SPS Seeking 12.7 Percent Increase

Southwestern Public Service Company Tuesday announced it will request a 12.7 percent increase in the retail price of electricity in Texas, ranging from $5 to $10 per month for the typical residential customer.

The proposed increases include $19.2 million in rates within Texas city jurisdictions and $22.3 million in rural area rates which are set by the Texas Public Utility Commission outside city jurisdictions.

Bert Ballengee, the electric utility's president, said "the increase is imperative later this calendar year because of the need to change to coal as the fuel source in the Company's power plants, because of high money costs, and because of inflation."

Ballengee pointed out that "although inflation has totalled 23 percent since the last electricity rate adjustment two years ago, SPS is able to hold its request to half that amount as a rate increase."

A significant portion of the new revenue request will help pay for the first unit of the Company's second coal-fired power plant, Tolk Station, which is scheduled to go into service early this summer.

"We must change our system from gas to coal because coal will save our customers money," Ballengee said.

Ballengee said that "even with a rate increase, the typical Southwestern Public Service residential customer in Texas will spend about $4 to $5 per month less than he would have, if the Company had not made the decision to move to coal and away from natural gas as boiler fuel in new power plants. For all of the Company's customers, this amounts to a savings of about $106 million a year when the new Tolk Station is fully operating."

SPS managers in the 68 Texas cities and towns served by the utility and affected by the rate increase are now providing city officials with details of the Company's need for a rate increase.

Ballengee explained that extensive analysis of all revenue data and customer electrical demands indicates a need to file for the increase with the Texas city commissions and the Public Utility Commission. When the new rate is approved, a $44.5 million annual revenue deficiency will be corrected.

The cost of electric service represents about two percent of the average family residential budget—the same as it was five years ago, Ballengee said. He added that the unit cost of electricity is now the same as it was in 1927, when most families used 500 units of energy each year. Now, most families use about 7,000 units a year, Ballengee said.

"We don't expect our customers to like the prospect of higher electric bills—but we believe they will understand the importance of keeping the increases to a minimum while maintaining a reliable electric system," Ballengee said.

Southwestern Public Service primarily provides electric utility service to a population of more than 1 million in a 45,000-square-mile area of the Panhandle and south plains of Texas, eastern and southeastern New Mexico, the Oklahoma Panhandle and southwestern Kansas.

Quick-Thinking Stewardess Keeps Gunman Off Plane

By ANNE S. CROWLEY
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — A pistol-carrying Cuban refugee was cornered in a passageway before he could board a jet because a flight attendant sensed "something was wrong" and slammed the plane door, foiling an alleged hijacking attempt.

The gunman pulled out the

.25-caliber automatic pistol Tuesday and started shooting, but inside the Air Florida Boeing 737 jetliner "it was very calm and perfectly still," said the flight attendant, Jannifer Seaton.

Outside, there was the sound of gunfire and the man banging on the door, she said. No one was injured in the shooting and Miami police soon subdued the gunman. Jesus Villa Munoz, 41, of Hialeah, Fla., later told police he had arrived in the United States aboard a freedom flight in 1971 and wanted to return to Cuba because he was disgruntled with America, authorities said.

He said he walked through the screening device at Miami International Airport with the pistol tucked in his right front pants pocket, authorities said.

"It was point blank. I

Ex-Convict Tells Of Prisoner Abuse

GALVESTON, Texas (AP)

— A prisoner suffered an epileptic seizure and died after he was strapped into a straitjacket and hung from cell bars while prison warden Wallace Pack watched, an ex-convict has testified.

The testimony came Tuesday in the capital murder trial of Eroy Edward Brown, a Texas Department of Corrections inmate accused in the April 4 drowning of Pack.

The 31-year-old Waco man also may be tried later in the shooting death of unit farm manager Billy Max Moore. His attorneys contend he acted in self-defense.

Alvin Lee Slaton, 49, of Temple, told jurors two inmates took the epileptic prisoner, Melvin Bunt, from his cell and "whipped him with blackjacks, hitting him so hard the blood hit the ceiling, and put him back in the cell."

Although Pack did not personally participate in the beating, Slaton said, he accompanied the two men when they returned to Bunt's cell about six hours later, strapped the inmate in a straitjacket and hung him from the cell bars.

