Senate to try again to overturn veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats are taking a second crack at overturning President Reagan's veto of an $88 billion highway bill, saying they will prevail in a political confrontation they lost narrowly the first time.

"Every Democrat is holding firm and 13 Republicans have withstood tremendous pressure from the White House," Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said Wednesday night after a tense day of maneuvering on and off the Senate floor.

The Democratic count for today's expected vote included freshman Democrat Terry Sanford of North Carolina. The only one of 54 Senate Democrats voting to sustain the veto, the 69-year-old freshman lawmaker later announced a change of heart.

Senate GOP leader Bob Dole of Kansas conceded the president's initial victory, on a vote of 65-35, was in doubt. If the vote were held immediately, the result would be a 67-33 tally that would override the veto, he said.

But with Reagan lobbying Republicans by telephone from the White House, Dole added wryly, "There's still some effort being made to enlighten some of my colleagues."

At stake was the future of a five-year highway bill that included more than 100 highway "demonstration projects" favored by lawmakers, as well as a provision to permit states to raise the speed limit to 65 mph on most stretches of interstate highways.

Reagan vetoed the bill as a budget buster that was larded with wasteful pork barrel construction projects. Democrats countered that the measure was within budget constraints, and said 800,000 construction jobs would be lost if the veto were sustained.

The issue also became a major political showdown between the president and Democratic majorities in the Senate and the House, which voted 350-73 to override the veto Tuesday. It takes a two-thirds vote by both houses to override a veto — 67 votes in the Senate if all 100 members are voting.

Wednesday's roll call was conducted in an unusually quiet Senate chamber, with Vice President George Bush presiding.

With the tally at 66-32, Sanford and Senate Republican Whip Alan Simpson of Wyoming were the only senators who had not voted. Sanford initially voted present, then switched his vote to sustain the veto — the only Democrat to do so. Simpson immediately cast his vote the same way, creating a 66-34 vote that was sufficient to uphold the president's action.

Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., then switched his vote in a parliamentary move that enabled him to call for a second vote.

After more than an hour of closed-door meetings, Sanford emerged to say he was prepared to switch his position on a second roll call.

Sanford said he was satisfied his first vote had demonstrated the president was still an effective leader and added he was prepared to switch because an alternative highway bill prepared by the White House would mean less funding for his state than the vetoed measure.

"Let's just say I was slightly confused," he said of a series of events on the Senate floor in which he initially voted present, then returned to the front of the chamber a few moments later to change his vote to sustain the veto.

Sanford's turnaround produced a Republican scramble to find an off-setting vote of their own, and a final vote was delayed while Reagan and Bush lobbied wavering Republicans.

Aug. 3 deadline set

DOE issues invitation for atom smasher proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government has set an Aug. 3 deadline for state governments or others to suggest locations for a massive, $4.4 billion atom smasher.

The U.S. Department of Energy, which formally issued an invitation for proposals for the scientific project Wednesday, said that those submitting proposals can include, but are not limited to, a state government, a group of states, a county, a group of counties and a corporation or other private landowner.

Each proposer can submit more than one site, but each proposed site must be submitted as a separate proposal.

The entire complex for the atom smasher, called the Superconducting Super Collider, is expected to occupy about 16,000 acres. The department said the land must be provided at no cost to the federal government.

The collider would consist of a circular, 52-mile racetrack-like tunnel 10 feet in diameter in which atomic particles traveling at nearly the speed of light could be studied. It is expected to take six years to build and would create about 3,000 jobs with an operating budget of $200 million a year.

The Reagan administration's decision to support construction of the collider has triggered an intense competition among states to get the project.

The department said its goal is to select a site that will permit the highest level of research productivity at a reasonable cost of construction and operation and minimal adverse impact on the environment.

The department said cost considerations will be considered and that any financial contributions offered by the proposers will be considered as appropriate. However, it said primary emphasis will be placed on the technical criteria.

Following the August deadline, proposals meeting the general requirements will be given to a special panel convened by the National Academy of Sciences and the National Academy of Engineering.

Surviving

Spring hasn't been a bed of roses for most flower garden, such as this one at the E. B. Black House. Warm spells followed by freezing temperatures and snowfall every few days are sapping the blossoms of good floral posture. Snow early today chilled the plants, but the forecast for Friday calls for temperatures in the mid-50s.

Regular election Saturday

High absentee turnout reported

Deaf Smith General Hospital reported a record number of absentee votes cast through Tuesday's deadline and other contests showed a heavy pre-election turnout, also.

Regular voting for the city, school, hospital and county special elections will be Saturday.

Ballets for the hospital election totaled 185. Phillis Morrison, DSGH comptroller said about 25 was previous highest absentee turnout.

The race to fill three at-large vacancies on the hospital board drew six candidates: Jim Herbertson, Ralph Detten, Gerald Payne, Olivia Denning, Thomas Hyer, and June Rudd.

At the county clerk's office, the county special election on a sales tax was the most popular with 410 voting early. That election will determine whether the county will adopt a half-cent sales and use tax to be used to reduce the county property tax rate.

The Hereford Schools trustee board election saw 408 early ballots filed. That election will seat two at-large candidates from the slate of Demetrio Zuniga, John Fuston, Delia Castillo, and Dennis Newton. In District 2, Jo Garcia is the only candidate.

City slates for four commission seats and the mayor's post brought 357 voters in early.

Incumbent Wes Fisher is running against Jim Steiert and Sylvia Flores.

For Place 1 on the commission, Silvana Juarez and Loran Nixon are competing. For Place 3, voters may choose Tom LeGate or Boyd Foster.

Two at-large posts, Places 5 and 6, are sought by Jerry Walsh, Raul Valdez, Paul Abalos, Ed Wuerflein, and Paul Hamilton.

Voting Saturday will be from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m.

The city, school and hospital board elections will be conducted at the Hereford Community Center. The special election concerning county-wide sales tax will be conducted at the regular county voting precinct boxes.

Bullard to testify before House caucus on Medicare problems

Jim Bullard, administrator of Deaf Smith General Hospital, will be one of five rural hospital chiefs to testify before a House caucus group Monday in Washington, D.C.

Rep. Beau Boulter (R-Amarillo) and about 30 of his House colleagues have formed a coalition to try to change some new Medicare rules so rural hospitals can survive. Boulter says rural America is forgotten when Congress enacts legislation affecting health care.

Five rural hospital administrators in five Congressional districts in Texas have been invited to testify before the coalition Monday. Bullard said representatives Larry Combest and Charles Stenholm have joined Boulter in working on the problem in this area.

Ever since President Reagan in 1984 changed the hospital reimbursement procedure, a fixed price has been paid for treatments in 468 diagnosis-related groups. This prospective pricing system (PPS) has led to shorter stays or outpatient treatments instead of hospital admissions.

"The recent report of the PPS Assessment Commission to Congress stated that more than one-fourth of rural hospitals incurred losses under PPS, while very few urban hospitals had losses," said Boulter.

Medicare reimbursement rates for rural hospitals are 20 percent to 50 percent less than for urban hospitals, said Karen Geers, legislative aide to Boulter.

"As a steering committee member of the coalition, I will be strongly promoting legislation making PPS differentials more equitable in DRG payments to rural areas, and seeking positive revision of peer review law with regard to rural review," stated Boulter.

One example of discrepancy in payments Bullard noted was that in Houston a hospital gets $5,500 for a Medicare patient's treatment of pneumonia while rural hospitals receive about $2,300 for the same illness, although treatment is the same.

Bullard said that he knew of a 1,000-bed hospital in the midwest which made a $30 million profit from Medicare payments. Deaf Smith General's payments from Medicare were $455,000 below what the costs for care were.

Texans object to immigration rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government is making it impossible for hundreds of thousands of Mexican-Americans to qualify for amnesty because of proposed immigration regulations, Texas officials say.

The proposed rules are far too restrictive and will "force massive layoffs, cause some businesses to shut down entirely ... and bust our state budget," Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said at a news conference Wednesday.

The officials said the proposals, scheduled to begin going into effect

May 5, will leave farmers without enough workers. In addition, said the officials, states won't be adequately reimbursed for expenses in implementing the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986.

The rules "offer a classic case study of what happens when a federal bureaucracy mixes ignorance with arrogance," Hightower said. "The timing and the funding of INS' program will wreck us in Texas."

Mario Ortiz, a spokesman for the southern regional office of the INS in Dallas, called Hightower's remark

"obvious political rhetoric" and said, "Only Commissioner Hightower could recognize those qualities."

Ortiz said the proposed regulations are in a public comment period and are likely to be changed.

"We are trying to encourage input from all groups," he responded. "The INS certainly welcomes remarks from all groups on what the regulations should look like."

Texas has about a quarter of the nation's Hispanic population, depends on agriculture for more than one in every five jobs and has the longest foreign border of any state, more than 1,200 miles.

Hightower and Texas state Rep. Al Luna, along with half a dozen other local public officials and representatives of private groups, proposed a 28-point plan to change the regulations. They will lobby Congress to pressure the immigration bureau to change the rules. If that fails, Hightower said, the coalition may try to delay implementation of the rules, although he said the group is "a long way" from filing a lawsuit.

