From snowstorms to beach bathing

Weather runs the gamut in Texas

By The Associated Press

Texas weather ran from one extreme to the other on St. Patrick's Day, with up to 10 inches of snow in the Panhandle and clear blue skies and 80-degree weather along the coast.

A tornado that hit the East Texas community of Slocum hurled a house 50 feet along the ground and resulted in the death of one woman, authorities said.

Later Tuesday, high winds blew an 18-wheeler on Interstate 20 over a guard rail and into the Trinity River near Forney in North Texas, authorities said. The driver of the truck, which landed right side up in several feet of water, was not injured, officials said.

Other twisters touched down in East Texas, causing no injuries, as stormy weather marched across the state.

An intense low pressure system centered in northwest Oklahoma continued to pump cold northwest winds across the Texas Panhandle, Tuesday night, the National Weather Service said.

As a result, snow continued to fall with accumulations ranging from 3 to 10 inches and winds up to 30 miles per hour. A travelers advisory was in effect for the area early today due to snow and icy roadways.

By 10 p.m. in Amarillo, 2 inches of snow had accumulated and more was falling.

Numerous roadways in the region were closed due to the blowing, heavy snowfall. U.S. Highway 87 was closed between Dalhart and Raton, N.M., according to area law enforcement officials.

A spokesman at Hansford County Sheriff's Department in Spearman reported "extremely heavy snow, less than a fourth-mile visibility, and the winds are picking up. It's winter-time all at once," he said.

Radio station KRDS at Spearman reported that 10 inches of snow had fallen in the area.

Meanwhile, an upper level disturbance tracking across North Texas triggered showers and thunderstorms, some producing hail and gusty winds. Funnel clouds were also reported over parts of north central Texas Tuesday evening.

The remainder of the state enjoyed clear weather, the weather service said, with highs reaching 81 at Brownsville and 83 at Laredo.

One twister struck in the area south of Palestine, hitting the wooden manufactured house at about 6 a.m. and leaving only the base boards in their original location.

Kathy Dennis, 35, was pronounced dead at Anderson County Memorial Hospital at about 8 a.m. Her husband, Don Dennis, 39, was in guarded condition suffering from internal injuries, said Barbara Hart, a spokeswoman for the Anderson County Sheriff's Department.

Smaller twisters near Palestine and Maydelle blew down trees and billboards and damaged barns and mobile homes, authorities said.

Poindexter, North to testify in June

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators probing the Iran-Contra affair tentatively agreed to grant limited immunity to former National Security Adviser John M. Poindexter but are delaying his public testimony until June, sources say.

An agreement between the congressional panels and the government's special prosecutor, which also would lead to limited immunity for former White House deputy Oliver L. North, was to be voted on today at closed-door meetings of the two congressional panels, the sources said.

Hearings would open May 5. The congressional sources, who spoke Tuesday only on condition of anonymity, also said the two investigating committees planned to vote on limited immunity to compel testimony from at least five people involved in a resupply network for Nicaragua's Contra rebels.

Limited immunity compels a witness to testify before Congress but guarantees that the testimony will not be used in any criminal prosecution. The witness could, however, be prosecuted on evidence gathered independently.

Among names under consideration for immunity were Robert Owen, Richard Gadd and John Cupp, whom investigators believe could help the panel learn how weapons were funneled to the rebels during a time when Congress had banned U.S. military help, according to the sources.

The New York Times reported today that immunity also would be voted on for Robert Earl, North's assistant on the NSC staff.

The panels already have granted immunity to North's former secretary, Fawn Hall; Iranian businessman Albert Hakim; retired Col. Robert C. Dutton; and pilot Edward T. de Garay.

Some members of the investigating committees, saying it is urgent to get the full story of the Iran-Contra affair before the public, have been arguing for quick grants of immunity for Poindexter, who resigned as national security adviser and North, the fired White House aide.

But independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh has argued that would jeopardize his efforts to gather evidence for possible charges against the two.

By waiting until early June to place Poindexter and North on the witness stand, Congress would allow Walsh virtually all the time he sought to assemble any possible criminal case against them.

The two committees also agreed to begin their hearings with a joint Senate-House session on May 5, several weeks later than congressional leaders had first proposed, with the initial witnesses yet to be designated.

In other developments:

Some payments from the sale of arms to Iran may have gone to the kidnappers of Americans in Lebanon, The New York Times reported today. The newspaper quoted unidentified American officials and associates of Iranian arms middleman Manucher Ghorbanifar associates as saying that up to $3 million of money Iran paid was deposited by Ghorbanifar in the Swiss bank account of the Global Islamic Movement. The report says the group helped finance terrorist groups in Lebanon, including the Party of God, thought to have been behind some of the kidnappings.

Blown Down

Heavy gusts of wind were blamed for a 30-foot sign falling atop a trailer early Tuesday afternoon at 13th and U.S. 385. The sign, which marks the location of The Store, struck the trailer portion of a Messer Construction Co. rig, damaging only the tarp on top. No injuries were reported and no estimate of damages to the sign has been filed. The high winds were part of a cold front that dusted the county with snow Tuesday. (Brand Photo by Gaye Reilly)

Research, labor combine to make lush lawn

By DEBE GRAVES
Staff Writer

It is the weekend and, once again, a large portion of it is dedicated to mowing, fertilizing and watering the lawn. Long hours of hard work and mounting expenditures on water and chemicals seem wasted as you gaze over the brown spotted lawn which bears more resemblance to the Badlands than the lush, velvety greenery you had envisioned.

Every homeowner can create a lawn that looks more like a billiard table than the Badlands," says Dr. James R. Watson, chief agronomist for the Toro Company. "By simply combining a little research with some weekend labor."

Watson has spent over 30 years in research of turf maintenance, soil and grasses. Among his recommendations is a consultation with local extension agents and lawn and garden centers to gain an understanding of problems common to the area.

Information from the County Extension Office located in Deaf Smith County Courthouse, indicates that watering is probably the most important factor in maintaining a healthy lawn in Northwest Texas.

Optimum watering is a thorough soaking once or twice a week depending on weather conditions. Infrequent but thorough watering allows better root development and therefore healthier plants. With less frequent watering, disease problems are less likely to occur and the lawn develops more efficient use of water.

requiring less total water through the season.

Soil type and grass species also determine the amount of water required. Frequent fertilization and close mowing tend to increase the amount of water required as do hot dry weather conditions. Aeration of compacted soil improves water penetration.

Experts advise to water in the early morning hours and to apply water just as the grass begins to droop and wilt.

Water should be applied uniformly to the lawn since uneven applications result in dry patches and in soggy areas where diseases are more likely to develop.

The soils in Northwest Texas are alkaline and generally do not need lime; however, brown patches may appear as a result of iron deficiency. Iron supplements are available to nourish the iron poor soil with or without the use of a fertilizer.

