Robinson Files Appeal Notice

W. E. Robinson, former city employee who cited that he injured his back while lifting a heavy barrel while working for the city earlier this year, filed a $500 bond with District Clerk Lucille Posey Thursday to appeal his case before the Court of Civil Appeals in Amarillo.

District Judge Harry H. Schultz sustained the city of Hereford's motion for summary judgment in the case of W. E. Robinson versus the City of Hereford in District Court Sept. 23.

Bulldogs Nip Herd, 27 - 6

Hereford Whitefaces spotted the huge Plainview Bulldogs two touchdowns each in the first quarter and then settled down to do battle before bowing 27-6 Friday night at Whiteface Field.

Stokes around left end and a wide, angling run to the right corner for a 65-yard touchdown run. Elgin Conner failed on the run for two extra points and Plainview led 6-0 with 9:08 remaining in the first quarter. Just five plays later, Bulldog tackle Perry McWilliams grabbed a Whiteface flat pass and lumbered 53 yards with complete protection for the second Plainview score. (Continued on Page 2)

Rites Held For Former Hereford Pastor's Wife

Funeral services for a former Hereford resident, Mrs. Nora Conroy Asbell, 82, were held Tuesday, Sept. 23, in the First Christian Church of Fayetteville, Ark. Mrs. Asbell died Sunday, Sept. 21, following a prolonged illness.

The Rev. James Stainhover of Marshall, Mo., conducted the services. Burial was in the Fairview cemetery. Besides her husband, Dr. John M. Asbell, a retired Christian minister, she is survived by a son, John M. Asbell Jr., of San Francisco, Calif., and a daughter, Miss Naeda Asbell of El Dorado, Ark.

Dr. Asbell was pastor of the Hereford First Christian Church over 40 years ago. He and Mrs. Asbell had been married 53 years.

Aching Feet Cost Plenty

If J. E. Cockrell of Hereford is wearing a long face now-a-days, it's because he had an amazing run of bad luck at the Tri-State Fair in Amarillo last week — and all because his feet hurt.

It seems that a group of local citizens decided to take a chance and register for $10 worth of groceries being given away by the Frigidaire booth. Cockrell, evidently believing in the old saying, "It always happens to the other fellow," decided to make what he could off the deal and sold his chance to Mrs. Ada Hollabaugh for 25 cents.

Well, Mrs. Hollabaugh went off to see some more sights and asked Cockrell to go ahead and witness the drawing for her. Cockrell and a few other fellows started waiting around the

Booth Awards At Tri-State Fair Won By Eleven County Residents

Eleven Deaf Smith County residents were named winners of 13 awards for entries in the county agriculture booth at the Tri-State Fair in Amarillo last week, according to J. W. "Lefty" Thomas, county agent.

Thomas said that approximately 100 area residents entered produce for the booth. Products were judged last Sunday at the fairgrounds.

Winning first-place awards were Jody Bezner, cantelopes; Pete Plank, red potatoes; and Charles Valsling, wheat.

Second-place awards went to Dick Plank, soybeans and carrots; Lu Anne Higgins, cake baking; and Pam Winget, dress making.

Winning a third-place award for Martin maize was James Burrus.

Fourth-place awards went to Sharon Bezner, beets; Pete Plank, onions; and Mrs. Bess

Werner, green beans. A fifth-place award for wheat went to C. C. Kurtz, and Jim (Continued on Page 2)

Harvest Squishes To Halt

By DAN MUDD BRAND STAFF REPORTER Soaking rains — up to 1.20 inches — coupled with relatively low temperatures brought the harvesting of crops in the area to a temporary halt this weekend. Fall's first chilly temperatures were recorded Thursday, when a high of 60 and a low of 50 degrees was reported. Crop damage in Deaf Smith County was minor, but, according to County Agent J. W. "Lefty" Thomas, continued cloudy and rainy weather could do future damage. The rain neither damaged nor helped the maize crop in the county, as the crop, in general, has already reached its maturing stage and is ready to be harvested and taken to grain elevators, Thomas said.

The rain, however, was beneficial to wheat land. Thomas estimated that approximately 25 per cent of the 1959 wheat crop already has been planted. Wheat crop allotment in the county is 202,000 acres. Moisture did not directly harm cotton in the area, but cloudy weather constituted a lack of "maturing days," Thomas said. Most of the cotton in this area is of the storm-proof type, but more maturing days are needed before much of it can be harvested and taken to gins. Cotton allotment in Deaf Smith County is 11,000 acres.

The area in and around the vicinity of Hereford received the heaviest rainfall. A total of 1.20 inches of rain was reported through Friday morning in the immediate area of Hereford.

Thursday and Friday's rains brought the year's total moisture to 22.21, and September's total to 2.85.

Carl Wimberley of Dawn reported one-half inch of moisture. Edgar Lemón and L. J. Strauss, also of Dawn, reported one inch of rain.

P. B. Sowell of Westway reported about one inch. Other reports from the Westway area were .85 by G. C. Merritt, .75 by Bill Stengel, .06 by Harold Rudd and .07 by Marlin Pierce. Frank Bezner of Summerfield (Continued on Page 2)

Mall, Yule Planning Nearing Completion

Two band concerts, a barbecue and the showing of 1959 automobiles will highlight the second annual Merchants' Mall in Hereford on Saturday, Oct. 25. The 200 and 300 blocks of Main Street will be blocked off for the all-day affair, according to plans announced at Friday's Chamber of Commerce merchants committee meeting.

All of Hereford's new car dealers will be displaying the 1959 models. This will be augmented by a morning concert by the Hereford High Big Domino Band. At 3 p.m., the Amarillo Air Force Band will play a concert. Sandwiched between them will be a barbecue dinner, directed by the Hereford Rotary Club. Proceeds from the lunch will be used to finance the annual 4-H Calf Show.

It is expected that several other attractions will be added for the Big Fall Festivities.

Local merchants voted their support of the proposed Youth and Civic Center, after the plans for the building were explained by Dudley Bayne, city manager. One merchant advanced the idea that money ordinarily used for Christmas business gifts, and such related items, might be turned over to the youth center fund. A resolution endorsing the youth center as a worthwhile project was passed by the group.

Santa Claus will arrive in Hereford on Saturday, Dec. 6, for his annual parade. This word was received Friday while the merchants committee was planning Christmas decorations and related items.

Hereford Junior Chamber of Commerce representatives met with the merchants group to discuss Christmas decorations.

The merchants asked that the downtown decorations start going up on Nov. 15 with a completion date no later than Nov. 30. Jaycees reported that they would need about $700 in donations to repair and recondition the Yule decorations. They said they spent about $2050 last year for decorations and treats for youngsters during the Santa parade and that they had about $250 to carry over into this year's Christmas parade and decorations.

Don Little was appointed by chairman Gene Moore to head the solicitation for funds to decorate the business area.

The air over Hereford will be swarming on Thursday, Oct. 9. Between 200 and 250 private airplanes are scheduled to land at the new Hereford airport and then take off 30 minutes later. The pilots, and their passengers, will be on the annual Texas Air Tour.

Word from the Tour headquarters in Temple Friday said 61 planes, with 137 persons, already had signed up for the tour. The plans will start descending on Hereford about 9:10 a.m. after an overnight stop in Plainview. Departure time is slated for 9:40 a.m.

Relieve Sureties Of Hereford Man

Two bondsmen this week were relieved of sureties on a $1,000 appearance bond for Alton Winston Short, 23, charged for driving while intoxicated, second offense, a felony.

Short was arrested by Canyon authorities and was returned to Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department Friday. He is now in County Jail, pending trial in District Court.

Short was arrested and charged for DWI June 22.

Two Dreams, One In Hereford And The Other In Greece, Equal A Happy Pair

By VERITA SANDERS A dream came true this month for two teen-age girls when Helen Hidioglou of Athens, Greece, arrived here to enter school in Hereford High School. Ada Mae Bettis, 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Bettis, 222 Ave. H, also had her dream materialize.

It all started years ago when the elder Bettis daughter, Mollie, attended college at Mary Hardin-Baylor with a Greek girl named Mary Hidioglou. The girls became fast friends, Mollie introduced Mary to her family, and when Ada Mae learned that Mary had a sister her own age, a little wish was planted.

The wish grew into a big one and last spring, five years later, Ada Mae set about making her wish come true. It took a long time and a lot of planning, a lot of writing letters and a lot of waiting. But it all paid off, for this fall, when Ada Mae entered school again, her new friend, Helen Hidioglou, walked with her.

And Helen? She has a new home now with the Bettis family, new plans for the future and new problems cropping up around her. But the problems she can overcome, the plans she can cherish and accomplish and the new home she loves.

Helen arrived in Amarillo Sept. 4 and the Bettis family met her at the airport. Immediately feeling at home with the friendly group, she recounted her experiences on the trip over. "I lost my coat in Switzerland, my camera in St. Louis and I even lost myself at the airport in New York. I was so afraid I went to the ladies' room and started crying, but fortunately, I walked around until I finally found the Greek man and he gave me instructions."

To observe Helen's quick smile and self-assurance makes it difficult to believe she could feel lost anywhere. With her poise and intelligent wit it is evident that she can handle any situation.

The Hidioglou family is not totally unfamiliar with America. Other than her 24-year-old sister, Mary, who is now applying for her citizenship papers to the U. S., her brother, Panos, who is 21 years old and now lives in England, attended Baylor for two years. Their widowed mother remains in Greece, directing affairs at the private school she owns.

Now that she has arrived in the United States, 16-year-old

Helen is following in the footsteps of her brother and sister. She is classified as a senior at Hereford High School and after graduation she plans to enter MacMurray College in Jacksonville, Ill.

