

Hance: 1981 Farm Bill Inadequate

BY BOB NIGH
MANAGING EDITOR
 U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock told a group of some 200 civic club members and supporters yesterday that the 1981 Farm Bill "is inadequate, and I think it will be a disaster."

Farm Bill as well as commenting on the national budget and foreign relations. "I voted against the Farm Bill," Hance told the group. "There are two ways to improve farm prices; higher price supports through target prices, which with the budget restraints we have is not going to work, and some way of dealing with the surplus that we have through some type of set aside."

"I think that at some point in time the price situation is going to turn; that's the good news. The bad news is I don't know if there will be anybody left when it turns," the congressman continued. Hance said that a severe drought somewhere in the world next year would improve prices but, if not, then larger set asides would have to be made by the Department of Agriculture by next summer to help offset the surpluses. "One of the few good things we were able to do in the Farm Bill this year dealt with sugar price supports," Hance said. "I think this year's crop should increase $5-6 per ton the amount of money that farmers receive for sugar beets." Hance, well known for his frequent "Town Hall Meetings" throughout the district, looked back on the year in Washington. "The one big step in the right direction was cutting the federal budget," he said. "It was completely out of control, and we had to cut some programs, but the two figures I use to justify my support of the cuts is that the federal budget in 1977 was $300 billion, and in 1982 it will be $712 billion; more than doubled in five years." Hance said that two areas (See HANCE, Page 2)

Cowgirl Hall Receives Additional Gift of Land

The National Cowgirl Hall of Fame board of directors announced Wednesday the receipt of approximately 14 acres of land surrounding the Marsh Pitman home donated to the Hall earlier this year.

The tract lies from the intersection of Highway 385 and 15th Street eastward to and around the Marsh Pitman home.

In addition, Garth Thomas, chairman of the Hall board, announced that a significant cash donation from the trustees of the Jim Hill estate has been received along with another gift from an anonymous estate.

According to Margaret Formby, the Hall board foresees the development of an entrance off U.S. 385 which will curve around to the Pitman home, which will house the Hall of Fame. She said the plat has developmental potential and could be made into a botanical garden or park in conjunction with the city and civic clubs.

She added that any master plan for development would be one that the people of Hereford may participate in, be proud of and also create a remembrance of the Pitman family and its four generations of contributions to the community.

The board hopes to use the monetary gifts in a permanent investment fund and use only the income from that fund for operating expense.

Formal dedication of the new facilities is set for the spring during the annual Rhinestone Roundup.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says that an unfortunate fact is that much of the journey down the roadway of life is spent in the left-turn lane.

The work of the old year is done. The picture of 1981 is painted. It is an outstanding picture—appearing as a masterpiece to some, but seemingly unfinished to others.

Tomorrow, a new year begins. To each of us is handed new brushes and paints. The colors are given to us, but we may choose the design of the painting. Unless we do our part, there will be some blots, some unwhzy areas in the picture.

Who knows—perhaps the strokes that we put on the canvas, small though they may seem, may be the finest of the great painting when it is finished in 1982.

Rep. Kent Hance, who blossomed into a national political leader this year, made an impressive talk at a joint meeting of civic clubs here Wednesday.

Hance, co-author of the largest tax-cut bill in history, believes American citizens—for the most part—like to hear the truth, even if it hurts. Too many politicians tell people what they want to hear.

Our 19th Congressional District representative fears the farm situation may get worse before it gets better. However, he sees a turn-around for farmers in 9 to 18 months.

He says that is good news for those who will still be around, and, he adds, "that's no joke!" The one bright spot, locally, of the new farm bill is that sugarbeet producers have better prospects for good prices.

Rep. Hance put some of our government study commissions in proper perspective with a story about a Muleshoe farmer and cattleman. The farmer noted that the past three administrations had appointed study commissions on Social Security.

"What they have discovered—at a cost of millions of dollars, I could have told them for only $500," said the farmer. "When you spend more money than you take in, you go broke!"

As an afterthought, the farmer said, "The way the cattle market is this year, I'd have done the study for $50!"

Although we have many problems, Hance asked citizens to still "count our blessings." He pointed out that the United States is still having problems with immigration laws, because so many people are trying to move to the U.S. "No other nation has that problem," he said.

Speaking of money wasted on federal study commissions, that thought can also be applied to the current program on drilling tests for nuclear waste dumping in this and other areas.

It is difficult for anyone in this area to imagine how bureaucrats can seriously consider such an agricultural region for placing nuclear waste holes. Like the MX missile fiasco, we wonder if this project is just another political ploy to appease citizens in other areas.

Of National Reconciliation

Martial Law Regime Facing Dilemma

By The Associated Press
 Poland's martial law chief, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, is expected to unveil a program in early January that "would amount to a new model for social, political and economic life in Poland," a government official was quoted as saying in an uncensored dispatch from Poland.

But the report, which reached the West Wednesday night, said political observers in Warsaw were skeptical that any political solution put forth by Jaruzelski can win wide public support.

The observers said the martial law regime faced a fundamental dilemma: How to create a climate of national reconciliation at the same time as it maintains sufficient control to prevent unrest.

Meanwhile, the official Soviet media criticized President Reagan again today for imposing trade sanctions to punish Moscow for allegedly masterminding the crackdown in Poland. Pravda said efforts to "blackmail" the Kremlin were doomed to failure. Another Soviet newspaper claimed Western support for Solidarity was linked to a NATO decision to deploy new medium-range U.S. nuclear missiles in Europe.

In London, the British Broadcasting Corp. said today its Polish language broadcasts are jammed by Soviet transmitters "somewhere near Moscow." The U.S. State Department said Wednesday the Soviets jammed Polish broadcasts by the Voice of America. State Department spokesman Alan Romberg said this violated international agreements.

The uncensored reports quoted sources in Warsaw as saying Jaruzelski has set up at least three panels headed by top Communist Party leaders to revamp the country's social, economic and political programs.

One of the panels reportedly proposed scrapping the tattered Polish United Workers Party — the Communist Party — and replacing it with a new party incorporating Roman Catholic Church and Solidarity union representatives.

The Communist Party has been reported in disarray since martial law was declared Dec. 13.

Another committee, headed by Communist Party hard-liner Stefan Olszowski, reportedly proposed decentralization of the economy within tight political limits, according to sources in Warsaw. Economic reforms are likely to include autonomy for factories and other enterprises, but not the worker self-management proposed by Solidarity, the sources said.

The uncensored dispatch from Poland said the now-banned Solidarity labor movement was circulating a bulletin urging its members to resist what it described as "a Stalinist version of local

Ghana Hit By Military Coup

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (AP) — Jerry J. Rawlings, a 34-year-old former air force lieutenant, staged his second coup in two years in the West African nation of Ghana, toppling the civilian government of President Hilla Limann. Accra Radio reported today.

The radio, monitored in the neighboring Ivory Coast, reported heavy firing early in the morning around Burma Barracks, the central military camp in Accra, the capital of Ghana. There were no immediate reports of casualties and no independent confirmation that Rawlings had taken power.