According to Watson, "Moderation and uniformity are the keys to successful fertilization. Excessive fertilizing, particularly in the spring, may lead to soft, succulent grass that is more susceptible to damage from insects, disease, hot winds, and foot traffic."

Most Panhandle soils need some additional nutrients for good growth of grass. The best way to determine which nutrients are needed is by obtaining a soil test through the County Extension Office.

In the absence of soil testing, some general guidelines for fertilization of different species of grass are available through local lawn and garden centers.

Turfgrasses such as buffalograss, Zoysiagrass and bermudagrass should receive nitrogen fertilizers in split applications made in May and in September. Bluegrass, fescue and

Salt storage bill proposed

Another roadblock to the Department of Energy's plans to drill test shafts in Deaf Smith County is being attempted by Rep. John Smither, House representative for Randall and Deaf Smith counties.

The legislation, filed as HB-2204, would give the Texas Commissioner of Agriculture and the Texas Water Commission certain powers and duties in connection with the surface storage of salt. The bill amends the Water Code to include specific references to the surface storage of salt.

Candidate forum set March 24

A "Candidates Forum" for the upcoming city, school and hospital board elections has been scheduled March 24 in the Hereford Community Center.

Sponsored by the legislative affairs committee of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, the forum will begin at 7 p.m. next Tuesday. Jeryl Baker, chairman of the legislative committee, said the purpose of the forum "is give all citizens an opportunity to hear views of the candidates and increase voter interest and awareness in the April 4th elections."

The public is invited to submit questions for the forum to the C of C legislative affairs committee. Questions should be mailed to the C of C, P.O. Box 192, or can be taken by the chamber office by noon Monday.

Hereford Cablevision will tape the forum for replay on Channel 3 the week prior to the election.

Appraisal board to meet

The Deaf Smith County Appraisal District board will meet in regular session Thursday at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will be in the tax office at 402 W. Fourth Street. A routine agenda is slated.

Weather

TUESDAY HIGH: 41 WEDNESDAY A.M. LOW: 30
MOISTURE: .15 of an inch from snow reported at KPAN.
OUTLOOK: Partly cloudy tonight, low near 40. Wind south 5 to 15 mph. Warmer Thursday, partly cloudy with high in mid 60s. Winds southwest 10 to 20 mph and gusty.

Hospital census up, boost from surgeries

More cases in the operating room has been a contributing factor to Deaf Smith General Hospital nearly doubling its occupancy in the last five years, administrator Jim Bullard reported to facility's board of directors Tuesday.

Patent census averaged 28.8 for the month of February, compared to the year to date average of 27.2.

Bullard said the hospital is doing more surgery this year than last year. Already for this month 90 surgeries have been slated, he said. One factor is specialized medicine, such as orthopedics, which is not only keeping local residents in the home hospital but drawing patients from area small towns.

Revenue for February was reported at $452,266. The month's expenditures were $441,510. The hospital saw a net profit of $7,508.

The board also considered creating a separate precinct at Walcott so that another polling place could be established. The new precinct could be established before the April 4 election, but the board dropped the idea because of possible restrictions by the U.S. Justice Department which would have to approve the idea.

A risk of rejection by the Justice Department would mean disqualification of the entire election if the new poll was established prior to federal approval. There also were concerns that the hospital district would be accused of discriminating against other communities in the county.

Explosion guts junior high

MORGANTON, N.C. (AP) — Firefighters hosed down the smoking ruins of a school today to allow investigators enter in a search for the cause of a fiery explosion that ripped through the building as a basketball game went on next door.

No injuries were reported Tuesday in the blast at the Salem Junior High School that rocked houses for several blocks, threw the school's locked doors 60 to 70 feet and blew out windows and doors in a nearby elementary school.

Flames could be seen 10 miles away, witnesses said. "I thought someone had hit the house with a car," said W.G. Biggerstaff, who lives about a quarter-mile away.

The U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms was called in to investigate by state and local officials because of the magnitude of the explosion, said Ray Robinson of Burke County Emergency Management Services.

"This explosion is not consistent with anything that should have been in that building," said EMS Director Nick Waters.

The 7:30 p.m. blast occurred while a game between teachers and Little League coaches was under way in an adjacent gymnasium.

The school's walls were left standing, but the interior was destroyed. About 70 firefighters brought the blaze under control about three hours after the explosion.

The blast and fire damaged several cars parked in front of the school and shattered windows in the gym, witnesses said. The explosion was heard up to four miles away, Robinson said.

Poindexter pleads Fifth

WASHINGTON (AP) — John M. Poindexter's lawyer and congressional subcommittee members traded accusations of grandstanding as the former national security adviser made a second Capitol Hill appearance and pleaded his Fifth Amendment protection.

Poindexter, a key figure in the investigation into the sale of arms to Iran and possible diversion of payments to Nicaraguan rebels, invoked his right against self-incrimination Tuesday before a House subcommittee considering computer security legislation which subpoenaed him to testify but pledged not to ask about the Iran-Contra affair.

"On the advice of counsel, I decline to answer that question pursuant to my constitutional rights under the Fifth Amendment," Poindexter responded four times to questions from Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, chairman of the Government Operations legislation and national security subcommittee.

Poindexter, a Navy rear admiral, resigned his White House advisory position Nov. 25 after Attorney General Edwin Meese III disclosed the possible diversion of arms payments. Poindexter's aide, Oliver L. North, was fired at the same time for his role in the alleged diversion.

Poindexter's lawyer, Richard Beckler, suggested his client had been called to testify in order to create a spectacle. Poindexter had similarly cited his Fifth Amendment protections last December before House and Senate panels investigating the Iran-Contra arms affair.

Brooks at one point warned Beckler that his lengthy statements were "kind of crowding me."

"Just a little bit more, and we're going to cut you off," Brooks said.

Beckler, near the end of Poindexter's appearance, asked Brooks if he could respond briefly to a remark by another subcommittee member.

"No. I'm tired of hearing from you," Brooks replied curtly, as the room erupted in stunned laughter.

Beckler said Brooks had refused Poindexter's offer to provide written testimony in lieu of an appearance.

Federal judge welcomes probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge Alcee Hastings of Miami, accused of judicial misconduct, says he welcomes an impeachment investigation by the House of Representatives as a way to clear his name.

"I am delighted that it's now out of the hands of those judges," Hastings said Tuesday after a panel of 27 fellow federal judges recommended the action.

"I am very confident that I will not be impeached and I will not be removed from office," Hastings said in a telephone interview from St. Louis where he is attending a national conference on blacks and criminal justice.

Earlier, Hastings said through his lawyer, Terence J. Anderson, "I am pleased the House of Representatives will get to do what is its function."

Anderson, who said Hastings is being subjected to double jeopardy because a jury already has acquitted him, nevertheless said his client welcomes the opportunity to confront his accusers in an open forum.

Soon after Hastings' 1983 acquittal on a bribery charge, two of his fellow judges in the 11th Circuit court filed a complaint charging him with obstructing justice and lying under oath.

