Rulings on DOE suits should start soon

Several lawsuits against the Department of Energy are still in court with decisions on some expected anytime this spring, according to Rene Hicks of the Texas Attorney General's office.

Hicks was a guest speaker Thursday night at the organizational meeting of POWER of Hereford, a new group fighting site characterization and nuclear waste repository construction.

The array of cases in court, from Boston to San Francisco, is a way to cover all bases because "we can't assume victory at any point," Hicks said.

The first suit, which regards siting guidelines is in 1st Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals in Boston. It challenges the EPA, claiming that radioactive releases for the repository are invalid because they are set too weak and that the releases would be harmful to groundwater. The case was argued in September of 1986. Its importance lies in that the DOE used those guidelines in its siting process.

All other suits are in the 9th Circuit of Appeals in San Francisco. Hicks said a majority of the suits against the DOE are over the same issues, thus the first filing of a suit determines where others like it will be sent.

One is over siting guidelines and was filed about 18 months ago. Hicks said nothing much has developed in that case.

The San Francisco court also has cases challenging the May 28, 1986, decision which named Deaf Smith County as a possible repository site which would be characterized. The suit alleges that the Environmental Assessments were inadequate and rebukes the validity of Deaf Smith's site being in the finalists. It also challenges the validity of the presidential recommendation of the three sites and questions the deferral of the second round repository search which was cancelled.

What Hicks considered "the most boring suit we have" is one which charges the DOE had preliminarily decided on sites, especially on the Deaf Smith land since it could be the largest underground site due to its formation.

Hicks said he meets regularly with other groups involved in the lawsuits in order to stay unified on the allegations which oppose DOE procedures.

He said a lot is expected in the next few months, and that the EPA case in Boston would likely be the first to be ruled. Of the cases in San Francisco, he expects a ruling first on the issue of dropping the second repository search.

Another case was filed in 1984 against the DOE in the New Orleans district which said sites selected were not identified within the time period stated in the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982. When it was filed, the New Orleans court said it was premature. Hicks said it should be ripe for a decision now.

Administratively, he said his office is working with the Texas Water Commission urging it to act on shaft drilling permit rules. The office also is also questioning the Nuclear Regulatory Commission on procedures.

Hicks said that grassroots pressures do work up to the legislature. He explained that in New England states where second sites were to be considered entire towns showed up to protest. He believes that political pressure is part of what knocked those states from the running.

"I don't see any strong unified effort from the Texas delegation yet," he said. Most congressmen have expressed unfavor toward the repository, however, most have a "wait and see" attitude.

Hicks encourages opponents to write letters and make phone calls to congressmen because public input does help, even if it takes time to soak in.

Lawsuit Report

Rene Hicks, an assistant to the Texas Attorney General, reported that decisions on the many lawsuits against the Department of Energy should be ruled this spring.

Hicks was guest speaker at the POWER of Hereford meeting Thursday night. Seated is chairman Jim Conkwright.

POWER of Hereford formed, officers elected

By JERI SHIRE
Managing Editor

Opponents of site characterization and nuclear waste repository location in Deaf Smith County voted Thursday night to become a Hereford chapter of POWER (People Opposing Wasted Energy Repositories) and to affiliate with the Nuclear Waste Task Force.

Approximately 120 protesters elected a slate of seven directors from which officers were chosen. Dempsey Alexander will serve as president, Mildred Fuhrman, secretary, Judy Kreighshauer, treasurer, and Kerrie Steiert reporter.

Also serving on the board as vice presidents are Steve King, Nick Yosten, Ruben Gutierrez, and Georgia Auckerman.

The board also plans to select an advisory panel from local citizens.

Delbert Devin, executive of the Nuclear Waste Task Force, said the group's affiliation with the NWTF would offer a singular voice in opposition in Washington, D.C. He added that by becoming a member of the NWTF, the new group becomes part of the fledgling National NWTF which represents about 14 states involved in repository considerations.

The NWTF has 18 groups under its title.

POWER of Hereford is a sibling to the original POWER organized in 1983 at Hereford. The first POWER group shifted its emphasis and support to landowner and moved to Vega. The most recent chapter will provide a focal point in Hereford for the opposition, supporters said.

A resolution objecting to the Department of Energy's methods of site selection and implementation of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act was adopted by the Hereford chapter.

