

Valuable Lessons Learned in Fake Disaster

Two Hereford High School
students and some 15

volunteer firemen and policemen were killed early Thursday evening in a collision involving a van and a truck carrying toxic

chemicals at the intersection
of 15th St. and Progressive Rd.

The students died as a result of the accident. The firemen and policemen died
as a result of their eagerness

to help the victims.
What actually happened
was an emergency drill set up
by local hospital, law enforcement, and emergency officials. No lives were lost, but a valuable lesson was learned.

"We feel like it was a good drill," Hereford Fire Marshal
Jay Spain said after the exercise, which took over an hour and caused a lot of excitement. "It reminded us of some of the things we teach

about hazardous materials."

Spain's charges would have suffered some losses if the emergency had been real.
Many of the firemen, and
some policemen, raced to the scene and began rescue operations.
The only problem was that the "accident" included a
cloud of Hydrocyanic Acid,
an extremely hazardous gas.
Those rescuers arriving at the scene without the benefit

of gas masks would have become victims instead.
The gas selected to be at the scene is deadly. According to a manual on hazardous substances, Hydro-cyanic Acid is "extremely hazardous. It may be fatal if inhaled or absorbed through

This was the scene which greeted emergency personnel during a drill Thursday. The overturned van was filled with HHS Key Clubbers posing as victims of the terrible accident. Also involved was a tank truck carrying a deadly gas, which was "escaping" into the air. Officials termed the drill a success. See additional photographs on page 5.

Top Executives Say Recession Is Dying

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — A group of the nation's top
business executives said today the 1981-82 recession is finally dying, although the pain of low profits and high unemployment will linger a while longer.

The executives also were keeping a wary eye on the budget battle in Washington,
concerned that government
deficits soaring above $100
billion, could make for a puny
recovery.

The overall forecast of
economic recovery — beginning in the current April-June quarter — was released today
by the Business Council, a group of about 200 leaders of major U.S. corporations.

The group is holding its semi-annual meeting at a resort in the western Virginia
mountains.
The group's economists

have tended to err on the optimistic side recently,
forecasting last October, for example, a fourth-quarter
end to "the sluggishness" of the U.S. economy.

"The economists are unanimous in believing that
we will not fall into a recession,"
said that report, issued at the start of what now appears to have been the recession's worst quarter.

This time, however, the executives and their forecasters
are far from alone. Most government and private analysts say companies have
set the stage for production
increases by aggressively selling off inventories and that the July tax-rate cut will provide the recovery spark by encouraging consumer spending.

The Business Council
report said national economic

activity, as measured by inflation-adjusted gross national product, will rise
slightly in the current quarter
and then "accelerate to a 4.3
percent annual rate during
the second half" of the year.

That is about what the Reagan administration is forecasting, though some officials say there is a chance
the GNP still will be down a bit this quarter.

"The upturn in economic activity will end the rise in unemployment," the Business Council report said.
But the rate will rise from the March level of 9 percent to a post-World War II record of 9.2 percent before declining,
it said.

That prediction came on
the day the government was releasing April unemployment figures which many

Reagan Accepts Proposal By Budget Committee

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —
President Reagan has taken
a big step toward ending the budget logjam by accepting
the proposal of the Senate
Budget Committee, says Rep.
Marvin Leath of Texas.

"It was a good, positive

step," said Leath, a Democrat from Marlin.

His views coincided with other conservative Texas
Democrats, members of the "Boll Weevil" faction whose support is considered pivotal
for a budget bill to win House
approval.

Says Temple Explanation 'Nonsense'

Clements Says Demos Made A Deal

By KATHY BAKER
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Democratic candidate's announcement that he is

withdrawing from a runoff
was a "secret deal," but a Republican plan to replace nominees with stronger candidates won't be seen as a similar back-room
maneuver, Gov. Bill
Clements says.

At his news conference
Thursday, Clements suggested that some kind of
"consideration" changed
hands between Attorney General Mark White and Railroad Commissioner
Buddy Temple before Temple
dropped out of the Democratic runoff.

Temple announced Thursday that he would bow to party unity and give the nomination to White without a June 5

runoff. Temple had finished a poor second to White in Saturday's primary.

But Clements told a Capitol
news conference the party
unity explanation was
"nonsense."

"I think they have done it
on the basis of some special consideration and what I'm interested in is what was paid
and to whom," Clements
said. "There was a secret
meeting and I want to know
what went on in the secret
meeting and I want to know
what consideration was between these two individuals."

Both Temple and White had
said there was no meeting.

Nevertheless, Clements
said he thought voters would
view Temple's move as a
"secret deal," and would feel
"cheated" to his and the Republican party's benefit in November.

"Collectively, (White and Temple) have four feet between them, and I think they just shot themselves in all four feet."

But Clements insisted that Republican plans to replace
two nominees with stronger
candidates had "been discussed openly" and would not be viewed as a similar

"back-room deal."

"The situation is entirely different," he said. "These
were not serious candidates."

Donald Hebert, the Republican candidate for
agriculture commissioner,
has said he would step aside
for a stronger nominee to run against Democrat Jim Hightower. Hightower
defeated incumbent Reagan
Brown in the primary.

But Millard Neptune, listed
as the Republican nominee
for state treasurer, has put a crimp in Republican plans by continuing to insist he is staying in the race. The 71-year-old Austinite would face the Democratic nominee, former Travis County Commissioner

Ann Richards.

Mrs. Richards had expected to wage a runoff campaign against incumbent Warren G. Harding, who has been indicted on a charge
alleging he had state
employees do campaign
work. But Harding withdrew from the runoff Tuesday, saying he wanted to spare his family "hurt and grief" that
a continued campaign would bring.

State Traffic Deaths Increase

Austin-Texas traffic
deaths increased by six percent last year compared to 1980, according to statistics
compiled by the Department of Public Safety. The mileage
death rate, however, decreased
by two percent. The rate
was 4.2 deaths per hundred million miles traveled in 1981
as compared to 4.3 in 1980.

"A total of 4,701 fatalities
were recorded on our state
streets and highways for 1981," said Colonel Jim Adams, DPS director. "This was the fifth consecutive record year for motor vehicle
deaths in Texas."

DPS reports 2,071 city traffic deaths in 1981 which is 44.1
percent of the total fatalities,
while rural highway accidents claimed 2,630 lives or 55.9 percent of the deaths.

Adams noted that DWI-
related deaths last year totaled 1,082, an increase of eight percent above 1980.

"Fatalities attributed to
drunk driving made up 23
percent of the total killed, according to investigating officers. However, we believe

this figure would be as high
as 50 percent if Texas law
required blood alcohol
measurements from all
drivers involved in fatal accidents," he said.

Motorcycle deaths reached 442 in 1981, rising 17 percent
compared to the previous year. Seventy-five percent of the cyclists killed were not wearing helmets.

