By JIMMIE GILLENTE

It looks like Hereford is going to have a shoe store. At least the first steps have been taken in this direction and the building formerly occupied by the Candy Kitchen has been rented for this purpose. The owners have a store in Farmington, New Mexico, and are reported to be lined up with a large shoe manufacturer.

They said that they do not want any publicity now and that they will release complete details later. They did indicate, however, that they will put in a nice store with modern fixtures and a large line of shoes for men and women. Also indicated was the fact that rather than competing with present local firms they will compete more directly with Amarillo stores.

This has long been a loud squawking point on the part of Hereford women; a good store, properly stocked and merchandise should do well in the community.

Just had a telegram from Ben Ramsey, secretary of state, who said to cancel immediately publication of all Constitutional Amendments. He adds that the legislature has postponed the election date, and says further details will follow.

Francis Hardwick just rushed in to announce that within a few weeks he will have a "Shotgun Wedding" on the Star Theatre Stage. This, of course, has no connection with the wedding this week. Francis, who used to be a rancher, thinks up more stunts than any theatre man I ever saw. Wonder if he used to run his ranch the same way? Wonder if this newest, brain-storm will have the same effect as a forthcoming grand jury session?

Understand there is in the making a drastic change of management in one of Hereford's oldest business firms. This seems to be one of those "secrets" everyone knows and is talking about, but which you can't put in the paper.

Old Tack is trout fishing in Yellowstone—and complains because there is nothing to write about. Ernest Wade and I have talked the deal over and have decided that when a fisherman can't think of something to write or talk about—he's slipping as a fisherman. Homer Fox says if The Brand will send him to Yellowstone, he will turn in a full page every day. Where do these big newspapers get this stuff of sending people all over the world to write? Back when I was working on dailies and went anywhere, I always had to pay my own way—and generally got docked for "time off." Besides, the city editor held to the old newspaper rule that "newspaper people are not news" and the quickest way to get fired was to write something about yourself. That was in 1931 and 1932, back when you really worried about getting fired, too.

Well, I finally got into the weekly newspaper business so I could write about myself, and everything gets changed. These boys are getting trips all over the world. Me? I seldom have enough time to do any ordinary column.

Yes, sir. Things are changing, and fast.

George Willis, Sr. Long-Time Castro Resident Dies

Funeral services were held at the Church of Christ in Dimmitt on Tuesday of this week for George Lee Willis, long-time Castro County resident, who died on June 24 at Laurel Sanitarium, Glendale, California.

Mr. Willis was born near Cleburne on March 6, 1878, where he lived until his family moved to Oklahoma at the opening of the Indian Territory.

He was married in 1902 to Nancy E. Robinson at Cordell, Oklahoma, and the couple had four children, Irene, Allie Mae, Anita and G. L., Jr.

In 1917 the family moved to Castro County, where they have since made their home. Mr. Willis was engaged in farming and ranching. For the past two years, due to Mr. Willis' poor health, they have spent much time in California.

Mr. Willis was a member of the Church of Christ, and he and his wife were among the original members that helped establish the Church of Christ in Dimmitt.

Survivors are his wife, his daughters, Mrs. Leland C. Lee of Dimmitt, Miss-Ailie Mae Willis of Long Beach, California, and Mrs. C. L. Morris of Hereford; his son, G. L. Willis, Jr. of Dimmitt, and seven grand children; also one sister, Mrs. W. H. Bills of Clinton, Oklahoma and one brother, J. H. Willis of Mountain Park, Oklahoma.

The parents of Mrs. Dale Kelley, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Sanders, spent from Monday till Wednesday visiting in the Kelly home in Hereford.

Same American Ideals

Tomorrow, for the 173 consecutive year, the United States of America, will acknowledge with a ringing salute the anniversary of the birth of a nation.

It is not the same United States it was when Thomas Jefferson white-wigged and solemn, penned his famous words:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident; that all men are created equal, they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights and among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

It is not the same country it was when Abraham Lincoln, thoughtfully declared, "Four score and seven years ago our forefathers brought forth upon this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal."

It is not the same United States that Franklin D. Roosevelt spoke of when he said, "To sons of generations much is given, of some things much is expected. This generation has a rendezvous with destiny."

But though the land has changed and the people have changed, hobbies and entertainments and businesses are different, but the ideals are the same as ever. They must be. America has long been a land of free thought, strength, a home for the homeless, a champion for the minority, a synonym for opportunity.

And today, while the world cries for a leader, America rises above her fellow nations. They recognize her technocracy, her potentials. They know she has the strength and they hope she will find it in the ideals that made her strong, the vision to cope with this new day-dawning. It is these dreams we affirm with the celebration of each Independence Day.

Precautions Could Halt Vandalism

News items show that the citizens of this community, long free from vandalism and pilfering, are today faced with an outbreak which demands action. County and city police, although adequate in number, have apparently been stumped through lack of clues and information. Four robberies in homes, plus a bold filling station theft in recent weeks, should serve to put even the most careless of persons on guard.

Instead of jumping to place the blame on officials, people might well start the practice of "locking the door before the horse is lost." Certainly such procedure would prove more effective in preventing property loss, and it might even furnish the officers additional clues.

Leaving houses open and unprotected, like leaving the keys in an automobile, invites theft and burglary. If, in the face of common sense precautions, thefts continue to occur, it will then be time to call in one of those policemen who reads parking meters with a "six-gun."

IT'S ALWAYS FUN TO ### Talk About The Weather

It's just the heat; it's worth writing about because it's what everybody's thinking about. The recluse in the air conditioned room, he's thinking how lucky he is; the riveter, sweating under a broiling sun, he's thinking how unlucky he is and the average man, he's wishing summer were over.

They say that reaction to heat is largely psychological; well, we are hardly the ones to argue with the Ph.D.'s, but it seems to us there is little psychology in beads of perspiration, sticky shirts and thermometer readings.

It's a modern world, all right, but just before man gets to feeling too cocky about devising a way to cut 60 acres of wheat a day, or televising world championship fights, or creating an atom bomb, a heat wave comes along to prove that while man is sure getting smart, he's not yet as smart as nature.

