that he wants a tax bill, but I think he would like to see (Gov. Mark) White back a tax bill. He also wants pari-mutuel (horse race betting) passed. So I'm not stunned at all that he came out with these figures," said Clemmons.

Bullock has said he will run for governor in 1986.

"I'd hate to really believe it is just politics. Until I go over there and sit down and let him show me how he came up with the estimate, I better not say. It seems like a lot of intangibles, though. I don't know if he's got crystal balls over there," Clemmons said.

Benefits

surplus grain and cotton equal to 80 percent to 95 percent of their normal output. —Government spending for domestic programs will be reduced.

—The program will end of its own accord, after surplus stocks are reduced.

Bullock said that he has "strong views on the directions I see for American agriculture in the coming years" and that PIK is "a small step, and extremely crucial step" in the evolution of farm policy.

"With PIK, we have succeeded in buying some time," he said. "We have not bought prosperity yet. We merely have a little breathing space for a year or two. We can't waste time congratulating ourselves."

Instead, Bullock said, it is "time to get back in the fray" involving farm policy beyond the PIK program.

"As I see it, we have two basic options," he said. "We can continue along the path to a more market-oriented agriculture ... or we can opt for more government involvement. That means higher loan rates and target prices — less freedom for the farmer."

Bullock said proposals are being made now "which would increase the federal role in agriculture" by raising price support loan rates and target prices.

"When we are going to learn — the higher the support prices, the greater the trouble," he said. "We should have learned enough from dairy to not even argue the point."

officers to listen to his plea that there was "a misunderstanding because all the trouble had occurred in the other room," or to verify that he (Marshall) had been having no trouble with the vote counters were in vain.

"I explained to the policemen the entire day's events, and again asked them to check with the ballot counters to verify my story, or to look at the election code, which showed that I had a legal right to be there," Marshall said.

"They declined to do so, and Mrs. Jackson became very angry, accusing me of all the trouble that was going on," he continued. "I explained that there wasn't anything going on, and she responded that I 'know you haven't done anything this afternoon, but this morning you did, and I can have you removed if you don't sit down and keep your mouth shut.'"

"I told her that I really objected to the possibility of being removed when I had a legal right and duty to be there," Marshall said. "I made one final plea to the police to try and verify my story, but they refused to do so, and told me that I'd either come with them now, or be handcuffed, arrested, and taken physically to the police station...so I left."

Marshall also strenuously rejected a report that he had "touched" a pile of the ballots during the election Saturday. "I at no time came even close to touching a ballot," he said. "I knew that was illegal, and in no instance attempted to do so."

The attorney said that he has no plans for any type of legal action at this time as a result of the incidents during the election.

"I made my report to the school board because I felt it was my duty to do so," he concluded. "The school board has taken action by referring my letter to higher authorities, and I would welcome any type of state investigation into the matter."

The HISD board Monday voted to refer Marshall's letter to the secretary of state and attorney general's offices for clarification or investigation into the charges Marshall made against Mrs. Jackson.

Now You're Cookin'

By LINDA CAUDLE
Family News Editor
"Spending time with my family is the thing I really like to do best," smiles Anna Ruth Andrews, a young homemaker and mother of three.

"I love watching my children grow up and I feel blessed that I'm able to stay home with them right now," she continues. "Families are very important to me. I think that if we, as a nation, can get back to the family unit and restore those close ties, things would start turning around because that's the way God intended it to be in the first place."

"Grandparents are important too. I think kids ought to adopt grandparents if they don't live close enough to see them often."

Anna Ruth and her husband, Jack, who is employed with Well Surveys Inc., are the parents of two daughters and one son. Holly, 10, is a fourth grader at West Central, Hayden, 7, is a first grader at Northwest, and Amanda is 3 years of age.

Jack is a native of Borger and was raised in the Hereford area. Anna Ruth was born in Fort Worth, lived in Borger and Salida, Colo., and finished high school in Denver. Her parents moved to Hereford the year after she graduated from high school.

She attended Wayland Baptist University before she and Jack were married and he attended West Texas State University, entering the Navy after two and a half years.

"We left for Long Beach, Calif., a week after we were married," says Anna Ruth, "and lived there about three years while he was in the service (he was overseas part of the time). I was glad to have that experience of living in California."

The family lived on a farm near Summerfield for a number of years after coming back to Texas, and just moved into town four years ago. Jack has also farmed, raised cattle, been an auctioneer, and worked with a trucking company.