Primary concerns are for protection of farmland and natural resources, especially groundwater which might risk contamination in site characterization drilling. The resolution calls for the state to pursue as many legal means as possible to stop characterization.

Committees for finances, legislation, offices, telephoning, membership and publicity began organization Thursday evening also.

Jim Conkwright, who chaired the meeting, introduced members of the Waste Deposit Impact Committee and had WDC member Frank Zinser introduce Phil Niedzielski-Eichner, executive director of the WDC.

An announcement will be made later for the next POWER of Hereford meeting, set either the fourth or fifth Thursday in April.

Director needed

Funds for violence center received

Hereford has received funding for a Domestic Violence Outreach office, through a grant administered by the Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center in Amarillo, it was announced this week.

The request for this type service in the county was initiated by the safety committee of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, explains Cindy Simons, adult probation of-ficier for the county.

At an organizational session here recently, Mrs. Simons was asked to chair a research committee on finding a director for the local Domestic Violence Outreach office and volunteers to help with the program. She explained the initial grant provides for a director to be employed about 20 hours a week.

"The need for such a service is reflected by the growing number of family violence cases reported to the police department," said Mrs. Simons. The police recorded 95 domestic violence calls in 1983; last year that number had increased to 243.

The office would provide counseling on crisis intervention cases, provide information and referral services for abused women and children, and provide emergency transportation to a shelter at the Amarillo center.

The local coordinator would be responsible for "developing and implementing a program of crisis intervention services" for the county and surrounding area, said Mrs. Simons. She is taking applications for the position at the probation office in the courthouse.

Qualifications for the coordinator's position include a college degree in a human service field, experience in counseling and a knowledge of the social service, welfare, mental health and criminal justice agencies in Deaf Smith and surrounding counties. The ability to respond in a constructive manner to women and children in a crisis situation is needed, as well as sensitivity to varying cultural, ethnic, and social backgrounds, attitudes and language.

Anyone interested in applying for the position can contact Mrs. Simons at the courthouse. Also, anyone desiring to contribute office space or office equipment should call 364-5631.

About 20 persons attended an organizational meeting here Feb. 27. For more information on the program, persons can contact Mrs. Simons.

Walsh may proceed with investigation of Col. North

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dismissing lawsuits that struck "at the core" of independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh's authority, a judge says Walsh can forge ahead with his investigation of the Iran-Contra affair and the man who tried to stop it: Oliver L. North.

U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker's rejection of two North lawsuits Thursday cleared one potential obstacle for Walsh, but still left him racing to develop a possible criminal case before North and other key figures are granted congressional immunity.

An immunity grant would prevent Walsh from using congressional testimony as the basis for a criminal case.

Turning down North's constitutional challenge to the Walsh probe, Parker said, "The nation demands an expeditious and complete disclosure" of the Iran-Contra affair. North, he concluded, "has not suffered an injury of sufficient keeness to warrant the court's intercession" in a criminal investigation.

Parker said North's challenge "strikes at the core of Walsh's authority to conduct a criminal investigation" and raises an issue of "grave constitutional importance."

North, a fired National Security Council aide, is the central figure in the investigation of arms sales to Iran and possible diversion of payments to the Nicaraguan Contras. His lawyer, Barry Simon, declined to comment on a possible appeal.

Walsh, commenting on the ruling, said, "We welcome the prompt determination of the court that the investigation of independent counsel continue without interruption or disruption."

Meanwhile, a similar challenge to the independent counsel law mounted by lobbyist Michael K. Deaver, a former aide to President Reagan, remained alive Thursday.

The U.S. Court of Appeals granted Deaver an emergency order, good through next Tuesday, that prevents the independent counsel in that case from seeking a grand jury indictment.

Landscaping pays off in lots of ways

By DEBE GRAVES
Staff Writer

Local experts agree that landscaping ultimately pays off for the homeowner in increased value of property and in reduced energy costs expended for heating and cooling.

Energy conscious homeowners may want to consider the addition of shade trees and windbreaks in their landscaping.

A canopy of deciduous trees can reduce summer cooling costs by shading the roof of a building from the hot afternoon sun. Large trees can reduce the inner temperature of home by 8 to 10 degrees, according to information from the County Extension office. These same trees will shed their leaves each fall allowing the warming sunrays to reach the building through bare branches during colder winter months.