"I will probably study science in college," says Helen. "And I plan to study for — how should I say it? — the highest degree?" At this point, Ada Mae, proudly sitting by, will complete Helen's sentence for her and explain that she plans to study for her doctor's degree in science. "This English language!" Helen will burst out in her beautifully slurred accent. "I am having great difficulties with it. After studying it for four years, one would imagine I could speak it very well, but that is not the — case. It is the slang that completely puzzles me. Just the other day I found out that a policeman is not a policeman, but a cop. It's all very confusing."

But that isn't all... Cockrell was still sitting back and feeling comfortable, completely unaware that the drawing was over, when another $10 worth of groceries was offered to the person using a Frigidaire refrigerator the longest. Cockrell has had one for 18 years and the fellow who won it only had owned one for about 12 years.

Well, Cockrell came out of the fair, oddly feeling $30 poorer and losing $10 of that for Mrs. Hollabaugh.

But there are two consolations to this whole hard-luck story: Cockrell's feet don't hurt and he had an extra quarter in his pocket.

Harvest...

The only South Plains locations reporting considerable crop harm as result of the widespread rain was in Olton, Lockney, Littlefield and Sudan areas. In these areas, damage was reported to maize and cotton fields.

Rain, measuring 1 1/2 to two inches, fell in the Olton area in a day-long shower Thursday.

Hereford elevator operators said that Thursday and Friday rains probably would delay the full swing of grain harvest from three to four days longer than originally planned. Earlier this week they predicted that the maize harvest would speed up considerably from 10 days to two weeks from now.

Although the recent rain offset the harvesting of the 1958 cotton crop, a greater amount of cotton has been ginned so far this year than last year at this time.

Operators of the two Hereford cotton gins Friday said that a total of 36 bales have been ginned to date. Last year at this time only five bales had been ginned. Only 17 bales had been ginned through Oct. 4, 1957, and it was Nov. 29 last year before 1,000 bales had been ginned.

October of last year was recorded as the month having the greatest amount of rainfall in 1957—3.66 inches. Frost damage harmed 20 per cent of late cotton early in November last year.

Pat Patterson, local representative of the State Employment Service, says the recent rain has almost brought local agriculture employment to a standstill.

Earlier this week, Patterson said that about 500 cotton pullers were needed in this area. He added that the supply of migrant laborers in the area were barely supplying the demands of maize harvest.

Thomas said that this year's maize crop is above average "quality and quantity-wise." He added that dry land maize would definitely show better yields this year.

"Carrots are still reaching maturity stages, and the corn crop looks good," Thomas said. He said the sugar beet crop should be ready for harvest at the time of the first frost. The sugar beet crop is estimated at about 1,100 acres.

He said that the cotton crop also looks favorable this year. John McCleskey, manager of Hereford-Gin, reported a "fair yield, excellent grade" of cotton this year.

Recent rains and lack of cotton pullers have slowed down the cotton harvest this year, Thomas said. Approximately 40,000 cotton pullers are needed in the entire Panhandle area. Patterson predicted a larger supply of cotton pullers later, however.

John D. Pitman of Pitman Grain Company estimated that less than 10 per cent of the maize crop has been cut so far. Elevator operators reported that the moisture content of the grain which has already been brought in to elevators has tested from 12 1/2 per cent to 16 1/2 per cent.

Thomas said grasshoppers are doing slight damage to young wheat and that a fungus is spotting roots of lettuce, but that the maize is not being harmed by insects or disease. The false chinch bug has almost completely disappeared from maize fields, he said.

"All that Deaf Smith County needs now," he said, "is some 'open weather' for the harvesting of crops."

get me a Greek and English dictionary and I was worried for fear it would be difficult to find one. But we went to the library here and I was very happy to find they had one. It seems that every three words I hear or read I have to look in my dictionary.

Perhaps it is an exaggeration to say every three words, but the little book is well thumbed and Helen carries it with her constantly. She will stop in the middle of a sentence, her velvet brown eyes will become puzzled and she will quickly flip through her dictionary until she exclaims in relief and finishes her sentence.

"So many people have been asking me so many questions about Greece. They ask about where I live, how we dress, how we date, what we do for pastime and so on. Why, just the other day, a boy at school asked me if we had electricity in Greece. I could hardly answer for laughing so much."

Helen shook her black curly hair and chuckled. "What really impresses me so much is the school. I like it very much. In Greece the schools and teachers are very strict. And we don't have any schools where—what is that word I am trying to think of?—where boys and girls go to school together."

Ada Mae added helpfully. "Ah, yes! Co-educational. Anyway, we do not have that in Bulldogs...

(Continued from Page 1) ner slammed across for two more and the Bulldogs led 14-0 with 7 minutes still remaining in the initial period. With two and a half minutes remaining in the first half, Stokes tallied on a sweep around left end. Robert Dalton failed on a one-point kick try and Plainview went to the rest period leading 20-0.

In the third period, a Bulldog drive was aided by two penalties against Hereford. The first cost Hereford possession of a fumble it had grabbed from Plainview, while the second moved Hereford back to their own two-yard line, from where big Robert Dalton, 220 pounds of poufing fullback, blasted across to score. Dalton kicked the extra point and Plainview was finished with offensive football, with a 27-0 lead.

Taking the kick-off on their own 30, the Herd displayed its best offense of the season, marching 70 yards to score. Halfback Duane Cassels streaked the last 10 yards to tally on a double reverse early in the fourth period. Cassels failed on the try for two points and the scoring was completed for the night.

There were several bright points for the Hereford coaches and rooters. For one thing, the Herd showed its strongest offense of the season, moving the ball well at times against the big Plainview team. Another encouraging sign was the frequent appearance of C. D. Fitzgerald at the fullback post. Fitzgerald had been expected to be one of the workhorses until he was accidentally shot in the foot this summer. Friday night was the first time on the field for the senior.

On the field, it looked like flag-waving night, as officials threw penalty markers at the slightest provocation. Plainview was clipped 13 times for 170 yards while Hereford lost 63 yards on eight penalties. Hereford managed to come out even on first downs, as each team got 12. But Plainview marched up and down the field for 213 yards rushing, while Hereford had just 136, most of those in the second half.

The Bulldogs completed two of six passed for 22 yards, as the Herd hit one of three tries for 11 yards. Hereford end Steve Slagle punted four times for an average of 33.7 yards, including one beauty which went out of bounds on Plainview's 6 yard line. Plainview kicked three times for a 30.6 average.

Plainview covered two of Hereford's three fumbles while they pounced on top of their own trio of bobbles.

Plainview now has a 2-1 record. Hereford is 0-3.

The Whitefaces will be visitors in Olton next Friday, as Olton has homecoming. The Mustangs are 2-2 now, with wins from Petersburg and Friday night, Hale Center. They have lost to Floydada and Littlefield.

Two future Herd opponents lost Friday night. Levelland, ranked fourth in the state in AAA, took a 40-13 licking from Breckenridge, which is rated No. 1. Dumas downed Canyon, 26-0, and Littlefield was edged 12-6 by Brownfield.

A Million Bucks Worth Of Faith Rides On Salesman

By DAVE DILES
AP Sports Writer

DETROIT (AP) — How many times have you heard people say they have a million dollars' worth of faith in somebody? With Fred Zollner, a man who has more than one million dollars, this is not a term to be used loosely.

He literally has a million dollars' worth of faith in W. Nick Kerbawy. Zollner has named Kerbawy to a half dozen or so posts in the vast Zollner Corp. but the main task involved is that of selling basketball to Detroit and the State of Michigan.

Kerbawy, the veteran general manager of the Detroit Lions' professional football team, was lured away from that job by a million dollars. Zollner gave Kerbawy a contract that will mean that much over a 20-year span.

Zollner brought professional basketball to Detroit last year, moving the National Basketball Assn.'s Pistons here from Fort Wayne, Ind. In his first year of operation in Detroit, Zollner lost an estimated $125,000.

The crowd average was a little better than 4,000 a game. Kerbawy took over the operation in late June and already is adopting many of the same policies that brought success to the Lions.

"My first year with the Lions," he recalled, "was in 1948 and the club lost $96,000. The next season it lost $112,000. In 1951 the Lions made some money and now they're making it is to bring fan interest up from the high school and collegiate level. "We have the world's greatest basketball players in the NBA, but the interest around here stops at the college level. We're going to beat the bushes like the politicians, we're going to have 'nights' and excursions and everything else until we get a following like the other pro teams around here."

His 1958-59 season aim is to average 8,000 spectators for the 30 home games.

"We have to create basketball fans," he explained. "Myself — I'm not a rabid fan. I don't attend practices and never have. I'm a businessman in sports. I don't live and die with every victory and defeat. In fact, I don't think a rabid fan can operate any sports outfit. You lose your objectivity, your realism."

Kerbawy confesses that the best gimmick the Pistons could come up with would be a successful team.

"For getting those turnstiles to click," he added, "nothing beats winning!"

If It's About The Circus, Columbus Man Is Interested

By PHIL GUNBY
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — At 33, Fred D. Pfening Jr. still runs off to the circus every chance he gets.

Not to join it, for he's president of a bakery equipment company. Just to see it.

It's a love affair that began 23 years ago. Pfening is national president of the Circus Historical Society and also belongs to the Circus Model Builders and the Circus Fans of America.

There are about 300 members in the Historical Society, which does extensive research to preserve circus lore, provides the information for articles and books (Pfening has tried his hand at both) about circus life, and channels material to the Circus World Museum at Baraboo, Wis., and Museum of the American Circus at Sarasota, Fla.

The Model Builders construct scale models of circus wagons (Pfening has about 50), tents, acts and other phases of circus life. And those who are just plain fans of the circus make

No Injuries In Wreck Friday

About $300 in damage was reported in an accident at the intersection of Fourth and McKinley Friday at 12:26 p.m. Drivers were Marjorie Hammonds, Perkins, 17, Amarillo, and Nancy L. Neal, 23, 324 Ave. B.

Damage to the Perkins car was estimated at $100, and to the Neal car, $200. No injuries were reported.