Moving into town has been a different experience than living way out in the country, but Anna Ruth says that she has enjoyed both. "I loved living in the country for the period of time that we did, but now that the kids are in school, it's nice to be in town and not have to worry about all the dirt roads in wet weather."

"I've always tried to be happy wherever I am," adds Anna Ruth. "I think if you make up your mind to enjoy being where you are, that's most of it. You usually can't change your situation, but you can change the way you feel about it."

Although she is at home now, Anna Ruth has worked outside her home in the past. She was employed at The Vogue several years ago and was a teacher's aid after that. At Bluebonnet Elementary School she worked mostly with remedial reading, and at Stanton Junior High School she had her own homeroom and a full load of classes. "I loved the junior high age kids," notes Anna Ruth.

Right now, she and Jack work with the youth group at the Church of the Nazarene, where they attend. "We are both really enjoying that," she comments. Anna Ruth also sings in the choir at church.

She taught a Bible study group for five years and this year is attending the study while another woman teaches it.

Anna Ruth enjoys plants, and has taken advantage of the fact that her living room has large windows by filling it with a variety of plants.

She also likes refinishing furniture and has done several of the pieces in her home. Another hobby is exercising. She uses tapes at home and says that she is hoping to get back into a class. "It feels so good to exercise and I love aerobics," she smiles.

Anna Ruth shares two favorite recipes which she says are simple to make and taste great. The South Pacific Celery is something she makes on holidays. "It is very inexpensive to make and is fantastic," she says.

"The Beach Supper is a dish my aunt used to make and take to the beach," continues Anna Ruth. "It is good to take anywhere and it freezes very well too. I always double the recipe and freeze one without the cheese. Then when I get it out all I have to do is sprinkle the cheese on top and heat it through."

SOUTH PACIFIC CELERY

4 c. sliced celery
4 Tbsp. butter
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. white pepper
1 Tbsp. chopped chives
1 Tbsp. grated onion

1½ Tbsp. flour
1 c. light cream
½ c. rich chicken broth
½ c. toasted peanuts
½ c. water chestnuts, sliced
½ tsp. marjoram
½ tsp. thyme
½ tsp. garlic salt

In saucepan, combine celery, butter, salt, and white pepper. Cover and cook about two minutes. (Do not overcook - celery should be tender-crisp.)

Add chives, onion, and flour; stir well, cooking about one minute. Add cream and broth; cook until thickened, about one minute, stirring constantly. Add remaining ingredients; heat through. Serves 4 to 6.

BEACH SUPPER

1 lb. hamburger meat
1 onion, chopped
Brown meat with onion in skillet. Season meat with salt, pepper, or other seasonings to taste.

Add:
½ tsp. vinegar
¼ tsp. chili powder
1 can tomato sauce
1 can Mexicorn
Stir well and let simmer slowly for about five minutes. Add water if mixture gets too dry.

Boil one small package egg noodles until done. Stir into meat mixture and put in baking dish. Grate ½ pound cheddar cheese over top and brown in oven (about 15 minutes at 350 degrees and then turn to broil until cheese browns).

Huge gallery on hand

47th Masters Tournament is up for grabs

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The 47th Masters Golf Tournament, the season's first major event, began this morning under overcast skies and a forecast of scattered showers and thundershowers. A huge gallery, expected to swell to more than 30,000 at its peak, began arriving early carrying various forms of raingear.

The temperature was in the low 60s and expected to rise to 80 this afternoon and the forecast called for a 60 percent chance of rain today and a 70 percent chance of showers for Friday's scheduled second round. An overnight rain, heavy at times, left the course soggy as play began. There was a light drizzle falling about an hour before the start, but it had ended before play began.

Gene Sarazen, the 81-year-old former golf star who once scored a double eagle in the Masters, and Ken Venturi, who finished second in the 1956 Masters as an amateur, served as the honorary starters for the elite 82-man international field. Scott Simpson, appearing in his second Masters after failing to make the cut here two years ago, and Payne

Stewart, last year's Quad Cities Tournament winner making his Masters debut, were the first of 41 twosomes to begin play on the 6,905-yard, par 72 Augusta National Golf Club course. No clear-cut favorite emerged from the first 13 tour events of the season, including defending champion Craig Stadler, but no one was counting out five-time champion Jack Nicklaus and two-time winner Tom Watson, who captured the United States and British Opens last year. Both Nicklaus and Watson had afternoon starting times. "I like my chances," Stadler said Wednesday. "There's something about it (Augusta National) that makes me concentrate." Johnny Miller, who has a trio of second place finishes in this event, is playing well, having captured the Honda-Inverrary Classic last month. Ben Crenshaw who has won $58,000 this season to surpass the $54,000 he earned for 1982, is looking for his first victory in three years. Lanny Wadkins, another of the long hitters the Augusta layout seems to favor, won at Greensboro last week.

