

Tentative Postal Proposal Collapses

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tentative agreement to avert a nationwide mail strike collapsed today after union leaders said the final Postal Service wage offer contained "a serious inconsistency" with what they had accepted two hours earlier. Postal workers remained on the job, however.

As the negotiations resumed, leaders of the two largest postal unions said there were no immediate plans for a strike by their half-million members.

The unions had threatened to pull their workers off the job at midnight Monday, when the old contract expired.

Moe Biller, president of the American Postal Workers Union, told his members today "to hang in there."

Postmaster General William F. Bolger told reporters at mid-morning, "We had a misunderstanding; I don't want to go into details."

"The mail is being delivered; people are working; and isn't that good news," he added.

Biller and Vincent Sombrotto of the National Association of Letter Carriers said they thought they had reached agreement about 2 a.m. EDT on a tentative three-year contract.

They had announced that to the unions' rank and file on a taped telephone message and even recommended ratification, but five hours later Sombrotto said: "We are now in a position where we don't have a contract."

"At approximately 2 a.m., we made an agreement. We brought that down to our rank and file and our executive bodies for their attention and approval... and we put in motion our telephone network," he said.

"The terms and conditions... were discussed at length" in a caucus with top union policy-makers, Sombrotto said.

It was at that point that "serious questions about it" arose, he added. "Then we returned to the bargaining table. When the wage proposal was presented, we noticed there was a serious inconsistency with what we had agreed to" orally.

"We don't view it as a misunderstanding," Biller said.

The union leaders refused to elaborate on the discrepancy.

The unions had said the agreement would continue unlimited cost-of-living protection and provide base pay raises of $750 per worker the first year and $600 in each of the next two years. It also would prohibit any employee from being forced to work more than 10 hours a day for five consecutive days, the unions said.

First word of the collapse came from federal mediator Nicholas Fidandis, who emerged from the bargaining room to tell reporters waiting for the formal announcement of a settlement:

"There's no agreement here. I've still got people in there talking."

Postal Service officials were not immediately available for comment.

Despite strike threats, the Postal Service reported attendance was normal at most post offices for pre-dawn shifts and higher than normal at some facilities.

The Postal Service said the public could expect "business as usual" at the nation's post offices in the event of a strike. A contingency plan included suspending the Postal Service monopoly to let private companies deliver letters and calling out more than 100,000 military personnel, including national guardsmen and reservists, to sort mail.

The executive boards of the two unions voted unanimously Monday night to reject out of hand a Postal Service wage offer extended just hours earlier.

"This offer adds nothing except to further insult 500,000 postal workers," said Biller.

Sombrotto added, "We know we are right and we know the employer continues to provoke a nationwide strike."

Postal officials, however, said they expected to reach a settlement.

Monday night's management proposal would have produced lower cost-of-living raises than had previously been offered but would have included small annual wage increases, Biller and Sombrotto said.

The earlier proposal was

At Economic Summit

Reagan Diplomacy Wins

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer
MONTEBELLO, Quebec (AP) — While high U.S. interest rates remain a sore point, President Reagan is scoring a diplomatic victory at his first economic summit by persuading allies to consider tightening high-technology and military-related trade with the Soviet bloc.

Leaders of the "Big Seven Democracies," concluding their three-day conference in this village outside Ottawa, also are borrowing a hardline from the Reagan administration in condemning "the continuing buildup of Soviet military power" and declaring that "we ourselves ... need a strong defense capability." Aides to Reagan said Monday that the other government leaders concurred with a U.S. request for a meeting of major industrial countries later this year to consider new restrictions on the export of goods and technology that might be of strategic benefit to the Soviet Union and its allies.

Reagan has been pressing for such a meeting as a first step toward limiting East-West trade for political purposes. U.S. allies in Europe have resisted the idea because Soviet trade is more important to their economies than it is to the United States.

A particularly contentious issue is U.S. concern that West Germany's plans to buy Soviet natural gas would create too dependent a relationship between the two countries. Germany is Europe's biggest trader with the Soviet bloc, largely due to trade with East Germany.

Reagan and his counterparts from Japan, Great Britain, France, West Germany, Italy and host Canada, planned to discuss East-West trade in greater detail today before concluding the conference and releasing a joint communique.

Reagan also was to confer privately today with Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki. He met privately Monday with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and Italian Prime Minister

Giovanni Spadolini. In agreeing to review trade with the Soviets, the European leaders made no specific commitments. U.S. officials said, however, that all they had expected from the summit was arranging a high-level meeting of NATO allies and Japan to consider additional trade restrictions.

When Reagan arrived for his first major summit Sunday just six months in office, he was seemingly on the defensive because of European unhappiness over the harsh effects that near-record U.S. interest rates are having on their economies.

While interest rates remained a popular — and sore — point on Monday, several of the participating leaders made conciliatory gestures that helped defuse any rancor over economic policy.

Reagan, although pledging to stay on his current economic course, agreed to set up a new procedure for consulting with allies about economic action that might affect other countries, such as anti-inflation policies that produce high interest rates.

Japan, the target of U.S. and European criticism for restricting foreign goods from its home market, agreed in principle to the concept of free trade as the seven nations proposed a review of trade barriers and ways to remove them.

The allies reflected Reagan administration language in decrying a Soviet military buildup and defending the need for a strong Western defense. But they also stressed the need for disarmament talks, an objective sought more strongly by the allies than by the United States.

Reagan's White House counselor, Edwin Meese III, said Monday's two formal sessions of economic discussions were marked by "a general spirit of harmony and unity."

Ed Skypala Services Set For Wednesday

Rosary for Edgar O. (Ed) Skypala, 65, of Hereford will be read at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Rose Chapel of Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home. Mr. Skypala died at Deaf Smith General Hospital Sunday afternoon following a heart attack at his residence at 246 Fir.

Funeral services for Skypala will be held at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday at St. Anthony's Catholic Church under the direction of Gilliland-Watson. Father Paul Haefner will officiate.

Skypala, former independent distributor for Borden's Dairy Products in Hereford and the surrounding area, was well known for his civic contributions through his membership in the local Lions Club as well as with the Boy Scouts of America, and many other civic organizations. Skypala joined the Hereford Lions Club in 1954, and had 24 years perfect attendance. He served as Zone Chairman in 1961-62, and as District 2T-1 Deputy District Governor in 1962-63.

Skypala served as president of the Hereford Lions Club in 1962-63, and became involved in Lions work fulltime in 1968 when he became Extension Representative for five Texas Northwest Districts. He extended his representation to 15 districts of Texas in 1972 before being appointed State Secretary for Lions of Texas later that year, moving to Austin.

Skypala retired from that position in February of this year, and returned to Hereford. He was nominated by the local club, selected by

ED SKYPALA
District 2T-1, and installed in the Texas Lions Hall of Fame at the State Convention May 24, 1982.

He had attended 19 International Lions Conventions including the one this year in (See SKYPALA, Page 2)

Lions Club Cancels Wednesday Meeting

The Hereford Noon Lions Club has cancelled its regular meeting Wednesday in honor of member Ed Skypala, who died Sunday after a heart attack. Lions Club members are asked to attend Skypala's funeral Wednesday morning at St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

"We are asking all Lions to be at the church at 10:15 tomorrow morning," Lions president Charlie Bell said.

The service will begin at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday, and all Texas Lions will serve as honorary pallbearers.

Skypala was president of the Hereford club in 1962-63, and served as Lions State Secretary from 1972 until February of this year.

Postal Service 'Normal' Here

By JULIE SMILEY
Farm Editor

"Hereford is working as normal," according to Nolan Grady, U.S. Post Office, Hereford.

However, the threat of a postal strike is still a question. Just after 7 a.m., a national spokesman in Washington for the postal workers said, in a statement to the press, that no contract had been made, but he would not comment on whether workers would strike.

Postal Service workers' contracts expired at midnight Monday.

On Monday, Gene Streun, steward in the local clerk's union, said, "If they (government) don't come up with a better offer than management has made, the large cities will go on strike. The smaller ones like us, it won't make much difference."

Rick Lee, a non-union member employed at the Hereford Post Office, agreed and said the larger cities like Dallas, Houston and Fort Worth could go on strike, but small towns like Hereford probably will not. "If the large cities go out on strike, we won't have any work to do anyway," Lee said.

Mail routed through major cities would stop if postal workers in major cities struck, however, Streun said local mail would move as usual.