Windbreaks, composed of trees and shrubbery appropriately placed, can reduce wind and other weather elements and cut energy costs related to heating and cooling. This is not a new idea as living windbreaks have been used for many years and are recommended by soil conservationists. During certain periods of the year seedlings may be purchased from the soil conservation office for minimal fees. According to Toddie Filippo, "The tree seedling sale usually lasts from December through the first of March." Orders have ceased for the spring season but consumers may expect the program to begin again in early winter. Good landscaping also pays off for the homeowner in the increased value it lends real estate. According to local real estate agent, Glenn Phibbs, "While it's difficult to pinpoint an exact dollar value that landscaping may add to a property, when complemented by a nicely finished interior decor, it will most likely bring the owner the best possible price."

Phibbs explains that homes with nicely landscaped yards receive the most attention and draw a greater number of potential buyers since they stand out from other homes on the market. It is estimated that landscaping can either save or gain a homeowner four to eight percent on the sales price of the property.

Phibbs states, "Landscaping is one very important factor in a market place where there are more sellers than buyers." Homeowners can support the marketing of property as fully as possible in an endeavor to gain optimum market value by using landscaping to create a favorable impression.

Late winter and early spring is an ideal planting time for trees. Marcella McLain explains, "If the trees are planted before they begin to leaf out they suffer less from shock. This also gives them time to stabilize and develop a good root system before they have to endure the hot summer days."

McLain, who is the co-owner of McLain Garden Center, advises that the hole the tree is to be planted in

State Unified primary bill introduced

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Democrats say Republican legislative plans for a joint Democrat-Republican primary in 1988 would merely shift election costs from the state to the counties.

"A unified primary is not a money-saver," the Legislative Democratic Caucus said in a statement Thursday.

The comment came shortly after a news conference by Secretary of State Jack Rains, an appointee of Republican Gov. Bill Clements, endorsing the single primary bill introduced in the Senate and House.

Rains said using a single primary system in 1988 would save the state about $5.5 million, plus doing away with about 6,000 election workers.

"It would be handled like a general election is now," said Rep. Richard Smith, R-Bryan. "The only difference at the primary would be two different ballots."

"It is estimated that the 1988 'Super Tuesday' primary elections would cost $10.6 million to administer under the present law," said Rains, the state's chief election officer. "The cost of Super Tuesday under a single location primary schemes would cost a little more than $5 million."

National Overlooked galaxy may be largest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Astronomers say a long-overlooked galaxy drifting in the void between the Milky Way and the Andromeda constellation is one of the largest objects in the universe.

Markarian 348, an isolated, average-looking collection of stars and gas that astronomers have glanced at for 20 years, now appears to be the largest known galaxy, a report published today in the journal Science says.

Using a powerful radio telescope to peer past clouds of gas and the glare of background starlight, scientists say they found the galaxy to be a giant spiral of stars swollen with a massive hydrogen cloud to 13 times the size of the Milky Way.

The galaxy, located 300 million light-years from Earth, is an oddly shaped mass of stars and gases which puts out many times the energy of a normal galaxy and a brightness 100 billion times that of the sun, the scientists said.

Astronomers said Markarian 348 is 1.3 million light-years in diameter. This is a giant compared with the Milky Way, in which the Earth's solar system is located. The Milky Way measures about 100,000 light-years in diameter and contains billions of stars.

A light-year is the distance light travels in a vacuum at 186,000 miles per second in a year's time — about 5.9 trillion miles.

AIDS drugs work against each other

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two drugs which separately may be beneficial in treating AIDS show noticeably less effectiveness and may even harm patients when used together, scientists say.

Researchers at Boston's Massachusetts General Hospital and elsewhere said Thursday they tested the drugs AZT and ribavirin in several different human cell cultures and found they antagonized one another.

"It is conceivable that this mechanism happens in people as well," Dr. Markus W. Vogt said in a telephone interview. "This should be tested in animals before trying the combination in humans."

The researchers cautioned that desperate patients with the fatal disease who obtain the experimental drugs illegally may harm themselves if they mix the two.

"I am afraid that both AZT and ribavirin are or will be available on the black market, particularly in large cities on the East and West Coasts," said Dr. Martin S. Hirsch, head of AIDS research at the hospital.

"It is a natural temptation for people who are desperate and fear for their lives to attempt to combine these drugs," he continued.