Ghana, a nation of about 11 million, is located just north of the equator on the West African coast and has a primarily agricultural economy.

In the broadcast, Rawlings appealed to Ghanaians not to harm Limann, whom Rawlings asked to remain in his presidential quarters.

"We are asking for nothing more than the right to assert the dignity of humanity," Rawlings said. "Fellow citizens, it is up to you to decide."

He called on all soldiers, officers and policemen retired or dismissed Sept. 24, 1979, the date of return to civilian rule, to report to their barracks.

Rawlings also said that other countries should "stay out of our attempt to rid this country of corruption."

It was the fifth military coup in the country since Ghana became the first black African state to win independence 25 years ago.

Rawlings deposed the military government of Lt. Gen. Frederick Akluffe in June, 1979, but handed power over to Limann after elections later in the year.

Rawlings was subsequently required to retire from the military.

When Rawlings took power in 1979, his stated goal was to clean up corruption and try to restore the Ghanaian economy. In a newspaper interview in April 1980, Rawlings said he wished Limann's government well but had his doubts.

Since Limann assumed power in September, 1979, the economic situation has gone from bad to worse. The cedi, the Ghanaian currency, is officially pegged at 2.75 to the dollar but easily reaches 35 cedis to the dollar on the flourishing black market.

Ghana, once the world's leading cocoa producer, suffers from a serious balance of payments problem and what cocoa is produced is usually smuggled across the border into the Ivory Coast where it fetches a higher price.

Plane Crash Survivors Never Gave Up Hope

SALIDA, Colo. (AP) — Four survivors of a Christmas Eve plane crash read the Bible as they huddled in the snow-bound fuselage for five days, and just after they read about why God lets man suffer, a rescuer walked up to the plane, one survivor said. "It was remarkable. We never gave up hope. Never," said Steve Smart of Dallas.

The arrival of the searcher at the crash site on a mountain ridge began a daring rescue that saved four of the five people who were flying from Texas for a ski weekend in Aspen when the single-engine Piper Cherokee crashed.

The pilot, Gary Meeks, walked away from the wreckage Christmas Eve to search for help and hasn't been found.

Smart, the last of the four rescued, was brought down from the 11,600-foot-high crash site Wednesday. He was carried through deep snow for several miles by toboggan, and then moved by snowmobile and four-wheel drive vehicle.

"I enjoy snowmobiling, but not quite like this," he said.

The other survivors—Meeks' wife, Patricia Meeks of Dallas, and her two step-sons, Gary Meeks Jr., 18, and Darren Meeks, 15—were airlifted from the crash site late Tuesday night by helicopter.

Zamora Headed For Grand Jury

An examining trial determined Tuesday that a man charged with kidnapping a Hereford State Bank employee in November will have to face a grand jury in January, according to O.K. Neal Judge.

Julian Zamora, 22, was arrested Nov. 21 in Gruber by Hansford County authorities when he was found to have Martina Ortiz, 21, in his custody.

Zamora allegedly forced Ms. Ortiz into a car on the bank parking lot as she was coming to work. After swapping cars on a farm north of town, Zamora drove her to Gruber, about 100 miles north of Hereford, where his sister lived.

Also involved in the incident were Charles Kilpatrick, Jose Mac Zamora and Felix Mungia. They have not yet requested an examining trial.

Family Poisoned Sleeping By Charcoal

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Seven of eight family members who tried to keep warm by sleeping near glowing charcoal were treated for carbon monoxide poisoning Wednesday.

"It could have ended with eight people dead," said Dr. Wes Wallace. Miguel Mendoza, 32, his wife, Gloria, 29, and five of their six children ranging in age from 2 to 9 were released from the emergency room at Brackenridge Hospital after being treated with oxygen.

The sixth child, Mike Mendoza Jr., 11, had slept in another room because smoke from the charcoal heater bothered him, and Wallace said he had no symptoms of poisoning.

Mendoza drove his family to the hospital after he and his wife and all of the children except Mike had complained of headaches, nausea and vomiting.

Wallace said the Mendozas told a social worker their gas had been cut off when they failed to pay an overdue bill. Mendoza, an unemployed landscape worker, said his wife on Monday had paid $51 the family owed for gas service but the service had not been restored.

Tuesday night the temperature dipped into the 40s.

Hispanic Women To Be Honored

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Twelve Texas Hispanic women will be honored at a Jan. 8 dinner featuring a keynote address by Texas First Lady Rita Clements.

"Twelve women from all professions have been chosen on the basis of their endeavors in their respective fields as examples of determination, dedication, service and accomplishment," said Lu Betancourt, program developer for the sponsoring National Hispanic Women's Institute.

The function set for 6:30 p.m. Jan. 8 at La Mansion Del Rio. Ms. Betancourt said the women to be honored were Nina Lorenzo, of Houston, who has built a 13-restaurant chain in San Antonio, Houston and Dallas; General Telephone Lobbyist Helen Soto-Knafls, of Austin; State Rep. Irma Rangel, D-Kingsville; Luz Tamez, sister of and San Antonio office director for Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Texas; and Theresa Vasquez, of Austin, staff assistant to Sen. John Tower, R-Texas;

Safety Citations Issued To Grain Elevator

WASHINGTON (AP) — Safety citations filed against owners of a Galveston, Texas grain elevator that exploded in 1977, killing 18 workers and injuring 22 more, will be downgraded by the Labor Department, according to a published report.

Citations alleging "willful serious" violations by Farmers Export Co. of Kansas City will be downgraded to "serious" as part of a settlement of a civil suit, the Washington Post said in today's editions.

Farmer's Export sold the Galveston elevator earlier this year. The proposed settlement, which must be confirmed by a judge and a federal commission, calls for downgrading the violations and payment of $6,000 in fines.

The department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration originally filed 12 "willful serious" citations, each carrying a possible $10,000 fine, and six "serious" citations, each carrying a possible $1,000 fine.

Max Warwick, a lawyer in the Dallas OSHA office, was quoted as saying the reduction in severity of the citations was made by the regional administrator based on "a re-analysis of the facts and a number of other considerations."

11 Snakes Stolen From Fort Worth Zoo

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Burglars with a "shopping list" broke into the Fort Worth Zoo herpetarium and stole 11 snakes — five of them protected under endangered-species laws, zoo officials said.

"It was almost a shopping list kind of venture, taking one and leaving one," said assistant director Dudley Brown.

The missing nonpoisonous snakes were worth about $3,000, and many of them are rare and will be difficult to replace, said herpetologist Dave Blody, director of the zoo's nationally recognized reptile-breeding program.

"They (burglars) were very selective in what they took," he said. "It obviously was someone familiar with the value ... and the scarcity of some of them."

Police said they have no leads. Blody said he discovered the burglary about 8 a.m. Wednesday when he found a rope dangling from the ceiling of the snake house.

Among the missing were two federally protected reptiles — a Madagascar ground boa and a carpet python. In addition, Blody said three snakes protected by state law were taken — a Baird's rat snake, a Trans-Pecos rat snake and a Mexican milk snake.

Blody said 31 different kinds of snakes have produced offspring in captivity at the Fort Worth Zoo.