The coalition said the INS should:

- Ease requirements to qualify for the amnesty program, under which aliens can apply to become legal residents. Applicants must establish continuous residence in the United States from Jan. 1, 1982 to the present. Exceptions are limited to single absences of 45 days and total absences from the United States of 180 days. The coalition recommends easing that to single absences of from 90 to 180 days and total absences of one to two years.

- Expand the range of documents allowable to prove identity, including the use of driver's licenses.
- Narrow the definition of what types of public assistance are grounds for denying legalization. The coalition says, for example, that receipt of Aid to Families with Dependent Children by qualified citizens should not be used as grounds for excluding related aliens from eligibility.

- Lower application fees from $185 per person to about $50.

The coalition also objected to a number of the provisions in the Seasonal Agricultural Worker program, which seeks to ensure an adequate

Air pollution may increase hurricane

NEW YORK (AP) — Continued air pollution that increases carbon dioxide levels, already linked to climatic warming, also could make some hurricanes up to 60 percent stronger in the next century, says a study published today.

Kerry Emanuel, associate meteorology professor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, reached that projection using a computer simulation of average August conditions. He reported the study in the British journal Nature. If the atmosphere's carbon dioxide content doubles, the maximum possible intensity for hurricanes could rise 40 percent to 50 percent generally and 60 percent in the Gulf of Mexico, the study said.

While only a few percent of hurricanes reach the maximum possible intensity, "we would tend to think if the maximum intensity increases, the average would increase as well," said Emanuel.

The carbon dioxide buildup is caused largely by burning of fossil fuels. Projections of when the atmosphere's carbon dioxide content will double range from about the year 2035 to 2080, according to the National Center for Atmospheric Research.

The buildup has long concerned scientists because it could cause a significant warming of worldwide climate, affecting crop yields and causing long heat waves and coastal flooding from higher seas, scientists say.

Emanuel said his analysis assumes that the doubling of carbon dioxide will raise the temperature of ocean surfaces in tropical regions generally by about 2 degrees to 3 degrees centigrade, or about 4 degrees to 5 degrees Fahrenheit.

In an interview, Emanuel called that assumption "a big if" and said that estimates vary widely on how much ocean temperatures would really rise.

Marines too immature for security

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arthur Hartman, who was U.S. ambassador to Moscow when female Soviet spies allegedly seduced American Marines there, says the incident shows the Marine guards are too immature to be entrusted with security at the mission.

"I've been driven to the conclusion that they are too young and lack a certain maturity," said Hartman, 61, who retired from the State Department last month after serving as ambassador to Moscow for five years.

Hartman, a 39-year veteran of the State Department, expressed dismay at what he called the "tragedy" of three Marines accused of involvement with Soviet women believed to be agents of the Soviet KGB security service.

Military investigators said Wednesday it was likely other cases of fraternization between Marines and Soviet women would be disclosed soon. The investigators also have been authorized to interrogate the guards with lie-detector machines, according to Pentagon sources who said the investigation may be expanded to focus on the security of other American embassies in communist countries.

Two of the Marines, Sgt. Clayton Lonetree and Cpl. Arnold Bracy, are charged with allowing KGB agents to prow through secure areas in the Moscow embassy, where they allegedly saw the names of Soviet citizens who cooperated with the CIA and codes used in the transmission of secret communications.

The third Marine, Staff Sgt. Robert Stanley Stufflebeam, is not accused of espionage, but is being investigated for allegedly breaking the rule barring contact with Soviets by having an affair with a Russian woman and then lying about it.

The incident caused enormous damage to U.S. intelligence and security interests, according to American officials, and one Pentagon source said investigators would interview guards who served earlier tours in Moscow and other Soviet bloc posts, seeking to uncover similar cases.

Brain implants key in treatment

NEW YORK (AP) — Researchers have taken a big step in treating Parkinson's disease by showing significant improvement in two patients who underwent transplants of gland cells to their brains, a scientist says.

"With this report, neural transplantation is with us as a possible mode of therapy," Dr. Robert Y. Moore, chairman of the neurology department at the State University of New York at Stony Brook, wrote in today's New England Journal of Medicine.

But he and other scientists said more investigation is needed. His editorial accompanied a study by Mexican scientists of two Parkinson's patients who underwent surgery to transplant cells from their adrenal glands, which lie just above the kidney, into their brains.

Before surgery, one 35-year-old patient had needed help to eat and walk even a few steps, but he now feeds himself, visits a clinic by himself and holds a job tending pigs, said researcher Dr. Rene Drucker-Colin.

"The patient still has a slight tremor, he sort of limps a little bit," said Drucker-Colin in a telephone interview. "It's not a 100 percent recovery. That's impossible, I think."

Soldier, wife defect to Soviets

MOSCOW (AP) — A U.S. Army soldier and his wife have been granted asylum by the Kremlin, a Soviet official said today, in the first known defection of an American serviceman to the Soviet Union since the Vietnam War.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov identified the soldier as William E. Roberts, and his West German wife as P. Neumann, and said Roberts had been based in West Germany.

Gerasimov told reporters at a news briefing that both Roberts and his wife were granted asylum by the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet because "they were afraid of being victimized for their progressive views."

He said Roberts "had been persecuted" while stationed in West Germany in the U.S. Army, but gave no details. Gerasimov did not give Roberts' rank and hometown.

The Soviet official gave no details of when the couple entered the Soviet Union or how they had arrived.

"They have chosen for their honeymoon the Turkmenian U.S.S.R.," Gerasimov said, referring to the Central Asian Soviet republic that borders Afghanistan, Pakistan and China.

In Washington, Pentagon officials declined immediate comment, saying they were attempting to learn further details. And Rex Gribble, a spokesman for the U.S. Army's European Headquarters in Heidelberg, West Germany, said: "I've just seen the report. I've done some checking around. We have nothing on it at this time."

The reported defections came amid an espionage scandal at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow that U.S. authorities say may have compromised its communications.

Three former Marine guards at the embassy have been arrested in the United States, two charged with espionage. The third Marine is being investigated for allegedly breaking the rule barring contact with Soviets by having an affair with a Soviet woman and lying about it.

The 28 Marine guards now at the embassy are to be sent home within the next month.

TV Preacher was jealous

WASHINGTON (AP) — The friendship of TV evangelist Jim Bakker's wife, Tammy Faye, with a Nashville singer may have been the cause of the jealousy Bakker has led to his sexual encounter with church secretary, a published report says today.

Gary Paxton, onetime lead singer of the Hollywood Argyles who sang the hit "Alley Oop," told The Washington Post that he and Mrs. Bakker were "just friends, never more than that."

But, the Post reported, Paxton's ex-wife, Karen, said Mrs. Bakker was "in love with Gary, or thought that she was, and she knew I knew it."

"I love Tammy. We were very close," Mrs. Paxton told the newspaper. "I thought she was my best friend, but my best friend and my best husband let me down."

Paxton, 48, produced the 1960s song "Monster Mash" as well as record albums for Mrs. Bakker in the late 1970s.

Linda Wilson, Mrs. Bakker's former secretary, told the newspaper she warned Mrs. Bakker against becoming involved with Paxton, saying, "Please don't do anything you'll be sorry for. It's important for you to guard your affections, to guard your heart." But she let down her guard.

Bakker's resignation from his Fort Mill, S.C., ministry after acknowledging a sexual encounter seven years ago with Jessica Hahn, a church secretary, has led to accusations among TV evangelists over morality and alleged attempts to seize control of the $172 million PTL organization which the Bakkers have left. PTL stands for "Praise The Lord" and "People That Love."

A spokesman for the PTL Club, Neil Eskelin, told the Post he would have no comment on Mrs. Bakker's relationship with Paxton. The Bakkers have been in seclusion in Palm Springs, Calif., and could not be reached for comment, the newspaper said.

Bakker has said that he had been concerned about losing his wife, and Jamie Buckingham, a columnist for Charisma, a Pentecostal magazine, told the Post that he brought up the subject of Mrs. Bakker's "wandering heart" during a recent visit with the couple.

"Tammy said, 'Yes, but there had been nothing sexual about it ... he was just someone to talk to, a guy who would listen to me,'" Buckingham quoted her as saying. "She was lonely and her husband wasn't paying any attention to her," Buckingham said.

IBM unveils new personal computers

NEW YORK (AP) — International Business Machines Corp. sought to leap ahead of competitors in the personal computer field today with a new family of products more powerful and harder to copy than IBM's earlier models.

Known as the IBM Personal System-2, the group includes four products in eight configurations that the world's largest computer company called "the broadest range of compatible personal computing systems ever offered."

The computers include special IBM-developed technology that in some ways make them incompatible with rivals, as well as powerful graphics capability and a broad range of information storage devices.

IBM unveiled the new products at a news conference in New York, an industry event widely regarded as the one of the biggest developments in PCs since IBM introduced its first, hugely successful box six years ago.

The top-of-the-line model is based on Intel Corp.'s 80386 microprocessor, putting IBM into the fastest category of PCs along with Compaq Computer Corp. of Houston, which was the first to utilize the Intel microprocessor with its Deskpro 386 last fall.

quate work force to farmers.