The federal judges, making up The Judicial Conference of the United States, asked the House to consider impeaching Hastings but made no move to suspend him from the bench.

House okays GI Bill plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House-passed measure that would make the GI Bill a permanent lure for enlistments in the all-volunteer armed forces is awaiting action in the Senate.

On a 401-2 roll call vote Tuesday, the House voted to remove indefinitely the current enlistment deadline of June 30, 1988, that veterans must have met to become eligible for educational benefits under the latest version of the GI Bill, approved in 1985.

Reagan administration allies in the Senate were expected to try to amend the bill to offer progressively higher benefits for longer periods of military service.

The measure also would give the program a new name, the "Montgomery GI Bill," in honor of Rep. G.V. "Sonny" Montgomery, D-Miss., chairman of the House Veterans' Affairs Committee.

Since it was enacted in 1944, the GI Bill has helped finance college educations for more than 18 million veterans, including members of Congress, who have served in the armed forces since World War II.

Montgomery said the 1985 version of the program had "played a major role in saving the all-volunteer force" by offering a profitable incentive to high-quality recruits.

But an aide to Rep. Jim Moody, D-Wis., who voted against the bill, said Moody was protesting a "lack of fiscal responsibility" by Congress in extending various federal benefit programs at a time of severe budget restraints.

The other dissenting vote was cast by Rep. Bill Frenzel, R-Minn. His aides said he could not be reached for comment.

The 1985 version of the GI Bill provides educational benefits ranging up to $10,800 for veterans with a high school diploma who enlisted between July 1, 1965, and June 30, 1968, and serve three years on active duty, or two years active and four years in the reserves.

The House-approved bill would remove the 1988 enlistment deadline, effectively making the GI Bill program permanent.

Philippine blast kills 4

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A bomb blast today killed four people at the nation's military academy hours after Communist rebels ambushed a military patrol, killing 19 soldiers, the armed forces said.

Defense Department spokesman Ed Pangilinan said the explosion occurred in a grandstand at the Philippines Military Academy during rehearsals for Sunday's graduation ceremonies at which President Corason Aquino is to speak.

Lt. Anselmo Cabinggan, an armed forces spokesman, said one civilian, a colonel and two enlisted men were killed in the blast and 37 people were wounded, including 13 officers, 11 enlisted man and 13 civilians.

Many of the injured were seriously hurt, said Lt. Gregorio Catapang, aide to academy Superintendent Brig. Gen. Rodolfo Biazon.

Guards sealed off the sprawling, hillside campus and refused to allow reporters inside.

No group claimed responsibility. But suspicion fell on rebels of the Communist New People's Army who vowed to step up attacks on military and government facilities after peace talks collapsed in January and a 60-day nationwide cease-fire expired Feb. 8.

U.S. prelates eye Pope's visit

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Talks beginning today between U.S. Roman Catholic Church leaders and Pope John Paul II will set the tone and agenda for his visit to the United States in September, a spokesman for the American bishops said.

"We are here to explain sensitive, controversial issues the church in the United States is facing today, so he will have good working understanding when he comes," said the spokesman, Russell Shaw.

All four active U.S. cardinals and 14 archbishops and bishops, eight of them representing dioceses the pope will visit on his 10-day tour, are expected at the talks. Five closed-door sessions were scheduled over three days at the request of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

For crocodile

Florida man to aid in search

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Authorities hope a Florida native will be able to "call" a caiman, a variety of Central or South American crocodile, from a canal in this Dallas suburb.

First reports had indicated there were two 7-foot alligators smacking their jaws in a canal, prompting city officials to break out dart guns, snares and firecrackers and drag around some chicken.

But authorities now say they have determined that the object sighted in the canal is a 3-foot caiman.

Mark Potts, a Florida native offered Tuesday to help Irvin officials with his gator-calling expertise.

"You make noises like a young crocodilian in distress," Potts explained. "It's a kind of grunting sound that, believe it or not, pulls them into you."

The first report came a week ago when two boys reported seeing two reptiles they thought were alligators sliding into the canal.

No one paid much attention to the report until several residents of apartment complexes near the canal made the same discovery.

"The first night I recognized him as an alligator was one night at 4 a.m.," said Brian Martin, who lives near the canal. "It went out of the water into some bushes on the other side and made a little squeaky noise, like chipmunks talking to each other."

City animal control officials first spotted the creature, some reptile tracks and muddy "belly-slides" last Thursday and posted "danger" signs near the edge of the canal.

Steve Asbeck, an animal control officer, said he spent a long night

Saturday alternately dragging chickens through the water and detonating firecrackers in an attempt to scare the beast into shallow water at the end of the canal.

"We probably did everything wrong you can possibly do because we just didn't know what we were doing," Asbeck said. "Potts said the only way you're going to catch him is by stealth."

Potts, who says he searched for alligators in the Florida Everglades and lectured on reptiles for tourists at the Silver Springs Reptile Institute, is now an accountant with Teltech Resource Network in Arlington.

The Florida native says he believes someone probably bought the caiman as a pet and released it when it grew too large.

other grasses should be fertilized in April and in September, with the possible addition of a light application in June to encourage summer growth.

It may be desirable to use a slow release fertilizer to limit the amount of salt content in the soil. Elevated salt levels interfere with seed germination and seedling growth. Lawns with signs of a fungal disease should not be fertilized as it may worsen the disease.

Clipping grass too short exposes the lower parts of the plants to the sun resulting in sun scalded areas of brown. A common problem for rough or uneven lawns, sun scald may be prevented by increasing cutting height.

"An important turf care rule is to schedule your grass mowing in accordance with grass growth, rather than once a week or any other specific time," advises Watson.

Mowing affects the density, texture, color and root growth of grass and should be performed frequently enough so that no more than one-third of the leaf surface is removed in one mowing.

The height-of-cut is crucial to processes such as photosynthesis which allows the grass leaves to manufacture the food necessary for growth. To remove more than the recommended portion of leaf is a shock to the plant and may result in a dead lawn.

During weather conditions such as high temperatures and drought the height of the cut should be raised slightly to allow the plant to survive the stress conditions.

Zoysiagrass and bermuda grass should be maintained at a height of 1/2 to one inch. Other grasses should be kept at heights of one and 1/2 to 2 and 1/2 inches.

Lawn mower blades should be sharpened several times during the mowing season to provide a clean cut leaf blade rather than shredded blades which turn brown and appear ragged after mowing.

Clippings should be removed to reduce thatch buildup. Thatch is the tightly bound layer of living and dead stems, leaves and debris which exists between the blades and the soil. The presence of thatch can interfere with water absorption and can harbor lawn diseases.

A heavy thatch layer will also reduce the effectiveness of insecticides. The white grub is probably the most common insect problem in area lawns. Characterized by irregularly circular spots of dying turf, the grubs kill lawns by feeding on roots.

Insecticides for the grub worms and other common pests are most effective as a control when applied during mid-July to mid-August. Check with local lawn and garden shops for those chemicals which are most effective in this area.