The Boston researchers tested azidothymidine, or AZT, made by the Burroughs Wellcome Co., of Research Triangle Park, N.C., with ribavirin, an antiviral drug made by ICN Pharmaceuticals of Costa Mesa, Calif.

U.S. offers new missile plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is offering the Soviets a new inspection plan as part of the effort to eliminate medium-range nuclear missiles from Europe, while also appealing to U.S. critics for more time to negotiate arms reductions.

The U.S. plan was presented Thursday to the Soviet Union in Geneva, where the two sides are trying to work out a treaty. The Soviets already have accepted the principal of on-site inspection to help verify compliance, which is the major stumbling block to an agreement.

The proposed pact would require dismantling, over the next five years, of 268 U.S. weapons based in West Germany, Great Britain, Belgium, the Netherlands and Italy, along with the 243 Soviet weapons targeted on Western Europe.

The latest U.S. verification proposal has three parts. First would be confirmation by on-site inspectors of missiles deployed, followed by inspectors watching the missiles being destroyed.

The final stage would be stationing U.S. inspectors in Asia where they would watch the 100 mid-range Soviet missiles as they are moved there, with the Soviets given the same right to check on U.S. weapons, which would possibly be put in Alaska.

State Department spokesman Charles Redman said he was making the details public because there is "a great deal of interest in this question" and because the Soviets already had the information. Normally, the two sides don't reveal details of their positions.

On Capitol Hill, Richard Perle, a major administration figure on nuclear policy, told a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee the next "six to eight months are critical" in the effort to work out arms reduction treaties.

International Four bombs explode, injure police

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Four bombs exploded in Belfast today injuring at least five police officers, four of them at a cemetery where a slain colleague was being buried, police said.

A car bomb blew up near Roselawn Cemetery on the outskirts of Belfast as the funeral cortege was approaching with the body of reservist Peter Nesbitt, who was killed by a bomb in Belfast Tuesday night, said Superintendent Leonard Bleakney, a spokesman for the Royal Ulster Constabulary.

Three of the police officers suffered shrapnel wounds and a fourth was in shock, he said.

Another policeman was injured when a bomb exploded at Smithfield Market in the center of the province's capital, Bleakney said.

Another bomb went off on the Dublin Road, a commercial thoroughfare, causing no injuries, he said, adding: "We have also had a number of suspect devices in and around the city center. A number have been cleared and declared hoaxes. Others are still being checked."

No immediate claims of responsibility were received.

POWER Officers

Elected to serve as officers of POWER of Hereford are, standing from left, Dempsey Alexander, president; Judy Kriegshauser, treasurer; Georgia Auckerman, Nick Yosten, Steve King, vice presidents; and, seated, Kerrie Steiert, reporter. Nuclear waste repository opponents elected the directors Thursday night in an organizational meeting.

Trees

needs to be two times the size of the root ball. She also recommends, "When trees are planted they need to be planted so that the soil allows for drainage and it is best to mix the soil with peat moss, compost or a soil conditioner, our soil is very compacted and the conditioner will lighten it to provide for better aeration of the tree roots."

Trees are sold with roots bound in burlap-style containers or in containers. Those balled in burlap may be planted with the cloth in place. Those trees rooted in containers must be carefully removed from the container with care given to disturbing the root ball as little as possible.

McLain says, "We recommend soaking the roots in a stimulator. It compares to vitamins we might take for ourselves in giving the tree a healthy start."

Over crowded limbs should be thinned out but the main stem should remain as is.

Soil should be tapped into the remaining space of the hole, some garden supply books recommend using to settle the soil and work out air pockets. The tree should be planted at the same soil line as it grew in the nursery.

Young trees should be fertilized according to nursery instructions, established trees should be fed once or twice a year. Insects and diseases can reduce the growth and health of a tree. Careful consideration should be given to any signs of problems. Carefully timed applications of fungicides and insecticides can reduce problems from insects and diseases.

One of the best preventive measures may be in the selection of trees when planting. The temptation is to choose the fastest growing types of trees but this might be a poor choice because those specie which are rapid growing are often less resistant to disease. A carefully selected tree with a moderate growth rate will often prove to be a better investment than its quick growing counterpart.

Some of the recommended trees for this area include: Oriental Arborvitae, Eastern Red Cedar, Austrian Pine, Ponderosa Pine, Scotch Pine, Russian Olive, Rocky Mountain Juniper, Aleppo Pine and Arizona Cypress.

