County Formally Accepts Budget

By BOB NIGH
MANAGING EDITOR
Deaf Smith County Commissioners formally accepted a $3 million budget for 1981-82 Monday during their regular meeting at the court house. The vote was 2-1 in favor of the budget submitted by county auditor Alex Schroeter, with Precinct 2 Commissioner Austin Rose voting against the measure, and Precinct 1 and 4 Commissioners Bill Bradley and James Voyles voting in favor of it. Precinct 3 Commissioner Bruce Coleman was absent from the meeting.

Rose voted against the budget in a minor protest over the way pay raises to certain county employees were handled. In other action, the commissioners tabled action on bids for the renovation of the District Courtroom at the court house, and acted on other routine work.

The 81-82 county budget calls for receipts of $2,871,915 with expenditures of $3,184,218, leaving a deficit of $312,303 at the end of the fiscal year Sept. 30, 1982. The county is estimated to have a beginning balance of $398,686 on Oct. 1, 1981, however, thus offsetting the deficit and leaving a balance of $86,383 in the county treasury on Sept. 30, 1982.

Broken down, the budget calls for expenses of $1,793,486 in the county's General Fund, $47,740 for the 1986 Bogd Bogd, and $71,108 for Right of Way. Precinct 4 has the highest budget among the four, with expenses expected at $418,326. Precinct 2 shows expenses of $314,510, with Precinct 1 showing $275,815 and Precinct 3 $256,733.

General Fund receipts in 81-82 are estimated at $1,885,537, with $440,008 in transfers from Road and Bridge, $845,529 from tax collections and $600,000 from fines and fees.

Administrative salaries puts the biggest dent in General Fund revenues with a figure of $721,296 for the year. That compares to $139,485 for county officer's salaries. Insurance is the next largest expense with a bill of $91,160 expected.

The cost of record-keeping also comes high, with $73,415 budgeted for printing records and supplies.

Three bids were opened by Schroeter concerning the renovations to the district courtroom requested by

Senior Citizens Hear Area Goals

Twenty-two concerned Hereford people attended a public hearing on the plan of the Area Agency on aging yesterday at noon at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

Guest speaker for the hearing was Mike McQueen, director of Area Agency on Aging, Amarillo. He presented a budget plan for 1982 and projected goals for the next three years.

The Area Agency covers 25 counties. McQueen explained the different portions of the budget and where the money goes. He discussed the goals and objectives of the Agency for this area. Included were more transportation, better housing facilities for the elderly, more senior citizens centers in operation, more nutrition programs and information and referral centers.

McQueen also discussed emergency equipment for people with heart problems or any other problems that call for emergency help. He concluded the public hearing with a discussion of how Amarillo built its senior citizens apartment complex and how Area Agency helped.

The goals and objectives will go to state for approval. According to Margie Daniels, director of the Hereford Senior Citizens Center, the public hearing was very interesting and we had a better turn-out than before.

On Top of Things

Sometimes it's a dog's life, one calling for work beyond the call of duty. Tooter, owned by Clifton and Rachel Veckert of 222 Ave. I, makes his way back down the house-top after seeing over his master's roof measuring project early Monday morning. Tax Writers Finally On Verge of Choosing Plan

By JIM LUTHER Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — After weeks of work, House tax-writers are beginning to choose: President Reagan's tax-cut plan or the Democratic alternative. For the average family, the difference this year would be about $6.50.

In the long run, however, the differences go far deeper and won't be settled by today's almost certain Democratic victory as the House Ways and Means Committee readies its tax package for the full House.

Should, as Democrats contend, a larger share of relief go to those with incomes less than $50,000 a year? Or should, as Republicans argue, the well-to-do get an equal share of tax reduction on the assumption that will benefit the economy more?

Because Democrats enjoy a 2-1 margin on the committee, the panel's answer today was a foregone conclusion. But Republicans are likely to win in the Senate — perhaps this week — and predict they will win on the House floor later this month.

Reagan's tax-cut plan, the heart of his program to stabilize the economy, is built around a 25 percent, across-the-board cut in personal tax rates. Democrats say that with high inflation, a two-year tax cut is enough, and they want an average 15 percent reduction with extra relief for low- and middle-income families and less of a cut for those making $50,000 and more.

A typical four-member, two-earner family making $30,000 would get a $499 tax cut next year under the president's plan and $687 under the Democratic version. A $10,000 family of four with only one earner would receive $52 in Reagan's proposal and $362 in the Democratic bill.

Either plan would take effect Oct. 1. The president's bill would fatten the take-home pay of the average four-member, $20,000 family by about $2 a week this year. The Democrats' version would be worth about $2.50 a week. That 50-cent difference would total $6.50 for the last quarter of 1981.

The president is awfully worked up about that two bucks a week," said Rep. James Shannon, D-Mass. He said withholding rates should be left as they are for the rest of the year and the 1981 tax cuts distributed as refunds early in 1982.

"We promised a tax cut this year," replied John E. Chapoton, an assistant treasury secretary. "There is no reason it cannot be done."

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., the Ways and Means chairman, indicated that after today's decision on individual cuts, the panel would complete its first round of action on a full tax package, including business cuts, by Friday.

That would be soon enough

Reagan to Tell Summit

High Interest to Stay

By OWEN ULLMANN Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) —

High U.S. interest rates will persist for another six months to a year, the unavoidable price of driving inflation out of the American economy, the Reagan administration says.

President Reagan plans to carry that message to next week's annual economic summit in Canada in hopes of allaying European concerns about the adverse effect U.S. rates are having on their economies.

Reagan will assure leaders of the other major industrial democracies that near-record rates in the United States are a "temporary phenomenon," Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said Monday.

"High interest rates are one of the side effects of the battle against inflation," Regan said, explaining how the president planned to address the most sensitive issue likely to come up at the Ottawa summit opening Sunday.

"We think this is — if you could consider six to 12 months temporary — this is a temporary phenomenon and it will pass," Regan told reporters at a news conference. "It's not something that we think is a permanent, built-in feature of the American economy."

Interest-rate policy in the United States is of prime concern in Europe because increases there drive up rates abroad, dampening economic growth and causing higher unemployment.

Regan and other administration officials predicted several months ago that interest rates would be dropping sharply by now. But rates are persisting at abnormally high levels — above 20 percent for short-term loans and 15 percent for long-term borrowing.

Nevertheless, Regan appeared undaunted Monday in predicting that rates would come down in the near future as the administration succeeds in its fight against inflation. He noted that getting inflation under control is what other world leaders urge. (See INTEREST, Page 2)

Downed Pilot Never Gave Up

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A Navy pilot who stayed afloat for 36 hours in the Atlantic Ocean without a life jacket says thoughts of his family helped keep him going.

"At the end when I was getting very tired, I thought I had to do something," Lt. Cmdr. Allen Spicer said. "I never said, 'I'm going to give up and die.' I had to do something."

Spicer, 36, flying a rented plane, ditched the craft last Wednesday in the Atlantic when flames jumped at his face. He floated for more than two days off the Florida coast before the tide washed him close to shore.

He attributed his survival to "the grace of God, my will to live, the professional training I received in the Navy and the love of my family."

Spicer said he used "drown-proofing" to stay afloat. Drown-proofing is a technique of remaining almost motionless while suspended in the water, slowly breaking the surface several times a minute for a breath of air.

Spicer said he was taking the rented Piper Arrow on a night test flight because he planned to fly his wife to Tampa, Fla., for a surprise birthday party before he left with his squad for the Mediterranean.

A Navy pilot with 3,500 hours of flight time over 12 years, Spicer said he was returning from St. Augustine when he heard the engine knock.

Suddenly, Spicer said, he saw a "flash of fire in my eyes."

Shortly after midnight Wednesday, he radioed his approximate position and told controllers he planned to ditch the plane off Ponte Vedra Beach.

He said he decided to dump the plane in the water because he didn't know tidal or beach conditions. And, "I didn't want to hurt anybody else."

Spicer said the aircraft sank and trapped him in the cockpit. "Finally I was able to get the door opened." He said he shoved out his briefcase in hopes of using it for flotation.

He stripped to his underwear and used his clothing to help him float.

In the water, Spicer said he thought a shark hit him. "Something hit me with tremendous force. I was terrified but I knew I shouldn't panic."

Whatever it was didn't bother him again, Spicer said. The plane was found Thursday in about 20 feet of water but Spicer was not sighted until a bicyclist found him crawling on the beach Friday morning.

By Thursday, he said, "I knew I couldn't last much longer." Later he lifted his head from the water and spotted land.

"I sighted land. I saw a light. That was my goal, that light," he said. He began a slow swim to shore and finally his feet touched bottom.

Bank Deposits Show Increase

Both Hereford State Bank and First National Bank of Hereford realized considerable increases in deposits, net loans and total assets at the close of the second quarter of 1981, according to the Banks' statements of condition.

HSB reported in its statement an increase of $5,587,219.66 in deposits. Last year's total deposits for the second quarter were $36,591,825.59 while deposits for the second quarter of 1981 were $42,179,045.25.

Loans at HSB increased by $3,161,943.56 from last year's second quarter. 1980 second quarter loans totaled $24,417,886.21. 1981 second quarter loans at HSB were $27,579,829.77.

Total assets at HSB for the second quarter for 1981 were increased by $6,053,197.76 over last years second quarter figure. Last year's second quarter assets were $41,626,906.27 while 1981 second quarter loans were $47,680,104.03.

FNB's deposits for the second quarter of 1981 were $68,792,686.36, a $9,929,761.21 increase over 1980's $58,862,925.15.

Loans at FNB increased from $44,384,773.82 in 1980 to $47,301,502.41 in 1981, an increase of $2,916,728.59.

Total assets at FNB were $68,055,819.02, but they increased by $11,714,551.56 to reach the second quarter 1981 figure of $79,770,370.58.

Pope Assailant's Trial Next Week

ROME (AP) — Mehmet Ali Agca will take the stand when his trial opens next week and prosecutors hope testimony by the convicted Turkish terrorist will shed new light on the motive behind the attempted murder of Pope John Paul II.

Agca, 23, has insisted he acted alone in the May 13 shooting that injured the 61-year-old pontiff and two American women in St. Peter's Square, police interrogators say.

Police say he described the attack as a protest against imperialism and refused to say where he got the money to travel for 16 months after his escape from a Turkish jail.

"According to the facts we have gathered so far, there is no evidence of a plot," State Prosecutor Niccolo Amato, who will represent the state in the trial, said in an interview. "During the trial other facts may be brought out. Agca has told us he will talk during the trial."

The trial opening Monday is expected to last less than a week and will take place in the Court of Assize in the drab cinder block Rome Tribunal. The defendant will sit in a metal cage surrounded by bullet-proof glass.

