Deadline for brands is Friday

Livestock raisers who want to be sure their brands will not be used by anyone else in the next 10 years must register the brands this week.

Deaf Smith County Clerk David Ruland, whose office handles brands registration, said Tuesday that the deadline for retaining a brand by registration is Friday.

"A brand can be registered anytime," Ruland said, "but if it isn't done by Friday, the owner risks losing the brand to someone else."

The number of brands recorded since the six-month registration period began last Sept. 1, is well below the number registered during the previous 10-year period, Ruland reported.

"We've had only 439 recorded," he said. The total registered during the 10 years beginning Sept. 1, 1981, was 1,476.

In Texas, brands must be registered in the counties in which they are used. Law provides for 10-year blocks for registration purposes.

Livestock owners are not required to register their brands but ordinarily do for identification.

Ruland reminded that even though a brand might have been registered less than 10 years ago, law requires that it be recorded again for the new 10-year period that began Sept. 1, 1991.

A fee of $5 per brand per location on an animal is charged. Livestock raisers who operate in more than one county should register the brand in each county.

A statewide brand registry is maintained by the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association. Counties provide the registrations to the association.

Girl honored for honesty

If you were a fourth grader and found a sack containing almost $200, mostly in quarters, would you:

a) Turn it in to police.
b) Keep it and not tell anyone.

If you are Julie Parrish, a fourth grader at Bluebonnet School, you turn it in to police.

Parrish was walking home from Bluebonnet last week when she found a money bag containing almost $200. She immediately took the sack to the nearest authority figure around: Janetta Britten, who works as a crossing guard on 15th at the Hereford YMCA.

Britten took the bag to the police station. Officer Danny Boyett took the bag and Britten's report of the young girl finding the money. Boyett was able to find out the money had come from the Coke machine at the YMCA.

Boyett took the money bag to the YMCA. He arrived at the same time as an Amarillo Coca-Cola route salesman who was frantically retracing his steps trying to find the bag.

Parrish received a letter of commendation and a six-pack of Coke from Amarillo Coca-Cola, a letter from Hereford Police Chief Caydon Brush, and a certificate from Boyett and DARE Officer Terry Brown for her actions.

Duke distances KKK relationship in area campaign

LUBBOCK (AP) - Louisiana Republican David Duke is again trying to put a little distance between himself and the Ku Klux Klan.

This time, Duke is pledging that his presidential campaign will not accept contributions from members of the white supremacist group.

"I am not seeking any Klan support," said Duke, a former grand wizard of the KKK. "I think different Klan groups have supported George Bush before. I think they have supported Ronald Reagan before. And I am not seeking their support."

"If there is somebody giving money that I know is (in the KKK) - and we have thousands of supporters - I will send it back. I am not interested in that money."

Duke, who says he left the Klan 12 years ago, made his first campaign trip to Texas Tuesday. Eight police officers escorted Duke to a conference room at the Lubbock International Airport for a press conference. There were no incidents.

Duke vowed to reform the welfare system and said Texas should fight illegal immigration from Mexico "with the same kind of intensity we had in defending the borders of Kuwait and Saudi Arabia."

Duke also spoke out against an American free trade agreement with Mexico, saying it would "cost jobs in the state of Texas."

"In Mexico they aren't worried about environmental standards, paying taxes or offering employees high-paying wages," Duke said. "So what happens when those products are given free access to American markets? It hurts our businesses and industries in the state and across America."

In other developments Tuesday, Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton's campaign said it would begin airing a television commercial Wednesday on CNN to target early voters. Absentee voting began last week and runs through March 6.

The commercial presents a brief biography of the Democratic presidential hopeful, touts his record on welfare reform, education, job creation and taxes, and says Clinton is "fighting for the forgotten middle class."

Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro, who chairs Clinton's campaign, also announced that former

It hurts our businesses and industries in the state and across America."--David Duke, GOP candidate, during Lubbock appearance.

U.S. House Speaker Jim Wright of Fort Worth would co-chair the campaign.

Duke said he has been late in launching his presidential bid due to his race for governor in Louisiana. Duke was defeated by Democrat Edwin Edwards in a runoff last November, after Duke knocked off incumbent Buddy Roemer in an open primary.

Duke said he hoped his conservative platform will play well in the 14 states where he is currently listed on the primary ballot.

Duke will make his debut in the presidential race in South Carolina's March 7 primary. He will be on seven of the "Super Tuesday" primary ballots March 10, including Texas.

"I expect to do very well in the state of Texas," Duke said. "I think a lot of the issues I have been talking about - equal rights, welfare reform, immigration reform - will be received well here."

Duke said he would make illegal immigration a major issue in his campaign.

"We must defend the Mexican-American border with the same kind of intensity we had in defending the borders of Kuwait and Saudi Arabia," Duke said.

Cole enjoys unforgettable night

NEW YORK (AP) - Natalie Cole's tribute to her late father - including a spiced-together duet with him on his signature song - yielded an "Unforgettable" evening for the singer, winning seven Grammy awards.

The 34th annual Grammys on Tuesday also marked R.E.M.'s long climb from rock's underground to the forefront with three awards, one for best alternative music album. Bonnie Raitt, the big winner of 1990, also won three Grammys.

"Unforgettable," Miss Cole's album of songs by her silken-voiced father, Nat "King" Cole, was named album of the year, and the duet on the title song was honored as best single and best traditional pop performance. The album also won Grammys for song of the year and for Miss Cole's arranger, producer and engineer.