Chemical control for common weeds in Northwest Texas begins with early treatment of winter weeds and herbicides which control broadleaf weeds later in the growing season. Some products recommended for area lawns combine fertilizer with granules which prevent the germination of certain weeds.

If a new lawn is to be established, the County Extension Office offers an excellent publication "Ten Steps to Lawn Establishment In The Panhandle" which provides step-by-step guidelines for creating the perfect lawn.

For those who have already established lawns Watson encourages, "Consult with experts, explore your own plot of ground with an open eye, then analyze the turf care practices you and your neighbors have been using: are they appropriate for the area, based on the information you've collected?"

He sums up, "Cultural practices are your best tool for modifying and altering the response of grass to your local environmental conditions, and for creating the ideal lawn."

After following the tips from local experts you can expect to enjoy the lush, green carpet of velvet that is the envy, and the goal, of all and then you can join everyone else in griping about having to mow the lawn on weekends.

State representative scheduled to speak

Education is one of the most effective weapons in fighting the battle with teenage pregnancy. While many of us believe sex education should start in the home, statistics show some parents may need help.

The Friends of Planned Parenthood Board of Directors is excited to provide the Panhandle an opportunity to learn about legislation which may help turn the tide. The Honorable Lena Guerrero will be the guest speaker at the Friend of Planned Parenthood Luncheon scheduled for Friday, April 3, at noon, at the Amarillo Country Club. Tickets are $15 per person.

Ann Landers — Same song, second verse

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing in the hope that I might prevent others from experiencing the family disaster we have just suffered through.

My grandmother died suddenly of a massive stroke. She left a will and appointed her eldest daughter, "Sue," as the executor. The will instructed her to sell her estate and divide the money equally among her three daughters. Sue took it upon herself to divide my grandmother's personal property.

Each of the 10 grandchildren requested a personal item. No one was looking for a costly bauble. We merely wanted something of Grandma's as a remembrance. Sue said, "Sorry, all Grandma's possessions are valuable and they will be given to her daughters or sold." Sue helped herself to all the best pieces such as antique jewelry and old coins. What she didn't want she offered to her children. What they didn't want was given to the other two sisters.

There are a lot of hard feelings, loss of respect and resentment toward Sue. At a time when support and love in a family would be a comfort, greed has divided us. The sad part is that all this started before my grandmother's funeral. I know this is not what she wanted.—Sad Saga in Arkansas

DEAR SAGA: Same song, second verse. And it's a pretty tired tune. If people would specify in their will exactly who should have what, it would save a great deal of heartache, high-handed shenanigans (like Sue pulled), also a lot of disappointment. And consider this: Some people refuse to be executor of their parents' estate because they don't want to have a money fight with brothers and sisters. Not a bad idea, I might add.

Johann Kaspar Lavater said it best in "Aphorisms on Man" in the 18th century: "Say not you know another entirely, till you have divided an inheritance with him."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Every month or so my husband will bring home your column and say, "I know you wrote this one." Needless to say, "Honey, I didn't write that one, but I did write this one. I hope you get an eye for it."

My husband Harry is so much like his father it is pitiful. He is never home, loves to be with the boys, and is an authority on every subject. He is hot-headed and quick-tempered and must always have the last word.

I've lived with this know-it-all for many years but I'm writing today because Harry's father is in a hospital on the verge of a nervous breakdown. The man is unable to forgive himself for the way he treated his wife and family. He can't let go of the guilt.

If Harry could see the similarities between himself and his father I'm sure he would shape up. When you are 60 years old, Harry, you too will wish you had spent more time with your children. You will also regret not having been kinder to me. I am not a saint, but I know what my faults are and I keep trying to do better.

Still reading, Harry? As Ann says, "Why don't you wake up and smell the coffee?"—Your wife (Baton Rouge)

DEAR WIFE: I have no idea how many husbands in Baton Rouge fit Harry's description, but I'll bet there will be some interesting conversations (and accusations) around the breakfast tables out there this morning. Let me know if your letter helped.

What's the story on pot, cocaine, LSD, PCP, downers, speed? Can you handle them if you're careful? Send for Ann Landers' all-new booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." For each booklet ordered, send $2, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Abundant Life

WORKING TOGETHER

By Bob Wear

Working together for the common good is our only hope for better days. In the first place, much of the conflict and strife is pointless, and would cease almost overnight; if we wanted it to cease. Much of the dissipation of personal peace of mind and general human happiness is so unnecessary. We can drop our suspicions, our prejudices, our vanity, our selfishness, our jealousy and other barriers, if we want to do so. We can begin helping and cooperating with each other in all constructive and worthwhile work. If we can't help, we can, at least, refuse to join the faultfinders and the obstructionists. Many improvements can be made, when we work together. These can begin in many homes. The unnecessary strife and conflict among members of the family are destroying some homes, and this should cease. Then, if parents and teachers really worked together, many of the problems and inadequacies of public education would disappear. Much that is being lost could be saved. If we, the people, and law enforcement officers really cooperated, we would overcome much of the lawlessness which threatens us. In fact, there doesn't seem to be any other hope for us. After all, law-abiding citizens are the people the officers of the law are protecting. To whatever extent we need to do so, we had better get our thinking straight in this area. We much work together. We will differ in some things, but we must not let these differences blind us to the many areas of common interest in which we can work together. We can surely be mature enough to hold to our differences without being belligerent and destructive. We can keep our social climate strong enough, and flexible enough to accommodate our differences; while we are working together for the common good. This is our only hope. When we work together, we share our zest for life; our faith in each other; our courage; our desire to do good; and our appreciation for the worth and dignity of mankind. Let us seek better understanding, and form more charitable attitudes; as we work together for the good of all.

Local DAR chapter greets member

Los Ciboleros Chapter, DAR, met Thursday in the home of Mrs. Alfred Smith. Kathryn Ruga assisted Smith as hostess.

Regent Violet Reinauer called the meeting to order and welcomed special guests, Wilma Reinauer and Kim Moore.

The Regent conducted the opening ritual, assisted by Nell Norvell, chaplain pro-tem, led the membership in singing the National Anthem and reciting the Pledge of Allegiance. Margaret Bell led the group in the American's Creed and Helen Rose read the Preamble to the Constitution.

Regent Reinauer welcomed Juanita Brown to Los Ciboleros Chapter as a member and announced that her approval for membership in NSDAR had been verified.

Ruth Fish read the President General's Message and Ruth Knox gave the National Defense report which was a review of William Hittinger's remarks on the purchasing of electronic components from foreign markets to build the USA's defense weapons.

Ruga, program chairperson, introduced Moore who gave the afternoon program on "SCHERENSCHNETTE-THE CRAFT OF SCISSOR CUTTING." Moore was introduced to this art by an aunt. She started research and correspondence with the Smithsonian Institute of Fine Arts and various other Art Associations, Museums, and other "Scissor Cutters" around the world.