Uniformed and plainclothes policemen will be on guard inside and outside the courtroom. Everyone entering the courtroom will go through a metal detector and be searched for weapons.

Cameras are allowed in Italian courtrooms and the Italian television network RAI will tape the proceedings.

Crucial Polish Congress Open

By THOMAS W. NETTER Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Communist Party leader Stanislaw Kania opened a crucial party congress today by urging the delegates to work in an atmosphere of "seriousness, unity which our party so needs and a sense of responsibility."

With labor unrest apparently heating up once again, the 1,964 delegates are meeting under the watchful eye of Poland's Soviet bloc allies as they make decisions that could decide Poland's future.

Kania, who survived a hard-line challenge to his position a month ago, said the congress "must fulfill a tremendous role" because of "the difficulties which our country is going through and the expectations which society connects with our party."

In their first actions, the delegates chose a 203-member congress management group and a 64-member congress secretariat and picked Politburo member Kazimierz Barcikowski, a moderate Kania ally, to preside over the sessions. The Polish news agency PAP reported.

Although the session was closed, official sources said the delegates were to discuss a method of electing the party first secretary and consider placing on the agenda a proposal for a new political watchdog body, called the "presidium."

Before the congress ends it is expected to adopt the political reforms the party has been forced to put in place since the wave of strikes last August that launched the independent union Solidarity. But it is no longer thought likely that the delegates would press forward with more radical changes that would alarm the Soviets.

Kania, once expected to be swept out of office by the reformists, is now seen keeping his job, perhaps in an early vote by the congress.

The Soviet Union has sent four second-string officials to the meeting, suggesting that the Kremlin is taking a cautious stance toward the outcome.

A commentary on Warsaw Radio warned Poles against believing that the meeting would solve all the nation's problems.

On the eve of the congress, transit workers in Kutno staged strikes protesting short food supplies and dockworkers pledged work stoppages Wednesday if the government does not meet their demands for improved pay and working conditions.

Shell to Sell Canadian Holdings

HOUSTON (AP) — Shell Oil Co., the nation's eighth largest petroleum supplier, will sell some of its Canadian holdings to Husky Oil Ltd., of Calgary, Alberta, for more than $360 million.

Management at Shell and Husky announced Monday they will recommend the sale to their boards of directors and that drafting of a definitive agreement is underway.

Under the proposal, Husky will acquire all of the Canadian oil and gas leases, permits of Shell's Canadian subsidiary of Shell Explorer Ltd. of Calgary and interest in Shell Explorer's oil sand properties in Alberta.

In addition to the $360 million payment, Husky will also make future payments to Shell, contingent on the development of certain properties, Shell said.

The proposal is the latest in a series of transactions that followed adoption last fall of a Canadian energy policy that encourages development of that nation's natural resources.

Last month, Dome Petroleum Ltd. of Calgary acquired Conoco Inc.'s 53 percent interest in the Hudson's Bay Oil & Gas Co. Ltd. of Calgary in a deal valued at $1.675 billion.

The offshore leases and permits involved include all of Shell Explorers interest off the East and West coasts of Canada.

The Alberta Oil sands positions are in the Peace River and Athabasca areas.

Husky will have all of Shell Explorer's 20 percent interest in the Alsands synthetic crude oil project in Alberta and a related deposit of tar sands. It will have 50 percent of Shell Explorer's interest in the undeveloped Athabasca area and 35 percent of Shell Explorer's interest in the Peace River oil sands holdings.

Former Steel Workers Indicted

HOUSTON (AP) — A former United Steel Workers member was indicted Monday on federal charges of embezzling $1,500 in union funds from 1976 to 1978.

Joie R. Hughes, 49, was expelled March 26 from Local 13457 after union leaders accused him of misappropriating $3,350 and trying to cover up the alleged theft.

U.S. District Judge Gabrielle McDonald refused in April to block disciplinary proceedings against Hughes. A union appeals panel upheld the firing a month later.

Hughes has denied any wrongdoing and claimed the charges were brought because he was the first union member since 1942 to challenge the District 37 director for the post.

The USWU contends Hughes kept money totaling $3,350 from 10 checks written between 1975 and 1978 to local union president Cornelius Fountano.

Hughes faces maximum penalties of 30 years in prison and $30,000 in fines.

Cowboy Rookies Have Physicals

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Rookies and second-year players underwent physical examinations and a 1½-mile run Monday at the Dallas Cowboys training camp, and one player is leaving camp because of the physical, team officials said.

Second-year offensive lineman Norm Wells, who had a knee operation in January, requires further surgery and will return to Dallas for attention from the team physician, Dr. Marvin Knight, said team spokesman Doug Todd.

Two-a-day practices begin Tuesday morning for the 98 rookies and three second-year men who remained in camp.

Still absent Monday were four unsigned Cowboy draft choices — wide receiver Doug Donley of Ohio State, picked in the second round; offensive lineman Glen Titensor, Brigham Young, third round; linebacker Derrie Nelson, Nebraska, fourth round, and defensive lineman Pat Graham, California, 10th round.

Employee of the Month

Deaf Smith General Hospital named the employee of the month at a luncheon Friday. Mrs. Bernadette Kalka received the honor this month and is seen here being presented a certificate and corsage by hospital administrator Jim Bullard. A Registered Nurse, Mrs. Kalka received her training at St. Anthony's School of Nursing in Amarillo. She has been employed by DSGH since January of 1962, and by the Health Clinic associated with the hospital since 1976. She is the wife of Melvin Kalka, who farms west of Hereford.

Postal Union Demands Listed

Among the contract demands laid on the table by the American Postal Workers Union and the National Association of Letter Carriers in their current labor negotiations with the U.S. Postal Service are proposals for major improvements in safety and working conditions for the Union's 500,000 members.

Postal workers labor in the most unsafe working environment in the U.S. economy and have the highest on-the-job accident rate in the federal government, including the military, according to U.S. Department of Labor statistics. The accident rate of postal workers is twice that of the private sector.

In addition to letter carriers who deliver mail to homes and businesses, more than a quarter of a million postal workers toil in large mail processing facilities, "mail factories." They work on or near enormous machines, conveyor belt systems and mechanized sorting equipment, resembling the machinery in any industrial plant.

"The U.S. Postal Service safety program, such as it is, has not addressed the work floor hazards posed by these machines," explained Moe Biller, General President of the APWU, and NALC President Vincent R. Sombrotto. "And government figures back up these charges," they added.

According to the U.S. Labor Department, the Postal Service in 1979, the latest figures available, had 9.9 accidents per 100 full-time workers, compared with 6.5 accidents per 100 workers for the rest of the federal workforce. "More importantly," Biller and Sombrotto pointed out, "the severity of the injuries to our members is much greater, as evidenced by the fact that there were 6.2 accidents resulting in lost time per 100 postal workers, while all other government workers suffered 3.3 lost-workday accidents per 100 full-time workers. We had almost twice the rate of lost-time accidents as the rest of the U.S. workforce," they said.

Postal workers accounted for 20.4 percent of all hours worked by U.S. employees in 1979, but had 31.1 percent of the injuries and 38.1 percent of the accident resulting in lost time among all federal workers.

There were 57,403 on-the-job accidents among the approximately 600,000 postal workers during 1979, the Labor Department figures show.

"We can no longer wait for the Postal Service to correct these conditions on its own schedule or at its own pace," Sombrotto and Biller said. "We must get agreements from USPS that these conditions will improve now."

Among the union proposals dealing with the safety issue are demands that workers be permitted to refuse unsafe orders without fear of reprisal or discipline by management. They are also asking for mandatory coverage by the Occupational Safety and Health Act and a strengthening of the joint labor-management safety committees at work locations around the country.

Man Arrested for Theft

Hereford Police have arrested a man in connection with a burglary at Burke Inman Trucking Co. Robert Millard Bass was picked up by Hereford Police yesterday in Perryton on warrants of burglary and theft.

Also, police investigated four thefts and two criminal mischief calls in the past two days.

A c.b. radio, valued at $300, was removed from a vehicle belonging to Courtney Brooke, 240 Centre. The vehicle was parked at Ulysses Irrigation Pipe Co. on E. Highway 60.

Burglars broke into L&B Enterprises at 404 E. 4th and removed the cash register. The burglars gained entry to the building by breaking the front glass door. The cash register, which contained about $30-$40 in change, is valued at about $200.

Ofelia Estrada, 834

Brevard, told police someone stole her 10-speed bicycle. The bike is valued at $129.

Police also received a report that someone removed about $100 worth of scrap iron from the back of Davis Implement.

Robert D. Sandoval, Blue

Water Gardens no. 68, told police that someone took his Wisconsin license plates off two of his vehicles.

Police received a criminal mischief report from Max's Big Burger. Someone threw rocks through the plate glass window causing about $100 of damage.

Josie Martinez 833 Irving, also reported criminal mischief to the police. Someone threw a rock and shattered her front glass door. Damage is estimated at about $100.

Police issued 12 traffic citations yesterday.

America's Choice

A new book outcoming by James Evans is called "America's Choice."

It says backward is forward.

It says in the names of "welfare" and "security" Uncle Sam's shoulders have been overloaded.

There are now more people supported by taxes (80.6 million) than there are people working in the private sector to pay taxes, (71.6 million).

If we don't get the free-loaders off his back, Sam's going to drop them on us!

President Reagan sounds callous, proposing more money for the military and less for welfare.

But, Evans notes, he's trying to correct two generations of imbalance.

During the last 24 years military spending increased by 113 percent while nondefense spending was increasing 800 percent.

Congress is scared witless to tamper with Social Security though during the last 20 years Social Security taxes have multiplied ten times faster than the cost of living — though benefits have increased only three times.

Indeed, if there had never been a Social Security program — if you and your employer had put the same money in the bank — even at 5 percent — at retirement you'd have an income of more than $2,000 a month for the rest of your life. That's three times more than you'll get under Social Security.

Evans has a gift for reducing economic complexities to their elements.

He says the traditional American freedom was never a "freedom from want."

He notes that you can have freedom from hunger, nakedness, unemployment, cold and medical bills in any prison.

Our founders' concept of freedom was not "freedom from" but rather "freedom to."

Primarily a freedom to own property and the fruits of one's labor.

But Americans of recent generations have so perverted this premise that the "right to earn" has been supplanted with a "right to steal" from earnings of others.

And he notes that Americans who would not think of stealing, one-on-one — will insist on their right to steal when it is done collectively.

Then on Page 108, the zinger: "We spend $100 billion a year defending ourselves against communism and $250 billion a year adopting programs essentially communitistic. Ouch!

Interest ed the United States to do at last year's summit meeting.

