David Ruland is a lucky man. He won $100 at this morning's Deaf Smith County chamber of Commerce Fun Breakfast.

That was enough to pay for the $50 raffle ticket he bought. His wife, Donna, didn't think they could afford it. He went ahead and bought it.

David Ruland won a 1992 vehicle with the raffle ticket he wasn't supposed to buy.

Ruland's name was the first drawn at this morning's breakfast, sponsored by XIT Cellular. Ruland will get his choice of vehicle from Hereford's new car dealers.

Also big winners this morning were Hereford Mayor Tom LeGate and Deaf Smith County Judge. They were honored for their work as vice chairmen of the Hereford Prison Task Force with the Bull Chip Award.

Since Simons had received the Bull Chip in 1981, he was given an "additional feedyard cluster to be heaped upon his chip" by Speedy Nieman. Simons received a plaque custom prepared by Nieman.

LeGate gave thanks to all members of the task force. The group worked about two months to prepare the proposal for a new prison here. LeGate asked that all task force members stand and be recognized by the large breakfast crowd.

Ruland, the Deaf Smith County Clerk, was one of 16 prize winners in the raffle. Others were:

- Jack Beasley, Zenith color TV.
- Steven Sims, VCR.
- Nancy Last, microwave oven.
- Yolanda Alaniz, stereo system.
- Rocky Lee, lawn mower.
- Bob Sims, calculator.
- Floy Driver, Hereford Travel Center gift certificate.
- U.S. Savings Bonds went to Judith Andrews, Eldon Fortenberry, Tim Homer, Raul Pesina, Jimmy Bell, Burl Miller, Toni Shakocius, Frankie Bell, Kim Dawson and Martha DeBord.

Miss Hereford contestants were introduced at the breakfast. Kim Porter, chairman of the pageant committee for the Women's Division of the chamber, said raffle tickets for a trip for two to San Francisco will be sold for $2 each. Proceeds will go to the scholarship fund for Miss Hereford contestants.

This weekend, the Little Miss pageants will be held, beginning with the Cutest Miss pageant at 5 p.m. The divisions for older girls will begin at 7 p.m. The pageants will be held at the Hereford High School auditorium. Women's Division members are also sponsoring a membership drive,

California braces for Big One

LOS ANGELES (AP) - A strong earthquake shook Southern California, damaging utility lines and desert towns, causing minor injuries and raising official worry that the catastrophic Big One could be on the way.

The quake struck at 9:50 p.m. Wednesday and measured 6.1 on the Richter scale. Buildings swayed in downtown Los Angeles, and tremors were felt as far away as Arizona and Nevada and from San Diego to Santa Barbara, 200 miles up the coast.

Witnesses' estimates of the quake's duration ranged from 10 to 60 seconds.

"It was a terrible shaking," said Mary Gibson of Desert Hot Springs. "We were just getting ready to go to bed, and the whole house just shook. It felt like an eternity."

The quake was centered 110 miles east of downtown Los Angeles in Desert Hot Springs. It was along an unnamed north-to-south fault in the mountains about five miles from the big San Andreas fault, said Lucy Jones, a seismologist for the U.S. Geological Survey.

In Los Angeles, Fire Department spokesman Jim Wells said there were no immediate reports of damage or injuries in the nation's second-largest city.

Shaking was felt at Dodger Stadium but didn't interrupt a baseball game there.

The quake damaged at least 10 buildings and knocked out power in areas of Yucca Valley and Twentynine Palms, said San Bernardino County sheriff's dispatcher Bob Duncan. The quake also shattered supermarket windows in Palm Springs.

About a dozen people were taken to Hi-Desert Medical Center in Joshua Tree with injuries ranging from a broken ankle to cuts, spokeswoman Theresa Graham said. The emergency room was full.

"We practice this all the time," she said. "We're doing pretty good."

In Riverside County, fire officials received reports of mostly minor damage, including gas leaks at homes, some flooding from pipes and damage to a fire station in Thousand Palms, said county spokeswoman Joanne Evans. Some phone service was lost.

Marie Kinnon in Palmdale, 50 miles north of downtown Los Angeles, said her animals were going "berserk" for 20 minutes preceding the quake. "I felt it and it scared the heck out of me," she said.

Initial reports that the quake measured 6.3 on the Richter scale were followed by a warning from USGS to be ready for a 7.5 earthquake - the so-called Big One. Ms. Jones said the chance of the Big One striking could be as high as 25 percent within three days.

Voting light in early balloting

An early voting period for three May 2 elections has not seen much action.

The most votes cast in any of the elections is 47, for Deaf Smith County Hospital District board.

The Hereford Independent School District election has attracted 35 voters and Hereford City Commission early balloting stands at 32 voters.

Last day to cast ballots prior to the election is Tuesday. State law provides for no-excuse early voting, a change from the past when absentee voting required a reason for not appearing on election day.

HISD voters will settle a race between Steve Wright, incumbent, and Joe Flood, for Place 5 on the board. Mike Veazey is running unopposed for Place 4.

In the City Commission election, Irene Cantu, Place 2, and Wayne Winget, Place 4, are unopposed for election to the seats they hold now.

Five persons are seeking two at-large seats, now held by Emory Brownlow and Roger Eades. The incumbents are challenged by Robert Griego, Raul Valdez and Carey Black.

Four candidates are on the hospital district ballot, for election to four places. Incumbents are Boyd M. Foster and John Perrin. Paul Abalos and Merle Clark are running for the seats being vacated by Dr. Stan Fry and Craig Smith.

DON'T keep those cards coming

Cancel the appeal in Wednesday's Brand for cards to be sent to a Georgia boy!

The story, it turns out, is a couple of years old. The youngster had surgery for a brain tumor and is doing well. His quest for a record number of get-well cards was successful, and no more cards are needed!

The appeal was inadvertently picked up by a Friona doctor, who sent a letter to a local doctor. The Brand had several calls this morning from readers who have seen articles about the youngster and report that no more mail is wanted.

'Arsenic and Old Lace' tonight

Hereford High School's one-act play company prepares for a performance of scenes from "Arsenic and Old Lace." The company will perform the scenes in a benefit performance at 7 p.m. sharp today at the HHS auditorium. The play was honored at the district and regional levels and several crew and cast members were honored. Admission is by donation, and no one will be admitted after 7 p.m. The performance will be about 40 minutes long.

Finger-pointing rampant in Guadalajara aftermath

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) - Devastated by sewer line blasts that gouged deep trenches into city streets and killed at least 184 people, incensed Guadalajarans demanded explanations today for why volatile gas was allowed to build up.

"We told you. We called you. You never paid any attention to us," people at one cratered intersection screamed at the state governor as he toured the stricken La Reforma district late Wednesday night.

They wanted to know why disaster had not been averted. Residents had smelled petroleum hours before the explosions and raised the alarm.

"My family is buried there," one person told Gov. Guillermo Cosio Vidaurri, pointing to a pile of rubble.

"We'll dig them up in awhile," said a shaken Cosio. He and his aides turned and left.

Ambulances, lights flashing and sirens blazing, raced through Mexico's second-largest city early today as hundreds of rescue workers, some with specially trained dogs from the federal capital, pressed on with the search for the living and dead.

Dazed survivors stood in the dusty streets, looking on grimly.