There's also Gil Morgan, the only two-time winner on the tour this season. Tom Kite is still seeking his first major title, but he historically does well in the Masters, putting together seven finishes in the top ten in the last eight years. Raymond Floyd, who captured the 1976 Masters by dominating the par five holes, is another threat along with Hal Sutton, winner of the Tournament Players Championship two weeks ago.

Also on hand are South African Gary Player and Spain's Seve Ballesteros, Greg Norman of Australia and Tommy Nakajima of Japan. The sentimental favorites would have to be Arnold Palmer and Sam Snead. Palmer, 53, has been extended special invitations to participate in the four major events this year and has said how well he performs in them may determine whether he continues playing, or goes into retirement. Snead, 70, is making his 44th Masters appearance, and says it will be his last.

Mustangs edge Herd, 6-5; remain atop 3-5A standings

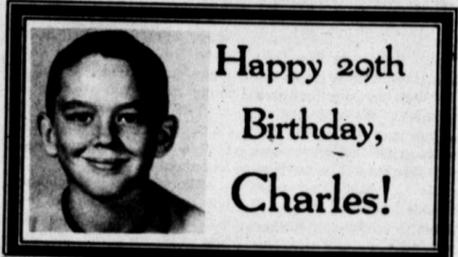

LUBBOCK — After three straight one-run victories had vaulted them into the thick of the District 3-5A baseball race, Hereford's fortunes took a turn for the worse Wednesday here. A costly throwing error by pitcher Mickey Stengel paved the way to an unearned run in the last of the eighth as league-leading Coronado remained unbeaten with a come-from-behind, 6-5 triumph. Wednesday's game site was changed after bad weather in Hereford twice postponed the contest. Originally, the game was to have been played last Friday in Hereford. Bad weather forced a postponement Monday, and finally the site was changed. The two teams will play in Hereford April 22, instead of Lubbock. Stengel clubbed a two-run homer in the first and belted a run-scoring triple in the fifth to stake the Herd to an early lead. But, the Mustangs knotted the count with a run in the seventh, then won it an inning later. Stengel, now 4-3 on the season, went the distance for Hereford allowing 11 hits — all singles. Only four of the six Coronado runs were earned. The victory left Coronado with a 5-0 district record, and a 12-4 season mark. Hereford fell to 3-3 in district play and 6-6 overall. Monterey moved into a second-place tie with Plainview Wednesday, defeating cross-town rival Lubbock High, 11-5. The Plainsmen and Bulldogs are 4-1 in district play, followed by Hereford and Amarillo at 3-3. Hereford is scheduled to host Amarillo High tomorrow at 4 p.m., then travel to Plainview Saturday for a 1 p.m. clash.

Bowling deadline midnight Saturday

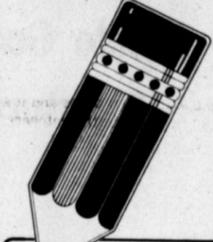

Entry deadline for the Second Annual Hereford Mixed Bowling Tournament is midnight Monday. The two-weekend event, to be held at Bowling's Bowl, is scheduled for the weekends of April 16-17 and 23-24. Team event entries will bowl at 1, 4 and 7 p.m. April 16 and 23, while singles and doubles squads are set for 1, 3:30 and 6 p.m. April 17 and 24. The entry fee is $7 per person, per event in this handicap tournament. All events is $1 extra. Handicap is 80 percent from a 200 average. An entrant's highest average as of April 9 (21 games or more) shall be used. Entries should be sent to Jan Walser at 103 Beach, or L.V. Watts at 109 Ave. C.