Indonesia in the Southwest Pacific is divided into more than 3,000 island fragments. All of the islands have a total population of 80 million people.

Estimated three or four air calliopes possessed by private individuals, and many other mementoes of circus life, Pfening says it is not an effort to preserve a dying tradition.

"There will always be a circus," he maintains. "Good astute businessmen, providing the proper management, can make the circus succeed by doing the old time things in a modern way."

More shows are on the road now than in the past three years, he says, and the Circus Historical Society is doing its bit by promoting a Be A Circus Booster campaign.

Pfening says he's seen all but two or three of the 20 to 25 circuses now on the road. Last year he saw 16 circuses 26 times.

All this should make life a circus for his sons, Frederick III, 9, and Timothy, 4 — and usually does.

"But Ricky (Frederick) is becoming interested in stamp collecting and that seems to be pulling him away from the circus," Pfening admits.

Stereo Record Production Rises To Estimated Demand

By L. J. KRAMP

Stereophonic records are being issued in large numbers by the major manufacturers in preparation for the expected big consumer swing to two-channel sound during the fall and winter.

RCA Victor has brought out 20 classical and 70 popular stereo discs, with more to come. Columbia issued 10 of each, and Capitol and Angel reported a dozen en route. London has distributed the first of 50 classical and 25 popular. Westminster turned out its first 20, and Decca delivered a dozen.

London's first issues generally are outstanding, and reflect careful preparation for the changes in engineering and microphone techniques. Sound fanciers particularly will enjoy "A Journey Into Stereo Sound," a demonstration record; Mantovani's "Strauss Waltzes"; the Edmundo Ros Orchestra's "Rhythms of the South"; and Ted Heath's "Hits I Missed."

The London stereo classical discs are especially full-bodied in filling the gap between stereo's twin speakers. Good examples are Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream," incidental music directed by Peter Maag; Stravinsky's "Petruška"; Rimsky-Korsakov's "May Night"; and the Beethoven Fifth Symphony, all by L'Orchestre de la Suisse Romande under Ernest Ansermet. Stereo adds new luster to London's monaural qualities.

RCA Victor's first classical stereos are topped by an excellent "Pictures at an Exhibition," the Moussorgsky sound show-piece done up in dual brilliance by Fritz Reiner and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

The Reiner-Chicago combination also is available in stereo versions of the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto, with Jascha Heifetz; the Prokofiev "Lieutenant Kije" suite coupled with Stravinsky's "Song of the Nightingale"; the Bartok "Concerto for Orchestra"; and "Vienna," a group of waltzes.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra makes its stereo disc debut in first rate fashion with the Tchaikovsky "Pathétique" symphony directed by Pierre Monteux, and "Serenade for Strings," under Charles Munch. Most of these were excellent R

CA Victor stereo tapes, and they have lost little in transfer to discs.

The RCA Victor popular stereo discs convert into two-channel sound some monaural best sellers and recent issues. Among these are Offenbach's "Gaité Parisienne," by the Boston Pops Orchestra under Arthur Fiedler; and well-spaced dance music by orchestras under Urbie Green, Sauter-Finegan, Ray McKinley, and Tito Puente.

Singer Lena Horne, conductors Paul Lavalle and Morton Gould, pianists George Feyer and Ray Hartley, and guitarist Billy Mure also have RCA Victor stereo records bidding for the big popular music market.

The first of Westminster's well-balanced stereo discs feature Herman Scherchen and the Vienna State Opera Orchestra in the "1812 Overture" and "Romeo and Juliet" overture by Tchaikovsky. Two others are the Tchaikovsky Fourth Symphony by the London Philharmonic under Artur Rodzinski; and the "Falstaff" symphonic study and "Cockaigne Overture" by Elgar, with Sir Adrian Boult directing the Phil-

Beauty At Home Q. What treatment will soften and bleach the skin, as well as help refine the pores? A. Apply a mixture of two-thirds warm olive oil and one-third lemon juice, rubbing well into the skin. Rub this into the skin with the outer skin of the lemon, using an upward and outward movement. This brings a healthy glow to the skin, and any drying effects of the lemon will be offset by the olive oil. Q. Can you give me a formula for making my own hair dressing? A. Cut two lemons in slices and add only enough water to cover them. Boil until the thickness of water indicates that all the lemon juice has been extracted. Then strain and use the remaining lemon juice and water mixture as your hair dressing. It's good! Q. How is a chin strap made for the purpose of reducing a double chin? A. Several thicknesses of gauze chilled in witch hazel, and tied firmly around the face and under the chin, helps somewhat in firming these sagging chin muscles. Q. What shade of makeup or foundation base is best on an olive complexion? A. On a light olive skin, a peach-toned or beige-pink base adds a flattering effect. On a dark or swarthy olive complexion, a copper-toned base gives warmth. A pale base does not contain enough tint to keep a dark skin from showing through. Q. My face is quite dry and sometimes sensitive to soap. How can I wash it? A. At times like these, you can try using warm milk for cleansing your skin. Q. Isn't there a special parting suggested for hair that is quite thin? Q. How can I clean papier mache ornaments? A. When necessary to wash these ornaments the work must be done with considerable care. Use a soft cloth barely dampened in warm water. After the article is dry, rub thoroughly with a little sweet oil. A papier mache article should be dusted often and regularly, and it will seldom require cleaning. Q. How can I extract onion juice easily? A. Beauty At Home

Q. What treatment will soften and bleach the skin, as well as help refine the pores? A. Apply a mixture of two-thirds warm olive oil and one-third lemon juice, rubbing well into the skin. Rub this into the skin with the outer skin of the lemon, using an upward and outward movement. This brings a healthy glow to the skin, and any drying effects of the lemon will be offset by the olive oil. Q. Can you give me a formula for making my own hair dressing? A. Cut two lemons in slices and add only enough water to cover them. Boil until the thickness of water indicates that all the lemon juice has been extracted. Then strain and use the remaining lemon juice and water mixture as your hair dressing. It's good! Q. How is a chin strap made for the purpose of reducing a double chin? A. Several thicknesses of gauze chilled in witch hazel, and tied firmly around the face and under the chin, helps somewhat in firming these sagging chin muscles. Q. What shade of makeup or foundation base is best on an olive complexion? A. On a light olive skin, a peach-toned or beige-pink base adds a flattering effect. On a dark or swarthy olive complexion, a copper-toned base gives warmth. A pale base does not contain enough tint to keep a dark skin from showing through. Q. My face is quite dry and sometimes sensitive to soap. How can I wash it? A. At times like these, you can try using warm milk for cleansing your skin. Q. Isn't there a special parting suggested for hair that is quite thin? Q. How can I clean papier mache ornaments? A. When necessary to wash these ornaments the work must be done with considerable care. Use a soft cloth barely dampened in warm water. After the article is dry, rub thoroughly with a little sweet oil. A papier mache article should be dusted often and regularly, and it will seldom require cleaning. Q. How can I extract onion juice easily? A. Cut a slice from the root end of the onion, draw the skin, and then press the onion, with a rotary motion, on a coarse grater. Q. How can I clean celluloid? A. By rubbing it with a woolen cloth and a little tripol, then polishing with a clean woolen cloth. Salutarin is also used for cleaning celluloid. Q. Chamois gloves will dry much softer if they are rinsed in soapy water. Q. What is a good tonic for an oily skin? A. Fresh water containing a little lemon juice is a good tonic. Q. How can I remove warts? A. Dissolve a quantity of washing soda in water, wash the hands, and then allow them to dry without wiping. Repeat this bathing until the warts disappear. Q. What are a few attractive garnishes, that are also reasonable in price, for meats and vegetables? A. Parsley, watercress, pimiento, and slices of lemon. Q. How can I freshen artificial flowers that have become crumpled? A. Hold them over the steam of a kettle for a few minutes and it will freshen them. Q. How can I mend broken marble? A. Make a very stiff paste of portland cement and water, clean the edges of the marble thoroughly, apply the cement to both broken edges, press the edges together very tightly, and tie securely until the cement has set.

A. Yes. This type of hair should always have a diagonal part, running from a point on the forehead to an opposite point on the crown of the head. This provides even distribution of the hair, makes it appear heavier, and more generous in dressing. Q. How can I remove coffee or tea stains from washable dresses? A. Pour some boiling water from a height of three or four feet through the stained fabric stretched taut over a bowl. Then wash thoroughly in hot suds. Q. Please suggest a treatment for removing whiteheads from the skin. A. Try applying a thick paste of fuller's earth and witch hazel, wrapping some gauze over this to keep it in place. After a few minutes, wash off with cool water. Q. I have the beginning of some callouses on my feet, which are beginning to cause me some trouble. What can I do about these? A. Try soaking the feet each day for a half-hour in a gallon of warm water in which a handful of sal soda has been dissolved. When drying the feet with a rough towel, rub the callous spots. Layers of loosened cuticle should roll off. Continue this treatment until the callouses have disappeared. Q. What can I do about the makeup which creeps into the fine lines under my eyes? A. Probably the best thing is to avoid the use of any cosmetics in this area. Instead, wipe a fine facial oil or petroleum jelly into the skin there for a moist effect, and carefully bring the rest of the complexion makeup just up to the cheekbone top, and blend lightly so that no line of demarcation is evident.

By JIMMIE GILLENTE
Frequently I run into people who vehemently declare that it costs more to live in Hereford than any place they know. Generally, they are honest and sincere in their convictions; also, they are usually people who have lived here for some time.

I had just finished such a conversation the other day when I ran into Bill McCarver, the deputy sheriff who moved here from Wellington a few months back, and asked him how the costs compared.

"Everything you buy in Hereford is cheaper, except one thing," said Bill; "that's rent." House rent, he said, runs usually twice as much — or more — in Hereford than in Wellington.

H. A. Tuck, Brand news editor, who moved here a month or so back from Dumas, had about the same report. "I believe groceries are cheaper in Hereford," he said. "We pay exactly the same rent as we paid in Dumas, but I believe the house we have in Hereford is nicer — which would make the rent a little bit lower."