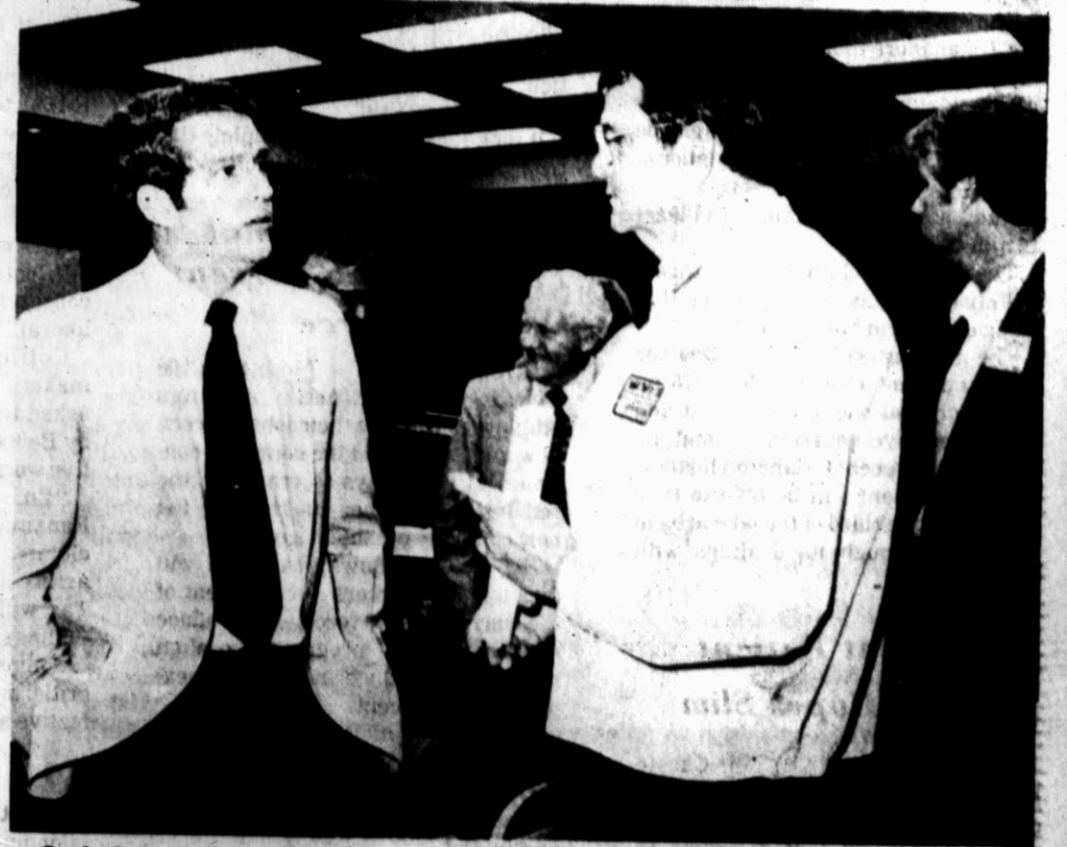

Bunt had an epileptic seizure while hanging from the cell and later died, Slaton said.

Slaton, now employed by the Veterans Administration, also testified Pack and two inmates handcuffed him and hung him for six hours with his feet dangling off the floor.

Slaton said Pack, then a major at the Wynne Unit in Huntsville, "jerked my feet and kicked me once in the stomach" as he hung in his cell.

He then stepped down from the witness stand and showed jurors the scars on his wrist that he said were inflicted

110 Attend Conference

Staff Writer

Approximately 110 vegetable farmers and area agribusinessmen attended the 1982 West Texas Vegetable Conference here Tuesday.

The High Plains Vegetable Growers and Shippers Council also elected Kenneth Gray of Lorenzo as president of the organization during its annual business meeting. Truman Touchstone of Dimmitt will serve as vice president and Bill Reinauer of Hereford will remain secretary-treasurer.

A highlight of the conference was a presentation by Jim Motes on gel seeding. Motes said gel seeding is a wet planting method which improves plant stands and yield of crops.

The gel is hectorite clay made artificially which has a high water absorption capacity. The seeds are thus pre-germinated in order to insure sprouting when soil temperature may be below germination level but sufficient for growth.

Gel seeding is used mostly in the midwestern states of Ohio and Indiana for process tomatoes and in south Florida for fresh market tomatoes. The gel has been marketed in the U.S. for about three years.

Although the gel has germinated seeds underground before soil has warmed, Motes said he would not risk planting much earlier than as it practiced now.

Motes noted that with ideal weather and soil there is a potential of six to 12 percent yield difference with gel seeding.

Motes said most of the research in gel seeding is being done in universities.

Gel seeding equipment is marketed, however Motes said the planting equipment doesn't have to be commercial and much of it is rigged up by farmers due to the high cost.

The gel, which is about the consistency of syrup or shampoo has a short storage time, however. Pepper seeds will keep for about 48 hours at 50 degrees; tomatoes about a week at 42 degrees and cabbage, onion and carrot seeds are about the hardest and will keep at 33 degrees, but with risk of roots growing too much.

While many crop harvesters have been somewhat perfected the onion lifter is still in beginning stages, according to Joe Rabb, president of Ag-One, Inc., an implement manufacturer, and Tommy Valco, Extension

City Receives $73,000 Rebate

AUSTIN, Tex. — State Comptroller Bob Bullock last week returned $106.4 million in local sales tax payments to 954 cities who levy the one-percent local tax.