"We suppose there are still a lot of bodies still under the debris," Jalisco state spokesman Armando Morquecho said late Wednesday.

At least 600 people were hurt and thousands left homeless by at least nine explosions that began at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday. Streets were ripped open, cars and trucks hurled into the air, adobe houses blown out.

One jagged trench was 2 1/2 miles long and about 1,000 buildings were damaged. At first, residents of the blue-collar neighborhood dug feverishly with picks and axes for loved ones and neighbors.

By early today, their despair was thickly laced with anger.

The government blamed the blasts on chemicals from a cooking oil factory but others said the state oil monopoly, Pemex, couldn't be ruled out.

Fingers were also pointed at the police and fire departments, which said they had done what they could.

Many people said they had reported a nauseous gas smell on Tuesday, and some said they reported it on Monday.

A policeman, Martin Bonales, said his wife called police and fire offices Tuesday night and was told nothing could be done.

"Then I called myself and asked them if there were any problems. They told me everything was under control. They told me not to worry."

"I called later and they told me, 'look, don't do anything, don't say anything. Stop spreading rumors, you'll create terror.'"

"Look at what they created."

Survivors watched red-clad rescue workers and dogs search for bodies early today. Some seemed to wander aimlessly.

But the spunk is gone now from many of Brown's events. He seems to be just going through the motions, more like a lecture tour speaker than a presidential candidate.

'Sleeping Billy' dies for slaying of Houston woman 15 years ago

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) - Convicted killer Billy Wayne White, dubbed "Sleeping Billy" because he snoozed and snored during the closing arguments of his trial, quietly was put to death early today for the robbery-slaying of a Houston woman more than 15 years ago.

White, 34, one of the longest-serving death row inmates in Texas, received lethal injection for fatally shooting 65-year-old Martha Spinks on Aug. 23, 1976 at a furniture store the woman and her husband owned.

He was pronounced dead at 12:58 a.m. CDT, nine minutes after the lethal drugs began flowing into his arms and 47 minutes after he was strapped to the death chamber gurney.

"He was a habitual drug user, a longtime heroin user and we had an extremely difficult time finding a vein suitable for the procedure," Andy Collins, director of the Texas prison system, said. "But the inmate was very compliant, very courteous, very cooperative. In fact, he attempted to assist us."

"That's good," Hazel McMillan, whose mother was slain in the shooting, said today when told the execution had occurred. "It's like 200 pounds has been taken off my shoulders."

White had no final statement.

The execution came after the U.S. Supreme Court rejected a last-day appeal in which attorneys argued White, a former dump truck driver, was mentally retarded. State appeals courts also rejected claims his trial attorney was incompetent.

White's attorneys also contended Mrs. Spinks provoked him by spraying him with a can of chemical Mace when he pulled a gun during the robbery. White told fellow inmates the gun went off when the irritating mist hit him.

The issues of mental retardation and provocation, however, never were presented at his trial.

"This is a case, more than any other in the state, that has fallen through a dreadful crack," Richard Burr, one of White's attorneys, said. Larry Urquhart, who prosecuted the case, said he remembered White as bland about the whole legal process.

"He dealt with the situation by going to sleep. His attorney kept trying to keep him awake by elbowing him in the ribs," Urquhart said.

Testimony showed White walked into the Right Price Furniture and Appliance Store as Alge Spinks and his wife, Martha, were about to close for the day. White followed the couple into an office to get a receipt for two lamps he said he wanted to buy. Then he pulled a gun, demanded money and shot the woman point-blank in the face.

When he dropped his pistol while trying to take rings and a watch from the woman's body, Spinks grabbed the gun and during a scuffle shot White, striking him in the groin. White fled but was captured by police about a quarter-mile away. Officers found $269 in allegedly stolen money in his pocket.

White spent more than 14 years on death row, making him 16th in seniority among the 356 Texas inmates awaiting death.

The execution was the fifth this year in Texas and the 47th the state has carried out since the U.S. Supreme Court allowed the death penalty to resume in 1976. The total is the highest in the nation among states with capital punishment.

AG investigating suspicious deaths at Hondo center

AUSTIN (AP) - A newspaper is reporting that state attorney general's investigators have found evidence that five more children at a Hondo nursing home died last year under suspicious circumstances.

Heritage Manor Care Center came under scrutiny this year when health inspectors questioned how seven children died in the last six months of 1991.

The Medicaid Fraud Control Unit of the Texas attorney general's office discovered the five additional deaths during its criminal investigation of the seven deaths cited by the Texas Department of Health, the Austin American-Statesman reported Wednesday.

Ray Williamson, chief executive officer of Southwest Health Villas, the Dallas-based parent company of the Hondo nursing home, declined to comment on the newspaper's report when contacted by The Associated Press.

Like the seven children who died in the second half of 1991, the five children who died in the first half of the year had respiratory problems, the American-Statesman reported.

Questions are being raised about the type of lifesaving measures, if any, conducted when the children went into distress, the newspaper's sources said.

The American-Statesman said documents it obtained showed these deaths in the first six months of 1991:

- A 20-month-old girl, cardiac arrest, Jan. 28.
- An 8-year-old boy, respiratory failure, April 6.

- A 2(-)-year-old girl, cardiopulmonary arrest, April 13.

- A 10(-)-year-old girl, respiratory failure at Medical Center Hospital in San Antonio, May 17.

- A 6-month-old boy, congestive heart failure, June 22.

The deaths in Hondo, which is 40 miles west of San Antonio, have raised questions about how Texas cares for the fragile population of children whose disabilities require round-the-clock medical care.

A preliminary report just written by the state House Committee on Human Services calls the Hondo deaths a "series of tragedies."

The panel is calling for a statewide probe of the care of children in nursing homes.

An estimated 427 children live in 66 nursing homes in Texas, state statistics show. The Hondo home has the largest population of children mixed with geriatric residents: 52 of the Hondo facility's 83 residents are children.

"In light of this series of (Hondo) tragedies - and to prevent others - it would be prudent for the state to incorporate into its requirements pediatric emergency response training and to require appropriately sized equipment for nursing facilities that care for a significant number of children," the report says.

"We shouldn't have to wait until more deaths have occurred before we incorporate reasonable precautionary measures."

The report will be presented to the Legislature next session.

Elder Care/Aging subject of program

Oleta Hoffman presented a program, entitled Elder Care/Aging and the Family, to members of the Pioneer Study Club when the group met recently at the Caison House Restaurant.

The program continued the study club's theme of "Visions of the 21st Century." Hoffman began her talk explaining the opportunities available for senior citizens at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center. She pointed out that 215 meals are delivered to shut-ins and 220 meals a day are served at the center, all at a sliding scale charge. There is a hospice group at King's Manor and at the Deaf Smith General Hospital where it is possible to leave indigents to be cared for during the day. The doctors report on medication is strictly adhered to, Hoffman explained.

The speaker said that there is no "granny dumping" in Hereford because there is help available for every need. Housing is furnished for lower income persons and there is a physical fitness program at the center including exercise classes, water therapy, line dancing and recreational games. Transportation is available for lunch, shopping and medical care from the center. Field trips are also scheduled for senior citizens.

Hoffman added that through the local hospital, the Home Health Care Program provides nurses to go to the home of shut-ins needing special care.