A designer dreams up cooler fabrics, but some of us can't afford them. An engineer works out air conditioning, but it gives some people hay fever, and in the end there's no substitute for a cooling breeze and a slice of cold watermelon.

The smart ones of course just make the best of a hot situation. They try out all the cooling-off methods, don't flirt with heat stroke or prostration and bend their wills to suit nature, waiting until the hot days move on and some other weather moves in. But when its hot in Texas, it sure is hot, isn't it? Whew!

Sunday Brand Observes Birthday

Born on the Fourth of July, The Sunday Brand made its appearance in the homes and on the streets of Hereford just one year ago.

It has been a long year with many headaches for Brand employees. New problems came thick and fast in the form of city delivery, additional production, balance of news presentation and advertising, increased costs, inadequate personnel, lack of newsprint, and literally hundreds of other developments.

Somehow, we managed to survive, however, and we feel that Hereford's newest journalistic offspring has made a lot of friends. Statewide recognition as one of Texas' top newspapers saved our ego somewhat, and today we are mighty happy to present Volume II, issue I, of The Sunday Brand.

It is a pleasure, therefore, to say, "Thanks" to all of you who have been so considerate and cooperative, and to pledge anew the fundamentals of courageous, honest journalism which we promised you in our first edition on July 4, 1948.

A FEW THOUGHTS

About Stories For Children

No, there isn't any Santa Claus. Fairies don't exist. Genii never were. And those princesses were never so fair and lily-like as they were said to be.

Strange though it may seem, many of the things we learn to love and admire as children sooner or later must be recognized as lies and branded as falacies. Can you remember the heart-aches which followed authentic revelation that there really are no fairies?

The very people who are prone to scream the loudest about comic books—and certainly they are justified in many instances—will smugly gather little Aggie and young Wilbur on their knees and read for hours literally chapters of "gullywush" without thought of consequences.

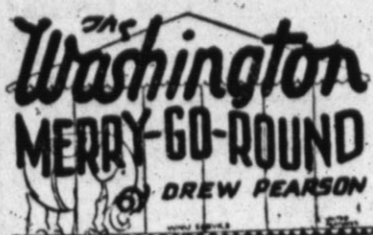

For instance, take an old favorite, "Jack and the Bean Stalk." Our hero, a modest youth, started out by making a very poor business deal—a whole series of poor business deals, in fact. Young Jack wanders into a streak of luck, however, and his poor business judgement (What could be more un-American!) is rewarded with a handful of magic beans (What could be more impossible!). Instead of teaching the American principle of hard work, Jack's mother becomes so angry that she throws the beans out of a window and they begin growing. Our story up to this point has based success entirely upon foolhardiness, laziness, and chance. Now it really goes to work in earnest. A little boy, by all standards a sub-normal dimwit, is allowed by his mother to start out on an impossible task; a trip certainly more hazardous than walking across a traffic laden street. Jack arrives at the home of the Giant, where his safety is secured only through the disloyalty and inferred lies of an employee. With a background of this sort it is not surprising to see Jack succeed again; this time through outright theft. In conclusion, Jack returns home with his ill-gotten gains, loitering along the way only long enough to commit murder, and never stopping once to consider courts or trials. What happens? They live happily ever after.

This story is just one example in scores of children's stories which are read day after day and night after night in homes all over America. They are the kind of tripe that dotting grandmother swells with pride in sending little Suzie on her birthday; they are what the beary-eyed Daddy generally picks for Junior after the convention closes and just before he catches the train.

In contrast, Walt Disney's writers and artists took another old favorite, "Chicken Licken" and transformed the basic story into one of the strongest anti-fascist pieces the country has ever seen.

Unquestionable is the fact that little minds, especially up to six years of age, are highly impressionable. Young children grasp and retain many fundamentals. If America is to remain the world's leading nation it seems, therefore, that the literature for children should be improved and streamlined with American teachings; free men should replace the elfs and fairies, hard work might supplant the factor of chance and even the dictatorial knights and kings could abdicate in favor of Senators and Presidents.

People, too, should cooperate by considering and carefully checking the reading material placed before their children. Just because a story is old is certainly no proof that it is adaptable today in a modern world more fantastic than the stories.

Marshall Plan

WHEN Washington dignitaries gathered at dinner to commemorate the Marshall plan probably only one man present really knew how the Marshall plan got started—President Truman. And not even Truman knew or remembered all the details.

The birth of the Marshall plan—believe it or not—was influenced by the illness of Senator Bilbo of Mississippi. Furthermore, this plan—now a great force in revitalizing Europe—was a complete accident as far as the White House was concerned.

President Truman had been scheduled to make a speech at Cleveland, Miss., in the winter of 1947 and called in Dean Acheson, then under-secretary of state, to ask if he could get him out of a jam. He explained that to please some of his wife's friends he had promised to speak in Cleveland, that the folks in Mississippi had made elaborate preparations.

But, he said, he couldn't go. Senator Bilbo was back in the state, ill, after the Senate's refusal to seat him, and it would be political suicide, Truman felt, if he set foot inside the state at that time. He had written his Mississippi friends, he said, asking if they would accept a cabinet member instead, and they replied that they were greatly interested in foreign affairs and the only man they would take as a substitute was acting secretary of state Dean Acheson.

Acheson of course promptly accepted the President's personal plea. In fact, too, Truman had been eager to make a major speech. But, he warned, it would be an explosive one.

Wallace's Mistake

So, having in mind Henry Wallace's famous speech on Russia which was officially cleared with the White House—but which Truman himself didn't read, Acheson took great pains to have his speech carefully examined.

His strategy was to have so many cabinet experts read it that it would not be sent to Senators Tom Connally and Arthur Vandenberg whom he suspected might pour on the cold water.

The perusers of the speech later held a meeting. Since there was nothing in the speech about bases, the army-navy had no objection. Dr. Nourse suggested a few changes of figures, which were accepted. Secretary of commerce Harriman, who had been talking to Acheson privately, was enthusiastic, while Truman was delighted that Acheson was getting him out of his Mississippi speaking jam.

