It's a dirty job, but...

This ballcarrier is about to get even muddier as he runs into a wall of tacklers. Youth from several Hereford churches joined for an afternoon of fellowship Saturday at the Community Church.

Included in the activities was Mud Bowl II, played in a water- and mud-filled pit behind the church.

A Dodge City, Kan. man held Hereford police at bay Sunday when officers attempted to serve him with a warrant.

Willis Shane "Flash" Gordon, 25, was arrested at 816 Knight on Sunday afternoon after he threatened to kill himself with a lethal injection. He held a syringe to his arm and his leg, threatening to give himself a shot of poison.

Police were called by Dodge City authorities on Sunday about the man. Kansas police warned local officers the man had a background in martial arts and had told officers there he would inject himself with poison rather than return to jail.

Officers found the man was staying at the home and went to serve the Kansas warrant. The man was found hiding in a bedroom closet. Officers told him he was under arrest. Gordon reached for a jacket. Police said he didn't need the jacket, but he said he was just getting his identification. Instead, he pulled out a syringe.

He repeatedly told officers he would inject himself with poison in the syringe, or an air bubble in the syringe would kill him. Officers said they were afraid to rush the man because the syringe appeared to be old and they feared it might be contaminated.

After an hour, a friend of the man came into the bedroom and was able to get the syringe from him. When officers were putting handcuffs on Gordon, he appeared to go into convulsions, then feigned unconsciousness. Emergency medical attendants at the scene were unable to find anything wrong with the man. An examination by a doctor at Deaf Smith General Hospital, again, found nothing medically wrong. The man was released to police custody and is being held in Deaf Smith County Jail pending extradition to Kansas.

Plans made for Independence Day events, fireworks

Concrete plans for Hereford's July 4th celebration were made Monday by a steering committee.

This is the second year for a community Independence Day celebration. A 1991 celebration focused on Operation Desert Storm and other past wars.

This year's celebration will be significantly scaled down but will still be special, said committee chairman Wes Klett.

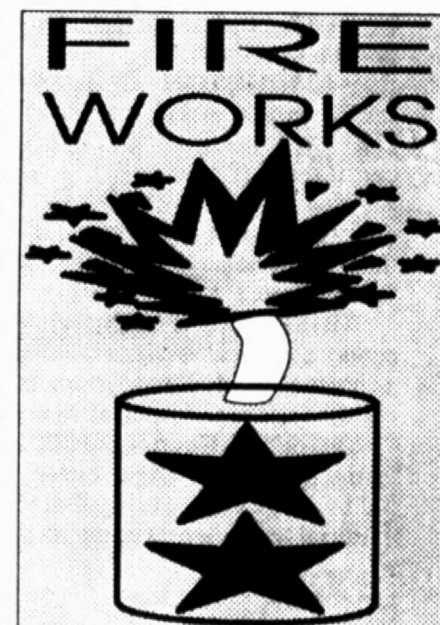

Western Pyrotechnics of Enid, Okla., will again handle the fireworks display. An all-new show, about 30 minutes long, will climax the celebration at Veterans Park.

There will be no parade this year, Klett said.

"We want to focus everything on the activities at Veterans Park," he said.

Families will be encouraged to pack a picnic supper. Free watermelon will be provided by the committee. A program will begin around 6 p.m. with local singers and other talent until 9:30 p.m., when the fireworks will begin.

Just like last year, the roads going into and out of the park will be closed at 4 p.m. Police will run intermittent searches on vehicles to make sure no fireworks are taken into the park. Parking will be available on the east side of Veterans Park.

Donations are being accepted at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce to defray expenses for the celebration. Donations may be taken to the chamber office at Seventh and Main. On checks, the memo line should say the money goes to the fireworks or July 4th celebration. The fireworks cost at least $7,500, and the watermelon will run about $1,500.

Other committee members at Monday's meeting were Janie Nino, Diane Beavers, Bill Lyles, Mike Carr and John Brooks.

City tables annexation requestBy GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

Annexation of an area at the southwest edge of Hereford was tabled by the City Commission Monday night after a report was given on estimated cost of more than $350,000 to provide some city services to residents.

City Manager Chester Nolen reviewed cost estimates, prepared by city engineer Bill McMorries, for providing water and sewer service and paved streets in the Campbell Street area.

A delegation of approximately 40 persons from the area attended the meeting. The two-block development is south of West Park Cemetery, Campbell Street and two unnamed streets run into Bradley.

The commission voted to table the question until Nolen can obtain information on grants and loans to install sewer and water service and pave two blocks of streets.

Three possibilities for funding the work were mentioned by Nolen.

A state grant under a law enacted to assist in providing water and sewer lines in economically depressed areas would fund most of the cost, if approved, said Nolen.

Senate Bill 2 of 1989, called the "Colonia" bill, established the grant program. Nolen said he would pursue further information on that course of action.

A community development block grant would be another possibility, the city manager said, but the area's residents should approach Deaf Smith County officials for assistance since they live outside city limits at present.

Another possibility would be loans from the Farmers Home Administration, he said.

Figures from McMorries estimated costs of installing water lines to the area at $81,568. Besides sewer lines, a lift station to boost sewage to present lines would be needed, bringing that cost to $176,967. Paving, with curb and gutter, on two unpaved streets is estimated to cost $98,356.

"It would be extremely difficult for me to recommend we proceed," said Nolen, "because of the expense. I don't think the city can afford it even though it is a worthwhile project."

Nolen also said that he had been contacted by representatives of the Texas Water Board about water and sewage disposal in the Campbell Street area.

"They are very concerned about the situation," he said. Speaking for the delegation of residents, Tina Ramirez said the sewage disposal in cesspools "poses a danger" to water resources.

"Last time we were here, we had a ray of hope," said Ramirez, referring to the May 4 meeting when commissioners agreed to study the annexation proposal.

She indicated that the group "will go before the county" to pursue grants for water and sewage service.

Nolen responded that the city "just doesn't have the resources but we're not slamming the door" on the project.

On motion by Irene Cantu, seconded by Wayne Winget, the commission voted unanimously to table the annexation question, but continue research on availability of funding to do the work.

The annexation question consumed most of the 30 minutes of the commission's meeting.

Two agenda items -- an executive session to discuss appointments to the golf course advisory board and open session to make appointments -- were postponed.

Another agenda item, approved, was a request from city staff to advertise for sale a 1958 fire truck no longer needed. A new truck was delivered recently to replace the '58 model.