At the Senior Citizens Center, a counselor is available to assist with filling out papers for Medicare and other needs. Hearing screening tests are given as is help for those wearing hearing aids. Volunteers at the center keep the operation running smoothly.

Southwestern Public Service has a "gate-keepers" program so that when meters are read the SWPS employee can be aware if something is amiss in the home.

Also, available in Hereford is the Alzheimer's Support Group and a hotline to report physical, mental and financial neglect or abuse. Hoffman noted that there is a good nutrition program in the community and that 22 percent of persons 85 years old or older are in a nursing home even though Medicare doesn't cover long-term care.

Hoffman closed her talk with the statement, "To live a happy golden life, let's keep our minds and bodies healthy."

During the business session, it was announced that delegates attending the Top of Texas Convention in Borger were Rosemary Thomas, Billee Johnson and Maria Escamilla. At the convention, Hereford Pioneer Study Club placed in 12 craft club projects and programs. These included first place in counted cross stitch by Maria Escamilla and first place in tote painting by Jeannie Caison. Awards were given for the club projects including Mothers Park and M.D. Anderson. Awards were also presented for the support of education school issues by Dr. Bill McLaughlin of Walcott School; a program on international affairs, "Update on Gatt"; program on Equi therapy; program on history of M.D. Anderson; program on arts, literature and drama given by Michael Grauer, curator of art at the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum; public affairs; citizenship and the study of the Bill of Rights; TFWC President's Report on Women's Library; program on arts, literature and drama and the Community Concerts.

Willie Wimberly, federation counselor, gave the International Club Woman's Report from the GWFC president's report illuminating the past. She closed by reading the poem, "The Promise of Easter" by Helen Steiner Rice.

Wimberly also presented "in memoriam" for Etoile Manning who was a member of Pioneer Study Club from 1982-89.

Mary Panciera for "My Turn" gave a history as a member of the Pioneer Study Club since she became a member in 1962. The first yearbook was printed in 1911-12 with Hattie Rutherford serving as president. The first club project was securing Mothers Park and then installing a flag pole. The flags were donated by the U.S. government and the Boy Scouts posted the flag every morning.

After club member Mrs. O.G. Hill moved across the street from the park, she took the responsibility of posting the flag each morning.

Mary Jane Burrus reported that the health city survey was completed and the information was sent to GFWC headquarters in Washington, D.C. Members noted that the club's finding was the greatest lack of education in Hereford.

The next club meeting will be at the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum in Canyon May 12 at which time the club will tour the exhibits of Nicolai Fechin which is the first in a series of mini-exhibitions in the newly created Alcove Gallery. Members will meet at 9 a.m. that day in the parking lot of the Deaf Smith County Museum and will return after lunch.

Willie Wimberly and Rosemary Thomas served as hostesses for the meeting. The Easter theme was carried out with individual baskets filled with grass and tiny candy eggs placed on the table.

Those present were Mary Jane Burrus, Nell Culpepper, Maria Escamilla, Catherine Gripp, Oleta Hoffman, Billee Johnson, Helen Langley, Gladys Miller, Mary Panciera, Fern Sibley, Rosemary Thomas, Willie Wimberly and Virginia Wood.

Program given by 4-H'ers

Newest cars great value

In today's car market, quality, affordability and value have become the three main ingredients consumers are seeking when purchasing a new automobile. It is not uncommon for auto manufacturers to spend a lot of time researching the newly emerging needs of today's smarter auto buyer.

With the changing U.S. auto industry, many manufacturers are drumming up new ways to reach consumers. Ranging from expanded warranties to unique maintenance programs, several car companies have come up with innovative programs that take the risk out of purchasing a new car.

Industry experts agree that these programs are being developed in response to the fluctuating economy, at a time when prices and value are extraordinarily good. Additionally, officials cite safety as a major reason to get into a new car, since today's manufacturers are increasingly safety conscious in response to years of consumer demand.

Hints from Heloise

Q. Is it all right to use copper molds for gelatin and salad molds? I have several pretty ones in various shapes and sizes, but am not sure I should use them for anything other than decorative purposes. — Mayola Gagne, Fairfield, Maine

A. According to our friends at the Copper Development Association, copper molds that can be used for molded salads and baking are copper on the exterior and tin-lined (silver in color) on the inside.

Decorative copper molds usually have a lacquer coating on them that would have to be removed before they could be used for food items.

The lacquer coating is what keeps the copper from tarnishing. Once this is removed, the copper will have to be regularly polished with a proper cleaner to keep it shiny. You may want to consider this before taking those decorative copper molds off the wall. — Heloise

CONVENIENT STORAGE

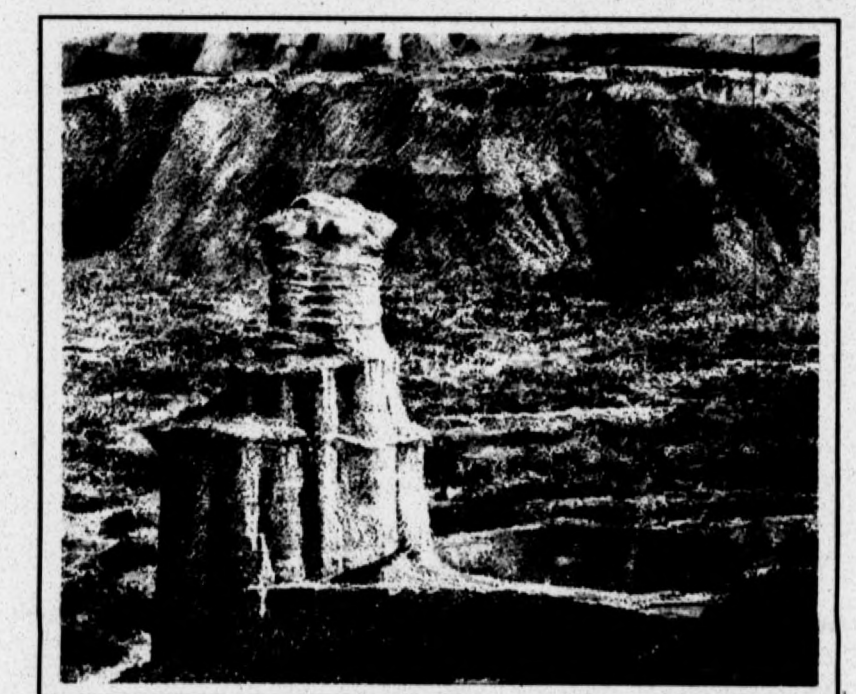

Dear Heloise: Here's a way to store pans with handles that have holes in them.

Just mount a lightweight board on a wall of your kitchen. Hammer in some finishing nails to hold the pans, then hang them. They are out of the way yet handy to use. — Dolores Caldwell, Bulverde, Texas

This would especially benefit those with a small kitchen and not enough cabinets, and it can even add a nice decorative touch. Thanks for writing. — Heloise

Spike's speech highlights Red Raider Day

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor
Spike Dykes was in town Wednesday to talk football.

The Texas Tech head coach spoke briefly after a dinner at Hereford Country Club which highlighted Red Raider Day in Hereford. He spoke of last year's 6-5 campaign and this season's imposing schedule.