Lee said postal workers had received a letter with their last pay check reminding workers that it is against the law to strike against the U.S. government, and postal workers that did strike would lose their job.

"Anyone that goes on strike will be committing career suicide," said Lee. "The ones (postal workers) that walked out three years ago haven't got their jobs back yet."

Judge Restrains Fruit Quarantine in Texas

DALLAS (AP) — A federal judge ordered Texas agricultural authorities to end their quarantine of California produce on the same day that inspectors established the blockades at four locations along the state's western border.

U.S. District Judge Patrick E. Higginbotham, acting on a request by a group of California growers, signed a temporary restraining order Monday night that lifted the state quarantine on produce not certified free of infestation by the destructive Mediterranean fruit fly.

Higginbotham scheduled a Saturday hearing on a preliminary injunction.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said late Monday night that the state would abide by Higginbotham's order.

"We removed the roadblocks ... I have absolutely done everything I can to protect Texas interests — now it is out of my hands," said Brown.

"This crisis is not over... the very food supply of this nation is in danger from this insidious insect, every precaution should be taken," Brown said in a telephone interview from his home in Austin.

Texas was one of five states that began quarantining California produce Monday. Higginbotham's order does not affect quarantines in Florida, South Carolina, Mississippi and Alabama.

The Texas quarantine, which included 53 different varieties of fruits, vegetable and nuts, went into effect at noon Monday when inspectors set up checkpoints at four points along the state's western border.

Brown said no truckloads of California produce were turned back, but three truckloads had to be fumigated before they were allowed to continue.

Higginbotham's ruling came at the request of lawyers for the California Grape and Tree Fruit League.

The growers' attorneys argued the quarantine was illegal because it attempted to supersede a July 13 agreement between California and the U.S. Department of Agriculture that mapped a strategy for containing the medfly infestation.

Daryl Arnold, president of the Western Growers Association, estimated that a

City Accepts NCR Processor Lease

The Hereford City Commission voted to accept a five-year lease-purchase agreement with NCR Corporation Monday night during their regular meeting at city hall. The agreement is for a data processing unit for the city, which will be delivered within 90 days by NCR, but will take up to a year-and-a-half to become fully operational.

The city fathers decided to accept City Manager Dudley Bayne's recommendation to accept the NCR proposal, which will cost the city $98,816 for the five-year period, with an annual maintenance cost of $6,200. Those figures exclude software costs, which have been estimated at $3,000 by NCR.

The city will own the system following the five-year lease period.

In other business, the commission took the high bid on (See CITY, Page 2)

Hamlett Promoted By Armour Foods

Thomas J. Hamlett, former plant manager at Hereford, has been promoted to the position of executive vice president of the fresh meat division of Armour Foods Company.

The announcement was made Monday in Phoenix, Ariz., by W.L. Tunnell, president of Armour Foods. "I am pleased to announce the appointment of several Armour Foods Company executives to positions of greater responsibility," stated Tunnell.

Hamlett is a former manager of the Hereford plant and moved to an executive position in Phoenix several years ago. He served on the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce board while in Hereford.

In his new position, Hamlett will continue to be responsible for the beef, lamb and pork operations, as well as worldwide trading and the international sales division. The promotion was effective July 6.

Redistricting Bugged Down

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — What had been branded as a congressional redistricting test between "computer politics" and "good ol' buddy-buddy politics" bogged down in parliamentary confusion Monday.

The Senate resumed its efforts today to approve a redistricting proposal in what has become a relentless struggle between Republicans and some conservative Democrats against other Democrats — liberal and conservative.

A vote switch Monday by Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston, blocked a redistricting proposal that would have created a 63.76 percent minority district in Dallas County.

The motion to quit until today climaxed four hours of confusion and debate without a final vote on redistricting.

A key 16-15 vote, with Ogg voting with the majority, apparently had cleared the way for approval of Sen. John Wilson's proposal to create the minority district in Dallas — a plan opponents refer to as "the governor's plan."

Coffee Bloodmobile Here Wednesday

The Coffee Memorial Blood Mobile will be in Hereford Wednesday at the Community Center from 3-6 p.m. According to Pat Clark, chairman of the blood bank committee, Hereford needs an enormous amount of blood this month. "There was a 129 pints of blood used this month by Hereford residents and figuring replacement value on that on a 4 to 1 basis Hereford needs 516 pints of blood," she said.

Those needing blood replaced are Lois Clinard, 8; Cynthia Lopez, 4; Joe David Nava, 40; Harmon Lindley, 16; Connie Sermino, 8; Francisco Morales, 8; Afton Jones, 8; Joseph Gregory, 136; La Jean Henry, 12; David Yandell, 116; Camilla Jones 8; Dorothy Ott, 4; and Georgia Jackson, 148.

"I urge everyone in Hereford to give blood this month," said Mrs. Clark.

Drowned Tennessee Minister Turns Up In Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — A 46-year-old minister who awoke in a downtown parking lot after disappearing in the Hatchie River Tennessee says he knows who he is now, but still doesn't know how he got to Houston. Police officials Ripley, Tenn., said Monday that they had been dragging the river for six days looking for the Rev. John C. Hartman's body. The minister had been boating on the river before he disappeared. "My ring finger caught under water and I felt I was drowning," Hartman said. "From there I don't remember anything." Hartman said the next thing he knew, he awoke in a downtown parking lot. "The first thing I thought was where am I. Then I saw a sign that read Sheraton Houston. Then I was awed," Hartman said. Hartman said he cleaned himself up in a restroom at the hotel, then walked to a police station. Police Sgt. Cindy Landry said she and other police officers began questioning him and that he appeared to be suffering from amnesia. She said police talked to Hartman about several subjects. When religion came up, Hartman began quoting scripture and knew the names of seven churches in Tennessee. Landry said she began telephoning churches, and on the fourth call, talked to the Rev. Jim Holmes of the Germantown United Methodist Church. "He told me the man was a good friend of his who had been missing since Wednesday," Landry said. She said she asked the man in the next room if his name was John Hartman. "He said yes and was so excited," Landry said.

School System Cuts Work Force

DALLAS (AP) — Budget problems will force the dismissal of 90 employees within the Dallas Independent School District, the first time in history that Dallas school positions have been eliminated for budgetary reasons, the superintendent said. The terminations will be recommended to school trustees at a regular meeting later this month, Superintendent Linus Wright said Monday. A new employee layoff policy, dictating the terms of the dismissal, was enacted by board members earlier this year. Wright said most of those fired would be clerks and teachers' aides, although 17 professional positions — including some teachers — also would be eliminated. "This is a considerably smaller number than we had anticipated," Wright said, adding that he was relieved the tight budget did not necessitate more firings. "Fortunately," he continued, "we have been able to reassign a lot of other employees to positions that were vacated this summer through retirements and resignations."

New Mexico Considers Fixing Texas Road

CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP) — Eddy County would like to provide the state of Texas with a little road maintenance help, but the District Attorney's office wants to make sure it's legal first. Assistant District Attorney Tom Rutledge said he will ask New Mexico Attorney General Jeff Bingaman and Texas Attorney General Mark White if Eddy County road equipment can be taken across the state line to maintain a stretch of Texas highway that runs to the Guadalupe Mountains National Park.

The National Park Service asked Eddy County for help, noting that the unpaved road provides the only access to the national park from New Mexico. Park Service officials said if Eddy County equipment is not used, the nearest road equipment available in Texas is 80 miles away from the park. Rutledge said Eddy County has crews working in the vicinity of the state line and it would be no problem to provide the maintenance from a road department viewpoint, he said. However, Rutledge said he will contact the attorneys general in both states before making a recommendation to the Eddy County Commission.

Trial For Agca To End Wednesday

ROME (AP) — The trial of Mehmet Ali Agca for the shooting of Pope John Paul II is expected to end Wednesday following the Turkish terrorist's admission that he shot the pontiff and his refusal to answer questions in court. Twenty-eight prosecution witnesses testified after the opening of the trial Monday but shed no light on the motives of the 23-year-old gunman or for whom he might have been acting. Chief Judge Severino Santiapichi said the prosecution would present its final arguments today. The defense was not expected to call any witnesses, and the judge said it would sum up Wednesday. He said the jury of four men and two women was expected to reach a verdict Wednesday. Both prosecution and defense attorneys have predicted Agca will be sentenced to life imprisonment, the maximum sentence he can get.