Officials study S. Texas deformities

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) - A South Texas county apparently did not experience an abrupt increase in rare birth deformities in 1989, as was originally thought, a state health official says.

Records discovered last week by medical investigators seem to indicate the high rates of anencephaly - a lethal malformation characterized by an underdeveloped brain - actually date back to 1986.

"You can imagine how shocking that was," said Dr. Dennis Perrotta, director of epidemiology for the Texas Department of Health.

Investigators for the Health Department and the Centers for Disease Control were under the impression that the rate increased abruptly in 1989, going from 3.6 cases of anencephaly per 10,000 live births the year before to an average of 15 per 10,000 in ensuing years.

The newly discovered documents revealed that 10 previously uncounted anencephalic babies were delivered at two Cameron County hospitals between 1986 and 1988.

"When you put those additional cases in there ... the rate for the period between 1986 and 1988 becomes nearly identical to the increased rates we found during the 1989 to 1991 period," Perrotta said Monday.

But medical officials are still worried because the Cameron County rate is about three times the national average of two to three anencephalic births per 10,000, and there is not telling how long the unusual birth series has persisted.

A report on the TDH-CDC study, which is scheduled for a July release, will include a recommendation that investigators review anencephaly cases dating back to 1980, Perrotta said.

He added, however, that the information does have a positive side. "Going from low to high means there is some event that caused the dramatic increase," he said. "This suggests that this event did not occur."

Experts say if there has been an environmental cause, it will be harder to trace.

Some local medical officials and environmentalists have suggested there is a link between the defects and industrial dumping across the border. The TDH and CDC have not ruled out environmental causes, but have been reluctant to single out any suspects while the study is underway.

"The negative thing is that if indeed there had been an environmental cause for the increase, it was going to be difficult for us to make that link if it was two or three years in the past," said Perrotta. "It will now be more difficult because we have to go back" even further.

Perrotta also acknowledged that health officials are now puzzled by information released nearly two weeks ago that Matamoros, Mexico, began experiencing high rates of the same defects at the same time as Brownsville, Texas and surrounding Cameron County, just across the border.

He said Mexican medical records are still being reviewed.

Jeane Kirkpatrick

Kirkpatrick looks to be Perot's pick

WASHINGTON (AP) - Former U.N. ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick is being sounded out as a potential running mate for unannounced independent candidate Ross Perot, Republican sources say.

A Perot representative called such speculation premature.

Kirkpatrick has been believed to be on Perot's "short list" for some time. GOP sources not directly connected with the Perot effort said that interest in her on the part of Perot's lieutenants has sharpened recently.

"They're having hot and heavy conversations with Kirkpatrick," one source said, speaking on the condition of anonymity.

Earth summit creates air of festivity

But some doubt real progress will be made on issues

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) - The atmosphere is festive in Rio on the eve of a world summit devoted to the planet's well-being.

Thousands of diplomats, ecologists and native leaders have packed the city's bars, restaurants and taxis, easing the pain of a protracted recession. Residents are reveling in the world's attention and dozens of special events and concerts are planned.

But beneath the bustle, many activists fear little progress will be made in addressing serious environmental issues. And some Brazilians say the same delegates trying to protect trees and animals have shown little interest in human beings - especially Brazil's poor.

The Earth Summit, formally known as the United Nations Conference on Environment and Development, opens Wednesday at the Riocentro convention center, 25 miles west of downtown Rio.

Related events were scheduled for today.

Twelve-thousand environmentalists from 164 countries were to open The Global Forum, a parallel, non-governmental conference. Groups ranging from an Esperanto Association to Friends of the Earth were to meet in 36 green-and-white striped tents at Flamengo Park.

At the Earth Summit, delegates from 185 countries will debate and negotiate until June 11. An estimated 100 presidents, premiers and kings will meet for the final days.

Not all delegates have titles.

Former soccer great Pele, named special Earth Summit ambassador, is bringing 17 Kenyan street kids to the conference.

In deference to his soccer-loving citizens, President Fernando Collor de Mello has called the summit the "World Cup of Ecology." Others disagree.

"The conference is just a circle of leaders looking for electoral re-treading," said Alfredo Sirkis, president of Brazil's Green Party.

Much of the criticism has been directed at President Bush. Bush pressured European leaders to remove goals and timetables from an agreement to reduce carbon dioxide emissions. The United States produces about one-fourth of the world's carbon dioxide, which scientists believe contributes to global warming.

Last week, Bush also said he would not sign a "biodiversity" agreement to protect the world's plants, animals and resources. Officials have since hinted that he may change his mind.

"The Bush administration has recklessly undermined the Earth Summit," Josh Karliner, Greenpeace's summit coordinator, said Monday. "The summit would be better off if he didn't come."

"The conference is not a finish line or a definitive ecological pact," said Paulo Nogueira Neto, advisor to U.N. summit coordinator Maurice Strong. "It is, above all, a second step that will make possible new and bigger steps."

Brazilian criticism of the conference has taken a different tack.

Some critics say it is a plot to strip the country's control of the Amazon region. The Workers Central Union, Brazil's largest labor federation, has unveiled billboards urging visitors not to ignore the country's poverty while attempting to protect its forests.

On Monday, dozens of pensioners marched near Flamengo Park, urging the same compassion for humans as the delegates have for nature.

Brazilian retirees - many of whom receive less than $50 per month - have for more than a year unsuccessfully lobbied the government to raise pensions.

Youngster receives slight injuries

Michael Power Jr. gives a thumbs up sign as emergency medical attendants treat him for bruises, cuts and scrapes after an accident Monday. Police reports said Power and two other youths, Heather Hodges and Brack Bryant, were horsing around the Jolly Trolley snow cone truck when the truck jumped out of gear. Power attempted to stop the small truck but it pinned him beneath and dragged him for 15 to 20 feet. The accident occurred at Oak and Prince about 2:15 p.m. The operator of the truck was cited for no driver's license.

Janissa Schilde, June 6 bride-elect of Toby Fulton, was honored with a bridal shower May 26 at the E.B. Black House.

Greeting guests with the honoree were her mother, Joan Schilde, and the prospective bridegroom's mother, Carolyn Smith.

Also, welcoming guests and presiding over the registry table were Christie Porton of Wheeler and Renea Robinson of Clarendon.

Refreshments of assorted cookies, finger sandwiches, fruit tray, lemon, lime and orange tea and coffee were served from crystal appointments. The table was covered with an ivory lace cloth and centered with bride and groom block dolls arranged around peach and cream fresh cut roses.

