Thursday, Feb. 27, 1992Hereford Brand*Hustlin' Hereford, home of Jessica Smith*91st Year, No. 167, Hereford, Deaf Smith County, Texas*10 Pages*25 Cents*New pro plans golf course change*By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Hereford's new golf pro is planning major changes in the operation of John Pitman Municipal Golf Course to make the course an even bigger drawing card for area golfers.

Dave Kaesheimer, who moved to Hereford two months ago, told the Hereford Lions Club on Wednesday that he is open to suggestions from anyone on the course operation.

"I work for you," said Kaesheimer. "If you see something we're doing wrong or something we're doing better, tell me."

Kaesheimer said the course will be undergoing major changes in the next few months. The biggest change will be with a new underground watering system to be installed on the front nine holes before May 1. The front nine, the original part of the course, has been watered with above-ground pipes. The newer back nine was constructed with an underground system.

"The effectiveness and amount of watering on the front nine has been at the mercy of the people doing the watering," Kaesheimer said.

The pro added that he plans changes in the course maintenance program that should approve the appearance of the course and improve play.

"We've just had a basic maintenance program. We can improve the way the course plays with a better maintenance program, including changing the way the greens are mowed."

Kaesheimer also wants some beautification programs that may not affect play but will aid appearances. Some of the effort has already begun, with repainting of some structures and a general cleanup campaign that revealed, among other things, a cement floor in the cart shed.

He said he would also like to add another set of tees for each hole.

"Right now we have ladies tees, the regular tees and the championship tees," Kaesheimer said. "The course is probably fine for a five-handicap player, but it unfairly penalizes a 15-handicap player. We're unfairly penalizing our senior golfers, and that is a major part of our business."

The funds to pay for the changes will come from changes in course operations. City Manager Chester Nolen reconfigured course operations last year. The city now owns the golf carts and the inventory in the pro shop. That has resulted in a large increase in revenues coming to the city.

Kaesheimer, whose prior experience has been with private and military courses, said the course could be a big boost for Hereford's image in the area.

DAVE KAESHEIMER

"Amarillo has too few courses for the players they have, and we're going to try to attract more of those golfers," he said. "We can also draw more golfers from other towns. That's going to help everyone, whether it's Allsup's or K-Bob's or gas stations or whoever."

To attract regional golfers, Kaesheimer said he will probably change the way tee times are set while still catering to the needs of the large local golf community.

"We have about 36 tournaments planned this year, and at least half of those are charity tournaments," said Kaesheimer. "We're happy to work with anyone for a charity event."

VanderZee acquitted on charges

A former Hereford man and his co-defendant were acquitted today by a federal judge of charges of money laundering in a trial in which evidence included a photograph of President Bush shaking hands with an accused drug kingpin.

U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton of Midland agreed to a directed verdict of acquittal for Herbert Pounds Junior and Harlan VanderZee, both former officers of Stone Oak National Bank in San Antonio. The motion was filed by the defense.

The two were accused of laundering $750,000 in drug profits.

VanderZee is a former officer of Hereford State Bank. Several friends from Hereford had gone to San Antonio for the trial; some had been subpoenaed to testify in VanderZee's behalf.

Salinas was arrested in 1989 along with 33 others and charged with drug trafficking.

Prosecutors contended Pounds and VanderZee disguised drug proceeds by buying certificates of deposit, which Salinas used to borrow money from Stone Oak. VanderZee, in conversations with Hereford residents, had pointed out that Salinas' story had completely checked out through several bank investigations.

Smear tactics increasing in campaigns

WASHINGTON (AP) - The presidential advertising race is in full stride as the campaign fans out nationwide during the next two weeks. For the campaigns, it's expensive. For the voters, it's getting nastier.

Attack ads flooded the airwaves Wednesday in Georgia and they're likely to spread quickly through the 20 other states with primaries and caucuses between now and Super Tuesday March 10.

Republican Pat Buchanan is accusing the Bush administration of investing tax dollars in "pornographic and blasphemous art too shocking to show," reneging on its no-new-taxes pledge and being "trade wimps."

Bush countered with an ad that branded the GOP challenger as a "disappointment to all Americans" for opposing the Persian Gulf War.

It's not much friendlier on the Democratic side. Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton, just days after airing an ad accusing his opponents of "misleading, negative attacks," released his own ad portraying Paul Tsongas' economic plan as the same as "what went wrong in the '80s."

And Tsongas is branding his opponents' proposed middle-class tax cuts as election year gimmicks that will worsen the deficit.

Iowa Sen. Tom Harkin's campaign leaked word of a radio ad to a newspaper that accuses Clinton of seeking political gain by overseeing the execution of a black man recently in Arkansas. Harkin's camp says it never intended to run the ad and reprimanded the aide who leaked it.

Even though some candidates pledged to stay positive in advertising, "I think everyone deep down wants to go negative and once one does, the others feel free to join in," said Richard Noyes, the elections project director for the Center for Media and Public Affairs.

Noyes said it's more cost-effective to use a controversial commercial.

"It'll be aired over and over again in the free news media. ... It's more bang for the buck," he said.

Kathleen Jamieson, dean of the University of Pennsylvania's Annenberg School of Communication, said as the ads become more negative the "level of factual inaccuracies is going to increase markedly."

The candidates also will appear less often in the ads to avoid public backlash if an ad is perceived as too negative, she said.

After months of campaigning in person and tailoring commercials to the unique electorates in New Hampshire and South Dakota, the candidates must scramble over the next 13 days to reach diverse voters in 21 states.

The effort requires the campaigns to churn out ads almost daily, using poll data to craft messages to the circumstances of each state while preparing quick responses to opponents' attacks.

It also requires bundles of money to buy time in expensive media markets like Florida, Georgia, Massachusetts and Texas - something most candidates don't have in a relatively slow fund-raising year.

While Bush and Clinton - the fund-raising leaders - should be able to buy air time comfortably the rest likely will be forced to choose only some states for advertising, foregoing others, said Bob Squier, a Democratic media consultant.

"It really becomes a question of what you have to do with and where you'll be able to do it," he said.

SCHOOLS IN TURMOILCost-cutting hurts many US students

WASHINGTON (AP) - School days, school days, fewer golden rule days.

Cutting the education calendar is the option that some school systems already have resorted to as they run out of other ways to squeeze their budgets. Others around the nation are on the brink of that reluctant step.

Prince George's County, Md., schoolchildren, for example, celebrated Washington's Birthday for two days. And they will have more days off in the coming weeks as teachers are furloughed to trim payrolls.

"I am thoroughly disgusted with the public schools," said Carolyn Alston, whose 9-year-old daughter, Jennifer, attends school in the suburban district just outside the nation's capital. "We are paying our taxes, yet the schools are at the bottom of the heap" when it comes to priority spending, she said.

Public school spending in the county, the largest in Maryland, was cut by more than $35 million over the past 15 months. In addition to teacher furloughs, officials have canceled programs and implemented other belt-tightening moves to absorb the cuts.