Rules drafted by the immigration agency allow foreigners who have worked in fruit and vegetable fields for 90 days to become legal residents.

"But this special provision does not apply to ranch hands, poultry workers or farmers who raise cotton, corn" and other crops, Hightower said. "Texas agriculture has a lot more than fruits and vegetables," he added.

The coalition also wants more money from the federal government to reimburse states for the cost of implementing the new law.

The coalition says $1 billion per year is needed for four years to reimburse states. Under the law, the federal government plans to defray some of its own costs from the $1 billion, leaving the rest for state and local grants.

"The regulations will place great financial burdens on a reeling state government that already faces a budget deficit approaching $6 billion and on welfare and social service agencies that have already undergone drastic reductions in funding," Hightower said.

Federal procurement workshop scheduled

AMARILLO — Small businesses in the Texas Panhandle can be major trading partners with Uncle Sam. The Federal Contract Procurement Workshop scheduled for April 14 in Amarillo's Sheraton Inn will show how those partnerships can be formed.

Every year, the federal government buys millions of dollars in goods and services from small businesses; every thing from paper clips to power tools. Representatives of the SBA and the U.S. General Services Administration will go into detail about what it takes to get a piece of the federal pie.

Contract opportunities with Pantex, the Department of Energy, and Reese Air Force Base will also be explored, along with the intricacies of bonding for those who wish to sell both goods and services to the government.

Congressman Beau Boulter, one of the sponsors of the event, will make the luncheon address. His presentation will deal with the importance of the small business in the federal scheme and how the government relies on the small supplier to provide quality goods and services.

Dickie Haney, director of the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission's Contract Procurement Center, will talk about the center's work during the opening afternoon session. In its six months of existence, the center has attracted over 55 business people to his service. Those who have a specific product or service to discuss will get one-on-one consultation during the second half of the afternoon from Haney and the procurement center staff.

The workshop is co-sponsored by the procurement center, the Panhandle Private Industry Council, Southwestern Public Service Co., and the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce.

How much people think it costs

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

The question of wanting the nuke waste repository and site characterization and site characterization and site characterization is not the issue. I believe nearly everyone wishes the whole thing would just go away and leave our community alone.

However, that is not going to happen unless Congress changes the law. That is not likely to happen as there are 49 other states that don't want it either.

The real issue is what are we going to do about the impact upon our community. I believe we all should channel our efforts towards (1) Making sure DOE does it's job right, including paying its way in the community...schools, roads, etc., and (2) Making sure that our county and city officials, our schools, churches, and us as individuals handle the impacts in a positive manner.

The Waste Deposit Impact Committee is on the right track. We are fortunate we have such good people to serve on that committee. They got about a three-year late start, but with our support they can catch up.

Bank Presented Award

The First National Bank of Hereford received the annual award for the largest endowment fund in the Don & Sybil Harrington Cancer Center's bank endowment program. Charlie Christopher, vice president at FNB, accepted the award from Kathrine Wilson, an official with the cancer center. Local citizens support the non-profit center by contributing to more than 70 banks and financial institutions in the region who are trustees for the fund. FNB won the traveling trophy for a savings fund total of more than $24,000.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is for every woman who is living with a batterer. Please print this.

You are shocked and hurt the first time he hits you. He will say he's sorry. The next time he hits you he will say you deserve it. Be careful, you may believe him.

He's great at making you feel sorry for him. You try to understand the reason he is so abusive is that he had a horrible childhood. His parents abused him. He has problems at work. He has problems with alcohol. You're only a dumb housewife and don't know what the real world is like, so shut up, woman. If you get scared and think he is losing control, you've got it wrong, lady. YOU have lost control.

You let him handle the finances because you are busy with the kids and the house and he keeps telling you how stupid you are about money.

When you discover that he has been stealing from Peter to pay Paul (his trips, vacations, clothes, small gifts for women, women and more women) you will be absolutely devastated.

As the years roll by you say less and less because whatever you say is completely ignored or causes more violence. You start to take a good look at yourself. The missing teeth have caused your cheeks to sink. All those black eyes have left your lids puffy and your eyes bloodshot. Headaches and backaches are common. You've gained weight because eating is your only pleasure. You never get your hair fixed downtown anymore because you can't afford it.

One day you wake up and discover you are hanging on the edge of a cliff.

Your old injuries flare up and you realize you can't stay with him forever. But you are afraid to leave because you don't know where to go. You can't let your family know what's going on. The truth is they have known for years.

If you man is abusive in the beginning he will be a killer in the end. Don't make excuses for him. Don't think he will change. Don't fool yourself into believing the situation can be turned around. It won't get better, it will only get worse. As long as you are willing to take abuse, he will dish it out. My advice is to get out while you are still healthy and whole. If you stick around you will end up miserable, filled with self-hatred, wondering why you let that man ruin your life. Sign me—Twenty-Three Years in the Ring

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I join those, who, in the past, have dumped their pet peaves on you? Mine is one I'll bet many of your readers share. It's merchants who charge 99 cents, $1.99 and $29.99, etc. Whom do they think they are kidding? Certainly no sane person is going to be attracted to an item because it is under a dollar or under $2. In fact those pesky 99's with the tax added always make us scrounge around for pennies, which is a nuisance. Tell 'em to cut it out. Ann—E.A., in Riverside

DEAR E.A.: I, too, wish they'd cut it out but they won't, and telling them won't help. It's a sales gimmick that has been around forever and we are stuck with it.

Rhubarb

Rhubarb, meaning a noisy argument or quarrel, comes perhaps from the custom in the theater, radio and movies of saying "rhubarb" over and over again to simulate angry and menacing talk in crowd scenes.

Marine arrested in embassy case

WASHINGTON (AP) — A third Marine who worked as an embassy guard in Moscow is under arrest in a sex-and-spy case for which the Soviet Union now is poking fun at the United States.

Staff Sgt. Robert Stanley Stufflebeam, who had commanded the other two Marines arrested in the case, was being held in the brig at Camp Pendleton, Calif., Pentagon spokesman Robert Sims said Tuesday.

The arrests and the Marine Corps' announcement earlier this week that the entire 28-man guard detachment in Moscow would be replaced in a "precautionary" move drew sarcasm from a Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Tuesday.

"We can only smile at what is said about the story that 28 staunch Marines are being withdrawn because they were allegedly unable to withstand the charms of blonde spies," Soviet spokesman Gennady Gerasimov told reporters in Moscow.

The stories indicate the Marines' "inability to resist the enemy," he said.

The Soviet spokesman added the allegations that Soviet women lured Marine guards into espionage sounded like the plot of a lurid spy novel. He did not, however, directly deny it had happened.

The 28 Marine guards being recalled from the Moscow embassy have been told they will be asked to take polygraph tests when they return to the United States, the New York Times reported today.

The newspaper, quoting an unidentified American close to the contingent, said the Marines were told they would be transferred to regular Marine duty if they declined to submit to the tests.

In addition, the Marines were told they would be asked what they knew of any illegal activities, including black market dealings and bringing women into the Marine compound, the Times said.

Stufflebeam, 24, of Bloomington, Ill., had not been accused of espionage, as have two other former Moscow embassy guards: Sgt. Clayton J. Lonetree and Cpl. Arnold Bracy.

Unclassified summaries of the interrogation of Lonetree say he told investigators he received $3,500 from the Soviets, and the Marine Corps alleges that Bracy received $1,000 from Lonetree.

Sims said Stufflebeam had commanded Lonetree and Bracy in Moscow and acknowledged he had been arrested last Sunday at Camp Pendleton on the basis of information uncovered in the Lonetree investigation.

Stufflebeam is being held for investigation of violating two military regulations: failure to report all contacts with foreign nationals and making false official statements "during his exit debriefing indicating that no such contacts had occurred."

President Reagan said Tuesday night that replacing the Marine contingent in Moscow, was "simply a precaution."

The president, speaking with reporters following a state dinner for French Prime Minister Jacques Chirac called the case "regrettable."

The 25-year-old Lonetree was the first of the three to be arrested — last December — and has since been charged with two counts of espionage and 22 related counts. Bracy was arrested two weeks ago for investigation of working as an accomplice with Lonetree.

Gerasimov's comments at a news briefing were the first by a Soviet official on the case, which has led to charges that Lonetree and Bracy repeatedly allowed Soviet agents inside the embassy late at night.

Pentagon sources have said both Marines became involved with Soviet women who worked on the embassy's staff, who in turn introduced them to a man believed to work for the Soviet KGB.

"We were surprised at these stories that show a defeat of the famous American Marines who were victorious at Grenada," Gerasimov said.

Gerasimov's reference to Grenada follows frequent Soviet criticism of the U.S.-led invasion of that small Caribbean island in 1983. Moscow and its allies point to the invasion as an example of U.S. interference in the affairs of smaller countries.

The Bill of Rights went into effect on Dec. 15, 1791.

For miniseries 'Amerika'

Few viewers blame advertisers

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC's miniseries "Amerika" provoked a noisy debate before it was broadcast, stirring concerns among some advertisers that irate viewers would vent their wrath on those who sponsored it.

But a survey by the advertising agency J. Walter Thompson USA found that few viewers felt the show changed their view of the sponsors.