Tax Exempt Plan Praised By Leaders

Texas housing leaders offered quick praise and support for a tax-exempt savings certificate plan adopted by the U.S. Senate Thursday night. The all-savers provision of the 1981 tax bill would require that savings and loan associations or other lenders to channel at least 75 percent of the net new savings to be lent for home mortgages or agriculture. The certificate could be offered in denominations as low as $500 at a rate of up to 70 percent of the one year Treasury bill rate. At current market rates that would produce a yield of 10 percent. But the interest would be exempt from federal taxes raising the effective yield for most taxpayers much higher. The tax-exempt interest income would be limited to $1000 annually for individuals or $2000 for joint returns. Durward Curlee, executive vice president of the Texas Savings and Loan League, said the provision should attract considerable new deposits to savings and loan associations and the tight home mortgage market.

Curlee praised Senator Lloyd Bentsen (D-Tx.) for his persistent efforts to attract more capital into the housing market and his leadership in adding the housing amendment to the 1981 tax bill. The provision, which passed by an 86 to 10 margin, was also supported by Senator John Tower.

Curlee along with the leaders of the Texas Association of Realtors and the Texas Association of Builders, commended the Texas congress-sional delegation for their support of the tax-exempt certificate. "No state delegation has been more active or effective in working for this badly needed boost for housing," said Curlee.

The measure will be considered in the House Ways and Means Committee next week. "Representative Bill Archer (R-Houston) and Representative Kent Hance (D-Lubbock) have worked hard on the committee to promote this concept and it has considerable support from the Texas delegation," said Curlee. But because there are so many provisions being considered, Curlee urged Texans who support the concept to contact their Congressman soon.

The all-savers certificate would become available October 1, 1981 and be authorized for 15 months.

The Texas Savings and Loan League has 318 member savings and loan associations. They offer a full range of family financial services including savings investments, home and consumer loans, checking accounts and retirement plans. Their $30 billion savings deposits are insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. The League is a non-profit trade organization established in 1922.

Walkways Vibrations Didn't Cause Crash Says Designer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The president of a firm that helped design Hyatt Regency Hotel is discounting speculation that vibrations set up by dancers caused two suspended walkways to crash into the hotel lobby, killing 111. Meanwhile, the first suits to stem from Friday's accident were filed in circuit court Monday on behalf of a man who was critically injured and two people who were killed. A total of $105 million in damages was requested. Thirty-seven funerals were scheduled today for victims of the disaster, which turned the crowded lobby of the luxurious hotel into a heap of concrete, twisted metal and mutilated bodies. On Monday, 25 funerals were held. There were conflicting statements from witnesses about whether people were dancing on the two 45-ton walkways Friday as a tea dance went on in the lobby below. The catwalks crashed to the floor without warning. Beside those killed, at least 186 were injured. While Jack Gillum, president of Gillum & Associates of St. Louis, which designed the hotel, discounted the "vibrations" theory, he said the catwalks would have been designed differently if he knew they were to be designed for dancing. "They were designed as walkways, not to handle a dancing load," he said. "If we had known they were going to be used for dancing, then we would have designed them for that purpose."

Gillum declined to elaborate in an interview Monday night and refused to speculate on a cause. But he rejected the theory that dancing on the walkways created a "harmonic vibration" that could have shaken the bridges apart.

Paul Harvey News

Look Out, Here Comes August

There are more newpeople per-capita in Washington, D.C., than anywhere on earth. They are in constant competition with themselves and with one another for something to write about. During the dog-days of August they must still find news... Or make it. The media crucifixion of Bert Lance should never have happened. Had Sadat visited Israel 45 days earlier, it might not have happened. But nothing of significance was going on during August of 1977. News was so deadly dull that the Washington Post, Aug. 1, gave its most prominent front page space to a story about the "diminished local crab supply." Newswriters, determined to fill the intolerable vacuum, went to work on Bert Lance. Time magazine, as early as May 23, had reported on Bert Lance's personal financial situation — but who cared? There was nothing in the story to discredit Lance's administration of the OMB. The tedious, subsequent court test of Lance's banking practices showed him to be innocent of any crime. Yet long before that, the news-starved D.C. media had hounded Lance out of office. Another graphic example of how media bulldozers froth at the mouth in August relates to 1980 and Billygate. The previous September the New York Times reported Billy Carter preparing to register as a foreign agent — but the timing was wrong. Then the ailing shah came to visit and the headlines were all his. But when August arrived there was nobody to pick on — except brother Billy. Errant brothers of previous presidents had been ignored but this time media people sank their teeth into Billy's trousers and would not let go until they broke him. Utterly. A Brookings study as recently as this year has noted the trendency toward what it calls a "pack media" in our country. The Times and the Post are parroted by AP and UPI, and they are parroted by hundreds of newspapers and thousands of broadcasters nationwide. It is an inbred characteristic of the corps. Like jackals, they converge on a wounded lion. The Alexander Haig "I am in charge" speech was made in March. Fortunately for him. Had he made that same speech in July or August, he'd have been lynched. So look out, here comes August!

Something better happen to feed—the insatiable, carnivorous appetite of the news mongers or they'll find raw meat somewhere.

Claim packing blacks and browns into a single district could cost Democratic incumbents Martin Frost and Jim Mattox their seats in Dallas County. Wilson, D-La Grange, was sure enough of his victory to proclaim the Senate session as "a great day for democracy." He said the reason opponents were having "so much trouble arguing against my bill is because it is not a prejudicial bill — they're arguing against a computer." He called a proposal that would give the two Democratic incumbents in Dallas County — as well as other incumbents — a better chance to be re-elected "good ol' buddy-buddy politics." "The fact is, it (congressional redistricting) is a partisan issue — always has been, always will be, and properly so," said Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas. On a direct vote on Wilson's proposal, Ogg switched and voted against it, defeating the measure 16-15. Ogg's maneuver was an apparent attempt to get his own proposal approved, although it had also been rejected once, 16-15. Ogg's proposal would reduce the Dallas "minority" district to about 58 percent black and brown. He said it would allow "every congressman at least a chance to be re-elected." Sen. Chet Brooks apologized publicly to Wilson, saying he was going to vote to reconsider the motion by which Ogg's plan had failed. In announcing that he was changing his own vote in favor of Ogg, Brooks said he realized approval of Ogg's plan would guarantee that a House-Senate conference committee would write the final bill. A parliamentary hangup, however, prevented the Senate from voting to reconsider Ogg's bill at once. "We're a bit frazzled to do more parliamentary than we've already done," said Brooks, D-Pasadena. Just to reach a starting point for today, the Senate then voted 17-14 to go back to Wilson's bill. "Maybe it's just a bad dream," moaned one senator.

30-day quarantine by Texas could cost California growers as much as $2 billion in lost revenues. And Richard Harrington, a lawyer for the growers, said California Grape and Tree Fruit League members would suffer another $17 million in lost sales. Higginbotham had declined to rule immediately, delaying his ruling until Monday night after USDA officials told him the department was making procedural changes in its California quarantine that would give the federal government jurisdiction. The judge noted that a federal quarantine, issued under USDA rule-making procedures, would void blockades imposed by Texas and four other states. After the ruling, Brown said Southern states were contemplating legal action of their own, but that nothing had been decided. Growers and California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. have charged that the state quarantines were political moves intended to profit rival southern agriculture and make California produce unsaleable. But Texas officials scoffed at the allegation Monday. "California grows and distributes around 50 percent of the fresh fruit and vegetables we consume in this nation," said Harvey Jordan, a spokesman for the Texas Department of Agriculture. "There's no way any one of the southern states could gain appreciably by imposing a quarantine of this type." Reagan Brown lashed out at California officials Monday night, calling meddly eradication efforts in that state "the biggest Mickey Mouse operation that has ever been perpetrated." "Millions (of dollars) have been wasted and tons of fruit destroyed," said Brown, adding that state quarantines would have been unnecessary if California had acted six months ago. "Our growers and citizens are very concerned," said Brown. "Our farmers and producers and consumers are very concerned that this most insidious insect may spread."

under M. Haig Jr. said the mood was "surprisingly one of total solidarity on the issues." And the summit host, Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, declared the conference a success because no one participant tried to "force views" on the others. Trudeau released a four-page "chairman's summary of political issues," in which he identified several areas of agreement among the seven nations. These included East-West relations. "Our concern is heightened by Soviet actions which are incompatible with the exercise of restraint and responsibility in international affairs," the statement said. "We ourselves, therefore, need a strong defense capability." At the same time, the statement said, "We are convinced of the importance of working towards balanced and verifiable arms control and disarmament agreements in pursuit of undiminished security at lower levels of armament and expenditure." The statement also called for a solution to end the Arab-Israeli dispute, urged the Soviet Union to abide by international human rights provisions and continued to condemn "the Soviet military occupation of Afghanistan." The leaders also adopted a statement condemning international terrorism and reaffirming their "determination vigorously to combat such flagrant violations of international law."