"Total accidents reported
by state and local officers last
year numbered 458,017, six percent higher than 1980," Adams pointed out. "Our statistics also show that 206,196 persons were injured
in Texas traffic mishaps in 1981. That amounts to an 11
percent increase over the previous year."

Statistics show motorists
traveled 111,036 billion miles
last year compared to 1980's 103,255 billion miles. This represents an increase of 7.5
percent.

leadership refusing to face
the truth, you've got at least one facing the truth now, with the president accepting the idea there's no way to control
this budget without addressing both revenues and entitlements," Leath said Thursday.

The budget proposed by
Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M.,
head of the Senate committee, is "not a great deal different" from the concepts the Boll Weevils have been pursuing, said Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas.

"We were encouraged by
the action of the Senate Budget Committee and the president's response. It was an important step in the right direction," said Stenholm, of Stamford, chairman of the conservative Democratic coalition.

"We strongly encourage
the House leadership of both parties to make a similar effort," Stenholm added.

He said his group is continuing to work with Rep. Jim Jones, D-Okla., chairman of the House Budget Committee, toward a bipartisan approach that will meet the nation's needs.

However, Democratic
leaders strongly criticized Domenici's budget proposal,
which was approved Wednesday night in his Senate committee by a 10-9 vote that
strictly followed party lines.

"Those who have been wanting the president to move
first, well, he has now," Stenholm added.

UNEMPLOYMENT The Line Moves Up

SOURCE: Department of Labor

NEA/Moffitt Cecil

The jobless rate has had its ups and downs the last few years, but mostly the former. From a low of close to 6 percent of the labor force in February 1980, it moved sharply up until May of that year when it leveled off and then showed slight declines through mid-1981, when it turned sharply up again. The rise has continued into 1982.

Jobless Rate Breaks Record

WASHINGTON (AP) —
Unemployment in the United States jumped to 9.4 percent
last month — breaking the post-World War II record —
the government announced
today. Some 10.3 million people were out of work.

April's jobless rate was up 0.4 of a percentage point from the previous month, more
than enough to set a record.
Not since 1941, when the government began compiling monthly statistics, has unemployment topped 9 percent. In that year, the jobless rate hit 9.9 percent.

At the White House,
presidential spokesman Larry Speakes called today's announcement disappointing
and said, "We remain sensitive to the plight of the unemployed."

He said he could not predict
how far unemployment would rise or when it would begin declining. "We're looking for signs of economic recovery
by late spring-early summer," Speakes said.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy,
D-Mass., charged that the new figures show conclusively
that Reagan's economic
program has failed to do anything but "deliver pink

slip after pink slip after pink
slip to millions of decent men
and women."

"Ronald Reagan's bread
lines grew longer by 450,000
people," Kennedy said, adding that the "country is now
harvesting the bitter fruits of a failed and unfair economic policy. ... Americans all over the country are losing their homes, their hopes and their pride."

One economist said the current high unemployment is
the price of bringing down inflation and others, both in and out of government, predicted
the rate will climb even higher before turning around.

Since last summer, when
the recession that still
plagues the economy set in,
unemployment has risen 2.2
percentage points. In July,
joblessness nationwide stood
at 7.2 percent.

By March, joblessness had risen to 9 percent — equaling
the post-World War II record
set in May 1975, the high point
of the last severe recession.
Some 9.9 million people were
out of work in March.

Suit Filed To Try To Stop Alien Roundup

DALLAS (AP) — A $5 million class-action lawsuit prompted by last week's nationwide roundup of illegal aliens has been filed against the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service in federal court here.

Dallas lawyer Adelfa B. Callejo said the suit, filed Thursday, seeks an immediate injunction against the INS to prevent the agency from deporting parents of children born in the United States.

The suit contends the INS is guilty of age discrimination because U.S.-born citizens 21 or older are permitted to have their immigrant parents live in the United States as "immediate relatives." Citizens under 21 do not have that right.

The lawsuit mentions two families, each with three children, but does not name one of the families for fear its members might be deported.

Mrs. Callejo said the six children range in age from 1 to 10, have lived in Dallas all their lives and have never been to Mexico.

"They are as American as apple pie and hamburgers," she said. "They all fear the threat of being deported to Mexico, where their lives will be totally different and their economic conditions difficult or desperate, and their life plans threatened or destroyed."

Mrs. Callejo said she and David Bolton, the lead attorney in the case, would meet with U.S. District Judge Robert Porter today to ask for an injunction.

The roundup of undocumented workers, dubbed "Operation Jobs," netted 992 aliens in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

School Board Refuses To Ban 'Huck Finn'

HOUSTON (AP) — School board trustees have denied a request by several black parents to ban Mark Twain's novel, "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn," which the parents contend is degrading.

Trustees of the Spring Independent School District unanimously agreed Thursday night that the novel should remain in the curriculum.

One parent, Dora Durden, complained in February that the term "nigger" used throughout the book was humiliating to black students.

James Crews, principal of Westfield High School, appointed a committee of two teachers and a librarian to investigate the complaints. The committee recommended the district continue to use the novel.

Mrs. Durden and another parent, Joseph Malveaux, later asked the school board to place the book on the optional reading list.

District Supt. Gordon Anderson appointed a committee of 11 parents, students and educators to review the request.

Blue Hair Out In Austin School

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An Austin junior high school principal has banned blue hair.

Marcos Perez sent three eighth-graders home from Burnet Junior High on Thursday because they had dyed their hair a brilliant blue. When two of the students returned — their hair still blue — Perez ordered them to in-school suspension the next day.

"In my opinion, (their hair) wasn't appropriate. They were attracting too much attention and disrupting the educational process," said Perez.

Diane Johnston, mother of one of the boys placed on suspension said, "I think this is a serious matter, when my son is not allowed to go to school with the others."

Suspended students are ordered to sit quietly all day in a separate classroom. They are not allowed to attend classes or take part in school activities.

Mrs. Johnston said her son and his friends opted for blue hair when "they ran across this can of blue hair spray, the punk rock type. It comes out very brilliant."

"I thought all this fuss about hair styles at school went out with the 60s," she said.

Charges Filed Against 421 Motorists During Roadblock

SAN MARCOS, Texas (AP) — The Department of Public Safety said today it filed 421 charges against motorists during a 12-hour roadblock of Interstate 35 north of here.

DPS spokesman Larry Todd said 3,932 motorists were stopped during the roadblock, which ended at 3 a.m. today.

Todd said 16 motorists were cited for driving while intoxicated, nine arrested on drug-related charges, three for carrying prohibited weapons, and one motorist was arrested for driving a stolen vehicle.

He said 188 were issued citations for not carrying proof of liability insurance. He said the remainder of the citations were for not having proper drivers licenses or vehicle registrations.

The DPS used 40 officers to operate mobile command posts on both sides of the interstate. The Hays County Sheriff's Department, the Drug Enforcement Administration, and the Immigration and Naturalization Service assisted the DPS.