Regan said the president will try to reassure heads of state from France, West Germany, Great Britain, Italy, Canada and Japan that "we are very sensitive to their problems."

The president himself conceded Monday that he has a lot of homework to do before he is ready for that meeting. "But then, since I just crammed when I was in college and didn't study, I'm used to it," he told reporters during a photo session in the Oval Office.

Regan's treasury secretary said the president will assert that "high interest rates are not a weapon that the United States is using against its partners. It's a result of supply and demand for money."

"As we tighten the supply and demand remains high, we are getting higher rates of interest," Regan said.

Regan also spurned proposals by some European leaders that the president impose credit controls to lower interest rates. "We're free market people," he asserted.

Other summit participants, particularly France's newly elected socialist president, Francois Mitterrand, view unemployment rather than inflation as their chief economic concern and are pursuing policies of increased government spending — just the opposite of Reagan's approach.

County

222nd District Judge Wes Guley. E&C Interior Construction, Inc., Wiley Hicks, Jr., and Canadian Corporation, all of Amarillo, presented bids on the work.

In addition, piece-work bids were submitted by local firms Carl McCaslin Lumber Company, and Owen's Electric.

After hearing the bids, the court decided to wait until August 10 on letting a contract for the work in order to allow time to study each company's proposal in depth.

The figures submitted included $18,542 by E&C Interior Construction, Inc.; $22,875 by Wiley Hicks, Jr.; and $24,005 by Canadian Corporation. All of those figures were for carpentry and carpet work in the courtroom, and excluded sound system work also requested by Judge Guley.

In other action, the court voted to advertise for bids on a new pickup truck and extra help for Precinct 1, and for a tractor and mower for Precinct 3. They also passed a motion to pay for recent purchase of property adjacent to the courthouse through revenue sharing funds. The property in question is the old Walker property, where R&R Refrigeration is now located.

The commissioners also discussed use of the building by the local Department of Human Resources and DHR spokesman Karl Morris. Morris indicated that funds needed to set up the office would not be available until at least September, 1982, and the court decided to wait in allowing the DHR to open a new office in the building until the time that funds become available.

The court also re-appointed election judges for the coming year, deciding to go with the judges which have been serving in the past upon the recommendation of County Clerk B.F. Cain.

Possible changes in election precincts were tabled until the court's next meeting, July 27, after some confusion about court orders handed down following the county's precinct boundaries battle in court last November arose. District Attorney Roland Saul will appear before the court July 27 to clear up any questions concerning the matter.

The government also said Poland's share of Soviet-bloc trade agreements for the next three years should be renegotiated and warned it would take six to seven years to start cutting the country's staggering $26 billion debt to the West.

The congress is unprecedented in its nature and organization. It follows by only 17 months the last Polish Communist congress, a regular one. There would not have been another regular congress until 1985.

AUSTIN — Two weeks ago the U.S. Supreme Court upheld Montana's right to levy a 30 percent severance tax on coal... and several Texas officials began to consider increasing the Lone Star state's severance tax on oil and gas.

For some years now, Texas has refrained from increasing its severance tax, currently among the lowest in the nation, because it might spur other states to hike their taxes on minerals leaving the earth.

In fact, several attempts have been made in the Legislature to raise the tax and all have fallen way short of success. When Montana shocked this state and others a couple of years back by raising its coal tax to 30 percent, Texans cried "Highway robbery," but preferred to try to work it out in court.

Now with the Supreme Court decision in Montana's favor, Texans are ready to do a little saber rattling on the severance tax issue.

Shower Honoree

Greeting guests at a shower held recently in her honor is Miss Shyla Thomas, bride elect of Joseph Rentfrow of Arlington, and her mother Mrs. Wayne Thomas.

Showers Honor Miss Shyla Thomas

A Coffee and Bridal Shower honoring Shyla Thomas, bride elect of Joseph Rentfrow of Arlington, was held Saturday morning at the Hereford Country Club.

Receiving guests at the door were Mrs. Wayne Thomas, the honoree's mother, and the honoree.

Jennifer Johnson presided over the registry table which was laid with a blue cloth and decorated with an arrangement of fresh flowers of blue daisies and iris in a white wedding shoe. Also displayed were a blue garter, ash tray, string of pearls and a picture of Miss Thomas.

The serving table was laid with a maderia cutwork cloth over blue, the bride's chosen color. A crystal candelabrum decorated with tall white tapers, white mums, daisies, baby's breath and blue iris centered the table. Silver appointments and blue napkins were used.

Hostesses served shrimp rolls, and strawberry, orange, and chocolate creme cheese spread on ginger snaps and vanilla wafers, along with variety of fruit balls, and coffee.

Individual tables for the guests were laid with white cloths and centered with small blue cloth squares. The tables were accented with crystal candle holders trimmed with white daisies.

Gifts were displayed on tables across the back of the ballroom.

Carlie Burdett provided background piano music throughout the occasion.

The couple plan to wed July 25 in the Chapel of the Wilshire Baptist Church in Dallas.

Hostesses for the shower were Ruth Allison, Betty Barrett, Margaret Bell, Gladys Cavness, Genelle Clements, Lou Davis, Helen Eades, Margaret Formby, Clara Gillentine, Nadine Hill, Nell Hodges, Wanda Hoover, Carolyn Johnson, Helen Kent, Ann Line, Mae McCracken, Elizabeth McDowell, Helen Ann McWhorter, Wilma Nobles, Opal Norton, Wanda Payne, Lavon Nieman, Claudine Peeler, Dorothea

Powell, Violet Reinauer, Marcia Snyder, Marie Stringer and Mary Waldrep.

Also honoring Miss Thomas, a kitchen shower was held in the home of Avis White at 214 N. Texas, recently.

The serving table carried out the earth tone colors chosen by the bride for her kitchen.

Guests brought favorite recipes in addition to gifts for the kitchen.

Besides the honoree, other guests were her mother, Mary Thomas, Betty Barrett, Mary Waldrep, Carlie Burdett, Teri Morgan, Susan Shaw, Janis White, Susie Curtisinger, Wanda Payne, Ruth Allison, Ruth Ann Cansler, Dorothea Prowell and Mae McCracken.

Around Town

There were several Hereford exes here over the weekend who attended Kathi Bell's wedding. They included Susan Wartes of Arlington, Franklin Higgins of Dallas and Laurie Higgins of College Station, Cathy Lookingbill Gafford from Dalhart, Kathy McNaney of Corpus Christi, Sue Ellen Preuss Smith of Cleburne, David Crume of Stephenville, Kim Wilson Coomer of Lubbock, Shari Hughes Scott from Dallas, Nancy Barrett Purcell of Dallas, Andrew Wingert from Dallas, Wayne Schumacher from Dallas, Cindy Hairgrove from Austin, Steve Loerwald from Dallas, Dan Vander Zee from Lake Tahoe and David Hutchins from Amarillo.

Lisa Lyles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Lyles, is here this week visiting her family. She is now living in Dallas and working as Office Manager for Balfour Corporation. She is a graduate of Texas Tech.

VFW Ladies Auxiliary Name Chairmen

During their July 6 meeting at 6 p.m. the Ladies Auxiliary to the VFW named new chairmen for their committees. Doris Coffin was named to chair the Loyalty Day committee, Essie Martin to chair the Rehabilitation committee, Rose Goheen to chair the Legislature committee, the Buddy Poppy committee will be chaired by Edith Richardson with Ruth Stetham and Essie Martin, the Telephone committee will be chaired by Erma Murphey with Rose Goheen and Edith Richardson, and the Voice of Democracy committee will be chaired by Marie Goheen. Members voted to continue sending a pound of coffee each month to the Senior Citizens.

It was also decided that the Auxiliary will have a covered dish supper for themselves and VFW members on the first Monday of each month.

Auxiliary members enjoyed their participation in the July 4 parade where the VFW presented 415 tickets for free hotdog lunches to participants in the parade. Commander Tommy Goheen also gave several hundred small flags to the children who were in the parade.

Members present at the meeting were Ruth Stetham, Essie Martin, Mabel Yocum, Doris Coffin, Bessie Saulcy, Helen Sowell, Erma Murphey, Edith Richardson, Doris Wilson, Dora Lee Howell and Marie Goheen.

The next meeting will be held July 20 at 8 p.m.

Proceeds from the event will be collected this week by the participants, and will be turned in next Tuesday. Prizes will be awarded to the finishers.

American Legion Convenes July 23-26 In Ft. Worth

The 63rd Annual Convention of the American Legion, will be held July 23-26, and anticipates over 2,000 delegate, their families and special guests, according to the General Convention Chairman, C. Lynn Steward of Fort Worth.

State Legion Commander Harry C. Riggs of Plainview, will preside over the Legion conclave with all general sessions to be held in the Hyatt Regency Hotel located at 815 Main Street here in Fort Worth. American Legion Auxiliary President, Mrs. Helen Holcomb of Odessa, will preside over the Auxiliary general session that will be held in the Americana Hotel located at 200 Main Street.

The opening business session of the Legion will be called to order on Friday at 1:00 P.M. by Commander Riggs. Highlight of the Convention will take place Saturday at 9:15 A.M. during the Joint Legion and Auxiliary Session in the Hyatt Regency Hotel Grand Crystal Ballroom, with the appearance of The American Legion National Commander, Michael J. Kogutek of Lackawanna, New York, who will deliver the Convention keynote address.

Friday at 5:30 P.M., the Parade of Champions Contest for Uniformed Organizations will take place in the Crystal Ballroom of the Hyatt Regency Hotel, with fifteen hundred dollars in prize money to be awarded the winners of the colorful contest.

Aside from the color and entertainment, the Legion and Auxiliary have mapped out a full four-day program of serious business pertaining to numerous Texas programs of the Legion and Auxiliary. The Executive Committee, Board of Trustees and key committees will meet throughout the Convention.

Retired Employees Meet

Mrs. Fern Woods, treasurer of Chapter No. 1248, Amarillo National Association of Retired Federal Employees met recently with the Hereford chapter to give a mini-resume of some of the important business conducted at a convention in San Antonio. Mrs. Woods attended the convention as a representative.

She advised Magic Triangle, Chapter No. 1300 (the local chapter) of a pending raise in National dues to $9, suggested the Hereford chapter appoint a service officer and to write its congressman and senator concerning insurance and cost of living adjustment.

The Hereford chapter met in the Flame Room of the Energas Company with Mrs. Mary Alice Frye, president.

presiding, P.H. Jayroe was asked to give the opening prayer and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved, followed by a treasurer's report. These reports were given by Secretary-Treasurer Eunice Petersen.