Opinion remains divided on whether controversial programs make good advertising vehicles. But the new study supports those who argue that most viewers draw a distinction between commercials and programming.

"It means advertisers don't have to be afraid of controversial subject matter," Bob Warrens, head of Thompson's media resources and research group, said in a telephone interview. "There's not a lot of ruboff between program content and the advertising."

Thompson said it conducted its survey the day after the seven-episode, prime-time miniseries ended Feb. 22 to see if viewers changed their opinion of companies whose commercials appeared on the program.

The 14½-hour miniseries portrayed a grim lifestyle in the United States 10 years after a Soviet takeover.

The program drew a smaller-than-predicted audience with an average rating of 19 and an average share of 29. A rating is the percentage of all homes with television sets, and the share is the percentage of households with their sets turned on.

Some major advertisers had been told they could expect higher ratings. Warrens said 41 percent of the 500 people called nationally for the Thompson survey said they had seen at least a half-hour of the program.

Nearly half of the viewers said they found the program boring and 20 percent called it unrealistic, but 26 percent called it a good show and 8 percent found it inspiring, the survey said.

Despite the controversy about the program, Warrens said, eight of 10 viewers said they were not offended by anything about the program.

Included in the 17 percent who said they were offended were 6 percent who called it unbelievable, 6 percent who said it offered a poor image of American citizens, 3 percent who described it as disappointing and 2 percent who said it might hurt foreign relations.

Eighty-one percent of those who failed to watch cited "not enough time," "not interested" and "watched other programs." The survey said only 9 percent cited political controversy for not watching.

Among viewers, Warrens said, 83 percent reported that their feelings about sponsors were unchanged by involvement with the show.

Eight percent of viewers said they looked more favorably on sponsors of the program afterward, while 5 percent said they had a less favorable impression of those advertisers, he said. The remaining 4 percent said they didn't know.

The study did not explore any further what those who felt less favorably toward sponsors planned to do about those feelings. It also did not question non-viewers about their feelings toward those who advertised on the program.

In 1984, there were 76,000 television sets in use in the Republic of Zambia.

Women's fashions explained

Members of Toujours Amis Study Club met recently at First Christian Church before leaving for Canyon to eat and to tour the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum.

While at the museum, JoAnn Arasim presented a detailed and informative program concerning women's fashions. She explained that lace was first made by hand from bobbins before machines were used. She also cited how very expensive it was to purchase.

Those present were club members, Pam Perrin, Elaine McNutt, Kim Bigham, Cindy Black, Karen Keeling, Patti Brown, Rhonda Nieman, Lori Hall, Cindy Cole, Kathy Carthel, Debbie Donaldson, Marilyn Leasure, Leisa Lewis, Donna Tidmore, Marsha Winget and Shannon Hagar.

Gay candidate to get equal time on religious stations

DALLAS (AP) — A homosexual City Council candidate has been granted air time on three area UHF television stations that feature religious programming so that he can respond to broadcast comments by evangelist James Robison.

On a show broadcast Tuesday, Robison questioned how candidate Bill Nelson could "honorably" take an oath of office to uphold city and state laws, including the sodomy law, said William Waybourn, Nelson's campaign manager.

Federal Communications Commission officials said Nelson was not specifically named, but identified through his role as president of the Dallas Gay Alliance and candidacy in the District 9 at-large council race.

"Robison... attacked me as one of the immoral elements attempting to take control of the city by running for the City Council, and gave me the right to ask for equal time on the airwaves," Nelson told The Dallas Morning News.

Waybourn said similar comments about the political influence of homosexuals were made by Dallas developer Jim Williams Jr., who serves as president of Citizens for Dallas, a group promoting traditional values.

Williams, who supports a candidate opposing Nelson, said he discussed a broad range of issues, "including crime and public decency and public health."

Williams said he thought "it would be real interesting" to see a gay viewpoint "on a Christian TV station."

Nelson will appear on two of the stations Friday.

"We're going to give him a half hour at 6 a.m.," said Jim McKay, president of station KDFL.

Nelson campaign workers said their candidate will appear at 9 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Friday on station KLTJ, immediately following Robison's regularly scheduled shows.

Time granted by KDTX was still under discussion Wednesday. Amy Zoslov, staff attorney with the FCC, said agreements with the stations were reached by telephone Wednesday, because the formal complaint process would make it impossible to do provide time before Saturday's election.

The programs apparently violated a portion of the FCC's fairness doctrine that requires a broadcast station to provide a candidate for political office with air time equal to any time that an opponent receives beyond coverage of news events.

In February 1979, station WFAA suspended Robison's show for four weeks after he repeatedly quoted publications attacking homosexuals. WFAA officials said the fairness doctrine required that the station give the Dallas Gay Political Caucus free air time to respond.

Student teachers may suffer

BRYAN, Texas (AP) — At least 92 education students statewide may have to repeat their student-teaching assignments because their universities failed to give them a required test, officials say.

The students, who began student-teaching this spring semester, did not take the Texas Pre-Professional Skills Test required of all teacher education students before beginning junior-level course work in their major, said Nolan Wood, director of the TEA's Teacher Assessment Division.

The requirement had been suspended in August 1985 when U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice ruled the test could not be used as an admissions test, but Justice's injunction was lifted by a federal appeals court last August.

Students who began to take junior-level courses while the test was in litigation were allowed to stay in school, but ordered to take the test by last October, said TEA spokeswoman Terry Anderson.

Scores of students, however, have not taken the test, TEA officials said Tuesday.

The schools where the oversight is known to have occurred, and the number of students, are the University of Texas at Austin, 27 students; Angelo State University, 23; Texas A&M, 18; UT-Arlington, 8; UT-Permian Basin at Odessa, 6; Southern Methodist, 6; and UT-Dallas, 4, Wood said, adding that students at other schools may be affected.

Dean Corrigan, dean of Texas A&M's college of education, said his staff assumed the students were cleared to teach this spring.

"A number of institutions, including ours, interpreted the ruling to mean that they could teach, but could not receive certification until they passed the test," Corrigan told the Bryan-College Station Eagle.

One affected A&M senior, who asked that his name not be used, said he fears he may have to repeat all his teaching this summer or next year.

The student said A&M has offered its students a refund on their tuition from this semester. He said he knows of none of the 18 who have accepted the offer.

Wood said it was clearly explained to all colleges that no student who had not already passed the test should start a student-teaching program in the spring of 1987.

Sadie Hawkins Day is celebrated on the first Saturday after Nov. 11. This year it will be on Nov. 14.

New pro basketball league is proposed

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Basketball fans weary of the pound-it-inside strategy and 7-footers whose only shot is a dunk have a hope on the horizon.

Bob Cousy, the prototype performer of the behind-the-back dribble and pass as a star with the Boston Celtics, is planning the International Basketball Association. IBA players will be no taller than 6-foot-4 and the superstars will be the little guys in the backcourt.

"This league is designed for the Tyrone Bogues-Billy Donovan type," Cousy said. "In fact, if we were starting now, we would immediately put an offer on the table to attract Bogues and Donovan, who are big names right now."

The 5-3 Bogues was a sensation at Wake Forest and last year's World Championship tournament in Spain, while the 5-11 Donovan sparked Providence to the NCAA basketball tournament's Final Four last month. Neither is believed to have much of a future in the NBA because of their size.

"Every major college team has that jitterbug guard," the 6-1 Cousy said. "There are an abundance of those types of guards every year and they basically have no place to play. We want to keep the major-league dreams alive for thousands of kids who aren't big enough for the NBA."

The IBA hopes to begin play in May 1988 and run a summer league through September each year.

Despite the league's name, none of the six teams on board so far are located outside the United States, although Canadian franchises are close to being added and a World Cup-style tournament is planned for the IBA champion against teams from other countries.

Cousy said the biggest marketing problem for the new league is its ability to sell itself.

"It has to be perceived as major league," said Cousy, who will be the IBA's director of basketball operations rather than its commissioner because of his broadcasting commitment to the Celtics. "Nothing in this country can make it big without that perception. It has to be marketed and promoted with a major-league image. That includes staying at the right hotels and flying rather than taking buses."

The league currently has teams in New York, Chicago, Washington, Fresno, Los Angeles and Orange County, Calif. Cousy said play would begin with 12 franchises.

"The NBA is at its zenith and we can't kid ourselves that we'll overshadow it," Cousy said. "But we have to overcome the stigma that anything that's not the NBA is minor league."

Conferences have option to move it back 9 inches

3-point goal to stay same distance

By AUSTIN WILSON
AP Sports Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The NCAA basketball rules committee says the 3-point shot will remain at the same distance for next year, although conferences have the option of experimenting by moving the bonus line back nine inches.

"The 3-point rule did exactly what it was intended to do," rules committee secretary Ed Steitz said Wednesday in announcing the decision. He said the 3-point shot increased scoring, opened up the game and reduced rough play under the boards.

The decision to keep the line at 19 feet, 9 inches from the basket was reached in an all-day session of the rules committee on Tuesday. Committee members left before Wednesday's announcement, and Steitz would not disclose the vote breakdown on any of the decisions.