The Raiders' 1991 season was a roller coaster. They started with a win over Cal State-Fullerton, lost four straight, then finished strong with five wins in their last six games.

"We started with Cal State-Fullerton. If Permian'd played 'em, they'd have beat 'em by 35 points. We beat 'em by 35 points. They were the worst team in college football."

After two losses--28-13 to Oregon and 22-17 to Wyoming--Tech opened Southwest Conference play with TCU.

"We'd beat them six years in a row," he said. "We were glad to play someone we could beat."

They didn't beat TCU, though, they lost 30-16. The next week, the Raiders lost to Texas A&M 37-14. After that, the season turned around. Tech won five of their remaining six games, dropping only a 23-15 decision to Texas in Austin.

"A lot of people were ready to quit, but thank goodness our players never did. Thank goodness our fans never did."

"We finished on a high note. We went into the recruiting season and recruited the best class we ever had."

Dykes will put 24 newcomers with a team that returns 14 out of 24 starters. On offense, the Raiders lose star split end Rodney Blackshear, but highly-touted Lloyd Hill is ready to step in and take his place. Both starting running backs are gone, but returnee Byron "Bam" Morris led the team in rushing in 1991 while coming off the bench. Robert Hall, who came into his own last year at quarterback, also returns.

The Raiders also have to replace one of the best kicking duos in the country. Both All-America punter Mark Bounds and placekicker Lin Elliott could be playing in the National Football League in the fall. Dykes has some replacement candidates who have done well in spring practice, but that's in the spring.

"When you put people in the stands, turn on the lights and the band starts playing, they sometimes can't kick as straight as they could in March."

The 1992 schedule starts with Oklahoma in Lubbock Sept. 3. That's a Thursday, and the game will be shown nationally by ESPN. The game follows a recent Tech tradition of playing some of college football's best. Past schedules included Miami, and future schedules include Nebraska.

"I don't think there's a better athletic director in college football than T. Jones," Dykes said. "He's worked his tail off to get Oklahoma, to get Nebraska for the fans to see. Some people suffer. I'm really tickled for ya'll. But if you want to do well, you've got to beat the big boys."

"I really hope next year we turn the corner. We've got a good team, a good schedule. They're excited about playing Oklahoma--which shows how smart they are."

Dykes sees the Southwest Conference as a close race, with Texas A&M the favorite.

"Texas A&M has a distinct advantage," he said. "They're the team to beat, but I think anybody can be second, and anybody can be third, and right on down the row. It's going to be a good conference."

Jones also spoke briefly. He has presided over what has so far been a good season for Tech athletics. The women's basketball team won the conference, the volleyball team was second in the conference, and new men's basketball coach James Dickey seems to be working out. Both Dickey and women's coach Marsha Sharp were named SWC coaches of the year.

Jones thanked the people at the dinner for increased attendance at events, particularly women's basketball. When the team hosted an NCAA tournament game, people "were outside scalping tickets. That was awfully good to see," Jones said.

The Red Raider Day golf scramble was won by the team of Speedy Nieman, Jason Grimsley, Rick Hopping, Bob Barrett and Taylor McNeel, Tech's NCAA compliance director. They combined to shoot 59.

In second with a 60 score were Rick Roden, Larry Walterscheid, Bryan Waters, Bob Simms and Alvin Downey. In third at 61 were Scott Keeling, Bob Rodgers, Steve Martin, Cal Mitts, Max Moss and Robert Neely.

Burns Hamilton and Steve Locke were closest to the pin on No. 6 and No. 14, respectively. Ron Weishaar and Dan Haney had the longest drives on No. 7 and No. 13.

Bliss won't talk about Baylor job

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) - Dave Bliss says he's happy coaching basketball at New Mexico and declines comment on reports that he's in the running for the vacant head coaching job at Baylor.

"I always think these things are blown out of proportion," Bliss said after The Waco Tribune-Herald reported Wednesday that Bliss was on the list of candidates along with Western Kentucky's Ralph Willard and Penn State's Bruce Parkhill.

"I really don't have any comment on the thing," Bliss said.

Bliss has completed four years on a five-year contract he signed with New Mexico in 1988. The Lobos have had four straight seasons of 20

Despite odds, Heat hope to beat Bulls

By The Associated Press

The Chicago Bulls are defending NBA champions, own the best record in the league and have never lost to the Miami Heat.

But that doesn't scare Heat forward Grant Long, whose team plays the Bulls in a best-of-5 playoff series that begins Friday night in Chicago.

"This is great for us, not discouraging," Long said. "We're playing good basketball right now. We're excited. We're a young team that's never been where we're going. We're going out as kids, and we're just going to play as hard as we can and enthusiastically."

However, Miami's 0-14 lifetime record against Chicago has convinced Miami coach Kevin Loughery to make some strategic changes.

"We're going to have to come up with a few different defenses, and we're going to have to score against this club early in the games to be competitive," Loughery said.

Chicago set a franchise record with 67 victories this season, including four against the Heat, which made the playoffs for the first time in its four-year history.

"Naturally, we're a big underdog," Loughery said. "They're going to come out and really try to hammer us. We've got to be prepared for that."

Miami also has to be prepared to play at raucous Chicago Stadium, where the Bulls were 36-5 this season. The Heat was 10-31 on the road this year.

"Our downside was on the road, giving in when we got down," Loughery said. "That's the only area in my opinion where our inexperience showed."

In other playoff openers Friday, it's Detroit at New York, the Los Angeles Clippers at Utah, and San Antonio at Phoenix.

The playoffs open tonight with New Jersey at Cleveland, Indiana at Boston, the Los Angeles Lakers at Portland and Seattle at Golden State.

The New York Knicks went back to basics in an effort to rebound from a late-season slump.

The Knicks blew a five-game lead with eight games left and lost the top seed in the Atlantic Division to Boston. So coach Pat Riley took the team back to its training camp at Charleston, S.C., for two days to prepare for the playoffs.

"There are no hangovers here, no broken spirits," Riley said. "The season's over - you can write it or broadcast it any way you want. But for us, it's over."

Forward Charles Oakley said "we're sort of getting back to basics like in training camp."

The Knicks and Pistons split four games in the regular season, with Patrick Ewing scoring 65 points in New York's two victories and 33 in Detroit's two wins.

"When you play the Knicks, you have to choose your poison," Pistons guard Joe Dumars said. "You can either not double him (Ewing) and know he can get 40 and beat you himself, or you can double him and take the chance of the other guys knocking down the outside shots. It comes down to what you want to take your chances with."

Lindley signs with Vernon

The first telecast of an NFL game was in 1939 when a contest between the Philadelphia Eagles and Brooklyn Dodgers was carried by NBC. The San Francisco 49ers and Cleveland Browns entered the National Football League in 1950.

Trevino, Hill go for two in a row

AUSTIN (AP) - Lee Trevino and Mike Hill are gunning for something only two other teams have done at the Legends of Golf opening today - win two in a row.

Since the first Legends tournament in 1978, the only back-to-back winners were Don January and Gene Littler in 1985-1986, and Orville Moody-Bruce Crampton in 1987-88.

"I guarantee you we're going to try to repeat, but it's going to be a dogfight," Trevino said at a pre-tournament appearance. "And we wouldn't want it any other way."