The budget crunch is more the rule than the exception. Hancock County, Tenn., schools were to close altogether Feb. 14, but county commissioners voted to reallocate $80,000 to keep them open until April.

In one of the richest counties in Virginia, the Fairfax County School Board suspended merit pay for teachers in the 1992-93 school year. The program had been recognized as a national model for linking teacher salaries to performance.

Samuel G. Sava, executive director of the National Association of Elementary School Principals, said a survey by his organization found that three of four principals face shrinking budgets with increasing enrollments.

NYC anti-gun rules simply aren't working

NEW YORK (AP) - New York City spends about $60 million a year on school security, more than most communities spend on education itself. It has hired guards, bought metal detectors, cracked down on fighting and started a program for dispute resolution.

None of it has stopped the student arms race. "We've definitely seen an increase in weapons in schools," said Robert Terte, a school board spokesman. "But then, they're flooding the whole city. ... It's a hellish time to be a kid."

A reminder of how hellish came Wednesday at Thomas Jefferson High School. There, in a hall, a 15-year-old shot two schoolmates to death 90 minutes before the mayor was to give a speech exhorting students to avoid violence and drugs.

At a school swarming with more than two-dozen police officers and guards, many there for the mayor's visit, authorities said the youth brazenly walked up to 17-year-old Ian Moore and his 16-year-old friend Tyrone Sinkler and opened fire.

Kahlil Sumpter was captured by a security guard and charged with murder. Authorities said he and Moore had a falling-out three months ago.

In this school year alone, three students have died from gunfire in Jefferson's halls.

On Nov. 25 a student was shot to death and a teacher seriously wounded when a 14-year-old trying to help his brother in a fight hit the wrong targets.

On Jan. 21, three students were seriously wounded by a knife-wielding assailant as they walked down a nearby street after class.

Last month, after Jefferson joined the school board's Metal Detector Program, a sign was placed over the front door warning all who enter that weapons are not allowed. But that did not help the victims Wednesday, which was not one of the randomly selected days on which metal detectors are placed at the door.

"They should have them every morning," said Monique Donahue, 15. "I feel afraid. That bullet could have hit anybody."

On campus Wednesday were 13 school guards, 10 police officers assigned to protect the mayor and two police officers who are part of the school's normal security force. Police said the two school officers were standing no more than 15 feet away when the shooting occurred.

Experts on school violence cautioned against tarring all city schools because of such incidents.

"Students carry weapons mostly because of their fear of going to and from school, not of school itself," said Terte, the schools spokesman. "Sometimes the school is the one oasis in a neighborhood."

"Part of the reason for New York's reputation is that it keeps excellent records and people publicize them," said George Butterfield of the National School Safety Center.

Indeed, a recent Texas A&M study of 23 rural districts found that half the boys had been in a school fight during the previous year that involved a weapon.

Messer is reserve at Houston

Nikki Messer of Hereford drove her champion crossbred barrow to the reserve grand championship at the Houston Livestock Show on Tuesday.

Messer was one of nine Hereford competitors who made it through the huge field of 3,200 barrows at Brenham to the show ring at the Astorhall in Houston.

Messer's cross was second to a Chester shown by Steven Hayes of Plainview.

Many Hereford competitors are also entered in the lamb show, which finishes today, and the steer show, which began this afternoon.

Other Hereford competitors placing in the show included Kelly Christie, second heavyweight Yorkshire; Krista Beville, fourth lightweight Berkshire; Brian Wilson, 13th heavyweight cross; Nelson Beville, 19th heavyweight Hampshire; Jeffery Carlson, 25th lightweight Duroc; Chad Christie, 25th middleweight Duroc; Chris Williams, 41st middleweight cross; and Trent Burns, 22nd place middleweight york.

In the finals and final crosses showing Wednesday, Kelly Christie placed 24th with his middleweight final cross.

2 arrested in cocaine raid here

A Hereford man was charged with possession of cocaine and possession of stolen property after a raid Wednesday afternoon by the Deaf Smith County sheriff's department.

Henry Castillo, 23, was arrested at his home at 508 Sampson on the charges and was to be arraigned today. Deputies found over $500 worth of cocaine in his home, and property which had been reported stolen.

A woman who was in the home at the time of the arrest was arrested on a misdemeanor.

Richardson crowd cheers Duke call to 'restore values'

RICHARDSON, Texas (AP) - If George Bush was surprised whatsoever by the New Hampshire primary, the incumbent will be shocked by his snubbing in Texas. GOP presidential candidate David Duke has predicted.

Duke talked of a "new consciousness" to restore values America cherished 30 years ago. The loudest cheers came during his calls for low taxes, welfare reform and an end to affirmative action. A free trade agreement would strip U.S. jobs to Mexico, he said, at the same time urging tighter controls at the U.S.-Mexico border.

"We used to be a nation of pioneers. Now we're a nation of immigrants," Duke said. "Everything is changing. We're losing our values."

He said he would require welfare recipients to work, if able. He also would require drug testing for welfare recipients, and would implement measures to discourage welfare recipients from bearing illegitimate children.

The former Ku Klux Klansman acknowledged what he called some "intolerances" in his past. But Duke said the racists are those who would give preference in scholarships, hiring and promotions based on skin color.

But outside, about 30 protestors carried signs and chanted slogans against Duke. They said called his campaign a disgrace and said his message is not welcome in Texas. "We are not as receptive as he thinks we are," said Liz Flores-Velasquez, an official with the Greater Dallas Community Relations Commission. "He brings racial hatred and a racial politics."

Texas couch potatoes are campaign targets

AUSTIN (AP) - Movie star Arnold Schwarzenegger is looking to terminate the couch potatoes. On a trip to Texas Wednesday as part of his national fitness crusade, he exhorted children to exercise and won a promise from Gov. Ann Richards to create a state physical fitness council.

He told a crowd of more than 3,000 at a physical fitness rally that he is traveling the country to promote fitness "because I found out that you children are getting more and more out of shape. You're getting fatter. You're getting slower, and you're getting sicker."

"I want to make the children healthy and fit again," he said.

Schwarzenegger, chairman of the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports, and Richards led the crowd, many of them children, in some stretching exercises and knee bends.

The former body-builder said he planned to take his fitness crusade to all 50 states. He's been to 40 so far.

He was made an honorary Texan by Richards, who also gave him a

"Don't Mess with Texas" t-shirt. He gave her a president's council letter jacket.

The two met before a news conference and the rally.

"He's asked me to put together a Governor's Council on Physical Fitness, and I told him I thought it was a great idea. And it tickles me to death, Arnold, that I didn't have one, so you could come and get me to do it," Richards said.

Richards said they also discussed with Texas Education Commissioner Lionel "Skip" Meno assessing students' health to determine whether current fitness programs are working.

She said Schwarzenegger is "just as cute as we thought he was," has done much for children and "has done a lot to entertain this governor in the movie theaters."