The British press, however, played up the story big. And as a result Scotty Reston of the New York Times called on Acheson to ask whether this was a new American foreign policy.

"You had better ask the White House," Acheson replied.

Planted Question

So, at the next White House press conference, Reston asked a carefully worded question as to whether the Cleveland, Miss., speech represented Acheson's views or the administration's views.

Truman, still full of gratitude, and recalling the army, navy, et al had approved the speech, replied that it represented administration policy.

A few days later, Acheson went to his chief, Secretary of State Marshall, and said in effect: "I have kicked a fairly important ball up in the air for you, but it's falling rapidly. How about catching it and scoring a touchdown?"

After the speech, Acheson picked up a suggestion by Senator Vandenberg that a committee of prominent Americans be appointed to push the idea. Truman didn't like the suggestion, but Acheson argued him into it.

"Here is a man who more than anything else wants to get the Republican nomination for President of the United States," he told Truman, in effect. "Of his other two rivals, Governor Dewey never says anything about anything, while Senator Taft never loses an opportunity to attack you on domestic issues and crab at you on foreign policy. Vandenberg has played the game very well on bipartisan policy, and you ought to agree to his idea in order to keep him sweet."

Hoover, Baruch Out

The President did agree, and a meeting was held to appoint members of a committee to serve under secretary of commerce Harriman. Vandenberg was present. Acheson said he didn't care who was on the committee just so long as Herbert Hoover and Bernard Baruch were not.

Vandenberg, however, looking over the suggested names, said he had nothing against them, but that what the committee needed was an elder statesman as chairman.

Where's the Old-Fashioned Fourth?

What ever happened to that good, old-time holiday when we used to watch the brightly uniformed band stride up Main Street playing a Sousa march, with the red-faced tuba player bringing up the rear? What ever became of those baseball games they used to play under the blazing sun, with a keg of beer on third base as standard equipment? Why don't we hear those speeches any more—those stirring orations sonorously proclaiming "the glory that is America"—before a straggling crowd, while the kids played tag and drank too much lemonade? And the fireworks that used to produce a chorus of "a-a-ah's"—they, too, have paled. For the Fourth of July parades and used to be seen on television. An automobile radio gives you a choice of oratory as you speed toward a cool resort. Skyrockets are insignificant compared to a war movie. No, the "Glorious Fourth" just ain't what it used to be.

SUNDAY'S CURRENT QUESTION:

The Fourth of July is one of our major national holidays. It recent years, due to concentrated harvest efforts, and to the many millions of accidents which have occurred as a result of celebrating, special observations of the day have become less frequent. Here are suggestions from those of Hereford's citizens about how to spend the day safely and still have fun:

Sheriff J. C. Reese: "For a safe and sane Fourth of July, I would remind everyone to be extremely cautious while driving on the highway. Recently we have had several accidents due to the extra harvest traffic. With trucks and combines covering both the highways and the country roads, careful driving is especially important. Of course the safest thing to do is enjoy the Fourth by staying close to home."

Marshall Formby: "Everybody should stay at home like they ought to—it's a good week end to rest. Of course if you have to go somewhere, you should take in a rodeo as I'm going to, with my eastern relatives. By all means stay away from firecrackers. Fireworks are very dangerous—there are too many eyes and limbs knocked out every year not to realize that I would definitely approve of a law prohibiting the sale of fireworks in the state of Texas, and I think it's a good idea that they can't be sold within the city limits."

W. J. Reeves: "The Fourth of July is a National Holiday, and I believe in it. I think we should observe it every year—in whatever way we choose. Picnics and outings are a good way to celebrate, and I think fireworks are part of the celebration. They are definitely a pleasure to the kids, and I don't know that they are any serious hazard if handled properly. If fireworks were a direct hazard, they would never pass inspection by the United States Research Laboratories. In order to be legally manufactured they would have to pass rigid tests—and since fireworks manufacturing companies are pretty big concerns, I imagine they are careful."

Mrs. Woodrow Ireland: "For spending the Fourth of July safely, it's best to stay at home. The Fourth is one of the worst of our major holidays, because it usually has to be celebrated in one day, rather than having several days as we do at Thanksgiving and Christmas. People have to jam their do at Thanksgiving and Christmas. People have to jam their fun into one day. For spending this holiday safely and sanely and still have fun, I suggest going swimming and getting a real cold watermelon to eat."

Mrs. B. H. Kirby: "The Fourth of July ought to be spent at home, where we can be safe from people who don't act as safe and sane. Everyone wants to go on a picnic or have something special on the fourth—the holiday itself suggests a picnic. But it is much safer to stay off the highways. I think fireworks are all right if the parents oversee them. Children of any age should not be allowed to handle firecrackers and the like themselves. They simply can't be trusted—I know from experience."

Mrs. R. E. Lingenfelter: "We are going to have a picnic in the backyard to entertain our son and his friends, and I imagine lots of other people in town have the same plan in mind. We decided we definitely didn't want to be on the highway—it's just too dangerous. I guess we will have a few fireworks, which we plan to use after dark out of town a little way. As a child, I thoroughly enjoyed fireworks, but since I've grown older I've become afraid of them. I'm afraid to have our little boy have crackers and torpedoes—children are careless, and the doctor has had too many cases of mutilated hands, etc. not to know what can happen. Parents should supervise the handling of fireworks if they are to be used."

HOMER FOX SAYS:

DID YOU KNOW...

Back in the "dust bowl days" when there wasn't anything going on but the rent and baseball—no one could pay the rent, so we just played baseball—one afternoon the Odd Fellows were battling it out with such heat that the sun was really coming down. Ted Young was catching for the Odd Fellows. Ted was a big man and the catchers outfit didn't make him any cooler. The game was pretty well on its way and the opposing team had a man on third base on the second pitch to the batter. Ted threw the ball back to infield and walked back to the pitcher long to get a drink of water, the runner on third just took his time and sandered across the plate. Ted just grinned and said, "Checks, I forgot all about that durned feller being on third."