"I thank my dad for leaving me such a wonderful, wonderful heritage," Miss Cole said. "And we're trying to be cool, but we love it!"

Miss Cole shared two of her trophies with her father, who won only one Grammy in his lifetime, in 1959 for "Midnight Flyer." He died of lung cancer in 1965. "Unforgettable," the duet, was created by splicing his version and hers in the recording studio.

"Unforgettable" represented a change in direction for Cole, who has dabbled in rock, jazz and rhythm and blues in a career that included a Grammy for best new artist in 1975.

"Unforgettable" also brought song of the year honors to Irving Gordon - who wrote the tune 42 years ago.

"It's nice to have a song accepted that you don't get a hernia when you sing it," Gordon said. He said later he was referring to Michael Bolton, who won the best male pop vocal Grammy for belting out "When a Man Loves a Woman."

Kurds going away by thousands

SUMOUD, Iraq (AP) - Aftaw Muhammed Nawkhas, a Kurdish peasant, was busy fixing lunch for her 11 grandchildren that spring day when the nightmare began.

"My sons were on their tractors. They came to the house and said, 'Run and hide, Iraqi army helicopters are coming,'" said the black-robed woman, her haggard face framed by a torn black lace scarf.

Mrs. Nawkhas said she and the other residents of Jaf, in northern Iraq, were rounded up that day in April 1988. Soldiers then separated her from her six children, daughter-in-law and grandchildren.

"That was the last time I saw them," she sobbed.

Mrs. Nawkhas is a survivor of what Kurds and international human rights organizations call the mass roundup and "disappearance" of tens of thousands of Kurds at the hands of the Iraqi army.

The series of operations, known as the Anfal, occurred in 1987-89, when the Iraqis razed and sometimes gassed Kurdish villages.

The Anfal - named after a battle against infidels described in the Koran - is pronounced by Kurds with the same horror as Holocaust.

But the scale of the actions is only becoming known now as Kurds and human rights groups are able to move freely in Kurdish-held northern Iraq and examine documents captured from Iraqi intelligence headquarters.

At the end of the Persian Gulf war, the Kurds rose against Saddam Hussein. The Iraqi president cracked down and about 1.5 million Kurds fled into Turkey and Iran. The Kurds regained control after a U.S.-led allied operation helped resettle them.

U.N. officials say Iraq claims the Anfal operations aimed to root out "saboteurs" during the Iran-Iraq war.

Minor injuries in accident

Leinen was going east on 13th; Farr was headed north on Star. Leinen was cited for failure to yield right of way and violation of driver's license restriction. A passenger in Leinen's car, Ronda Lee, 20, of Hereford, was taken to Deaf Smith General Hospital for treatment of injuries.

Union warns GM is 'playing with fire'

Forcing plant competition for jobs could draw strike

DETROIT (AP) - The United Auto Workers warned General Motors Corp. it is "playing with fire" if it tries to pit factory against factory in trying to cut costs and wring concessions from the union.

UAW Vice President Stephen Yokich said at a news conference Tuesday the union would consider a strike if GM continued to force plants to compete for jobs, although nothing was imminent.

The rebuke by GM's chief negotiator for the union came one day after the nation's biggest industrial corporation announced a record $4.5 billion loss for 1991 and identified the first of the plants it will close as part of a sweeping reorganization revealed two months ago.

In at least one plant closing, the factory with the cooperative union was spared from closure while an intransigent plant was given notice.

The choice aroused unionist complaints that GM was undermining hard-won contracts and making workers compete with each other for their jobs, a divide-and-conquer approach to labor relations.

"GM Chairman Robert Stempel and the corporation are playing with fire if they encourage plant-against-plant competition over work rules," said Yokich.

He said such a strategy, known in the industry as whipsawing, "would only lead to an ever-downward spiral of wages, benefits and working conditions."

Stempel has denied GM is whipsawing its factories. But labor-management experts said the cuts announced Monday - and those still to come - send a clearly militant message to the UAW.

That message is "Cooperate or else," said Harley Shaiken, a labor professor at the University of California at San Diego.

"GM is seeking to use the closing of some plants in part to transform its labor relations in the plants that remain open," Shaiken said.

Some analysts said the automaker has made it clear it is seeking concessions from the UAW - at the local level and in negotiations when the current 3-year national contract expires in 1993.

Whether GM intends to send union locals bidding against each other or not, some local presidents think they learned a lesson from Monday's announcement and see a chance to save their members' jobs by offering to cooperate on scheduling and other cost-saving measures.

The Arlington, Texas, assembly plant chosen Monday to remain open went against the national UAW, agreeing to discuss working four, 10-hour days a week and going to a 24-hour, three-shift production schedule.

At the Willow Run plant near Ypsilanti, Mich., workers made no mention of more flexible work schedules.

Both the Chevrolet Caprice and Buick Roadmaster are assembled at the two plants and it was widely expected that one would go.

At a truck plant in Moraine, Ohio, members of a union representing electrical workers ratified a contract that gives GM more flexibility in scheduling.

The plant wasn't on Monday's hit list. Stempel pointed to the electrical contract as an example of the type of concessions the company needs during these tough financial times.

The world's largest automaker said Monday it would close 12 facilities in Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, New York and Ontario, slicing 16,000 jobs. That was the first wave of a restructuring plan that Stempel said in December would close 21 operations and eliminate 74,000 jobs by 1995.