Schwarzenegger called the governor "wonderful."

Cathy Ryden, adult fitness director of an athletic club that volunteered to help with the fitness festival and rally, said she thought more than 2,000 children attended the event.

Jackie Murphey presented a program on "Great Grilled Beef" when members of the Hereford CattleWomen met at the Country Club. The display she used was provided by the Beef Industry Council of the Meat Board.

Program on beef given to local CattleWomen

"Great Grilled Beef" was the program given by Jackie Murphey when members of Hereford CattleWomen, met Feb. 18 at the Hereford Country Club.

Murphey used a display on grilling with beef as she explained the six lean cuts of beef, how to "cold smoke", how to choose aromatic woods for grilling and the methods for indirect grilling using a drip pan. The display was furnished by the Beef Industrial Council.

Kyla McDowell introduced special guests, Brent Carlson and his mother, Shirley Carlson. Brent was the winner of the 1992 Showmanship Award. McDowell also introduced Sally Nolan as a special guest.

Pam Wagner called the meeting to order and read the CattleWoman's Prayer. Minutes were read and approved.

Also, during the business meeting, committee reports were heard and Murphey reported that Ag Week is planned March 21. In observance of the special week, the local CattleWomen will have a beef casserole sale.

It was announced that the Texas Spring Convention is set for March 23 in San Antonio. Wagner will represent the local club. Marty McElhaney will represent the CattleWomen at the Region IV meeting.

The Texas Beef Cookoff will be held April 23-24 in Wichita Falls. March 1 is the deadline for entries. Discussion followed on a gift item.

Those attending the regular meeting were Wagner, Murphey, McElhaney, Michelle Lookingbill, Freda Cordray, Lori Hall, Rachel Hunter, Eleanor Gibson, Shirley and Brent Carlson, Zula Arney, Leslie Easley, Sue Sims, Leisa Lewis, Susan Barrett, Linda Gilbert, Julia Laing, Linda Fitzgerald, Erin Alley, Lisa Klett, Kyla McDowell, Pat Graham and Beverly Davis.

Winners named in essay contest

The winners of the 1992 American History Essay Contest have been named. The event is sponsored by members of the Los Ciboleros Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution under the direction of the Texas Society DAR and the National Society DAR.

Local winners in this year's contest, which was held for students in fifth through eighth grades in the public, private and parochial schools, were: Shannon C. Revel, first place, fifth grader at St. Anthony's School; Ryan Patrick Manning, first place, sixth grader at West Central Intermediate School; Andrew Philip Carr, second place, sixth grader at West Central; Kate Wesla Denison, second place, sixth grader at West Central; Andrew Feller, third place, sixth grader at West Central.

Winning first place at Hereford Junior High School was seventh grader, Bethany Townsend; Katie McWhorter, second place, seventh grader, HJH; and Sheena Jesko, third place, seventh grader, HJH.

Each year a different topic is chosen and the information for the contest is distributed among the teachers of the specified grades in September of the school year. The topic for the 1992 American History Essay Contest was "Famous Women of the American Revolution."

Essays were collected in January of 1992 and judged by a committee of five consisting of DAR members and other selected persons from the community. The National Society gives guidelines for all aspects of the essays and these guidelines are carefully followed in judging of the essays.

If one were to consult histories of the Revolution, one might conclude that only men were concerned in the fight for "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." Although recognition is scarce, women played many important roles in the War for Independence.

There were 95 students who participated in the American History Essay contest this year. Some of the women who were reviewed and written about by the students included: Abigail Adams, Faith Robinson Trumbell, Martha Washington, Catherine Green, Mary Draper, Esther de Berdt Reed, Sarah Franklin Bache, Hannah White Arnett, Penelope Pagett Barker, Grace and Rachael Martin, Lydia Barrington Darragh, Emily Geiger, Hanna Hunter Hendee, Sybil Ludington, Jane Thomas, Mrs. David Wright, Molly Pitcher (Mary Ludwig Hays), Molly (Margaret) Corbin, Deborah Sampson and Mary Morgan Hart.

Several young students were able to research their own families and found an interesting woman who contributed to the War of Independence and has been recognized for her service.

A spokeswoman for the local DAR chapter said, "During the last year we as Americans were privileged to see American men and women fighting in the Desert Storm for independence for the small country of Kuwait. We are proud of the accomplishments of our "modern women", and in looking back to 1776, we can also be proud of the women who were concerned in the fight for "Life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

Workshop slated in Amarillo

A workshop titled, Earthships--Self-Sufficient Housing from Recycled Materials, taught by Michael Reynolds, Taos-based architect for Dennis Weaver and Keith Carradine, will be held at 2:30 p.m., March 29, in Room A/B, Amarillo Central Library, 4th and Buchanan.

Reynolds has been featured in articles such as "building a House from Old Tires and Cans," and asserts such beliefs like, "Knowing how easy and inexpensive it is to construct energy efficient homes from the (giant) tire piles, I begin to see the tire dumps as a solution to problems like housing, energy and employment, not as a problem in themselves."

The workshop is free and open to the public. Sponsors are the Amarillo chapter of American Institute of Architects, Amarillo chapter of Construction Specifications Institute, Friends of the Amarillo Library, Independent Scholar Network and Panhandle Perma-Culture Center. Promotional materials have been furnished by the graphics department of Texas State Technical College, American Institute of Architects and Earthships Publications.

Herd track teams, girl golfers start Friday

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

For Hereford, the spring sports get underway in a big way this weekend. Besides the home opener for the Herd baseball team (4 p.m. Amarillo High), Friday will bring the first action for the girls' golf team and the boys' and girls' track team.

Both girls' teams will compete in Fort Stockton Friday and Saturday: the track team at the Comanche Relays and the golfers at the Bluebonnet tournament. The boys' track team will be in Wolforth for the (Frenship) Tiger Relays Friday and Saturday.

The golfers are full of promise. The girls' team advanced to the state golf tournament last year--finishing eighth--and they return everyone from that team. The lone senior is Paula Britten, who was usually the Herd's lowest scorer last year. She led Hereford at state, finishing 14th individually out of 40 golfers.

Coach Stacey Bixler has depth. He has eight girls who he said will be "real close." That group includes Britten; juniors Cecelia Albracht, Jo Jo Lytal, Jennifer Prater, Dusty Saul, Stephanie Walls and Brook Weatherly; and sophomore Kelly Kelso. All eight played on the varsity team at least once last season.

The golfers have seen their season debut delayed for nearly a month after the cancellation of the San Angelo Tournament, which was scheduled for Feb. 6 and 7 but flooded out.

"We're anxious to get started so we can gauge what we need to practice on," Bixler said. "That's the only way you can tell--you can play against yourself, but you've got to go out and play against other schools."

He doesn't think the delay will hurt, however. "I try to get some (tournaments) right before district so we can use those as a springboard to the district season," he said.

That's important for a team which needed a strong finish in the final district round (which was in Hereford) just to advance to the regional tournament.