Britain Still Skeptical

Ros Trying To End Conflict

By The Associated Press

A top Argentine official headed to the United Nations today to pursue a diplomatic solution to the Falkland Islands crisis, but Britain was skeptical of the effort, warned it might bomb the islands' main airfield again, and refused to rule out strikes against mainland Argentine bases.

The Argentine official, Deputy Foreign Minister Enrique Ros, left Buenos Aires Thursday night for U.N. headquarters in New York to discuss possible ways to end the conflict that erupted April 2 when Argentine forces seized the Falklands from Britain.

British Foreign Secretary Francis Pym accused the Argentines of scuttling peace efforts and told reporters in London today that British warplanes will bomb the airstrip on the Falkland Islands capital of Stanley if Argentine troops repair the damage of two raids in the past seven days.

"If necessary we will bomb the airfield again," Pym said. He also refused to rule out bombing Argentine mainland airfields, although he said Britain did not want to do this. "But I would not want to exclude any possibility," he said.

Britain lost two more of its Sea Harrier jet fighters in bad weather off the Falklands Thursday, the British Defense Ministry said, and British newspapers speculated today they collided in the air after taking off on a combat patrol. This left 17 of the original 20 Harriers with the armada still operational.

Amid growing expectations the British will soon assault the South Atlantic islands, Pym told the House of Commons in London:

"If all endeavors to meet a sensible, reasonable and fair settlement fail, then regrettably nobody is in any doubt what we are going to do — we cannot allow the occupation of our islands to continue...Our resolve is undiminished."

Pym blamed Argentine insistence on sovereignty over the Falklands for the collapse of a U.S.-Peruvian peace plan that he claimed could have brought a cease-fire today.

He said Britain was pursuing the only surviving diplomatic option, a U.N. plan he described as having a "similar basis" to the Peruvian proposals.

"The Argentine government claims to have accepted these (U.N.) ideas. We are skeptical of this claim," Pym said.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said the British government accepted another peace plan put forward by U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar as a "framework" for negotiations. But she said British military activity would continue until Argentina agreed to remove its troops from the Falklands.

Informed sources said Perez de Cuellar's plan calls for a cease-fire, a phased withdrawal of Argentine and British forces from the war zone, and U.N. administration of the Falklands while Britain and Argentina negotiate their future. Argentina responded to this with a statement accepting U.N. "intervention" and proposing an immediate cease-fire but saying nothing about the rest of the plan.

Mrs. Thatcher said this was "a very evident ploy to keep them in possession of their ill-gotten gains."

The Argentine government announced that it sent Deputy Foreign Minister Enrique Ros to U.N. headquarters in New York Thursday night to discuss possible ways to end the undeclared war.

An Argentine war bulletin Thursday said 19 of its troops had been killed and 37 wounded in British attacks on the Falklands since Saturday. It said this included eight killed and six wounded in a helicopter attack on the patrol boat Sobral Monday, and it was assumed that the rest were casualties in the British air attacks on the Falklands airstrips.

The casualty summary apparently did not include losses aboard the cruiser General Belgrano, which a British submarine torpedoed and sank last Sunday outside the blockade zone declared by Britain. The Argentine government has reported the rescue of 680 crewmen, and the ship's full complement was 1,042. But unofficial reports said it might not have been fully manned.

In addition to the two pilots missing Thursday, the British have reported 22 dead. Twenty of them died when an Argentine missile set the destroyer Sheffield afire and forced its abandonment, and 24 other Sheffield crewmen were injured, one seriously, the British Defense Ministry announced Thursday.

Quick Action Not Likely To Be Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite new declarations of Reagan administration support, proposals to restore prayer in public schools and prohibit busing for desegregation are unlikely to be approved in Congress this year.

Democratic opposition in the House, the likelihood of a liberal filibuster in the Senate and the press of other business seem likely to torpedo quick action on those issues during the 97th Congress.

Some Democrats said they believe President Reagan is seeking to use social issues like busing and prayer to turn voters' minds away from a faltering economy.

"He is appealing to the public to forget about economic problems and give their attention to things like prayer, abortion and the elimination of busing," said Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif.

Edwards is a liberal member of the House Judiciary Committee, which has jurisdiction over busing and prayer legislation. He predicted efforts to restore prayer and bar busing will fail in the committee.

On busing, Attorney General William French Smith said for the first time Thursday that he believes a bill in Congress to sharply limit the power of federal courts to order school busing is constitutional.

On school prayer, Reagan announced Thursday at a White House Rose Garden ceremony that he soon will propose a constitutional amendment to reverse the 1963 Supreme Court decision banning voluntary school prayer.

Reagan told a group of 100 conservative religious leaders, including Jerry Falwell of the Majority Majority, that he wants to "restore a freedom our Constitution was always meant to protect."

"No one must ever be forced or coerced or pressured to take part in any religious exercise, but neither should the government forbid religious practice," Reagan said.

Religious values are "deeply embedded in our national character," Reagan said.

The president said "well-meaning Americans" have taken away the right to pray in schools. "For the sake of freedom...For the sake of religious tolerance they have forbidden religious practice in our public classrooms."

"No one will ever convince me that a moment of voluntary prayer will harm a child or threaten a school or state," he said.

The president conceded it would be difficult to get such an amendment through Congress, where a two-thirds vote would be necessary in the House and Senate. Once through Congress the measure would have to be ratified by three-fourths of the state legislatures to take effect.

In New York City, the B'nai B'rith Anti-Defamation League asked Reagan to withdraw his proposal within hours after it was made, calling it "an ill-conceived and divisive attempt to undermine court rulings based on a cardinal principle of the Bill of Rights."

Accepts

our leadership taking some initiative of coming up with a responsible budget, I am going to come down on the side of whoever does. Right now, that's the president," Leath said.

Criticism by Speaker of the House Tip O'Neill and House Majority Leader Tip O'Neill of Domenici's proposal came while Jones sought to work into his committee bill a "shopping list" the Boll Weevils gave Democratic leaders two weeks ago.

"My understanding is that the Jones and Domenici budgets, and the figures we're using, are not really that far apart," Leath said.

"It does seem incompatible, considering the criticism from the leadership, but I think you've got two extreme situations — what the speaker is saying and, I guess, what (Sen. Jack) Kemp is saying," Leath added.

"They're both wrong. There's a middle ground that both sides of Congress will come down on, and we hope Jim Jones is in the middle ground."

Rep. Phil Gramm, D-Texas, of College Station called Domenici's budget proposal "an important first step in the right direction" and expressed sorrow that Democrats on the Senate Budget Committee all opposed it.

"We clearly are going to have to have bipartisan support to pass it in the House," said Gramm, the Democratic sponsor of Reagan's budget legislation in 1981.

Domenici's bill, Gramm said, "would truly be a low-interest, high-growth, job-creating budget. At the same time, it is going to be a tough budget to pass, politically, but it's exactly the type budget the American people need."

Gramm has been a leader in the movement to cut the increases in entitlement spending.