Revere Cookware and the bridal figurines were presented to Miss Schilde by the hostesses. They included Nancy Hollingsworth, Neoma Stokesberry, Amy Hamilton, Susie Paetzold, Carol Collier, Marjorie Mims, Susan Hicks, Paula Edwards, Suzanne Meiwes, Pat Meiwes and Cynthia Cribbs.

Other out of town guests came from Amarillo.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) - Guns N' Roses guitarist Slash says he wasn't trying to lead youngsters into drinking through his endorsement of Black Death vodka.

Nor was he in it for the money. His real purpose in doing the ads? "Just to get the vodka," he said Monday. "It's good vodka."

U.S. Surgeon General Antonia Novello charged earlier this year that Black Death was blatantly appealing to underage drinkers by signing the guitarist as a spokesman.

Slash said Novello "overreacted totally."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last November, my grandmother, who is in her mid-80s, let two men who posed as water department workers into her home to "check the meter". While one man kept her occupied in the basement, the other one rifled through her purse and took $400.

Grandma called me, nearly hysterical, saying over and over that this loss meant she wouldn't be able to fix the roof on her house. I took out a $400 cash advance on my credit card and gave her the money to fix the roof. I've also given her money for groceries in the past when she said she didn't have anything in the house to eat and that she was living on leftovers brought in by neighbors.

Grandma's health has been deteriorating rapidly and my mother insisted that she move to Arizona where Mom could take care of her. When I went to help Grandma pack her belongings, I discovered her bank book. I was shocked to find that she has $45,000 in a savings account and has added to it as recently as last month.

I'm really angry at her for being so dishonest with us all these years. Please tell me, Ann, why would a person who pretended to be so religious all her life feign poverty and take from others?--Feeling Ripped Off in Gary, Ind.

DEAR GARY: Lighten up on Grandma. Her advanced years may

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Roseanne and Tom Arnold didn't trash a $3.5 million mansion after all, their former landlord now says.

Spencer Proffer had sued the couple for $171,000 to cover broken windows and furniture, a scuffed tennis court and other damage he blamed on the Arnolds, who rented Proffer's home for 10 months beginning in 1989.

Proffer has since withdrawn his lawsuit, apologized for filing it and agreed to pay the Arnolds $66,000.

"The claims made against you were baseless," Proffer, a CBS Records executive, said in a letter Friday.

In a statement Monday, the Arnolds said the settlement "was a complete vindication." They claimed in a lawsuit last year that Proffer had the house trashed to concoct a story he could sell to the tabloids.

very well be a factor in her recent peculiar behavior.

Also, consider the fact that people who have been very poor for a good many years have a difficult time parting with money.

It would be perfectly appropriate to tell Grandma that you found her bank book and were delighted to discover that she is now able to repay the $400 she borrowed. Let her know how pleased you are that she is no longer destitute.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was injured in an accident some time back and recently came into a large sum of money as a result of the settlement.

My boyfriend feels that when it's time for us to become officially engaged, I should pay for my engagement ring because I'm "rich now". He makes good money and can certainly afford to get me a nice ring.

Also, he is insisting that my settlement money be put in a savings account in both our names. We have been fighting about this for quite a while and I'm making myself sick over it.

Whatever your advice is, Ann, I will take it because I don't know my own mind anymore. I'm beginning to regret that I ever got this settlement. It has caused nothing but grief.--Kathy In Long Island

DEAR LONG ISLAND: No matter how much money a woman has, her fiance should buy the engagement ring, even if the stone is so small you can't see it under a magnifying glass.

As for putting your accident settlement money in a joint savings account, I would be wary of a fellow who would make such a suggestion.

Since New York is not a community property state, what's yours is yours and your fiance would have no claim on it after you're married if you kept it in your own name. Since the sum is considerable, I suggest you talk to your lawyer so you are clear on exactly what should be done to protect it.

Gem of the Day: Before you borrow money from a friend, decide which you need the most because you are sure to end up with one of the other.

League catching up with Bulls

CHICAGO (AP) -- Fatigue. Injuries. Lack of hunger for a championship.

Those are the reasons brought forward as to why the defending champion Chicago Bulls have looked so sluggish at times during the NBA playoffs.

Assistant coach John Bach has another theory why the Bulls have struggled to an 11-5 record en route to the Finals after breezing to a 15-2 mark while winning the title a year ago.

"We've been under the scrutiny of the best coaches in basketball for two years, so they have a high degree of knowledge of what we're doing," Bach said. "They know our spacing better, they're putting people in positions where they know we put on the pressure. Even if we disguise some of our defenses, which we do, they're starting to identify them."

Starting in Game 1 Wednesday night at Chicago Stadium, the Bulls have to defend against the high-powered Portland Trail Blazers.

"They believe in themselves and they've fashioned a record that proved they were the best in the West," Bach said. "They have a yearning that we had last year. They're searching for the same holy grail. That brings more passion and more fire to your game."

Bulls coach Phil Jackson said the team's pressure defense, a staple of its run to the championship last season, hasn't been effective in the playoffs this year. And the Trail Blazers are more potent offensively than New York and Cleveland.

"I don't know exactly how we're going to be able to counteract this team," Jackson said. "They're a team of great power and momentum and we're going to have to keep them off their toes and ourselves off our heels."

Jackson said the playoffs, which started with the Bulls dreaming of a postseason sweep, have been a humbling experience.

"This is going to be a struggle," Jackson said. "We're going to have to go out and play better than we played the three previous playoffs."

The Trail Blazers made the NBA Finals in 1990 and were expected to return last year before losing to the Los Angeles Lakers in the Western Conference finals. That experience also taught them something about humility.

"This team has fought through a lot of hard things and hung together," Blazers coach Rick Adelman said. "This team realizes how special it is to get here, how hard you have to work and how much resilience you have to have. And we believe we can win."

"No question, Portland is hungry and they're playing well," Bulls guard John Paxson said. "But we have to worry about ourselves. We have to be concerned with ourselves. Winning the first championship was great, and knowing that is reason enough to come out and try to win another."

Chicago reserve Scott Williams, whose playing time increased as the playoffs continued, said the Bulls will become more motivated now that they are closer to another championship ring.

"What more motivation could you need?" Williams asked. "It was a great feeling last year popping the corks off champagne and splashing it in everyone's eyes and all over their jerseys. It was a feeling that was indescribable. The whole city was absolutely amazing. If you forget those feelings, I don't think you're human."