The Fort Worth Zoological Association has offered a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the burglars and return of the snakes.

Bexar County Moving Jail Inmates

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — After midnight tonight, no more federal prisoners will be housed at the overcrowded Bexar County Jail.

Sheriff Joe Neaves has ordered all federal prisoners out of the Bexar County Jail by midnight in compliance with settlement of a federal lawsuit that charged, among other things, that the jail was overcrowded.

About 60 federal prisoners already have been moved from the jail in the past week and the remaining half dozen or so will be moved before tonight's deadline, said Bob Brooks, a supervisor in the U.S. marshal's office.

More Rules and Regulations

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Individual Retirement Accounts offer you a chance to build up a substantial nest egg, but you have to follow all the rules to get the most from your dollars. And you should plan to leave the money alone until you are 59½.

Here are some questions and answers about some of the regulations governing the IRA accounts:

Q. Can I have more than one IRA account?

A. Yes. You may open as many accounts as you like as long as your contributions do not exceed $2,000 in a single year.

Q. Can I switch from one IRA account to another?

A. Yes — with certain restrictions. You can transfer money from one account to another as often as you like, providing that the money is not under your control. The trustee, manager or custodian of the IRA must make the transfer directly to another trustee, manager or custodian. Once every 12 months, however, you are allowed to withdraw the money yourself and invest it in another IRA. The process is known as a rollover. You must open the new account within 60 days or you will be penalized.

Q. Do I have to contribute the maximum every year?

A. No. The law does not require any minimum contribution. Nor does it require you to contribute every year. Individual financial institutions may set their own rules, however.

Q. Are there any circumstances under which I can withdraw the money without penalty before I'm 59½?

A. You can withdraw money at any time if you become totally disabled.

Q. I've just changed jobs and got a big chunk of money from my pension plan. Can I put it in an IRA?

A. Yes. You can roll the money over into one or more IRA accounts within 60 days and you do not have to pay tax until you begin withdrawals. There is no limit on the amount that can be rolled over and this money does not count toward the $2,000 maximum annual contribution for an IRA.

Q. What if I contribute too much to an IRA in a single year by mistake?

A. You can avoid most penalties by withdrawing the excess, plus the interest it earned, before you file your federal income tax return for the year. You will, however, have to pay a 10 percent penalty on the earnings of the excess contribution.

Q. What if I am a participant in a "spousal IRA" — paid for by only one worker — and get divorced?

A. A divorced spouse can continue the IRA under certain conditions, using alimony as well as wages or other compensation. The IRA must, however, have been established at least five years before the divorce and the former spouse must have made contributions to the account for at least three of the five years.

Q. What if I die?

A. The money in the IRA goes to your beneficiary or beneficiaries and will be taxed when withdrawn. There are ways, however, to avoid both estate and income taxes; check an accountant or other tax adviser for details.

Q. Can self-employed people have IRAs?

A. Yes. They also can have separate retirement accounts known as Keogh plans. As of Jan. 1, a self-employed person can contribute $15,000 or 15 percent of his or her income — whichever is less — to a Keogh plan, and still put up to $2,000 of compensation to an IRA.

Charges Dropped On Brilab Defendant

HOUSTON (AP) — Federal prosecutors have dropped the charges against the last defendant in an alleged scheme to bribe Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton to use his influence to reopen bidding on a lucrative state health insurance contract.

The charges were dropped Wednesday against Deer Park labor leader L.G. Moore, who had been indicted along with Clayton and Austin attorneys Randall Buck Wood and Donald W. Ray following the FBI's Brilab investigation.

Clayton, Ray and Wood were acquitted of all charges in October of 1980, but Moore had been granted a separate trial.

Moore still faces a Jan. 11 trial on racketeering, conspiracy and wire fraud charges in connection with an alleged kickback scheme involving a health insurance contract for Houston municipal employees.

Port of Houston Commissioner John Garrett also will be tried on the same charges. Assistant U.S. Attorney Ronald G. Woods said Wednesday the government wanted to drop the charges against Moore to avoid prejudicing the case against Garrett and shorten the trial.

Wood said in Austin that the government's decision to drop the charges was a final vindication of the Brilab defendants.

"The Justice Department and the United States attorney have finally admitted that they never had a case against anyone in the so-called Brilab indictments him get contracts. Hauser, a twice-convicted insurance swindler, agreed to become a government informant in exchange for leniency.

Clayton admitted he accepted $5,000 from Hauser and Moore, but contended it was a campaign contribution which he intended to return.

Charges are still pending against Pipefitters Union officials Sherman Fricks and Harold Grubbs, who were charged with accepting money from Hauser for a union insurance contract.

New Year Brings No Pay Boost

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time since 1978, the dawning of the new year will not mean an automatic pay boost for the approximately 5 million Americans being paid the minimum wage.

Not only that, no efforts are afoot either within the Reagan administration or on Capitol Hill to increase minimum wage rates. Thus, the $3.35-an-hour minimum will be frozen indefinitely.

With the economy in a worsening recession, traditional labor allies have expressed concern that any upward pressure on the minimum wage could cost thousands of people their jobs as businesses cut back the number of employees to keep their labor costs stable.

At its centennial convention in New York City last month, the AFL-CIO approved a resolution reiterating its call for the minimum wage to be indexed to the average hourly earnings in the private business sector, giving those drawing the minimum wage some protection against inflation.

Specifically, the federation wants minimum wage increases amounting to 60 percent of the average annual hourly earnings of all workers in private business.

For example, if wages rose in the private sector in 1981 by an average of $1.00 an hour, the minimum wage would have risen from $3.35 to $3.95 an hour.

The minimum wage went from $3.10 an hour to $3.35 last Jan. 1, meaning a worker would receive $134 instead of $124 for a 40-hour week.

Hance

which need to be policed better are federal entitlement programs, which are mandatory by law, and the military.

The congressman said that entitlements amount to 76 cents out of every dollar the federal government spends, and he felt that spending by the military has gone unchecked for too long.

"I was proud to carry the tax cut bill," Hance said. "The problem is that the cuts weren't deep enough. The president is soon going to have to make some tough decisions as far as the entitlement programs and the military go."

Hance said that one problem with entitlement programs is the automatic cost of living increases built into them, and that some "tough decisions" had been made to help slow those increases down.

"Retired congressmen and military officers make more in retirement than those who are now active in congress or in the services at the same rank," Hance said. "The retirement systems that congress has voted on during the last 20 years cost more than the money they set up to pay for them with."

While predicting that the Social Security system will go broke by February of 1983 unless some changes are made, Hance offered his solution to the problem.

"My proposal is to move the early retirement age from 62 to 65 and the regular retirement age from 65 to 68, and do it gradually over the next 18 years, raising the ages two months per year over that span."

Another thing the Congressman proposed was to make the cost of living increase 85 percent of the current consumer price index rather than 100 percent. "That would make sure the social security system is sound... it's not pleasant to propose, but it's still better than the alternative," he said.

"I think the public is eager to hear the blunt facts and the truth about the problems we are facing on the budget; it has to be brought under control, and entitlements have to be addressed," he added.