"After inflation, the salary of the average worker in America did not grow at all in the 1970s. At the same time, entitlements was growing by 8 percent, after inflation in real terms," Gramm added.

"It's that type of transfer, from those who are pulling the wagon to those riding in it, that has brought about the major threat to our system."

The Boll Weevils are almost unanimous in wanting to retain the third year of the tax cut — a 10 percent slice scheduled to go into effect on July 1, 1983. However, most say they would be willing to accept some adjustment.

On the other hand, O'Neill and Wright have gone on record as saying the third year of the tax cut must be repealed.

The leadership also opposes substantial cuts in entitlement programs and wants more cuts made in defense spending.

"I'm not going to vote for a cut in defense spending unless the commander in chief recommends it. He's closer to it than we are," said Rep. Ralph Hall, D-Texas, of Rockwall.

"I don't want to cut Social Security or entitlement programs per se, but I think we are going to have to look at the increases," said Rep. Sam B. Hall, D-Texas, of Marshall.

with it."

Meanwhile, Common Cause issued a statement saying it is calling for public financing of statewide, non-judicial races beginning in 1986. The campaign fund would be financed by a 50 cents-per-voter annual appropriation and be administered by a state ethics commission.

Candidates would have to raise minimum "threshold" money before qualifying for public financing of their campaigns, the statement said.

Armstrong held his news conference shortly after Railroad Commissioner Bud dy Temple announced he was dropping out of a June 5 runoff with Attorney General Mark White, who now is the Democratic gubernatorial nominee.

Temple said he was withdrawing for party unity, but some sources close to his campaign had been quoted as saying the combination of White's strong showing and the amount of money needed for the five-week runoff campaign prompted Temple's decision.

After getting only about 20 percent of the vote to Temple's second-place 29 percent by Saturday night, Armstrong had sadly departed his "victory" party, asking the rhetorical question: "If I'd had a million more dollars, do you think I'd have made up nine percentage points?"

When all the votes were counted days later, his share of the votes had dropped to less than 20 percent. Attorney General Mark White finished first with 44.7 percent, Temple with 30.4.

White raised about $1.76 million for the primary and Temple about $1.3 million. Armstrong raised about $634,000.

Deal from page 1

from the June 5 ballot and gives the nomination to White, who finished Saturday with 44.7 percent of the vote to Temple's 30.4. Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong finished third.

Clements said he was "delighted" to be facing White in the general election and said he considers White easier to defeat than either Temple or Armstrong.

"He's exactly the candidate I wanted from the very beginning," said Clements, who said Saturday that he did not care which candidate won the Democratic nomination. The two have been adversaries in the past over politically hot issues such as redistricting and a federal prison suit against the Texas Department of Corrections.

Clements said he would be willing to debate White "several times" during the general election campaign, once "times, places and circumstances" were agreed upon.

"I have a history of debating attorney generals," he said.

economists predicted would exceed 9 percent — the previous high since World War II.

Turning to the recessions effect on employers, a number of business officials at the meeting said many companies' profits will be down again this quarter.

Charles L. Brown, board chairman of AT&T and vice chairman of the Business Council, told reporters the group's economists expect the strength of the recovery to depend on how low interest rates fall. And their estimates of those rates vary widely.

"I was disappointed that you couldn't run a campaign like I thought you could — on hard work," Armstrong said. "Money does have a lot to do

Group, Candidate Call For Public Campaign Financing

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A candidate who finished out of the money in the race for the Democratic nomination for governor has been joined by a citizens lobby group in calling for public financing of statewide elections.

Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, who finished third in Saturday's primary, told a Capitol news conference Thursday that money plays too big a role in campaigns.

"I was disappointed that you couldn't run a campaign like I thought you could — on hard work," Armstrong said. "Money does have a lot to do

with it."

Meanwhile, Common Cause issued a statement saying it is calling for public financing of statewide, non-judicial races beginning in 1986. The campaign fund would be financed by a 50 cents-per-voter annual appropriation and be administered by a state ethics commission.

Candidates would have to raise minimum "threshold" money before qualifying for public financing of their campaigns, the statement said.

Armstrong held his news conference shortly after Railroad Commissioner Bud

Jobless

slump hit that nation's manufacturers the hardest, with unemployment among blue-collar workers reaching 13.7 percent in April, a record. Unemployment among adult men, traditionally the most stable segment of the labor force, spurted to 8.2 percent, also a new high. Teenage unemployment shot up to 23 percent, and joblessness among blacks reached 18.4 percent, both records.

In addition, the number of Americans who were forced to accept part-time employment exceeded 5.8 million — the most since the government began keeping such figures more than a decade ago.

Last month, 453,000 Americans were thrown out of work, according to the seasonally adjusted figures produced by the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics. Total employment stood at 99.3 million, a decline of 152,000 since March, even though 300,000 more people were looking for work.

In remarks prepared for delivery later in the day to the congressional Joint Economic Committee, the bureau's commissioner, Janet Norwood, said, "Job market conditions continued to deteriorate in April. Employment in construction responded very weakly to the improved spring weather and factory jobs continued to decline."

Job cutbacks in construction and manufacturing accounted for most of the over-the-month decline, the bureau said. Construction employment was down 85,000 in April, and over the last 12 months, nearly one in 10 construction jobs has been lost.

At the same time, full-time workers continued to see their hours cut back. The bureau said the average workweek of production workers on non-agricultural payrolls in April was 34.8 hours, down 0.1 hour from March.

Billy Graham Film To Show Sunday

"The Living Word," a new film produced by World Wide Pictures, the film ministry of the Billy Graham organization, will be shown at Palo Duro Baptist Church, located six miles south of Wildorado, on Sunday evening.

The Rev. Cliff Hargrove,

pastor, invites the public to attend this free showing which begins at 7:15 p.m. Featuring narration by Billy Graham and Cliff Barrows, the film weaves together Scripture passages, great works of religious art, music, and "some of the most stunning color footage ever filmed in the Holy Land."

According to the producers, "The Living Word" brings the pages of the Bible to life

by showing its relevance to twentieth-century mankind. They add that it answers questions about what the Christian faith is and how individuals can discover their part in a divine plan.

World Wide Picture is also the producer of the award-winning film, "The Hiding Place," and the recent film, "Joni," which stars Joni Eareckson, a quadriplegic, as herself.

Children's Choirs To Perform Musical

The Carol and Sunshine Choirs of the First United Methodist Church will be performing the musical "Daniel" by William Anderson May 18-19. The first performance will be Tuesday, May 18 at 7 p.m. at King's Manor. Playing the part of Daniel will be Shaun Moore. At the second performance, scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 19 at the First United Methodist Church Fellowship Hall, Jason Jones will portray Daniel.

The songs being sung in this musical are "This is a Tale," "Let's Just Praise the King," "Daniel's Prayer," "To the Lion's Den," "Glory be to the Father," and "Daniel."

The choir will be directed by Bert Bostic, minister of Music. Stage Directors are Betty Decker and Linda Thorell. Tina Langhenning is the accompanist.