Run across an old score card back in those days that was almost a two man team—Mr. John B. Albracht and Mr. J. A. Loewald, fathers. This was going ball club tough as a pig nose and plenty hard to beat, especially this line up—The old K. C. Club, as follows: C. J. Albracht, W. Albracht, J. Albracht, G. Albracht, Ed Loerwald, G. Loerwald, T. Loerwald, H. Loerwald, V. Stelzer, Catcher.

Bootleg Philosopher

(Editor's note: The Philosopher is writing something he knows very little about this week, most of it but not knowing anything about a subject doesn't get in his way).

Dear editor:

I was in town Saturday restin up my mind after a week's hard thinkin out here around Bootleg as there ain't nothin that will relax your mind like sittin around talkin to some of the merchants whose names I ain't callin, don't never get above the low water mark with them birds, intellectually speakin, in fact it's practically the same as goin to the court house in an election year and havin everybody grab your hand and agree with you without even knowin what you're sayin, and I heard a man remarkin on how much money the farmers have made in the past few years.

"Farmers have made more money than anybody in the past four years," this man said, sort of complainin about it.

It may be true, I don't know, but all I have to say is, if it's true, look how long it took us to do it.

Makin a profit for four years out of a life-time ain't nothin to get excited about, ain't no reason to start figurin up ways to put an end to the situation. Some folks always have considered a farmer's gettin ahead sort of sinful.

Most businesses I know anything about can go a month or two without makin a profit, maybe even six months or a year, and that's about the limit, then they're sunk, but you take farmers, they can go for years without makin a profit and still keep their heads above water.

Why, I know farmers who didn't even know they were supposed to make a profit until 1943, though if they come out with a whole pair of overalls and a renewed note at the end of the year, they was in fine shape.

Of course, things have been a little different the past four or five years, but I can't see just how much of a profit a farmer can make.

Farmers can rock along years not quite makin ends meet and other folks say, aw, if farmers went about things in a business-like manner they wouldn't be so bad off, it's their own fault the shape they're in, but let a farmer hit a good stretch and actually make a little money and the same people begin hollerin the farmers is gettin rich and holdin up the city people and something ought to be done about it.

However, if you want to know the truth, very few farmers have as much money as you town folks think, the same as very few of you town folks have as much money as each other thinks the other one has. The secrets a bank bookkeeper knows is tremendous.

Yours faithfully,

Building A Home In Mexico Is A Story In Itself

By MARGARET BARRETT

"Abi tiene su casa"—there you have your house—"my house is yours." That is a Spanish idiom comparable to our "come see me," and it's also the name of a book by Elsa Larralde recently published by the J. B. Lippincott Company.

Deciding to build a cottage in the tiny village of Acapantzingo outside Cuernavaca was a conscious decision on the part of Elsa Larralde, but becoming involved in the personal lives of the primitive villagers was something that just happened. While the little house is going up, dozens of human interest stories, rich in love, hate, fear, sorrow, joy—all the basic emotions of the human creature—unfold themselves before the author's eyes.

There was little Millo, Miss Larralde's nine-year-old gardener whose favorite playmates were scorpions. There was Pio Nono (Plus the Ninth) who journeyed all the way from Mexico City on All Souls Day to bring a floral offering to his buried leg. There was poor Conrado, a marijuana addict, who mother Macedonia, who would committed murder in a moment of madness—and his devoted have gone to prison herself to be near him. There are the Ayans, Mela and Jesus, Old Bartolo, the Herb Woman, each with stories of their own, and there

Round Town—
 Wednesday afternoon R. C. Childers was in the field salvaging his wheat. He was cutting in a 300 acre patch 25 miles northwest of town, a plot that had been halled on three times before, when hail began to pelt down again, about 5 p. m. Before the hail was over, the field, belonging to Henry Sears, was doomed. Sears said it would have made 40 bushels on the dry land patch, if there had been no hail at all. He estimates that it would have made 5-10 bushels before the hail Wednesday, but Childers had hardly cut enough to allow for an accurate estimate. They can exchange stories with the Stengles and J. K. Baker. Wednesday week a 55 minute hail hit out on their places near Summerfield and at the end of the hour it had sliced down the wheat, beaten potato plants into the ground, and ruined a quarter section planted to legumes.

from the transmitter the higher the antennae must be to receive any signals.

Now stations not equipped with "boosters" or any extra high antennae have a range of 40 to 50 miles, sometimes reaching up to 150 if there are no high hills or tall buildings to break the signals.

However, its 1,500 miles from here to Detroit, and their programs have shown up right here in Deaf Smith.

Since the television broadcasts are more or less unreliable, Minear has been keeping a log of the stations, programs and hours when they are able to view it.

All Or Nothing
"There are no ghosts on the screen; you turn the dial and either you get it or you don't, but there aren't any half-way measures," said Minear.

If the channels are clear, the screen may flicker on showing a singer, a speaker or some visual type commercial. If the channels aren't clear, distortions, herringbone shapes and horizontal or vertical lines flicker across the screen in vibrant patterns, the distorted visual reproductions of ordinary programs.

Minear and his wife, both ardent television enthusiasts when they lived in Arcadia, Calif., report that even out here they have seen style shows, heard news commentators, witnessed athletic events and spent an evening with the Goldbergs.

Sometimes they are able to get the visual reproductions, sometimes the sound, and sometimes they are able to get them both.

One night the family was watching a televised account of a baseball game over the Detroit Station when they began to get interference on the same channel from a station at Atlanta, Georgia that was televising a boxing match.

A heavy black line appeared at the left of the screen, gradually crowding the baseball game off the screen until the group were watching the boxing match but hearing the commentator describe the ball game. On the screen, the energetic boxer slugged into his opponent and the commentator was shouting, "Strike two!"

Puppet Show
The Minears have also gotten the Hop-a-long Cassidy show, and the famous "Howdy Doody," puppet show, one of the television born hits that received the immediate acclaim of children, adults, teachers, physiologists, entertainers, practically every one in fact except the Communist Daily Worker who declaimed its merits completely, swearing that it "aroused in children the base, capitalistic desire to own a television set."

Minear installed his set himself, and added a 35 foot antennae to aid reception. May 12

they first started operating it and reception has improved almost steadily since then. Television, like radio, is much clearer at night than in the day time.