One of the coaches most outspoken in his opposition to the 3-point rule was Indiana's Bobby Knight. He said he didn't like the rule when it was implemented and still didn't like it even after the decisive role the 3-point shot played in his team's victory over Syracuse in college basketball's championship game Monday night.

"I'll bet that if Steve Alford had four more years, Bobby would like it," Steitz said Wednesday.

Alford, a 50 percent shooter from beyond the 3-point line for the season, hit seven of 10 from 3-point range in Indiana's 74-73 victory over Syracuse.

Steitz said support for the 3-pointer was overwhelming, according to a late-season poll of coaches. Of the 1,448 coaches who returned their questionnaires, 80 percent favored keeping the 3-point shot. Of those in favor, 35 percent wanted it kept at its present distance, and 36 percent preferred moving it back nine inches, to the distance used in international play.

Three changes were voted in for next season, Steitz said. The most obvious change involves intentional fouls.

"All intentional fouls will carry a two-shot penalty plus possession of the ball," he said. Currently, an intentional foul carries a two-shot penalty, but the offending team gains possession of the ball.

Another change permits calling a technical foul on the coach if any of his players leave the bench to take part in a fight on the court.

The third change reduces the penalty for erroneously questioning a scoring or timing decision. Currently, a coach can be called for a technical foul if he questions a decision that is deemed correct. The change calls for charging his team with a timeout.

Other proposed changes with which conferences may experiment this year, Steitz said, are:

— Making all substitutes report to the scorer from a box drawn directly in front of the scorer's table.

— Cutting off the bottom foot of the backboard for safety.

— Reducing the jurisdiction of game officials to 20 minutes before tipoff, instead of the current 30 minutes.

— Assessing a team with a five-second violation for failing to resume play promptly after the end of a timeout.

Players have claimed collusion by owners

A.L. East feels effects of free agency

By Murray Olderman

Collusion (as the players claim) or not ("Who, me?" ask the owners), the American League East in 1987 has been feeling the effects of free agency.

Boston the defending AL champion, worried over its free agent catcher, Rich Gedman. New York wondered about its free agent pitcher, Ron Guidry. And Detroit yearned for free agent catcher Lance Parrish, who fled to Philadelphia.

And those are the teams that finished 1-2-3 in 1986.

Here is the predicted order of finish in the AL East in 1987:

1. NEW YORK YANKEES The Bronx Bombers are set at every position but shortstop (likely Wayne Tullison) and catcher (perhaps Joel Skinner). Don Mattingly, Dave Winfield and Rickey Henderson are the multi-millionaire stars of the cast. Newly arrived Gary Ward is a DH.

Willie Randolph is the anchor at second base. Mike Pagliarulo and Dan Pasqua are corners. The Yankees, pitching a bit scarce last season, has been buoyed by Rick Rhoden, who looms as the ace. Hurlers Charlie Hudson and Ron Romanick also are new to pin stripes. Top pitcher Dennis Rasmussen is back. And skipper Lou Piniella has star-reliever Dave Righetti to bail them all out.

2. BOSTON RED SOX For AL champs who came within a strike of the World Series crown, the Sox are slightly unsettled.

Will his contract dispute hinder super ace Roger Clemens? Who's going to catch? Can Bill Buckner's aching ankles survive another season? Is Dave Henderson, despite post-season heroics, the man to play center field?

But manager John McNamara hasn't despaired. Not with bats like those wielded by Wayne Boggs, Jim Rice, Dwight Evans, Don Baylor and Marty Barrett. And he has a good staff behind Clemens: Bruce Hurst, Oil Can Boyd, Al Nipper.

3. CLEVELAND INDIANS Yeah, Cleveland. That's no typo. It's been years since the Tribe rated this high a ranking. It's been years since they've had hitting talent like Joe Carter, Mel Hall, Brett Butler, Cory Snyder, Julio Franco, Brook Jacoby, Tony Bernard, Pat Tabler and Andre Thornton. All have 300 capability, with power.

Manager Pat Corrales knows he needs pitching though. Otherwise, why would Phil Niekro, 48, still float his knucklers? Hard-thrower Greg Swindell, 22, is the type to lead an Indian charge. Tom Candiotti won 16 last year. Ernie Camacho heads the bullpen. The catching is bolstered by ex-Oriole Rick Dempsey.

4. TORONTO BLUE JAYS Start with perhaps the best outfield in baseball. George Bell, Jesse Barfield, Lloyd Moseby. Add possibly the premier all-around shortstop, Tony Fernandez. Toss in three sterling starters

Dave Stieb, Jim Clancy, Jimmy Key. Add an excellent bullpen with Tom Henke and Mark Eichhorn.

Manager Jimmy Williams' crew would seem to be primed. But Stieb slumped in '86. And a new second baseman and a DH are needed. The catching is thin behind Ernie Whitt, and third base is up in the air. The Jays have just enough question marks to rule them out.

5. DETROIT TIGERS This team has very much the same outlook as Toronto. Sparky Anderson can call on baseball's newest millionaire and most productive pitcher, Jack Morris, a top double-play combo, Alan Trammell and Lou Whitaker, and an awesome slugger, Kirk Gibson.

But he may not have the pieces to revive memories of '84. The big loss was Lance Parrish. Travel-worn Mike Heath tries to fill the void. Center fielder Chet Lemon has slumped offensively. Dan Petry has lost his pitching stride. Willie Hernandez isn't a sure stopper now. And Darrell Evans is approaching 40.

6. BALTIMORE ORIOLES The Ripkens rule now. Cal Sr. manages. Cal Jr. stars at short. And there's a chance Billy Ripken will play second, too. After a disastrous last place finish — forcing Earl Weaver to bow out — the Orioles have made some moves. They signed World Series hero Ray Knight to clear the old muddle at third base, they acquired catcher Terry Kennedy, and they picked up infielder Rick Burleson. They also called up outfielder Ken Gerhart.

But the old pitching reliables — Mike Boddicker, Mike Flanagan and Scott MacGregor — are fraying. (And Storm Davis was the price for Kennedy.) Aging outfielders Fred Lynn and Lee Lacy are on the edge, too. What's really needed right now is a huge season from first baseman Eddie Murray.

7. MILWAUKEE BREWERS The biggest trivia question in baseball is to name the Brewer manager. Tom Trebelhorn. He takes over a club in transition. Cecil Cooper has been relegated to DH. Robin Yount's shoulder makes the switch from short to outfield permanent. And Paul Molitor is on the downgrade.

The quest for help has led to Greg Brock, a first baseman with HR power who may thrive in his new city, and to an exciting rookie catcher, B.J. Surhoff. The starting pitching is 20-game winner Teddy Higuera. That's it. Juan Nieves had flashes of promise as a rookie. The relief work of Mark Clear and Dan Plesac is adequate. Like Trebelhorn, the Brewers will need time to find their way around.

Griffith rallies Jazz over Spurs

Davis, Nance lead Suns over Rockets

By The Associated Press
Phoenix Suns interim head Coach Dick Van Arsdale says a win is a win, even if this one seemed a little tainted.

Walter Davis scored 35 points and Larry Nance had 10 of his 26 in the fourth period as Phoenix held on to defeat the Houston Rockets 117-104 in an NBA game Wednesday night.

The Rockets, who have already clinched a Western Conference playoff berth, elected to sit out All-Star center Akeem Olajuwon for the final 8:31 with the game on the line.

"I felt at the time that he had put in the time we wanted him to," said Houston Coach Bill Fitch. "If we had been at home, I'd have done the same thing. I played everybody. I'd rather find out in Phoenix than three weeks from now if we're not ready for the playoffs."

"I'm not sure we can play in the playoffs with the 12 players we have now. It would have made me happy if we had a found a star out there," Fitch added. "The more I go in the laboratory and look, the more I'll learn and as long as I've got the time to spot people, I will."

The Suns, still in the chase for the eighth and final Western Conference playoff berth, led 88-84 after the third quarter thanks to 15 points from Davis, which offset 13 by Olajuwon.

Eight points from Nance and three from Davis put Phoenix ahead 107-98 with 3:42 remaining in the game.

The Rockets closed the gap to 109-104 on Allen Leavell's 3-point goal with 1:56 left before the Suns reeled off the final eight points, with Davis accounting for five of them — the last on a three-point play with 54 seconds to go.

Nance also had 10 rebounds, seven assists and four blocked shots — all game highs. Mike Sanders finished with 12 points — 10 coming in the second quarter — while rookie Kenny Gattison had 11 and Ed Pinckney 10 as Phoenix beat the Rockets for only the fourth time in the last 14 meetings.

Olajuwon paced Houston with 25 points. Jim Petersen added 20, Rodney McCray 14 and Ralph Sampson 12.

The score was tied 33-33 after the first period before the Suns opened the second quarter with a 9-0 run en route to a 60-55 halftime lead.

In other NBA games, it was Indiana 99, Chicago 94; Utah 107, San Antonio 104; Boston 103, Washington

86; New Jersey 121, New York 120; Philadelphia 108, Cleveland 99; and Milwaukee 104, Atlanta 92.

Jazz 107, Spurs 104
Utah Jazz Coach Frank Layden's halftime prediction turned out to be true, but his team had to come from behind to make it happen.