Ann Landers

Love Cannot Be Weighed

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hope you will be able to answer this in your column because I, like many others, am too ashamed to sign my name. The problem has been with me for quite a while. In the last year or so it has been making me sick.

I have two young daughters. They are very different in looks, temperament and personality.

I have tried to love them equally, as a mother should, but it is impossible. In my heart I favor one over the other. I know this is wrong and have prayed for the Lord's help, but my favorite daughter has always brought me so much pleasure and joy—and the other one, very little.

I have never heard of a mother who did not love her children equally. Either I am abnormal or this is something not easily admitted.

May I have your views?—Connie In Conn.

DEAR CONNIE: It is impossible to weigh love, as if it were a sack of sugar. There is no such thing as loving children equally. Each child is an individual. Parents cannot help but respond to their various qualities—both the lovable and unlovable.

What is difficult is to behave in an even-handed, impartial manner. And this is where you are probably having trouble. Stop feeling guilty. What you have expressed is not wrong. It is what makes you human.

DEAR ANN LANDERS:

Hospital Fund

Established For Shirley Barber

A hospital fund has been established for Shirley Barber at First National Bank and Hereford State Bank.

Mrs. Barber, who is a teacher at La Plata Junior High School, has been in the intensive care unit of St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo for three weeks.

Her husband, Wayne, is a teacher at Hereford High School.

I'm a grown woman with a family. The problem is a cousin I grew up with. She is as close as a sister. Mary Lou has been bossy all her life, and I have overlooked this quality because she has so many good ones.

The woman has a habit that is beginning to get to me. I need to know how to handle it. We talk on the phone almost every day. Mary Lou calls me because she has no children at home and more time on her hands than I. This is the way our conversations usually start:

Mary Lou: "My goodness, but you certainly are long-winded! Who on earth have you been talking to?"

Or: "I called the phone company and asked them to check your line to see if it was out of order. Nobody can talk THAT LONG!"

Or: "So you finally decided to get off the phone? Who is so interesting?"

I've really had it. What do you suggest?—Tuscaloosa Complaint

DEAR TUS: You owe Mary Lou no explanation and no apologies. It's not her business who you were talking with or for how long.

The next time she gives you that routine, ignore her barbs and ask her a question that is totally unrelated. If you do this a few times, she'll get the idea and lay off.

DEAR ANN LANDERS:

My best friend called recently at 3 a.m. to report her husband was driving her to the emergency room of the nearest hospital. She was having terrible abdominal pains and asked if I would come over and stay with her two pre-school children. Of course I went.

The following day she was feeling much better. The diagnosis: gonorrhea. It seems her husband, "Mr. Perfect," had finally given her something. If this had happened to me, I'd have kicked the bum out. She has already forgiven him and everything is lovely. I think she is crazy. What do you think?—Lake Forest, Ill.

DEAR LAKE: She didn't ask me. When she does, I'll tell her.

Emergency Personnel React to Disaster Drill

of the skin. Vapors are non-irritating, and deaden the sense of smell. Some of these materials are highly inflammable, and containers may explode in the heat of a fire.

The drill was set up to fulfill requirements of Deaf Smith General Hospital as part of its accreditation process. Only a handful of people knew it was coming, including Spain, hospital administrator Jim Bullard, police Chief Don Brush, and Sheriff Travis McPherson.

"It (the drill) was necessary if for nothing more than to let us see how we respond in a situation like that," Bullard said. "And, we are required for our accreditation to perform one outside disaster per year."

Involved in the drill were firemen, policemen, sheriff's department personnel, ambulance personnel, emergency room personnel, and local physicians and nurses, none of whom knew the drill was coming.

The victims were HHS Key Club members, who had spent as much as two hours getting their "wounds" put on and setting the tragedy up. A total of 13 victims were placed at the scene, with two of them supposed to be dead as emergency personnel arrived.

Only a few minutes after the alarm was sounded the first volunteer firemen arrived, some of them in their private vehicles. As they ran to the scene, they were informed by Spain or hospital representative Shawn Poland that they "were dead."

Realism was such that the intersection quickly became a collection of curious onlookers, newspeople, confused rescuers, and the "victims."

"You want aggressiveness

of course," Spain said. "But, there's a fine line between aggressiveness and foolishness. We learned in this drill that a dead fireman or policeman is no good; they just become more victims that have to be taken care of."

In fairness, Spain pointed out that the tanker used in the drill was one that had just a few hours before been used at a fire at the city dump, and many of the firemen responding to the call recognized it as a city vehicle.

"We had just used that tanker to haul water to the dump," Spain said. "Many of the firemen knew that and they just thought they were still hauling water and came right on in."

Still, the truck had been tagged with a red placard with the symbol "10-51" on it. According to Spain the firemen should have been a little more cautious in responding and taken care to put on their gas masks before moving in.

"This reminded us that any time a tank truck has placards on it you should proceed with caution," Spain added.

After cancelling the toxic gas part of the drill, the rescuers began extricating the victims, assisting hospital and ambulance personnel. The victims were examined as to injury, and transported to the hospital in order of severity of injury.

At the hospital the victims were met at the emergency entrance by an organized team of medical personnel. Dr. Duffy McBryer was at the scene to assess the severity of injury and to direct the victims to the proper area for treatment, whether it was the emergency room or to surgery.

Volunteers were on hand to help the ambulance drivers unload the victims into the hospital.

This was the first time, according to Bullard, that the hospital had used the rear emergency entrance in this type of drill. "We usually come through the front door right into the emergency area," Bullard said. "We found the back doors to be a little more congested than the front, but it was better for crowd control since more curious people come to the front door in an emergency."

"I think two things we learned in the drill was that it showed the firemen to be a little more careful of what they walk up on," Bullard continued. "And, we learned to appreciate them (the firemen) even that much more."

"We know we can take care of people once they are pulled out of a situation, but we can't get them out," he explained. "We would have been in serious trouble if the gas had been there because we would have had maybe eight people at the scene to take care of some 20 victims."

In conclusion, Spain said, "this was pretty realistic, except for the fact that an accident involving a toxic chemical in this area probably would have occurred on Highway 60 on the railroad tracks. You would be surprised as what comes through Hereford on trucks on by rail."

"We were reminded of a lot of things...we learned a lot of things here today," he said.

AL Pitchers Want to Forget Thursday Night

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

While Gaylord Perry was making it a night to remember with his 300th victory, it was one that four other American League pitchers would like to forget.

— Jim Palmer of the Baltimore Orioles, seeking his 250th triumph, faced only three batters before leaving with a stiff neck Thursday night as the Orioles pounded the California Angels 9-2.

— Doyle Alexander of the New York Yankees, a 7-3 loser to Perry and the Seattle Mariners, suffered a broken knuckle on the little finger of his pitching hand when he punched the dugout wall after surrendering five runs in the third inning, four of them unearned.