Trevino and Hill finished 1-2 in last weekend's PGA Senior Championship and currently rank first and third respectively on the senior money list.

"When you're playing with Lee Trevino, you have to like your chances," Hill said.

Other players like their chances, too, in the $770,000 tournament over the 6,775-yard Barton Creek Country Club course.

Bob Charles, who took the $4,000 first prize at the tournament's annual nine-hole shootout Tuesday, said he and partner George Archer hoped to challenge last year's winners.

"George is playing great. I just hope I can make enough birdies to support him," Charles said. "Lee and Mike will be tough to beat, though."

A new team that could prove strong is Al Geiberger and Dave Stockton. Paired with Harold Henning, Geiberger won in 1989 and finished second the past two years.

Stockton, 1991 U.S. Ryder Cup captain, is a Senior Tour rookie making his first appearance at the Legends. But he's already made an impression.

Earlier this week, Stockton gave a putting lesson to Austin pro Tom Kite, who used the tip to help win a Monday skins game with partner Chi Chi Rodriguez against Austin's Ben Crenshaw and Trevino.

"Dave's been a really good friend. His lesson worked well," Kite said. Henning will be paired with another first-time Legends entrant, fellow South African Simon Hobday. Rodriguez will play with Dave Hill. They finished third last year.

The team of Charles Coody and Dale Douglass, winners in 1990 with a tournament record 39 under par, normally would be considered among the favorites.

But Coody is making his first tournament appearance in seven weeks after pinching a nerve in his right shoulder while carrying luggage. Still, Douglass watched Coody swing this week and said, "I think he'll be OK."

In the Legendary Champions division for players over 60, Roberto De Vicenzo and Charlie Sifford are looking for their fourth victory in the five years of the over-60 class. They won that title in 1988, 1989 and last year.

De Vicenzo also has two outright Legends wins - in 1979 with Julius Boros and 1983 with Rod Funseth.

BLISS

victories or better, including a 20-13 record this past season.

"I have a very good job here, and I think we have a very good team coming back. I'm happy at New Mexico," Bliss said.

He wouldn't say whether Baylor officials have asked New Mexico officials for permission to talk to him. New Mexico Athletic Director Gary Ness said no Baylor officials had requested permission to speak with Bliss. But Ness said he received a message to call Bill Menefee, Baylor's retiring athletic director.

Ness said he was in meetings Wednesday and had not had a chance to return Menefee's call. He said he intended to call Menefee today.

New Mexico officials have met with Bliss concerning a contract extension or a new contract, but Ness would only say they currently are negotiating.

Under Bliss, the Lobos went to the NCAA tournament after a 20-10 record in 1990-91. It was the school's first NCAA tournament appearance since 1978. Bliss' Lobos also have made three trips to the National Invitation Tournament, including a bid this season in which New Mexico reached the quarterfinals before losing to eventual champion Virginia.

Bliss is 82-48 overall at New Mexico. He took over the Lobos' program after leading Southern Methodist to the Southwest Conference title in 1988 when the Mustangs were 28-7.

Bliss also was head coach at Oklahoma from 1975 through 1980 and has a career record of 301-211.

Mike Rogers, heading Baylor's search committee, said he's still looking through resumes and hopes to begin contacting candidates later this week.

Rogers said more than 50 coaches have applied for the job that opened up when Gene Iba was fired last month.

"More people are finding out about the job," Rogers told the Waco Tribune-Herald. "We don't want to shut it down yet. We want to do a full national search."

Baylor also is searching for a new athletic director to succeed Menefee, retiring May 31.

Nice Guys Finish Last

NEW YORK (AP) - "Nice guys finish last" - that's what aggressive and boisterous Leo Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, said in 1946.

He was referring to the affable manager of the New York Giants, Mel Ott. As it turned out, Durocher was right. The Giants did finish last in the National League that year. Durocher's Dodgers tied for first place with the St. Louis Cardinals but lost in a playoff for the pennant.

Matching Age

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (AP) - When you're old enough for Medicare, shooting your age on a golf course is a notable event.

Senior pro Charles Sifford accomplished that feat by posting a 69 in the 1992 Aetna Challenge tournament in Naples, Fla.

Oldest Winners

NEW YORK (AP) - Age apparently didn't dim the vision of Oscar Swahn of Sweden, who won an Olympic gold medal in the shooting competition when he was nearly 65 years old.

Swahn was 64 years and 258 days old when he won the gold at the 1912 Olympic Games in Stockholm. The Guinness Book of Olympics Records says that makes Swahn the oldest gold medal winner among men in the Olympics.

The oldest gold medal winner among women, according to Guinness, is Liselott Linsenhoff of Germany. Linsenhoff was 45 years and 13 days old when she won the gold in the individual dressage event of the equestrian competition at the 1972 Olympics in Munich. She was also the first woman to win the top honor in that event.

Injury epidemic continues as Orioles collide

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Baseball and injuries are on a collision course this season, and Randy Milligan and Billy Ripken became the latest players to run smack into the path.

In the second big bang-up in two days, Milligan was knocked out when his head smashed into Ripken's shoulder as they chased a ground ball in Kansas City Wednesday night. But the Baltimore Orioles were more fortunate than the Chicago White Sox were 24 hours earlier - neither Milligan nor Ripken sustained any major injuries.

On Tuesday, the White Sox lost All-Star shortstop Ozzie Guillen for the season after he tore ligaments in his right knee when he ran into left fielder Tim Lincecum.

"Thank goodness, it doesn't look too bad right now," Orioles manager Johnny Oates said after his team's 2-1 victory over the Royals.

Milligan was unconscious for a few seconds after the accident.

"All I could think about was Mike Utley," Oates said, referring to the Detroit Lions' player who was paralyzed last year in an NFL game. "There weren't five words spoken in our dugout the rest of the game."

The mood brightened after the game when it was learned that Milligan had sustained no neurological damage and no broken bones. He spent the night in a hospital and is listed as day-to-day. Ripken was treated for a bruised shoulder and released.

The accident was the latest in a season that already has become the Year of the Injury. Nolan Ryan, David Justice, Kent Hrbek, Chris Sabo and Matt Keough are among the more than 90 players who have gone on the disabled list since spring training.

Rick Sutcliffe (3-1) won with a six-hitter.

Kevin Appier (0-2) lost again.

Indians 7, Blue Jays 2

Cleveland ruined Dave Stieb's return to the majors and stopped a 13-game losing streak against Toronto.

Stieb, sidelined for most of last season because of back surgery, had not pitched since May 22. The Blue Jays' former ace gave up a home run to Glenallen Hill in the first inning and three RBIs to Felix Fermin before leaving after six innings.

Albert Belle and Carlos Baerga later homered for the Indians. Charles Nagy (3-1) allowed two runs on seven hits in 6 2-3 innings.

The Indians' win at SkyDome was their first against the Blue Jays since last June 11.

Ripken's two-run double in the fifth put Baltimore ahead 2-1. In the bottom half of the inning, he and Milligan collided while going after Keith Miller's grounder, which went for a single.

Tigers 12, Rangers 8

Cecil Fielder led off the fifth inning with a 424-foot home run that broke a 7-all tie and led Detroit to victory in Texas.