This season, a return to state or even regionals won't be guaranteed, Bixler said, because Pampa and Borger both return most of their players from last season. Pampa won district by 60 strokes over Hereford in 1991, and Borger was third by 13 strokes.

"Hopefully, with Borger and Pampa in the district, we can get a faster start this year where we won't have to play catch up at the end," Bixler said.

"What you hope is that the experience you got by finishing second at region and going to state we can use in the district rounds. When you've got three teams in the district like we've got, they're not going to lay down. You've got to work hard."

The Hereford girls have been working hard, Bixler said, and have improved since last year.

"They're managing the course better. They're putting the ball in play. Their short game has improved a lot; we're getting the ball up on the green and using fewer putts. Those things make a difference in your score."

For the Fort Stockton tournament, Hereford will be playing with a tough crowd. Each Lady Whiteface will be in a fivesome with a player from Andrews, the defending state champion in Class 4A. Also in the fivesomes will be players from Odessa Permian, Sonora and Fort Stockton's varsity--on their home course.

Hereford's group tees off at 11 a.m. Friday.

Boys' track coach Ron Young's best hope for a trip to the state tournament is an individual. Leo Brown, now a senior, competed at the 1991 Region I-4A meet in three events: triple jump, long jump and 110-meter high hurdles.

The team will rely heavily on Brown for points at meets. Besides those three events, he'll run the 300-meter intermediate hurdles and a relay, probably the 1,600 relay, Young said.

"He'll be a five event guy," Young said. "Of course, we've got some good young guys returning. We'll be young--as far as senior runners, Leo's it. We're young, but we'll be more competitive because we've got a year under our belt."

Young gave as examples of the youth juniors Michael Ramirez and Sean Fogo. Ramirez should excel as a hurdler and as a member of the 1,600 relay. Fogo may enter as many events as possible: Young lists 100-meter dash, 200 dash, 400 relay, 1,600 relay, long jump and triple jump as possibilities.

"We've set a goal to win district, but we'll have to improve a lot to do that," Young said. "It will take us until the district meet to peak, but that's how we like it. We want to peak out at the district meet."

The Tiger Relays have a first-class field, featuring Dunbar, Estacado, Levelland, Lakeview and Big Spring just among the 4A schools.

"It'll be one heck of a track meet, I can tell you that," Young said.

Girls' track coach Martha Emerson will miss her best pupil from last season--Teresa Castillo, the 4A state champion in the 3,200-meter run--but she'll get back several girls with regional meet experience.

Senior Minerva Salazar and junior Jeannie Barrientez formed half of the 1,600 relay which finished third at last year's regionals. Each has lettered since her freshman year.

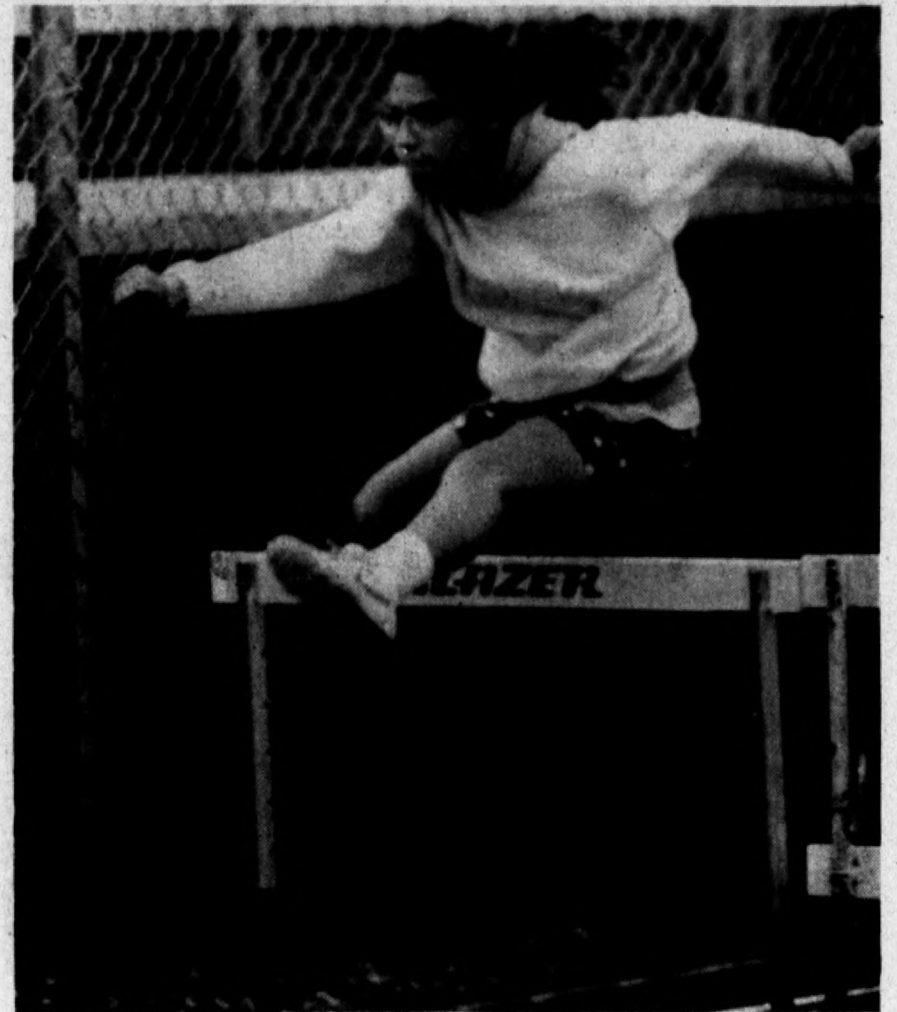

"They're both very dedicated and hard-working," Emerson said. "They're going to give you everything they can. They both have in their heads what they want out of track."

Barrientez also was a regional qualifier in the 100-meter hurdles and was third at district in the 300 hurdles. Besides those events she'll run the 1,600 and long jump and triple jump. Salazar will run the 1,600, the 400 and the 400 relay.

Warriors' 2nd-half flop lets Rockets win

By The Associated Press
 Since the NBA All-Star game, the Golden State Warriors have been looking like all-stars.
 And for the first half of Wednesday night's game in Houston, the Warriors never looked better. Then they never looked worse.
 "We just came out and laid an egg," Golden State's Tim Hardaway said following an 118-116 loss to the Rockets. "We rolled over."
 The Warriors were on their way to their ninth straight win since the All-Star break before blowing an 18-point halftime lead. Houston's Hakeem Olajuwon scored 33 points, including the game-winning jumper at the final buzzer.
 "Maybe I put too much fear in our team with my pre-game report," Rockets interim coach Rudy Tomjanovich said.
 The Warriors cruised to a 71-53 halftime lead while the Rockets tried to find some workable combinations.