In effort to speed up play NCAA rules committee adopts changes

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — In two moves designed to speed up the increasingly lengthy final two minutes of college basketball games, the NCAA Rules Committee has decided to increase the penalties for late-game fouls and cut down on the number of timeouts in televised games. The committee also announced Wednesday that it would continue to experiment by conference with a three-point basket and shot clock, but declined to implement it nationwide. In the key change, the committee said that starting next year, players fouled the last two minutes of games will get two free throws if the bonus is in effect instead of the present one shot, plus a second if they make the first. Ed Steitz, secretary-editor of the rules committee, said of the change: "We felt it would eliminate the tendency to foul at the end of the game." But it would also presumably cut the length of the final two minutes of college games, which are often continuing processions to the foul line. The second change — cutting the time outs — would probably have the same effect, since coaches normally save most or all of their timeouts for the crucial final minutes. The changes will have to be adopted by the entire NCAA, but that is usually a formality. Had they been in effect this year, the outcome of Monday night's NCAA final might well have been different. In that game, which North Carolina State won 54-52 over Houston in the final seconds, Houston twice missed the first end of one-and-one free throws in the last two minutes and the Wolfpack used those misses to get the ball for both the tying and winning baskets. If the new rule had been in effect, the Cougars would have received an extra shot each time. In reducing the number of timeouts from five to three in televised games, the committee implied that extra official timeouts are taken for television commercials. The timeouts would be cumulative — as is now the case, they could all be saved up until the end of the game. Steitz said most NCAA coaches preferred to continue the experimentation with the three-point basket and the shot clock instead of instituting either or both on a standard basis. The NCAA tournament was played with neither. The committee will determine later this year exactly which conferences will use the shot clock and three-point basket. Steitz said experiments could include: —A 45-second shot clock left on for the entire game. —A 45-second clock turned off during the last four minutes of the game. —A three-point field goal from 19.9 feet, measured from the center of the basket. —A "rear boundary arc" — a kind of foreshortened half-court line designed to prevent stalling the game.

A's hurler escapes death

Gritty Norris throttles Tribe

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Mike Norris' career has been going downhill the last two years and to start the 1983 season he almost completed the trip — literally.

The 28-year-old right-hander of the Oakland A's, who has slipped from 22-9 and a 2.53 earned run average in 1980 to 12-9, 3.75 in 1981 and 7-11, 4.76 last year when he was troubled by a sore shoulder, blanked Cleveland for five gutty innings Wednesday — after totaling his $42,000 sports car against a telephone pole in the Oakland hills en route to the ballpark.

"It was off the mountain or into the pole, one of the two," Norris said after the A's defeated the Indians 5-3 with relief help from Tom Burgmeier and Dave Beard. "The front wheels locked on me. I'm just lucky I wasn't killed."

In other American League action, the California Angels edged the Milwaukee Brewers 4-3, the Seattle Mariners continued their Kingdom domination of the New York Yankees 6-2, the Texas Rangers made it three in a row over the Chicago White Sox 4-1, the Baltimore Orioles trounced the Kansas City Royals 11-1 and the Detroit Tigers trimmed the Minnesota Twins 9-5.

Angels 4, Brewers 3
Bobby Clark's RBI double snapped a 3-3 tie in the fifth inning and gave California its second consecutive one-run triumph over the defending AL West champions. Brian Downing drew a leadoff walk from Mike Caldwell and scored on Clark's shot to left-center.

Mariners 6, Yankees 2
Todd Cruz hit two home runs in a game for the first time in his major league career, driving in four runs, and left-hander Matt Young pitched seven strong innings to win his major league debut as the Mariners beat the Yankees for the 22nd time in 32 meetings in Seattle's Kingdom.

Rangers 4, White Sox 1
George Wright's two-run double in the fifth inning helped Texas to a sweep of its three-game season-opening series. Rick Huncutt scattered eight hits in seven innings and Dave Tobik blanked the White Sox over the final two. The Rangers chased loser Richard Dotson in the seventh when they scored their final two runs on a single by Pete O'Brien, pinch-hitter Larry Biittner's triple and Billy Sample's double.

Orioles 11, Royals 1
John Lowenstein contributed three singles to the Orioles' 14-hit attack and drove in three runs as Baltimore gave Manager Joe Altobelli his first victory as Earl Weaver's successor.

Winner Mike Flanagan allowed seven hits in eight innings, including Hal McRae's home run in the second. Tigers 9, Twins 5

Detroit's Dan Petry worked seven innings after a shaky start — Gary Gaetti hit a three-run homer in Minnesota's four-run first — and the Tigers came from behind with five runs in the sixth on four hits and three errors.

Lopez set to defend J&B crown

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Defending champion Nancy Lopez was confident of repeating last year's success as she entered the $200,000 J&B Scotch women's golf pro-am.