On interest rates, Trudeau observed that "if one were to draw a conclusion (from the discussions), the Americans have been sensitized to the effect of their policies on their partners." "The social costs...are esteemed to be too high by everyone, including the Americans," he said.

The largest postal strike in history happened in 1970, beginning in New York City and spreading along the East Coast and other parts of the Northeast and Midwest. More than 150,000 workers were involved, but they were allowed to return as part of an amnesty deal that accompanied a contract settlement with management.

for a three-year freeze on base wages with continuation of a cost-of-living provision that resulted in raises totaling $3,619 for the typical postal worker over the past three years. "This is nothing more than rearranging furniture on the Titanic while it is sinking," Sombrotto said. "If things don't change, there will be a nationwide strike." The Postal Service said the two unions' initial wage proposal would have driven the cost of a first-class stamp to 45 cents by 1984. Management said its offer would result in postal rates going up 3 cents by 1982. The unions insisted that not strike. Instead, they said they would ask for binding arbitration if an agreement could not be negotiated. The two larger unions rejected binding arbitration. The Postal Service threatened to fire any employee who participated in a strike, which is prohibited by federal law, and the Justice Department compared the consequences of an illegal strike to having "a man step on your head and telling you you can't fight back." Several union locals around the country voted Monday night to support a strike call by their negotiators. An exception was in Billings, Mont., where Roger Rieger, president of Letter Carriers Local 815, said his union's members voted unanimously not to strike.

Three Prowler Incidents And Burglary Reported

Hereford Police yesterday investigated three prowler reports and a burglary and theft report. Mary Huckert, 413 McKinley, told police that a man came to her front door and looked in her house. The man then went to the side of the house and looked in a window. Ms. Huckert called the police after he went outside and talked to the man. The police learned that the man was an epileptic and they took him to his own home. A prowler attempted to get into a room at Blue Water

Gardens apartments last night. Cornelia Martinez told police that someone tried to enter her apartment through her son's bedroom window. The attempt was unsuccessful. Police officers searched the premises, but were unable to find anyone. A possible prowler was reported yesterday at 214 Hickory. Coursey Russell told police that someone was on her woodpile. Burglars caused $10 of damage in order to steal $1 from Continental Grain, 101

S. Lee. The burglars broke a window to gain entry to the building, and took $1 from the top of a coffee pot. Also, two pipe wrenches were stolen from the Aikman Elementary School campus yesterday. Energas employees, who were working on the south side of the building, went into the school for a minute, and found the tools missing after they returned outside. Police investigated one harassing phone call report, seven minor incident calls, and issued 18 traffic citations.

4-H Firsthand

An Investment In The Future

By PENNY CRIBBS
County Extension Agent
Today's 4-H program is for all youth—rural and urban—from all racial, cultural, economic and social backgrounds.

4-H reaches girls and boys in a variety of ways: as members of organized 4-H clubs, as participants in special interest groups, and as enrollees in short-term projects. It reaches them through television, camping and other educational methods, and in programs planned to meet specific needs of youth and communities where they live, points out Penny, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

4-H involves young people everywhere—in big cities and little towns, in the country and in suburbs, on Indian reservations, and in the District of Columbia, Puerto

Youth organizations in more than 80 countries around the world have adapted the 4-H idea. Opportunities for individual, club, community, state, national and international projects and activities are available through 4-H.
Today's 4-H gives young people an opportunity to take an active part in learning about and solving problems that face them and their communities. These include problems of environment, health and use of drugs.

Members participate in projects that give them knowledge of science, agriculture, home economics, personal development, community service, leadership and citizenship. Often this knowledge helps open the door to a future career. But the main purpose of 4-H is to help youth become effective citizens, emphasizes Penny.

Some of the most popular 4-H projects are food-nutrition, clothing, home improvement, home grounds beautification, health, safety and leadership. New projects range from aerospace to theatrics and karate.

In rural areas many 4-H members work with livestock, crops, poultry, forestry, marketing and farm machinery. Both girls and boys learn new farming methods, do experimental research, and have fun in the process.

Popular with city, suburban and rural young people alike are projects in community development, electricity, environmental protection and conservation, home gardening, photography, public speaking, woodworking, entomology, small engines, grooming and personal development.

Older girls and boys find satisfaction and challenge in projects in automotive care and safety, career studies, money management, consumer education and leadership.

Flexibility is the key to today's 4-H projects—flexibility in the kinds of learning offered and in the variety and size of projects. For instance, one of the fastest growing is a horse project for youth who don't own horses.

In 4-H it's kids that county. And that's an investment in the future.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Ann Landers A Pesky Plague

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing about my husband. No, he doesn't chase women, drink to excess or gamble away his paycheck. The problem: He gets the hiccups at the darndest times, and his hicking can be heard a block away. When he gets the hiccups at the theater, the movies, during a lecture or in church, I get so embarrassed I want to crawl under the seat.

Do you, or any of your consultants, know of a sure cure for this pesky plague? I'd be Grateful Forever In White Plains

DEAR WHITE PLAINS: Carry a packet of granulated sugar in your purse. One packetful, taken dry, placed on the tongue and allowed to dissolve, will stop the hiccups in 90 cases out of 100.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I won't go into detail here, but I have known for several weeks that a certain party has been wanting to serve me with a summons. I successfully avoided the server until last night.

I was having supper in my home, and a gentleman was dining with me. When the doorbell rang, I suspected it might be the summons and asked my guest to go to the door and say I was not at home. There is a chain on the door, as well as a peephole from which one can look out but not in.

My friend went to the door, saw the summons server and said, "Mrs.-----is not at home." When the party said, "I can't hear you," my friend unwisely cracked the door open, but the chain was still on. The summons server quickly clipped the chain with some extraordinary scissors, shoved my friend out of the way and walked in.

He saw me seated at the table, handed me the summons and said, "You gave me a darned good chase, but I finally nailed you."

I am burned up about this because the man pushed his way into my home. Must I appear in court regardless? What do you say, Ann? Friend In Flushing

DEAR FRIED: What I say doesn't count. But a lawyer whom I consulted says if you want to fight the summons you can do it. A server must gain peaceful entry, or the serving of the summons is not valid.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: For 25 years my husband has sat on his fat rump and had everything carried to him. Every time I walk by, it's, "Bring me a beer on your way back," or, "How about a bag of pretzels?"

We have four teens and he is doing the same with them. I don't want my kids to treat their spouses the way their dad treats me. I am ashamed of this situation because I contributed to it.

Should I explain to my children that this is not acceptable behavior and I am not going to do it anymore—and they shouldn't either? What if this starts family fights? Please help me, Ann—a Dumb Handmaiden

DEAR DUMB: After 25 years of catering to His Royal Majesty you will have a hard time getting him off his piazza.

Child-parent relationships are different from spouses. Kids should do chores for parents when asked—but it should not be a master-slave arrangement. In all fairness, the kids should give HIM a chance to reciprocate.

Tell your husband that on Monday-Wednesday-Friday-and-Saturday you will fetch and carry for him. On Tuesday-Thursday-and-Sunday it's his turn. I hope it works, but I wouldn't bet the rent.

Discover how to be date bait without falling hook, line and sinker. Ann Landers' booklet, "Dating Do's and Don'ts," will help you be more poised and sure of yourself on dates. Send 50 cents along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995 Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Second Most Common Cause Of Accidental Deaths Among Children

Egg protein is so near perfection that scientists often use it as a standard to measure the value of protein in other foods.

Summer means swimming and scuba-diving. Too often, it also involves accidental drownings.

According to the American Lung Association of Texas, drowning is the second most common cause of accidental deaths among children under 15. Only motor vehicle accidents take a higher toll. Drowning victims include infants unattended in bathtubs as well as children who fall into ponds, plunge through the ice, swim beyond their depth or endurance, or misuse scuba or snorkel equipment.

Most drowning victims, says the Lung Association, are boys in the 10-to-19-year-old range.