Hance also feels that military spending has to be curtailed. "There is some waste in the military which can come out," he said. "A trillion dollars have been budgeted over the next three years, and the defense department only wanted to cut $2 billion. That's not even one-twelfth of one percent of the budget."

"We have had to increase military spending because of the buildup by the Soviet Union since 1972, but at the same time if you have too rapid a buildup it's highly inflationary."

He added that the military is a part of the budget which "cannot be sacred" and that the defense department must be held accountable like all other agencies.

In conclusion, Hance briefly touched on some world problems, focusing on the apparent "lack of experience" by President Reagan in foreign relations. "The last president that had any direction in foreign policy was Nixon," Hance said. "President Reagan is going to have to spend more time in improving his."

Hance said that the administration would benefit by the inclusion of Vice President George Bush more into foreign relations. "Bush has a lot of experience," Hance said. "He was director of the CIA, and Ambassador to the UN; he knows many of the leaders throughout the world, and I think it will be to their benefit to use him more."

The government, in an apparent attempt to stem the tide of such leaflets, has banned the sale of paper, according to a Solidarity publication. Authorities outlawed private possession of duplicating machines and distribution of anti-government materials shortly after martial law was declared.

Solidarity chief Lech Walesa, reportedly under house arrest since the start of the military crackdown, was said to have agreed to negotiate with the martial law regime. It was not known if the talks had started.

Warsaw Radio said the Polish Cabinet decided Wednesday to postpone local elections scheduled for February — an indication that authorities may intend to maintain martial law at least that long. The elections are to be rescheduled "when there are conditions for voting in an atmosphere of social peace in the spirit of constitutionality," the broadcast said.

The radio also said the curfew in effect since martial law was imposed would be lifted for New Year's Eve "in view of contantly improving social discipline." The government allowed a similar breach in the curfew last week so that Poles could attend Christmas midnight Masses.

However, traditional New Year's Eve parties in Warsaw restaurants were banned, according to a dispatch — subject to censorship — filed by AP correspondent Thomas W. Netter.

She has worked with hair styling for about ten years, and graduated from La Plata Beauty School here in Hereford.

One of Jo's daughters is also interested in hair styling, and is taking classes at Hereford High School in this area. Jo's husband, Rumaldo, is a self-employed Bail Bondsman. He is presently in the process of putting in a new business in the back of Jo's beauty shop. It will be a place for family recreation, run as a family operation. "We hope to have a snackbar," comments Jo, "as all of my kids cook."

The Garcias have five children, two of whom are married, and one grandchild. "We enjoy our kids very much," says Jo. The Garcias also enjoy getting involved with other young people. Rumaldo has been a Big Brother, and through various community activities, they have been involved in helping young people.

Jo has recently been elected new president of the Hereford Satellite Center. She has helped with the garage sale and the glass jar drive, among other things. "We hope to get more volunteers and more donations," emphasizes Jo, "to help with the little things at the Center."

Jo and her husband are also involved in the American GI Forum, and through this organization find ways of helping the community. They are involved in church activities as well.

"This year we were involved with a group of people who started a bilingual newspaper," says Jo. "My husband and I are both involved in it," she adds, "and write articles when we have a chance." The newspaper is entitled "LA VOZ del mexicano" and includes stories printed twice, once in Spanish and once in English. It is distributed in Dimmitt, Earth, and Hart, as well as Hereford.

Jo enjoys art, including painting, drawing, and anything with her hands. "I do a lot of interior decorating," she adds, and "decorated the beauty shop myself." Jo also enjoys making costumes for herself and others. She makes costumes for fiestas, and this year she made a costume for her mother-in-law which won first place in a contest.

The Garcias enjoy Hereford, originally planning to live here for a short while, but deciding to stay longer. "We like Hereford," says Jo, "and feel that it is a good place to raise children."

Jo enjoys cooking, when she can find time for it, between work and everything else she does. "We all enjoy cooking," comments Jo, "including my husband. I taught my children to cook when they were little." And she didn't forget the boys. "I think it's important for boys to know how to cook, too," adds Jo. "My oldest son has cooked for restaurants."

The two recipes which Jo has given are ways to fancy up plain old vegetables. "They began as a way to get the children to eat things that are good for them," she comments. They are also fast and easy. "The spinach is an old family recipe and the corny squash is a New Mexico dish. Both are very good with flour tortillas," she adds.

At Wits' End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

I don't know how a car knows when you're ready to sell it...but it knows.

We bought a four-wheel drive about seven years ago and there is nothing you can say to me that will convince me that car didn't understand every word we said.

A lot of marriages between new cars and owners are made in heaven. Maybe that's why we couldn't get parts. The honeymoon lasted exactly three hours. Then the light knob fell off in our hand, the rear window went down automatically and stayed there, and the floor burnt our feet up.

We didn't talk trade-in in front of the car for almost a year. Then one day my husband said, "Maybe we should trade in this clunker while it is still running."

We climbed in the car and the motor refused to turn over. After we bought the new battery, we figured we might as well use up our investment. So we hung in there until seven months later when my husband said, "As long as we've got the original tires, we might as well turn it in." At that precise moment, the left rear tire expired.

With four new tires, the car bought itself another year of residency. It was not ready to let us go. The least little thing could set it off. One day I just got out of my side of the car in a parking lot and remarked what a goodlooking compact was parked next to us. Our car would not go into reverse and we had to have it towed to a garage where they duly recorded on our bill, "Stubbornness: $65."

We never knew why the transmission went out suddenly the way it did. We had been very discreet in placing the ad for the car in the paper, being very careful never to mention it within hearing distance. But by the time the first caller inquired as to when they could see the car and we told them they could view it from a rack at Ed's garage, they backed off.

When we decided to trade the car in, we pretended we were going to the grocery store. Then, at the last minute, we turned into the car lot. The salesman said he had never seen a car with the motor off and the emergency brake on roll uphill to smash into a guard rail before.

I cannot believe he was that naive.

any other magazine in the world. Hey! I don't think kids do though. I sure hope not. If I can keep the real facts hidden a little longer, maybe I can get a few more kids hooked.

I don't think kids today know the effects and reactions that I can give them. When they smoke me their brain is affected within seconds after the first puff. The user has trouble making new memories. I impair their white blood cells which are then unable to function properly and protect the kids from infection. Colds and more colds on top of everything else, if they don't watch it. When kids take me, they can use me in a cigarette or in food or drink. I can cause many moods to overtake a person. It depends on how they feel when they take me and the setting they are in. I can cause a person to lose sense of time and space. I reduce their memory, judgement and coordination.

While smoking me, I made people feel relaxed and free from all the worries in the world. I can make them laugh or giggle for no reason at all. Some kids or people even appear in a dreamy state in which their thoughts just flow together. Their moods may shift from happiness to depression and fearful tensions. Nervous breakdown. Have you ever heard of nervous breakdowns? Well, I have been known to trigger them in someone who is extremely upset. These are all direct results in the brain poisoning I can put in people. One joint smoked from me can last from two to five hours and up to twelve hours if eaten or drunk.