"I'm hitting the ball super, chipping better than ever and am hitting my long approach putts well," said Lopez, who today heads a field of 96 top women golfers on the Desert Inn Country Club course.

"I've always liked this course, so that's a confidence builder." Lopez, who has already once this year, said last week she would leave the tour temporarily in July because she is pregnant with her first child.

The event features all seven of the winners on the LPGA tour this year, including Amy Alcott, who won the Nabisco-Dinah Shore Invitational last week.

Gervin's 3-pointer lifts Spurs past 76ers, 112-109

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

The 1971-72 Los Angeles Lakers won't have to move over for the 1982-83 Philadelphia 76ers.

The San Antonio Spurs made sure of that Wednesday night by beating the 76ers 112-109 on a buzzer-beating three-point shot by George Gervin. The loss ended any chance that Philadelphia, could finish 69-13, matching the National Basketball Association record established by the Lakers 11 years ago.

The 76ers, now 62-14, have lost seven of their last 19 games after winning 50 of their first 57.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Boston edged New York 102-98, New Jersey outlasted Indiana 121-110, Detroit tripped Washington 107-96, Houston trimmed Dallas 101-99 and Kansas City outscored Denver 130-113.

Celtics 102, Knicks 98
Boston outscored New York 9-2 down the stretch as Robert Parish scored four points and blocked four shots in the final 1:26.

Two free throws by Bernard King, who led New York with 25 points, gave the Knicks a 96-93 lead with 2:43 to go, but they didn't score again until there were nine seconds left.

Larry Bird led the Celtics, who have won five straight games, with 27 points and Danny Ainge added a career-high 24.

Pistons 107, Bullets 96
Detroit handed Washington only its second loss in 11 games as backup forward Ray Tolbert scored 20 points for the Pistons.

The defeat left the Bullets one game behind New York and 1½ games behind Atlanta in the three teams' battle for the final two Eastern Conference playoff spots.

Kings 130, Nuggets 113
Kansas City tied Denver for the sixth Western Conference playoff spot as Eddie Johnson scored 26 points and Steve Johnson and Larry Drew had 23 each for the Kings.

Kiki Vandeweghe led the Nuggets with 26 points, pushing him over the 2,000-point level for the season.

He and Alex English are only the second pair of teammates to surpass that standard in one year. The others were Jerry West and Elgin Baylor for Los Angeles and Pete Maravich and Lou Hudson of Atlanta.

Nets 121, Pacers 110
Darryl Dawkins scored a season-high 25 points, 12 of them on slam dunks, to help New Jersey overcome Indiana.

Rockets 101, Mavericks 99
Houston won only its 14th game in 77 outings as Caldwell Jones scored a season-high 25 points to snap a six-game losing streak.

Landreaux leads L.A. past Astros, 4-2

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

The Los Angeles Dodgers love to run around the bases. They can do it on their own, but they'd just as soon wait for Ken Landreaux to get them going.

Landreaux, who blasted Houston with six runs batted in Tuesday night's 16-7 season-opening romp, pulled the trigger again Wednesday night with a bases-loaded two-run single that broke an eighth-inning tie and produced a 4-2 victory.

The Dodgers stole six bases against the Astros, the most for them in a game since June 24, 1975 — when they stole six bases against the Astros.

"Steve Sax and Ken Landreaux and those guys can run," said Dodgers' Manager Tom Lasorda. "This isn't the first time that we've hurt people with stolen bases and it's not necessarily the catchers' fault with guys like that running."

Also in the National League it was Atlanta 5, Cincinnati 1; San Diego 5, San Francisco 3, and Montreal 3, Chicago 0. Pittsburgh's game at St. Louis was rained out.

Braves 5, Reds 1

Atlanta's bullpen, one of the busiest in the league last year, took the night off in Cincinnati as Pascual Perez survived a shaky first inning and settled down to tame the Reds on seven hits.

Expos 3, Cubs 0

Chicago, opening a day later than planned due to a Tuesday afternoon rainout, attracted a paid crowd of only 4,802 to Wrigley Field. The Cubs didn't give the fans much to cheer about.

Steve Rogers of Montreal stopped them on six hits and six strikeouts for his 33rd career shutout and Al Oliver drove in all of the Expos' runs with home runs off Ferguson Jenkins in the seventh inning and Bill Campbell in the ninth.

Padres 5, Giants 3

Dave Dravecky of the Padres scattered five San Francisco hits — including Chili Davis' second homer of the season, a two-run shot in the third inning — en route to his first complete game in the majors.