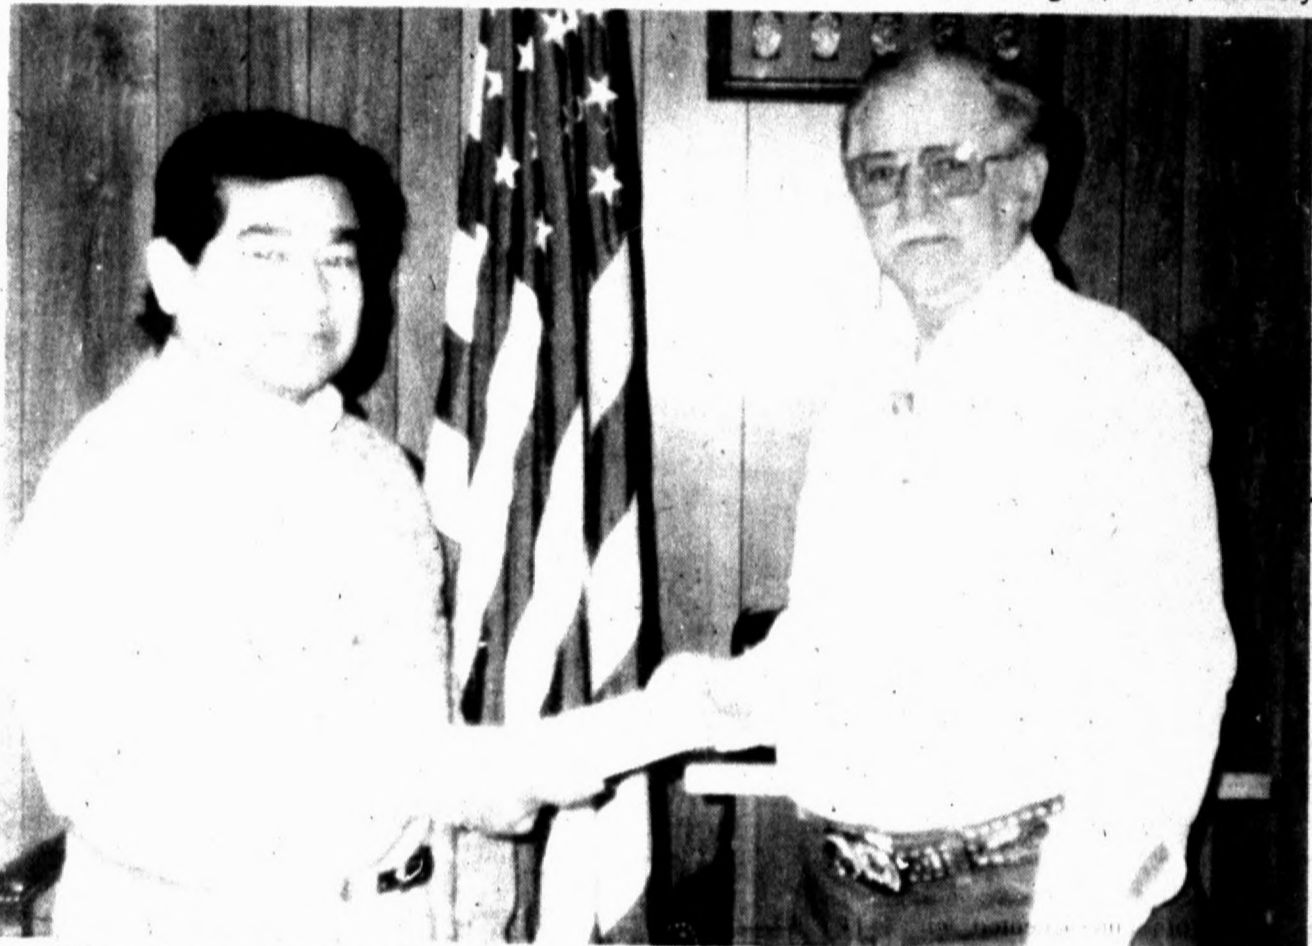

Still to go are four of GM's 37 remaining North American assembly plants and three component plants. Stempel said it would be months before any are identified. The closures will take place over the next three years.

Stempel has said that one or more of GM's five mid-size car plants are doomed. The five are in Kansas City, Kan.; Doraville, Ga.; Oklahoma City; Oshawa, Ontario, and Ramos Arizpe, Mexico.

Union leaders at Local 10 in Doraville, where 2,400 workers build the Cutlass Supreme, and Local 31 in Kansas City, whose 3,100 members make the Pontiac Grand Prix, said GM has not sought concessions from them. However, they strike different tones when the subject comes up.

At Local 31, President L.D. Edwards said no concessions have been proposed and none is considered.

At Local 10, President Jerry Hall said the union could be willing to bend if it meant saving the plant.

Panel refuses to preclear plan for state senate redistricting

WASHINGTON (AP) - The state of Texas has suffered yet another setback in its legal battle to gain approval for a state Senate redistricting plan that is not favored by the Justice Department.

A three-judge federal panel in Washington on Tuesday unanimously denied the state's request to preclear the plan approved last month by the Legislature.

State officials had not seen the ruling Tuesday afternoon and had no comment.

The Texas Attorney General's office had asked the judges to preclear the plan or force the Justice Department to decide whether the map meets federal guidelines.

The Justice Department and the Washington judges are the only ones that can preclear redistricting maps under the Voting Rights Act, which protects the rights of minorities.