"good." Not only is my smoke bad for their lungs, but I contain more cancer causing agents than does any competition, tobacco. I hope teenagers don't find out that I can produce bronchitis, sore throat, cough, and chest pain. Half of the THC from me is still in the body after one week and measurable amounts are present one month after a single use of me.

After a "pot party" when teenagers want to go driving around, they really feel more "into" their driving. They really want to hit the streets, but they don't realize that I clearly impair driving. The trouble in being able to drive always lasts several hours after the sensation of being high is gone. Even when they are not high, they remain in a state of unconscious intoxication.

The few that know about me know that I am made from the dried leaves and flowering stalks of the hemp plant. I am made up of over four hundred chemicals, and when I'm burned I can produce up to two thousand chemicals.

My many names include "grass," "pot," "Marijane," and the "Devil's Drug." If you promise not to tell anyone my true name, I'll tell you my true name. "Marijuana." But hush! If I want to get people hooked on me, I have to keep all my harmful and destructive secrets from being known!

Ann Landers Don't Let It Happen

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is for "Strained Marriage," the stepmother who is having a hard time with her husband's 14-year-old daughter; I beg of you to hang in there for her sake. She will thank you later. Please stop that child before she ruins her life.

When I was 13, my parents allowed me to date a 19-year-old boy. The kids at school thought it was terrible. I soon had the reputation of a tramp--so I behaved like one.

By the time I was 16 I was out of control. I became so wild my parents didn't know what to do with me, so they gave up and said I would have to learn the hard way since I refused to listen to them.

Shortly before my 18th birthday I ran away from home. I went to New York City and found a dumpsy furnished room, which was all I could afford. It was infested with roaches and rats. I was afraid I would be raped by all the creepy men in the place because the door had a lousy lock that didn't work half the time.

I worked nights in a bar. It was a crummy place where the only women who came in were hookers. At a time when I should have been enjoying life and having a wonderful time, I was alone, hungry, stoned every night and scared to death.

Five months of that life was all I could take. I swallowed my pride, called some and asked Mom if I could come back. She said, "We'll come and get you."

By that time I was an emotional wreck--messed up from uppers and downers and hooked on pot--although people say pot isn't addictive. (It was for me.)

Luckily I straightened out my life, thanks to my forgiving parents and some wonderful counselors. But there are still times when I cry for the fun and youth that were lost to me forever. Don't let this happen to your child--Hope You Listen

DEAR HOPE: Your story is an effective testimonial to what can happen when parents lose control and give up.

I hate to sound like a broken record, but I'll say it one more time. Discipline is a special kind of love. Kids don't want everything they ask for. Sometimes they are just testing. Set up the guidelines early. Be fair but firm. They need to know someone older and wiser is in charge to protect them against their wild impulses and immature judgment. This is what parents are supposed to do. Don't abandon your responsibility.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am sure you have received some dillies over the years, but here is a real humdinger for you. I would like an answer.

I am a 30-year-old woman who has never had a date and has no desire to go out with a man. I enjoy women, but only as social friends. Am I abnormal? I feel perfectly OK about myself and don't think I am missing anything. What would you call a person like me?--Feeling Fine. In San Juan, Puerto Rico

DEAR SAN JUAN: Why do you insist on a label? If you feel "perfectly OK" about yourself, that's all that matters.

Accept the fact that you have no sex drive and let it go at that. People who have too little get into less trouble than those who have too much.

CONFIDENTIAL to Please Explain to Birmingham Dunderhead: I don't know why it is that the longer you save something the sooner you will need it after it is destroyed. But I can tell you--it IS true. It happens all the time.

Roadside Produce Salesmen Also Hawk Nostalgia, Country Charm

By BETH WATERS, Beaumont Enterprise & Journal
BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — When J.J. Hale grins, lines etch into the sugarcane salesman's face like a dry river bed.
 "They kid me a lot about my sign here," he said, smiling. "They say the Q in squash looks more like a G."
 Hale often thought of getting himself a bigger, better and more modern sign for his roadside business, but said then he might not have as many customers.
 The 63-year-old farmer is like many rural salesmen along the numerous East Texas highways. He banners his wares in a manner reminiscent of the Middle Ages, when shops boasted their products and services by hanging an indicative object above the door.

 Hale and the countless number of vendors throughout the Piney Woods cannot be missed as they parade their jams and jellies, sweet potatoes and greens, handmade furniture, dolls and sunbonnets.
 "I knew you could sell, but I didn't know you could sell so much... I tell you, nobody is farming anymore," Hale says.
 What Hale has discovered, in a roundabout way, is that he has something to offer that is much in demand — and it's not just the sugarcane and produce. Hale is hawking nostalgia and backwoods charm from an open-air shack on U.S. 96 between Jasper and Kirbyville.

He began his informal business in the last year and since then has seen a fair profit, and in "good weeks" makes more than $100 and can sell 50 stalks of his sugarcane, at 25 cents each, per day.
 "Yep, this is my supplemental income," he says, noting that his produce brings in as much, if not more, than his Social Security checks. And the longer he is in business, the more Hale becomes streetwise to the ways of his vehicular customers.
 "Lots of times, they wanna go out and pick their own," he says, motioning to the 30-odd acres behind the produce stand that he purchased because "I was born here and farmed here when I was real young.

 "Oh, 20 or 30 years ago, somebody'd told me I'd come back here and farm I'd have told them nuts." It's still work keeping the farm going by himself, but he's proud that "everything I sell, I grow."
 Hale eyes the cars as they speed past his home. "Seems like one'll stop and then everybody else'll stop. But I don't even come out here on Sundays... I don't work Sundays. But there'll be people come by and buy some sugarcane and they pay for it... they put the quarters in the bucket here."
 Hale is just one of many talkative highway salesmen who are quick to offer a sales pitch.

"I'm not bragging or anything, but I can make anything anybody wants if they tell me what they want me to make," says 71-year-old Carrie Rich, who lives a few miles north of Hale. Mrs. Rich strings her most popular item, hand-sewn sunbonnets, on a wire between three wood posts just off the highway.
 "I do it for a hobby," she says. "I make enough to buy my husband's medicine and that sort of thing. I've been at it for about six years now."

The brightly colored bonnets hang across the line with caps of all sizes, including one she says is for a month-old infant. Also available are pin cushions and pot holders. And Mrs. Rich will walk back to the house, which is well off the road, and bring back her wire basket filled with homemade lye soap, which sells for 50 cents a lard-colored block.

Seven Committees Warned To Chop Spending in '82

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Seven Texas House committees have been warned to slow down their spending in 1982.
 All committee chairmen have received letters reminding them they have to make $90,000 last until the 1983 session. Some committee leaders got letters saying the $90,000 isn't going to last if spending continues at present rates.
 Rep. Bill Hollowell, chairman of the subcommittee on committee operations, said Wednesday the letters were intended to be a reminder of the spending limit for the 16-month interim between sessions.
 Hollowell, D-Grand Saline, said the budgets are "an effort to try to establish some new accounting and book-keeping procedures." He indicated the budgets are somewhat less than committees have had to spend in the past.