— Cleveland's John Denny yielded only three hits, but two were RBI singles by Dan Meyer and Rickey Henderson and one was a homer by Dwayne Murphy as the Oakland A's won their seventh game in a row, downing the Indians 4-2. Denny allowed only one hit after the second inning and retired 20 of the last 21 batters he faced.

— And Boston starter Bob Ojeda, three outs away from the five innings necessary to be the winning pitcher, was yanked by Manager Ralph Houk with a 4-2 lead and the Red Sox went on to defeat Texas 5-2, the Rangers' 12th consecutive setback.

In the only other American League game, the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Minnesota Twins 6-3.

But the night belonged to Perry, in his 21st big league campaign and at 43 the oldest player in the majors. He scattered nine hits, several of the infield variety, in becoming only the 15th pitcher to win 300 games.

Perry, who was released by the Atlanta Braves last year and pitched his way onto the Mariners in spring training, doffed his cap, exposing his bald head, and threw kisses to the crowd of 27,369 in the Seattle Kingdome as he left the field.

"It was great," said a champagne-drenched Perry, who walked one and struck out four. "It was like the last game of a World Series out there. It was very exciting. I had pretty good velocity tonight. I had enough to straighten a few guys up."

Perry blanked the Yankees until Ken Griffey homered in the sixth inning. By that time, the Mariners had a 5-0 lead, scoring five times in the third inning with the help of an error by catcher Rick Cerone.

Jim Maler opened the Mariners' big inning with a triple and scored on Bud Bulling's single off Alexander's glove. Julio Cruz sacrificed and Cerone threw the ball away as Bulling took third and Cruz went to second.

Manny Castillo's bloop single scored Bulling and the runners advanced to second and third when no one cut off the throw from the outfield. Alexander retired Bryce Bochte on a pop fly and fanned Richie Zisk, but Todd Cruz rapped a two-run single and scored on a triple by Al Cowens.

Orioles 9, Angels 2
Dan Ford's tie-breaking two-out, two-run single in the ninth inning triggered a seven-run outburst as the Orioles handed the Angels their first loss in 10 home games this season. Ross Grimsley, who took over for Palmer in the first inning, received credit for his first major league victory since 1980. He blanked the Angels on six hits for 7-3 innings.

Baltimore loaded the bases in the ninth against California relief ace Don Aase on a one-out walk to Rick Dempsey, Terry Crowley's pinch single and a walk to Rich Dauer. After Ford's third hit of the game made it 4-2, Ken Singleton followed with a three-run homer, John Lowenstein doubled and Gary Roenicke homered.

A's 4, Indians 2
Rickey Henderson led off the Oakland first and reached base on an error by Cleveland shortstop Jerry Dybziński, then stole his 27th and 28th bases of the season. After Murphy walked, Dan Meyer singled, scoring Henderson and sending Murphy to third. Tony Armas grounded to third, and when Toby Harrah threw to second for a forceout, Murphy broke for the plate and scored easily. Henderson singled a run across in the second inning and Denny then retired 18 batters in a row before Murphy homered in the eighth.

Red Sox 5, Rangers 2
Jim Rice and Tony Perez homered while Dave Stapleton lashed a pair of doubles as the Red Sox pounded out six extra-base hits among their 13 safeties. Perez drove in a run with a first-inning grounder and the Red Sox made it 3-0 in the fourth when Stapleton and Glenn Hoffman doubled and Jerry Remy had an RBI single. Perez homered in the fifth, Rice in the seventh. Ojeda yielded a two-run homer to Lamar Johnson in the fourth and Bob Stanley replaced him with two runners on base and no one out in the fifth.

UT, Houston Favored Fems In SWC Meet

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas, which won its second consecutive state women's track title last week, and Houston are favored in the Southwest Conference Women's Track Championships Friday and Saturday.

Only three finals — the discus, long jump and javelin — were scheduled for Friday. Other events start at 6:30 p.m. Saturday.

Last year, in the first annual SWC women's track meet, Texas defeated Arkansas, Texas A&M and Texas Tech for the championship.

All SWC schools will compete this year except Southern Methodist, which does not have a women's track team.

Brewers 6, Twins 3
Cecil Cooper singled home the tie-breaking run in the sixth inning and Ben Oglivie added a decisive three-run double in the eighth. Loser Brad Havens had a one-hitter and had retired 11 successive batters until Robin Yount tripled with two out in the sixth and scored on Cooper's single to break a 2-2 tie. The Brewers filled the bases with two out in the eighth on a single by Mark Brouhard, a bunt single by Paul Molitor and a walk and Oglivie cleared them.

Monday's Triple Steams Expos' Fans

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

Montreal Expos' fans still remember Rick Monday with a vehemence. He was the one who cost their team the pennant last year with a ninth-inning home run in the National League playoffs.

On Thursday, he gave them more to remember.

The Los Angeles Dodger outfielder jogged their memories with a triple in a three-run first inning that helped the defending World Champions beat the Expos 3-2.

Ironically, Monday's blow

hit a spot on the center-field wall at Olympic Stadium in Montreal that wasn't far from his homer last October against Steve Rogers.

Another thing that happened Thursday was a bitter backlash against Monday from the Montreal fans. Throughout most of the game, the Dodger right fielder was taunted and booed by fans in the right-field bleachers.

"There was one girl out there who must know every vulgar word in the English language," he said. "Not to mention some of the French ones that I couldn't understand."

Monday's triple drove in one of the Dodger runs. The others came on doubles by Steve Garvey and Pedro Guerrero off Scott Sanderson, 3-2.

Staked to the 3-0 lead, Dodger starter Jerry Reuss hung on to post the victory with last-inning relief help from Tom Neidenfur.

Gary Carter hit a pair of solo home runs for the Expos' scoring.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Philadelphia Phillies outslugged the San Diego Padres 12-7 and the San Francisco Giants defeated the New York Mets 5-3.

Phillies 12, Padres 7
George Vukovich stroked four hits and drove in five runs, the best offensive production of his brief major league career, as Philadelphia whipped San Diego.

Vukovich led an offensive parade that produced 25 hits and 19 runs between the teams, coming against eight pitchers.

Philadelphia starter Larry Christenson was credited with his second victory in five decisions, while Juan Eichelberger, 2-4, took the loss.

Giants 5, Mets 3
Chili Davis broke a 3-3 tie in the ninth inning with a two-run double, lifting San Francisco over New York.

Jose Arrias started the San Francisco rally with a leadoff walk. One out later, Johnnie LeMaster lined his third single of the game, putting runners on first and second. Both runners moved up on a passed ball by Mets catcher John Stearns.

Davis then smacked reliever Jesse Orosco's 3-2 pitch into right-center field, clearing the bases. Orosco, 0-4, had not allowed a run in his last 11 innings of relief before Davis' double. The winner was reliever Greg Minton, 2-1.

The Mets jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the first inning on Dave Kingman's three-run homer. The Giants tied it in the fourth, as Jack Clark doubled home two runs and Johnnie LeMaster singled in another.