"I told the guys at halftime that we had to hold them to 105 to win," Layden said Wednesday night after the Jazz defeated the San Antonio Spurs, 107-104, in an NBA game.

"We lost our play a couple of times, but we managed to get it back," Layden said.

The Jazz trailed San Antonio, 64-59, at halftime when Layden made his prediction.

Layden also made the correct move when he didn't bench Darrell Griffith, who had scored only two points at the end of three quarters.

Griffith's 19-point outburst, including three 3-pointers, in the final period helped the Jazz secure the victory and move the Spurs closer to the brink of elimination from the NBA playoffs.

Utah was able to erase a 10-point Spurs lead in the final seven minutes.

Utah improved its record to 41-32. The Spurs dropped to 26-47.

Karl Malone's layup with 18 seconds to play put Utah on top for good at 105-104. It was the first Utah lead since early in the first quarter.

Malone finished with 26 points for the Jazz.

Walter Berry and Artis Gilmore scored 21 points each for San Antonio.

Utah center Mark Eaton, the top shot blocker in the league, clinched the victory when he rejected a one-handed jumper by the Spurs' Berry with seven seconds remaining.

Alvin Robertson's 3-point attempt at the buzzer rimmed the basket and fell out.

Pacers 99, Bulls 94
Now that the Indiana Pacers have clinched their first NBA playoff spot since 1981, they want to take the next step.

The Pacers beat Chicago 99-94 Wednesday night for their sixth straight victory, moments after mathematically clinching a postseason berth when Cleveland lost to Philadelphia.

Indiana is in sixth place in the Eastern Conference, one game ahead of Chicago and Washington, who also have clinched playoff spots.

Celtics 103, Bullets 86
Larry Bird scored 30 points and added 17 rebounds and 15 assists, both season highs, and Boston held visiting Washington to 34 points in the second half.

The Bullets, who have scored just 161 points in their last two games, clinched a playoff berth because Cleveland, ninth in the Eastern Conference, also lost.

76ers 108, Cavaliers 99
Charles Barkley had 25 points and 17 rebounds as Philadelphia eliminated Cleveland from playoff consideration.

Roy Hinson scored 22 points, Julius Erving added 20 and Steve Colter had 10 assists as the 76ers handed the Cavaliers their fifth loss in six games.

Nets 121, Knicks 120
Buck Williams scored 10 of his 26 points in the fourth quarter, including a tip-in with four seconds left, lifting New Jersey over New York.

New York got a career-high 34 points from Trent Tucker.

Bucks 104, Hawks 92
Ricky Pierce scored 12 of his 22 points as Milwaukee overcame a nine-point halftime deficit by outscoring Atlanta 27-15 in the third quarter.

Dominique Wilkins, the NBA's second-leading scorer, had 20 points and hit just seven of 24 shots from the field.

Could overtake Angels, Rangers in A.L. West this year

Royals got rich, complacent in 1986

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

The Kansas City Royals admit it. After winning the 1985 World Series, they got rich — and complacent.

The result was a 76-86 record and third-place finish in the American League West, their worst since 1974.

"A lot of guys, not just me, had off-years," Bret Saberhagen said. Saberhagen, the 1985 Cy Young winner with a 20-6 record and 2.87 earned run average, went 7-12 with a 4.15 ERA and shoulder problems.

The Royals, who have won the West six of the last 10 years, headed back toward the top during the winter. After leading the league in ERA but ranking 12th in hitting, they got Danny Tartabull and Juan Beniquez to improve their offense.

That may be enough to enable Manager Billy Gardner, who has taken over fulltime for Dick Howser, and the Royals to overtake defending champion California and runner-up Texas.

Texas could wind up second again, followed by California, Minnesota, Oakland, Seattle and Chicago.

Kansas City Royals

The Royals, accustomed to second-half surges, could not muster one last season. Instead, slowed by injuries and mentally drained by Howser's brain cancer, they faded.

Saberhagen, Danny Jackson (11-12, 3.20 ERA), Mark Gubicza (12-6) and Charlie Leibrandt (14-11) are the best Big Four in the league, and the Royals got Rick Anderson from the New York Mets as a fifth starter. But, to be most effective, they need Dan Quisenberry to rebound after a season in which he temporarily lost his stopper role, managed 12 saves — albeit in fewer chances — and did not lead the league for the first time since 1981. Bud Black (5-10, 3.20) will begin the season in bullpen, where he was most of last season.

George Brett (.290, 16 home runs, 73 RBI) can hit better. Steve Balboni (29 HR, 88 RBI) returned to Kansas City after prolonged contract talks about his suspect back. DH Hal McRae slumped and is now a player-coach.

Willie Wilson (.269, 34 stolen bases) is still in center field. Tartabull (.270, 25 HR, 96 RBI as a rookie) was acquired from Seattle without giving up a front-line player. Bo Jackson, with a perfect body, amazing speed and monstrous home runs, may join them in the outfield; if not, Kansas City got Beniquez (.300) from Baltimore for two minor-leaguers.

Gardner, nicknamed "Slick" for his pool-shooting talent in college, tells jokes to his players. They need something light after feeling the pain of Howser's aborted comeback in the spring.

Texas Rangers

Manager Bobby Valentine and General Manager Tom Grieve hoped a youth-dominated team, especially on the mound, would work. Texas pitchers led the majors in walks and wild pitches, a sign of inexperience, but the positive results were overwhelming.

The Rangers went from 62-99 and seventh place to 87-75 and second. Only 28 teams in history have jumped that many places in one season, but 20 of them had worse records the following year.

Starters Bobby Witt (11-9), Edwin Correa (12-14, who will not pitch on Friday nights and Saturday afternoons because of religious beliefs), Jose Guzman (9-15) and Mike Loynd (.22) all begin the season at 23 years old or under. Knuckleballer Charlie Hough, 39, was 17-10.

Pete Incaviglia (30 HR, 88 RBI) went from college to the majors and, combined with Ruben Sierra (16 HR, 55 RBI) can offset the loss of free agent Gary Ward. Pete O'Brien (.290, 23 HR, 90 RBI) and Larry Parrish (28 HR, 94 RBI) produce runs.

California Angels

Manager Gene Mauch and the Angels got within one strike of their first World Series last October. Even with good pitching and a new look, California won't get that close again for awhile.

Reggie Jackson, Bobby Grich and Rick Burleson are gone. Free agent catcher Bob Boone is unsigned but is unlikely to return because the Angels got Butch Wynegar from the Yankees for Ron Romanick. Mike Witt (18-10, 2.84 ERA) got some attention, along with Kirk McCaskill (17-10), 33-year-old John Candelaria (10-2) and 42-year-old Don Sutton (15-11). Donnie Moore (21 saves) needs to stay healthy.

Wally Joyner (.290, 22 HR, 100 RBI) finished second to Jose Canseco as AL Rookie of the Year, and was bitter about it. Joyner is over that, as well as the staph infection that slowed him in the second half and put him out of the playoff less to Boston. Doug DeCinces (26 HR, 96 RBI) and Brian Downing (20 HR, 95 RBI) will keep driving in runs, while veterans George Hendrick and Ruppert Jones and rookies Devon White and Mark Ryal compete for one outfield job and a spot as Reggie's replacement as DH.

Minnesota Twins

The Twins, 71-91 in 1986, got a lot better when they acquired reliever Jeff Reardon from Montreal for Neal Heaton. Reardon had 35 saves; Minnesota relievers had 24.

But new Manager Tom Kelly may not get to use Reardon as much as he wants.

Frank Viola (16-13) and Bert Blyleven (17-14) are the only solid starters. Mike Smithson, Mark Portantano and Allan Anderson fill out the rotation.

Kirby Puckett, at 5-foot-8, added power to his repertoire (.328, 31 HR, 96 RBI, 20 stolen bases) and will bat third instead of leadoff. Gary Gaetti (.287, 34 HR, 108 RBI), Kent Hrbek (29 HR, 91 RBI) and Tom Brunansky (23 HR, 75 RBI) also play longball.

The Twins hit 196 home runs, two behind Detroit for the major-league lead. But Minnesota's total is not because it plays in the Metrodome. Stats keep showing the ballpark, incorrectly labeled the Homerodome, increases the number of doubles, not homers.

Oakland Athletics

Reggie Jackson is home again, and so was Vida Blue before his abrupt retirement. It's back-to-tradition time in Oakland, where the team is officially the Athletics, not the A's.

There is new excitement this spring, but it could be a long summer without any pitching.

Canseco (.240, 33 HR, 117 RBI) along with the DH platoon of Jackson (18 HR, 58 RBI) and Ron Cey (13 HR) can drive in Alfredo Griffin (.285, 33 SB) and Carney Lansford (.284, 19 HR, 72 RBI).

Pitching, though, is a major problem for the team that tied Kansas City for third place in 1986. Joaquin Andujar (12-7) and Moose Haas (7-2) are hurt. That leaves Dave Stewart, Jose Rijo, Curt Young and Chris Codiroli for the rotation. Bruce Tanner and Gene Nelson, acquired from the White Sox, will find spots.