While submerged in water, a natural protective response of the body takes over to keep the person alive longer. During submersion there is no breathing and therefore no oxygen entering the lungs or the blood. However, a major redistribution of blood may occur, flowing to the brain and heart, organs that are very sensitive to a lack of oxygen. Blood may flow away from the skin, muscles, and stomach, where it is not so critical for instant survival.

Removing fluid and debris and getting oxygen into the lungs of the victim is essential; usually 100 percent oxygen is administered as soon as possible. If the victim survives the first 24 hours after the accident, chances are good that he or she will recover.

The best cure is always prevention, says the Lung Association. And they caution everyone—at all ages—to be aware of water safety, especially this summer. To find out how to protect your lungs for all seasons, contact the American Lung Association of Texas, 7701 North Lamar Blvd., Suite 104, Austin Texas 78752. It's a matter of life and breath.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

The ad said if I bought an 11-piece coordinated vacation wardrobe, I could make 135 clothes combinations and exist for three weeks living out of one suitcase.

The coordinated ensemble included a basic dress, reversible skirt, slacks, blouse, jacket, shorts, T-shirt, vest, two scarfs and a cap with a bill.

I will not bore you with all 135 combinations...only the interesting ones.

Three days out, I outgrew my slacks.

Four days out, I ripped the breast pocket on the jacket and could wear it only when my arms were folded or if I used one of the scarfs as a sling and pretended I had a broken arm.

Five days out, the blouse did not dry and the scarf faded over it, forcing me to wear it with the darts facing backwards.

The T-shirt shrunk on the sixth day and I found by buying another cap with a bill and joining them with a scarf I had an interesting bra for playing tennis.

The skirt was getting on everyone's nerves and one night as it stood in the corner of my room, I noted it still had my body molded in it. The next day I turned it around, put my blouse on the outside and told everyone I was expecting in four months.

Mercifully on the 11th day, the hem dropped out of the dress, giving me a new look for evenings.

The ugly oil spot on the reversible skirt penetrated both sides on the 14th day, giving me a choice of wearing my handbag on my left side or my right.

The vest was the only clean thing in my suitcase by the 17th day, but I didn't know what to do with it. When my blouse was ordered off the sightseeing bus by a vote of 43-0, wore it sleeveless with pins holding it together.

By the 20th day, nothing mattered anymore. I wore the scarf with the oil-stained skirt, the slacks with the broken zipper with the two caps with a bill, the dress with the torn jacket, the T-shirt with the shorts. On the last night, there was a masquerade party. I went as myself and won first prize.

When I arrived home, there was one scarf that had been soaked in perfume that leaked. The fashion coordinator had thought of everything. All I had to do was to light a match, ignite it and in time...forget all 11 pieces.

Talks in 40-Day-Old Baseball Strike Resume

WASHINGTON (AP) — The mouthpieces have been gagged in the baseball talks — once they leave the negotiating table. Whether that means stadiums will soon ring with the cry of "Play ball!" remains to be seen.

The two sides in the 40-day-old strike were to resume negotiations over the issue of free-agent compensation at 9:30 a.m. EDT today, with a news blackout imposed at the suggestion of Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan.

Donovan was due back at today's talks after spending some four hours with the two sides Monday, the first session in Washington after more than two months in New York.

"We've had face-to-face talks all afternoon. There's a press blackout," said Kenneth Moffett, acting head of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service and the mediator for almost two years in baseball's war over free-agent compensation.

Moffett refused to discuss what went on at the session in the federal agency's downtown headquarters, but later told the Associated Press that negotiators "had never been further apart."

Generally, news blackouts are viewed as protection for negotiations reaching a critical stage or close to settlement. Moffett declined to characterize the blackout imposed Monday that way, but reiterated that he felt the intensive media coverage of the talks while in New York had hindered progress.

"The main reason for the blackout is the same reason we came to Washington," he said. "The two sides should be allowed to talk back and forth without having to come down here (to the press room) like it's a tennis match."

Members of the two negotiating teams declined comment as they left the building.

"Hope you guys have a nice evening," Raymond Grebey, director of the owners' Player Relations Committee, said to reporters as he departed.

Marvin Miller, the usually talkative executive director of the Major League Players Association, would only smile and nod as reporters approached him.

Donovan also declined comment.

Donovan met with each side separately for about 45 minutes Monday, then attended a joint negotiating session which ended just before 6 p.m. EDT, as the two sides broke for caucuses, according to D.J. Yount, a spokeswoman for Moffett.

The toll of the strike grew as negotiations resumed. Since it began June 12, 476 games including 14 today have been wiped out.

Negotiations broke down last Thursday after Grebey presented, along with a modification of the owners free-agent compensator plan, a set of conditions for a settlement. One would deprive players of credit for major league service for at least the first 35 days of the strike.

All Stars Beat El Paso

The Hereford Bronco League All Stars used late-inning rallies to defeat El Paso twice here Saturday night to advance to the Sectional Tournament to be held at Everman near Fort Worth beginning Friday. The 9-8 and 11-8 sweep of a twinbill Saturday overcame a one game lead by El Paso in the best two-of-three series to advance the local team to further play.

Todd Shire provided the fireworks in the nightcap after Hereford had forced the third and deciding game with the one-run victory in the opener. Shire went two-for-four at the plate in the second game with two homeruns, including a grand slam, producing seven RBIs in the 11-8 win.

Shire also picked up the win on the mound for Hereford, going six innings in striking out seven El Paso batters while walking only two and allowing three homeruns.

Shire lofted a three-run shot in the top of the sixth inning to give Hereford a 5-2 lead, but El Paso came back to knot the score in their half of the frame. The next time Shire came to bat in the top of the seventh the bases were loaded, and a second successive four-bagger gave the locals an 11-5 bulge.

El Paso scored three runs in the bottom of the seventh, but it wasn't enough as Hereford advanced to Sectional play.

In the opener Saturday

Keith Herrera's homer helped propel Hereford to the 9-8 win, while Bill Ruckman, Mark Artho, Vincent Brown, and Bobby Medina all went two-for-four at the plate in aiding the victory. Keith Anderson notched the win on the mound for Hereford in an eight-strikeout, no walk performance.

Hereford will play at 9 p.m. Friday in the first round of the Sectional Tournament at Everman.

THE HEREFORD BRAND SPORTS

Finals on Sunday

First Go-Round Completed In Cheyenne Frontier Days Rodeo

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Rookie bronc rider Terry Carlson of Lawton, Ore., alone was able to top previous performances after the third day of the first go-round in the Cheyenne Frontier Days Rodeo.

With a score of 71, Carlson jumped ahead of Marty Forster of McCoy, Colo., now in second with a 70.

First places in the other six events grabbed in the previous two days stood up through Monday, but other places were shuffled going into today's completion of the first go-round in the 85th Daddy of 'Em All. At stake is a piece of the record $450,000 purse this year.

The second go-round starts Tuesday. Finals are Sunday.

Steer roper Terry McGinley of Keystone, Neb., had a time of just 16.3 seconds but had to settle for second place behind the 16.2 seconds of Butch Morgan of Colorado Springs, Colo.

Steve Bland of Trent Texas, was still the top call roper at 12.7 seconds. But Doug Johnson of Peyton Colo., turned in a 13.6-second time Monday to tie the second-best performance of the first go-round by Pax Irvine of Phoenix, Ariz.

Saddle bronc rider Bud Pauley of Miles City, Mont., scored a 75 to move into a two-way tie for second with Cody Lambert of El Paso, Texas. The top saddle bronc rider of the first go-round was still former world champion Monty "Hawkeye" Henson of Mesquite, Texas, with a 76.

Pampa to Host Soft Ball Tourney

Pampa will host a men's slow pitch softball tournament Aug. 14-16, with a field of 28 teams. The deadline for entering the tourney is Aug. 7 at a cost of $90 per team.

Teams wishing more information or wanting to enter may call Cassey Browning at 665-4024 or Janet Florer at 669-9432.

Local Babe Ruths Fall to Graham

BROWNFIELD - Graham hurler Ragen Bewley limited Hereford to four hits as Graham routed the local 13-year-old Babe Ruth All Stars 16-1 at the West Texas Babe Ruth Tournament here.

Hereford falls into the loser's bracket of the tourney with the loss, and was to face the loser of the Dumas-Brownfield game Monday at 8:30 p.m. tonight.