Last November, the Justice Department approved an earlier version of the state Senate plan - which is identical to the map passed in special session by lawmakers. But the agency later changed course and threw its support behind a rival state Senate map drawn by a three-judge federal panel in Austin, sparking the latest legal challenges.

Tuesday's ruling was the latest against the state, which twice has been denied by the U.S. Supreme Court in recent days. The high court earlier refused to postpone the Senate primary, scheduled for March 10, and on Monday refused to speed up its review of the state's challenge.

The attorney general's office and Democrats are fighting the court-ordered plan on the grounds it was tainted by partisan politics and discriminates against minorities.

Texas Republican Party Chairman

Fred Meyer called on Texas Attorney General Dan Morales to end his "frivolous" efforts to overturn the court plan.

"We've got problems with the lottery, we've got problems with school financing, we have various agencies of the state government that have to go for outside counsel because the attorney general is too busy jousting with windmills."

Morales has a motion pending before the Supreme Court to vacate the court plan and remove one of the Austin judges from the case. Texas also has challenges pending in the Texas Supreme Court and Austin federal court.

How to get child support

Getting the child support your child needs and deserves is easier if you take these three important steps.

*Take inventory of all the assets you and your spouse own.

*Evaluate your needs-focusing on your child: his or her special talents, education, etc.

*Select a qualified attorney.

According to an eye-opening new book Child Support (Summit, $19) by Carole A. Chambers, the strongest factor in determining the amount of child support you will receive after a divorce or separation is the amount your spouse can afford to pay. This is true if your reach a mutual agreement or if the determination is left to the court in the event you fail to agree. That's why it's extremely important that you record everything you know when taking inventory in the area of finances.

Chambers has written a total reference manual. Child Support covers everything from facing intimidation in court to distinguishing among payment increment plans; from determining your ex-spouse's assets to establishing an education trust. It includes sample forms and the names and addresses of agencies and organizations that can help.

Herd baseball opens with loss to Tascosa

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

Hereford's varsity baseball team started off the season by finding out what they need to work on: defense. The Herd committed nine errors and allowed Tascosa to score in every inning. The result was a 12-7 loss in the Herd's season opener Tuesday in Amarillo.

Hereford started out well, scoring five runs in the top of the first inning, but then the Rebels answered with one run in the bottom of the first, three runs in the second, two in the third, then 3, 2 and 1 in the final three innings. In all but the first inning, an error contributed to the runs. Only four of the 12 runs were earned.

"I thought we made strides offensively, but defensively, we've got a lot of work to do," Coach T.R. Sartor said. "Our pitching's going to be plenty good, but we've got to play the ball behind these guys."

Sammy Casarez started and took the loss. He lasted two and two-thirds innings despite allowing only two earned runs. He gave up five hits while striking out two batters.

Ralph Holguin and Richard Rodriguez followed Casarez to the mound. Each allowed one earned run—Holguin in one and a third inning, Rodriguez in two. Holguin gave up two hits and Rodriguez gave up three.

Sartor said the shaky defense didn't seem to rattle the pitchers.

"It didn't show, but that's got to hurt," he said.

Rene Cano led off the game with an infield single to start off the Herd's offensive fireworks. He stole second, then after Rodriguez reached on the shortstop's error, they pulled off a successful double steal.

Ruben Ramos's single knocked both runs in. Tab Hathaway flared a single over first base, putting runners on first and third, and Michael Campos tripled past a diving left-fielder, plating two more runs. Richard Sanderson, courtesy-running for Campos (the catcher), came home on a ground-out by Jake Head.

The Whitefaces didn't score again until the fourth, when they got two. Cano reached on the shortstop's error and stole second. Rodriguez walked, and the pair executed another double steal. Richard Wilbanks' infield single brought Cano home, and Rodriguez scored on a delayed double steal.

Cano and Rodriguez each stole four bases in the game, and Sartor estimated the team totaled 12 thefts.

The Herd opens at home Friday, when they meet the Amarillo High Sandies at 4 p.m.

Conway cards double eagle

Tom Conway shot a double eagle on No. 17 at Pitman Municipal Golf Course Saturday, course pro Dave Kaesheimer said.

Conway used a 5-wood for both of his shots on the 535-yard par-5 hole.

Whirlaway, in 1942, became the first race horse to reach $500,000 in earnings.

Borger freezes out Herd netters, 17-5

The Hereford tennis team got blasted in a dual match with Borger Tuesday. The Herd won only five of the 22 matches played.

"I don't what happened to us tonight. Everybody's feet were frozen to the ground," Coach Natalie Sims said.

The girls got Hereford's other two wins. Brooke Weishaar beat Hailee Holt, 6-1, 4-6, and Robyn Sublett and Bri Reinauer beat Holt and Monica Lindsey, 6-3, 6-0 in doubles.

Otherwise, the Bulldogs ruled the courts. In boys' singles: Barry

Tark threatens court action

LAS VEGAS (AP) - Jerry Tarkanian, who claims he is being pushed off the court by UNLV officials, may find himself in court in a last ditch bid to save his job.

Attorneys for the UNLV basketball coach say they'll go to court if he is not allowed to rescind his resignation and continue coaching next year.

Meanwhile, a UNLV professor has joined in the call for a two-year suspension of the basketball program, a suggestion first made last week by a Las Vegas newspaper columnist.