"At the half, my worst fears were coming true," Tomjanovich said. "They are so hard to defend."
 But the Rockets responded in the third quarter. They outscored Golden State 42-25 in the period and tied the game at 114 with 49 seconds to play on Olajuwon's jumper and at 116 with 21 seconds left on two free throws by Olajuwon.
 After Golden State's Sarunas Marciulonis lost the ball out of bounds, giving Houston one more chance with 2 seconds to play, Olajuwon hit the game-winning jumper. Olajuwon's winning basket gave Houston its first lead since a 10-8 advantage at 9:09 of the first quarter.
 Hardaway led Golden State with 31 points.
Lakers 81, Knicks 68
 James Worthy scored 17 of his 27 points in the first half as the Lakers defeated the Knicks in Pat Riley's return to the Forum.

Riley coached the Lakers for nearly nine years before leaving after they were eliminated from the playoffs at the end of the 1989-90 season. He guided them to four NBA championships.
Celtics 130, Pacers 109
 Kevin Gamble scored 24 points, leading a parade of seven Boston scorers in double figures, as the Celtics broke out of an offensive slump in their first game at the Boston Garden since Feb. 5.
 Dee Brown scored 21 points, Kevin McHale 18, Robert Parish 15, Reggie Lewis 14, Ed Pinckney 12 and Rick Fox 10.
 Micheal Williams led Indiana with 23 points.
Timberwolves 106, Mavericks 105
 Gerald Glass, who had scored in double figures only four times in his previous 14 games, had a season-high 31 points to power the Timberwolves at home.

Dallas, which got 22 points from Rolando Blackman, lost its 13th straight road game.
Magic 95, 76ers 89
 Terry Catledge scored 30 points and Scott Skiles capped an outstanding performance with four points in the final 1:06 as the Magic beat the visiting 76ers.
 Skiles' scoring down the stretch saved the game for the Magic. But it was Anthony Bowie's shooting that kept the Magic in front when the 76ers began to whittle a 14-point deficit with 10 minutes remaining.
 Skiles finished with 16 points and 14 assists.
Bulls 122, Bullets 103
 Michael Jordan scored 26 points and Scottie Pippen added 24 as the Bulls coasted past the Bullets at home.
 Jordan had 15 points and Pippen 12 at halftime, when the Bulls built an insurmountable 69-47 lead. Ladell Eackles paced the Bullets with 19 points.

Heat 105, Nuggets 98
 Glen Rice scored a career-high 38 points as the Heat won in Denver.
 The Heat squandered a 15-point lead late in the first period, then scored 12 straight points during Denver's 5 1/2-minute dry spell midway in the fourth.
 The Nuggets had rallied to go ahead 82-78 with 10:21 left in the fourth period before going cold.
 Chris Jackson led the Nuggets with 29 points.

Suns 103, Cavaliers 100
 Kevin Johnson had 23 points and 17 assists for Phoenix, but it was his unorthodox play on an inbounds pass by Cleveland which gave the Suns a victory over the visiting Cavaliers.
 With 11.4 seconds to play and the Suns holding a 99-98 lead, Johnson reached around Cleveland guard Mark Price and batted the pass back into the side of Craig Ehlo, who was still standing out of bounds.
 The turnover gave Phoenix the ball, and Tom Chambers sank a pair of free throws with 10 seconds to play.
 Brad Daugherty had 32 points for Cleveland.

Hardy's treys push Rice past A&M

By The Associated Press
 Rice's Dana Hardy says Texas A&M kept giving him open shots and he kept taking them until he had four of six from 3-point range and six of eight from the field.
 Hardy had 16 points in Rice's 77-70 Southwest Conference victory over the Aggies Wednesday night. Brent Scott was the leading scorer for the Owls with 17 points.
 In other SWC action, Baylor defeated SMU 77-62. In non-conference action, Texas defeated Oral Roberts 128-108 and Texas Christian whipped St. Louis 88-69.
 Hardy's first half three-point shooting helped the Owls build an early lead.
 "I just wanted to set the pace and when they gave me some open shots I took them. So I just kept shooting," said Hardy.
 "We did a good job of defense in the first half but it didn't carry over. (David) Edwards got hot and kept them in the game at the end," Hardy added.
 Edwards scored 27 points for the Aggies, including 25 in the second half.
 Scott was pleased with the Owls' defensive play.
 "Defense is the key for us. Tonight we got the job done," Scott said.
 Texas A&M Coach Tony Barone was disappointed with his team's first-half play.
 "I thought in the first half that we were destroyed inside. They out-rebounded us 20-to-11 in the first 20 minutes. We made some adjustments in the second half and we were much more aggressive," Barone said.
 Rice is 18-9 and 6-5 in SWC play. The Aggies are 5-18 overall and 1-9 in SWC action.
 David Wesley and Alex Holcombe each scored 17 points to lead the Baylor Bears to a 76-62 victory over Southern Methodist.
 The victory leaves the Bears (12-13) and Mustangs (10-15) knotted at 4-8 in conference play. The teams are tied for sixth place.
 Kelvin Chalmers scored 12 and pulled down 12 rebounds for Baylor.
 Baylor coach Gene Iba said the Bears got some easy buckets in the paint, and that helped determine the outcome.
 "The post men did a good job of finishing off and were able to maintain position down low. They did a good job of getting open," Iba said.

 SMU coach John Shumate said the game shows the inconsistent play that has plagued his team this season, losing big to Baylor after coming within a whisker of beating Texas Saturday.
 "The kids showed a lot of character to get back in the game. We got to within eight, and then we self-destructed," Shumate said.
 Terrence Rencher, B.J. Tyler and Dexter Cambridge combined for a school-record 98 points leading Texas to its seventh straight victory and a 128-108 romp over Oral Roberts.

 Rencher all scorers with 34 points followed by Tyler's career-high 33 and Cambridge's season-high tying 31, marking the first time three different Longhorns have scored at least 30 points in a game.
 Texas (19-10) shot 57 percent from the field while Oral Roberts hit 56 percent.
 Ray Thompson led Oral Roberts (10-17) with 31 points. Sebastian Neal contributed 20 points.

Michael Strickland scored 29 points as Texas Christian beat St. Louis 88-69, giving the Horned Frogs a 20-victory season for only the sixth time.
 "Twenty wins is very important," Strickland said. "We wanted to get over the 20-win hump after being stuck on 18 the last couple of years."
 Reggie Smith had 19 points and 13 rebounds as TCU (20-7) avenged an 89-69 loss to the Billikens on Feb. 12.
 St. Louis (5-20) got 18 points from Erwin Claggett.
 Duke (22-2, 12-2) was nursing a 51-47 edge with 11 minutes left when Hurley took over. He fed Christian Laettner for a dunk and Thomas Hill for a short jumper on consecutive possessions. On Duke's next trip down the floor, Hurley passed up an open jumper and flipped a pass to Laettner for a 3-pointer.