Gene Richards had three hits for San Diego, including a home run opening the game, and the Padres struck for four runs in the top of the third off Bill Laskey, two of them on Sixto Lezcano's double.

The Newspaper BIBLE

THE BEST NEWS THE WORLD HAS EVER HEARD!

About this time Caesar Augustus, the Roman Emperor, decreed that a census should be taken throughout the nation. (This census was taken when Quirinius was governor of Syria.)

Everyone was required to return to his ancestral home for this registration.

And because Joseph was a member of the royal line, he had to go to Bethlehem in Judea, King David's ancient home—journeying there from the Galilean village of Nazareth.

He took with him Mary, his fiancée, who was obviously pregnant by this time. And while they were there, the time came for her baby to be born; and she gave birth to her first child, a son. She wrapped Him in a blanket and laid Him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the village inn.

That night some shepherds were in the fields outside the village, guarding their flocks of sheep. Suddenly an angel appeared among them, and the landscape shone bright with the glory of the Lord. They were badly frightened, but the angel reassured them, "Don't be afraid!" he said. "I bring you the most joyful news ever announced, and it is for everyone!

"The Savior—yes, the Messiah, the Lord—has been born tonight in Bethlehem!

"How will you recognize Him? You will find a baby wrapped in a blanket, lying in a manger!" Luke 2:1-12

Ask Kate

George was only 54

By Kate Woods

How old was George Burns when he starred in the "Burns and Allen" series? — C.M.

The eternally youthful Burns was 54 when he and Gracie took TV by storm in 1950. The show originally aired live from New York.

E.T. BET — I bet a friend $5 that the boy on the Intellivision commercial isn't Henry Thomas, Elliot of "E.T." Please settle the argument. — A.D.

You'd better phone home for money. That's Henry Thomas hawking video games next to George Plimpton.

WRONG NAME — While watching "Superman" on TV a friend mentioned that Chris Reeve co-starred with Michael Caine and Dyan Cannon in a movie about homosexuals. He said the name of it was "Sluke." I know that can't be. Was there such a movie? — K.O.

George Burns

Your friend has not only mixed-up the title, but the movie as well. He's thinking of "Slueth," based on Anthony Shaffer's play and co-starring Michael Caine and Laurence Olivier in the cat-and-mouse goings-on. Chris Reeve teamed up with Caine and Dyan Cannon in "Deathtrap," based on Ira Levin's play. Aside from Caine there are a number of similarities between the two stylish mysteries, so some of the confusion is understandable.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I comment on the young man who moved back home after losing his job? He had four years of college and was on his own for five years. He said no disrespect was meant when his mother asked, "Where are you going?" and he replied, "Out." This letter is for my own son who is in a similar situation.

Dear John: When you left home nine years ago, I assumed four years of college ended my financial responsibility and moral obligation to you.

You are now 28 and I am 55. My years of productivity are limited. You are an adult and this is my home. When I ask, "Where are you going?" I really mean, "WHEN are you going?" When you reply "Out," if it means, "Out of your life, Mother," I consider that a threat. I must decide whether or not I want to take the risk. Well, I've decided to chance it.

Although I love you with all my heart, be aware, please, that self-preservation is the strongest human instinct, stronger even than protecting one's young. I have fulfilled my responsibilities and you have no right to expect more. Sorry, Son, but I am — Nine Years Away From Social Security

DEAR NINE YEARS AWAY: Thanks for expressing yourself in a totally honest way. I'm sure the letter was difficult to write, and I thank you. Here is another one on the same subject:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You are probably swamped with letters from adult children who have had to return home to live because they are out of work, out of money and up against it. Here's one I hope you will print. I'm a clone. There are at least a million more like me.

Call me Mary. I am 26, single, have a master's in English and worked for a top-notch ad agency right out of college. I got pink-slipped in the crunch last September and have walked my feet off trying to find another job. No luck. Three weeks ago I was down to my last $100, so I called Mom and Dad and asked if I could have my room back until I got on my feet. They said, "Of course."

I've been trying to keep my mouth shut and my temper under control when Mom treats me like she did when I was in high school. I am expected to go with them to visit relatives who are bigots and bores. I cringe when I see Mom rewashing the tub because I didn't do it "right." I know it's hard on the folks to have me here, but it's harder on me to be here. My dignity and self-esteem are shot. My disposition is awful. I feel the resentment growing by the day. Yet it is their home. They have a right to call the signals.