Seattle Mariners

A sign at their spring training site read "Seattle Mariners — 1987 World Champions." That may be the only sign of improvement for the Mariners this year, especially if they keep giving away young players like Tartabull rather than finding a way to pay them. Seattle traded Tartabull for pitcher Scott Bankhead (8-9), outfielder Mike Kingery (.258) and young pitcher Steve Shields, and also sent its best reliever, Matt Young, to Los Angeles for Dennis Powell (2-7). Why?

Manager Dick Williams may soon lose patience, as might his few good players. Phil Bradley (.310, 50 RBI, 21 SB) is in unheralded All-Star. Ken Phelps and his good home-run ratio (24 HR in 344 at-bats) may get a full-time chance. Pitchers Mark Langston (12-14) and Mike Moore (11-13) need consistency.

Chicago White Sox

The White Sox keep making changes, and keep getting worse. Most agree, though, getting rid of flamboyant-but-flopping General Manager Ken Harrelson was a good idea.

Manager Jim Fregosi and GM Larry Humes, both in their first full seasons, say Chicago will get better in time, which may be awhile.

Harold Baines (.296, 21 HR, 88 RBI) and Greg Walker (.277, 13 HR, 51 RBI before his third wrist injury midway through the season) remain bright spots. The White Sox want Gary Redus, acquired from Philadelphia for Joe Cowley, to bat leadoff; so did the Phillies and Cincinnati.

Floyd Bannister (10-14), Richard Dotson (10-17), Jose DeLeon and Neil Allen form the rotation. They need to be consistent and better, and stopper Bob James needs to rebound.

NBA expansion decision expected by April 22

NEW YORK (AP) — Miami, Minneapolis and Orlando are considered to be the frontrunners for expansion of the 23-team NBA, with a final decision expected no later than April 22.

Groups in those three cities, plus Charlotte, N.C., Toronto and Anaheim, Calif., are hoping to be designated for a pro basketball franchise.

The league thus far has made no promises about the number of new teams it will accept or when it will accept them. The NBA's expansion committee was expected to issue a report today.

League spokesman Brian McIntyre said once the report was made there would be an announcement dealing with expansion, but he would not say if the cities to be recommended for franchises, if any, would be named at that time.

McIntyre said any formal action by the league would be taken at a board of governors meeting April 22 at New York.

The Miami Herald reported Wednesday that Miami, Minneapolis and Orlando are generally considered the leading candidates if the NBA decides to expand. The paper said that Miami is expected to be granted the first franchise, for the 1988-89 season.

The league has said only that it hopes to expand by the 1990-91 season. The Miami group is headed by Zev Bufman, a theatrical producer, and includes Billy Cunningham, former coach of the Philadelphia 76ers, and Lewis Schaffel, former general manager of the New Jersey Nets. It hopes to field a team called the Miami Heat to play in a 15,000-seat arena in downtown Miami that is already under construction.

Minneapolis has been without a team since the Lakers left for Los Angeles 30 years ago. That group is headed by Mary Wolfenson and Harvey Ratner, Twin Cities businessmen who say they plan to build a new arena after beginning play in the Hubert H Humphrey Metrodome. League officials are not enthusiastic about the Metrodome because it takes two days to convert it for basketball from football or baseball use. But officials in nearby St. Paul and Bloomington have threatened to stall groundbreaking on a Minneapolis arena, citing too much competition for too small an area.

The Orlando group is headed by Pat Williams, former general manager of the Philadelphia 76ers. Orlando has the nickname Magic, down payments on about 14,000 season tickets and is ready to break ground for a 16,930-seat arena if it is granted a franchise.

Leisure lying his way to top

LOS ANGELES (AP) — David Leisure may be the only actor who's been caught lying so often on television that it could make him a star.

Leisure is the one who tells those whoppers as Joe Isuzu on the Isuzu automobile commercials. He declares with snake-oil sincerity that the Isuzu "gets 94 miles per gallon city, 112 highway" as a disclaimer flashes, "He's lying."

"There's sort of a delayed reaction," said Leisure. "You hear what he says, but in the back of your mind you say, 'Wait a minute. I get a free house and they're selling the cars for $6?'"

He's also known in the East for his Joe Friday parody for Bell Atlantic Yellow Pages commercials. And as the bald-headed Krishna in the movie "Airplane."

NBC has Leisure under contract and you can see him this Monday as a bookie named Nick the Fish on "ALF." ALF runs up a big gambling debt trying to help his friends pay off their mortgage. When Nick comes to collect, ALF panics.

He also stars in "The Empty

Nest," a spinoff pilot from "The Golden Girls."

Leisure's not the only actor whose career has got a boost from commercials. Sandy Duncan, Pamela Austin, Eugene Roche, Rodney Allen Rippey and Mason Reese have all been noticed while doing commercials.

"This is like a second career for me," said Leisure. His first acting career went nowhere. "When I was about 23 I moved to Los Angeles to become a movie star and disappeared. That was in 1973. I didn't get an acting job until 1979. That was in 'Airplane.' The next thing after that was a commercial in 1983."

His first commercial was for a chain of pizza parlors.

"I got tired of starving," said Leisure. "I said, who do I know who's making a living as an actor? And what are they doing? So I took a commercials workshop. They wanted me to be animated and goofy. I'd been doing that since I was 15."

"Everyone in a commercial is a character. It's very technical work because you have 25 seconds to do what you have to do. And you have to be interesting, hit your mark and look like you're having a great time doing it. Then do it a hundred times in a row."

For the Isuzu commercials, he must also pause so they can insert the "He's lying" disclaimer after each remark.

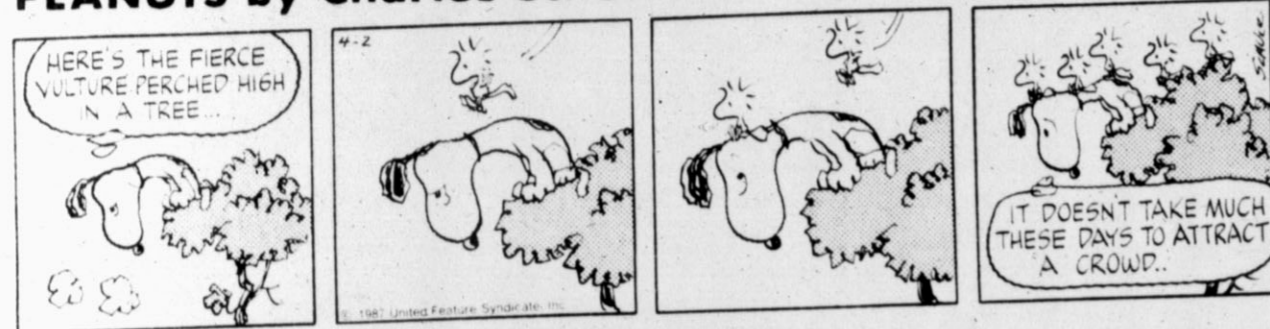

Leisure got the job at a regular audition, and said it looked like just another job, since it was for two local spots. "They did give me a great compliment," he said. "They said, 'We never thought it was going to be funny again.' I guess they had been looking at guys all day. I said, 'Thank you, you made my year.'"

After that, Isuzu decided it wanted more commercials. By that time Leisure had broken an ankle ice skating with his 7-year-old daughter, Maya. He is now divorced. He did the next commercials with his foot in a cast, including the one atop the 1,800-foot Castle Rock near Moab, Utah, in which he insists he drove the car there.

Mary Baker Eddy was the founder of Christian Science.

Police investigating violence

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Police in Mexico's southernmost state investigated the shooting death of one teacher and the wounding of two others in a clash between rival factions of a national education union.

Radio stations in Chiapas state, where union trouble has been growing for weeks, repeatedly broadcast a message Wednesday from Gov. Absalon Castellanos Dominguez vowing, "I will not permit the person or persons responsible for the killing to go unpunished."

The confrontation Monday was the first violence in the war of words between two Chiapas factions of the National Union of Education Workers, a powerful organization of 1.2 million members.

One faction, the Revolutionary Vanguard, has close ties with federal education authorities and is stronger nationwide but represents a minority in Chiapas, claiming only about 15 percent of the approximately 41,000 members in the state.

The remaining 35,000 union members in the state identify with a dissident, self-styled "democratic movement" that seeks a stronger voice in the union's national affairs and more independence from the federal government.

The clash broke out Monday in the main plaza of downtown Tuxtla Gutierrez, the Chiapas state capital, where a group of the dissidents was ending the 39th day of a strike. The strike has closed many schools in the state although members of the Revolutionary Vanguard have continued to teach and to draw their federal paychecks.

According to the dissidents' version, about 60 members of the Revolutionary Vanguard passed through the plaza and began taunting the strikers by waving their paychecks.

The dissidents said the strikers began chasing the Vanguard members and followed them to a home where, they said, other Vanguard members were waiting with rocks, sticks and guns.

The strikers claim that the shots that hit their colleagues were fired by members of the Vanguard. The dead teacher was 29-year-old Celso Wenceslao Lopez.

The Vanguard group's version contends that the strikers chased the Vanguard members, trying to steal from them an attache case containing paychecks worth about $10,000, and that each side attacked the other with various weapons.