Both teams have won one NBA title, with the Blazers' winning in 1977 in their first appearance in the NBA Finals. The 1990 loss to Detroit was their second trip to the Finals.

The Bulls' 1991 championship also marked their first appearance in the Finals.

Partnership, ace contest this weekend

The annual Hereford Men's Partnership Golf Tournament is scheduled Friday and Saturday, and Hereford Rotary Club will hold its Hole-in-One Contest in conjunction with the event.

Entry fee is $70 a player and the deadline is Wednesday for the tournament at Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

The Rotary project is open to all interested golfers. Entry fee is $5 for three shots, and players can take their qualifying shots Monday through Friday 6. Twenty-five finalists will try for the hole-in-one on Sunday, June 7.

Golfers in the partnership tourney will have three shots at qualifying on No. 3 hole during Saturday's play. Entry fee includes a cart, as well as three qualifying shots in the Rotary contest, but green fees are separate.

The shootout with 25 finalists will be held at the end of the tourney Sunday, with a $20,000 cash prize being awarded for a hole-in-one.

In addition, the Rotary Club will offer prizes to tourney golfers for hole-in-ones on the other three-pars on Saturday. Prizes for the aces include: Hole No. 6--a set of Mizuno MSX metal woods; No. 9--four-day golf vacation for two at Sandestin Beach Hilton Resort in Florida; No. 10--two Lufthansa German Airline tickets to any destination in Germany; and No. 14--a half dozen Dirotts Sportswear golf shirts.

Agassi, Courier on collision course

PARIS (AP) -- Jim Courier and Andre Agassi tangled last year in the French Open final. This year, they are on course for a collision one round earlier.

Each has one more difficult hurdle to clear before Agassi gets a chance to avenge his five-set loss.

Courier, the No. 1 seed, faced hard-serving Goran Ivanisevic in the opening men's quarterfinal today. Agassi, who says his sometimes-erratic game comes to life at Grand Slams, was to follow against Pete Sampras in an all-American showdown.

Sampras is seeded third, yet he accepts that Agassi, seeded 11th, is the favorite.

"The fact that I'm in the quarterfinals - I don't think too many people expected me to be here," Sampras, a hard-court specialist, said after beating Germany's Carl-Uwe Steeb 6-4, 6-3, 6-2 Monday. He called it his best match ever on clay.

As expected, all four top-seeded women advanced to today's quarterfinals.

The pairings include top-seeded Monica Seles, the two-time defending champion, against No. 5 Jennifer Capriati; No. 2 Steffi Graf against unseeded Natalia Zvereva of Belarus; third-seeded Gabriela Sabatini against No. 7 Conchita Martinez of Spain; and No. 4 Arantxa Sanchez Vicario against unseeded Manon Bollegraf of the Netherlands.

The last two men's quarterfinals are scheduled for Wednesday, pairing France's Henri Leconte against Sweden's Nicklas Kulti, and Russian Andrei Cherkasov against Petr Korda of Czechoslovakia. Korda, at No. 7, is the only seed left in the bottom half of the draw.

Courier has won 20 straight matches and, along with Leconte, has not lost a set during the tournament.

But if he gets past eighth-seeded Ivanisevic, he will face a confident opponent in either Agassi or Sampras.

Agassi was delighted with his 6-1, 6-3, 7-5 fourth-round victory Monday over Spain's Emilio Sanchez, who had easily won the last meeting of the two in March at Indian Wells, Calif.

"I never thought he would play like this," Sanchez said.

"This really emphasizes where my game was at the beginning of the year versus where it is in now," Agassi said. "Emilio is a tough competitor. ... The fact that I did beat him as comfortably as I did really gives me a lot of confidence going into the latter part of the week."

How much better was Agassi now? "I would have to say, if not 100 percent, then sure close to it," he replied.

Agassi admitted he sometimes lacks concentration during regular ATP Tour events.

"But when you get to the Grand Slams, you get the best in the world, and I think it taps a part of me that I don't see as much as I would really like to," he said.

"It's weird. In normal tournaments, even when I'm playing well, I always feel like an underdog. I'm almost surprised when I go out there and win. When I play a Grand Slam, I am very arrogant ... I feel extremely confident and I feel like I am unbeatable out there."

Sampras felt unbeatable against Steeb, to whom he lost on clay in straight sets in April.

"This was the best clay court match I've ever played so far," said Sampras, raised on the hard courts of California. "I was patient. I served extremely well."

"This is the quickest clay court of the year," added Sampras, who had 16 aces. "It's a surface you definitely can serve and volley on."

Pepperdine shuts out 'Horns

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) -- Pepperdine is showing how it earned its No. 3 national ranking with a pair of shutouts in its first two College World Series games against two of the hottest teams in college baseball.

The Waves (46-11-1) shut out Texas 7-0 Monday night after shutting out the national scoring leader and No. 2-ranked Wichita State 6-0 Saturday night. Texas beat Oklahoma 15-3 Saturday night.

Pepperdine is the first team to throw consecutive shutouts in the CWS since Arizona State blanked Oklahoma 1-0, Southern Cal 3-0 and Temple 1-0 in 1972. It was the first time Texas had been shut out in 81 games, dating back to March 23, 1991.

"To have a team come in and pitch two straight shutouts against teams ranked like Wichita State and Texas were, second and third seeds, is quite remarkable," Texas coach Cliff Gustafson said.

Derek Wallace, a first-round draft pick Monday by the Chicago Cubs, combined with Wave relief ace Steve Montgomery to blank Texas. Montgomery added 12-3 scoreless innings to Patrick Ahearn's start in the Wichita State game.

Pepperdine pitchers haven't been scored on in 29 1-3 innings of postseason play. Hawaii was the last team to score on the Waves, in the regional semifinal.

Wallace said pushing the draft out of his mind for the Texas start wasn't that hard. And playing behind Wallace isn't, either, said Dan Melendez.

"It's fun to play around a guy who throws that hard," said Melendez, whose two-run homer in the first provided all the runs Pepperdine needed Monday night. Melendez also hit a three-run shot against Wichita State.

"It's pretty obvious that Pepperdine outplayed us in all the important areas of the game," Gustafson said. "It's the first time we've been shut out all year long, so it's kind of a surprise. I don't think we were flat. It was a case of their pitching being effective against us."

Wichita State, the second seed, didn't recover from its loss to the Waves. The 56-11 Shockers couldn't take advantage of its opportunities and lost 8-4 in an elimination game with Oklahoma earlier Monday. The Sooners (43-23) will battle Texas (47-16) in a West Division elimination game at 6:36 p.m. CDT tonight.