The chapter's next meeting date is Oct. 2. Those out-of-town visitors present at the meeting included Mrs. Wood, Maurine Travis, representative of District 12; and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Practor, all of Amarillo.

Members present were Mr. and Mrs. Geo Millard, Mr. and Mrs. J.O. Robinson, Mary Alice Frye, Eunice Petersen, Mildred Ritter, P.H. Jayroe, and Owen Stagner, a new member.

Ann Landers When Communication Ceases

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm writing to you in hopes that my letter might appear in your column soon and maybe wake up some people to a few facts.

I'm only 15, but I'm watching helplessly while my family is fighting all around me. It all started when my aunt (one I love a great deal) became annoyed at my mother over a trivial thing. My oldest sister tried to defend my mother and got carried away. It ended in a yelling match. All communication between them has ceased, and my mother has become a nervous wreck.

Now mother and daughter, sister and sister, aunt and niece are at odds with each other. My father and uncle have also been dragged into it. There was so much love before. Now, no one in the family is speaking.

Please, Ann fix this letter up so it will be good enough to print and help put my family back together again. We are all so unhappy.--Humpty Dumpty Clan In Connecticut

DEAR CLAN: You don't give me a clue as to what the flap was about, but whatever it was, it wasn't worth the grief it is causing.

Life is too short and too precious to waste a single day being stiff-necked and self-righteous. Every living person, at one time or another, has said at least one thing he (or she) would give a lot to take back. I hope your family, and all others who are not speaking, will re-establish communication today. This doesn't mean you have to be in constant touch or live in each other's pockets. Just behave like civilized human beings and enjoy one another while there is still time.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My little sis is 14. We both baby-sit for extra money. Sis sits weekend afternoons. I sit evenings. Of course, I make a lot more than she does. Mom makes us pool our money and divide it evenly every month. I don't think this is fair. She says nothing is more important than money. Please print your answer.--Hillsdale, Mich., Complaint

DEAR HILLY: I'm all for sisterly love, but your mom is advocating Marxism. I favor the free enterprise system myself. People should not be forced to share what they earn with others who earn less--for whatever reason.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I live on the second floor of a reputable apartment house. Every weekend morning (like right now at 8 p.m.) I am awakened by a honking horn. Somebody comes by to pick up my downstairs neighbor and drive him to work.

Ann, it is only 10 steps from the car to the door. Not everyone works from 9 till 5.

(I don't have to be at my plant until noon) I am not the type who enjoys hassling neighbors, but I believe we night owls deserve a little respect. What do you suggest?--Needling Two Extra Hours

DEAR NEEDING: Tomorrow morning be ready for the honking goose. Have your slacks and sweater on. Go out the moment the horn sounds. Say, "It's wonderful that you are so faithful about picking up your friend. I wish I had a friend as nice as you. But I don't have to get up until 10 a.m. because I work a late shift. Would you mind ringing the party's doorbell and not honking the horn?" I'll bet you get a pleasant response. Some people need only to be asked in a nice way.

Planning a wedding? What's right? What's wrong? Ann Landers' completely new "The Bride's Guide" will relieve your anxiety. To receive a copy, send a dollar, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (15 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11005, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Four Swim 877 Laps

Four participants swam a total of 877 laps around the Elks Swimming Pool Monday as the local Elks held their Annual Swim-A-Thon. According to spokesman Jerry Johnson, around $850 in pledges were secured by the four swimmers, with the funds to go to the Muscular Dystrophy Fund.

Katie Ramey topped the quartet of tired lappers, with 300 laps, while younger brother Donald completed 217. Dawn Gilster swam 216 laps, while Ruth Romero splashed her way to 144 circuits of the pool.

Cooksey Trial To Begin Today

By JERRY SCARBROUGH
Associated Press Writer
OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Canadian County Commissioner Wayne Cooksey was scheduled to go on trial today on a 24-count indictment alleging he accepted kickbacks on purchases of equipment during the last three years.

Cooksey, 44, is accused of extortion and mail fraud for allegedly receiving kickbacks between February 1979 and March 1981.

The government has acknowledged that a tape recording of a conversation between Cooksey and material salesman Guy Moore made Oct. 28, 1980 indicated Cooksey suspected he was being investigated.

In a transcript of the recording, Cooksey asked whether Moore's pickup truck was bugged.

The transcript states Moore replied, "I hope... it's not. I wouldn't swear to nothing though, would you?"

An attorney for Cooksey had tried to have the transcript barred as evidence, maintaining it was trickery. The motion was denied.

In related developments Monday, Stephens County Commissioner Eston Fisher pleaded guilty to three charges of accepting kickbacks, and Oklahoma County District Attorney Robert Macy said he is considering filing ouster proceedings against another commissioner.

Macy said he is investigating statements made in federal court to determine whether they will support the ouster of Oklahoma County Commissioner J.P. "Dick" Richardson.

Richardson, 64, who was indicted by a federal grand jury earlier this year on charges of accepting kickbacks, sought to have the charges dismissed on grounds he is in ill health and is mentally and physically incapable of aiding in his defense because of medication he is taking.

Macy said he is considering trying to force Richardson out of office because "information from the newspapers indicates he alleges he has been taking medicine that affects his thinking process and encumbers his ability to make rational decisions."

Richardson is scheduled to go on trial in federal court Monday.

Prosecutors allege Richardson received 10 percent kickbacks on more than $106,000 in county material purchases. The government says it expects to present evidence that Richardson allegedly received kickbacks on at least 27 purchases between Dec. 20, 1978 and Sept. 30, 1980.

Fisher's trial on a 67-count indictment had been scheduled Monday, but he chose instead to admit his guilt on three of the charges in return for having the other 64 counts dismissed.

As part of the plea-bargaining agreement, Fisher, 46, must resign his office and cooperate with federal officials in their statewide kickback investigation.

Nineteen commissioners, former commissioners and suppliers have either been convicted, been indicted or have publicly agreed to plead guilty to accepting kickbacks as a result of the three-year FBI and Internal Revenue Service investigation.

In addition, documents filed in the 19 cases by federal officials indicate 100 or more people ultimately will be charged with being involved in the kickback scheme.

"Monster Madness" Bookmarks

Winners of the bookmark design contest sponsored by Deaf Smith County Library are Sherri Shaw, 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny House, and Cameron Betzen, five, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pat Betzen. The winning bookmark designs depicting "Monster Madness" will be sent to Amarillo this week where they will be printed into bookmarks to be distributed by the Panhandle Library System at their booth during the Tri-State Fair.

1984 Timing For '1984' Movie

By JAMES LITKE
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Marvin Rosenblum has seen the future, and he wants a piece of it — 1984 to be precise.

It struck him as an idea whose time is coming, an idea sparked one day in 1979 when Rosenblum scanned his library and spotted the volume "1984" by British author George Orwell.

To Rosenblum, a 38-year-old attorney who believes timing is everything, the leap from the book to the silver screen seemed a natural. With the year 1984 drawing near and the thought that someone else might also be thinking of movie rights, he asked himself, "Why not Rosenblum?"

It was not a presumptuous question. This is the same Rosenblum who, while a law student at the University of Chicago, dreamed up and marketed the Spiro Agnew wristwatch.

The same Rosenblum who came up with the idea (it never did pan out) of having 4 million people across the country link hands simultaneously as the ultimate expression of Bicentennial fever.

At the beginning, this latest idea seemed doomed to similar failure. Rosenblum could not find a copy of the original 1966 movie, which starred Edmund O'Brien and Jan Sterling as the doomed lovers Winston and Julia. He had not known that Orwell's widow, Sonia — said to be unhappy with the film — had withdrawn all prints from circulation in 1976, when the license expired.

Rosenblum next tried to find the agent for Orwell's estate. He had no luck until February 1980, when he contacted agent Robin Dalton in California and flew out after a brief conversation.

"She agreed to press my case with the right people," he said.

The "right people" turned out to be the author's widow herself, in failing health in England. In August 1980, he flew to London to lunch with Mrs. Orwell. He sensed that his goal was near.

But Mrs. Orwell at first demanded complete creative control, "which would have made any deal unworkable," recalled Rosenblum, "and I knew she wouldn't relinquish it to anyone that she didn't trust. She is very protective of his work."

Rosenblum, however, was prepared. Before the meeting, he read almost everything Orwell had written and underwent some intensive "briefing" by University of Chicago professor Sanford Schwarz. He finished the final volume of Orwell's journals just before stepping off the plane in London.

"The discussion was like squeezing water out of a sponge. Everything I had soaked up, I discussed with her. I found out later that she told people I was the first person who really did his homework," Rosenblum said. "After trying to convince her that I had read his books and come to some understanding of his vision, I cited an obscure essay he had written on the cinema.

"The premise was to get the message — his message — out to as many people as possible," he continued. "The cinema afforded that chance, and once I assured her that I didn't envision the movie as a special-effects extravaganza, or a glitzy production, I think we reached an understanding."

Shortly after Thanksgiving last year, Mrs. Orwell phoned him to say she would sign a contract. With a British notary public in tow, and arrangements made to register the contract at the U.S. Embassy in London, Rosenblum concluded his odyssey Dec. 1, 1980, at Mrs. Orwell's bedside.

She died nine days later. Orwell's "1984" was first published in 1949, an unsettling essay in the quiet readjustment period following World War II.

Remarkable for its prophetic depiction of a society controlled and manipulated through technology undreamed of at the time it was written, "1984" fast became a catchword in the language, a symbol of vague fears of totalitarianism. "Big Brother Is Watching You," the slogan on the omnipresent posters in the "1984" society, became a tense joke in a world where government surveillance grew along with technology.

If timing is everything, the movie project can't miss — Rosenblum has targeted December 1983 or January 1984 as the release date.

Energy Demand Down Car, Jet Efficiency Up

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP
Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — New cars use less fuel. So do new commercial jets. And new houses also. "Demand for energy is declining quite sharply because of changes in the (nation's) capital stock," said the professor.

He observed that consumer psychology has changed too: People actually are cutting down on usage, and using alternative fuels. France and Japan have nuclear plants coming on stream. The United States has coal.

Coal isn't just an alternative; it is far more efficient, too, costing only 30 percent to 40 percent the cost of oil when measured in the output of British thermal units. The United States has plenty of it.

The enormity of the energy change has not been popularly appreciated, said Robert Z. Aliber, professor of international economics, Graduate School of Business, University of Chicago. "It is not properly perceived," he said, asserting that dependence on OPEC is declining.

Political interests, he suggested, may not acknowledge the change for fear of upsetting the conservation trend. But, he continued, "You're getting a little sense of it now in the lower prices of oil company shares," some of which are down 30 percent since early this year.