About 3,000 members of the dissident faction returned to the plaza Tuesday afternoon to hear a mass for the dead teacher offered by Tuxtla Gutierrez Auxiliary Bishop Felipe Aguirre.

The dissidents denounced the national directors of the Revolutionary Vanguard as ultimately responsible for Lopez' death and said they would keep fighting to reduce the power of the government-allied faction.

Protest marches were also held in downtown Mexico City, where some of the Chiapas dissidents have been holding demonstrations.

The national union, which has traditionally suffered internal divisions nationwide, has offered no official comment on the case.

Mormon leader says

'Women should stay home'

By MICHAEL WHITE Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Just as the Mormon Church seemed to be accepting the notion of the working mother, church president Ezra Taft Benson surprised many when he told women they should stay at home and care for children.

Women in and out of the church condemned the declaration, saying the 87-year-old Benson, considered a prophet by the faithful, was out of step with the times and had added a burden of guilt to families with financial problems.

"I don't feel just because you're a working woman you can't be a good mother. The two are not incompatible," said Dolly Plumb, a Mormon Sunday School teacher and long-time aide to former Mayor Ted Wilson. "We're not living in the 19th century anymore."

Few Mormons believe that many of the 40 percent of the church's female members who are in the work force will forsake jobs and careers as a result of Benson's position.

"It's easier to deal with the guilt than to do without the income," said Carlfred Broderick, a Mormon and director of the Marriage and Family Therapy Center at the University of Southern California. "It is going to be an extremely wrenching experience for Mormon families to implement that teaching in their lives."

In his speech Feb. 22, Benson said a woman's primary responsibility is to bear and rear children. He also said young couples should not postpone having children because of money.

"The Lord clearly defined the roles of mothers and fathers in providing and rearing a righteous posterity," Benson said. "Contrary to conventional wisdom, a mother's calling is in the home, not in the marketplace."

The speech reflected a long-held doctrine of the 6.2 million-member Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. To support his position, Benson drew at length from statements by three of his predecessors, including Brigham Young's declaration that "it is the duty of every righteous man and woman to prepare tabernacles for all the spirits they can."

But Benson's remarks came at a time when many observers felt the church, which fought hard against passage of the Equal Rights Amendment during the early 1980s, was softening its attitude.

For instance, the faith's organization for women, the Relief Society, recently has catered more to the needs of working mothers and single women.

Sermons delivered during the church's twice-yearly general conferences have reflected a greater awareness of the changing family, and instruction manuals used in the all-male priesthood acknowledge that many Mormon families no longer fit the traditional mold.

Some of those apparent changes seemed to coincide with a 1981 church-sponsored study indicating nearly half of Mormon women will spend an "appreciable" portion of their adult lives single, 35 percent would see their marriages end in divorce, 11 percent would face early widowhood and 3 percent would never marry.

During heated debates in Britain's House of Commons, members of opposition parties may not step across the red lines — two sword lengths apart — in the chamber's carpet.

A One - Issue Candidate?

When it's all said and done, it comes down to just one issue -- The future of Hereford and how our City will approach it.

★ Hereford deserves City leaders who let the people know where they stand on the issues. I am not neutral on site characterization or location of a nuclear waste dump in this county. I oppose both.

★ It is certainly appropriate for city officials to take a stand on an issue which has such far-reaching impacts as the waste dump, and to speak in unison with the people. There's plenty of evidence to justify a stand against a threat to our people, resources and lifestyle.

- ★ City leaders should work to attract clean industries which will provide good jobs for qualified people.
- ★ It is the responsibility of City leaders to foster a climate of mutual respect among all peoples of Hereford.
- ★ All citizens should be represented in a fair and accessible manner.
- ★ Hereford can have unity through responsible leadership which is attentive to the people.

"I believe in Hereford. Our city has great potential in its fine people and rich resources. Hereford is my home. I don't want to see its strong potential squandered or to be 'neutral' about a future we should now be working to protect. It's time to stand up and be counted."

BILL NEELY

Noted author speaks to Lions Club members

Bill Neely, author of QUANNAH PARKER AND HIS PEOPLE, was guest speaker at the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Hereford Lions Club Wednesday at the Community Center.

Neely told briefly of his research in writing the book and showed slides about the life of the great Indian chief and some of his friends. Neely, a former teacher, lives in Amarillo but grew up between Tula and Silverton.

After the noon meeting, Neely autographed some of his books for those interested in purchasing a copy. His book is also available in Hereford at the Diller-A-Dollar Bookstop ($24.95). Charles Britten, program chairman, introduced the guest speaker.

Temple Abney, president, announced the Lions' annual election party has been scheduled for April 9 at 7 p.m. in the Community Center. Candidates for office include: President--John D. Bryant; president-elect--David Ruland and Benny Womble; first VP--Jerry Shipman and K. Don Spurgin; second VP--Jay Eubanks and Robert Mercer; third VP--Jeryl Baker and Stay Fraye Jr.; secretary--Larry Allen and Lewis Block; treasurer--Tommy

Faulty calendar to blame

SKAGWAY, Alaska (AP) — The term "Seward's folly" has taken on new meaning in this southeastern Alaska community, where municipal employees were given Monday off to celebrate "Seward's Day."

The holiday commemorates the date in 1867 that Secretary of State William Seward signed a treaty transferring Alaska from Russia to the United States. The purchase was derided then as "Seward's folly."

But Skagway goofed and celebrated Seward's Day prematurely. The rest of the state will observe it this Monday.

A faulty calendar was to blame, City Manager Tom Healy said Friday.

"We just looked at the calendar and it said March 23rd was Seward's Day," Healy said. "Not knowing better, we went ahead and took it off."

There wasn't much celebrating, anyway, he said. The community of 800 has only a dozen or so municipal employees, and had no formal Seward's Day observances planned.

Buyers target of IRS

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you're buying or selling a home, you may be affected by the federal government's newest effort to catch tax cheats.

Anyone who sells a home after Dec. 31, 1986, is required to file a report with the Internal Revenue Service. Any cost of filing the simple form — and there are reports some lawyers are charging as much as $150 — would have to be absorbed by the buyer or seller.

The IRS will match the form against the seller's tax return to determine if any taxable profit from the sale was reported as income.

The report was required by Congress as part of the tax overhaul enacted last year. The provision was approved after lawmakers were told the government is losing an estimated $700 million a year because many people who sell their homes never report the profits as taxable income.

The IRS issued temporary regulations Wednesday spelling out how the reports are to be filed. The agency said that at least for the time being, the reports will be required only on the sale of residential real estate involving four or fewer units.

That includes any sale involving a single house, townhouse, condominium unit, duplex, triplex or fourplex, as well as stock in a cooperative housing corporation.

Don Rocken, assistant to the IRS commissioner, said the agency is studying whether to extend the requirement to other real estate transactions. Smaller residential units are affected first because that is where the greatest potential for abuse lies, he said.

The home sale report must be made on a Form 1099, similar to those used by banks to report interest paid to a taxpayer. And the forms will be checked against tax returns, just as reports of interest and dividends have been for several years.

The new Form 1099 must contain the names of the seller and buyer, the seller's Social Security number, the sales price and date of the transaction.

As a rule, the report must be filed by the person responsible for closing the sale, usually a broker, title company or attorney. But in a case when no agent or broker is involved, the buyer could be liable for the report. The penalty for failing to file the report is $50; there is an additional $50 penalty for failing to give the seller a copy.

AREA CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP CONFERENCE

Jim Gilbert

Gilbert, an Evangelist/Songwriter from Tulsa, Oklahoma, is best known as the composer of the popular chorus "I LOVE YOU WITH THE LOVE OF THE LORD."

will be appearing
Thursday, April 2
& Friday, April 3 at 7:00 p.m.

at the Community Church
15th & Whittier 364-8866

An evangelist in both his music and preaching since age 18, he has ministered in more than three dozen countries on five continents. "We've presented the Gospel of Jesus Christ in every kind of setting," says Jim. "BBCTV in Britain, Alaskan logging camps, Shea Stadium in New York, the Russian 'underground.' I've slept on at least fifteen hundred different beds and floors, and I've been served everything from chicken heads to cow skin."

And how does Jim Gilbert describe himself? "I've learned that being a minister TO God is a higher calling than being a minister FOR Him. As long as God sees me as a worshipper, I don't really care how people label me."

Performance

Is often weighed best by those who know how heavy the job is.

He says,

At the risk of being accused of "buttering up" the mayor, we think a few words of commendation are in order for Mayor Wes Fisher for the manner in which he conducts the duties of his office.

In a considerable measure, the conduct of city commission meetings is the responsibility of Mayor Fisher, and we think he handles them exceptionally well. Observers who have been regular in attendance at city commission meetings know that any citizen who has something to bring before the commission, provided he makes the necessary arrangements for a place on the agenda, will get a full and courteous hearing.

The commission may or may not grant all requests made at the meetings, but it will hear out complaints or suggestions of citizens who come before it. Fisher presides in a business-like manner and the meetings are rarely lengthy (a major plus for reporters.)

Fisher also represents the city well at community functions and is an eloquent and well-versed speaker for the city he represents. For those who are not aware, the mayor is paid $50.00 a month. We'd say that's a real bargain for city taxpayers!