If I don't find a job soon, I may move in with a semi-creep who has been pushing for the arrangement for six months. What do you say, Ann? — Mizzzerable in Maryland

DEAR MIZZZZ: Don't trade bronchitis for lung cancer. Stay put. Follow every job lead possible. Good luck to you and your fellow clones.

Today In History

Today is Thursday, April 7, the 97th day of 1983. There are 268 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On April 7, 1927, the first successful long-distance television transmission took place with the sending of an image of Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover from Washington to New York.

On this date: In 1778, the first planned permanent settlement in Ohio — Marietta — was founded.

In 1934, Mahatma Gandhi suspended his civil disobedience campaign in India.

In 1963, Swedish diplomat Dag Hammarskjöld was elected Secretary-General of the United Nations.

In 1980, President Jimmy Carter broke diplomatic relations with Iran as militants in Tehran continued to hold more than 50 Americans hostage.

Ten years ago: President Richard Nixon sent Gen. Alexander Haig to Indochina to assess the deteriorating military situation.

Five years ago: President

Jimmy Carter announced his decision to defer production of the neutron warhead.

One year ago: President Ronald Reagan sent Secretary of State Alexander Haig to London and Buenos Aires, Argentina, to sound out the British and Argentine governments about avoiding a military conflict over the Falkland Islands.

Today's birthdays: Actor James Garner is 55. Former California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. is 43.

Thought for today: "Perfection is attained in slow degrees. — It requires the hand of time." — Voltaire, French writer (1694-1778)

Father of head-injured teenager starts special facility for therapy

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Russell Moody survived his car wreck with a drunken driver, but one third of the teenager's skull was crushed. Three years later, Moody spends four days a week in a rehabilitation program at Houston's Plaza Del Oro, learning again how to walk and talk. Survival is just the beginning for people with severe head injuries, after their physical injuries heal they still must deal with the other problems of brain damage. Many leave the hospital just to be sent to a nursing home or cared for by their families. Moody's millionaire father, Robert Moody, was not satisfied with these choices. Doctors told the elder Moody there was no place where people with head injuries could learn how to be independent and productive again, so he built one. The Transitional Learning Community, which opened in Galveston in October 1982, is the only such place in the world, said administrator Pat Johnson. The facility cost more than a million dollars and has a 15-member specially trained staff that includes a neuropsychologist, a recreational therapist, and specialists in clinical psychology, adaptive living skills and work training. Trainees are charged about $5,000 a month, roughly half of the costs of their rehabilitation, said Moody. He said The Moody Foundation is paying about $700,000 a year to operate the facility he hopes will be a "break-even proposition" through insurance payments in about a year. The facility opened with four trainees but now has a full capacity of 12 receiving intensive instruction in a controlled environment. "The model for this facility doesn't exist," Mrs. Johnson said. "We are the model. ... We are changing the course of rehabilitation for head injury patients." "Head injury patients have been ignored because no one knew what to do with them. No one's done this before, ever, anywhere," said neuropsychologist Barbara Schrock.

Mrs. Johnson said after head injury patients are released from a hospital they believe the most important thing is to go home. But at home many realize they lack the attention, concentration, problem solving skills, memory and appropriate social behavior to function. "They're not doing or saying the right things, but all they realize is 'It's not working,'" Mrs. Johnson said. This loss of skills and subtle personality changes cause residual problems. The injured person's peer group may diminish to one or two people. Two out of three people get divorced. They have trouble establishing relationships. And only one-third marry after their accidents, Mrs. Johnson said. Mrs. Schrock said personality changes associated with head injuries include irritability, aggressiveness, restlessness, silliness, self-centered behavior and a change in sexual interest. "I've never seen an encompassing a disability as this. It disables the family as well as the person. It's not an injury you can fix with Band-aids. It's a long, laborious, expensive process. "It's a recoverable injury, but we're talking about a very long time — five to 10 years," said Mrs. Johnson. The treatment is expensive, she said, because head injuries are so unlike other disabilities and because each one is different and comes with a different set of lost or diminished skills. "Brain injured people aren't the same as handicapped people. ... When you're brain injured, no one can know by looking at you," said Mark Barton, a 21-year-old trainee at the facility. "I can't use my left arm. It's not cut up or anything. But the part of my brain that operates my left arm is damaged. It's just an invisible injury," said trainee Mark Naskrent, 25, of Houston, who was injured in a car wreck.