Moore gave the history of scherenschnette stating that the art began in China in the third Century and with the use of her "scissor cutting" designs related the progress of this art from Poland, Germany, and Switzerland to the United States. The Colonists brought the art to America and reflected their everyday life in their original designs.

Many designs have been found in family bibles and old books that are not even in print today. Moore cuts, mats, and frames her work and participates in art shows in the area.

Regent Reinauer announced that the April meeting will be held in Dimmitt at the Rhodes Memorial Library on April 16. The membership will meet at the Community Center in Hereford at 2:45 p.m. and leave for Dimmitt as a group at 3 p.m.

The date for the Tea honoring the DAR Good Citizens and American History Essay Winners and parents has been changed to Sunday April 26, 1967 since the original date conflicted with the Easter Holiday.

Membership present included the following: Reinauer, Norvell, Smith, Ruga, Rose, Margaret Durham, Bell, Knox, Fish, Lois Gilliland, Mary Williamson, Brown, and Charlotte Clark.

Flower arranging hints given during club program

The Hereford Garden Club met in the home of Mozelle Childers Friday. Lois Ethridge served as co-hostess for the meeting which doubled as the annual guest day.

In the absence of the president, Billie Johnson presided.

Bessie Hill led the Pledge of Allegiance to the United States and Texas flags.

Pat Robinson gave an informative lecture and demonstration on "Helpful Hints for Flower Arranging." She stated that a design is built for a specific place and an arrangement is created as if ingredients for a recipe were assembled. Robinson presented a formula for preserving the life of cut flowers: mix 1 quart of 100 degrees F. water with two tablespoons white distilled vinegar and four teaspoons sugar.

Other members present included Carmen Angel, Lucy Fay Coconaugher, Mable Mitchell, Corene Smith and Mary Stoy.

Guests included Robinson, Kay Cotton, Inez Witherspoon, and Nadine Winget.

The British liner Queen Mary made her maiden voyage in 1936.

Health seminar set for March 27-28

What do the Duncanville Ladies, a psychologist, a professor of dance, a physical education professor and the chairperson of the Steering Committee for the Texas Silver Haired Texans Legislation have in common? They will all be on campus at West Texas State University to present their ideas on wellness during the third annual Weekend With Wellness in Canyon Friday and Saturday, March 27 and 28.

Besides the opportunity to see Drew Pearson, formerly of the Dallas Cowboys, WT's Weekend With Wellness will give you the most up-to-date and authoritative information on wellness, exercise and nutrition available.

The workshop leaders are tops in their field and include Dr. Phillip Allsen of Brigham Young University and Dr. Judy Alter of UCLA. Allsen, professor of physical education and the director of the Fitness for Life Program at BYU, will be the speaker at the Second General Session on Saturday morning, March 28 when he will give his thoughts on "Nutrition and You." Alter, assistant professor of dance at UCLA will present her popular workshop on flexibility.

Among the new faces this year is Harriet Griffin, who is a devoted campaigner for the aging citizen. Besides chairing the Steering Committee for the Texas Silver Haired Texans Legislation, she is involved with the Citizen's Advisory Council of Texas Department on Aging, the Texas Long Term Care Coordinating Council for the Elderly, the Tarrant County Area Agency on Aging Citizens Advisory Council and many, many other organizations. She will speak at the first general session on Friday evening, March 27. "Wellness-A Way of Life, All Your Life" is her attitude. There's more to wellness than meets the eye. Exercise and proper nutrition are only part of the whole idea of wellness. In today's hectic world, stress plays a major role in the health of most Americans. Dr. Joyce O'Rear, a psychologist with the Texas Tech Medical School in Amarillo, will present a workshop on "Stress Management: Essential Skills and Strategies for Contemporary Life Problems" on Saturday, March 28.

The right attitude is what you will find with the Duncanville Ladies. They are a group of senior citizens from Duncanville, Texas who got together for some water aerobics and became so good and so popular that they took their show on the road. They will present a workshop on water aerobics on the afternoon of Saturday, March 28.

With such a variety of experts to present this year's Weekend with Wellness, it will be a memorable event for young and old alike. It all happens on Friday and Saturday, March 27 and 28 in Henson Activities Center on the West Texas State University campus.

In 1880 Napoleon Bonaparte defeated Austrian forces at the Battle of Morengo and reconquered Italy.

Now you're cooking

By GAYE REILY
Staff Writer

Mexican food or Chinese cuisine is the normal fare in Sherry Blackwell's home south of Hereford.

"My family adores my version of Mexican food and really likes my Chinese food," stated the bubbly mother of three boys. "I'm not an experimental gourmet but what I do cook is good, substantial food."

"I'm used to cooking in large quantities—only recently I made 200 burritos for our church youth group. I don't make many desserts, however, since no one in my family has a sweet tooth," Blackwell added.

The young homemaker enjoys—and uses—the fresh farm produce she and her family glean from their seven acres. "I love planting pretty flowers, raising our own meat, gathering fresh eggs, tending a garden, having good well water. I usually make jelly and jam from apricots, cherries, and peaches as well as canning green beans, tomatoes, and blackeyed peas, to name a few. I also try to put up about 300 ears of corn on the cob. I usually run out by the spring, just in time to plant another garden!" she said.

While it is not too early to plant a garden, the family keeps occupied with their 200 goats and a few calves. Helping with the chores of family life is her husband, Kim, who is self-employed yet finds time to help raise 13-year-old Turk, a LaPlata Jr. High student; Wesley, an eight-year-old Tierra Blanca student; and Bryan, age four.

Blackwell, an avid fan of her sons' sporting events, enjoys basketball, baseball, and football. "I guess I'm a competitive-type person, I really get excited and yell loud!" For relaxation, she enjoys fishing and camping out.

Despite expanding time and energy maintaining a household, Blackwell also finds time to be supportive of her dad, two brothers, and one sister who still live here. "I've tried to fill my mom's shoes since her death in 1982," she said softly.

Born in Phoenix, Ariz., Blackwell moved with her parents to a farm 25 miles outside of Hereford when she was four years old and later attended Walcott School. "I cannot imagine living in town. I learned to entertain myself since we lived so far out and that's why I'm used to staying busy. I love living in the country!"

Yet cooking and general homemaking tasks are only a small part of Sherry Blackwell's life. Having once lived in a remote part of the country in a Blackwell determined that she and her family would be active in community and school events. To date, Blackwell is a past PTA president, serves as president of Draper Extension Club, is employed as a newspaper distributor, occasionally fills in as a substitute teacher, handles carpentry chores at her house, and actively supports her church.

Some other ladies and I formed our own extension club seven years ago and it's still going strong," Blackwell stated. "I am amazed how this club provides continuous education for each of us as well as being an enjoyable outlet." She is in her third year as president of the club.