Oklahoma used a six-run sixth inning and homers by Rich Hills and Jason Evans to stop Wichita State. But coach Larry Cochell also lost All-American second baseman Brian Eldridge in a collision with Richie Taylor in the first inning.

Eldridge broke his leg when Taylor ran into him while the Sooner was charging a grounder.

"It's definitely going to hurt us," Cochell said. "You can't lose a guy who's been the glue of your defense and has 23 home runs and say it's not going to hurt you."

Wichita State, which won the CWS in 1989 and had never finished lower than third in four previous nationals, tied California for seventh place as the first two teams to go home with two losses.

"We just did not play with any kind of intensity or confidence, and this was a team that was pretty darn good most of the time," Shocker coach Gene Stephenson said. "We were horrible for two games."

In another elimination game tonight, Cal State Fullerton (43-16) will meet Florida State (49-20) in the East Division. The winner of that game meets top-ranked Miami (55-8) at 4:06 p.m. Wednesday.

Fullerton coach Augie Garrido said following his team's 4-3 loss to top-ranked Miami Sunday that he doesn't know what his pitching strategy will be now that he has to come back from the losers bracket.

"We were not prepared to lose," he said. "I feel we're still very much a part of this tournament. I feel very good about the team's attitude and the team's response to a difficult defeat."

The Philadelphia Eagles won two straight NFL Championship Games by a shutout, beating the Chicago Cardinals, 7-0, in 1948 and the Los Angeles Rams, 14-0, in 1949.

The Hereford Women's Golf Association will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday at Hereford Country Club.

The meeting is "imperative" for members, president Marcie Hughes said, because there will be a guest speaker, Terry Brown, and because planning needs to be done for the Double Couple tournament, which is scheduled for July 11-12.

Nevin happy to join Astros

HOUSTON (AP) - Phil Nevin is glad the Houston Astros decided to take a chance on him as the No. 1 pick in major league baseball's amateur draft.

"The draft is a gamble for a lot of clubs," he said. "It's not a guarantee that the No. 1 pick is going to make the major leagues. There's been guys that haven't before."

But Nevin, a power-hitting third baseman from Cal State-Fullerton, doesn't expect to miss the majors.

"There is some added pressure but if I'm going to be in the major leagues I'm going to be in the major leagues whether I'm No. 1 or in the 10th round," Nevin said. "I'll be there someday."

Nevin still has some amateur games to complete. Fullerton is in the College World Series at Omaha, Neb., and then he'll report for the U.S. Olympic baseball trials.

"I'd like to be in the big leagues next week but I know that isn't realistic," Nevin said. "I know that I need to develop in the minors. I just don't know how long it will take."

And he doesn't anticipate becoming an instant millionaire as the last two No. 1 picks have become. Brian Taylor, the New York Yankees' 1991 No. 1 pick, got a $1.55 million bonus and Todd Van Poppel signed for $1.2 million in 1990 with Oakland.

"Brian Taylor and Todd Van Poppel were two special cases," Nevin said. "I'm just a college guy that got drafted. They had special cases and different things going on."

The Astros were unable to sign Florida State pitcher John Burke last year.

He turned down a $500,000 bonus and returned to college.

Nevin says he understands the Astros' financial structure.

"I realize the Astros are the Oakland As, the New York Yankees or (Toronto) Blue Jays," Nevin said. "I just think we'll settle on something fair. It won't be a record setting deal. It will just be fair so I can get out and play come baseball."

The Astros' tight budget made General Manager Bill Wood choose a player he felt he could sign.

But he likes Nevin's ability too.

"He most closely fit the picture of what we wanted to help us build our ball club," General Manager Bill Wood said. "This is a player who is close to the major league level. He should have limited development time."

Nevin, currently playing in the College World Series at Omaha, Neb., hit .391 with 20 home runs and 71 RBI in the regular season, winning the Big West Conference triple crown.

"They made me feel I was the best player for them, not because I was the bargain guy," Nevin said. "I feel comfortable that they liked my ability and that I was the best player for them to take."

"They never said they were taking me because they could get me for a cheaper price. I feel comfortable with their decision."

The Astros hope Nevin will add power to their lineup.

"We felt that the combination of his abilities, work ethic and intense focus on becoming a solid major league player gave him an advantage as a candidate for the top pick," scouting director Dan O'Brien said. "He already has a high sense of professionalism both on and off the playing field."

Injured hamstring ruins Ryan's night

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - A bad bullpen and now a bad hamstring have Nolan Ryan still in search of his first victory of the season.

It's June and Ryan is winless, the longest streak away from the "W" column at the start of a season in his 25-year major league career.

By this time last year, Ryan already had his career seventh no-hitter. He's still tied with Gaylord Perry at 314 career victories.

On a stormy Monday night with rain peppering the mound and making his footing uncertain, Ryan lasted only 10 pitches against the New York Yankees before complaining of a tight left hamstring.

Dr. John Conway said the tightness "is not serious" and the Rangers said Ryan should make his next scheduled start Saturday night.

Texas manager Bobby Valentine said "Nolan has had leg problems since he was 20 and I don't see that this is anything to worry about."

Valentine said Ryan "got a knot in his hamstring, but the trainer (Danny Wheat) worked it out. He's had it (the knot) the last four starts, but he usually gets it after the game. This one got in there early. After the game, he said he was feeling good."

Ryan went home immediately after being treated by Wheat.

Ryan walked Andy Stankiewicz on eight pitches then threw two balls to Don Mattingly before he decided he didn't want to push it. Jeff Robinson came on in relief and threw two balls to Mattingly. Ryan was credited with the walk.

Robinson then got out of the inning without the walks counting against Ryan with a doubleplay grounder and a strikeout.

It was only the second time in 775 major league games that Ryan had failed to retire a batter.

The other time was Sept. 28, 1971 when he was pitching for the New York Mets against St. Louis.

It was Ryan's eighth start of the season without a victory. He is 0-1 with a 4.67 earned run average.

In three of his starts, Ryan handed leads over to the Texas bullpen which couldn't produce.

Ryan hasn't won a game since last Sept. 25 in Seattle.

The longest winless streak of Ryan's career was in Houston from June 22-Aug. 14, 1985 in which he went 0-8 in 13 starts.

Ryan has had problems with his left leg this season. He was forced to leave in the fifth inning on opening night at Seattle after aggravating a strained left calf. He went on the disabled list after that game.