Mickey Tettleton, Rob Deer and Travis Fryman also homered for the Tigers. Alan Trammell's two-run double and consecutive homers by Tettleton and Deer made it 6-0 in the first inning.

Mark Leiter (2-0) shut out Texas on two hits for 4 1-3 innings. Reliever Jeff Robinson (1-2) served up Fielder's shot.

Athletics 10, Angels 4

Mark McGwire homered in his first two at-bats, spoiling Chuck Finley's season debut and sending Mike Moore and Oakland to another victory.

McGwire, leading the majors with eight home runs, connected for solo shots in the first and third innings.

Finley also gave up a solo home run to Ricky Henderson before leaving after the third inning.

Moore (3-0) allowed one run on six hits in seven innings.

Twins 8, Mariners 1

Bill Krueger won for the third time in three starts, pitching Minnesota past Seattle at the Kingdome.

Krueger gave up one run on seven hits in eight innings.

The Twins tied a season high with 14 hits. They shelled Erik Hanson (1-3) for eight runs and nine hits in three-plus innings, including home runs by Brian Harper and Pedro Munoz.

Yankees 4, White Sox 3

Kevin Maas made up for a baserunning mistake by Roberto Kelly with a tiebreaking single in the ninth inning at Comiskey Park.

Kelly singled with one out in the ninth against Scott Radinsky (0-1) for his fourth hit of the game. Mel Hall followed with a drive over center fielder Lance Johnson's head, but Kelly missed second base, had to go back and touch the bag, and could only reach third. Maas followed with his go-ahead hit.

Steve Howe (2-0) pitched 1 1-3 perfect innings.

Reds, Dodgers play through quake

By The Associated Press

The big shakeup in the National League West has nothing to do with the Houston Astros moving into first place.

The Reds and Dodgers played right through an earthquake that hit Southern California Wednesday night, with Cincinnati winning 4-3 as a result of two errors by Los Angeles third baseman Lenny Harris.

The Reds and Dodgers noticed the Astros won. They didn't feel the quake a bit.

An earthquake measuring 6.3 on the Richter scale shook Dodger Stadium at 9:51 p.m. (PDT) in the bottom of the sixth inning. Although the stadium shook, play was not stopped and the players went about their business.

A crowd of 34,924 had little reaction and remained after the quake.

"What earthquake?" Dodgers outfielder Eris Davis said. "If you all say it was an earthquake, then it was an earthquake. I've felt earthquakes before. I'm from here. Every earthquake they've had, I've been here."

Reliever Scott Bankhead was warming up to face Darryl Strawberry when the quake hit. But Bankhead went right on with his warmups.

A TV camera in center field stayed away for about 10 seconds. Members of the media in the press box said phones went out for a few minutes, but electricity remained on.

"I didn't feel an earthquake," Reds manager Lou Piniella said. "We won the game, that's all I care about."

Harris, who entered the game as a pinch-hitter in the sixth and replaced Mike Sharperson in the field, misplayed grounders by Gary Green and Paul O'Neill in the seventh to help the Reds score the tiebreaking run.

Elsewhere in the NL it was Houston 3, San Francisco 1 in 12 innings; Chicago 9, Philadelphia 5; San Diego 9, Atlanta 4; Pittsburgh 2, Montreal 0; and New York 3, St. Louis 2.

Astros 3, Giants 1

At the Astrodome, Chris Jones hit a two-run homer in the 12th inning. Eric Yelding had a one-out single off loser Mike Jackson (0-1) and Jones then hit his first home run of the season, a drive to left field.

Xavier Hernandez (2-0) was the winner, pitching one hitless inning.

The Astros were one out away from a 1-0 victory when Robby Thompson homered off reliever Doug Jones in the ninth.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: An unforgettable subject in your column simply will not go away. I'm referring to that seemingly frivolous issue— which way a person should position the toilet paper when replacing a finished roll.

I always place a new roll in the "over" dispensing position and have even been known to reverse an "under" roll if someone in my household puts it that way.

Anyone who believes this issue is silly is mistaken. As a student at Union County College in New Jersey, I began doing a radio show on campus. Just for fun, I decided to take a poll at school, at my place of part-time employment, and everywhere I roamed with score sheet in hand. What I found was amazing.

After polling several hundred people, the results were as follows: 51 percent prefer "over," 37 percent prefer "under," and only 12 percent didn't care as long as it was there.

Even though many people laughed when they were asked, most had a strong preference and responded immediately.

I'd like to share some of the reasons people gave to justify their preferences. They said things such as:

"When the paper goes OVER, it is easier to employ the 'hit and spin' technique."

"I hang mine OVER so it doesn't touch the wall."

"I like it UNDER because then it rests against the wall, out of the way."

"You will use less paper if you put it UNDER, especially if you have small children or pets."

One respondent said, "Over" people are lazy. It takes more effort to reach when the paper is under."

Several respondents related stories of family arguments at the dinner table. I was told that there was actually an episode of "All in the Family" where Archie yells at "Meat-Head" for putting the paper "under."

I had a lot of fun with my survey and wanted you to know that after all these years, it's still a topic of discussion.—T.D.A. Union, N.J.

DEAR T.D.A.: I swore I would never print another letter on that subject, but yours was irresistible.

It never ceases to amaze me which subject turns readers on. Would you believe I got more letters on the toilet paper issue than on the Persian Gulf War? Yours will be the last.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I just had our first child. The first thing out of people's mouths when they see the baby is a comment on who they think the baby looks like.

All parents, deep down inside, like to think their baby resembles them or their side of the family. If you say, "He's the picture of his dad," the mother feels left out. If you say, "He looks just like his mother," the father feels left out.

The best response is: "He (or she) resembles Both parents."

Please don't mention anything about the baby resembling grandparents. Neither parent wants to hear that. I've never seen this topic discussed in your column and hope you'll print my letter—Faithful Reader in Oshkosh

DEAR OSHKOSH: If you really want to make some points with the parents, you might mention Richard Gere, Tom Cruise, Annette Bening or Michelle Pfeiffer.

Take safety break from drowsy driving

About 31 percent of the nearly 50,000 people killed on United States roadways each year die as a result of drowsiness and falling asleep at the wheel, a traffic fatality cause second only to drink driving.

One hotel chain has launched an aggressive new marketing campaign targeting fatigued drivers. "Research indicates that the peak period for fatigue-related accidents is between midnight and 7 a.m.," says Joe McInerney, president of travelodge International. "We want to encourage fatigued drivers to stop for the night,

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - Five stores have been charged with selling obscene material to minors after teen-agers sent by an anti-pornography group were allowed to buy 2 Live Crew's rap recording "Sports Weekend."

One of the store owners, Rodney D. Ferguson of Pickles Records & Tapes, insisted the music isn't obscene.

"I've never heard an obscene piece of music," he said.

On April 11, City Councilman Steve Exon and the group Omaha for Decency sent four youngsters, ages 13 to 17, to buy the recording, which bears the voluntary music-industry label "Parental Advisory Explicit Lyrics."

In 1990, a federal judge in Florida declared obscene the rap group's album "As Nasty as They Wanna Be."

before they become a danger to themselves and others."

The chain's safety campaign includes billboards and print advertisements that pose the safety issue in a creative way. It hopes the message will get through to the thousands of drivers who, whether on vacation or business, push themselves too hard.