Attorneys for the coach delivered a letter to UNLV president Robert Maxson Tuesday, declaring Tarkanian's resignation of June 6, 1991 to be null and void. The resignation was to have been effective July 1, 1992, but Tarkanian told supporters Sunday night that he was withdrawing it.

The five-page letter to Maxson said Tarkanian was "coerced and pressured" into signing the resignation agreement.

Both Maxson and Don Klasic, legal counsel for the Nevada University System, have said the resignation is legal and binding. Maxson has called Tarkanian's resignation a dead issue.

Attorneys Chuck Thompson and Alan Jones contend a "civility agreement," which was part of the resignation was violated by UNLV officials. University officials have confirmed the civility agreement, but say it was violated by Tarkanian, not UNLV.

The letter charged that UNLV officials:

- Intentionally distributed false negative publicity about Tarkanian to the media;

- Presented Tarkanian in a "false light" and "demeaning manner" at a secret Board of Regents meeting last year;

- Provided false information to the NCAA to "weaken and diminish" the basketball program's ability to defend itself against the agency;

- Disseminated "false and fraudulent information" to the Las Vegas community to embarrass Tarkanian;

- Conspired with certain regents to create circumstances to embarrass Tarkanian.

The letter contends that if Tarkanian had known of such circumstances he would not have resigned.

It also contends that Maxson and UNLV legal counsel Brad Booke forced Tarkanian to meet them outside the presence of his attorneys and told the coach he "would be destroyed in the media" if he didn't resign.

Booke said it was "perfectly ridiculous" to suggest Tarkanian was coerced into the resignation and said it was the coach and his followers who violated the civility agreement.

Maxson Tuesday repeated previous statements that Tarkanian's resignation was legally binding, adding "the matter is closed."

While the flap over the resignation continued, a UNLV professor called on the school's Faculty Senate to pass a resolution calling for a two-year suspension of the basketball program.

Jim Deacon, UNLV professor of biology and director of the school's environmental studies program, submitted the resolution, saying the furor over the high profile basketball program has resulted in "irreparable damage."

Dean Jupe, sports editor of the Las Vegas Sun, suggested last Friday that the only solution to the ongoing problems at UNLV might be to shut down the basketball program for two years.

Maxson said Tuesday that such a moratorium was not an option.

"We're not going to eliminate men's basketball," Maxson said. "It's our intention to continue the great tradition of UNLV basketball."

Tarkanian's resignation came following publication of photos showing three former players with convicted sports fixer Richard Perry. The No. 7-ranked Rebels, 24-2, are banned from television and postseason play this year as a final resolution of a 14-year battle between Tarkanian and the NCAA.

In addition, the university faces allegations of 29 new NCAA infractions. And the Las Vegas Review-Journal reported Feb. 13 that the FBI was investigating rumors of point shaving by some members of the 1990-91 team.

Tarkanian and members of the team have vehemently denied the rumors.

Herd trio sets school records

Hereford boys basketball players set three school records for individual performances in a season in 1991-92.

Leo Brown had 264 total rebounds for the year to break one record. Brown led Hereford in many statistical categories, including scoring, rebounding and steals. Brown had 42 blocked shots. The rest of the team had 27.

Richard Sanderson's 153 assists this season were the most ever by a Whiteface, and Kyle Hansen drew 19 charging fouls in '91-92, also setting a record.

Lee Laughs

PONTE VISTA, Fla. (AP) - Joining the PGA Senior Tour did not diminish Lee Trevino's sense of humor.

"One of the nice things about the Senior Tour," Trevino commented, "is that we can take a cart and a cooler. If your game is not going well, you can always have a picnic."

Pitt pounds UConn; saves tourney hopes

PITTSBURGH (AP) - A few weeks ago, this game figured to affect the Big East Conference race. It did, sort of - Connecticut and Pittsburgh now find themselves tied for the second-division lead.

That's what losing six of seven games did to Connecticut. That's what losing three in a row and four of five did to Pittsburgh.

Such second-half slumps can be disastrous with tournament time just two weeks away. Coaches know it's difficult to build postseason momentum when a team is losing - and losing, - late in the season. And the NCAA selection committee frowns upon choosing teams that are on decided downers.

That's why Pitt is again talking up the NCAA tournament after its much-needed 86-77 victory Tuesday night over No. 24 Connecticut - and why the Huskies are looking down on fewer and fewer teams in the Big East standings.

"The coaches said this was the most important game of the season," Pitt point guard Jerry McCullough said. "In practice, all they said was, 'Connecticut, Connecticut, NCAA tournament.'"

In the only other game involving a Top 25 team, No. 22 Syracuse scored a 76-70 victory over Boston College in another Big East game.

Pitt (16-12, 8-7), which has at least four games remaining, realistically needs to win twice more to make the 64-team NCAA field. A loss to Connecticut (17-7, 8-7), which had beaten Pitt five straight times, might have shifted Pitt's focus from the NCAA to the NIT.

"All we're focused on right now is the NCAA," said Pitt center Darren Morningstar, who scored 19 points. "We haven't been as consistent as we should have been, but keeping our focus now shouldn't be a problem. We know what we have to do."

What the Panthers did was push the ball inside to Morningstar and Chris McNeal, who had 23 points and 12 rebounds in his best game in weeks. McNeal had scored more than 12 only once in Pitt's previous six games and hadn't scored this many since his 25-point game against Marshall on Dec. 19.

"I think this was a coming out party for me," McNeal said.