For the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, he said, it means economic problems. "Very few OPEC countries invested wisely," he said. "Gold, military aircraft. But their industrial operations aren't efficient." In a world market, he said, they cannot compete.

Because of the changed supply-demand ratio, the economic outlook for nations heretofore dependent on OPEC oil is now different from what it was, according to Aliber. They'll pay less for oil. And they may have other sources of supply, too, a result of discoveries made in recent years.

But in Aliber's view, the major change in the ratio has been that users have redesigned their capital equipment.

There are, he points out, 100 million cars in the United States. Each year, 10 million are scrapped and 10 million new ones added to stock. The scrapped cars were getting 10 or 11 miles to the gallon, whereas the new ones are getting 23 miles. That trend will continue, he says.

The cars coming into use were designed when oil cost $12 a barrel back in 1973-1974, said the professor. Now, with oil at about $40 a barrel, further savings in miles per gallon are being designed into cars that will be used in the mid-1980s.

And that process of making more fuel-efficient automobiles, he says, "will continue for another 15 years."

Something similar is occurring in housing, although it may take 40 years or so to recycle the nation's housing stock, compared with only 10 years for automobiles. Jet aircraft also are being recycled.

U.S., Israel Resolve Dispute Over Israel's Use of F-16s

By LARRY THORSON
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM (AP) — The United States and Israel have resolved their dispute over Israel's use of F-16s to bomb Iraq's nuclear reactor, apparently clearing the way for delivery of the additional U.S.-built fighter jets Israel has on order.

State Department counselor Robert McFarlane and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin issued a joint statement saying two days of talks here had "clarified to the satisfaction of both sides" the dispute that arose from Israel's June 7 raid on the reactor near Baghdad.

"The government of the two countries declare that any misunderstandings which might have arisen in the wake of the aforementioned operation have been clarified to the satisfaction of both sides," the statement said.

Begin had said after the first of his two meetings with McFarlane that the Americans did not seek veto power or prior knowledge in cases where U.S.-made weapons were to be used against the Arabs. The joint statement made no mention of any such agreement. Neither man would answer questions after McFarlane read the statement.

Libya charged Monday that Israeli F-16s are already lined up for another mission — to aid in an alleged Egyptian invasion of Libya. The Libyan news agency JANA carried a detailed description of the purported scheme, saying it might be launched within 10 days.

Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat on Monday called for a new Arab summit to discuss the reactor raid, which he claimed the United States was behind. The United States has denied any involvement.

The Reagan administration withheld delivery of four F-16s until it could be determined whether Israel violated its agreement with the United States to use the fighter-bombers only for self-defense. Israel claimed the raid was an act of self-defense to disrupt Iraqi plans to build atomic bombs for use against the Jewish state.

Neither Begin nor McFarlane would say whether Israel would receive the four planes or another shipment of F-16s originally scheduled to arrive here this week.

Israel Television reported that the United States had lifted the suspension and all the planes would be sent to Israel on Friday.

In Washington, a State Department official who asked not to be identified said the talks should clear the way for delivery of 10 F-16s on Friday.

Autopsy Shows Boy Murdered

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — A 10-year-old boy found dead in a water tank south of town two days after he disappeared was a murder victim, autopsy results show.

"As far as we're concerned, it's murder," said Ector County Sheriff's Capt. Gene Kloss.

A Monday autopsy determined that the boy, Ruben Arrellano, died from a single blow to the back of the head, then was thrown into the water hole Saturday, Kloss said.

The last time the boy was seen by a family member was Saturday evening when he got on his bicycle and headed for a neighborhood convenience store to play a video game.

When he did not return home that night, his father began to worry.

"I knew something wasn't right," said Johnny Arrellano.

City and county officers, joined by volunteers, searched throughout the weekend for the missing boy.

Kloss said the boy's body was discovered about 7:50 a.m. Monday by an oilfield driller on the way to work.

14-Year-Old Boy Formally Accused of Shooting Parents

DAI LAS (AP) — A 14-year-old Dallas boy has been formally accused of killing his parents with a shotgun, minutes after the family returned home from church. But the stiffest penalty the youth can receive is four years in a state juvenile facility, police officials said.

Officers arrested David Keeler after the boy's father, William A. Keeler, the president of Arco Oil and Gas Co., and mother, Anita, were found dead in the hallway of their spacious North Dallas home Sunday.

The youth was taken before a juvenile court judge Monday, where he was told he must remain in the Dallas County Juvenile Detention Center for at least 10 days.

"He has been accused of delinquent conduct, i.e., homicide," said Dallas Police Department information director Bob Shaw. "Sometime within the next 10 days the district attorney's office will take the case to a juvenile judge, who, presumably, will take testimony from anybody with facts about the case.

Then, the judge will make a decision on the boy. The stiffest sentence he could get is detention in a TYC (Texas Youth Council) facility until he's 18."

Under Texas law, a 14-year-old cannot be tried as an adult.

Investigating officers said an argument about a petty theft incident preceded the shootings.

"It was some kind of a domestic problem in the family that was related to the boy and two others being caught stealing" at an Arlington amusement park Saturday, said police spokesman Ed Spencer.

Park spokesman Bruce Neal confirmed the boys were detained by security police for cutting into a line for a ride.

Officers then discovered the youths were carrying some novelty items that had not been marked paid and that the boys admitted taking the items, Neal said. He said Mrs. Keeler then was called to pick up her son, and no charges were filed.

The next day, David helped his parents pass the collection plate at Seiber Memorial United Methodist Church shortly before the killings and neighbors who saw them at church said things appeared normal.

The couple's daughter Barbara, 27, told police she went to her parents' house about 12:30 p.m. Sunday for a routine visit and heard moans. She said she found her parents lying in a hallway.

About that same time, the son was stopping a patrol car in the nearby suburb of Addison, where he had ridden on his bicycle. He told the officer, "I just shot both my parents with a shotgun," police reports said.

Keeler, 53, was dead, with wounds in the neck and chest, when his daughter found him. Miss Keeler told police her

49-year-old mother, barely conscious, gasped out, "David, David, David did it."

Mrs. Keeler died from wounds to the abdomen three hours later.

Officers found an automatic shotgun and seven spent 12-gauge shotgun shells on the floor of the house.

Arco Oil and Gas is one of the two largest divisions of Los Angeles-based Atlantic Richfield, and is responsible for operating wells and transporting crude oil to refineries.

Keeler was appointed president of Arco Oil and Gas the day Atlantic Richfield split the company into two divisions. The other division is Arco Exploration Co., responsible for finding new oil and gas wells. Both are based in Dallas.

Keeler, a native of Brownwood, rose through the ranks during 32 years with the company. He was a graduate of Texas A&M University. He and his wife had four children. David was the youngest.

David had just completed the eighth grade at the exclusive private school St. Mark's of Texas, where he earned high marks, was a student leader, played football and basketball and was an orchestra member.

YOU AUTO KNOW

By Don Henslie

Q. Suddenly my 1974 Mercury has developed an expensive habit in addition to its gasoline consumption. It's now doubled the amount of oil used. What do I do to pinpoint the cause?

A. The older the engine, the more oil it can be expected to use. But twice as much is too much. It sounds like you may be losing oil. Spread a clean paper beneath the engine and transmission. Start the car and let the engine warm up at a speed equal to about 20-25 mph. When it's warm, race it briefly at wide-open throttle and let it come back to fast idle. Do this about five times. Shut off the engine and examine the paper for oil. Look beneath the oil filter connection, oil pan, front and rear oil seals, valve covers, and timing-chain cover. Replace worn parts where oil is discovered.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY GEORGE

Aaron Laments Loss Of All-Star Game

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent

"It's a sad day for me, a sad day for baseball, a sad day for America," Hank Aaron said, lamenting the fact that there was no All-Star Game in Cleveland today because of the players' strike.

"As a former player, I appreciate what the players are fighting for," he added, speaking by telephone from his vice-presidential office with the Atlanta Braves. "They have their values. But there's a lot I don't understand. And it's too bad it has come to this."

"The All-Star Game has meant so much to everybody — especially the fans, who looked forward to the mid-summer break when they could see and root for all their favorite stars. It always has been something special for the players, too, meeting guys you've battled against all year and even a chance to fraternize with fellows of the other league."

No one has played in more All-Star games than Aaron, the indefatigable slugger whose 755 home runs erased the record of the great Babe Ruth, although two others played in as many, 24 — Stan

"The Man" Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals and Willie "Say Hey" Mays of the Giants and New York Mets.

That's a third of a lifetime, and the 47-year-old home run king vows that he wouldn't have missed any one of them.

"The guys who say the All-Star Game doesn't mean anything to them and they'd rather spend the break at home with their families or playing golf are ones who don't make it," Aaron said. "Frustration. I always was anxious to make the squad. So did most of the others."

Of the three most honored All-Stars — Aaron, Musial and Mays — Aaron is the only one to play in both leagues and thus able to discuss knowledgeably the widely debated question of National League supremacy.

While the American League dominated the early games, starting in 1933 at Comiskey Park in Chicago with such personalities as an aging Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Jimmie Foxx and Hank Greenberg, the pendulum shifted sharply in the 1950s with the NL overtaking the AL for a 32-18 overall edge, winning 17 of the last 18, the last nine in a row.

Some theorists attribute the swing to the fact that the NL, starting with Jackie Robinson in 1947, was quicker to admit black players who ultimately became outstanding stars. Others contend the NL has simply corralled most of the top available talent.

Aaron, who after spending 21 years in the majors with the Milwaukee and Atlanta Braves of the National League, closed out his playing career with the American League Milwaukee Brewers in 1975-76 before becoming director of playing personnel for the Braves.

He has his own explanation for the NL dominance in recent years. It has nothing to do with talent. It has everything to do with desire.

"It's silly to say the best players are concentrated in one league," he insists. "There is little or no difference. How can you downgrade the talent of a league that has guys like Reggie Jackson, George Brett, Ted Williams, Joe DiMaggio and Mickey Mantle?"

"The difference is in the approach the game. I was amazed when I went over to the American League to find out how casually they took it. To them, it was just an outing.

THIS WEEK IN BASEBALL

By Warner Fusselle

The sudden barrage of publicity and attention with the focus on our ballclub and the International League and minor league baseball in general has really been overwhelming. The people all over the country are hungry for baseball and the minor leagues is where it is. Gary Rajsch, outfielder, Tidewater Tides.

Major-league baseball players went on strike last month and all of a sudden "minor" league baseball was no longer minor. The National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues (the minor leagues) had finally made it to the big time.

The largest newspapers in the country ran features on minor-league clubs, and minor-league standings were printed daily. Minor-league games could be heard on 50,000-watt radio stations. And there was even national television coverage.