All in all, I would guess that living costs run pretty close to the same around the territory. Most of the retailers buy from the same wholesalers, which pretty well establishes living costs. I did notice, however, that the U. S. A. cost of living index was down a few points in the last quarter — for the first time in a good while. I am sure this drop must have included chicken, considering how often we have it around the house lately. That's good, though, because I really do like fried chicken.

Which reminds me, here it is maize harvest time — and Clarence Morrison still hasn't come through with his roasting ears. He said they were going to be late, and I am beginning to believe he knew what he was talking about.

This, of course, is a real boon to the potato chip people. I just got a proclamation from Gov. Price Daniel declaring Oct. 1-11 as National Potato Chip Week in Texas. The period (Oct. 1-11) sounded like 11 days to me, and that's a long week, but you know how we do things in Texas. They reported that the potato chip people absorbed 2,672,000,000 pounds of raw potatoes, which they made into 668 million pounds of potato chips. Dollar volume on the chips was almost half as much in the food stores as that of straight "produce" potatoes.

The propaganda further cites that they took a poll among children and found that potato chips are the No. 1 "vegetable" in the nation. Guess what? Spinach turned up in the No. 2 spot, which was quite a surprise to everyone concerned.

Hugh Clearman is yelling about a little squib in "Around Town" following the Tech-A&M football game, and I have been dodging J. W. Robinson. However, all of these boys aren't so loyal. I hear that Bill Davis, another Aggie Ex, did pretty well, thank you.

Ed Skypala had a lot of fun Thursday night when he went to Adrian and effectively posed as Adolph Untheiser, a "Lions Club member from East Germany", who was visiting relatives near Umberger, and who could not speak a word of English. All of the Adrian folks accepted him on face value, and even went along with Earnest Langley's rather free translations of Skypa's fluent German. The scheme pretty well backfired, though, when it came time to eat.

In an effort to help a fellow Lion from a foreign country, Ray Cowart and some of the boys willingly ordered for their non-English speaking guest. The result, when the waitress brought the food, was that Skypa frowned constantly and nibbled away at a plate of cold sour kraut, while the rest of the boys enjoyed steak. And to make it worse, he couldn't even protest without giving away the whole show.

When they finally introduced Ed at the end of the program and the Adrian folks found out who he really was, they got quite a bang out of the whole deal.

"If you ever bring us a better program," said Webb Blankenship, "it will have to be a Chishaman."

If you are figuring on buying a hula hoop, and just haven't broken over, it will pay to hold out a while longer. I see where they are coming out with a musical model that makes a maraca tick tock as it swings. The idea is to make all present hoops obsolete — and start the craze all over again.

George McLean is plugging for a "Great Books" club, which needs some additional members. George says the big idea is to delve into portions of the works, then to swap ideas and interpretations. There is one big trouble. It sounds to me as if you would have to do some thinking — and I don't like to think, I like Groucho Marx, Perry Mason, "The Price is Right" and the "54,000 Question"; they may be "chewing gum" in the field of brain food, but they sure don't upset your equilibrium with a lot of "deep, serious thoughts. Besides, after watching Truman and Eisenhower, I have decided I don't want to be President, anyhow.

Another thought producing stimulant (of a sort, anyway) is apparently the film, "And God Created Woman", scheduled to show in Hereford Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. This is the film that created all of the ruckus at Lubbock. It ran there 42 days, but was closed down by an injunction. A lot of the Lubbock people seemed to think it showed too much of Brigitte Bardot; away too much, in fact. Now, I understand, the theatre people have filed a counter suit. Frankly, I was surprised to see it slide through here without any organized protest.

This country is so diversified that a rain always hurts some, while it helps others. The moisture this week, however, has done as little general damage as possible during a growing-harvest period. It was a little early to hurt maize harvest, while it helps pastures and will probably get up a lot of wheat that was dusted in. George Paetzold was telling me the other night that there is a lot of insect damage to the lettuce crop. Some crazy (?) insects are eating their way out from the heart of the heads — and these little rascals really like lettuce. All in all, it has been a pretty tough year on the vegetable grower. It sure has.

Aikman Patrons Meet Teachers, PTA Officers

A total of 250 parents, teachers and students recently attended the Aikman P-TA basket dinner with the sixth grade as hosts for the affair. Guests were taken on tour of the building.

During the dinner two new teachers, Mrs. Dixie Murphy and Mrs. Alvin Smith, were introduced to the group. Principal D. C. Martin introduced the new teachers and others that were present.

Mrs. Glenn Allred, president, introduced the new P-TA officers for the year. They are Mrs. E. D. Hopson, first vice president; Mrs. G. W. Duncan, second vice president; Mrs. H. A. Cavness, third vice president and hospitality chairman; Mrs. Stan Sigman, secretary; Mrs. Jack Nunnley, treasurer; Mrs. Mark Woodall, historian; Mrs. Clifton Corley, parliamentarian; and E. D. Hopson, reporter.

Household Scrapbook

Photographs
To clean a soiled photograph sponge it very lightly with a cloth wrung from warm water containing a little ammonia. Another method is to moisten some absorbent cotton with alcohol and rubbing gently until the photograph is clean. Allow to dry naturally.

Flour and Meal
You can prevent flour and cornmeal from becoming wormy during hot weather if you stir them thoroughly every day to the very bottom of the container.

Dry Hair
Hair that is too dry will be benefitted by shampooing regularly every ten days or two weeks with a tar soap.

Wall Cleaner
The following is a good cleanser for painted walls: Dissolve one ounce of soap flakes in 16 ounces (one pint) of water, and add about three ounces of turpentine. Stir the mixture rapidly and apply with a brush or sponge.

Lemon Juice
Washing will be less difficult if lemon juice is used as it softens the water. It aids in removing dirt and grease, and whitens and freshens white clothes. However, do not use when washing colored fabrics.

Honey
If kept in a bright light honey will soon turn to sugar. Always keep it in a dark place.

Pearl Buttons
Give the original brightness to pearl buttons by rubbing them with a little olive oil. This will take away the blurred appearance. Then sprinkle with nail powder and rub well with a chamois.

Left-Over Asparagus
Utilize the left-over cooked asparagus by mixing with celery, pickle relish, and salad dressing, and serving on lettuce. Or, combine it with left-over ham or veal and serve in a cream sauce on toast.

Grass Stains
Remove fresh grass stains from clothing by soaking in alcohol. Rub old grass stains with molasses and allow to stand for several hours before laundering.

Dresser Drawers
If the insides of the dresser drawers are given a coat of clear shellac it will be much easier to keep them clean. This same treatment can be given all the cupboard drawers and shelves.

BUSY SEASON
NEW YORK (AP) — Joan Copeland, actress sister of Playwright Arthur Miller, is getting busy suddenly.

Cast in a Broadway prospect, "The Dragon Slayer," Miss Copeland found herself summoned to replace Piper Laurie in "Handful of Fire," also Rialto-bound; and arrangements were worked out for the transfer.

Absent from the White Way for several seasons, she appeared last year in a revival of Noel Coward's "Conversation Piece."

Among the letters in the handwriting of Abraham Lincoln in the extensive Lincolniana collection at Boston University, many are authenticated. But, there is one which appears genuine, but which university officials have proven to be a forgery.

U. N. Race May Settle Horse Of Year Debate

GO, MAN, GO—Gallant Man, invited to contest Round Table for his Turf Horse of the Year crown in the United Nations Handicap, breezes home ahead of second-place Bold Ruler in the Belmont Metropolitan.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. M. — In the age-old alliance between thoroughbred horse and sports-minded man, nothing is ever certain.

But just supposing the prospect of Round Table and Gallant Man meeting in Atlantic City's United Nations Handicap on Sept. 13 comes to pass. The "ifs" of such a prospect are tremendous.

If Round Table wins, the Kerr Stable horse will virtually clinch "Horse of the Year" honors. He also will push his winnings to within neighing distance of Nashua's all-time money-winning record of $1,288,565.

If Gallant Man wins, the little Ralph Lowe gamester will certainly knock Round Table's "Grass Horse of the Year" crown a-cropper and probably will steal away with "Horse of the Year" honors.

But the mere fact that Round Table and Gallant Man have been rated by the Atlantic City track as the world's best horses with weight assignments of 130 pounds for the U. N. doesn't necessarily mean both will be entered.

The United Nations is an invitational turf race designed to match outstanding American horses against handicap stars from abroad.

Handicapper James F. Ross rates the horses according to the weight they should carry and John B. (Jack) Kelly, Atlantic City president, extends invitations to the top dozen. If an invitation isn't picked up, the next horse on the list is invited until a field of 12 is assured.

Best indications are that Round Table and Gallant Man will make the race. There is also talk that they will meet in the $100,000 Woodward at Belmont on Sept. 27.

Round Table nosed out Tudor Era to win last year's United Nations and has never been defeated on the turf. Gallant Man, by contrast, has never run on grass, but trainer John Nerud believes he's up to it.

Round Table has had a truly great year, winning ten major races. His last victory on Aug.

Blossom Time All The Time Goal At Norfolk

By HARRY NASH
NORFOLK, Va. — A Paris-born horticulturist is transforming Norfolk into a flower garden.

Frederic Heutte, largely responsible for the development of Norfolk's Municipal Gardens containing 150,000 azaleas and 25,000 camellias, is now preparing to line several downtown blocks with flower boxes and hanging flower baskets.

Heutte plans year-round bloom. At first there will be 5,000 white and pink petunias. These will be followed by others — "maybe chrysanthemums, azaleas and begonias," Heutte says.

The downtown Merchants Assn. is footing the bill for the 500 boxes and the 104 baskets. The city will maintain them and provide the flowers. The boxes, 6 feet long, 1 foot wide and 2 feet high, will be placed on the curbs; two baskets will be suspended from each of 52 light poles.