 Committee spending records were released by Speaker Bill Clayton's office after Austin reporters filed an Open Records Act request.
 Rep. Tim Von Dohlen's Committee on Regions, Compacts and Districts has been the top spender.
 That committee, which has been involved in litigation on redistricting, spent $36,802 during the first three months of the interim.
 Rep. Craig Washington's Human Services Committee, spent $30,205 for the first three months.
 Here are the other committees that a list released by Clayton's office said were over the $11,250 allocated for the three months, the committee chairman and the amount spent by the committee:

- Financial Institutions, Stan Schlueter, D-Salado, $18,228.
- Liquor Regulation, Bill Coody, D-Weatherford, $13,833.
- Transportation, Don Henderson, R-Houston, $17,211.
- Health Services, Ron Wilson, D-Houston, $15,020.

Taxes Shrink, So Does Check

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal income taxes on the average $20,000-a-year American family will drop by about $4 a week starting Friday, but the extra money won't start showing up in paychecks until July.
 Until then, a 20-cent-per-week increase in Social Security taxes will make the same family's take-home pay a little smaller.
 Higher-earning taxpayers will get a larger cut in income taxes but most also will turn over a bigger share to Social Security.
 The across-the-board cut in individual income-tax rates will average about 8.75 percent and is the second stage of the biggest tax reduction in history — approved by Congress last August as part of President Reagan's economic program.

 The Social Security tax increase was enacted in 1977.
 In addition to lower income-tax rates, the new year brings a new tax deduction to offset part of the "marriage penalty" on working couples; a chance for 40 million workers already covered by pension plans to have a tax-deferred Individual Retirement Account; a liberalized deduction for job-related child-care expenses, and sharp cuts in estate taxes.
 Although the reduced income-tax rates take effect Friday, new withholding tables will not be used until July 1, when they will drop by 10 percent. Withholding rates were reduced an average of more than 5 percent last Oct. 1.

 While the withholding tables determine the periodic take-home pay of most workers, it is the total withheld over the entire year that counts at tax return time. And the new tables are calculated to make the total tax withheld more-or-less equal the tax owed.
 For the wage earner, the effect of delaying the change in withholding is to concentrate the tax break in the last six months of the year.
 For the government, it enables the Treasury to retain more cash during the first half of calendar 1982 and thus run a smaller deficit during the latter part of fiscal 1982 than it would if new tables were used for the entire year.
 While the tax year runs from January to January, the government's bookkeeping year runs from October to October.
 The cut in income-tax rates will mean a 1982 tax cut of $185 for a typical single person earning $15,000. A typical one-earner couple with $20,000 income and two children will pay $203 less than in 1981; the $40,000 family of four with one wage earner will get a $560 tax cut.

 The nation's savings rate is expected to increase as a result of the more-liberal retirement accounts. The IRA account allows a worker to set aside with a financial institution up to $2,000 a year and pay no tax until retirement on the deposits or interest they earn. A person with an unemployed spouse also may deposit $250 in an IRA for the spouse.

Authorities Race To Find Writer of Suicide Note

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Authorities raced to discover the identity of an anonymous letter-writer who described himself as a 36-year-old unemployed father and said he would commit suicide today so his family could collect welfare in the new year.
 Meanwhile, Iowans moved by his letter to a newspaper offered to help out with promises of cash, clothing and jobs.
 "There is a job for you somewhere," promised Colleen Shearer, director of the state unemployment agency, and her staff began sifting through records in search of the letter-writer's identity.
 The Younkers department-store chain offered a job for the man and clothing and toys for his children, and an offer of $50 came from Bill Tate of Eagle Grove, who will lose his job in June when the packing plant where he works is shut down.
 The Iowa Division of Criminal Investigation provided a handwriting expert to look through job applications and compare them with the handwritten letter to the Des Moines Register. A police officer was assigned to the search and the Polk County attorney's office sent two investigators. A veterans' group in Des Moines joined in the search for the letter-writer, who said he was a veteran.
 The letter said the man's family is ineligible for Aid to Dependent Children because he is able-bodied and lives at home.
 "On Jan. 1, 1982, my wife and two girls will become eligible for ADC," the letter said. "I will no longer be living in the home. Forgive me, Polk County, for the expense of my burial."

 "May God forgive me."
 The 1981 Iowa Legislature changed the requirements for Aid to Dependent Children and removed two-parent families from eligibility.
 While noting that the Des Moines Register and its sister newspaper, the Tribune, had no way of verifying the authenticity of the note, Register Editor Michael Gartner responded in a front-page letter.
 "Scores of thousands of Iowans read your letter in this morning's Register," Gartner said in his response, printed Wednesday afternoon in the Tribune. "They want to help you."
 "They don't know who you are, and neither do I. I know that there is a job waiting for you. And clothes for your family. And Christmas gifts for your little girls. There is medical care if you need it. There is hope. There is life."

 The man's letter was published on the editorial page of Wednesday morning's Register, and Gartner said the note was turned over to Polk County Attorney Dan Johnston.
 "The hurt in my little girls' faces because Santa forgot them this year, the thought of another jobless year, no way to pay the rent next week, I'm sorry, I can't deal with it anymore," the letter said.
 The letter said the man had been to Job Service of Iowa looking for a job without success. The agency had no luck in identifying him.

Pipeline Blast Injures Two

HUFFMAN, Texas (AP) — About 150 residents returned home after they were evacuated from a subdivision northeast of Houston following a natural gas pipeline explosion which injured two workers.
 The explosion, which melted the boom of a crane and burned trees for 200 yards around, occurred Wednesday when four workers installing a 16-inch gas line punctured a nearby 24-inch line, a company official said.
 Gilbert LeJeune, 49, of Eunice, La., was in stable condition in a local hospital with second-degree burns over the top half of his body, officials said. James Strickland, 29, was treated for burns.
 "My understanding is that the ignition source probably was the motor on the backhoe," said spokesman Marvin Brown of United Texas Transmission Co., owner of the line.
 Residents of the neighborhood were allowed to return home about three hours after the 9 a.m. blast, which shot flames more than 100 feet into the air. The blaze dropped to campfire size after workers shut off valves on the 51-mile line.
 "It sounded like a jet taking off real close," said Fire Chief Lloyd West, who was at a house fire about a block away when the explosion occurred. "Of course, we knew it wasn't a jet. We thought about a truck, then about that time we saw the flames and we knew what it was." Officials turned off the supply of gas to the ruptured line.

 West said that when he arrived at the explosion scene, the four men who had been working on the pipeline were coming onto the road from the forested area where the blast occurred.
 "There were two men burned, one of them pretty badly. The top half of his body was burned pretty bad — his face and his back," said spokesman Don Jameson, who lives near the explosion scene, said. "I was just standing on the front porch and heard a real, real loud rumble."

time we saw the flames and we knew what it was." Officials turned off the supply of gas to the ruptured line.

Bowl Game Deluge Of Three Games Begin

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

Who's No. 1?
For the moment, the answer to that perennial question is Clemson, the last remaining undefeated major college football team in America.