"My husband and I roam the streets of Hereford at 1:30 each morning on our paper routes," Blackwell laughed. As distributor for the Amarillo Daily News, the Blackwells try to return home by 3:30 a.m. after delivering papers to approximately

SHERRY BLACKWELL WITH SON, BRYAN

1,000 subscribers. "So many people tell me they don't see how I ever became accustomed to this schedule, but I truly enjoy the two hours of such peaceful, quiet time."

When she's not filling in as a substitute teacher, Blackwell likes to do carpentry work on her home. "I decided to remove the panelling and strip it of several layers of treatments it had received over the years. I didn't realize what a big job I was getting into but the beauty of the wood shining through has made it worth it," she declared.

"Put the Lord first and everything else falls into place," Blackwell believes. A member of First Christian Church, Blackwell teaches a children's Sunday School class, helps with the Christian Youth Club, attends Bible Study, and is presently rehearsing with the choir for the Easter Cantata. "I was head cook in February and served burritos to the youth club. So many people remarked to me how good they were, I decided to contribute this recipe and two others to your story," she said.

Following are Blackwell's recipes for burritos, tacos, and date crackers with icing.

BURRITOS

- 3-4 lbs. ground beef
- 1 pkg. taco seasoning
- 1 can tomato soup
- 1 can chili beef soup
- cheese
- flour tortillas

Cook the beef with the taco seasoning and drain. Add the soups and simmer for about 10 minutes. Spoon desired amount of meat onto warm tortilla, add cheese and roll. Makes a lot of burritos.

TACOS

- 2-3 lbs. ground beef
- 1 large pkg. corn tortillas

garlic salt cheese

Have skillet ready with about 1 1/2 inches of hot oil. Press uncooked beef onto one-half of the tortilla, sprinkle with salt. Using tongs, lay into hot oil. When soft, bend the tortilla over. Fry on both sides til desired crispness, usually about one minute on each side. In 10" skillet, four can be fried at a time. Remove and drain in bowl lined with paper towel. Spread lightly apart and put in cheese. Makes about 30 tacos.

DATE BAR CRACKERS WITH ICING

- 1 Eagle Brand milk
 - 1 8 oz. box chopped dates
 - 1 c. chopped pecans
 - 1 box Ritz Crackers
- Heat the milk and the dates til thickened. Remove from heat and add the pecans. While still warm spread this mixture on the Ritz crackers. Makes about 3 dozen. When cool, spread the icing on each one.

ICING

- 1 stick oleo, melted
 - 3 c. powdered sugar, sifted
 - 3 T. milk
 - 1/2 t. vanilla
- Blend with mixer til smooth. Spread on each cracker.

In Indiana-Duke NCAA tourney game

Coach goes against student, friend

By The Associated Press

Indiana Coach Bobby Knight figures he can't lose in Friday's NCAA Midwest Regional semifinal against Duke.

That's because the Blue Devils, runners-up in last year's tournament to Louisville, are coached by one of Knight's closest friends in college basketball, Mike Krzyzewski.

"I have a lot of mixed emotions in playing against him," Knight said. "Last year, in the NCAA tournament, nobody in America was rooting harder for Duke than I was, Mike has been extremely close to me as a player, as a coach." "Coach Knight and I are about as close friends and you can get," said Krzyzewski, who played for Knight at Army and later served as an assistant coach under him at Indiana. "I probably have the most respect him of any one of my friends. I look at him as family more than anything else."

The Knight-Krzyzewski match headlines the Midwest semifinals. The other game at Cincinnati, 12 plays DePaul. In Friday's other semifinals, Oklahoma, 24-9, meets Iowa, 29-4, and top-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas, 35-1, faces Wyoming, 24-9, in the West pairing at Seattle.

The East doubleheader scheduled for Thursday at East Rutherford, N.J., sends Syracuse, 28-6 against Florida, 23-10, and Notre Dame, 24-7, against North Carolina, 31-3. Thursday's Southeast Regional semifinal pairing at Louisville matches Providence, 23-8, against Alabama, 28-4, and Georgetown, 28-4, against Kansas, 25-10.

His relationship with Knight will not interfere in the Duke-Indiana game, Krzyzewski said. "It will be Duke against Indiana. I never coach against another coach, but against the other team. I played for him. I worked for him and one thing I learned from him is to do your best. I know that's what he would expect from me and that's hopefully what we will give him."

"I know this," Knight countered. "There will be one team in the regional final at Cincinnati (on Sunday) that I'll be rooting awfully hard for, whether it be Indiana or Duke."

Midwest
Like Duke, LSU is seeking a return trip to the Final Four. A year ago, the longshot Tigers were seeded No. 11 and came out of the pack to become the lowest rated team ever to reach the Final Four. This year, LSU was seeded No. 10 and is still in business after eliminating Georgia Tech and Temple.

DePaul set a school record with its 28th victory of the season, beating St. John's in overtime to advance. The Blue Demons blew a 14-point lead and then recovered from a five-point deficit in the final 45 seconds of regulation time to survive.

East
Florida Coach Norm Sloan called his Gators "a blue collar team," after they cut down Purdue to advance to the East semifinals against Syracuse. "That's the third conference champion we've beaten. Nobody ever calls me the magic man or a genius, but, by God, you better pay tribute to this basketball team for what it's done."

North Carolina will be out to avenge a regular season loss against Notre Dame at South Bend in the other half of Thursday's East doubleheader. The Fighting Irish are on an 11-game winning streak, which includes victories over two other Sweet 16 survivors — DePaul and Duke — as well as the Tar Heels.

Southeast
Two Big East teams hope to advance in the Southeast sectional. Providence, used the 3-point basket and the floor leadership of guard Billy Donovan to beat Alabama-Birmingham and Austin Peay in overtime. After trailing by 15 points in the second half, Georgetown wore down Ohio State to advance to a date with Kansas.

West
Oklahoma, the only team in the country to beat Nevada-Las Vegas this season, would love a chance to do it again in the West Regionals. But first the Sooners have to get by Iowa.

"You don't get to this level with mirrors," Hawkeye Coach Tom Davis said. "You get there because you've got some really fine, talented men out there on the court. And Oklahoma's rank right up there."

So do Nevada-Las Vegas' Runnin' Rebels. That's the problem for Wyoming, at No. 11 in the region the lowest seed still alive in the tournament. "Anytime you get down to the final 16 teams, anyone has a chance to beat anyone else," Wyoming Coach Jim Brandenburg said.

Farm payment cap still being studied

by DON KENDALL Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration's plan to place an absolute ceiling on farm payments of $50,000 per farmer has thus far failed to generate much support among farm lawmakers.

Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, said Monday in a statement that the panel would "of course study the administration's latest proposal."

"But my own reaction is that adopting that suggestion could lead to two negative developments," de la Garza said. "First, it could cut the incomes of some legitimate family farmers; and second it could endanger participation by some farmers in surplus reduction programs. Those developments would not be in the long run interest of either farmers or taxpayers."

The administration proposal, unveiled in January and contained in a legislative package sent to Capitol Hill last week, follows disclosure last year of huge payments to a small number of producers.