One print ad shows a dreamy illustration of a headrest on a car seat and warns in safety orange type, "Caution: use of this device as a pillow can result in serious injury." Another, for the AAA Tour book, illustrates a blurry stretch of asphalt and the eyechart headline reads, "Your vision is blurred; your judgement is impaired and the only thing you've had to drink is coffee."

The copy goes on to explain the dangers of driving tired. Sleep-induced crashes are often the most destructive kind because a sleeping driver makes no attempt to avert collision and the result is often devastation, experts say. Signs of driver fatigue include:

- Difficulties in focusing; increase in blinking or even closing the eyes for a second.
- Drifting to either side of the road.
- Taking longer than normal to react to a dangerous driving situation.
- Failing to scan the roadway and mirrors—fixing the eyes on one side of the road or straight ahead.
- Not remembering the previous few miles on the trip.

Quilt to be given away

Two dollar donations will be accepted on a 1930s bow tie pattern collectible quilt to be given away during L'Allegria Study Club's annual geranium and frozen casserole sale planned Friday afternoon and Saturday at The Atrium. Tickets may be purchased from a club member or Barbara Kerr at Ect. Proceeds from the spring sale will be used to build a gazebo in Mother's Park. Examining the quilt are club members, from left, Sylvia Khuri, Margaret Carnahan, Joyce Lomas and DeeAnne Trotter. Advance geranium orders may be made by calling 364-7542.

The largest bee is Chalicodoma pluto, a mason bee about 1 1/2 inches long.

NEW YORK (AP) - "Mr. Television" Milton Berle is taking aim at senior coach potatoes.

The 83-year-old comedian has been named the president's special adviser on fitness for older adults. He's joining forces with Arnold Schwarzenegger, chairman of the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports.

"Although his profession ... is not known for a healthy lifestyle, Milton has always been one of the exceptions," Schwarzenegger said. "He still rides the stationary bike, does a lot of walking, shadow boxes, punches the heavy bag and maintains a healthy diet. He's a great role model for our older citizens."

Berle's first assignment is in Hollywood, where he'll tape a public service ad promoting regular exercise.

Save money, time when building dream house

Delays, extra expense and fractious workers: That's the usual scenario when you're involved in construction of a custom house.

Building in a down economy can change the script, according to Michael and Karen Morris, whose new house in Ossining, N.Y., is nearing completion after three and a half months of construction.

Morris, who acted as his own contractor for the 3,000-square-foot cedar contemporary of modified timber frame construction, summarizes some of the ways they saved money and time.

"When we were potting the foundation in November, the price of concrete was $10 a yard less than it had been in August. A guy from a lumber yard came to my site with a price list and asked for an opportunity to sell to me, and I was able to buy lumber from him at a good price. I also bought quite a bit of lumber when a local yard went out of business."

Although they were disappointed not to move into the house by Dec. 18 - Karen's birthday - progress has been swifter than the normal six months which a custom house of this size usually takes.

"Ordinarily, contractors have several jobs going and bounce their workers back and forth. I got people to come and stay until they finished," says Morris.

He was able to negotiate better terms with the excavator and to hire skilled carpenters who traveled 100 miles from a home base in eastern Long Island.

The Morrises have three adolescent children, and a need for more space motivated them to move from their old house in Ossining, a Westchester County suburb of New York. Although the housing market in the county is down severely, both their former house and one they rented during the construction period were sold before the new one was completed.

Morris, editor of Home Mechanix magazine, is an experienced carpenter. He wanted to manage the job himself, not only to save money but also as the fulfillment of a long-held desire to build his own house.

"What made it possible is we weren't building far away from our home base," says Karen Morris, a teacher who works nearby and came to the site every day before and after school. "As soon as the telephone pole went up, we got a phone so we could call and the workmen could reach us."

The Morrises got a contractor's estimate of $360,000 to build the house.

"I started working on the numbers, factoring in my own efforts and prices I knew I could get, and was able to bring the cost down to $260,000," says Morris. "I shopped half a dozen banks. Two required so much paperwork that I eventually abandoned them. Someone recommended First Federal Savings & Loan in Peekskill, N.Y. They were wonderful. It's like that commercial - you call up and they know who you are. We made a few changes and I expect the final cost to be $265,000."

Although they hired the usual subcontractors, they obtained all of the permits. Morris cut down trees on the densely wooded, hilly site, hiring a logger to help him and selling the lumber to a mill. The couple and their 15-year-old son, Daniel, marked out the long driveway over complicated terrain that included a stream, a hill and a bend.

"A surveyor told us it was a big job and a lot of money but that we could do it ourselves," says Morris, who estimates they saved about $1,000.

Using a cabinet full of design ideas they'd been collecting for years, they planned much of the house themselves with the long-distance help of an architect and a timber-framer, both located in the Midwest.

The house they settled on, a four-level contemporary with a New England feel to it, is zoned to separate family activities to some extent. At ground level is a large family room.

A half level up are three bedrooms and two baths for the children. A living room, dining room and kitchen are on the main level and the top floor is given over to a master bedroom, bath and dressing room. Several decks offer easy access to the outdoors.

As editor of a magazine that covers home remodeling, Morris was familiar with innovative building products and ideas. The house shell is constructed with panels that have finished interior and exterior surfaces and insulation.

High performance double-glazed windows retain heat in winter and repel it in the summer. A fiberglass door offers the look of wood with better insulating qualities. Bottled propane gas-fired radiant hot water heat is installed in the floors and although the building is very well sealed, an air exchanger will keep fresh air circulating and avoid the problem of toxin build-up which can afflict tight buildings.

Any regrets? "If I were to do it again, I'd hire a local architect to help me manage the project," says Morris. Even though he is highly motivated and was well prepared, he found building a house daunting, he admits.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I read your column concerning insulin-producing tumors. I have hypoglycemia (low blood sugar), and this concerned me. Could you send me a copy of your report on hypoglycemia?

Five months ago I was told I have hypoglycemia. They gave me a diet plan and sent me on my way. During my five-hour glucose-tolerance test, my sugar level dropped to 50. I have always been between 15 and 25 pounds overweight for my height. Could this have something to do with it?

DEAR READER: There are two general causes for hypoglycemia: reactive hypoglycemia that occurs after consuming sweets and starches and the overproduction of insulin because of a tumor. The latter is rare. The other is controversial.

Many would question your diagnosis. Why? Because it is agreed by authorities that you cannot diagnose reactive hypoglycemia unless a patient has a significantly low blood glucose level during such a test, a rise in insulin levels and, at the same time, the symptoms typical of hypoglycemia. Many normal people will have blood glucose levels of 50 and even less during a glucose-tolerance test. I have seen this repeatedly in top-notch athletes preparing for the Olympics.

If a person has an insulin-producing tumor, usually the fasting blood glucose level is low, but that is not true for reactive hypoglycemia. The concept is when as you ingest glucose or starch, which breaks down into glucose, that causes an excess release of insulin at the wrong time. The insulin causes the blood glucose to fall. Along with the fall are symptoms such as sweating and anxiety, which is because a low blood glucose level causes a release of adrenaline. Anxiety, without hypoglycemia, can cause the same symptoms.

To help you sort this out I am sending you a free copy of Special Report 88, Your Blood Glucose Level and Hypoglycemia. Others who want this report can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/88, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077.