Fourth-ranked Nebraska will try to change that in Friday night's Orange Bowl, one of five major college football games New Year's Day and Night that could revise the rankings considerably.

The final Associated Press football poll will crown the national champion Sunday night, and a victory over the Cornhuskers would just about seal the verdict for Clemson. But a loss could throw the poll into a scramble, which is what it has been like for much of the 1981 college season.

Clemson is the seventh school to occupy the top rung in 1981, following Michigan, Notre Dame, Texas, Southern California, Penn State and Pittsburgh. All of those schools, except Notre Dame, will be playing bowl games either today or Friday.

Michigan, now 16th in the poll, faces No. 19 UCLA in tonight's Bluebonnet Bowl at Houston. That was one of three games on tap today. In the others, West Virginia played Florida in the Peach Bowl at Atlanta and Mississippi State faced Kansas in the Hall of Fame Bowl at Birmingham, Ala.

On Friday, Texas, ranked No. 6, goes against No. 3 Alabama in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas. The Fiesta Bowl in Tempe, Ariz., an addition to the New Year's Day program, has No. 7 Penn State against No. 8 Southern California. Pitt, now 10th, faces defending national champion Georgia, ranked No. 2, in the Sugar Bowl New Year's night at New Orleans. That game will take place at the same time as the Clemson-Nebraska Orange Bowl showdown and much of the final poll standings depend on those two contests.

The Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif., oldest of all the postseason contests, sends No. 13 Iowa against No. 12 Washington.

The postseason tempo began picking up steam in Wednesday night's Liberty Bowl when No. 15 Ohio State edged Navy 31-28.

Clemson carries a streak of 11 victories into the Orange Bowl against 9-2 Nebraska and Coach Danny Ford knows one more win would virtually seal the title.

Georgia, 10-1 this season after going undefeated in played Florida in the Peach Bowl at Atlanta and Mississippi State faced Kansas in the Hall of Fame Bowl at Birmingham, Ala.

Alabama, in the No. 3 slot, figures it could move to the top, given the right combination of circumstance. First, the Crimson Tide would have to defeat No. 6 Texas in the Cotton Bowl and then hope both Georgia and Clemson lose.

"We would have to be very lucky, even if we won the game," said Coach Bear Bryant. "It could happen."

For years, New Year's day and night has belonged to the four major bowls - Rose, Sugar, Cotton and Orange. This year, though, the Fiesta has squeezed into the picture with an intriguing matchup between Penn State and Southern California.

Both schools have been No. 1 this season and both have had standout running backs - Heisman Trophy winner Marcus Allen of USC, the first runner in college football to gain 2,000 yards in a single season, and Curt Warner of Penn State, who overcame a string of troubling injuries to gain 1,044 yards.

Warner was only the fourth runner in Penn State history to crack the 1,000-yard barrier, joining Lenny Moore, Lydell Mitchell and John Cappelletti. He enjoyed a big game in the Fiesta Bowl a year ago, rushing for 155 yards in a 31-19 victory over Ohio State. Included in his total was a 64-yard touchdown run on the first play from scrimmage.

The Fiesta kickoff is set for 1:30 p.m. EST and opens a marathon football programming day for NBC. After Penn State and USC, the network will show the Washington-Iowa Rose Bowl at 5 p.m. EST and then the Orange Bowl between Clemson and Nebraska at 8 p.m.

CBS will challenge for the afternoon football audience with the Cotton Bowl between Alabama and Texas beginning at 2 p.m. EST and ABC offers the Sugar Bowl between Pitt and Georgia. It will take some fancy dial twisting to catch all the contests.

White Not Upset At Missing Pro Bowl

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - Danny White has had a Roger Staubach-type year, meaning the Dallas Cowboys won but their quarterback didn't make All-Pro or the Pro Bowl.

"Roger never made All-Pro, which is ridiculous, but his strong suit was being consistent," said White. "This is the kind of team that thrives with a consistent quarterback. We just don't run that wide open."

White, in his sophomore season as a starter for the Cowboys, said "I'd like to think I'm more disciplined, more consistent. It was Roger's greatest asset and I'd like for it to be one of mine."

Going into Saturday's National Conference divisional playoff game in Texas Stadium against the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, White has completed 57 per cent of his passes. He has cut his interceptions in half from last season with just 13 on 391 passing attempts.

White is averaging 7.92 yards per pass and has thrown 22 touchdown passes.

San Francisco quarterback Joe Montana and Atlanta quarterback Steve Bartkowski were chosen to the Pro Bowl on the NFC team ahead of White.

"There's only one bowl I mind missing and it isn't being played in Hawaii," said White.

White said it was difficult getting honors on a team that wins year after year.

"(Tom) Landry never makes Coach of the Year and it's because he never has a bad year," said White. "How do you compare great years? He always has them."

Elite Field Begins Sun City Golf

By BOB GREEN AP Golf Writer

SUN CITY, Bophuthatswana (AP) - Golf made its first foray into seven-figure country today.

It's the $1-million Sun City Challenge with an elite invitational field of five - Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Johnny Miller, Spain's Seve Ballesteros and host Gary Player - chasing a $500,000 first prize.

That's five times the biggest figure offered in any event on the American tour. In fact, the man who finishes last in the 72-hole tournament will receive $100,000, equal to the biggest winner's purse in the United States.

The enormous purse, unique in golf and perhaps very significant to the game, failed to lure Tom Watson, the outstanding player in golf four of the last five years, was invited to compete in the event at this resort some 100 miles northwest of Johannesburg, South Africa.

He declined, Watson said he was unable to work out details of potential tax troubles prior to the entry deadline.

By skipping the tournament, he also avoids any possible repercussions or black-listing by some international sports and political organizations opposing South Africa's apartheid policies.

The tournament, and the sprawling resort that is sponsoring it, is located in Bophuthatswana, one of four black republics created by South Africa to combat international criticism of its racial policies. Bophuthatswana is not recognized by the United States.

"Sol" Kertner, managing director of Sun City, called the tournament "the greatest sports spectacle in the history of southern Africa."

Certainly, it's the richest tournament in the history of the game.

And, according to Player it may grow. He said consideration is being given to a $3-million tournament next year with a "full tournament field of perhaps 100 golfers." The setting is exotic.

The Gary Player Country Club, part of the resort complex, is in the crater of an extinct volcano and was hacked out of the African bush only three years ago.

It is surrounded by thousands of acres of a national wildlife refuge.

The course is bordered by a chain-link fence designed to discourage elephants browsing within sight of the players.

Trevino won on this course earlier this year and may be considered a slight favorite in the field that has a combined total of 35 major professional victories.

Player has nine victories in the U.S. and British Opens, the Masters and PGA. Trevino has won five in that category. Miller and Ballesteros, two each and Nicklaus, generally recognized as the finest performer the world has seen, has a record 17.

Nicklaus, making his first competitive appearance in South Africa, says he's here primarily as a favor to Player, his longtime friend.

Sims Sitting Out Cotton Bowl Tilt

DALLAS (AP) - Kenneth Sims will be physically ready for the National Football League draft in April. He just wishes he could take on Alabama New Year's Day.