Those planning landscaping may want to use fruit bearing trees. These have similar effectiveness for wind-break and offer the added advantage of colorful blossoms which produce fruit and nuts for family enjoyment.

Fruit trees need to be planted in pairs for cross pollination. Your nursery can recommend variety mixes that provide best production. A complete list of recommended fruit and nut varieties for Deaf Smith County is available through the County Extension agent. It should be noted that many of the traditional varieties such as Elberta peach, Bartlett pear or Stuart pecan are not recommended for this area.

HOUSTON (AP) — Even though Ralph Sampson wasn't in uniform and playing in the Houston Rockets 121-112 victory over San Antonio, he contributed to the win, according to Rockets player Jim Petersen. "I picked up a bit when I saw Ralph. He means so much to this team, just having him at the game means a lot," Petersen said Thursday night after leading the Rockets with 25 points and 10 rebounds. "When we get Ralph back, we're going to roll," Petersen added. Sampson has been recuperating in Virginia after undergoing arthroscopic surgery to remove a torn lateral cartilage in his left knee Feb. 5. The Rockets hope to have Sampson back soon.

"This will be six weeks from the time of the operation and we were originally looking at six weeks," Rockets coach Bill Fitch said. "Once Ralph gets back, the most important thing will be for him to get his timing.

"He's had a vacation and should have a full tank of energy. I look for him to carry us a couple of times," Fitch said.

The Rockets relied on Petersen, Rodney McCray and Cedric Maxwell to carry them Thursday night after their leading scorer, Akeem Olajuwon, got in early foul trouble.

Olajuwon was held scoreless in the second half, playing eight minutes in that half before fouling out late in the game.

"Maxwell and Pete did an excellent job of getting us over the hump with Akeem out of there," Fitch said.

Olajuwon contributed 22 first-half points, while McCray had 22 points and Maxwell had 17 as Houston improved its season record to 33-30.

The win snapped a four-game losing streak for the Rockets and gives them a 5-0 advantage against the Spurs this season. San Antonio is now 22-41.

Houston took advantage of 30 San Antonio fouls to connect on 38 of 42 free throws, compared to 13 of 22 for the Spurs.

San Antonio was led by Jon Sundvold with 19 points and Walter Berry with 17.

The Rockets took charge midway through the third quarter with a 15-4 run during a five-minute span that gave them a 94-81 lead with 3:34 left in the period. The Spurs pulled within 103-97 with 8:54 left but Houston quickly increased its lead to 114-102.

Houston led 40-31 after one quarter. The Spurs moved in front 50-46 with 7:02 left in the second quarter but the Rockets regained the lead 60-55 after Olajuwon scored eight straight points.

San Antonio held a 70-69 halftime advantage after Sundvold scored seven points late in the period.

Elsewhere, it was the Los Angeles Lakers 125, Portland 116; Utah 113, Sacramento 109; and Cleveland 116, Phoenix 109.

Lakers 125, Trail Blazers 116
Winning is old hat to the Los Angeles Lakers and a relatively new feeling for the New Jersey Nets.

Earvin "Magic" Johnson scored 14 of his 25 points in the third period and the Lakers reached the 50-victory mark for the eighth consecutive season Thursday night with their sixth straight NBA victory, 125-116 over the Portland Trail Blazers.

The Nets' 18-44 record pales alongside the Lakers' 50-14 and their winning streak is a modest three games. But their 123-106 thumping of the Milwaukee Bucks gave the Nets their longest success skein of the season.

The Nets' streak is too late to get them a playoff berth, but Coach Dave Wohl is pleased with their recent performances.

Los Angeles broke open a tight game with a 20-6 burst in a 6½-minute stretch of the fourth quarter fueled by rookie Billy Thompson's six points. Thompson scored 10 points and grabbed six rebounds in 12 minutes.

James Worthy scored 22 points and Byron Scott 18 for the Lakers. The Trail Blazers were led by Clyde Drexler's 30 points.

Nets 123, Bucks 106
Buck Williams, who signed a seven-year contract on Wednesday, scored 15 of his 23 points in the first half, including eight in an 18-8 run late in the first quarter that gave host New Jersey a 28-17 lead.

Milwaukee got within 35-31 early in the second quarter but the Nets responded with an 18-6 run.