Excess insulin will stimulate the appetite. The overeating that follows can result in obesity.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Recently in a health magazine, mention was made of a compound called deprenyl. It was alleged to be a possible aphrodisiac for some individuals and possibly of some benefit as a life-enhancement compound. Could you tell me more about deprenyl and its possible benefits? My doctor has never heard of it and doesn't want to.

DEAR READER: I am not surprised at your doctor's reaction. Deprenyl is an important medicine recently found useful in delaying the progress of Parkinson's disease. It's developer, Dr. Joseph Knoll, a Hungarian pharmacologist and professor at Semmelweis University of Medicine in Budapest, believes it prevents loss of brain cells. He thinks in addition to its use to delay Parkinson's disease - which is caused by degeneration of brain cells that form dopamine - it can prolong the potential life span from the current 115 to 145 years, because it prevents brain cell loss. He noted that male rats given deprenyl remained sexually active, lived longer and had better learning ability than rats not getting deprenyl.

There are no studies to show such a benefit in humans, but Dr. Knoll is undaunted and is taking it himself. Don't expect it to do much for impotence because most cases are caused by other factors such as poor circulation to the sex organs.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I read your column where you said you like the approach of rehabilitation for patients who have chronic obstructive lung disease. I have this problem and use inhalers. I wrote to the Lung Association and asked my doctor, but cannot get an answer for rehabilitation or exercises. My doctors says I should be happy I don't have to be on oxygen now.

Could you explain rehabilitation and exercise for me. I would really like to gain some level of activity and independence again if it is at all possible. I am 55 years old, female and haven't smoked in 12 years.

DEAR READER: There is a change in thinking about emphysema and chronic bronchitis, commonly lumped together as chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD). New thinking includes early treatment with medicines to stop inflammation and to relax the muscles in the airways to open them. The thought is that early disease may be reversed with early treatment.

Rehabilitation is not limited to individuals with early disease. Just learning to use abdominal breathing and exhaling through pursed lips often greatly improves a patient's physical tolerance.

Another important aspect of rehabilitation is to avoid the problems of loss of physical strength and other changes that go with inactivity. Even with relatively advanced disease, exercising one group of muscles, resting, then exercising the next group can help to keep the skeletal muscles in good shape and promote independence.

I am sending you Special Issue 37-02, Chronic Bronchitis and Emphysema, which provides an overview of what is being done with rehabilitation. Others who want this issue can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/37-02, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077. Your doctor can get more details by reading "Daily Living with COPD."

in Postgraduate Medicine, November 1, 1989, reported by the pulmonary group at the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine.

Strength exercises for the upper body are particularly important. Before such a program, some patients cannot groom themselves or raise their arms above their heads to comb their hair. Some individuals who have a successful rehabilitation program are able to return to work or resume activities they enjoy such as playing golf. Rehabilitation does pay dividends.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My 80-year-old mother was very active until she developed proctalgia fugax - severe rectal pain. We are not having any luck in relieving her pain. She has been to a diagnostic clinic and all studies are normal. We took her to the emergency room and they finally put her on Desyrel and Xanax for depression and her nerves. She has tried Kegel exercises, but they have not helped. Can anything be done?

DEAR READER: Proctalgia fugax is a cramp of the muscles that raise and lower the anus. You can identify these by "bearing down" and feeling them around the anus, then pulling the anus up. These are the levator ani muscles. I doubt that exercises of these muscle will help much, but the proper exercise would be bearing down and raising up the anus.

Daily massaging of the levator muscles and heat help. A reader suggested a warm tapwater enema to provide heat to the area. Massage usually does help muscle cramps.

Money-saving hints helpful when remodeling your home

Like any building skill, saving money on home remodeling projects is a technique that improves with practice. Here are some tips from Roger Bennett and Michael Morris, both experienced do-it-yourselfers:

- Shop around for the best prices. "My wife didn't swing a hammer, but she spent many hours shopping around for materials, which added up to considerable financial benefits for us," says Bennett.

"Prices for most building materials fluctuate from month to month, so you have to be alert to cut the best deal," says Morris. People have learned to get three bids when seeking a contractor. "It's the same thing when it comes to buying materials."

Lately, he adds, materials prices have been fluctuating downward because of a building recession. Don't wait to see an ad for a good price. You may, but if you don't, telephone or go in person.

- In a down economy, watch for going-out-of-business sales.

Morris profited when a local lumberyard went out of business by buying and stockpiling lumber at very good price. When you do find a good price, try to lock it in even if you aren't ready to take delivery. He used this ploy to get his roof shingles.

- Negotiate better deals with suppliers and contractors.

After you've gotten an estimate from a contractor, ask what you can do yourself to cut the price. By taking on the time-consuming process of securing permits, as the Morrises did, you may be able to lower the cost.

- Shop around for bank financing.

Even in hard times, a bank is in business to make loans, says Morris. Bank terms vary, so shop around.

- Buy used components for your project.

"So much second-hand material is still good. New doors are selling for $50 to $150. I bought old ones for $15 at a house wrecker's. I've got six-panel, two-panel and four-panel doors but it doesn't matter. They don't seem to clash," says Bennett.

Construction steel, hardware and plumbing fixtures are also available used at great savings, he adds. A steel I-beam cost $50 used, instead of hundreds of dollars new. Some fixtures, however, have been improved recently, so new ones are preferable.

Noisy pipes easily fixed

CHICAGO (AP) - That awful racket your plumbing pipes make usually can be diagnosed by sound and can be fixed easily, according to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau.

Banging or hammering results when water moving through a pipe comes to an abrupt stop. This shocks the pipe and causes it to jump.

A capped pipe extension behind faucets and toilets will serve as a shock absorber to prevent this kind of noise. This extension is filled with air. "The trapped air in each extension, or air chamber, acts like a cushion for the vibrations," says David L. Weiner of the bureau. "When the chambers lose air, they fill with water. This causes the banging."

He suggests draining or refilling the pipes to replace the air, or alternatively, mechanically injecting air into the chambers. If your plumbing system doesn't have these shock absorbers, they can easily be added at the site of the noise, he says.

Some can be threaded onto a fitting or the hose supplying a clothes washer, for example. Others may need to be soldered onto the pipe fitting. Pipes of different materials may need different types of shock absorbers, he adds.

Since pipes expand when hot and contract when cold, they can make creaking sounds. If they are suspended from hangers that fit too tightly, they will bind and release repeatedly with a tapping noise. Loosening the hangers or changing from metal to plastic will let the pipes move freely.

Rushing sounds means the pipes are either too small or clogged with corrosion. Plumbing contractors recommend using one-inch pipe for the main water supply and three-quarter-inch pipe for main branches and water heater. Half-inch branches can furnish water to dishwashers, sinks, tubs, showers, and clothes washers. Toilets and lavatories need three-eighths-inch pipe.

Vibrating noises have a number of causes, Weiner says. A loose anchor is the most likely cause if the vibration comes from behind a wall. Loose washers in faucets also can make slamming, hammering or trumpeting sounds.

Baseboard heaters can make gurgling, sloshing sounds when air bubbles get into the hydronic heating system, and thrashing and thumping usually come from a spring coupler in a circulator.