Graham collected 11 hits in the run-rule-shortened game, which went only five innings.

In other action at the tournament Monday, Lubbock beat Lamesa 17-10.

The winner of the tournament advances to the five-state sectional tournament Aug. 11 in Pampa.

Red Sox Owner: Wipe Out '81 Season; World Series, Playoffs Not a Sham

BOSTON (AP) — Haywood Sullivan, co-owner and general manager of the Boston Red Sox, says that if the 40-day-old baseball strike heads into September he favors wiping out the remainder of the 1981 major league season.

"One thing I don't want to see happen is to have a World Series, or playoffs, called a sham," Sullivan said Monday. "I'd rather not have a season than see that happen."

"If we start heading into September (with the strike), you know how I'd vote on picking up the season."

"Starting with a month to go would be like selling five pounds of potatoes when you advertise 10 on the bag."

Despite the strike, Sullivan said the lack of a players' union would create chaos in major league baseball.

Sullivan, breaking a self-imposed silence on the strike after an amateur all-star game at Fenway Park, strongly denied that club owners want to break the Players' Association.

"I honestly can say that I have not heard one of the 26 owners say they have to get rid of or break the union," he told an impromptu news conference. "In my opinion, that's the last thing we would want to see happen."

"It would cause chaos. I would rather have the association to deal with because it helps to keep rules and order."

Asked if "other forces" might be trying to get control of major league baseball, Sullivan replied, "You said it, I didn't."

Then, he added: "Can you imagine what it would be like trying to get an agreement with 150 agents rather than one association?"

As for the prolonged strike, Sullivan said "it will take a while for all this to blowover and heal the wounds." He said there also will have to be "one helluva public relations program to bring things back to where they were."

But, he added, "the game is going to outlive us all" because it is "too simple yet too complex to let anyone control it."

If the strike is settled, Sullivan said, he would like an extension of the basic agreement, due to expire after the 1983 season, to "give us more time to try and repair damage of what already has happened."

As for a settlement, he added, "I would hate to see either side cave in. That would just leave everything still hanging."

Red Hot Baseball Country

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

Montana, land of cattle and copper, is also red-hot baseball country these days.

"It's amazing," says Lew Morris, president of the Billings Mustangs of the rookie Pioneer League, "we're drawing like mad for a team with a losing record."

Despite dropping eight of their first 11 home games, the Mustangs attracted 32,943 fans, a 75 per cent leap in attendance over last year and 8,000 more than they drew during their entire 34-game schedule in 1977.

Why baseball is such a hit in Billings is an easy question for Morris to answer.

"The baseball strike has definitely had a bearing on it," he says. "The fans don't have major league baseball to watch here on TV anymore. Minor league baseball has become an alternative."

Billings is not alone. Several other areas show attendance benefits apparently as a result of the strike by major league players, now in its sixth week. And just about everyone in the minors is benefitting from the sudden attention.

"The main impact has been from radio, television and cable companies," says John H. Johnson, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues. "I have never seen this much interest in the minor leagues. The exposure we're getting will show that we have a good quality game and will help us in the long run. Publicity-wise, we've done very well."

Shock waves are being felt from Portland to Pawtucket.

"We're a Page One item now," notes Dave Hersh, general manager of the Portland Beavers of the Pacific Coast League. "Space in the papers has usually been used for major league baseball — but now it's on the minors. Our attendance has doubled since the strike. A terrific winning streak and some fine weather has helped. But we've never been treated this well before in the press. For too many years, recently, college baseball has been treated with glamour, but the minors haven't. The strike is creating a new appreciation for minor league baseball."

Ron Zollo, general manager of Tacoma of the PCL, says the strike "definitely has helped in some areas. We started advertising in Seattle, and we're getting people down from there."

Seattle, a major league city, is only some 35 miles from Tacoma.

At Pawtucket, owner Ben Mondor says they've made no concerted effort to get fans from Boston — only about 30 miles away — and yet attendance is soaring. Mondor won't credit the strike with the influx, but does admit: "Perhaps some people have come down out of curiosity."

In an American Association stronghold at Indianapolis, publicity director Cal Burleson says that increased media coverage has helped boost attendance at Indians' games by 15 to 20 per cent. As of July 16, total attendance for the Cincinnati Reds' farm team was 130,273, compared to 110,794 last year. Part of this may be the result of a promotional tour that Burleson made into Kentucky and Ohio last month to attract up new fans.

Oilers Cut Roster

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Houston Oilers Coach Ed Biles has trimmed his training camp roster at Angelo State University to 89 players by cutting 12 rookies.

Rookies cut Monday were: wide receivers Rick Beasley, Appalachian State; Rodney Smith, Southwestern Louisiana; running back James Copeland, Texas-El Paso; offensive tackle Michael Durgin, Harvard; centers Scott Gallas, Southern Colorado; Kelly Monk, Southwest Texas State; defensive ends Tommy Harper, North Texas State; Jeffrey Holm, Southwestern Louisiana; defensive backs James Holden, Southern Colorado; David Knowles, Angelo State; linebacker David Horning, North Texas State.

Veteran running back Ronnie Coleman also reported workouts and started workouts, although veterans aren't required to be at camp until Wednesday. Coleman, seldom used last year, in Coach Bum Phillips' two-tight end offense but Biles' plans a varied attack that could utilize Coleman's pass-catching skills.

Coleman could play an even larger role this season if running back Rob Carpenter fails to report to camp. Carpenter has demanded to be traded and threatened to sit out the season if his demands aren't met.

Veterans are due in camp at 6 p.m. Wednesday with the first workout scheduled Thursday.

Horizon Staring To Stop Stomach Churning

BOSTON (AP) — Some people get those first queasy feelings just thinking about bucking over big waves on a little boat or bouncing across back roads in a car with bad springs.

But doctors say motion sickness, that curse of travel, can be conquered — at least most of the time.

The strategies range from putting kids in car seats to slowing an astronaut's racing heart with biofeedback. All of them may help. None is foolproof.

And this can be a problem for people who travel, however they travel. For no matter how disdainfully old salts vow that they never get seasick, no human being with healthy inner ears is immune from this ailment.

Motion sickness drugs help if the turbulence is not too great. And most people will get used to the movement and stop feeling ill in two or three days at sea.

"Ninety percent of people will adapt to it or respond to the drugs and be all right," said Dr. Charles Wood, a motion sickness expert at Louisiana State University School of Medicine. "But there is a certain percentage that only God, or avoiding it entirely, can help."

People get seasick, carsick, airsick or spacesick because of overexcitement of their vestibular systems, the structures in the inner ear that control balance. But sight, too, has something to do with it.

The nausea usually starts when what you feel differs from what you see.

"One theory is that it's a sensory conflict," says Wood. "You look at a room when you're sitting aboard ship, and the room appears to be sitting still. And yet your vestibular tells you that you're bouncing up and down. When you get on deck, you can see the horizon. It resolves the conflict, because you can see what you're doing."

Staring at the horizon is a time-honored and effective way of relieving the effects of motion sickness. It works, too, for people riding in cars, especially children, who seem to be especially prone to the illness.

Dr. Edward Schor of Baltimore City Hospitals reported on a solution for kids' car sickness in the New England Journal of Medicine.

Small children often get sick when riding in the backseat. The trick, Schor says, is to put the child in a car seat so he can see the passing scenery out the windows.

The Navy, for obvious reasons, has long been interested in finding a cure for motion sickness. But the search has intensified in recent years since astronauts found that floating weightlessly in space stirs its own revolting form of motion sickness.

At the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Ames Research Center in Mountain View, Calif., doctors are working on a promising treatment called autogenetic feedback training.

Space sickness was a frequent nuisance for astronauts in the Apollo and Spacelab programs, and NASA wants to make sure it does not disrupt the space shuttle.

"The kind of stimulation a person receives to his inner ear in space is quite alien to anything you could have experienced even in the whole course of evolution on the surface of a planet," said Dr. Patricia Cowings. "The body doesn't quite know how to deal with it."

Getting people conditioned to the effects of floating upside down before they go into space is impossible, because weightlessness can only be created for a few seconds at a time in airplanes on earth.

So Ms. Cowings has devised a six-hour course that teaches astronauts to fight off the symptoms of motion sickness with biofeedback techniques.

"The first thing we do is make him sick," she said. This involves strapping the victim into a whirling chair that spins him around until he vomits.