The payments arose out of the 1985 farm law, which was designed to lower the cost of U.S. agriculture exports and thus restore American competitiveness. This was done by lowering price support loan rates, which benefit farmers, and new forms of payments were established to compensate.

"Those extra payments are, in effect, part of the process of making America competitive without bankrupting farmers," de la Garza said.

Rep. Edward R. Madigan, R-Ill., the ranking Republican on the Agriculture Committee, is waiting for estimates of its effects before jumping in on either side.

"I think we're going to do something, but I'm not sure yet what we're going to do," Madigan said Monday in an interview.

Like some other lawmakers, he underscored the distinction between the two parts of the administration's proposal.

One would simply install the $50,000 overall ceiling.

The other would seek to weed out of the farm program individuals who may have entered it merely to circumvent existing ceilings.

A $50,000 cap per person for most types of payments has been on the books for years. After payments to individual producers soaring into the millions under the 1985 farm law's export provisions were discovered last year, Congress enacted an overall $250,000 ceiling.

The government is investigating a rash of farm restructurings to bring in more "persons" as operators and thus make them eligible for federal payments. The administration plan would redefine the word person to eliminate from the program certain absentee farmers as well as minor children who have suddenly become partners with their parents.

Lawmakers say too many questions about the proposed payment ceiling remain unanswered. For example, they say such a cap would prompt some farmers to leave the program and increase their production, which in turn would expand the supply of agricultural goods and thus further lower prices.

That could mean increased payments for farmers still in the program.

"If you do something that really limits it to $50,000 for every farming operation, the question is: How many farming operations move out of the program and what is the budget exposure that results as a consequence of that?" Madigan says.

Just how much of the $26 billion farm program would be saved as the result of the administration's proposal remains unclear.

First results from a long-awaited report on the subject from the General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress, are expected this week.

But many committee members say the enormous payments that have attracted most of the attention are few in number. As a result, they pronounce the problem as it stands primarily one of public relations rather than budget.

But the lawmakers acknowledge that the issue, which rankles some urban lawmakers, is likely to be around for months.

Golden Spread Electric Cooperative, Inc., is an electric generation and transmission cooperative organized in 1984 to provide dependable, low cost electric service to its member systems.

A board of 24 directors, consisting of the manager and a director of trustee from each of the member systems, governs the business affairs of the cooperative.

Roberts was elected chairman of the board. He is general manager of South Plains Electric Cooperative in Lubbock.

Representing the electric cooperative of Texas, Roberts has also been a director on the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association board since 1980 and currently serves as chairman of the Government Relations Committee.

A native of Lefors, Roberts worked for San Bernard Electric Cooperative in Bellville, where he served as general manager from 1974 to 1980. He is a 1961 graduate of Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

Sorghum producers meet March 26

Sorghum producers in the Hereford area will meet Thursday, March 26, to discuss their options under the current farm program and compare it to the Market Oriented Production Plan proposed by the National Grain Sorghum Producers Association.

The meeting will be held at K-Bob's Restaurant, beginning at 7 p.m. A "Dutch treat" dinner is planned.

The NGSPA plan, based on production goals set at the amount the market will absorb, would maintain exports, reduce government cost on sorghum production by 40 percent and more than triple the sorghum producer's net cash income. The plan was developed by sorghum leaders from six states who make up the board of the national association.

National Grain Sorghum Producers Association is sponsoring the meeting. Don Hicks, NGSPA district director, will be in charge. Deaf Smith County director is Bob Veigel. National GSPA executive staff will be present to review the association's work in export and domestic market development, utilization research and the National Grain Sorghum Yield and Management Contest.

Cow-calf Clinic set at WTSU Ranch

Cow-calf producers can learn the latest in production and management techniques for beef cows at a Cow-Calf Clinic on March 25 at the West Texas State University Nance Ranch located east of Canyon. The clinic will begin with registration at 8:30 a.m.

Starting the morning program, will be Dr. John McNeil, Extension Beef Cattle Specialist from Amarillo, covering the topic "Nutrition and management—the key to profitability." Dr. Joe Sagebiel, professor at West Texas State University, will discuss "supplemental feed and tag analysis for cost comparison." Dr. Allen Oltjen, DVM from Canyon will conclude the morning program by discussing "vaccination programs—what's needed and what's new."

Following the noon meal, the afternoon will be devoted to workshop sessions on palpation and conditioning scoring of cows. The clinic should conclude at about 3:00 p.m.

The West Texas State University Nance Ranch is located 3 miles east of Canyon on Farm Road 217 Palo Duro Canyon Road, 1 mile south on Farm Road 1541 to the ranch entrance, then 3 miles east to the ranch headquarters.

Registration for the clinic is $5 which includes the noon meal. Participants are asked to please pre-register by calling the county Extension office at 364-0824 before 5 p.m. on Friday, March 20.

In Deaf Smith County

CRP may draw fourth of land

During the latest sign-up period of the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP), Deaf Smith County SCS workers received 154 bids on approximately 45,000 acres. Bids that were tentatively accepted were those for $40 an acre and under.

If all those bids are accepted, the county will have signed up 263 total contracts during all signing periods to cover just over 98,000 acres.

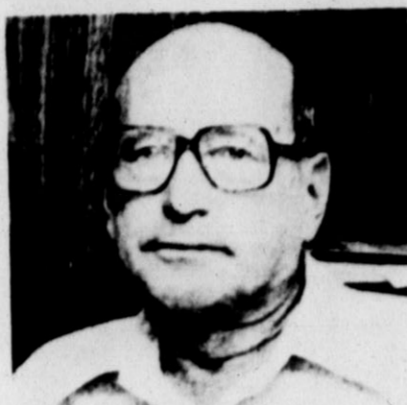

Deaf Smith County may have up to 25 percent of its total cropland, or 153,000 acres in the CRP.

Nationwide, the SCS has accepted 10,572,402 more acres of the highly erodible cropland into the program. The total amount signed up is 19,488,587 acres.

Bids were made on 11,254,837 acres in the latest sign-up period. The accepted bids for annual rental payments ranged up to $90 an acre with an average of $51.17 per acre.

Producers designated 1,894,764 acres of corn base acreage to take advantage of the one time bonus payment offered to take land from the Corn Belt into the program. The bonus will be paid in generic commodity certificates amounting to $2 a bushel, based on Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service program payment yield for corn, for each acre of corn base in the CRP.

The next sign up period will be July 20 through July 31. Currently, SCS workers are developing conservation plans on those tentatively accepting bids.

ART STOY

Local seedman on conference panel

Art Stoy, of Hereford's Garrison Seed Co., recently served on a panel of seedmen for the National Plant Materials Conference held in Reno, Nev., and presented a talk on the effects of the CRP sign up program.

Stoy served on the panel with Art Armbrust of Kansas, John Sours of Idaho, and Larry Lilley of Oregon.