Sims, The Associated Press All-America defensive tackle, the Lombardi Trophy winner, the finest player Texas Coach Fred Akers says he has ever been around, will be in street clothes on the sidelines.

"The broken bone in the top of my (right) foot has just about healed, no problem," said Sims, who was injured in the ninth game of the regular season against Texas Christian. "The radio announcers at that game made it sound like I had lost it (the foot)."

Sims said he had considered trying to play but team doctors wouldn't let him.

"They don't feel like I should take any chances with it," said Sims, who likely will be the first lineman drafted in the NFL selection of the cream of college football talent.

"I really wanted to play against Alabama," said Sims. "I tried to help recruit a couple of their players to go to Texas."

"I was visiting with some of those (Alabama) guys the other night and to show you what kind of competitors they are they hoped I could play," Sims said. "They told me they wanted to go up against the best."

Sims will be replaced in the lineup by sophomore Ralph Darnell.

"The coaches have had me doing a little coaching," said Sims. "One of the coaches told me to get with Ralph because he was having a few problems."

"He does a good job for a sophomore but he's been having some trouble running the passer. I've told him to just ignore the pressure ... to get his own game together."

Sims will be on the sidelines during the game available for pointers and tips as the No. 3-ranked Crimson Tide tries to set a record with their seventh consecutive bowl victory in seven years.

Alabama was a one-to-two-point favorite over the No. 6-ranked Longhorns, who boast the same 6-1-1 record as the Tide.

Cavaliers Rip Dukes; Win Tourney Title

By JOHN NELSON AP Sports Writer

Coach Terry Holland's Virginia Cavaliers are going to keep playing James Madison until they get it right.

The third-ranked Cavaliers, 10-0, won the title of the Richmond Times-Dispatch Tournament Wednesday night by beating James Madison 97-44.

Until the game, James Madison also had been unbeaten, and Virginia didn't shake the Dukes until the final six minutes when All-American center Ralph Sampson led an 11-1 scoring burst.

The Dukes have only to wait until Saturday for their chance to avenge the loss. The two teams meet in a regular-season contest that day in Charlottesville, Va., the Cavaliers' home.

"Obviously, it was a much closer game than the score would indicate," Holland said. "Madison is an awfully good team, and I just wish we didn't have to play them again Saturday."

The Dukes, now 6-1, have a history of playing Virginia tough. Last season, Virginia escaped from Harrisonburg, Va. — the hometown of both the Dukes and Sampson — with a 93-62 victory.

"We had the Virginia folks on the edges of their seats," Dukes Coach Lou Campanelli said.

Sampson scored 22 points and had 14 rebounds, but he and his teammates were unable to make early victims of James Madison. The Dukes trailed by only three points on three occasions midway through the second half, that last time at 46-43 with six minutes left.

But Sampson hit a slam dunk, then stole the ball and fed Craig Robinson for another stuff that put Virginia up 56-43 with 5:39 to play. Robinson wound up with 12 points and Linton Townes had 14 for the Dukes.

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 6 Hawaii upset second-ranked Wichita State 84-74; No. 5 Arkansas clobbered Kent State 91-49, eighth-ranked DePaul beat Northern Illinois 66-46, 10th-rated Iowa downed Drake 60-49 and No. 17 Georgetown whipped Niagara 77-49.

The Top Ten
In Hawaii, 26th-ranked North Carolina State met Rice for the title of the Rainbow Classic, but the two teams had a tough act to follow.

Hawaii took fifth place with a 62-61 victory over Michigan State. In the seventh-place game, Cal State-Fullerton beat Bradley 64-62.

Scott Hastings' 18 points led five Arkansas players in double figures, and the 6-6 Razorbacks easily outmuscled Kent State. Arkansas led 42-20 at the half and 54-26 midway through the second 20 minutes. Marty Harmon led the Golden Flashers with 12 points.

Terry Cummings scored 17 of his 25 points in the second half to help DePaul defeat Northern Illinois. The 6-9 junior hit seven of eight shots from the floor in the second half to short-circuit several Northern Illinois comeback attempts. DePaul, 9-1, led 29-24 at the half and by just five points, 51-46, with 1:16 to play. Allen Rayhorn led the Huskies with 15 points.

Michael Payne, a freshman, and Todd Berkenpas led Iowa over Drake. The Hawkeyes, 7-1, outscored Drake 9-2 down the stretch and their biggest lead of the game was the victory margin of 11 points. Payne scored 18 points, and had 11 rebounds, and Berkenpas had 12 points. Ricky Watley scored 18 points for the Bulldogs.

The Second Ten
Patrick Ewing scored 20 points and led Georgetown, now 10-2, to its ninth straight victory, beating Niagara in the championship game of the Rochester Classic. Eric "Sleepy" Floyd had 16 points and directed an aggressive Hoyas defense that baffled the Purple Eagles.

Quarterbacks On Hot Seat Tonight In Bluebonnet Bowl Showdown

HOUSTON (AP) — Steve Smith of Michigan and Tom Ramsey of UCLA, promising quarterbacks with checkered 1981 seasons, will be in the spotlight and on the hot seat tonight when the 16th-ranked Wolverines meet the 19th-rated Bruins in the 23rd annual Bluebonnet Bowl.

Kickoff is at 7 p.m. in the Astrodome. UCLA's impressive defense will be trying to shut down Michigan's running game fueled by All-America running back Butch Woolfolk and force Smith to test his passing arm.

Michigan also would like to see the Bruins throwing with Ramsey, who set a school total offense record this season but also threw 15 interceptions.

"I hope they do force us to throw because I feel if I am playing right we can complete some passes," said Smith, a sophomore, who recovered from a slow start to lead the Wolverines to an 8-3 record. "With our receivers we can move the ball."

Michigan's receiving corps is led by two-time All-

America Anthony Carter, who caught 44 passes this season for seven touchdowns despite nagging injuries that slowed him much of the season.

Smith is the team's No. 2 rusher with 610 yards on 124 carries and 11 touchdowns behind Woolfolk, who gained 1,273 yards and scored five touchdowns.

The Wolverines run behind a star-studded offensive line anchored by All-America guard Kurt Becker and All-Big 10 tackles Bubba Paris and Ed Muransky.

Ramsey finished second in PAC-10 passing this season and his 122 completions were the second most ever for a Bruin quarterback. His negative statistics, however, have received more attention.

"I could name five of those interceptions that bounced off our people, but they all count and they all add up to 15 interceptions," Ramsey said. "I can't change what's already happened but I can cut down on them."

UCLA finished the season with a flourish, including a 31-0 victory over Rose Bowl participant Washington, with an opportunistic defense that grabbed 44 opponent's turnovers on the season. The offense capitalized on 22 of the miscues.

Michigan and UCLA narrowly missed facing each other in the Rose Bowl, each losing that chance with final season losses. Schembechler said he was just happy to be playing in a bowl game.

"I can go back in my career at Michigan where we were conference co-champions three years in a row," Schembechler said. "... Dennis Franklin, one of the greatest quarterbacks I ever had, never played in a post season game. We're very glad to be here."