Heutte, who has been superintendent of parks here for 20 years, says that "as a horticulturist, when I came to Norfolk in 1936, I recognized the potential which existed here due to climatic conditions. I recognized then that this potential had not been reached. I recognize that it has not been reached now."

"The main tool of the horticulturist is the climate. His main task is to assemble plants most suitable to that particular climate. A most revealing thing to me was the plant life in Seashore State Park, which includes subtropical Spanish moss. That was a positive index to me that other subtropical plants could be grown in this climate."

His chief ambition, Heutte says, is to have Norfolk recognized as "the horticultural center of the Eastern Seaboard, and as such, become one of its most beautiful cities."

Heutte came to the United States from his native France in 1911 and became a citizen of this country in 1918. He worked on estates in New York state, studied horticulture, served his 23 in the Arlington Handicap boosted his all-time winnings by $34,100 to $1,215,114.

The winner's share of $65,000-odd in the United Nations would push his winnings to within $10,000 of Nashua's record figure.

Gallant Man isn't in the money-winning running. The English-bred horse is on the smallish side. Because of this smallness, coupled with top weight assignments, Gallant Man is raced sparingly.

The gallant one defeated Bold Ruler, now retired to stud, earlier this year in Belmont's $50,000 Metropolitan. He also won a couple of $100,000 West Coast nag fests, the Hollywood Gold Cup and the Sunset Handicap.

Any belief that the United Nations could be a two-horse race, however, is ridiculous. Ten other horses will be elbowing Gallant Man and Round Table for running room.

The first batch of invitations campaigner, Sailor's Guide, and E. Gay Drake's Swoon's Son, which defeated Round Table in the Equipoise Mile.

Invitations also went to Donna Lydio Tesio's Italian-bred Braque, Calumet Farm's Bardstown, E. A. Haley's Australian champion Tulloch, Mrs. E. Eugenia Bankhead's Appleton, Frank E. Power's Hindu Festival, Baron Guy de Rothschild's French-bred Angel, Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Promised Land and Woodley Lane Farm's Reneged.

RURAL ART
COLUMBUS, Ind. — A farmer near here finally agreed to let Mrs. William Menke paint his barn — but he has reservations about it.

The 26-year-old housewife and amateur artist said she'll paint the barn with "an abstract, whimsical farm scene" and the owner isn't quite sure just what she means.

NET PROFIT
DENVER, Colo. — Mrs. Art Johanson is a woman who gets her bird. When a brightly colored cockateel landed on her front porch, Mrs. Johanson grabbed her husband's trout landing net and captured the bird.

BEGINNING YOUNG
ALAMOGORDO, N. M. — Local police aren't very anxious for a 13-year-old here to grow up. The youngster swiped a motor scooter after a professional change of plates, and fled. When arrested he was packing a loaded .22 caliber six-shooter.

Sierra Foothills Are Domain Of 72-Year-Old Lady Rancher

NO EASY CHAIR BOSS—Away from the rugged chores of ranch life, Mrs. Frances Pratt spruces up in fancy costume as marshal of annual Porterville parade.

By HARRY JUPITER
PORTERVILLE, Calif. — "Why should I quit," asked the little old lady, "I love the outdoors and I love my ranch, my horses and my cattle."

Slender, grey-haired Mrs. Frances Pratt is 72. But she still rides the range while bossing her 640-acre cattle ranch and 10,000 sheep on Porterville County in central California.

"I can't see any reason to stop when I love it so. It doesn't bother me any more than it did years ago. The way I feel, I expect to continue running this ranch indefinitely and I intend to keep right on riding and herding the stock."

The pleasant voiced, twinkling-eyed grandmother — she has five children and six grandchildren — is scornful of city women who are surprised to learn of the rugged outdoor life she leads.

"Some women never worked a day in their lives. Working is my life. I don't know what they expect me to look like but I do like to dress up once in a while and be a lady."

"I don't think we have to be dirty, wear two guns and swear like most people think cow people do. They never see me wear boots in town but I wear them on the ranch and when I'm working."

Mrs. Pratt, born near San Mateo in northern California learned to ride when she married Willard Pratt in 1909. She and her husband homesteaded. She often accompanied him on horseback as he went about his ranching chores.

When Pratt died 22 years ago, she took over the reins of the ranch. "It was a natural thing for me to do," she said, "I'm as much at home in the saddle as I am in my parlor."

Mrs. Pratt was named Grand Marshal of the Porterville Roundup parade this spring, although she had ridden in it only once before.

"It was quite an honor," she smiled, "I've ridden all my life but I've never had time to ride in shows."

She lives alone but "these walls are usually bulging with friends and grandchildren."

"My life is a full one. Two things have always kept me going. My love for my children and my faith. I've always felt that someone was always behind me and always helped me."

"But listen, young man, don't make it a sob story. I don't want people to feel sorry for me."

apprenticeship and took a course in landscape architecture before he came to Norfolk as a landscape designer in 1936. He is 59.

Last year he was named Chevalier de la Medaille Agricole, France's highest horticultural award for a "foreigner." In the same year the Garden Club of America awarded him its Gold Medal of Honor.

Norfolk's Municipal Gardens, a lush, 100-acre tract adjoining the city's airport, began modestly in 1937 as a Works Projects Administration project.

Today the gardens contain 150,000 permanently planted azaleas of 75 varieties and 50,000 more, of 500 varieties, under test or propagation.

The azaleas' biggest rivals in the gardens are camellias — 25,000 permanent plants representing 750 varieties. "Only one collection of camellias surpasses ours," Heutte says. "That is in the Huntington Gardens in San Marino, Calif., which has about 1,000 varieties but fewer plants."

The Norfolk gardens contain 5,000 permanently planted rhododendrons in 60 varieties. Under test are 5,000 more in 100 additional varieties. The gardens also boast 1,000 holly shrubs and trees in 20 varieties.

Heutte is trying, by developing continuous bloom, to make the gardens a year-round attraction.

"September is the hardest month for color in the gardens," he says. To overcome this, he is experimenting with late blooming lilacs.

The gardens are open to the public, free of charge, throughout the year. More than 11 miles of trails and footpaths meander through 80 fully developed acres.

Biggest month in the gardens is April, when most of the azaleas are in bloom.

ELI HAD TOP STREAK

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — Yale has compiled the longest football winning streak in Ivy League history. The Elis went 37 games without a defeat between 1887 and 1889. Bible Words for Today

MATTHEW 13:31-32 — "The Kingdom of Heaven is like a grain of mustard seed... the smallest of seeds, but when it has grown it is the greatest of shrubs."

In Alabama some time ago I looked up to see the source of a tiny acorn at my feet. Towering above me stood a mighty oak, with limbs like huge logs and a trunk wider than my car!

In reverie I pictured a small Indian lad who, perhaps 300 years before, on that very spot, also found and spared a tiny acorn, because he heard it say that in centuries to come, perhaps at the dawn of eternity, he would be proud ever to have known the puny little acorn, and he would find shelter in its branches from the torrid sun.

Though it seems to grow slowly the church grows surely. And that's more important. Don't be misled by the seeming insignificance of Christ's cause, God has deliberately chosen what is weak in the world ultimately to shame the strong.

This was one of the most famous lines ever penned on a sports page. It was written by one of the great sports-writers of them all, Grantland Rice. The line read: "Outlined against a blue-gray October sky, the Four Horsemen rode again. . . Stuhldreher, Miller, Crowley and Layden."

This was the story that gave Notre Dame's most famous backfield its nickname. It was used to describe an Irish victory over Army, 13 to 7, in which the Four Horsemen rode roughshod over the West Point Cadets.

That remarkable backfield, which had an average weight of only 157 pounds, went on to lead Notre Dame to an undefeated season. . . and to build a reputation as one of football's finest backfields. And much of their lasting fame can be traced to the line which Grantland Rice used to describe them on that October day.

Rains Plague Farms Near Or In Watershed Bottoms

By MAX SCHRADER

Many farms laying midway or at the bottom of watersheds are plagued by outside water coming across their farms following rains. One such place is the Palmer Norton farm east of Hereford. This farm lies off the lower end of a short watershed draining into a lake. On its way to the lake, the water often damaged both crops and soil and prevented them from running their rows in the direction that made for best irrigation.

Norton decided the best way to handle this problem was to construct a flat-bottomed waterway from the top of the field to the lake. A diversion terrace will be constructed to divert all water into this waterway. This waterway is an unusual one, being of the excavated type. Most waterways are constructed with beams running parallel and the water being retained between. Norton is using the dirt from this waterway to level other areas on the field.

The work is being done by Ronald Matthews, who operates equipment owned by the Tierra Blanca Soil Conservation District. Other work now being carried out in the Dawn vicinity is at the Carl Wimberley farm. Wimberley has completed underground waterways and a diversion terrace. This work was preliminary to a land leveling operation that is now getting underway.

Rains Plague Farms Near Or In Watershed Bottoms

By MAX SCHRADER
Many farms laying midway or at the bottom of watersheds are plagued by outside water coming across their farms following rains. One such place is the Palmer Norton farm east of Hereford. This farm lies off the lower end of a short watershed draining into a lake. On its way to the lake, the water often damaged both crops and soil and prevented them from running their rows in the direction that made for best irrigation.

Norton decided the best way to handle this problem was to construct a flat-bottomed waterway from the top of the field to the lake. A diversion terrace will be constructed to divert all water into this waterway. This waterway is an unusual one, being of the excavated type. Most waterways are constructed with beams running parallel and the water being retained between. Norton is using the dirt from this waterway to level other areas on the field. The work is being done by Ronald Matthews, who operates equipment owned by the Tierra Blanca Soil Conservation District. Other work now being carried out in the Dawn vicinity is at the Carl Wimberley farm. Wimberley has completed underground waterways and a diversion terrace. This work was preliminary to a land leveling operation that is now getting an-

Can T-V Fill The Little Rock Gap?