The CRP, being administered by the Soil Conservation Service, will put land out of production and practice conservation for a long term.

"I personally feel that this is a very good approach to solving some problems of the country, but not without creating a few of its own," Stoy told the convention.

One problem is that seed businesses will have to be able to

Mild spurt in wheat sales arises from export subsidies

WASHINGTON (AP) — A two-year-old subsidy program has caused a spurt in U.S. wheat exports to markets once dominated by Europe, but the program has failed to address basic causes of overall dismal American sales, a new survey found.

"The program as implemented deals with the symptoms, not the fundamental causes, of the problems facing U.S. agriculture," Allan I. Mendelowitz, an official of the General Accounting Office, told a House panel Tuesday.

The major cause of export problems is a substantial world surplus, said Mendelowitz, senior associate director of GAO's national security and international affairs division.

The report to the House Agriculture Committee's subcommittee on department operations, research and foreign agriculture represented one of several periodic assessments of agricultural trade by the GAO, the investigative arm of Congress.

It focused on a number of areas of agricultural trade, including the Export Enhancement Program, established in 1985. The program provides that the government will use $1 billion to $1.5 billion in commodities owned by the Commodity Credit Corp. as bonuses to exporters to stimulate exports.

The program also has been described as a way to give the European Economic Community, which heavily subsidizes agricultural exports, a taste of its own medicine.

Mendelowitz reported that as of March 6, there had been 64 initiatives under the program covering 40 countries and 12 commodities — wheat, wheat flour, rice, poultry, barley malt, semolina, eggs, dairy cattle, poultry feed, barley and vegetable oil. But he said the main thrust in practice was toward wheat and wheat flour exports.

Sales under the program have totaled about 9.1 million metric tons of wheat, 1.4 million metric tons of flour, 2.8 million metric tons of barley and lesser quantities of the other commodities, Mendelowitz said. The sales value of the transactions under the program has reached $1.3 billion.

Subsidies okayed for flooded wheat farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Proposed subsidies for wheat farmers who did not plant this winter because of flooding has won House approval despite opposition from the Reagan administration.

Aimed at farmers in Kansas, Oklahoma, Michigan and parts of Missouri hit by severe rain storms last fall, the measure cleared the House on a 304-100 vote Tuesday. The Senate has passed a differing version.

Congress passed a $400 million disaster aid package for such producers last year, but winter wheat farmers were left out because their crops were not yet planted or harvested.

The bill would provide a one-time payment to qualifying farmers equal to 92 percent of the income subsidy they would have received if they had planted all their normal acreage, in effect paying producers for keeping their land idle.

In addition, the bill provides payments to about 200 feed grain farmers in flood-prone areas near the Mississippi and Missouri rivers, and requires the Agriculture Department to spend $135 million in addition to last year's disaster aid package.

supply enough seed for this year, and insure that the seed industry know what is needed for two or three years from now. Many grass seed must take two or more growing seasons to be harvested.

Another problem the seed industry may see is the sudden uprising of "get rich quick" businesses due to the CRP. While the industry is regulated at state and/or federal levels, farmers and elevators may sell seed without restrictions, risking a mix of weed seed and poor germination.

At the meeting was Wilson Sealing, chief of the SCS, who brought some of his staff from Washington, D.C. Also, regional and state manager of the Plant Materials Center.

A preventative maintenance seminar for all types of diesel engines and injectors has been scheduled for 7 p.m. Tuesday April 28th at the Hereford Bull Barn.

jection of Hereford, will feature a short film, slides, a speaker, and a question and answer period.

Fed cattle down 3 percent from year ago

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cattle being fed for slaughter as of March 1 in the seven largest cattle states were down 3 percent from a year ago and 10 percent below two years ago, the Agriculture Department said Monday.

Inventories at feedlots were below a year earlier in California, Colorado, Kansas and Texas. They were up slightly in Arizona, Iowa and Nebraska.

Placement of cattle and calves in feedlots last month, however, was the highest for February since 1978, estimated at 1.41 million head, up 15 percent from last year and five percent above the figure for February 1985.

Marketings of fed cattle, or sale of the cattle by feedlots to meat-packers, totaled 1.46 million head in February, about the same as last year but 5 percent less than the figure for February two years ago.

March 1 feedlot inventories in the seven states that account for about three-fourths of the nation's beef, and their percentages of a year earlier: Arizona 318,000 head on March 1, or 102 percent of the same date in 1986; California 335 head, or 88 percent; Colorado 760 head, or 93 percent; Iowa 665 head, or 105 percent; Kansas 1,330 head, or 99 percent; Nebraska 1,830 head, or 102 percent, and Texas 1,890 head, or 93 percent.

Donating blood safe procedure

The only way people who need blood can get it is from other people. According to the Texas Medical Association, despite much experimentation, there is still no substitute for the genuine thing. Without volunteer donors, there would be no supply of blood.

A new TMA pamphlet, "Blood Donation: Give Blood So Others Can Live!" answers many of the questions you may have about donating blood.

Giving blood is a safe and simple procedure that takes less than an hour and involves no risk of exposure to disease. The process begins with a confidential medical interview.

After the interview, a "mini-physical" is performed which includes taking your temperature, pulse, and blood pressure. A small sample of blood is taken from your finger to determine your hemoglobin content.

The actual giving of blood is a quick procedure that usually takes from five to ten minutes. Approximately one pint of blood is drawn into a plastic container. The average adult has easily to ten pints of blood and can easily afford to donate one pint. The pint is quickly replaced by the body.

After donating blood, you rest briefly and are given light refreshments, and then are on your way to continue your normal activities.

Before your blood is given to a patient, it is carefully examined.

Sophisticated testing procedures called "blood processing" ensure that blood is safe for use. It takes at least four hours of testing per unit before blood is ready to use.

Several different tests are performed. The blood group and type are determined and tests for hepatitis B and syphilis are performed on each blood unit. A new test is used to detect the antibody to HTLV-III which is presumed to cause Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome or AIDS. Blood also is tested for red cell antibodies, which may cause problems when transfused to certain patients.

Because of our increasing population and advances in medical and surgical techniques, the need for blood donors is constantly growing. Ask your doctor for the location of the nearest blood center, and planto donate. Blood is one of the most powerful gifts you can give.

To obtain a copy of this pamphlet and 14 others in the HealthWise Series, write to the Texas Medical Association, Communication Department, HealthWise Series, 1801 N. Lamar Blvd., Austin 78701.

WRONG ANSWERS, RIGHT DIRECTION

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—The old adage, "we learn from mistakes," is something neither high school math students nor their teachers usually profit from, says a University of Rochester education professor.

Raffaella Borasi says most students care more about getting the correct answer than thinking about why an answer is right or wrong. Teachers use errors to diagnose problems, but rarely to encourage students to analyze mistakes and learn from them.

Working with students and teachers in the Rochester area, Borasi is conducting a two-year study she hopes will result in better educational materials — materials that will show both students and teachers how to profit from wrong answers.