Mike Gminski added 23 points for the Nets and Orlando Woolridge had 21. Jack Sikma led Milwaukee with 19 points as the third-place Bucks fell three games behind front-running Detroit in the Central Division.

Jazz 113, Kings 109
Reserve guard Dell Curry snapped a tie with two consecutive jump shots in the final 61 seconds as Utah, playing its seventh road game in 10 days, snapped a three-game losing streak.

Utah forward Karl Malone scored 37 points, one shy of his career high. Reserve forward Thurl Bailey added 22 points for the Jazz, who retained sole possession of second place in the NBA's Midwest Division, one game ahead of Houston and 6½ behind Dallas.

Reserve guard Eddie Johnson scored 15 of his 36 points in the fourth quarter to pace the Kings, who have lost five games in a row.

Cavaliers 116, Suns 109
Ron Harper scored 32 points, including two free throws that capped an 11-point run late in the fourth quarter and helped Cleveland snap a five-game losing streak. Phoenix lost for the 10th time in its last 12 games.

Cleveland's Phil Hubbard converted a three-point play when he was fouled by Ed Pinckney as Phoenix's Larry Nance was called for goal-tending on the shot with 4:27 left. That started the 11-point rally that gave the Cavaliers a 111-101 lead.

Brad Daugherty scored 25 points for Cleveland. Walter Davis led the Suns with 34 points.

Texas congressman will propose legislation

Student-athlete payments law wanted

By JOEL WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) — The same day Southern Methodist released the names of nine boosters involved in a burgeoning scandal, a Texas congressman said he wants to make it a federal crime to provide improper payments to student-athletes.

The names were in a report released Thursday to comply with a National Collegiate Athletic Association order to "show cause" why the school should not be penalized further if it did not take additional action against the boosters it banned in 1985.

In Washington, meanwhile, U.S. Rep. John Bryant said he will propose legislation next week that would make it a federal crime punishable by up to one year in prison for paying student-athletes.

The proposal will also carry a provision that would cut federal funding to universities that participate in making the payments, the Dallas Democrat said.

"The purpose of this is to make a clean sweep of this entire matter of the corrupting of college athletics by boosters who pay illicit payments to amateur athletes to induce them to play for their alma mater, and universities which turn their heads the other way," Bryant said.

Last month, the NCAA suspended SMU's football program for 1987 because of a booster slush fund that paid $61,000 to 13 players even after the school was placed on its sixth probation in August 1985.

SMU repeatedly had refused to make public the names of the nine boosters, four of whom had received lifetime bans from associating with the university's athletic department.

The other five were banned from two to five years for allegedly offering inducements, including money and entertainment, to student-athletes.

Thursday's report said the university made permanent a three-year ban in the case of one booster, Dallas investor John S. Appleton, but left the other penalties unchanged.

Although the report did not directly name the booster the NCAA said ran the slush fund that led to the Feb. 25 sanctions, it said the university found no evidence to contradict stories in the Dallas Times Herald that it was banned booster Sherwood Blount, a former SMU football player and Dallas developer.

Blount was one of the four permanently banned from involvement with the university's athletic department in 1985.

The other seven named in the report were Dallas-area businessmen Ken Andrews and George Owen, sports agent Ronnie Horowitz, banker William F. Stevens, former SMU football player George Wilnot, and Corpus Christi businessman Jack Ryan and his son, Reid Ryan.

The report indicated only Blount, Appleton and Owen committed further violations after being banned.

Appleton, who originally was dissociated for paying for a student-athlete's auto repairs, entertained an assistant football coach at his summer home in Wisconsin in the summer of 1985, the report said.

Appleton told the Fort Worth-Star Telegram that he paid $400 to an athlete in 1984, but said he had done nothing in violation of NCAA rules since.

"I have endowed a scholarship, and if this is their attitude, I am going to ask for it to be returned," he said.

Horowitz and Stevens did not return calls from The Associated Press, and Blount declined to comment. Andrews, Owen and Wilnot could not be reached.

But Reid Ryan noted that his probation expires next month.

"The frustrating thing was that I never got a chance to give my side of things to SMU, or to the NCAA," Ryan said. "They wanted me banned for life and they've never even come down here to ask me about all these things they accused me of."

"I'd rather not make any comments until I've studied it," Jack Ryan said when reached at his office. "I would just have to really read it before I make any statements."