Many people, including some of the nation's leading educators, are watching the Little Rock experiment with TV in the field of education. The fact that it is a temporary emergency measure plays its part, but the experiment is still closely observed. A high school education through TV is definitely a possibility. Some people even think that it might provide the answer to ever rising school costs, including teachers as well as buildings. Examinations would, of course, be held at specified dates. Controlled circuit TV has already been pronounced a success in several schools, where instructors maintain discipline and grade papers. This varies most from the Little Rock classes, however, in that it still places schooling on a compulsory, rather than a voluntary basis. A special high frequency channel was assigned to Hereford several years ago and designated as an educational channel. The same thing happened in practically every town, village and city in the nation. This action indicates a strong belief among federal communications authorities that TV does offer tremendous possibilities along this line.

Although it varies greatly from our present conception of schooling, TV classes do afford several immediate advantages, chiefly that of the student being honestly interested. In the case of strife-torn Little Rock, it also solves the integration question. The Negroes share the same opportunity and benefits as the whites—and we doubt if there is a single white family which would think about lodging even the mildest sort of protest.

So far, most of us have viewed TV as a means of entertainment, at its best on sports coverage, national conventions and United Nations operations. It is possible, however, that it may easily provide the answer to some of our most severe national problems.

So far, adaptation of teachers and students is reported to be remarkable in the Little Rock area. No one is completely satisfied with the educational process but, in case the controversy continues, TV may well get a more thorough and complete test. It might even develop into a complete new educational system for our nation. Who knows?

You Will Be A Better American

We've often wondered how many people we know who ever actually suffered pangs of gnawing hunger. The number, we feel sure, would be small. This point again came to mind recently as we heard a sincere, first-hand report of conditions in Germany by Mrs. George Brashear.

A naturalized American, Mrs. Brashear stressed the fact that most of us do not honestly appreciate the advantages this country offers us.

"The trip was good for me," she declared, "in a brief few years as an American citizen, even I had forgotten many of these things. Honestly, I appreciate this country more than ever."

"I teach my children to respect and turn to policemen for help," she continued, "where, as a child, I was taught to avoid them as the symbol of tyranny."

Mrs. Brashear pointed to "Freedom of speech, freedom of press and freedom of religion" as the most valuable possession any American can own. And, somehow, the sincere ring in her voice stirs people to more appreciate these things which all of us take for granted from day to day.

Call it lethargy, call it human nature, or call it indifference, there is no question but that Mrs. Brashear's criticism strikes home with most of us. All of us know already the things she says are true, but how many of us really do appreciate them? If, for no other reason, we find it impossible because we do not have the background of privation; we think we appreciate liberty but, once again, our contrasts are provided from imagination instead of reality.

Mrs. Brashear has a wonderful story for every citizen in the United States. She is willing to tell it, and has already spoken before several groups. Others, including study clubs, might well seek her out for their programs. After hearing her talk, you will agree, there is one inevitable result: "You will be a better American."

Church Finance Plan Is Popular

The "Lord's Acre" plan through which the First Methodist Church expects to finance building improvements is reported to be gaining wide acceptance among the church members. This result, in many ways, is a natural one.

As the pastor, Rev. Alby Cockrell, puts it: "There is really nothing new about the plan." All of which is true, because it even traces back to the Old Testament days when followers of Jehovah did the very same thing.

Simplicity of the plan still holds the same appeal as it had in old days. Unquestionably, it has a "grass roots" approach, and the youngster who contributes proceeds of his paper route for one week looks upon the donation with different eyes from those of another youth who might secure an equal amount from his parents without working or earning the money.

People who are participating in the current plan will, no doubt, long have a personal feeling and a warm place in the hearts for the improvements which result. Vandalism of the type often reported on tax paid improvements should never be a worry to these people from within their own ranks.

Despite other modern achievements, the "Lord's Acre" plan of financing church growth is still as practical today as it was a thousand years ago. The appeal, somehow, stirs up the better sides of people, resulting in more loyal Christians and better citizens.

Coroner's Job

When a Texan dies of an undetermined cause, a justice of the peace who may have been a farmer or a traveling salesman is supposed to find out what was wrong. We still have a long way to go in Texas to modernize our statutes relating to crimes or possible crimes.

The Texas Medical Association will back a bill in the 1959 State Legislature setting up professional medical examiners to investigate questionable deaths. It would provide for a chief medical examiner and deputy examiners (doctors experienced in pathology) in each of the 31 senatorial districts.

This will call for financing, either statewide or locally, in a year when county and state budgets are terrifically burdened.

But the state—particularly metropolitan counties like Dallas—no longer can afford to leave determination of death and autopsy in the hands of untrained laymen. Even justices of the peace don't want the responsibility.

New York City has 27 pathologists and other technicians related to this job. They investigate 25,000 of the city's 100,000 deaths every year. One in five is autopsy. This proportion probably would hold true here.

Professional determination—medical determination—is both fair to public and to public officials unskilled in the task but given the burden by antiquated statutes. The cost is negligible compared with results.—Dallas News.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Girls Keep Their Word, C. C. Bowman Learned

By MRS. R. L. CRISWELL
Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Bowman were married in the Presbyterian Manse in Hereford Jan. 6, 1907. They were so new in Hereford they had to ask where the Manse was.

They left immediately for Fort Worth, returned later and have made their home in Deaf Smith County since that time. They reared a family of four girls and one boy and have eleven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. They have seen the little town of Bluewater grow and prosper. The name was changed to Hereford when Mr. R. L. Bradley bought the first herd of registered Hereford cattle ever brought to Deaf Smith County.

"I was born in 1884 in Morgan County, Mo.," said Mr. Bowman. "My parents came from Virginia. One of the small events of my childhood, I remember, is when my aunt gave me a toy watch. I thought it was the most wonderful present I ever received. One of the neighbor children told me that if I did not do a certain thing for her she would take a hammer and pound my watch to pieces."

"I did not think she was telling the truth and did not bother about it. But she did just that, bringing me the pieces to show me that she had kept her word. I never liked that little girl again, even though the watch had no monetary value. It was of great sentimental value to me."

"I came with my parents to Texas in 1893 in a covered wagon. My uncle and several neighbors decided to come with us and we had a string of 15 or 20 wagons in the train."

"At night we formed the traditional circle, with the lead wagon tied to the rear. The horses stayed inside the circle to keep the Indians from stealing them. Fortunately we were not raided but did catch several squaws stealing coffee and sugar from the wagons and had to keep a guard posted or we would have lost not only the horses, but also our supplies. It took us at least 30 days to make the trip from Versailles, Mo., to Fort Worth. Everyone bought farms and we lived there for a number of years."

"I earned my first money by covering corn as an old-fashioned planter dropped if these planters were called check planters and would plant two rows at a time. The farmer would use a wire with a knot in it every so often, about six or eight inches apart. The wire was threaded through a groove in the planter, and when a knot slipped through the groove, it would pull a small lever and drop a grain of corn."

"There was a small wheel behind the dropper to cover the corn, but sometimes it did not cover thoroughly. The crows knew this and flew along, waiting for a grain to show so they could swoop down and steal it."

"I walked behind that planter for 12 or 14 hours, a day, covering the grain as it appeared. My father told the man that he had paid me too much. But he said that everytime he looked back, I was plodding along with hock, poised ready to swing. He thought I had earned every cent. I was afraid that I was going to lose a part of that big silver half dollar."

"Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Diebel bought a farm near us. My wife and I grew up and went to school together. She came to Deaf Smith County, and here is where we were married."

"My first visit to Hereford was in 1905. I was driving a fine team of horses to a buggy then. It was rainy weather, and I thought I was stuck for sure. But the team managed to pull out of the mud. This was on Main Street. There were board walks, but the streets were a sea of mud."

"After our marriage, we moved to Deaf Smith County and have lived here for more than 50 years. We bought land from the XITs, a few miles from old La Plata and from what was called the Badger pasture."

"I leased a couple of sections and ran cattle on them. I did not buy the land as it could be leased for 10 cents an acre. That same land is now selling for hundreds of dollars an acre."

"In 1904 and 1905 Hereford had a real boom as a mock railroad had been promoted by unscrupulous men. The dump was built to Dimmitt, but no ties or rails were laid. Hereford boomed out, and in 1909, when we moved here to stay, there were so many empty houses that it seemed to be a ghost town. There are a few things which will have to be ironed out if it is to continue to grow and attract people. I am sure this will work out," said Mr. Bowman.

"I was born near Austin," said Mrs. Bowman. "My parents were German, and we spoke German in our home. I could not speak a word of English when I started to school. It was fairly easy for me to learn, and soon I could talk with the other children. "As you know, the state of Texas sold several million acres of the staked Plains to the XIT Syndicate and used the money to build the State Capitol. In 1888 my parents were invited to the dedication services and to enter the pioneer parade. Proudly, we hitched the oxen to the covered wagon and drove through the streets of Austin. The oxen were named Maud and Tobe. They were taught to Get-up, Gee and Haw."

"They were never driven with reins or lines, but by the spoken words. My mother often told us of our father farming with the oxen. That was long, long ago."

"I bought the material for my wedding dress from the Stambaugh Dry Goods store. It was of dark brown Cashmere, a lovely, soft woolen material. It was made with full sleeves, with a long, tight cuff and trimmed with silk braid. The skirt was full-length and was gored to fit at the waist. It flared at the hem."

"I made it, as I made the little clusters of tufts by hand. Mr. Bowman bought the only suit in Hereford that he could wear. There were others in the stores, but were a worse fit. He was very disappointed, but it was the best he could do. We caught the train at the freight depot and left for Fort Worth, where he was engaged in farming."

"In a few months we came to this county to live. We shipped our belongings by rail, including our extraordinary horse, a descendant of the great Dan Patch. Miss Bess Edgewood, now Mrs. Werner, lived with us for two years. She drove 'Hanger' to the buggy and took the children to school."