Hurley's return sparks Duke

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
 Associated Press Writer
 Bobby Hurley had been out with a broken foot and Grant Hill came down with a sprained ankle. That appeared to leave Duke without a point guard.
 But Hurley made an unexpected return to the Blue Devils' lineup Wednesday night and led a second-half surge that gave Duke a 76-67 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over Virginia.
 "Needless to say, I wasn't expecting anything like this," Hurley said after handing out nine assists - including four in a crucial second-half sequence - scoring four points and committing only one turnover in 26 minutes.

 In other action involving Top 25 teams, No. 6 Missouri beat Iowa State 75-71; No. 8 Ohio State beat Purdue 71-64; No. 9 Arkansas defeated Auburn 82-74; No. 11 Kentucky downed South Carolina 74-56; No. 14 Oklahoma State crushed No. 25 Nebraska 71-51; No. 16 Alabama beat Mississippi State 79-69; No. 17 Michigan was upset by Wisconsin 96-78 and No. 18 Georgetown lost to Seton Hall, 73-71 in overtime.

 Hurley, who broke his foot in a Feb. 5 loss to North Carolina, made his return one day after Duke lost Hill.
 Duke (22-2, 12-2) was nursing a 51-47 edge with 11 minutes left when Hurley took over. He fed Christian Laettner for a dunk and Thomas Hill for a short jumper on consecutive possessions. On Duke's next trip down the floor, Hurley passed up an open jumper and flipped a pass to Laettner for a 3-pointer.

Tech's Dickey gets extension

LUBBOCK (AP) - Texas Tech officials scheduled a press conference to announce a contract extension for first-year basketball coach James Dickey, sources close to the school told The Associated Press.
 A new contract for Dickey would follow a groundswell of support from Tech students, alumni and fellow coaches who feel Dickey has earned a pact longer than the two-year deal he received when he took the job last April.
 "It's none of my business, but Tech did not handle the situation well to begin with," Oklahoma State coach Eddie Sutton, who hired Dickey as an assistant for eight years at Arkansas and Kentucky, told the AP Tuesday.

Clemens: absence from camp 'non-news'

HOUSTON (AP) - Roger Clemens doesn't understand what all the fuss is about. The Boston Red Sox pitcher's whereabouts has been the source of numerous media reports in recent days. Team officials have said they are disappointed he hasn't reported to spring training camp and are waiting to hear from him.

Don't hold your breath. But don't think his absence spells trouble. "There's nothing to straighten out," Clemens said Wednesday night when asked if he would be calling the team to tell them why he is still back home in Texas. "This is non-news, me not being in spring training," the three-time Cy Young award winner said. "I'm not late and it's not news!"

"I'm not showing anybody up. I'm working with some people here that I'm close to, videotaping myself and getting my situation right so I can go do my job," he said.

In a sadder moment, Clemens discussed the death of Jean R. Yawkey, majority owner of the Boston Red Sox. Mrs. Yawkey, 83, died Wednesday from a stroke she suffered last Thursday.

Veterans try new positions

By The Associated Press
Some veterans are having a different view of things in spring training this year.

Howard Johnson is moving to center field, Pedro Guerrero from first base to left and Tim Wallach from third to first.

Wallach isn't exactly happy about the shift, either.

Manager Tom Runnells is already leaning heavily to Wallach to replace first baseman Andres Galarraga, traded in the off-season to the St. Louis Cardinals.

"We'll try several players," Runnells said. "But we won't waste time. This is our biggest problem. I want it settled before the opener."

The opening game of the season means Montreal's first exhibition game on March 6, not the regular-season opener April 6 at Pittsburgh. The Expos opened training camp on Wednesday.

Runnells said he spoke to Wallach this week about the move. The 10-year third baseman wanted the manager to exhaust all other options before considering the switch. "But I know what will happen after we've tried our options," Runnells said. "We'll ask Tim to take over."

"I never agreed to it," countered Wallach. "There's still a chance someone else will play first."

"I don't want to make an issue of this until it happens. Everyone knows I don't want to play first."

"Once you are moved from third to first, it is final," Wallach added. "Everybody in baseball will think you are being moved because you can't play third base any more. Well, that's not the case."

Wallach, a three-time gold glove winner, led National League third basemen last season in fielding percentage with a .968 average, but had trouble at the plate. He hit .225 with 73 runs batted in after going .296 with 98 RBIs the previous year.

But there was nothing to indicate that last year's batting performance was anything but a glitch in a solid career.

Runnells wants to use 24-year-old Bret Barberie, who batted .353 in 136 at-bats last season, at third even though he has always been a second baseman. Barberie is considered too short to play first.

Larry Walker filled in at first when Galarraga was injured last season, but Runnells wants to keep Walker's strong arm in right field. Newcomers George Canale and John Vander Wal are other first base possibilities. Veteran catcher Gary Carter can also play a little first base.

Guerrero is getting ready for his 20th professional season and he's not worried about playing left field for the St. Louis Cardinals.

"I may not be the best outfielder, but I won't be the worst," the 35-year-old Guerrero said Wednesday.

After Guerrero hit .272 with eight home runs and 70 RBIs last season as a first baseman, the Cardinals let him go to test free agency.

Guerrero ended up staying with the Cardinals after Galarraga was acquired from Montreal to be the new first baseman. Over the winter, Guerrero reconciled himself to returning to an outfield spot he left several years ago because of physical problems while playing for the Los Angeles Dodgers.

SPRING

One strength of the girls' track team will be the throwers. Senior Roxann Torres was a regional qualifier with the discus in 1991, and senior Shantel Cornelius was a regional qualifier with the discus in 1990 (but did not compete last season). Not only are the Herd throwers a strength of the team, but it is an area that Hereford can dominate at the district meet. Favorites Berger and Pampa generally win with their speed.

The team heads for warmer climes Friday.

"Fort Stockton: it's south and it's warmer," Emerson said. "The 4A and 3A division will have pretty good competition. Monahans is in our region, and they've always got a good team. Fort Stockton is a good warm-up meet for us."

Clemens, who surfaced Wednesday night at a charity event, said he is just getting in some final private training before reporting to camp in Winter Haven, Fla.

Under the Basic Agreement, Clemens doesn't have to be in camp until March 4 without penalty. But the Red Sox management, which includes new manager Butch Hobson, have been disappointed about the situation.

Clemens said he told team officials last year he would report to camp shortly before the deadline. He also said he didn't believe his current absence would have any effect on the other players.

He said he still has a few hard workouts ahead of him before leaving the state. If he already was in camp, he joked, he probably would just be standing around spitting out sunflower seeds.

"That's what people should be writing about - there's a great lady that's gone," he said.

Clemens said she would be missed at the games.

"She was there night in, night out, in her little booth up there, keeping score with two or three of her real close friends."

He added he was sorry the team didn't win a World Series before her death.

"It's a situation where, you know, I feel personally like I've let somebody down, because we've come so close," he said.