Minor-league baseball has been around for a long time. The International League began in 1884, eight years after the start of the National League and 16 years before the birth of the American League.

There are currently 17 minor leagues consisting of 154 teams. There are three Class AAA leagues (the highest classification), three Class AA leagues, seven Class A leagues, three rookie leagues and the Mexican League.

The demise of the minors has been greatly exaggerated. In 1980 more than 12 million fans attended minor-league games, an increase of 23 percent in two years. Nashville, Denver and Columbus, Ohio, each drew more than 500,000. Minor-league attendance almost equaled that of the entire National Football League.

But what's most important is the excitement on the diamond. For example, almost every major-league record has been surpassed in the minor leagues.

MINOR MIRACLES — Joe DiMaggio's 56-game hitting streak with the Yankees in 1941 is NOT baseball's longest. It's not even DiMaggio's longest. In 1933 at age 18, Joe DiMaggio hit safely in 61 straight games for San Francisco in the Pacific Coast League. However, in 1919 Joe Wilhoit of Wichita in the Western League hit in 69 straight games.

In 1913 Walter Malmquist of York in the Nebraska State League batted .477, professional baseball's highest average ever. The previous season, with the same team, Malmquist hit only 241. Lyman Lamb of Tulsa in the Western League hit 100 doubles in 1924. The closest anyone ever came to that record was Paul Waner of San Francisco who hit 75 the very next year. Pete Rose collected 30 triples for Tampa in 1961. Only one minor-leaguer ever hit more. In 1954 Joe Bauman of Roswell in the Longhorn League hit a record 72 home runs. Bob Cruce drove in a record 254 runs for Amarillo in West Texas-New Mexico League in 1948.

HISTORIC HURLING — In 1952 Ron Necciai of Bristol in the Appalachian League pitched a no-hitter against Welch (W.Va.) and struck out 27. Walter "Smoke" Justis of Lancaster in the Ohio State League pitched four no-hitters in 1908. In 1946 Bill Kennedy of Rocky Mount in the Coastal Plain League struck out 456 batters in 280 innings enroute to a 28-3 record and 1.03 ERA. Kennedy broke Virgil "Fire" Trucks' record of 418 with Andalusia of the Alabama-Florida League in 1938.

OUTER LIMITS — On July 19, 1911, Walter Carlisle of Vernon in the Pacific Coast League made what has been called "the greatest play in baseball history." Against Los Angeles in the sixth inning, Carlisle made a spectacular diving catch and then stepped on second base and first base, doubling off both runners for an unassisted triple play. What made it unique was that Walter Carlisle was playing center field.

QUIZ — What former New York Yankee star infielder was the first minor-leaguer to hit 60 home runs in one season? (Answer below)

COLLECTOR'S ITEM — To order the 1981 All-Star Program, send $3 plus $1 for postage and handling to All-Star Program, P.O. Box 242, Department T.W., Norwood, NJ 07648. Do not send cash. New York residents send applicable sales tax. Allow six weeks for delivery.

QUIZ ANSWER — In 1925 Tony Lazzeri hit 60 home runs (and drove in 222) for Salt Lake City in the Pacific Coast League. From 1926-37 Lazzeri played second base for the Yankees but never hit more than 18 homers in any season.

Baseball Owners Work On Ideas to End Strike

The baseball owners' bargaining team, which rejected the most recent proposal put forward to end the 33-day-old players' strike, apparently is working on several new ideas to present in future bargaining sessions.

The owners' negotiators met Monday in advance of a meeting today of the board of directors of management's Player Relations Committee, which establishes the owners' negotiating policy. The bargaining team consists of chief negotiator Ray Grebey, American League President Lee McPhail, National League President Chub Feeney, NL lawyer Louis Hoynes and counsel Barry Rona.

Federal mediator Kenneth Moffett said he spoke to representatives of both sides Monday but did not set a firm date for resuming negotiations, but hoped to bring them together Wednesday or Thursday.

Some owners, including New York Yankees chief George Steinbrenner, have said it's up to the owners to come up with a new settlement proposal because it was their side that rejected the previous one by Moffett last weekend.

Tonight was to have been the night for baseball's 52nd All-Star Game in Cleveland. Speculation arose Monday over whether that city would play host to the game next season if the strike is settled too late to have the game this year.

"It is our hope that we will play in Cleveland in 1981," baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said. "By no means has that been ruled out. However, if we cannot play the All-Star Game this year, it's a possibility the game could be rescheduled there next year. We would have to work out a number of other factors first."

Montreal is slated to be the host city next year, and Chuck Adams, a spokesman in Kuhn's office, said no decision had been made on when Montreal would host the game if they play it in Cleveland next year. Chicago wants the game in 1983 because that would mark the 50th anniversary of the first All-Star classic in Comiskey Park, the home of the Chicago White Sox.

Playing the game in Cleveland in 1982 might help pacify businessmen in the city who had anticipated tourist and fan revenue because of the game. Thousands of souvenir T-shirts, mugs and pennants are locked away. 50,000 programs are printed and 1,600 hotel rooms had been reserved.

Meanwhile, major league umpires joined the list of casualties in the strike.

As part of their own strike settlement in 1979, the umpires had received payment for the first 30 days of any strike by the players. That grace period expired over the weekend and now the umpires, like the players, are losing salary for every day the strike continues.

For the first time since the strike began June 12, no games were canceled Monday. That was because the All-Star Game, set for Tuesday, was sandwiched by a pair of open dates on the schedule. The next scheduled game to be wiped out will come Thursday.

Because no games were missed Monday on what had been slated to be an off-day before the All-Star game, the toll of missed games remained at 392, about 19 percent of a full season's schedule of 2,106.

Wilson: Ready To Fight On-Field

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP)

— Having lost a court fight based on principal, rookie quarterback David Wilson says he's now ready to wage an on-field fight for a job in the National Football League.

Wilson lost a protracted court fight for another year of eligibility at Illinois, where he set some two dozen passing records last season — school, conference, and NCAA.

But a court said a junior college season abbreviated by an injury counted against his college eligibility and Wilson had to turn professional to continue playing football.

It wasn't that he didn't want to play professional ball, he said, it was just that he was enjoying college so much.

"I had such a great time that one year I was there," he said.

I only had one year of college ball, and I thought I should have at least two."

"I was just fighting for what I thought was right," he said.

Wilson's on-field opponents thinned out Monday when the Saints traded third-year quarterback Guy Benjamin to San Francisco for an undisclosed future draft choice.

Wilson, Benjamin, and three other hopefuls were scheduled to fight for the two backup slots behind starting quarterback Archie Manning.

Wilson cost the Saints a first-round pick in the 1982 draft when they took him in a supplementary draft earlier this month. Such lofty choices are almost always assured of making the team.

Benjamin, a second-round pick by Miami in the 1979 draft, moved to the Saints last year for a fourth-round choice. The Saints would not say on Monday what San Francisco gave up to get Benjamin.

The Stanford graduate appeared in two games for the Saints last year, hitting on 7 of 17 attempts for 28 yards. He threw one interception.

Hereford Stars Win

PAMPA - Hereford's 14-15

year-old Babe Ruth All Stars completed step one to a third straight area title Monday night here as they clipped the High Plains All-Stars 13-8. Hereford is aiming at its third title in a row in the area tournament, something no town has ever done according to local spokesman Waldo Baxter.

Baxter reported a "solid hitting performance" by the whole team led the way to the Hereford win. Ronnie Collier blasted a homerun for the winners, and relieved starter Robert Martinez in the sixth to preserve the win. Martinez allowed but three hits to High Plains, but saw six runs cross the plate.

Hereford will play in the tourney semifinals at 8:30 tonight, pitted against the Pampa-Randall County winner in a game played last night.

The probable starter for the Hereford stars tonight is Mike Scott.

IAAF Bans Plucknett From Further Competition

LONDON (AP) — Ben Plucknett lost a lot more than a world record when the International Amateur Athletic Federation banned him for life from international competition after tests for anabolic steroids proved positive.

Plucknett, 27, had set the world record in the discus last May in California with a toss of 233 feet, 7 inches. He bettered his mark last week in Stockholm with a throw of 237-4. Now, neither will be recognized as the IAAF took disciplinary action, involving lifetime bans, Monday against Plucknett and female discus thrower Gael Mulhall of Australia.

John Holt, general manager of the IAAF, said the results were obtained from routine tests taken after the Pacific Conference Games in Christchurch, New Zealand, in January.

Plucknett, who was unavailable for comment after the announcement, had denied using anabolic steroids after bettering his record toss in Stockholm last Tuesday.

Anabolic steroids are synthetically produced male hormones that allow athletes to train harder, recover faster and become generally fitter. When used in conjunction with weightlifting, they produce muscle growth. They are prohibited in track and field, partly because of potential side effects include damage to reproductive organs and kidneys, hepatitis and, in up to 80 percent of those using steroids, abnormal liver function.

Plucknett, who at 6-foot-7, 305 pounds is known as "Gentle Ben", and Mulhall both won their events in Christchurch, but those victories and all subsequent achievements are now scratched from the record books.

Since both record-tossing performances were stripped from Plucknett, a former bouncer from Nebraska, who is now based in San Jose, Calif., the mark reverts to Wolfgang Schmidt of East Germany, who threw 233-5 on Aug. 9, 1978.

A statement issued by the IAAF in London said that samples taken from the two athletes in Christchurch revealed that "a measure of anabolic steroids were present."

It said the tests had been confirmed at a European laboratory in the presence of representatives from the two nations involved.

Although the bans imposed on Plucknett and Mulhall both are for life, the athletes' national associations can appeal the decision.

Palmer Wins Playoff For Open Victory

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — When Arnold Palmer talks, Arnold Palmer listens.

Palmer shot an even-par 70 over the treacherous 6,798-yard South Course at Oakland Hills to win the U.S. Senior Open golf championship in a three-way playoff Monday. But he was nearly out of the running after the first few holes.

The 51-year-old Palmer bogeyed three of the first six holes and was six strokes behind unknown Bob Stone who birdied the 511-yard, par-5 second hole and holed a 170-yard 7-iron for an eagle 2 on No. 5.

"I talked to myself a little bit," Palmer admitted. "If it got too far away, I was aware I might not recover."

Stone, a club pro from Independence, Mo., made his first mistake when he three-putted for a bogey 5 at No. 7.

From that point on, Palmer, who put the word "charge" into golf's vocabulary, put on the pressure and never let up.

"I don't think about that old term 'charge' so much," Palmer said. "I thought mainly about getting from three down to even again."

"Frankly, the way the golf course was playing, I didn't think anybody was going to break par. So, my 'charge,' if you will, was simply to get back to par."