"I have always loved the Plains, but there were many drawbacks and terrible things that happened. One year the

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Citizens Like Safety, Economy In New Cars

What device or innovation would you like to see incorporated in new automobiles?

VIOLA RETTMAN—Well, I'd like to have a television for the back seat. I have already heard something mentioned about that coming about in the near future. Also, with my main problem of denting fenders, I wish I could get a car with a big band of real thick rubber all around the outside. That would save a lot of people some big dents.

PAUL HARVEY—The cars of today have so many gadgets on them now that it takes a genius to run them. I would like to see them cut down on those high-powered motors a little and try to run a car a little more economically. The cars go too fast as it is. They have too much motor and it takes too much gas to run them.

MRS. JERRY MALONE—Well, I've always wished cars had telephones so you could call and check on things at home while you are out or call to see if someone is home before you drive all the way to their house. Then, I'd like to have a car that would run on radar or something like that, with the driver having only to steer every once in a while. But that's a far-fetched idea of the future.

ROY PHILLIPS—It seems to me that they have everything. Just so long as they don't put television in it will be all right. It would be pitiful if someone was driving down the road and had an accident because they were watching television. They can get all they want of that at home.

PATRICIA HART—Well, I think that anything that has to do with safety is needed more than any new gadgets for leisure and appearance. Preferably—a safe driver.

CLYDE CAVE—I'm perfectly satisfied with them the way they are except maybe, the price. That could be a little lower. I'll leave the new ideas to the fellows who make the cars.

PEGGY SHORT—I don't like the new cars. They look too much like jets. They look a little to fast and dangerous to me. I think automobile companies ought to stress safety instead of speed. The practical person is going to think more about it when he buys a car, and the car companies would sell a lot more cars if they would put more safety features on their products.

A. E. LONDON—I'd want a lot more safety and comfort instead of styling. They are too low and too high—if you know what I mean. Most people like different automobiles, but when they go to buy one, they try to buy the best one they've got.

MORE FOUR-LANE HIGHWAYS

None of the $37,700,000 worth of highway construction and right-of-way acquisition scheduled for the Panhandle has been earmarked for Moore County; however two important stretches of new highways will join the county line. Newly-approved expenditures will continue the present strip of four-lane construction from the Potter-Moore County line, the point to which previous state and federal funds had carried the 87-287 expansion, south to the Canadian River. Acquisition of additional right-of-way already has been authorized from the Moore-Potter line south to the north edge of the Amarillo city limits. Even though construction has been authorized for the additional line of four-lane highway south to the Canadian River, it probably will be at least two years before construction begins, a highway spokesman told the NEWS Saturday. Final decision to continue four-lane work south to the Canadian River could hang on a proposal to construct a new four-lane bridge across the river. The highway spokesman, speaking unofficially, indicated that a new bridge would be necessary in order to eliminate a "traffic bottleneck," where four-lane traffic merges into a two-lane existing bridge.—MOORE COUNTY NEWS (Dumas)

CITY BUYS EIGHT T-HANGARS

City commissioners authorized the purchase of eight T-hangars from local pilots at a regular meeting Thursday night. The commissioners ok'd payment of $6,900 for the hangars, $862.50 for each of the hangars. The hangars will be purchased with money remaining in the city airport fund, commissioners said. The city will turn the hangars over to Airport Manager Jerry Haire, who will rent them to flyers. Both the flyers and the commission agreed that income from rent of the hangars is necessary for the manager to make it financially at the new city airport.—COUNTY NEWS (Littlefield)

HIGHWAY PLAN SENT TO AUSTIN

Plans for construction of Highway 60 as a divided highway have been sent to Austin for approval, district highway engineer Chili Smith told the Randal County Commissioners Court in a letter Monday. The letter said the contracts will be let Nov. 12 or 13, provided all the right-of-way has been cleared by then. All the right-of-way has either been purchased or ordered for condemnation suits, the court said. Criminal Dist. Atty. A. W. Lair told the court that the nine suits are ready for trial, and can be called as soon as next week's session of district court is over. He estimated that the suits will all be tried before condemnation commissions by the first of November.—CANYON NEWS

The BOOTLEG Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his bindweed farm has his tongue in his cheek this week, and possibly his foot in his mouth. You decide.

Dear editor:

I have been keeping up with what's going on in Little Rock, Ark., not because I know the answer but because it's interesting to find out what other people's answers are, and I'm just as confused as you and the rest are, yet there's one point that has been developed there that the rest of the country seems to have overlooked.

As I understand it from reading the newspapers that turn up out here on this bindweed farm, even though the schools are closed in Little Rock, the football team is going ahead and playing.

This seems to be one of those great historic discoveries that nobody at the time seemed to recognize, but as I see it, it opens up a brand new idea and is exactly what the schools, especially the colleges, have been needing.

As everybody knows, classes get in the way of football practice on most college campuses; you try flying half way across the United States to play football on the weekend and still get back to class on Monday, when you ought to be watching the films of the game and finding out what you did wrong so you can correct it before the game on the next week-end, and you'll see what I mean, although personally I've never tried it. A college team that doesn't eat, sleep and talk football—well, it just ain't headed for any bowl game.

However, if it's possible to have a football team without attending classes—I'm talking about college football, not professional football, as everybody knows you don't ordinarily play professional football until you make a name for yourself in college—then the long-sought answer is at hand.

Don't misunderstand me; I'm not opposed to football, I'm just trying to help the game. You can't tell me colleges wouldn't play a better brand of football if the players didn't have to attend classes and could devote their entire time to it, and if the Little Rock experiment proves it can be done, there's the answer.

By the way, I sure would like to see Hereford play Olton next week. If you've got a press pass, I'd be glad to borrow it.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

prairie fires were so bad that you could not buy a broom in Hereford stores. They had been bought and used to fight the many fires that year.

"Then there was an epidemic of typhoid fever. It rained very much and there were many lakes. Some of them were shallow, but people drank the water, neglecting to boil it and contracted the disease.

"There several steam plows operating, and my brother Reuben worked on one of them. Eight of the boys were very ill with the fever, but my brother was the only one who lost his life.

"People of those pioneer days were friendlier and neighborly than they are now. They would drive for miles in a buggy or wagon to spend the day visiting with each other. The men and women of that day were sturdy and resourceful.

"Ranchers relied on short native grass for their cattle. The winters were very severe, and we had dust-storms that ruined crops. But if the wheat blew out, there was still time to plant millet or sorghum. If the drouth hit the maize, wheat would be drilled in for winter pasture.

"Mr. Bowman had bought some weaning calves, and he worked very hard to get them into the corral at night. Cattle-men will tell you that there is no sweeter music than the lowing of a herd in the distance. That it was one of the musical sounds of the Plains.

"These sounds were not in the distance, but only a few hundred yards from our home — it was just plain bawling to us, and we could not sleep. In the wee hours of the morning the noise stopped, and there was blessed quiet. We wondered what had quieted them, but slept happily until morning.

"We were early risers, and with the dawn we learned why the noise had stopped. There was not a calf in the corral. By sunup you could see the calves straggling in, two or three here, five or six there, and before 10 a.m., they were back in the corral. Our neighbors, seeing the calves, had mounted horses and bought back any he saw on his way. It would have taken days for two or three men to have gathered them and returned them to the corral.

"Another instance, I remember, is when we came to town one day. While there, a black duster blew in with very high winds.

"In a short time we could see nothing but the boiling dust. We knew it would be foolish to try to face it home, so we spent the night in Hereford. The next morning was clear and beautiful, but we were amazed to see all the vegetation frozen. We thought of our sweet potatoes and hurried home, hoping they would not be ruined before we could cut the frozen vines. Some one had cut the vines before they thawed, thus saving the potatoes for our winter food.

"There was a man in the community who loved to go to town with his neighbor. The neighbor had a Ford car, and he enjoyed the ride.

"One day he told his neighbor he needed to go in to town. The neighbor was very busy and told him to drive the car. He did. He was a great talker, and stayed until it was quite late before starting home.

"There were several gates to open, and at each gate there were three roads, all going in different directions. He took the wrong road and spent the night on the prairie, choosing a soft grassy spot for a bed.

"He never heard the last of the incident and was often asked when he was going to buy a car. 'Never,' he would say. 'Those things don't know the way home. My mules do, so I will continue to drive mules.'

"We often had most of our neighbors in our home on Sunday. There was one lady who Mr. Bowman had not seen for some time, and she had gotten prematurely gray. He asked her if she were still living with that old so-and-so. She gave him a queer look. That set me wondering. I had heard nothing of a separation. We learned that Mr. Bowman thought she was the man's mother. We all laughed, but wondered what the lady thought of the 'impertinence' of Mr. Bowman.

"My hobby is crocheting, and I have made many beautiful things — nine bedspreads, seven tablecloths and many other things too numerous to mention. I also loved piecing quilts, and I have made as many as fifty — maybe even more. It took a lot of covering to keep our family of seven warm in the severe winters then, and our homes were not so well-built as they are now.

"After dust storms we would have work to do as the houses were open and the dust crept through to settle on everything. It has been a joy to see the country develop in schools, homes and industries. I am looking forward to seeing it develop even more."

Social Security Checks To Increase February

The more than 13,395 persons in the Amarillo District now receiving social security checks will get an automatic increase of about 7 per cent on the checks to be mailed out early in February, according to John R. Sanderson, District Manager. There is no need for any of them to write or call at their social security office to get that increase, he said.

"However," Sanderson said, "I know there are several hundred others in this District who will need to talk with a social security representative in order to get benefits started to them."

ie, Giles Cobb, a visitor, Mrs. H. V. McCabe of Dawn, and the hostess.

The next meeting will be Oct. 2 at the Community House with Mrs. Hays as hostess.