Kingman's homer, by the way, was his 301st lifetime, tying him with Rogers Hornsby for 43rd place on the all-time list.

Perry Gets to 300, Toasts Over-40 Crowd

By JOHN NELSON AP Sports Writer

SEATTLE (AP) — Gaylord Jackson Perry raised a plastic cup of champagne and made this toast: "Here's to you fellas. Here's to everybody over 40."

His toast echoed into baseball's Hall of Fame, which almost certainly will be Perry's next stop on the road to baseball immortality.

At 43 years of age and the oldest player in the major leagues, Perry became the 15th pitcher to win 300 games in a career Thursday night by beating the New York Yankees 7-3. With the victory, he joined baseball's most elite pitching cadre.

He became only one of three men alive to win 300 games, the others being Early Wynn and Warren Spahn. Six of the 15 pitchers who have won 300 won the majority of those games before 1900, when baseball bore little resemblance to the game played today.

"I got a couple of chills when the fans started cheering like they did," said Perry.

Perry was welcomed at the start of the game with a standing ovation, then forced to return to the field afterward by 27,369 admirers who would not be denied one more chance to cheer their hero on his most glorious day.

Perry, who turns 44 in September, won his 300th game on his first try in his 21st major league season. It was a season that very nearly wasn't for the peanut farmer from Williamson, N.C.

Cut by the Atlanta Braves last August after an 8-9 record in the strike-shortened season of 1981, Perry was not invited to the Mariners spring training camp in Tempe, Ariz., until March 5. On March 27, he signed a one-year contract with the club, just three victories shy of 300.

"I never think negative," Perry said of his late signing.

"I never think about not winning. I never think about not playing. The most important thing I can tell these kids here is how great it is to win."

"I still feel like I can win many more."

He looked like a much younger than 43 on Thursday night. He was in total control of the game in almost each inning. He yielded a sixth-inning homer to Ken Griffey after a controversial call gave the New York outfielder a second life at the plate. The pitch before the homer, Griffey was called out on a tapper by the plate, but third-base umpire George Maloney ruled the ball had hit Griffey's foot, thus being foul. In the eighth, he appeared to lose his concentration, giving up two runs after loading the bases on three singles with one out.

In the ninth inning, however — during the inning in which he secured his spot in baseball history — Perry got the side out 1-2-3.

"I wanted to get ahead of the batters in the ninth," Perry said. "I didn't want it to be like the eighth inning when they had the bases loaded...after so many runs, I didn't want to lose the game."

Perry's 300th came on his first try. He won No. 299 last Friday night in New York, beating the Yankees 6-3 with 8 2/3 innings of seven-hit pitching.

Perry probably has been best known for throwing a spitter, greaseball, or some other form of doctored pitch. Thursday night, second base umpire Bill Haller, the crew chief, took a look at the ball once, then tossed it back to Perry, apparently finding nothing but cowhide on the ball.

"Maybe you guys will recognize me now for winning 300 games," Perry said, "and not for that other pitch."

How Far Have 0-for-May Rangers Come Since '72?

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Ted Williams was the manager. The year was 1972, and the Texas Rangers almost went 0-for-September. They lost 15 games in a row with a team that had a batting average of .217.

It was the first year of the franchise shift from Washington.

Just how far have the Rangers come?

Well, they've still never won a pennant, just finished their worst April in history, and after Thursday night's game against Boston now have lost 13 in a row and are 0-for-May.

However, the current team of such stars as Larry Parrish, Buddy Bell, and Jim Sundberg are more talented than the 1972 outfit which had such journeymen as Larry Bittner, Elliott Maddox and Dave Nelson.

So what has happened in the early part of the season to the Rangers, who currently reside in the cellar of the American League West?

A combination of poor starting pitching (the worst ERA in the league), critical defensive lapses, a "Who's-in-Left?" outfield, and poor clutch hitting has left the Rangers searching for answers.

Each pitcher has given up as many hits as inning pitched.

The defense has averaged an error a game, including two that lost games on relay throws that went into the dugout in the late innings.

The Rangers traded hot young pitching prospect Ronnie Darling and Walt Terrell to the New York Mets for Lee Mazzilli then discovered he can't play left field.

Mazzilli is a centerfielder but can't play there because of the fast-improving rookie George Wright. And injured Mickey Rivers will be available soon.

The high-priced Mazzilli has been turned into a designated hitter but his replacement in left field, Billy Sample, has a less-than-average glove.

Parrish, obtained from Montreal in the Al Oliver deal, has been a big bust so far against AL curveballs.

Starting out as the cleanup hitter, Parrish has been dropped in he lineup because of his lack of production. He was hitting .149 with only four RBIs.

The word is out: Make Parrish hit curves. He has yet to adjust although he is taking extra batting practice each day.

The Rangers have had little RBI production out of their platoon first basemen, Lamar Johnson and Pat Putnam, who had knocked in four and three runs, respectively.

POVERTY IN AMERICA

SOURCE: Bureau of the Census
NEA/Moffitt Cecil

After years of declining, the numbers of Americans with incomes below the poverty line recently have turned up again. The statistics, compiled by the Census Bureau through 1980 and therefore not reflecting current cuts in social programs, indicate the elderly benefited most during the decline in the poverty count and are most affected by the upturn. The small graph shows the total percentages of elderly persons who are poor and Americans who are poor.

Due to Beating

Actress Misses Premiere of 'Evita'

By KENNETH JAUTZ
Associated Press Writer

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — It was two nights before opening, and Isabel Weicken was going home from a successful preview performance in the title role of "Evita," the musical based on the life of the tempestuous Argentine leader. She never made the premiere.

As she approached her apartment building late March 12, two men smashed her nose and eyes. The beating left her face covered with bruises, almost ended her career and caused an uproar that is still shaking Vienna's staid cultural circles.

Several days later police arrested the suspected organizer of the assault who said he was paid 25,000 schillings — about $1,500 — to arrange the attack.

The man told police that he was paid by Werner Ploner, the former boyfriend, agent and housemate of Vera Gutman, who alternated in the role of Eva Peron with Miss Weicken.

"The whole thing is hard to believe, it's so crazy," said the 42-year-old Ploner, one of Austria's leading theatrical agents.

"Evita" chronicles the rise and deification of Mrs. Peron, who came from obscure poverty to become the popular and influential wife of military dictator Juan Peron, ruler of Argentina from 1946 to 1955. She died of cancer in 1952.

Ploner was held by police for two days and released without being charged, although newspapers reported investigators were divided over the case.

Austrian newspapers gave the story extensive space, especially when Ploner was taken into custody and then released. They reported that Ploner had allegedly arranged the attack in a complicated scheme to boost Miss Gutman's career and win back her favor.

The tabloid Kronenzeitung, the country's largest selling newspaper, headlined, "Ex-boyfriend Wants to Win Back Lost Love."

"The Austrian press has ruined me," said Ploner.