Since the cacophonous radio burst in on the entertainment field some 29 years ago, it has been under steady experimentation and researchers and scientists are continually perfecting it. Television is destined to undergo the same metamorphosis.

Already the programs, stations, techniques and receivers are definitely improving and network service is now extended by co-axial cable and radio air relays to a third of the United States.

64 Stations in U. S.
There are 64 TV stations which service 35 areas, and they claim that 75 new ones will be installed this year.

An estimated million and a half sets are in use with a regular listening audience of six million; 130,000 are being manufactured each month.

At present, all TV equipment operates on VHF, or very high frequency somewhere between 44 and 216 megacycles, directed into 13 different channels. When engineers, technicians and the brood of scientific man power that it takes to work out a new development, can maneuver it, they hope to operate stations in outlying areas on UHF or ultra high frequency, somewhere between 475 and 890 megacycles.

It's been authorized for the future, but it hasn't been activated yet. When it does, television will come to the Panhandle, and until then Phillip Minear will just go ahead watching his television screen, unaware of the fact that it's all impossible.

And all the while work on the little cottage progresses, the original ninety days of construction stretching to six months and more. Mishaps occur which are both heartbreaking and hilarious. The fireplace, a completely foreign apparition to the Indian maestro, is constructed halfway up the wall. The doors are cut eight inches too short—the carpenter forgot the measurements. Then there was a final tragedy—the hot water heater was connected to the garden-hose hydrant, turning the author's rose garden into a steaming Turkish bath. But regardless of its irregularities and peculiarities, the little cottage emerged, a personality in its own right.

Kittens Are Blissfully Unaware of Stepbrother Being Different As Cat Adopts Orphaned Skunk

By PHYLLIS RADOVICH

Shakespeare, said, "Misery acquaints a man with strange bedfellows." That also applies to cats and skunks.

It was only after misery came into the life of a baby skunk on Jack Walker's farm that he met his new bedfellows, four baby kittens, and his new mother, the Walker's pet cat, Rastus.

Rastus has adopted the skunk, along with his own family of four kittens and in democratic fashion, unaware of their differing breeds, furs and futures the five young animals play together, eat together and sleep together.

The skunk was one of four young ones which the Walkers found under the old chicken house on their place. They killed the mother and three babies, saving one for a pet. He was named Flower, after the Disney-born skunk in the Bambi picture, and Flower was sent to live with Rastus and her family in a new abode under the back step.

Flower is about a month old now, two weeks younger than the kittens.

Welcome Little Skunk At first Rastus was a bit reticent about the white-striped and sleek haired newcomer, but as time wore on and Flower's helplessness increased, the mother instinct in Rastus prevailed over her first antipathy and she took Flower in.

Although she is now trying to wean her own litter of kittens, she apparently senses that Flower is younger and has made no attempt to keep him from nursing.

They are quite a family, rough and tumble kittens, furry balls of activity and the baby skunk, with the distinguishing white-mark down the back of his fur which is just beginning to turn fluffy instead of flat.

Flower has not yet been deodorized, but the Walkers hasten to say he soon will be.

Their first encounter with all his scentful potentials occurred last week. Son Gene and daughter Jacqueline Ann had been playing with the new pet, teasing him along and finally the month-old skunk decided to assert himself. A faint, skunk-like odor permeated the air. The horrified Rastus, not understanding just what had happened to her step child ran over and began hastily licking the skunk in a mother-cat effort to clean up her child.

But it takes a lot of teasing to make Flower that unhappy. Usually when he gets mad, he just stomps his feet and wiggles his body, all eight inches of it, tail included.

Flower is a family pet and once the scent-sac in his body has been removed he should be a welcome visitor at any time. Skunks have often been domesticated and their owners report they make ideal pets. The Walkers are about to find out.

Rainbow Girls Take In The Sights At Houston Grand Assembly Meet

The fact that the Hereford Rainbow Girls had never seen a battleship, coupled with vigorous protestations from one of the sponsors, Mrs. A. L. Manjeot, led the captain of the Battleship Texas to reverse his decision and let the entire group aboard after the gates had been closed three minutes. In Houston for the three day annual meet of the Grand Assembly of Texas where more than 2,000 girls were registered at Rice Hotel headquarters, one of the highlights of the trip was seeing "The Texas" and the girls were dismayed when upon reaching the dock, they found they were just three minutes too late. By the time Mrs. Manjeot had said what she had to say, the captain not only opened the gates but escorted them about the ship at no cost, which would have approximated about twelve dollars.

The group visited the San Jacinto Memorial and enjoyed a conducted tour of the Shamrock Hotel. By the end of the second day they were well on their way to overlook anything, they shot the works at an amusement park and didn't miff a chance at the roller coaster, carousel, airplane spins, etc.

Enroute to Houston Sunday the group was royally entertained at Austin. They were met by a group of DeMolays who guided them over the city with stops at the Governor's mansion and State Capitol. They had breakfast at the Driscoll Hotel through the courtesy of the Austin Chamber of Commerce and at noon they were entertained at luncheon in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Long, Mrs. Long, a former Hereford resident, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Jackson of Hereford and is a member of the City Council of Austin.

The convention itself was a routine of highlights in the work of the Order and the trip was a revel to the girls. Their good sportsmanship was evidenced in the opinion of the bus-man who remarked, "That's the nicest group of youngsters I've ever carted around." after he had landed the group safely home.

Fitting the occasion of honoring a former member who has moved away from Hereford, daisies, for memories, were used in decorations with feverfew as accessory blossoms. A salad plate was served to members of the club and guests.

Guests in attendance were Mesdames J. A. Pitman, J. H. Pitman, Raylan Evans, Seth B. Holman, H. A. Close, E. B. Hedrick, Elizabeth Womble and Mrs. Wayland. Members of the club present were Mesdames W. L. Davis, Sr., C. C. Acker, H. K. Fox, J. C. McCracken, J. A. Pitman and the hostess. Other members of the club are Mrs. Jimmie Gillentine and Mrs. Oscar Easley.