White's two homers lead Jays

By The Associated Press

The Toronto Blue Jays think they're better this year, and they want to prove it this week at the Metrodome.

In a matchup of division leaders and last year's playoff teams, Devon White homered twice - the second an inside-the-park home run in the 10th inning - to lead Toronto past Minnesota 5-3 Monday night.

The Twins took two of three from the Blue Jays at the SkyDome May 18-20, so the Jays think it's time to show the world champions what they have.

"It's just like last year," Twins manager Tom Kelly said. "Whenever we play the Blue Jays, whoever makes the mistake is going to get beat. Tonight, we made the mistake and got beat."

"White's hit just found a big hole," said reliever Carl Willis (1-2), who had retired all six batters he faced to that point. "Unfortunately, with the turf, it took the big hop. Ninety percent of the time, that's a double. Once it got by, I knew with Devo's speed it wouldn't be a good outcome."

White homered batting right-handed to lead off the game. It was the third time in his career he has homered from each side of the plate in the same game and he is the 56th player in AL history to accomplish the feat.

"I pretty much flicked it out there in the right spot," White said.

The Blue Jays added an insurance run when Joe Carter hit a two-out single and Dave Winfield doubled him home.

The 10th-inning rally made a winner of Duane Ward (3-2), who pitched two innings and allowed one hit. Tom Henke got the last three outs for his ninth save.

Yankees 7, Rangers 1

on to beat Texas as Matt Nokes hit a three-run homer. Ryan is expected to make his next scheduled start on Saturday.

Rich Montealeone earned his third victory against one loss in the game, delayed twice by rain for a total of 82 minutes. Montealeone gave up no runs and four hits in five innings.

Jeff Robinson (4-4) was the loser in relief of Ryan.

A's 10, Red Sox 7

At Oakland, Mark McGwire hit his 19th home run and Terry Steinbach hit a sixth-inning homer to snap a tie.

With the score tied 4-4, Steinbach, who had three hits and three RBIs, led off the sixth by hitting his fourth homer of the season off Danny Darwin (2-2).

Winner Kevin Campbell (1-0), the third Oakland pitcher, pitched 1 1-3 scoreless innings.

Orioles 8, Angels 2

At Anaheim, Mike Devereaux, breaking a 1 for 20 slump, doubled twice, tripled and singled for Baltimore.

Devereaux doubled during a three-run first inning off Julio Valera (2-4), tripled in the third, had an RBI single in the seventh, then doubled home two more runs in the ninth.

Winner Ben McDonald (7-2) pitched six-plus innings, giving up one run on six hits.

Brewers 6, Tigers 2

At Milwaukee, Scott Fletcher started a four-run Milwaukee rally with a two-out RBI single in the seventh inning.

Jaime Navarro (5-4) pitched eight innings and allowed eight hits, including homers to Travis Fryman in the first and Mickey Tettleton in the fourth.

White Sox 5, Royals 3

At Kansas City, Matt Merullo singled in the tie-breaking run in the sixth inning and Alex Fernandez survived a shaky start to pitch Chicago to a rain-soaked victory.

Fernandez (3-5) gave up four hits and three runs in the first inning but allowed only three hits the rest of the way.

Bonilla quiets boos with 6 RBI

By The Associated Press

Bobby Boo was back to Bobby Bo for the New York Mets.

After taking out his earplugs and listening to the fans' displeasure with his minuscule batting average in Shea Stadium, Bonilla drove in a career-high six runs, including a grand slam, as the New York Mets routed the San Francisco Giants 14-1 Monday night.

New York, which had a season-high 16 hits, entered with only two runs in the first four games of its homestand - all losses. Bonilla, who came in hitting only .137 at home with no homers and four RBIs, said he would put the earplugs back in on Tuesday.

"I can take criticism and I've always been accessible," Bonilla said. "Win or lose, I'm always at my locker. It's unfair for me to have to take this kind of criticism when nobody in the media knew or cared what the real reason was for using them. Now maybe the stories will tell the truth."

Bonilla said he used the earplugs on the suggestion of coach Tom McCraw.

"When you get 50,000 in the stands and the planes overhead, you can't hear a thing," Bonilla said. "It was nice to have a game like this and be able to relax. The fans responded to me tonight. I don't believe that they ever thought I was abusing them. The fans only believe what they read and hear. How can they know why I was really using the earplugs?"

Sid Fernandez (4-5) gave up one run and four hits in seven innings and struck out eight. John Burkett (5-2) was tagged for eight runs and five hits in 1 1-3 innings.

Expos 7, Astros 1

Dennis Martinez pitched a four-hitter in the Astrodome to win his fifth consecutive decision, and rookie Matt Stairs drove in three runs.

Martinez (6-4) struck out eight and walked one.

Darryl Kile (2-6) allowed three runs and four hits in five innings, walking four and striking out two.

Dodgers 8, Pirates 6

Mitch Webster hit a three-run pinch homer in the sixth as visiting Los Angeles won its sixth straight.

Los Angeles trailed 6-4 when Webster hit his third home run of the season, a drive off Denny Neagle (2-3).

Jim Gott (1-1) got the victory by allowing one hit in three scoreless innings. John Candelaria got the final out for his third save.

Cubs 6, Padres 1

Greg Maddux pitched a four-hitter and Derrick May hit a two-run single in a five-run fifth inning at Wrigley Field.

Maddux (5-5) struck out six and walked none.

Andy Benes (5-4) allowed five runs and nine hits in five innings.

Braves 7, Phillies 6

Tom Glavine became the NL's first eight-game winner and also drove in two runs in a six-run third.

Glavine (8-3) allowed five hits and four runs - just one earned - in 5 1-3 innings, and increased his record against visiting Philadelphia to 10-1. Mark Wohlers pitched the ninth for his first save.

David Justice and Sid Bream hit two-run singles in the third off Cliff Brantley (2-4) and Glavine got his hit off Ben Rivera.

Vincent: Astros fans hurting sale of team

HOUSTON (AP) - Baseball commissioner Fay Vincent has a suggestion for Houston Astros fans and media: if they're so anxious for owner John McMullen to sell the team, they should stop hindering his efforts.

"To continue as we are going, is in my judgement, to push baseball toward a wall," Vincent said following a speech on Monday. "I don't think that's in the intent of fans or baseball, but we can't allow an agenda to develop that is personal and detrimental to our game."