What is pancreatitis?

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband has been hospitalized for more than three weeks for pancreatitis. He has not been able to eat anything all this time and is being fed intravenously. He was being treated for high cholesterol when he got sick and was watching his diet but not taking pills. Could you give us some information about what causes pancreatitis and how the pancreas works? Also, our doctor told us my husband will be on a strict diet when he comes home. What types of food will he be allowed to eat? What are the most dangerous foods that will trigger the pancreas problems again?

hospital. In the early recovery stage it is wise to avoid fat and protein and rely mostly on carbohydrates. Small, bland feedings are usually advised. In later stages the emphasis remains on small meals and avoiding fatty foods. Enzyme supplements are usually prescribed as well. Coffee, tea, spices and condiments should be avoided.

DEAR READER — The pancreas is the organ that provides a major portion of enzymes to digest carbohydrates, proteins and fat. The pancreatic juice enters the small intestine through the pancreatic duct where the bile duct enters through the bile duct. It follows that pancreatitis diminishes the ability to digest and absorb carbohydrates, fats and proteins, and with this a loss in the ability to absorb vitamins and minerals. In addition the islets of Langerhans, which provide insulin, are in the pancreas. That is why an insulin deficiency or diabetic state may accompany pancreatitis.

DEAR DR. LAMB — In one of your columns you said there is a higher incidence of cancer of the penis in uncircumcised males. This scared me because both my husband and son are uncircumcised. My husband wants to wait until our son is 10 years old because he will then be old enough to take good care of himself. He's 2 years old now.

DEAR POLLY — Please ask your readers if anyone has a recipe for "Island Jam." I've lost my old recipe. The jam was really good — made from bananas and canteloupe and something else. — TINA

I was particularly concerned because my husband caught venereal disease when he was 22. Now he is 32. Will the venereal disease come back again or cause more problems about cancer?

DEAR POLLY — I can't resist commenting on your response to the person who wanted to know how to improve the texture of homemade 100 percent whole wheat bread. The simplest solution is to use half whole wheat flour and half unbleached or all-purpose flour, but there are other ways, too. Use potato cooking water for the warm liquid. The potato starch is superior yeast food. Substitute soy flour (available at health-food stores) for up to one-fourth the total flour. This also adds protein to the bread. Add up to three eggs to a recipe making two loaves of bread, omitting one-fourth cup liquid for each egg. When the dough is of batter consistency (with one-third to one-half the flour added), beat vigorously 200 strokes by hand or two minutes at medium speed with an electric mixer. This strengthens the gluten and makes the bread rise easily. Be sure to knead for 15 minutes so the dough is smooth, springy and firm. Allow plenty of time for rising. — PEGGY

DEAR READER — The incidence of cancer of the penis is quite low even in uncircumcised males. And, as studies of Scandinavians have shown, it is no more common in uncircumcised men who use proper cleanliness than men who are circumcised. Cancer of the penis is not really a question of circumcision but a question of cleanliness. And if by venereal disease you mean gonorrhea, it has no relation at all to subsequent cancer.

DEAR POLLY — Your Pointers are all excellent, easily followed suggestions for improving texture and rising-power of the whole grain loaf, earning you the Pointer of the Week Award: an autographed copy of Polly's Pointers: 1081 Helpful Household Hints for Making Everything Last Longer. Also, my thanks to all the other readers who sent in their own recipes for all-whole wheat breads. They are all appreciated. — POLLY

President's name
Gerald R. Ford was not the 38th president's original name. He was born Leslie King Jr. on July 14, 1913. His parents were divorced when Ford was 2 and he was later formally adopted by his mother's second husband who gave the boy his own name.

Assist With Observance

school served as leaders at the annual observance, which commemorates the passage of the Hebrews from Egypt into the promised land.

Ceremonial luncheon held at St. Anthony's

The sixth graders of St. Anthony's School served as leaders at an annual ceremonial luncheon, a simplified "Passover Meal," recently, which contained a variety symbolizing Israel's passage from bondage to freedom.

Two hundred children joined in the celebration which commemorated the passing of the Hebrews from the slavery of Egypt to the freedom of the promised land.

The ceremony continually reviews the events of Jesus' last celebration of the Passover in which He freely offered Himself as the new paschal victim for Christians' passage into freedom. The meal expresses the need of man's eternal vigilance in the struggle to preserve and advance the cause of freedom and human dignity.