Double Ring Service Unites Mary Allmon-Hilrey Aven

Miss Mary Lou Allmon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Allmon of Friona, and Hilrey L. Aven, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Aven of Hart, exchanged vows Sunday afternoon June 26, in a ceremony held in the Church of Christ of Hereford at 4 p. m. Minister Bob Wear was the officiant in the presence of close friends and relatives of the couple. Traditional wedding music was provided by a sextet from the church choir, composed of Mesdames A. W. Hembree, Bob Wear, Elmer Patterson, and Misses Dorothy Hendrick, Alma Faye Knox and Gerry Patterson. Selections included "For Ever and Ever" and "I Love You Truly". As the bridal party entered Mrs. Chester Wiggins sang "My Hero" from the "Chocolate Soldier" by Straus and during the ceremony a hummed version of "I Love You Truly" was given by the sextet. Mendelssohn's wedding march was hummed as the recessional.

The double-ring ceremony was read before an altar background of baskets of white gladioli and branched candelabra bearing Cathedral tapers.

Zelma Ruth Allmon, sister of the bride, was her maid of honor. She wore aqua taffeta made with low waistline draped at the hips with bustle bow in the back fitted over the full ballerina length skirt. She carried an arm bouquet of pink carnations.

Maurice Aven, sister of the bridegroom, and Phyllis Allmon, sister of the bride, lighted the tapers. They wore blue and pink taffie pique dresses, respectively, made with cap sleeves and flared skirt and their corsages were of pink and white carnations.

Egroy Aven served his brother's best man and James B. Jones of Littlefield and Myron Morgan were ushers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore white slipper satin fashioned with low bracelet length sleeves. The full ballerina skirt fell in folds beneath the finger-tip veil of illusion which was held in place by a tiara of net trimmed with pearlized orange blossoms. She wore white nylon gloves trimmed in lace and carried a white Bible with the bridal bouquet of white carnations placed on top. Her only ornament was a wrist watch, the gift of the bridegroom.

The bride's mother wore a printed silk dress with gray background and the bridegroom's mother wore black rep. Both wore white daisy corsages.

Reception in Hinds Home Following the wedding a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hinds, 310 McKinley, Hereford. Mrs. Leroy Aven and Mrs. C. E. Allmon presided at the bride's table where the focal point in decorations was a center arrangement of blue, white and yellow daisies, carrying out the bride's chosen color scheme.

After a wedding trip to New Mexico and Colorado, the couple will reside in Hereford. For traveling Mrs. Aven selected a pink two-piece crepe dress with white accessories and a white off-the-face hat. Her flowers were white daisies.

Following her graduation from Friona High School, the bride has been employed at the Friona State Bank. E. C. Eubanks office and Hereford Insurance. The bridegroom is a graduate of Hart High School and West Texas State College. He spent 32 months in the Navy during the war. He is co-owner with his brother Leroy Aven, of the Big-T Pump Company.

Aven and children of Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Bacon Jones, Littlefield, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Brown, Jimmit and Mr. and Mrs. Houston Carson and children of Olton.

Rehearsal Dinner Preceding the rehearsal for the wedding Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Aven were hosts at a dinner honoring the couple. The blue, yellow and white theme was emphasized in keeping with the bride's colors featuring golden glow, cornflower and yellow tapers. Places for guests were marked with bridal nosegays of blue sweet peas tied with yellow satin ribbon.

Attending were the bridal couple, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Allmon, Zelma Ruth and Phyllis Allmon, Grandfather Chapin, Myron Morgan and Eleanor Aven. Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Bacon Jones of Littlefield and Miss Maurice Aven of Hart.

Anniversary Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Jesko entertained in their home last Sunday with a joint anniversary dinner for Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Jesko and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Kerschen. Dinner was served buffet style topped with home made ice cream and cake. The evening was enjoyed with games of "42." Those present were relatives and friends of the two couples.

With the summer season at hand, homemakers are planning a variety of seasonal entertainments—Sunday night suppers, buffets and out-of-doors affairs. If you are in the mood for fun a "Fourth of July" picnic provides an ideal setting for such gatherings. It can be made very elaborate if you like, but many are just happy combinations of simple wholesome foods arranged to meet the demands of jaded appetites.

Whether patriotic or not, when the young fry are to be entertained, make a celebration—for if the food is simple, the extra preparation imposes no great labor.

Open House for Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Park Celebrates Golden Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Park who have lived in Deaf Smith County since 1902, were honored Sunday, June 26, to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary, by their children with an open house from 3 to 6 p. m. at their home. The Park's real wedding date is in December, but the June date was chosen for the celebration so that all the children might attend. It was the first time since 1925 that the entire family has been together.

The children who were hosts, were Mrs. J. E. Henry, Hillsboro, California, Mrs. Paul Cavender, Amarillo, Mrs. G. C. Donovan, Oklahoma City, Edah Park, Denver, Colorado and Lucille Park, Hereford.

Mrs. Park is the former Cassie Lindsey who moved from Tennessee with her parents to Bardwell, Texas where she and Mr. Park were married. They lived there on a farm until coming to Hereford and purchased a half section of land eight miles northeast of town for four dollars an acre. Land near them has sold recently for one hundred dollars an acre. Their closest neighbors were Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Askren whose farm was three miles away. Both remember that first year with its freak winter when they nearly froze. They still live on that farm but there has been many changes down through the years, even to the weather.

Mr. Park, 80, kept up his farm activities until recently but sometimes finds himself making a hand for Pete Carmichael, to whom he has leased the place. He found it hard at first to learn to run a tractor, after so many years working the horses, but says he wouldn't go back to the old way for "you can really go places with a tractor," he remarked.

Mrs. Park, 70, likes to work with her flowers and takes a delight in raising dahlias, having tried almost every variety. She has placed dozens of quilts, making them for her children and for her eleven grandchildren.

Both have been active in church work. He is a member of the Baptist Church and she belongs to the Church of Christ.

Open House Is Held Flowers, significant of the colors of the day, were used in decorations for the open-house. The refreshment table was laid with lace over gold and a wide satin ribbon in gold ran the table's center length. A miniature bridal couple paused near the center piece of yellow carnations and gold covered tapers gave candle glow for the scene. Yvonne Cavender of Amarillo, granddaughter of the couple, registered the guests.