McMullen has made several unpopular decisions since purchasing the Astros in 1979. He fired general manager Tal Smith, lost Nolan Ryan to the Texas Rangers and will send the Astros on the road for the month of August to allow the Republican Convention use of the Astrodome.

It's time to help instead of hinder, Vincent said.

"By demeaning John and failing to support the team, I wonder if the people of Houston have not made the sale more difficult," Vincent said. "I wonder why the people of Houston believe they can punish John and not harm the prospects of the sale to a new owner."

Hints from Heloise

Q. I have two brass lamps that have turned dark. Can you tell me what to use to brighten them up? Thanks for your help. I do enjoy your column. — Mrs. A.T. Mooney, Houston, Texas

A. If you don't want to use a commercial brass cleaner, one of my favorite home-style cleaning hints is to saturate a sponge with vinegar or lemon juice, sprinkle it with a little salt and rub lightly. Rinse well with water and dry thoroughly.

After cleaning, polish the brass using a paste wax. Just rub with a soft cloth until it shines brightly. — Heloise

SEND A GREAT HINT TO:

FAST FACTS

Other uses for toothpaste:

- Quick cleanup of the bathroom sink.
- Use to fill small holes in the wall.
- Use to remove ink from a child's skin.
- Apply to insect bites to relieve itching.
- Use to attach lightweight posters to the wall.

BRACELET DILEMMA

Dear Heloise: I have a hint to share. You may already know this, but I just discovered it.

I always have trouble putting a bracelet on, so I tape (with transparent tape) one end of the bracelet to the top, inside of the wrist. Then it's easy to fasten.

This works for a watch also. I shared this with the ladies at the beauty shop and they were pleased with the idea. — Ginny, Lake Suzy, Fla.

TEMPORARY SOLUTION

Dear Heloise: Here is a hint for when you are traveling and want to shorten a new pair of slacks but have no thread.

What I did for my daughter was use bobby pins and masking tape. She put the pants on and I held the hem in place with bobby pins. Then we used the masking tape to keep the hem up.

You would be surprised how many washings those slacks went through before the tape started to let go. — Mrs. Laurence Liger, Moncton, N.B., Canada

SOUND OFF

Dear Heloise: One of my biggest pet peeves is when the waiter/waitress at a restaurant asks if I would like change from the check. Their assuming the rest is their tip is outrageous! — Laura, New York, N.Y.

Laura's sound off came in over my fax line. If you'd like to share your pet peeve, a special hint or a question with me, the fax number is 512-HELOISE. Be sure to include your name and address.

I can't answer your letters personally, due to the large volume of mail I receive but will try to print as many as possible in the column. — Heloise

Q. I feel kind of silly asking this, but is there an easy way to fold a fitted bottom sheet? Mine end up looking like they've been run over by a herd of horses. — Evelyn Huzarski, Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada

A. The directions may sound a little complicated but once you practice a few times, it's a breeze to fold that sheet neatly.

Begin by pretending your fist is a head and the fitted corners of the sheets are hoods. Place one of the top corners over your fist, wrong side out. Now, pick up the lower corner on the same side and place it on top of the first corner, right side out.

Hold on to what you have and do the same thing with the other two corners. You should now have the sheet folded in half with two corners over each fist.

Bring one side over and place it on top of the other. The sheet will be folded in fourths and all four hoods will be on one fist.

Now for the easy part. Place the sheet on a flat surface, smooth out the folds and sides (the hoods should be facing you) and fold the corners flat. Then just continue folding, corners to the inside, until the sheet is the size you want. — Heloise

NEW OR OLD

Dear Heloise: For years as the women's-department editor for a metropolitan newspaper, I have cringed at household hints that suggest one "use an old toothbrush" to clean various items, such as can-opener blades.

A new toothbrush is very inexpensive and may be reserved just for cleaning around items used in food preparation. An old toothbrush? Yuck! — Betty Schnitker, Neola, Iowa

You have my vote. I always assumed that readers sterilized them in bleach before using around food. Thanks for reminding me. — Heloise

PAJAMA FEET

Dear Heloise: My preschoolers love to wear one-piece zipper pajamas, but their feet get too hot inside the sewn-in, plastic-soled feet.

To solve this, I cut off the slippers 1/2 inch below the elastic and replace them with a ribbed cuff made from old socks (cut the feet off of the socks).

This is a great way to recycle holey but otherwise good socks, as well as provide cozy, comfortable winter pajamas. — Lisa Allan, Statesville, N.C.

INKY SITUATION

Q. Please do America's school-bus drivers a favor. What will remove ball-point pen ink from vinyl school-bus seats? — Ken Hargesheimer, Lubbock, Texas

A. Be glad to help. Try plain rubbing alcohol, being sure to test a small inconspicuous spot first. Always blot the ink, don't rub; rubbing could cause the ink to spread.

Apply alcohol to a cloth or toothbrush and blot or scrub the stain. — Heloise

Send a money- or time-saving hint to Heloise, PO Box 795000, San Antonio TX 78279-5000. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.

Hicks receives scholarship

Jennifer Hicks was introduced as the recipient of the 1992 CattleWomen's $500 scholarship when the organization met May 29 at the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center.

Welcomed as a special guest was Jennifer's mother, Susan Hicks.

At the informal salad supper and meeting, Pat Graham gave the invocation and Glenda Marcum was welcomed as a new member.

Nancy Josseland made a motion that the women make a donation to the state scholarship fund in memory of Emily Collier's husband, Neil. Mrs. Collier is a former state president of CattleWomen.

Pat Green won the CattleWomen's quilt and geraniums were won by Jana Green, Julia Laing, Karen Sherrod and Pat Graham.

One of the upcoming summer events for CattleWomen is the Fajita Cookoff planned in August with Jana Green serving as chairman.

Those present included Pam Wagner, Graham, Josseland, Joan Coupe, Marcum, Sherrod, Laing, Pat Green, Jana Green, Jennifer and Susan Hicks, Beverly Davis, Rachel Hunter, Leslie Easley and Jackie Murphy.

Donor establishes three new student scholarships

The West Texas State University Foundation closed the sale on a donated Canyon home and has used the proceeds to establish three new endowed student scholarships. The house, built in 1930 by original owner Isabel Robinson, has been home to WTSU students and faculty since the 1970s and was given to the Foundation by a donor who wishes to remain anonymous.

"When I bought the land for this house, it was on the open prairie with tall grasses and prickly-pear cactus covering it. I cleared off some of the weeds and planted fruit trees," Robinson said in a 1963 Canyon News article.