Although the university upheld the 1985 permanent ban of Horowitz and Stevens, the report noted that school officials knew of no subsequent infractions by the boosters.

It cited a case in 1986, however, in which a student-athlete was allowed to stay for four months before paying rent in an apartment in which Owen — one of those permanently banned — held an interest. The student later was suspended from the team, and Owen and the athlete have denied any wrongdoing, the report said.

Horowitz was banned in 1985 for entertaining a prospective SMU recruit at a local restaurant and lending him an automobile, and Stevens was banned after being accused of being involved in the improper recruiting of four prospective players. He has denied any wrongdoing.

Jack Ryan was banned in 1985 for five years, Reid Ryan, two years, and Andrews and Wilnot, three years.

The Ryans and other alumni last month said they were considering filing suit against the NCAA Infractions Committee, but agreed not to after school officials asked them not to interfere.

In other developments, some state lawmakers were pushing for an investigation into Gov. Bill Clement's role in the scandal, the Dallas Morning News reported today.

Charles Finley, D-Holliday, said several lawmakers have asked that the house panel he chairs, the Texas House General Investigating Committee, look into the governor's actions.

However, Finley said he has no evidence to warrant such an investigation.

NCAA investigator David Berst retracted a statement he made earlier that John L. McElhaney, SMU's attorney-investigator from 1983 to 1985, withheld information from NCAA officials.

Berst said he had no proof that McElhaney had not told everything he knew and to say the attorney had withheld information would be "reaching."

Also, a panel of United Methodist Church bishops has begun its own investigation into the SMU scandal.

Ann Landers

Peer pressure

By ANN LANDERS

He appears to be a loyal friend. He never leaves our side. He helps us meet new friends. He makes us popular. He shows us new ways to enjoy life. He teaches us new hobbies. He shows us how to look cool and how to act like an adult. He makes us feel important. When we're with him, we're never sad or depressed. He teaches us how to get away with everything.

For a while, we're sure no one could ever replace him. He's the best friend we've ever had.

After some time, the fun wears off. He's no longer great to be with. He has changed our whole life, turned us against our parents. We're never with our family. Our other friends have turned away because we are trying to be to them what he has been to us.

He seems to get us into so much trouble. We must always take the blame for the messes he gets us into. Instead of our best friend, he is now our worst enemy.

But by now, it's too late. Our wonderful friend has gotten us in the worst mess of our life, and we can't get out. We regret the day we became friends with this master of disguises. His name? Peer pressure.

DEAR READERS: The above as written by Shari Beardslee, a Caro, Mich., high school junior. It appeared in the Tuscola County Advertiser. Shari's essay was among the winners in a contest sponsored by GLAD (Group Learning About Drugs). Thank you, M.K., for sending it on. I agree it is something all teenagers need to see.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your column on shady auto mechanics shows that each generation painfully relearns lessons of the past.

At gas stations, drivers should get out of their cars and watch attendants who might fib about the amount of gas pumped into the car. My daughter was charged for 35 gallons of gas put into a 20-gallon tank! Don't let an attendant zero the meter before you've seen the quantity and amount.

They still tell you your oil is a quart low and pretend to put in oil from an empty can.

If the attendant bends down near the car, it may be to stab or slash a tire to induce a flat which he can repair for an outrageous price, or sell you a $20 junk tire for $50. I wonder about the legality of his carrying a knife or an ice pick as a "servicing tool."

In some instances, an attendant squirts oil on shock absorbers and says new shocks are needed because the seals on those installed are leaking.

There are bad apples in any barrel, and car owners and drivers should be aware of shady servicing practices. Don't let a gas station attendant do anything to a car but put gasoline in the tank or wipe off the windshield, headlight, taillight and license plates—which few do now anyway—W.F., Woodvine, Iowa

DEAR W.F.: Obviously you don't have much faith in gas station attendants. I'm sure most of them are straight-arrows, but I'm printing your letter to warn the public about the few chiselers out there.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have printed several letters about people who committed suicide by throwing themselves in front of trains. In Japan that used to be common. Since the Japanese have lined the subway station walls with mirrors, the suicides have been greatly reduced. Thought you'd like to know—XYZ

DEAR XYZ: Fascinating. I'd like to see the documentation. Please send it on.

Planning a wedding? What's right? What's wrong? Ann Landers' "New Bride's Guide" will relieve your anxiety. To receive a copy, send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.