Hints from Heloise

Q. I just purchased my first 100 percent silk dress. The care label states, "Hand wash cold—cool iron if necessary." Is it really safe to wash and iron a silk garment? — T.F., Lorain, Ohio

A. I checked with our friends at the International Fabricare Institute and was assured that if you do exactly what the care label recommends, it should be perfectly safe to wash the dress.

When you press the silk, be sure it's slightly damp and press on the wrong side.

To help you correctly interpret those care labels, I'm sending you a copy of my pamphlet on stain removal. It contains a section on what care labels are really saying. Others interested in a copy can send $2 and a stamped (52 cents), self-addressed, business-sized envelope to Heloise/Stains #6, PO Box 795001, San Antonio TX 78279-5001.

However, if you follow the directions and there is a problem, return the garment to the store. — Heloise

FAST FACTS

Uses for magnets:

- When sewing, use to gather pins.
- Use to hold a recipe card to the stove hood.
- Attach to a long stick and use to pick up small metal items.

- Place on the washer or dryer in the laundromat to help identify which are yours.
- Glue to the back of a note pad and attach to the refrigerator for a grocery list.

A HELPING HAND

Dear Heloise: Many of the people in my neighborhood (myself included) are part of the "older" generation. So, several of us got together and came up with this idea.

We each tie a brightly colored ribbon to our front door at night before bed and remove it the next morning when we get up. If, later in the day, someone still has the ribbon out, we know to check. — The Older Generation, Montgomery, Ala.

It's so nice to hear about neighbors helping one another. I'm sure other neighborhoods could benefit from your smart idea.

I'd really enjoy hearing from others in the "older" generation who have a special way of helping each other. — Heloise

SOUND OFF

Dear Heloise: During the holiday season we traveled through several states. We tried to listen to local radio stations in order to keep up with the weather in the areas we would be traveling through.

It was extremely annoying to get a report of bad weather and not know where it was. While many stations continually give their call letters, they never seem to say where they are broadcasting from or what area the weather report covers. — Mr. and Mrs. James H., Austin, Texas

WHEN YOU HAVE SOMETHING TO SELL, NEWSPAPER SELLS IT BEST.

No matter what it is you're selling, newspaper can sell it best. You can show it. Describe it. Explain it. Compare it. Offer a coupon for it. And cover your entire marketplace with it. All in one day. And for a lot less than radio and TV.

And the unique thing about newspaper is that it adds credibility to your message. People believe it when they read it in the paper. Maybe that's why retailers use newspaper more than any other medium?

Newspaper. It delivers.

Good nutrition easy

Does healthy eating mean giving up your favorite foods? Should you try to eliminate all fat from your diet? Are there "good" foods and "bad" foods? You might be surprised at just how many Americans are confused about the correct answers to such nutrition questions.

Registered dietitians at the national Center for Nutrition and Dietetics (NCND), the public education initiative of The American Dietetic Association (ADA) and its Foundation, have been busy sharing the answers to nutrition questions like these since a new toll-free consume hot line debuted in December 1991.

According to registered dietitians who staff the NCND hot line, the good news is that the answers are simpler than most people think. When it comes to good nutrition, it's a matter of getting back to basics. In fact, eating a healthy, balanced diet means eating a variety of foods from the major food groups in moderate amounts throughout the course of a day.

Yet, according to a recent ADA Survey of American Dietary Habits, more than half of Americans admit they are doing less than they could to eat a healthy diet, mainly because of their misconceptions that good nutrition takes too much time and sacrifice. In response to the survey results, the hot line was launched to help dispel misconceptions that may stand between people and their efforts to eat a balanced diet.

For example, more than three in four Americans (77%) believe there are "good" foods and "bad" foods. According to dietitians all foods can fit into a healthy diet with according planning. No foods should be eaten exclusively or totally avoided.

Also, 17% of Americans believe that all fat should be eliminated from the diet. This is not only in realistic, but undesirable according to dietitians, who say that some fat is essential to the diet. The nutrition professionals advise consumers to be "fat smart" by cutting back on the amount of fat eaten. They recommend that 30 percent or less of total calories came from fat, which means balancing food choices throughout the day.

The experts who staff the hot line offer these "back to basics" steps for improving one's diet:

Start at Home Plate

- * Find out what you really eat by keeping a record of meals and snacks along with the amounts eaten.

- * Ask questions: Are there foods you always eat that are higher in fat? How are they prepared?

Go Back to Basics

- * Look at the big picture. It's the total diet, not individual foods, that count.

- * Aim for five servings of fruits and vegetables each day.

- * Build meals around vegetables, rice, pasta or beans.

- * Remember, all foods can be part of a balanced diet in moderate amounts.

Keep it Simple

- * Make small changes, one at a time. Together they can make a big difference.

- * Eat one extra serving of fruits and vegetables each day.

- * Consider reduced fat or fat free versions of favorite foods.

- * Control portion size by asking for sauces "on the side".

Consumers with additional nutrition questions can call 1-800-366-1655 and talk directly with food and nutrition experts. The NCND hot line, made possible by a grant from Kraft General Foods, is staffed by registered dietitians five days a week from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. (Eastern Time). Recorded messages are available 24 hours a day.

Practical, how-to tips on balancing food choices along with meal and recipe ideas are also available in a brochure from Kraft General Foods. Consumers can obtain a copy at no charge by writing "A Matter of Balance," P.O. Box 6210, Douglas, AX 85655-6210.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS:

I would like to hear from your readers who have quit smoking while their spouses have not. How have they dealt with this frustrating and divisive problem?

I quit smoking three years ago but my wife continues to smoke, although she doesn't do it in front of me at home or anywhere else. It seems that she looks forward to being home alone and his eager to go to the store for an item that is not really essential. I know, of course, it is just an excuse to smoke because invariably she comes back reeking of tobacco.

We've been together 30 years. Her smoking has driven a big wedge between us. We've even sought counseling because the smoking odor turns me off sexually. I've tried to explain that brushing her teeth doesn't rid her of the smell that comes from the lungs. She thinks I'm being mean and intolerant.

It doesn't look like she is ever going to quit. I don't want to start smoking again in self-defense. If she did aerobic exercises, would it help clear out the residual odor? I must be perfectly honest and tell you that I am seriously considering leaving her and calling it quits. Any advice?—Smoked Out in North Carolina

DEAR NORTH CAROLINA: Aerobic exercises will not eradicate the smoke odor, but I suspect the real problem goes much deeper.

You two need to get into joint counseling and find out where your marriage got off track. Can it be that you are too controlling and smoking is her way of sneaking a bit of independence? Or perhaps you don't find her as appealing as you once did and are attributing your lack of interest to the smoke odor?

Forgive me for playing amateur shrink, but these are just a few thoughts you might consider. Meanwhile, please investigate all the possibilities before you dump 30 years of marriage.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing to tell you about my four amazing dogs. They play the piano.

Ginger is an apricot toy poodle who plays "Tea for Two" with her right paw. Pepper, another poodle, can play the C-major scale with his right paw. He also sings while I play the harmonica.