Palmer finally took the lead with a birdie at the 388-yard, par-4 15th hole and Stone bogeyed the final three holes to finish at 4-over, 74.

"Arnie putt well," Stone said. "He got all of his game going."

about anything in particular when you get a big lead like I had," Stone explained. "You just try to keep it going, but I couldn't get the putter going after that."

Billy Casper, the third man in the playoff after finishing 72 holes deadlocked with Palmer and Stone at 289, could not get anything going and finished at 7-over 77.

Casper and Stone each pocketed $9,586.

"I didn't play well today, for some reason," said Casper, who was due to face 150 youngsters at his golf camp in San Diego today. "I didn't have too many chances for birdies, so consequently I didn't make any birdies."

Palmer, who earned $26,000, headed immediately for the British Open.

"To have won this tournament makes me look forward more than ever to going to the British Open," Palmer said. "After missing the cut (in the U.S. Open) at Merion I was about as down as I've been in some time."

"And then, all of a sudden, I worked on my game a little and got some encouragement out of it."

"Now, I'm really kind of anxious to go to England and see if it continues."

Meanwhile, Stone, a pro from a public course, looked forward to getting home. "I'll be at work at daylight in the morning in the pro shop," Stone promised.

Golfer Confident Of Win

HOUSTON (AP) — Louisiana State golfer Roy Biancalana knew he'd have a good round when he learned he'd be playing in the same foursome with defending champion Jodie Mudd in the 56th U.S. Amateur Public Links Championship.

But he never figured on a five-under par 67 in Monday's first round that gave him a two-shot lead over Mudd, of Louisville, Ky., going into today's second round.

Mudd, who won last year's event at Edgewood Tahoe Golf Course in Stateline, Nev., fired an opening round 69, three shots below par and two shots off Biancalana's blistering pace.

Cleveland Possible 1982 All-Star Host

By MARIANNE MCGOWAN
Associated Press Writer
CLEVELAND (AP) — With tonight's scheduled major league All-Star Game indefinitely postponed by the baseball players' strike and prospects seemingly bleak for holding it at a later date, baseball officials were discussing a 1982 game in Cleveland.

Next year's All-Star Game had been set for Montreal, with the National League Expos as host. Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn said Monday it is possible Cleveland could host the game next year.

A strike impasse forced Kuhn last Friday to postpone the game.

"It is our hope that we will play in Cleveland in 1981," Kuhn said in a statement. "By no means has that been ruled out. However, if we cannot play the All-Star Game this year, it is a possibility the game could be rescheduled there next year. We would have to work out a number of other factors first."

Chuck Adams, a spokesman in Kuhn's office, said July 30 would be a likely day to play a rescheduled game this year, but he said no decision has been made when the game will be played, or if it will be played at all in 1981. Adams said no decision had been made on when Montreal would host a game if Cleveland gets to host it next year.

Commissioner Kuhn definitely wants the All-Star Game played this year, and that's the way we are thinking now," said Expos president John J. McHale. "If that is not possible, however, I'm afraid the earliest we could think of having the game in Montreal would be 1984."

Bob Wirz, the commissioner's public information director, said consideration is being given to holding the 1983 classic in Comiskey Park, the home of the Chicago White Sox. That would mark the 50th anniversary of the first All-Star Game, which was played in Chicago.

Assurances that the game be played in Cleveland in 1982 might, to some extent, pacify businessmen in the city who had anticipated tourist and All-Star Game fan revenue.

Thousands of souvenir T-shirts, mugs and pennants are locked away, 50,000 programs are printed and 1,600 hotel rooms had been reserved.

HOLDERS of some 77,000 tickets, assuring the largest crowd in the history of major league All-Star contests, were told to sit tight for the time being. Tickets could be used next year in Cleveland. Otherwise, they would be refunded, spokesman Pete Spudich said.

But All-Star Game or no, the city has celebrated with events which had been planned to coincide with the contest.

Terminal Tower, the city's tallest skyscraper, was completely lighted — for the first time — with 193 floodlights shining on the 52-story building. Previously, only the top of the building had night lights.

Boats raced on Lake Erie in a special All-Star regatta on Sunday. An ethnic food festival opened Monday and a downtown party Monday night was to be followed by Revolutionary War battle drills.

A mock All-Star Game hosted by WKYC-TV here was scheduled for home plate of Municipal Stadium. Two station producers were to represent the American and National leagues.

Medfly Assault Begins in California

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — A low-flying helicopter sprayed pesticide over a residential area of the Santa Clara Valley early today, beginning a controversial assault against backyard infestations of the Mediterranean fruit fly.

Most area residents stayed at home during the spraying, despite urgings by some local officials that they leave to protect their health. But a few dozen people, unconvinced by federal assurances that the spraying was safe, slept on cots in Red Cross shelters outside the spraying area. Others fled to hotels.

The lone helicopter took off from a secret location exactly at 1 a.m., according to Gene Cone of the state's Medfly Project.

The state Supreme Court cleared the way Monday for the spraying, over the objections of Santa Clara County and three of its cities. Earlier in the day, Superior Court Judge Bruce Allen turned down a request for an injunction banning the spraying.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. reversed himself and ordered the spraying after the U.S. Department of Agriculture said it would order a quarantine on California produce unless the aerial spraying were undertaken. Agriculture Secretary John Block said the spraying posed no health threat.

Brown said he would be in the area where the helicopter sprayed.

"I'll be in the spray area,"

Brown said, "but I won't open my mouth, and I won't look up."

Four Red Cross shelters outside the spraying area had attracted only about 85 people by late Monday night. One shelter, at the California School for the Deaf at Fremont, was closed because no one showed up.

"I didn't like the idea of malathion being dumped on me," Lauren Melton, 18, of Palo Alto said at a Milpitas high-school gymnasium, where volunteers had arranged green cots in rows.

Hotel owners outside the spraying area reported a crush of bookings, and the Red Cross set up 1,000 beds in schools.

Despite the low turnout Monday, Red Cross spokeswoman Mary Terrell said the shelters would be kept open Tuesday night.

T E & MURRAY and the San Francisco Chronicle announced that morning newspaper deliveries would be delayed until after spraying ends at 6 a.m.

Although one helicopter based in the Los Altos Hills area of the valley conducted the initial spraying, as many as five helicopters at a time will eventually be used, officials said. A refueling base was kept secret because of sabotage threats.

"We do not anticipate we will cover a very large part of Area 1 tonight," said Frank Hubbard, the project's chief spokesman. "There's a concern for the pilots who have been very busy the last couple of days."

Brown toured the spraying area Monday night, giving a pep talk to about 900 young men and women of the California Conservation Corps who have been helping strip produce from the medfly zone.

The government recommended that during the next two months, malathion be sprayed by air over a 117-square-mile area of Santa Clara, San Mateo and Alameda counties, where the medfly is most heavily spread. More than 500,000 people live in the area.

She Gained Autographs of Greats

McCOOK, Neb. (NEA) — Time magazine has long been a reflection of the times. Few would disagree that those who have made the cover of Time have significantly influenced some aspect of American life.

Marie Rutledge knew that when she subscribed to Time in the early 1950s. But she did not know that the magazine would inspire a hobby that has acquired considerable sentimental and monetary value.

Mrs. Rutledge boasts a collection of about 200 Time covers from the 1950s and early 1960s.

That in itself might not be so unusual. But Mrs. Rutledge did most magazine-cover collectors one better by writing for autographs to the people pictured on the covers. Most came back signed.

In her carefully kept scrapbook are Time likenesses of such notables as Eleanor Roosevelt, John Wayne and Albert Schweitzer, each with an autograph and many with personal messages.

Mrs. Rutledge, a postmistress for 30 years, started her hobby to pass the slow after-noon hours when there was little to do in her small-town post office.

At first she passed the time reading Time.

"Then it came to me: Why not try to get some of these people to sign the covers?" she recalls. "I knew you could get international reply coupons, so I could send postage for any place in the world. I'd send the cover, the coupons and a little personal letter to them."

Mrs. Rutledge was undaunted by the difficulty of reaching any type of celebrity. When other sources failed, she sometimes simply wrote in care of Time magazine.

The first to reply was Iranian Premier Mohammed Mossadegh, an early adversary of the shah. Mossadegh nationalized Iran's oil in 1951 and was overthrown in 1953.

Hearings on Hughes Heirs To Begin Next Month

By SHARON HERBAUGH,
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — A judge who ruled Howard Hughes had no close relatives and left no will when he died five years ago has set the stage for hearings next month to determine the heirs to the billionaire's fortune.

Probate Judge Pat Gregory declared Monday that Hughes had no surviving parents, brothers, sisters, widows or children and swiftly rejected four claims filed against the estate — including one by an elderly woman who disclosed alleged details of Hughes' sex life.

The four claims were the only ones left by people alleging to be Hughes' close relatives.

The judge also set a jury trial beginning Aug. 10 on claims by a group of 22 cousins and other distant relatives and more than 500 people alleging some family link.

In Monday's proceedings, Gregory threw out claims by two women who said they had married Hughes and two people who said they were Hughes' children.

Among them was Alma Cruise Hughes, 70, of Houston, who wept as she insisted Hughes married her in a hospital operating room in Dallas in 1973, three years before Hughes died.

Attorney Wayne Fisher, who represents two of the known relatives, said Alma Hughes' deposition said the tycoon's was in Dallas' Baylor Hospital having a hair transplant and she was admitted for hemorrhoid surgery.

According to the deposition, "Mr. Hughes sat on the edge of her bed and flipped her lips with his fingers to get her to say 'yes,'" as a Christian minister read the marriage vows.

After they were married, she said, she and Hughes lived apart at his request because "Hughes was awfully rough in bed with his women." She also told Gregory she got pregnant by Hughes by artificial insemination and bore him a son in 1974.

The elderly woman also told Gregory that Hughes' autopsy was falsified because it failed to mention her allegation that he only had one foot.

Another woman, Alyce Hovsepian of Atlantic City, N.J., also claimed she married Hughes in 1946 and had proof Hughes never married his second wife, actress Jean Peters.

According to her deposition, Fisher said, Ms. Hovsepian claimed Hughes "wanted to make her a star and take the name of 'Jean Peters.'"

The other two claims thrown out were by Donald E. McDonald of Los Angeles, who said his real name was Richard Robard Hughes and said he was the magnate's adopted son; and Clare Benedict Hudenberg of Las Vegas, Nev., who said she was an illegitimate daughter of the eccentric recluse.

At the end of Monday's proceeding, a woman and her son, sitting in the spectator's gallery, told Gregory that Hughes died in 1970 but that his remains were frozen and not thawed out until 1976. They also claimed to know where Hughes' will had been hidden.