"We notice which of his physiological responses change from his resting level as the stimulus intensity increases," she said. "Then we know precisely what to teach the subject to control. We teach him essentially to mimic his own resting physiological response levels under stressful conditions."

Motion sickness never happens all at once. The symptoms usually begin with dry mouth and build up to flush, dizziness, headache, nausea, cold sweat and finally vomiting.

In the NASA program, the doctors teach people techniques to fight off their early symptoms of motion sickness, such as rapid heartbeat or blood rushing to the face, so they never progress to the point of feeling ill.

So far, Ms. Cowings said, the method has been used on about 200 people, and it works 85 percent of the time.

"We haven't come across a person who can't learn to control his responses at all," she said. "What we do see are people who can't learn to control them well enough under the distracting and distressing conditions of a motion sickness test."

Venezuelan Wins Miss Universe

NEW YORK (AP) — Irene Saez Conde had watched the Miss Universe pageant since she was a child, and she had always dreamed of being named the most beautiful woman in the world.

Miss Conde's dream came true Monday night when, as Miss Venezuela, she was crowned Miss Universe 1981.

The 19-year-old civil-engineering student from Caracas said the first thing she did when she learned she had won the pageant was to thank God. Miss Conde won more than $100,000 in cash and prizes along with her title, including a Mazda RX-7 automobile, a sport boat, jewelry, a mink, a wardrobe and $20,000 cash.

Miss Venezuela was among 76 contestants. There had been 77, but Miss Mauritius got homesick and went home Sunday, according to Steve Solomon, a spokesman for the pageant.

The five runners-up were, in order, Miss Canada, Dominique Dufour, 22, of Toronto; Miss Sweden, Eva Lundren, 19, of Pitea; Miss Brazil Adriana Oliveira, 20, of Rio de Janeiro; and Miss Belgium Dominique Van Eeckhoudt, 20, of Brussels.

The 12 judges for the contest, including Brazilian soccer star Pele, fashion photographer Francesco Scavullo and actor Lee Majors, judged the beauties throughout the week in three ways — swimsuit competition and personal interviews.

Early in the evening they narrowed the field to 12 semifinalists. Besides the five finalists, they included contestants from Holland, Ecuador, New Zealand, Norway, Germany, Tahiti and the United States. Miss U.S.A. is Kim Seelbrede, a 20-year-old model from Germantown, Ohio.

The Venezuelan ambassador to the United States, Alberto Martini Urdaneta, who came on stage after Miss Venezuela won her title, said, "It is a very happy day for all the country and for all the people. All of Venezuela is with her." He noted that it was the second Miss Venezuela to be chosen Miss Universe in three years.

Alternate Jurors Ordered Empaneled

GALVESTON (AP) — Attorneys interviewed five prospective jurors Monday as jury selection continued in the capital murder trial of two Dumas brothers charged in the Christmas Day slaying of an Amarillo police officer.

Victor Gutierrez, 24, and his brother, Guadalupe, 20, are accused of murdering the 36-year-old Amarillo patrolman Berry — Joe McGuire with his own service revolver.

The prospective jurors were considered and rejected for two alternate spots in 10th District Court. Twelve jurors have been seated since the trial began on June 22.

District Judge Ed Harris of Galveston ordered attorneys to seat alternate jurors after a woman in the original panel asked to be dismissed for medical reasons.

Sherry Sumney, a 28-year-old Texas City secretary, requested the medical excuse because she is pregnant.

Attorneys said 77 prospective jurors had been questioned in 21 days of jury selection. The Gutierrez' trial was moved here from Amarillo on a change of venue after defense attorneys contended there had been excessive publicity about the case.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Wear and tear arthritis

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am in my early 50s and have osteoarthritis. Although my back does not bother me too much, my legs are very, very weak. What exercises would you recommend to help strengthen my legs and back? Would it be advisable to lose weight? I'm a 5-foot-8 woman and weigh 170 pounds.

DEAR READER - You should definitely lose weight. Osteoarthritis is also called wear and tear arthritis. It does affect the weight-bearing joints primarily. That is why the hips, knees and spine are so often the areas involved. The less you weigh, the less continued damage you will incur to your involved joints.

There is a general misconception about exercise and arthritis. Exercise is good for you, but only if it is done right. You don't need to wear a damaged joint any more than it has already worn. You do want to maintain your full range of motion and your strength. When you accomplish that goal you should rest the involved joints.

Your program then should include moving all your joints through their complete range of motion each day. Stretch them as much as you can comfortably. If you do this after a hot bath that may help.

Depending upon how bad your arthritis is, you might want to include a daily walking program. If you have quite a bit of joint involvement, I would recommend exercises in water. Swimming is excellent for people with your problem because you can exercise without burdening your joints with your body weight.

You might benefit from exercises to strengthen your abdominal and back muscles. Situps and leg lifts are good for the abdomen. But check with your doctor first. Strong abdominal muscles help to support the abdominal contents and avoid undue strain on the back.

DEAR DR. LAMB - My husband has thickening of the toe nails, which causes him much pain. He went to a local doctor, who gave him pills for this problem. The pills upset his stomach and he quit taking them. Would you have any suggestions as to what he could take or do for this problem?

DEAR READER - He should check back with his doctor. There is a possibility that the pills were for a fungus of the toe nails. Unlike ordinary athlete's feet, the nail fungus usually is treated with pills. And not everyone tolerates the pills well.

If it is not fungus, then he might start a program of soaking his feet every night and applying ordinary Vaseline over the nail after the soak. He can wrap it if he wishes for the night to keep from getting Vaseline over everything. In the morning he could put on a fresh supply and cover again. The purpose is to help the nail retain its moisture and thereby remain soft. Nails, both of the hands and feet, need normal moisture just like the skin to keep from drying out and in some cases hardening.

DEAR DR. LAMB - You say heart attacks are a disease of this century. My contention is that similar diseases carried different names in different eras. My father practiced medicine the first 45 years of this century and I have a recollection back to the early part of this century. I remember well how shaken my father was when a neighbor suddenly developed severe pain and died very suddenly from "acute indigestion." These conditions occurred rather frequently.

DEAR READER - The first diagnosis of a heart attack in a living subject was in 1908 in Germany. True, heart attacks did occur and were not diagnosed as such. For example, a Chinese woman found in an ancient tomb was found to have had heart disease.

The question you have raised about failure to recognize heart attacks has been considered by experts and the general agreement is that while such cases undoubtedly did occur, they were uncommon compared to the high rate of heart disease today. Hence we consider the epidemic of heart disease today as a disease of this century.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Does your recommendation that people with heart valve problems have antibiotics before having their teeth cleaned or any dental work apply to a boy with a mitral valve prolapse?

A murmur was detected at age 14 but the doctor said it was only necessary for antibiotics when he had any teeth extractions or before and after surgery. He gets a cough whenever he has a cold.

DEAR READER - It definitely does. One of my physician patients who had this condition developed bacterial endocarditis as a complication of having his teeth cleaned and having failed to consider that a dental procedure includes having your teeth cleaned.

Anyone with valvular disease, either from a congenital defect, or from rheumatic heart disease or from a mitral valve prolapse should have antibiotics in sufficient amounts before, during and immediately after any dental work, surgery and during any respiratory infection. Cleaning teeth can release a large number of bacteria into the circulation temporarily.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I had a uterine fibroid. The fibroid, one ovary and tube were removed. Could I get pregnant with the one ovary and tube and the uterus I have left?

DEAR READER - That depends entirely on the state of your remaining organs. If your ovary is functioning normally, your one tube is open and you have enough uterus left you certainly could.

Each ovary contains all the cells it will use to form mature ova at the time a female is born. And each ovary contains about 500,000 such potential ova cells. A woman will release fewer than 500 of these for her entire period of reproduction. It follows that just one ovary has about 10 times as many ova as will ever ripen.

Men are different in that they produce new sperm cells regularly rather than being born with a basic supply.

POLLY'S POINTERS
Polly Fisher
Smoke won't go

DEAR POLLY - Could you tell me how to get rid of the smell of cigarette smoke in my apartment? My husband smokes and I don't like the smell of smoke. I read your column and have gotten some very useful tips from it. I hope you have one for my problem, too.