Miss Augustine Gregory served the three-tiered wedding cake and Miss Lucille Hughes poured the first hour. Mrs. Dee Brown of Muleshoe poured the second hour.

A program of appropriate music was given by Nelda Cavender, who played "I Love You Truly"

Launching time with conventional davits ranges from 30 seconds to three minutes. Based on an air hoist principle, the cradle swings outward and down from the ship's side, sinking beneath the surface as the boat floats clear.

Harvest in this community is in full swing. Farmers who suffered hail loss find it necessary to go over the land. Yields are reported good where hail had not struck but there are few fields which did not have hail damage. Anxious to save the crop before more damage most farmers have two or more combines at work in each field.

Severe hail and rain did thousands of dollars worth of damage last Wednesday evening in a few minutes. The storm centered an area of approximately five miles. Rain at the Merlin Kaul home measured almost two inches and some hail fell and two miles south of the Kauls at the Stengel and J. K. Baker farms hail wiped out everything. Hail fell to a depth of six inches. Visitors to the area report that one cannot tell where the potato rows were. Besides potatoes, other crops lost included cotton, wheat and row crops. Row crops which were just coming up in this area were washed out and had to be replanted.

Mrs. Lon Haney has returned home after a visit of two weeks with her mother at Phoenix, Arizona.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Durstine of Friona were guests last Wednesday night in the Merlin Kaul home en route home from Sabetha, Kansas where they went to attend the funeral of Mr. Durstine's brother.

Sunday afternoon callers in the M. C. Kaul and A. C. Pierce homes were Mr. and Mrs. O. Wilder, Jessie and Paul Matteson, and Mr. and Mrs. Hubert White and children of Hereford. Jessie and Paul Matteson drove to their farm to see about the wheat. They have sold the farm here and their house in town and will move soon to a small farm near Fresno, California. Their nephew, S. J. Cook, who is a member of the police force at Fresno, is taking his vacation and is here visiting friends and relatives. He has been to Superior, Wisconsin to visit his sister, Bonnie.

Junior Welch of Portales, New Mexico is staying in the home of his sister, Mrs. B. E. Northcutt and helping harvest.

Dortha Davis of Plainview is spending a couple weeks with her aunt, Mrs. C. A. Saulcy.

Mrs. W. E. Combs, who has been staying in the home of her son, Don Combs at Hereford, spent Saturday night in the Elmer Combs home. She returned Sunday to her home in Plainview.

Hugh K. Roe of Ardmore, Oklahoma, is helping Elvin Wilson harvest. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Roe, and is a grandson of J. A. Roe of Hereford, a former resident of this community.

Donald Rudd, 15 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivol Rudd suffered a broken left arm Saturday afternoon as he was helping unload a harrow from a truck at the Kelly Gray farm. The harrow caught on Donald's clothing and as it fell to the ground pulled him down with it. He was rushed to the hospital for care.

Mrs. Bob Curry and sons, Don and Jon of Pampa, have been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Byrl Elliston.

Tom Wilson who recently received his B A degree from the University of Texas, has accepted a position with the Rockwell Bros. Lumber Company at Hamlin, Texas. Mrs. Wilson is the former Miss Nettie Hood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hood, and both are former Hereford residents.

Long Time Ago

45 Years Ago

"A splendid program rendered and a genuine old-time picnic enjoyed by all present" heading the main story of the July 8, 1904 Brand, explains how the 4th of July was observed that year. The celebration was held at the Bassett School house in the North Draw, 20 1/2 miles from Hereford and featured a Union Sunday School picnic. "The combined forces" of the Ward, Baker, and Bassett Sunday Schools presented the program, after which speeches by numerous citizens were made. In concluding his story the Brand reporter said: "Much good as well as pleasure can result from the social intercourse that renders so attractive every occasion similar to this enjoyable Fourth of July celebration, and more than one of our citizens have been heard to declare that Hereford must soon arrange for just such a day's outing and recreation and extend a special invitation to the people of the North Draw."

Stock news included: "L. R. Brady this week sold to A. M. Modisett 100 yearlings at $16.25. Thompson and Whitsett sold 160 yearlings and S. T. Howard 200 twos to the same party."

Local items included: "George A. Sachse was in Hereford Tuesday from his ranch northwest of town mingling with friends and transacting other business"; "Henry Cloyd arrived from Dallas Thursday, the guest of his brother, George Cloyd"; "The following Hereford people attended the Fourth of July celebration at the North Draw Monday, W. H. Russell; S. T. Howard, A. J. Lipscomb, J. T. Inmon, C. E. Davis, F. A. Millard and Miss Mary Clark"; "Misses Mina Dameron and Mattie Fore left Monday afternoon for St. Louis where they will take in the great World's Fair. They will go from there to Lake Chautauqua in New York where they will spend several weeks."

"A patriotic citizen" of Hereford earned special recognition in this Fourth of July issue of the Brand. Here's the story: "Patriotic demonstrations were conspicuous by their absence in almost every portion of our town last Monday. J. C. Newman, however, made his neighbors realize that he was cognizant of the fact that the Fourth had come once again by repeatedly firing his old musket and hoisting high the National Banner just about the time old Sol showed his independent countenance above the eastern horizon."

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Moore and son Gerald have returned to their home after a visit here between semesters with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hood. Mr. Moore is a senior student at New Mexico A&M College at Las Cruces, New Mexico.

Other recent guests in the Hood home have been Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Williams of Bellevue, parents of Mrs. Hood, and Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Yocum of Wichita Falls. Mrs. Yocum is Mrs. Hood's niece.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Alexander were in Silvertown Wednesday seeing about their wheat harvest.

Lion's Club Officers Are Installed At Ladies' Night Banquet - Program

With characteristic wit and humor, A. O. Thompson toastmastered the Lion's Club Ladies' Night banquet in good order Thursday night, but he had to keep threatening to tell one of his jokes to do it.

The banquet was held at the Lion's Club - Rotary Hall with presidents of other clubs and city officials as honor guests, but when it came to introductions Alec handled dignitaries and non-dignitarians alike, speaking kindly and unkindly of them all.