Pistons get past Bulls after eight failed tries

By The Associated Press

The Detroit Pistons beat the Chicago Bulls the old-fashioned way - with spectacular guard play and tough rebounding.

Winless in eight games against Chicago since last April 12, the Pistons edged the Bulls 108-106 on Tuesday night as Joe Dumars scored 28 points, Isiah Thomas had 24 points and 13 assists and Dennis Rodman had 20 rebounds, helping Detroit to a 46-35 advantage on the boards.

"It was a good win for us," Thomas said. "It was the first time we were in a tough game and won. We did the right things down the stretch."

"It was a game they wanted to win so they could get mentally prepared for the playoffs," said the Bulls' Pippen, who scored 33 points. "Their guards really took it to us."

But it wasn't until the final second that the Pistons' first victory over Chicago in nine tries was assured.

The Bulls had a chance to force overtime when Horace Grant stole Rodman's inbounds pass with 15 seconds remaining.

But backup guard Darrell Walker prevented the Bulls from going to their designed play - a 3-point attempt by Craig Hodges - and Dumars blanketed Michael Jordan, forcing an airball by the NBA's leading scorer.

"I could only get up close to Michael to make him change the shot," Dumars said. "I don't think I blocked it."

"There was no way I was going to leave Hodges," Walker said. "He had already made a 3-pointer on me a few seconds earlier. Michael could have walked in for a layup. I was not going to leave Hodges."

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was New Jersey 109, Boston 95; Charlotte 94, Milwaukee 82; San Antonio 123, Miami 101; and Utah 106, the Los Angeles Clippers 101.

The Bulls-Pistons game reversed a recent trend in which Detroit couldn't sustain any offense against Chicago.

The Pistons had averaged 94.3 points and topped 100 only twice in their previous 12 games against the Bulls. In their first three games this season, Detroit averaged 90.3 points against Chicago.

"Their guards really got off and it was tough to contain them," said Jordan, who scored 23 points. "They took tough shots and they made them. If they didn't have a shot, they rotated. You have to give them credit."

Spurs 123, Heat 101

David Robinson scored 26 points and San Antonio beat Miami for its ninth victory in 10 home games.

Leading 61-58 late in the second quarter, the Spurs scored the final five points of the half and 10 of the first 13 in the third quarter to take a 76-61 lead that the Heat never threatened. The Heat hit just 30 percent of their third-quarter shots en route to their 11th 20-point loss of the season, including 10 on the road.

The Heat, playing without injured Glen Rice, got 25 points from Grant Long and 15 points and 14 rebounds from Rony Seikaly.

Terry Cummings had 19 points and 10 rebounds for the Spurs.

Help your heart this month

Q. How can I tell if I'm in danger of a heart attack?

Medical research has identified a number of characteristics called risk factors which are likely to be found in heart attack victims. These include a family history of heart disease, high blood pressure, high cholesterol, obesity, sedentary life style, smoking and diabetes. While no factor predicts a heart attack directly, those with several are more in danger than those with none. Your doctor can advise you about your risk and whatever changes in diet, personal habits and medication you should make to minimize them.

Q. What are the warning signs of a heart attack?

Chest pain or pressure, often spreading to the arm, neck or back is the most common sign. In cases of heart attack, this pain is usually present more than half an hour. Common associated symptoms include shortness of breath, nausea, abnormal sweating, weakness and dizziness. In people with angina, a change in frequency or duration of pain may signal a heart attack. Some people experience no chest pain. In certain cases, sensations of gas pressure or indigestion may be the only symptoms.

Q. When should I call my doctor?

Mild or intermittent symptoms similar to those described above should be reported to your doctor by telephone and soon followed by an office visit.

Q. Is an ambulance really necessary for someone with chest pains?

In cases of severe or prolonged chest pain, an ambulance is the best and safest way to react the Emergency Department. Most heart attack deaths occur within two hours of the onset of pain. Paramedic ambulances carry advanced medicines and machinery which can be used immediately should someone collapse or be in distress. Ambulances can also radio to a physician specializing in emergency medicine for further instructions. In most cases, the medic will alert the hospital so necessary equipment and personnel are available when the ambulance arrives.

For answers to your questions about emergency medicine, send them to: "What You Should Know," American College of Emergency Physicians (ACEP), P.O. Box 65752, Washington, DC 20035-5752.