MRS. B.W. - I'm afraid I don't have very encouraging news for you. As long as your husband, or anyone else, continues to smoke in your apartment, I don't think you'll ever really be able to get rid of the odor. You might be able to minimize the problem, however, by making sure there is always plenty of ventilation in the room when someone is smoking - that means an open window or an exhaust fan or the air-exchange device open on your air conditioner. Burning scented candles may also minimize the odor from smoke. Since these odors settle into carpets and upholstered furniture, sprinkle both with baking soda, then vacuum thoroughly, for an occasional deodorizing cleaning. And, of course, be sure to empty ashtrays frequently, dumping the stubs and ashes into a covered can and washing the ashtrays with soap and water each time. All of these measures may make the odor less irritating to you, even though it will be impossible for you to get rid of the odor entirely. - POLLY

The Royal Wedding: Heir To The Throne

By JEFF BRADLEY
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — The late Earl Mountbatten of Burma, great-uncle and great favorite of Britain's Prince Charles, once said it wasn't luck that had produced such an accomplished heir to the throne — "it's a bloody miracle."

Many commoners in this constitutional monarchy agree with Mountbatten's assessment of the 32-year-old prince who will marry Lady Diana Spencer, 12½ years his junior, in a majestic ceremony at St. Paul's Cathedral on July 29.

Charles Philip Arthur George Mountbatten-Windsor was just three years old when his mother became queen and he became heir to a throne dating back 1,000 years. His life has coincided with the decline of British power and the rise of a strong socialist movement to dismantle class privileges.

During a strict and spartan upbringing, his mother, Elizabeth II, and father, Prince Philip, made him aware that he would have to earn the people's favor if his own future were to be secure, and the future King Charles III has succeeded.

According to opinion polls, only the queen herself and the Queen Mother, his 80-year-old grandmother, are more popular.

A look at the record tells why. Of the 21 English heirs who have held the title Prince of Wales since 1301, Charles is the first to have gone to school with other children outside the palace, first to obtain a university degree (in history at Cambridge) and first to learn the Welsh language.

A qualified Royal Air Force pilot and ex-commander of a Royal Navy minehunter, Charles is an opera lover, promoter of industry and connoisseur of wacky humor — a prince for all seasons who will play polo for England against Spain three days before his wedding.

A quick wit, he said after eating snake meat during a survival course in Australia: "Ah, the things I do for England."

Although he loathes the tag "action man," Charles has led the world's press a merry chase for more than a decade, well earning the description "the world's most eligible bachelor."

If he wasn't skiing in the Alps in the company of some lovely debutante, he was being kissed by a bathing beauty in Australia, tumbling over steeplechase fences at Cheltenham, skindiving to the wreck of a Tudor warship or parachuting from 1,200 feet.

When rioting erupted in Britain's inner cities this month, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher talked of "law and order" but Charles came forward with help from his personal charity, the Prince's Trust. Black youth clubs and Sikh temples figure highly in his 1,000 official engagements a year.

An optimist sees the hamburgers getting larger. A pessimist holds that the sandwich foundry is using smaller buns.

No, Gwendolyn, the men don't go to the head shop for haircuts.

Recall when girls were the ones who complained that crying spoiled their make-up? Now, it can happen to anyone booked for a TV spot.

Isn't it remarkable how much better the summers were the further back the memory goes?

An optimist is a person who considers IOU's he holds to be a source of income for a rainy day.

Some people are happily married to their jobs, but most of us hoped for a divorce the day after we went to work.

Despite efforts to meet the people, Charles can never be "ordinary" and has come to terms with it. He believes it's right for the royal family to stay out of politics.

His polo teammates call him "Wales" but others, including close friends, use "Sir." Never Charles or Charlie.

Entombed in protocol, his personal staff includes an equerry, private secretaries, grooms and valets although he sometimes shakes them loose and for anonymity's sake drives a Land-Rover rather than his flashy Aston Martin.

Before his engagement to Lady Diana, he often ended up alone at night, eating his supper on a tray in front of the TV in his three-room Buckingham Palace apartment, aides say.

After his engagement to the earl's daughter he first saw in diapers, a more buoyant prince said: "Diana will certainly keep me young."

He once said that "about 30" was the right age to marry, but then rejected such hopefuls as the Duke of Wellington's daughter and Princess Marie-Astrid of Luxembourg to become the oldest unmarried Prince of Wales since James Stuart in 1718.

He now has to comb over a bald spot on the crown of his head.

He weighs about 154 pounds and stands 5-foot-10, just an inch taller than his bride. His outdoor-ruddy complexion reflects a love of riding, hunting, wind-surfing and fishing.

Lady Diana's one public complaint about him so far is that he can't sit still. He even writes all his own speeches — in longhand.

Charles is one of the realm's wealthiest men. His income derives from his inherited title Duke of Cornwall, giving him 130,000 acres of land in London and fertile southwest England and an annual income of about $585,000, plus a right to an annual title of 300 puffins and any whales or porpoises washed up on the Cornish beaches.

The couple will live in nine-bedroom Highgrove House, Gloucestershire, which he bought last year for a million pounds ($1.9 million), while their London quarters will be at Kensington Palace, shared with Princess Margaret, the queen's divorced sister.

Their intention is to raise a family, for Charles may have a long wait before ascending the throne. "I don't think the queen has any intention of retiring — it's not in the tradition of the royal family," said palace press secretary Michael Shea.

Charles will be 42 when his mother turns 65, a decade from now. Queen Victoria lived to be 81.

What may happen, said Shea, is that the queen will hand over more of her duties to her son, who often steps in for her on state occasions.

Charles is upset at speculation he needs work. "I have a job. Being Prince of Wales is a job in itself," he says.

But the palace says he would welcome an invitation from Australia to take over as governor-general in the near future.

Americans Concerned About Crime

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans overwhelmingly say they are more concerned about crime now than they were five years ago, the latest Associated Press-NBC News poll says.

However, the majority of the 1,599 American adults contacted by telephone July 13-14 said there was no area within a mile of their homes where they would be afraid to walk at night.

In response to the question, "Are you more or less concerned about crime than you were five years ago, or hasn't your concern about crime changed?" 85 percent of the respondents said they are more concerned.

Only 2 percent said they were less concerned about crime now than five years ago, while 13 percent said their level of concern had not changed.

Federal statistics indicate there has been a significant increase in crime over the past five years, capped by a 10 percent increase in all crime and a 13 percent increase in violent crime in 1980. A recent U.S. Justice Department report said about 3 of every 10 American households was touched by crime last year.

The rising concern about crime cuts across sex, age, race, education and income characteristics, the poll said.

Increased concern about crime was registered by 88 percent of the women, for instance, and 81 percent of the men. Likewise, people who live in cities were only slightly more likely than people living in rural areas, 87 percent to 81 percent, to say their concern about crime had increased.

While concern about crime is increasing, the AP-NBC News poll also said Americans are no more likely now than three years ago to be afraid to walk at night in their own neighborhoods.

The poll said 59 percent of the respondents said there was no area within a mile of their home where they would be afraid to walk at night. Forty percent said there was an area near their homes where they would be afraid to walk around at night. One percent said they were not sure.

Those results are identical to responses the last time the AP-NBC News poll asked that question in November, 1978.

Retired people, students, housewives and minority group members were the most likely people to say there was an area near their homes where they would be afraid to walk at night, but the biggest statistical difference was simply in the responses of men and women.

More than half the women respondents, 52 percent, said there was an area within a mile of their homes where they would be afraid to walk at night, compared with 28 percent of the male respondents.

Among blacks, 59 percent said there was an area near their homes where they would be afraid to walk at night, compared with 38 percent of the whites. Nearly half the whites who said they live in integrated neighborhoods said there were areas near their homes where they would be afraid to walk around at night.

The entire populations of the islands in the Caribbean are transplants. Three-fourths are at least partly descended from African slaves. The rest include direct descendants of European colonists, along with East Indians and Chinese who were shipped in as indentured laborers when slavery was abolished in the 19th century.

The region of the country where the most people said they would feel safest in their neighborhoods was the Midwest, where only 3 in 10 respondents said there was an area within a mile of their homes where they would be afraid to walk at night.

As with all sample surveys, the results of the AP-NBC polls can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variations in the sample.

For a poll based on about 1,600 interviews, the results are subject to an error margin of 3 percentage points either way because of such chance variations. That is, if one could have talked this past week to all Americans with telephones, there is only one chance in 20 that the findings would vary from the results of polls such as this one by more than 3 percentage points.

The results could differ from other polls for a number of additional reasons. Differences in the exact wording of questions, differences in when the interviews were conducted and different methods of interviewing could also cause variations.