It was installation night for recently elected officers but a program of entertainment preceded the rites. Bob Thompson conducted an indoctrination service for new members and Mrs. Homer Brumley, classmate of the guest entertainer, Bernie Howell of Amarillo, at Texas Tech, gave the introduction to the musician who gave a program on the Hammond organ.

His program pleased everybody and in conclusion, he played request numbers. Wayne Evans, president of the club, was also called to the stage to render a couple of selections on the organ.

Minister Bob Wear conducted the installation rites, delineating each officers duties before completing the service.

Officers installed were: Lyle Blanton, president; Guy Lawrence, Dr. L. B. Barnett and Raylan Evans, vice-presidents; Harry Caylor, secretary-treasurer; Jack Kirksey, Lion tamer; John Pool, tall twister.

Directors held over for another year: George Graham and Dr. Will Graham; and the new directors, Paul Harvey and Curtis Trawick.

Lyle Blanton accepted the gavel and paid tribute to the work of the outgoing president, Wayne Evans, presenting him with a gift from the club. He pledged his own best efforts toward the continuance of the good work and outlined plans for the coming year's work. In conclusion he read a list of committees appointed for the coming year.

Long Grain Harvest Trek Is Exciting Life For Wife Of Combine Thresher Crew Chief

By ROBERT E. FORD
Associated Press Staff

One of the world's noisiest and busiest migrations is getting into full swing. It's accompanied by sweat and toil, dust and sometimes tears.

But a lovely, motherly woman who has gone along on the annual grain harvest trek for seven years finds it an "exciting life." She is Mrs. V. W. Turner of Corsicana, Texas.

Each year in the spring this migration begins. Thousands of grain combines, accompanied by three thousands of gleaming grain trucks, roar down on the south from Canada and the northern United States.

These combines cut and thresh grain in one operation. The combines roll south until they reach warm latitudes where grain first ripens each year. Along the way other combines join the southward march.

When the men and machines reach ripe grain, they turn and work north, harvesting as they go. Finally, by fall, they roll into Canada to wind up the season.

Work North
Mr. and Mrs. Turner are a little different. They don't have to go south. The first ripe grain is on their doorstep.

Mrs. Turner's husband is a crew chief with an outfit of typical size. Including Turner, there are eight crewmen. He owns three combines, four trucks and a huge, 35-foot house trailer.

The trailer is Mrs. Turner's domain. She says, "Sometimes it seems to me that it's just as important to keep the boys well fed and to provide a home atmosphere for them as to actually combine the wheat."

And can Mrs. Turner cook? "She really can," says Glen White, a six-foot-plus youth in the crew.

The trailer is well equipped for Mrs. Turner. It has bottled gas for the range and a gas-operated refrigerator. Electrical connections provide lights, power for fans and heat for an electric iron. At one end is a semi-circular dining table which seats 10.

Just Like Home
One half of the trailer is devoted to living quarters for Mr. and Mrs. Turner and their college sophomore daughter, Bobradine, who is going along this year. It has practically all the comforts of a stationary home.

Turner has been harvesting 11 years. In the off season, he operates earth moving machinery and other heavy-duty equipment at Corsicana.

He's made the trip north so often that he knows in advance which farms he'll harvest. He doesn't have to scramble for jobs like the newcomers do.

Each year, he starts the season on the land of Lincoln Burns and other farmers near here. Then his route is generally through the Texas Panhandle, sometimes into western Colorado. From there he goes to Liberal and Elkhart, Kansas, and on through Nebraska and South and North Dakota. Normally he ends the season at West Hope, North Dakota, three miles from the Canadian border. On occasion he follows the ripening wheat into Canada.

Mrs. Turner had to stay home and care for her children until 1942. She's made the trip each year since except for 1943.

It's surprising to discover that Mrs. Turner had two sons in the army. She doesn't look old enough.

Everybody Goes
Two of the children are along this year. Bobradine is a music student at North Texas State College, Denton. She joined her parents when the school year ended. A son, James, is a crewman. Another daughter is Mrs. Jack K. Williams of Dallas. Another son, Lesley R., was reported missing in action while fighting with the 707th Tank Battalion of the First Army.

Because the Turners have made so many harvest trips, "We feel as much at home at places we stop as we do in Corsicana," she says.

The Turners often have discussed, which town along the route they'll settle down in when they stop their yearly trips, but they haven't yet decided.

Turner has offered to "settle down" often, but Mrs. Turner says she knows he likes the work. So they'll continue following the harvest as long as he wants to.

"Sometimes I want to settle down," she said, "but when the crews start getting ready in the spring, I get anxious to go, too, and right then I start packing."

Enjoys Trips
Mrs. Turner especially enjoys the scenery on the three and one-half to five-month tour. She is a camera fan and has pictures of much of her travel routes.

The three combines in the Turner outfit usually cut 100 acres in a day which begins with breakfast at 6 a. m. and ends with supper as late as 10 p. m. When they hit an ideal stretch, the combines can cover 150 acres.

"It makes a good living but you don't get ahead fast," Mrs. Turner says. "It costs so much to replace machinery."

Despite their long hours and nomadic life, the crewmen manage to stay clean and neat—possibly Mrs. Turner's influence. The crew sleeps under any handy shelter. When none is available, they pitch tents.

At Dumas Rotary Bob Wear Speaks

"Our way of life is a good way of life. We must cherish it, protect it, and, as we can, improve it. We must not trade 'Americanism' for some other 'ism,'" said Bob Wear as he addressed Rotary Club members, their wives and other invited guests in Dumas, Texas, Monday night. The occasion of the meeting was the first Annual Ladies Night of the Dumas Rotary Club.

The speaker continued by giving a brief review of the evolution and revolution through which the American way of life has come to be what it is today. He quoted freely from the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution and the Amendments to the Constitution in presenting the principles upon which our Democracy is established.

"Our democratic way of life and government is in danger of being destroyed. It is imperative that we work to overcome the indifference of the average citizen; we must continue our fight to keep the church and state separated; and we must continue the fight against Communism."

There are almost as many different sorts of beetles as there are all other insects combined.