Rusty, who is Pepper and Ginger's pup, plays the pentatonic scale with his left paw, and Gigi, an apricot toy poodle, plays the C-major scale.

These dogs do several other tricks and have been entertaining people in nursing homes, in schools and at private parties for several years. I have tried to get them on national television but I guess I just don't know the right people.

To my knowledge, these are the only piano-playing dogs alive. Can you suggest a way to get them a bigger audience?—John Buby, Tallahassee, Fla.

DEAR JOHN: I do not book animal acts, but maybe I can help by printing your letter. Perhaps Johnny Carson or David Letterman or Arsenio Hall might be interested. If you're in the phone book, John, maybe you'll get a call. Good luck.

Gem of the Day: At age 20, we worry about what others think of us. At 40, we don't care what they think of us. At 60, we discover that they haven't been thinking of us at all.

An alcohol problem? How can you help yourself or someone you love? "Alcoholism: How to Recognize It, How to Deal With It, How to Conquer It" will give you the answers. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Alcohol, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) - Prince, known for some pretty fancy footwork, will leave the dancing to others in a collaboration with the Joffrey Ballet.

The rock star will compose music for the ballet "Billboards," including one piece based on "Thunder," a song from his album "Diamonds and Pearls."

Laura Dean, Charles Moulton, Peter Pucci and Margo Sappington will each choreograph a section of the ballet.

"I have always been intrigued by billboards as I've traveled the highways and byways of America," Joffrey artistic director Gerald Arpino said in a statement Wednesday. The premiere will be in January at the University of Iowa.

The Statue of Liberty was originally to be set up at the Suez Canal.

McMurry ensemble to tour

The McMurry University Wind Ensemble will give its annual spring pre-tour concert at 3 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 29, in the Little Theater of the Ryan Fine Arts Building.

The Wind Ensemble will feature the music of William Schumann, Tschernokoff, and David Maslanka whereas the Jazz Ensemble will perform the works of Thad Jones, Duke Ellington, Bob Mintzer and others. The concert is free and open to the public.

Special guest soloists will include Nancy King Sanders on clarinet, and James A. Rennier on timpani. Both Sanders and Rennier are assistant professors of music at McMurry. Rennier also is the music department chairperson.

The band will begin its spring tour the following day, Sunday, March 1, with a presentation at First United Methodist Church in Plainview at 6 p.m. The band also will perform at St. John's United Methodist Church in Santa Fe at 7 p.m., on Monday, March 2.

On Tuesday, March 3, the Jazz Ensemble will perform at Santa Fe High School at 12 noon and at Grace United Methodist Church in Alamogordo at 8 p.m. that night.

The final concert will be on Wednesday, March 4, at Bowie High School in El Paso at 8:30 a.m.

10th Annual Panhandle Clergy Seminar set

The Department of Pastoral Care at High Plains Baptist Hospital will sponsor the Tenth Annual Panhandle Clergy Seminar on Monday. Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m. in the Harold Smith Auditorium located at Baptist Hospital. The seminar will enhance the understanding of clergy, staff and spouses about spiritual and emotional issues related to the ministry.

The keynote speaker for this year's seminar is Fred Meeks, Th.D. Dr. Meeks is Professor of Religion/Philosophy at Wayland Baptist University in Plainview, Texas. He received his undergraduate degree from Baylor University and his M.Div. and Th.D. from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. Dr. Meeks has served as a pastor in Texas, Oklahoma, and Oregon or over twenty years. He brings a wealth of experience to young men and women preparing for the ministry.

The seminar is entitled, "The Minister's Journey: Within and Without." Dr. Meeks will conduct the four part seminar and a lunch will be provided by High Plains Baptist Hospital. Other seminar participants include: T.H. Holloway, Jr., FACHE, President of High Plains Baptist Hospital, Mike Parry, M.D., Coordinator of Pastoral Care at Baptist Hospital, and Rev. Clark Williams, Pastor of Trinity United Methodist Church.

One CEO will be given by Amarillo College for every fifty minutes a participant attends the seminar.

For more information or to make reservations for lunch, please contact the Baptist Hospitals Department of Pastoral care at (806) 358-5343.

NEW YORK (AP) - Warren Beatty says he loves being a father and wants lots more children with his girlfriend and "Bugsy" co-star, Annette Bening.

"I wouldn't have guessed quite the level of happiness that it brings you," the 54-year-old actor said in an interview with David Frost to be broadcast Friday on PBS. Beatty's daughter was born Jan. 8.

Asked whether he'd like more children, he said: "Oh, lots. So would Annette."

And what about a trip to the altar? "I'm very interested in being a father and what one might call, you might call, I might call, a husband," he said.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Eli Wallach, Ray Liotta and Kiefer Sutherland are urging Congress to spend more to help tens of thousands of homeless veterans.

The actors appear in "Article 99," a yet-to-be released movie set in a veterans hospital.

DSG Hospital sponsors Women's Issues Forum

Deaf Smith General Hospital is presenting a Women's Issues Forum as the first in a series of healthy living seminars, according to Ron Rives, Administrator of DSGH.

"The free seminars will focus on a variety of issues that affect the way we live," Rives said. "At DSGH, we feel that we are the community's center for good health, and to us, that means more than just providing hospital care. We are bringing quality educational programs to the community that cover a wide spectrum of areas that impact the quality of life."

The first series is geared toward women. "We will present seminars later that are for men or for the whole family," he said.

The programs are scheduled for the Hereford Community Center lounge on March 3, 17, and 31, and April 21 from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Although the seminars are free, those who wish to attend should pre-register by calling Peggy Fox at 364-3805.

On March 3, Margaret Z. Couch, president of Performance Associates, will present "Building a Balance Between Work and Home." A well-known motivational speaker, Couch is a neurolinguistics practitioner, and shows her listeners how to enhance personal performance. As a national speaker, she has presented programs to Frito Lay International, NCH Corporation, and Fox Television.

On March 17, Donna West, a Certified Public Accountant within Hereford, will discuss "Finding Financial Security - When You're Alone". West, a CPA and shareholder-vice-president of Brown, Graham and Company, PC, has a wide background in estate and business financial planning. She is a frequent speaker for her company on financial topics. Brown, Graham and Company has offices in Hereford and ten other Texas cities.

Cyndi Rohrer, director of the Lifestyle Center for Preventive and Rehabilitative Services at Methodist Hospital in Lubbock, will present the program March 31. Rohrer will detail ways to build a positive lifestyle through diet and exercises to help prevent heart disease. A former high school science teacher and basketball coach, she has spent the last eight years teaching patients and managing cardiac rehab programs.

The final session on April 21 features Sharyn Ivory, director of radiology for Methodist Hospital in Lubbock. Her humorous presentation, titled "People - How to Cope", is built around the four major personality types described by Hippocrates 2,000 years ago. An experienced speaker, she has presented a variety of programs to hospital, church, and business groups.

For more information, or to pre-register, please call Peggy Fox at 354-3805.