The trees no longer bear fruit, but at least three art, theater and musical theater majors at the University will reap fruitful rewards named in honor of Robinson, William A. and Margaret Moore, and Royal Brantley.

Robinson, who studied art at Missouri University and Columbia University, served as acting head of the WTSU art department in 1925. She left for Ohio University and spent one year there before returning to the canyon campus and teaching career that would last until her retirement in 1960.

But Robinson's influence extended well beyond the walls of a classroom. She established an art colony at Palo Duro Canyon, and her watercolors, for which she was best known, appeared in a number of national exhibits.

The William ("Bill") A. and Margaret Moore Theater Scholarship recognizes a legendary pari who had a profound effect on theater at West Texas state University and throughout the region. Bill joined the WTSU faculty following his release from the U.S. Air Force after World War II and established the Branding Iron Theater in 1946. He directed the BIT productions while his wife, Margaret, served as the unpaid-but-not-unsung acting coach.

Bill, who collaborated with "TEXAS" founder Margaret Harper and writer Paul Green, directed the outdoor musical drama during its first 14 seasons.

Musical theater majors will benefit from the endowment named in honor of Royal Brantley, the original director of the University's musical theater program and opera workshop and the original music director for "TEXAS".

Brantley taught voice at WTSU until the late 1980s and found time through the years to develop such well-remembered characters as Crevantes in "Man of La Mancha," Tevye in "Fiddler on the Roof," Tony in "The Most Happy Fellow" and the King in "The King and I."

Green Tea vs. Tooth Decay

CHICAGO (AP) - Green tea could become a popular prescription for fighting dental infection, judging from recent research in Japan.

Preliminary analysis of the effects of green tea as a bacterial inhibitor look promising, according to a spokesman for the Chicago-based Academy of General Dentistry, Dr. Stanley Markovits.

The research at Aichi-Gakuin University in Nagoya, Japan, not only indicates that green tea can kill tooth decay-causing bacteria but also bacteria found in tooth infections, Markovits said.

The researchers, he explained, tested the effects of four types of Japanese green tea against 24 bacterial strains withdrawn from infected root canals - and extracts from the tea inhibited or killed bacterial growth in 21 of the strains tested.

Elections and Scare Tactics

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) - Voters may complain about negative campaigning, but it isn't likely to go away, says a political scientist at the University of Rochester.

"Historically, there have been basically two kinds of voters," says Professor William Riker, "those who know what they want, and those who aren't sure."

"The 'not sure' types often know less, think less, and care less than those who have made up their minds," he explains. "They are the persuadable voters whose support every successful campaign needs."

However, these voters are also more easily frightened, Riker says. "They don't want to wake up the day after the election, thinking 'what a disaster!'"

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: Is it possible to have the "baby blues" 17 months after the birth? After I had my second child, I found that my energy level had diminished along with my sex drive. I am extremely tired. Something has happened to my body, and I do not know how to get back what I have lost. My daughter is 17 months old and has slept through the night since she was 6 months. I am 27 years old, married to a wonderful man and have two super-terrific children. I work a full-time job outside the home. My work is rewarding and I love it.

Before I was married, I worked full-time, went to school full-time and maintained a serious relationship. I was never tired and demanded very little sleep to maintain a high energy level. Now that has changed, and I don't know why.

DEAR READER: While it is a generalization with many exceptions, young people have more energy than adults. When you try to do too much, nature has a way of slowing you down, and you feel tired. Many young women in your age group who have a full-time job, small children to look after and a husband, suddenly find they are running on empty. The real solution to "having it all" in many of these cases is doing less, not more.

Seventeen months after the birth of a baby is a little too long for the common blues or depression many women do experience after a birth. Look for other causes. It can be psychological — simply the results of demanding more of yourself than you can reasonably do.

You need to be sure you do not have a medical reason for fatigue. There are many: low thyroid activity, low adrenal-gland function, anemia, poor nutrition, chronic fatigue syndrome, lack of physical exercise. You can have a full day with many things to do and none of them may provide meaningful exercise. Office work seldom does, even though it can be demanding or even enjoyable. Individuals who are physically inactive have a sense of fatigue and often choose to do even less, which makes matters worse.

If you had included your name and address on your letter I would have sent you Special Report 37-12, Don't Ignore Fatigue, which would answer many of your questions. Those who want this issue can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/37-12, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077. I do think you should have a medical examination. Do you need more pleasures in life — doing things you enjoy that are not work- or home-related? Sameness leads to boredom, and boredom leads to fatigue.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I get terrible pains that feel like a band squeezing my rib cage. A friend says this is a gallbladder attack. Is there a special diet I should follow to avoid this?

DEAR READER: You need a diagnosis first, and that means a trip to your doctor. The two most common causes of such a symptom are heart disease (angina pectoris) and esophageal spasm. It would be a mistake to ignore such a symptom and simply try to treat it with diet alone. I know nothing else about you, but either of these more likely possibilities would require a different approach to treatment.

One of the mistakes people often make is to self-diagnose themselves and apply a home remedy. That can lead to ignoring a serious medical problem that could be helped if properly diagnosed to permit the correct treatment. See your doctor for medical problems and your friend for friendship, unless your friend has a medical degree.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have had shingles for three weeks and continue to have considerable pain, both deep and topical. It is most disconcerting at night. I had about 15 or more eruptions on my left side from my spine around to my navel. My family doctor gave me Zovirax from the very first. The symptoms appear to be diminishing and the eruptions have lost their scabs, but not their sensitivity.

How long will the pain continue? What is the probability of a recurrence? Is the condition contagious? There seems to be extensive professional disagreement as to the cause.

DEAR READER: No, it is well established that shingles are caused by the chickenpox virus. Commonly, you get chickenpox during childhood and the virus lives in a portion of nerve cells in a dormant state for years. When something happens to activate the virus, it multiplies and migrates along the nerve involved. That explains its distribution. In your case, it is a spinal nerve from your spine that passes around to your navel. Once the virus reaches the skin, it begins to multiply within cells of the skin, causing the lesions you have had.

After the attack is over, some dormant viruses still live in the nerve cells and may be reactivated again and cause lesions in the same area as before. Such a recurrence is uncommon, occurring in only about 4 to 5 percent of individuals who have had an attack.

The typical acute attack only lasts from two to four weeks, although the skin may continue to be sensitive longer. In a few cases, a painful condition called postherpetic neuralgia may occur and cause persistent pain for months or, rarely, for years. Early treatment with Zovirax, as you received, lessens the chances of such a complication.