Gregory ruled them out of order and told them they could file an appeal.

Mexican Tortilla Factories Close

NUEVO LAREDO, Mexico (AP) — A shortage of corn tortillas here is forcing Mexicans across the border into Texas to find the food staple, unless they are willing to stay home and settle for the less popular flour variety.

A sudden and unexplained shortage in the basic ingredient of the tortilla, the corn meal mix known as "masa", has closed Nuevo Laredo's 81 "tortillerias", or tortilla factories.

The chief of the tortilla maker's union said the shortage of masa became critical Monday at tortilla assembly lines.

"We have no other choice," Miguel Garcia Buccio of Union de Productoras de Masa y Tortillas said. "We've had to shut down."

The absence of corn tortillas, eaten with almost every meal in many Mexican households, has resulted in a doubling of prices for flour tortillas.

Buccio said that each week Nuevo Laredo normally receives a shipment of 220 tons of masa from CoNaSuPo, the government supply house for Mexican staple products.

Last week, without explanation, the shipment was cut to 60 tons of masa and by Saturday available stocks of the staple had been depleted. An interim shipment of 30 tons had not arrived by Monday, he said.

"People who bought a supply of tortillas last Saturday are rich people today," Buc-cio said.

Francisco Sanchez, a tortilla maker employed at Nuevo Laredo's Tortilleria Margarita, said Monday that business was halted throughout the city of 350,000. He said his plant normally receives 400 kilos of masa from CoNaSuPo a week; but when the supply ran out last week, the plant had to shut down. He said a kilo of masa yields about 30 tortillas.

Across the border, Laredo, Texas tortillerias enjoyed a sudden spurt in business. Raul Quijano, owner of Azteca Tortilleria in Laredo, said five customers from Mexico had made large purchases of corn tortillas before noon Monday.

CoNaSuPo officials offered no explanation for the absence of the weekly masa shipment.

Nuevo Laredo is in the state of Tamaulipas, one of Mexico's largest producers of grain. However, Mexico imports more corn than it grows, most of it from the United States and Canada.

Noah Webster

Before Noah Webster compiled his dictionary, he produced one of the most useful volumes ever printed in English — the Blue-Back Speller. Unscrupulous publishers pirated the Speller, and reprinted it without payment or credit. This led Webster to devise and champion the federal copyright law, which Congress enacted in 1790 to protect the rights of authors.

So you tried a few different ways to spend your advertising money and now your sales curve has dropped completely off the chart.

ISN'T IT ABOUT TIME YOU STARTED USING THE EFFECTIVE ONE... YOUR LOCAL NEWSPAPER?

There are a lot of ways you can spend your hard-earned advertising dollars and some of them can be very glamorous and quite exotic. But that's not what your business needs! You need results... and your local newspaper can still deliver the customers and lots of them for a lot less than most of the others. Newspaper advertising still provides the kind of good, basic selling that really gets the job done. Go with the winner... newspaper advertising!

DEAR DR. LAMB - Can you give me some idea as to the type and amounts of fat in wild game and freshwater fish? Does freshwater fish contain the iodine found in seafood? I'm particularly interested in rainbow trout, catfish and white bass. I would also like to know about elk, venison, turkey, pheasant, dove and cottontail rabbits. This may sound rather odd to you but we hunt and fish for recreation all year and we don't catch or kill anything we won't put on the table. Our forefathers survived on wild meat so it ought to be OK. DEAR READER - From a fat point of view, it is fine. I can't give you very good figures for the meat you ask about, as the fat content will vary greatly on how fat the animal is at the time of the kill. As an average figure, the U.S. Department of Agriculture Handbook No. 8 states that venison contains four grams of fat in 100 grams of edible portion. That means its lean-meat-only is a little leaner than the separable lean of round steak. In general, wild animals are leaner than store bought red meat and closer to "grass fat" cattle that preceded the days of fat stock pens feeding. That is one reason why our forefathers had a diet that was a great deal lower in fat than the diet we have today. The flesh only of pheasant is 7 percent fat by weight. And wild rabbit about 5 percent. The fat in fish in reasonable amounts may be particularly beneficial in lowering the blood cholesterol level. It is the only major food source in our diet that has highly polyunsaturated fats with four or six locations where there is no hydrogen on the carbon chain. This is explained in the issue I am sending you. Iodine is found only in seafood, not freshwater fish.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I had a complete hysterectomy six months ago. I was not told by my doctor which vitamins to take afterwards. I am taking vitamin C and E and zinc. But I read in your column that I should take calcium. I take a multi-vitamin that contains 50 mg of calcium and would like to know if that is sufficient. I don't understand why calcium is necessary after a complete hysterectomy. DEAR READER - A complete hysterectomy means removal of all the uterus and nothing more. If your ovaries are left intact and functioning properly, you are the same metabolically as any other woman with functioning ovaries. If the ovaries fail, as at the menopause, or are removed, there appears to be an increased loss of calcium or an increased need for calcium to maintain a proper balance and prevent loss of bone calcium. You need a minimum of 800, or better, 1000 mg a day for this purpose. Milk is a good source. Vitamins are not a special requirement after a hysterectomy. The nutritional requirements are the same - a good, balanced diet that provides all the vitamins and minerals you should get from good, wholesome foods.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Three months ago I experienced a very sudden and unexpected attack of diverticulitis that put me in the hospital for eight days. The condition was cleared through intravenous liquids and antibiotics. Then I had a hernia operation but I am back to golf and daily walks. I eat meals with as much high fiber as I can and my bowels are OK, although I take Metamucil once a week since my diverticulitis attack. I would like to know what foods to avoid as I certainly do not want another attack if I can help it.

DEAR POLLY - I enjoy your column, especially when I read that someone is doing things the same way I do. I usually take it for granted that my way isn't unique enough to write about. You asked what your readers use to store magazines, and mentioned using cereal boxes. I use detergent boxes covered with colorful adhesive plastic. I also use these boxes for storing cook books and other items. - A.M.

DEAR POLLY - Have you ever returned to your parked car and found the sun left the steering wheel too hot to handle? I keep an old towel on the front seat, and when I leave the car I drape it over the wheel. It may get warm, but not so hot that it burns my hands. - M.P.

DEAR POLLY - I have a wiggly 3-month-old. To keep her in place while I bathe her, I buckle her up in her infant carrier, then set her in the bathtub with running tepid water. I have both hands free to wash her, and don't have to worry about her slipping and getting hurt. It also keeps the carrier seat clean. - P.J.

BARBS Phil Pastoret You gossip about the neighbors - I merely speculate as to their gossips-on. Cut down on your martini input - use king-size olives, says our favorite optimistic lush.

Sure sign that you've become a success is when they begin to call you "temperamental" instead of just plain lazy. No one hears of back-seat drivers anymore. With the advent of compacts, they've had to move up front.

which shot up from 11.1 million in 1970 to 14.2 million in 1980, making Texas the third largest state in the country.
 Even while population has grown the state's unemployment rate has been well below the national average, giving the state the distinction of having the 10th lowest unemployment rate among the 50 states in 1980.
 According to Bullock, understanding the economic and cultural past can assist business and government leaders in planning for a future for Texas without the mistakes and problems suffered by other states experiencing rapid expansion.
 Bullock said the report was distilled from research and economic data originally compiled for the Comptroller's revenue estimate for use by the Texas Legislature in finalizing the state's budget and from documents used to forecast tax collections and income.
 The report does warn that Texas could experience some of the pressures that have plagued other major industrial states.
 Bullock noted, however, that these problems can be solved and that Texas has the ability to meet the challenges.
 "We're number one and we've got the resources to keep it that way," Bullock said.
 Diamonds are the proper gift to give on both the 60th and 75th anniversaries.

Texas Economy Strong For Growth In 1980's

AUSTIN, Tex.—The supercharged Texas economy is strong enough to blunt traditional problems of growth in the 1980's if business and government pay special attention to the factors that triggered the state's favorable economic climate, according to State Comptroller Bob Bullock.
 Bullock's assessment was drawn from a report, "Why Texas is Growing," which was recently published by the Comptroller's office.
 "This study separates the rhetoric from reality about Texas and presents the reasons why our state is the envy of the nation," Bullock said.
 The report shows that Texas leads the nation in the production of cattle, oil and cotton and is prominent in food processing and in the production of apparel and machinery.
 Texas is also the nation's second largest electronics manufacturer and a leading producer of computer software.
 A special section on government in the study concludes that Texas is able to operate efficiently without runaway spending, steep tax increases or reliance on debt financing.
 According to Bullock, fiscal restraint in government spending is reflected in several factors.
 "There has not been a tax increase since 1971 and Texas has no corporate or personal income tax. State and local combined per capita taxes amount to $749 a year, compared to a national average of $934."
 The study also highlighted the state's population growth,

He Smuggles His Saw Into Prisons

HATBORO, Pa. (NEA) — Leroy Wetherill may be the only person in the world who can legally smuggle a saw into prison. He carries it in his viola case.
 For the past 40 years, Wetherill, a virtuoso of the Craftsman 26-inch coarse-edge saw, has performed for prisoners throughout the Delaware Valley.
 "Nobody ever tried to take it away from me to try and get out of prison," chuckles the 70-year-old Wetherill, running his thick, blue-veined hands over the carved wood handle of his instrument. "Of course, it would be pretty hard, 'bein' in there and all."
 In fact, only once has a guard looked askance at the elderly man with the thick, wiry hair and the sharp, steel saw.
 Recalls Wetherill: "He opened up the saw case and said, 'Are you gonna take that in?' I said, 'Yeah, it's a musical saw.' And I picked it up and started playing a tune for him. I don't remember what. And he said, 'Well, I guess it's OK.'"
 Wetherill plays his saw, which he bought at Sears, Roebuck and Co. about two dozen years ago, with a group from a local Baptist church that conducts services for prisoners.
 He also has played with several other groups including the Salvation Army that minister to prisoners.
 When he talks about his activities, however, he sounds little like the devout man that he is. Instead, he sounds a lot like Bugsy Malone, a man with a record as long as his saw.
 "Well," he says, "I've been in Graterford and Holmesburg, the detention center, the house of corrections, Moyamensing when it was still there, Trenton State Prison, Bucks County Prison. I've been in jails for 30 years."
 However, he says, it has all been for the "glory of the Lord."
 Wetherill learned to play the saw from a man he met in a government-sponsored music class during the Depression.
 He was taking violin lessons for 25 cents a shot and got friendly with a couple taking mandolin lessons. During the class's Thursday night jam session, his mandolin-playing friend suddenly pulled out a saw and started bowing it.
 Wetherill was intrigued. But it wasn't until he and the man started working together at a now-defunct stove company that he asked for a quick lesson.