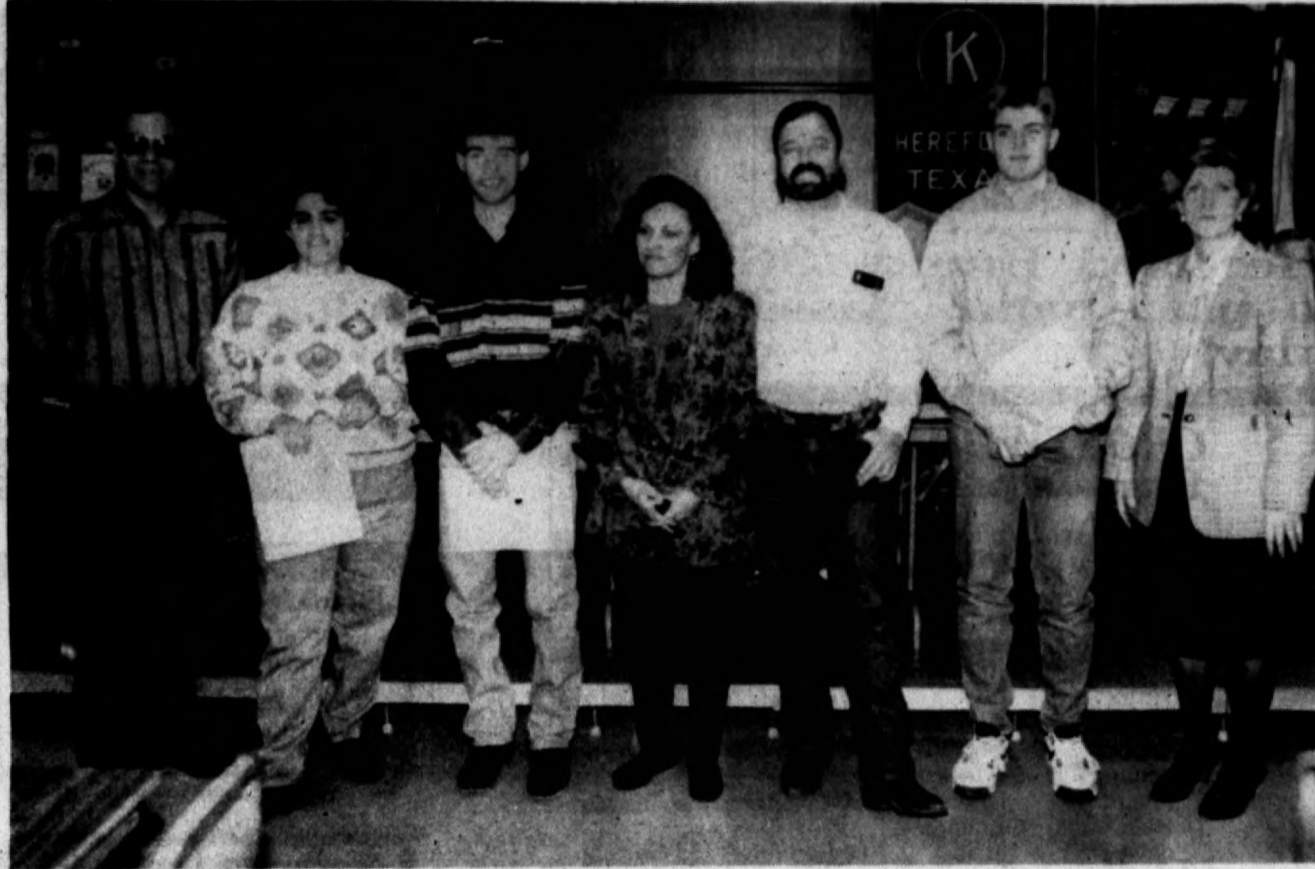

Postal pointers

Your mail can let you know when it arrives.

Send a letter or package by registered or certified mail, for example, and for a small fee a return receipt will be sent to you upon delivery. In addition, you get a mailing receipt, and a record of delivery is kept at the addressee's post office, so you'll know exactly when you mail got where it was going.

If you have questions or problems with postal products or services visit your local postmaster or write to: Consumer Advocate, U.S. Postal Service, RM 5821, 475 L'Enfant Plaza West, SW, Washington, DC 20260-2200. We'll help you get our best.

The famous crack in the Liberty Bell occurred while it tolled for the death of Chief Justice John Marshall on July 8, 1835.

Kiwanis honor top students

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from the woman to her husband who worked all the time really got to me because my husband is also a workaholic. He regularly works on Saturdays and often Sundays as well. He averages 10 to 12 hours a day.

Our three children are grown and doing well. We have purchased annuities for them and our four grandchildren. We give generous gifts of money for birthdays and Christmas and enjoy the fact that we can.

We have two cars, a lovely home, no debts and approximately $1 million in assets. Sounds good? Well, we also have no hobbies. We haven't had a vacation in years except for a couple of weekends when we visited our children and their families.

I was a professional woman and worked both inside and outside the home. We are both in our 70s. When does the fun start?—The Big Q

DEAR Q: The fun started for your husband a long time ago. Workaholics would rather work than play, which is why they do it.

Mates of workaholics must make their own fun. If you're in your 70s and haven't discovered that, you're a slow learner, honey.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: AIDS is not about sex or drugs. It is about knowledge and education. Parents should explain to their children what NOT to do in order to avoid contracting this deadly virus, but they also must teach them about safe sex. If parents fail to do this, they are gambling with their children's lives.

Even education is no guarantee. Magic Johnson is an educated and knowledgeable adult, but he made a mistake which, even if it doesn't kill him, has tragically altered his life.

Nonetheless, it is an absolute certainty that children stand a better chance of avoiding AIDS if they are informed.

If you gamble that your children's ignorance will not kill them and you lose, you will pay a heavy price. You'll spend the rest of your life suffering from guilt.

If you are not capable of teaching your children, then see that they are taught by someone who is knowledgeable and competent.

Do it for your children. Do it for yourself.—R.W., Carpenteria, Calif.

DEAR CALIF.: If parents are not well enough informed to talk to their children about AIDS, they can send for a free booklet by writing: The AIDS Prevention Guide, Centers for Disease Control, National AIDS Clearinghouse, P.O. Box 6003, Rockville, Md. 20849-6003.

Another bit of valuable information appears in the next letter:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In a minor news story, buried in the back of the paper, I read that the Food and Drug Administration was forcing condom manufacturers to change their labeling. Only LATEX condoms provide protection against AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases. "Natural" condoms (lambskin, for example) do not.