For the quickest and most efficient way to start that action, he suggests that a card or letter be written to him at 324 New Post Office Building, Amarillo, briefly outlining the situation below which applies to a particular individual or family:

(1) Certain dependents of persons now receiving disability insurance payments can now qualify for monthly benefits. These are wives at age 62, dependent husbands at age 65, and unmarried children under 18 or disabled children who have been disabled since before age 18.

(2) Persons whose disability claims (either for benefits or the freeze) were previously denied only because they did not have 1 1/2 years of social security credits in the 3-year period just before becoming disabled.

(3) Disabled adult children whose claims were previously denied solely because they were not receiving at least one-half of their support from the retired or deceased parent.

(4) Dependent parents whose claims or inquiries were previously denied only because the deceased son or daughter was survived by a widow, widower or child who could possibly be entitled to benefits.

(5) Anyone whose social security checks were stopped because of marriage, if he or she married a person who was also receiving social security checks. Sanderson suggests that interested persons first write his office about possible benefits so that a mutually convenient interview time may be arranged, either at his office or with a

TEXANS IN WASHINGTON

Samuel Johnson Retrieving Prominent Texas Heritage

Washington, D.C. — Samuel Summers Johnson, 15, is retrieving a proud and prominent Texas heritage.

The fourth in line of Sam Johnsons, he's the only male left to carry on the family name in that lineage. His uncle is Texas' Sen. Lyndon Baines Johnson, whose two children are girls.

To be strictly accurate, the handsome lad's name should have been put in quotation marks. Since 1950 his legal name has been Creighton Summers George. He hopes to get it changed back. In fact, he's just enrolled in a Washington high school as Samuel Summers Johnson.

The boys' father is Samuel Houston Johnson, 44, brother of the senator and a member of the latter's senatorial staff. His mother is the former Albertine Summers of Mattoon, Ill., who had been a congressional secretary.

When his parents separated in World War II and were divorced, the mother took the boy and his year-old sister Josefa Roxanne with her to her central Illinois hometown. She later married O. C. (Pete) George, a Mattoon man in the dry cleaning business.

In 1950, when the children were seven and eight years old, they were legally adopted by the Georges and their names were changed. The sister's name became Roxanne George. She had been named Josefa in honor of one of her father's sisters, now Mrs. James B. Moss, wife of a Fredricksburg, Tex., minister. She is now a high school senior in Mattoon.

A series of events led to young Sam's decision to return here to live with his father. Meanwhile, as he grew up, the name of his uncle Lyndon was being mentioned with increasing frequency in newspaper headlines and on the radio and television newscasts. "Some of my friends who had known me in the first grade and before I went to school called me Sam Johnson, and still do," the friendly, blond-thatched youngster related.

They would believe me whenever I happened to mention that Sen Lyndon Johnson was my uncle. Some of my newer friends would look like they didn't believe me, and then they would always want to know how come my name was changed."

The blue-eyed youngster, who is hoping to become a Congressional page next January, said his maternal grandparents in Mattoon continued to call him Sam on occasions. Once, when they were all watching televised scenes of the 1956 Democratic National Convention in Chicago, the cameras focused on a box of seats reserved for the family and friends of Sen. Lyndon Johnson. Young Sam's father was in the group and was pointed out to him. The boy had not seen his father since infancy.

Steps leading to the recent arrival here of the youth were taken by his father and the new Mrs. Sam Houston Johnson, the former Mary Michelson of Austin and San Antonio. They have no children of their own. Correspondence was begun with the children. Last summer they came to visit the Johnsons. The senator showed his nephew off, introducing him as Sam Johnson. Then the children went back to Illinois.

"I wanted to come back here and live," the boy explained, continuing his story. Then, with an engaging smile, he added, "They all agreed on it, so here I am."

He has a room of his own in the Sam Johnson's second floor suite in the fashionable nine-story Potomac Plaza Apartments overlooking the Potomac River. His school in the nearby Georgetown section is integrated, like all Washington public schools. He is a junior in high school. If he becomes a page, he will attend the Capitol Page School in the Library of Congress — 6:30 a.m. to 10 a.m., then run errands and do other chores for the legislators until about 6 p.m. daily. Two of the 80 boys in the page school are Negroes — they are assigned to the Supreme Court.

With pride and somewhat more interest than the average boy might display in his background, Sam points to the history of the Johnson family as set forth in a genealogy compiled two years ago by his maternal grandmother Rebekah Baines Johnson, who died only a few days ago at the age of 77.

That interesting volume starts off with a biographical sketch of John Johnson, born March 28, 1784, in Oglethorpe County, Ga. and married in 1787 to Ann Ealy. The first of their eight children was Samuel Johnson, born Nov. 16, 1788. The fourth was Jesse, born April 28, 1795.

This Samuel was a farmer, merchant, proprietor of a Tan yard, owner of a school house and post office. His only son was named James.

The first of the four consecutive Sam Johnsons was born Nov. 12, 1838, the tenth and last child of Jesse. Christened

Samuel Early Johnson, he moved with his parents from Georgia to a farm near Lockhart, Tex., in 1846. He served in the Confederate Army in the Civil War and gained fame as a rancher and cattle driver. The family meanwhile had established Johnson City — the present home of the senator, a grandson of the first Sam Johnson, who died Feb. 25, 1915.

Samuel Early Johnson Jr., was born Oct. 11, 1877, in Buda, Hays County, Tex., and died in Austin Oct. 23, 1937. A member of The Texas legislature for many years — he and Speaker Sam Rayburn served together in Austin — he was married in 1907 to Rebekah Baines. They had five children — Lyndon Baines, Bebekah Luruth, Josefa, Sam Houston and Lucia Huffman.

Sam Houston Johnson, now an aide to his brother, handling legislative and public relations matters, was born Jan. 31, 1914, in Johnson City. He has a law degree. In World War II he served with the Office of Strategic Services in north Africa. He was working in Mexico when his first wife got a divorce and changed the children's names. Samuel Summers Johnson was born Oct. 5, 1942, in Austin. Shortly thereafter he came to Washington with his parents and lived for several months at his uncle Lyndon's attractive home in the northwestern part of the city.

What's young Sam interested in? Law and politics.

MEMO TO ADVERTISERS

for advertising, too!

What a fix we'd all be in without those standards of measurement for the goods you buy and sell. Imagine the confusion, waste and doubt in business transactions if we didn't have accepted standards of weights and measures—known values.

We believe it is just as necessary for us to tell you what you get for your advertising dollars, in terms of known circulation value, as it is for you to do business with your customers on the basis of recognized standards. That's why this newspaper is a member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

WHAT IS THE A.B.C.? The Bureau is a cooperative and nonprofit association of 3450 publishers, advertising agencies and advertisers in the United States and Canada. Organized in 1914, A.B.C. brought order out of advertising chaos by establishing a definition for paid-circulation, rules and standards for measuring, auditing and reporting the circulations of newspapers and periodicals.

WHAT A.B.C. DOES FOR YOU. At regular intervals one of the Bureau's large staff of experienced circulation auditors comes to our office and makes a thorough audit of our circulation records. He has access to all of our books and records to obtain the FACTS that tell you what you get for your money when you advertise in this newspaper.

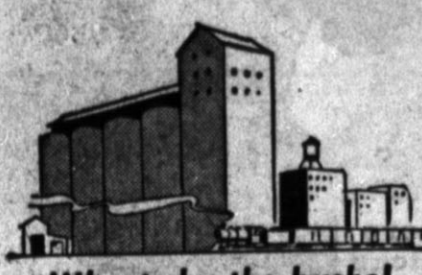

WHAT A.B.C. REPORTS TELL YOU. The circulation FACTS obtained by the A.B.C. auditor are condensed in easy to read A.B.C. reports which tell you: How much circulation we have; where the circulation goes; how it was sold and many other FACTS about the audience we provide for your sales messages. Make your advertising investments on the basis of this audited information. Ask for a copy of our A.B.C. report.

HOLIDAY HELPER
Weekend hunting trips, out of town football games, and pleasant drives to nearby cities are just around the corner now.
If weekend excursions are on your calendar, why not let long distance give you a hand with the arrangements?
A long distance call is the easiest way I know to arrange overnight accommodations, plan visits with friends, check on ticket reservations, save time and trouble on the dozens of details that go into planning a trip.
And when you've reached your destination, a quick call home to make sure everything's all right is worth a lot to your peace of mind. You can relax and enjoy your weekend even more.

TAKE AUTUMN INDOORS
The cool days and brilliant colors of Autumn seem to give folks extra energy for finishing up projects like re-decorating and repainting around the house.
And your family's telephones shouldn't be overlooked when you bring that touch of Fall indoors. Add color phones just as you would new slip covers or curtains for perfect harmony in a favorite setting.
Cherry red, rose, rose pink and pastel yellow are Indian Summer colors that will add a note of warmth and cheer all winter. Phones in moss green, light beige and aqua blue complete color schemes with a touch of softness.
Our gleaming white phones are just the thing to fill a woman's demand for efficiency and clean style in the kitchen. Ivory and light gray are distinctive colors for the elegant touch.

Bible Words for Today

I CORINTHIANS 2:16 - "But we have the mind of Christ."

Who can say that he knows the mind of Christ? The mind of Christ is both illusive and obvious, discursive and fixed, profound and simple. On occasions Jesus revealed the intuitive responsiveness of the poet - "Consider the lilies of the field." At other times he betrayed the full-souled wonder of the mystic. One of the recorded requests of the disciples was their eager desire to know how to pray the way Jesus prayed. In other places we see that the mind of Christ was that of a radical and impatient prophet, exposing injustice, destroying old traditions grown meaningless with age, thrusting the lance of the spoken word into the quick of man's prejudice. And everywhere in the gospels you see that His mind was that of the sensitive humanitarian, whose largest concern was with men, women and children, the sons and daughters of God.

No one can say that he knows fully this mind of Christ. Yet, what discipline can do other than strive to understand it?