Under Austrian law, an accused man has to prove his innocence. Expecting charges to be filed at a hearing scheduled for later this month, Ploner says he has hired a private investigator to clear him.

"If he doesn't, I could end up in jail," Ploner said.

"After I've proved my innocence, I am leaving this country forever," he said in an interview. "I don't want to live in a land where you are judged guilty without having done anything."

Miss Weicken and Miss Gutman shared the "Evita" title role last year, and, because of the show's popularity, were slated to do so again this season. But opening night and top billing had been given to Miss Weicken.

On opening night — March 14 — at Vienna's "Theater an der Wien," the 28-year-old Miss Gutman played Evita.

Most critics were impressed with her performance. One described it as "cold and calculated," but another said "She made it," implying it was the assault that had given her the title role.

Audience response wasn't as favorable. Her performances were greeted by only polite applause, and ticket sales dropped at the 1,000-seat theater where the best seats sell for 280 schillings — about $17.

Miss Gutman gave 10 performances before withdrawing last month from the musical. "My career is ruined," she told reporters before leaving. Friends say the young actress is bitter and depressed, and has vowed to start over in the United States.

Because of the notoriety, Miss Gutman said she received a petition from 180 West German artists asking that she be banned from performing in their country. The actress also lost her German manager and a number of scheduled television appearances.

The 34-year-old Miss Weicken returned to the role on April 6 after a nose operation and an extended convalescence on the island of Cyprus. Although the musical is not selling out, it has been doing well at the box office, and Miss Weicken has been receiving standing ovations. It closes tonight.

The musical by Tim Rice and Andrew Lloyd Webber was being done in repertory with Lehar's "The Merry Widow."

Meanwhile, three men remained in custody for the attack, and the Vienna prosecutor's office will not say if charges are to be filed against Ploner.

"We are still in the stage of preliminary investigation," said Investigating Judge Gerhard Lugarycz, declining to comment further.

Nearly two months after the attack, no clear motive for the mugging has emerged. Prosecutors will not say if they believe the reported jilted lover theory, but, according to Ploner, "It's a crazy scheme."

PRIME MINISTER Margaret Thatcher continues to talk tough in the face of the Falklands invasion that has threatened her government as well as British prestige worldwide. She continues to insist that no negotiations can take place on the future of the islands until the Argentine troops are withdrawn and the British administration restored.

'Inside the Third Reich' Rides On Clackety Wheels

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC's "Inside the Third Reich," based on the memoirs of Nazi war criminal Albert Speer, goes deeper than the documentaries on Germany and World War II to provide a personal perspective on the power of power and the people who used it to maim the world.

Speer's best-selling autobiography, written during his 20 years in prison and published in 1970, comes to television Sunday and Monday nights in a production that resembles a classy chassis slowed by clackety wheels. This five-hour movie will keep viewers in their seats, not on the edge of their seats.

Filed in West Germany, "Inside the Third Reich" examines the men behind the monster — Hitler's inner circle. They are portrayed as a band of crude maniacs, except for the sophisticated Speer, the only important Nazi to plead guilty at the Nuremberg war crime trials.

Speer was born into Germany's social registry. His father, played with aplomb by Sir John Gielgud, is an architect.

With his superior breeding, Speer's sins may be viewed as even greater than other Hitler henchmen. Speer should have known better.

Dutch actor Rutger Hauer ("Soldier of Orange," "Night Hawks") gives a clinical performance in keeping with Speer's practice of conscience-control. Speer's guilt develops only after the war.

"You must learn to turn your eyes away," he tells his wife (Blythe Danner) after witnessing brutality against Jews.

In 1931, at the age of 25, Speer doesn't seem to have any politics, nor does he take much of an ideological stance, even after hearing Hitler speak for the first time. But he perceives Hitler as his ticket to the top, Speer immediately joins the Nazi party.

A Gypsy (Viveca Lindfors)

tells him: "Your career will match your ambition ... you will rise rapidly ... you will win early fame ... and you will retire early."

Although Margarete isn't a major character in Speer's book, writer-producer E. Jack Neuman utilizes her as the movie's social conscience. Neuman conducted over 50 hours of interviews with Speer before his death as a free man in 1981.

Hitler is played passionately by British actor Derek Jacobi. Known to TV audiences as Julius Caesar from "I, Claudius," Jacobi was reluctant to take the role because of the physical dissimilarities. But superb makeup and Jacobi's fervent acting produce a chilling, crazed presence, full of fire and brimstone.

Oil, Gas Consumption to Decline

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Oil and gas consumption in the United States will continue a steady decline next year, signaling "fundamental changes in energy use patterns" in the nation, a group of independent petroleum producers said Thursday.

Overall energy use should decline for the third straight year, while oil demand will decrease "for an unprecedented fourth consecutive year," according to a report issued by the Independent Petroleum Association of America.

The group, which is holding its midyear meeting here this week, said oil demand is expected to fall 4.5 percent in 1982, primarily because of the recession, energy conservation and a shift to other fuels such as coal and nuclear energy.

The association predicted that petroleum demand will strengthen as the overall economy improves.

Natural gas consumption is expected to remain near the 1981 level, while coal demand is projected to increase by 2.4 percent and nuclear power by 6.4 percent, the group said.

Domestic crude oil production is predicted to increase by 1 percent, or 90,000 barrels a day.

Space Stations May Be Harmful

By PAUL RECER
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Large orbiting space stations planned for the future may spontaneously generate enough electricity to create levels of X-rays dangerous to astronauts, according to a University of Iowa scientist.

Dr. Stanley Shawhan said at a briefing Thursday that an instrument flown aboard the space shuttle found that the craft generated electrical activity as it sped at orbital speeds through the plasma fields of outer space.

The electrical levels did not reach hazardous strengths because the craft was not in space long enough, Shawhan said. But he added that massive space stations planned by the National Space and Aeronautics Administration may face serious problems from the electricity.

"If you are talking about space structures that are miles in dimensions, then you're talking about electrical potentials that are kilovolts (thousands of volts)," Shawhan said. "With kilovolt potentials, you get deep penetration of charged particles and you also get X-ray production."

The scientist said the X-rays would be strong enough to expose film such as that used by dentists.

"Those X-rays could be dangerous for (space walkers) or just for living conditions," said Shawhan.

Electrostatic currents build up on the spacecraft in a manner similar to creating static electricity by shuffling one's feet over a carpet. If the static electricity, or field of electrical potential, is not harmlessly discharged in space, it can convert ions and electrons in the plasma field into X-rays.

Shawhan said the electrical potential created also attracts electrons and ions that flow back against the spacecraft with sufficient force to degrade some painted surfaces. The phenomenon could also cause short circuits in some electrical instruments aboard the craft, he said.

The comments came during a Washington briefing monitored here. During the briefing, several scientists reported preliminary results from experiments flown last March on the space shuttle orbiter Columbia. The scientists said the experiments proved that the space shuttle would be a valuable platform for conducting scientific studies in orbit.