It seems that the natural condoms, while effective for birth control, are porous and therefore will not stop the transmission of diseases like AIDS.

Ann, please use the immense power of your column to let everyone know that if the condom isn't latex, it isn't protection against AIDS or any other venereal disease.—G.C., Marblehead, Mass.

DEAR MARBLEHEAD: I also want to let my readers know that the failure rate of condoms is anywhere between 11 percent and 13 percent. This means even "safe" sex is sometimes not safe. Only total abstinence is 100 percent safe.

Planning a wedding? What's right? What's wrong? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" will relieve your anxiety. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Brides, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Masters and Johnson, the famous sex researchers, are getting a divorce.

Dr. William Masters, 76, and Virginia Johnson Masters, 67, said Wednesday they planned to divorce after 21 years of marriage.

The decision was "based on differences in the goals each has for the balance of their lives," said William Young, director of the Masters & Johnson Institute in St. Louis. The clinic treats people with sexual problems.

Masters and Johnson, who spurred the sexual revolution with their books "Human Sexual Response" and "Human Sexual Inadequacy," will continue their 35-year professional partnership, Young said.

America examines condition of health care system

Americans have a healthy interest in the condition of our health care system, a recent survey found—and upon examination, they'd definitely like to see it improve.

Only four percent of the 3,100 adults polled—one person in 25—scored the country's medical services as "excellent." One in five respondents (20 percent) ascribed the lowest possible rating of "poor," and more than a third—a substantial 35 percent—gave a lukewarm rating of "OK." A solid 55 percent majority, therefore, believe health care is either "poor" or merely "OK."

The mail and telephone survey, conducted by Restivo Communications for the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs, a 170-year-old fraternal and sororal order with 300,000 members in the U.S. and Canada, pointed to high cost as the health-care issue of greatest concern among 71 percent of the respondents.

More than 7 percent of those polled blamed "poor management," including doctor and hospital fraudulent billing practices, as the root cause of high health-care costs, while 63 percent said costs have escalated because "Equipment and salaries are expensive."

According to Restivo, whose company conducted the poll, "the tone of the survey reflects general dissatisfaction with the health care system, and that people are looking for affordable and reliable health care."

"Some deeper threads cut below the surface of these figures," Restivo adds. "For instance, the relatively small four percent minority that issued a medical care grade of excellent happened to be relatively well-off, and in a position to afford the best medical insurance coverage. The mirror image is that the other 96 percent views the health care scene as something less than excellent."

WHEN YOU HAVE SOMETHING TO SELL, NEWSPAPER SELLS IT BEST.

No matter what it is you're selling, newspaper can sell it best. You can show it. Describe it. Explain it. Compare it. Offer a coupon for it. And cover your entire marketplace with it. All in one day. And for a lot less than radio and TV.

And the unique thing about newspaper is that it adds credibility to your message. People believe it when they read it in the paper. Maybe that's why retailers use newspaper more than any other medium?

Residents at Westgate and King's Manor in Hereford were honored recently at a Valentine's celebration. Named as Valentine's couple at Westgate were Mr. and Mrs. Clint Honnol. The Valentine's King at King's Manor was Sam Sides, and Buzzie Peeler was named Valentine's Queen.

New exhibit to open at historical museum

The Panhandle-Plains Museum announces the March 1 opening of "Canyon Landscapes: Historical and Contemporary Views," exhibited in celebration of the Columbus Quincentenary. The exhibit will continue through January, 1993, and is located in the Photograph Gallery on the first floor of the main museum building.

Palo Duro Canyon has long been a source of wonderment, awe and enjoyment to its visitors. Its scenery, wildlife and geologic formations have inspired artists and photographers to capture these works of nature on canvas and film. This exhibit combines the early black and white images of the canyonlands in the collections of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum with the recent color photography of Scott Burgan, producing "then and now" views of similar scenes.

The early images of the canyon are the lithographs of H. Lawrence, which were published in Randolph B. March's report to the U.S. Congress on the exploration of the Red River of Louisiana in 1852. The Marcy expedition was the first exploration of the upper Red River and Palo Duro Canyon made by Anglo-American explorers. The party entered the canyon on July 1, 1852. Then, as now, the visitors were overwhelmed by the magnitude and beauty of the spot. According to Marcy's journal, "We all, with one accord, stopped and gazed with wonder and admiration upon the panorama which was now for the first time exhibited to the eyes of civilized man. Occasionally might be seen a good representation of the towering walls of a castle of the feudal ages, with its giddy battlements pierced with loopholes, and its projecting watch-towers standing out in bold relief upon the azure ground of the pure transparent sky above. It was as if it had been designed and executed by the almighty artist as the presiding genius of these dismal solitudes." These lithographs are romantic exaggeration, very likely executed in that fashion to attract the greatest amount of interest in the region as possible.

Think about this: the sudden breaking off of a thought is known as apoplepsis.

Beware of quick cures

For the more than three million Americans who stutter, and the people who care about them, there's both new hope, and new hype.

If you're affected by the communication handicap, be skeptical of treatments that sound too good to be true, warns speech language pathologist Dr. Barry Guitar of the University of Vermont.

The Stuttering Foundation of America offers a nationwide resource list of certified speech language pathologist who specialize in stuttering as well as free informative brochures on the prevention and treatment of stuttering. To obtain both, call the toll-free hotline on stuttering at 1-800-92-9393 or write: Stuttering Foundation of America, P.O. Box 11749, Memphis, TN 38111-0749.