"This is the biggest single payment since city sales tax rebates began in 1968," Bullock said.

The $106.4 million payment represents a 16 percent jump over last February's checks, which in turn had grown 16 percent over the previous February. Payments so far in 1982 are running 13.2 percent above last year's January-February total.

"This increase is higher than inflation and population growth put together," Bullock said, "and at least part of this rise has to come from our work making sure these cities get every penny of sales tax that's coming to them."

The city of Hereford received a check for $73,797.93, down from the $76,855.86 received last February. The check boosted the city's 1982 total to $94,439.41, down 6.3 percent from the $100,786.46 received during the same period in 1981.

Dimmitt's share of the refund was $20,098.29, up from the $18,885.21 a year ago, while Friona received $18,011.65, a big jump from the $13,397.68 in February, 1981.

The biggest check—$22.4 million—went to Houston, up 23 percent over last February's check.

Dallas received $11.1 million, compared to $10.5 million for the same period last year.

San Antonio's check for $5.7 million up 16.9 percent from last February.

Austin received $3.4 million, compared with $3.3 million in February last year, and El Paso received $2.4 million, up 8.9 percent from the check that city received in February, 1981.

Bullock also forwarded February rebates to the state's two Metropolitan Transit Authorities. The Houston MTA received $24.9 million for the period and the San Antonio transit authority received $3.3 million.

The city and MTA sales taxes are collected along with the state sales tax by merchants and businesses and rebated monthly to the cities in which they are collected by the Comptroller.

Reagan Scolds Nicaragua; Receives Same in Turn

WASHINGTON (AP) — Casting aside the usual niceties, President Reagan welcomed Nicaragua's new ambassador to the United States by scolding his government for "inviting alien influences and philosophies into the hemisphere."

Francisco Fiallos Navarro responded to Reagan's blunt note with one of his own. Although it was couched in diplomatic language, his message was equally clear: Nicaragua, the ambassador said, will go its own way and take help from friends where it finds them. The exchange Tuesday was a marked departure by both sides from the diplomatic curtsy that typically takes place when a new ambassador presents his credentials to the president.

Coincidentally, there was a substantive exchange Tuesday involving Reagan and the new Israeli ambassador. In that case, however, Reagan was assuring Israel of continued U.S. support.

The notes were made public by the State Department.

Involved was the Reagan administration's charge — and the Nicaraguans' denial — that the revolutionaries in power there have turned their country sharply leftward and are supplying arms, through Honduras, to guerrillas battling the U.S.-backed junta in El Salvador.

The Nicaraguan Sandinistas seized power in 1979, overthrowing strongman Anastasio Somoza.

Jeanne Kirkpatrick, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, charged in a speech Monday that Nicaragua already has lined up with the communist world. She said the Sandinistas have taken "a great many moves" to join

Family of Seven Slain in Michigan

FARWELL, Mich. (AP) — Seven members of a family, including three children were shot to death at a rural farmhouse, their bodies strewn inside the home and in a bullet-riddled pickup truck, authorities reported today.

A 2-month-old infant girl survived the massacre.

Police were seeking at least one suspect but said no motive was immediately determined.

The area is "all sealed off. Everybody's being kept away in a five-mile radius," Clare County Sheriff's Deputy Ronald Beasley reported.

A state police spokesman said authorities were looking for a 1980 Buick LeSabre stolen about the time of the killings from the home, 3½ miles west of the town of Farwell in Clare County in central Michigan. Sheriff Ghazey Aleck, who described the scene as "gruesome," said all the victims had been shot. Police said there might have been stab wounds on some of the victims, but they were uncertain because the wounds were extensive.

Neighbors identified the victims as George W. Post, 54, his wife, Vaudrey, 43; and their daughters Garnetta Haggert and Helen Gaffney. The ages of the daughters were not immediately known. The dead children ranged in age from 4 to 10.

Post was a mailman and served as the Farwell school board treasurer, neighbors said. His wife worked part-time in the school cafeteria, a

Oil Tycoon Seeking $2 Million More

For Oklahoma Land

MUSKOGEE, Okla. (AP) — A high-stakes battle between government attorneys and lawyers for Nelson Bunker Hunt continued today before a panel that will recommend how many millions of dollars the oilman should get for some 14,000 acres of farmland.

The government has offered to pay the Texan more than $4 million for the far-southeastern Oklahoma land that was condemned in 1975 to make way for the McGee Creek Reservoir. The lake will supply water to Oklahoma City.

Hunt, however, is asking for at least $2 million more. The hearing before the three-member panel is being held in U.S. District Court in Muskogee.

The government's offer of $290 per acre and Hunt's request for $478 an acre represent one of the largest and most expensive government land acquisitions in recent Oklahoma history. The government will be able to take more than one-third of the lake area in one slice through its dealings with Hunt.

Transplant Patient Survival Hopes Slim

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Cassie McPherson's will to live may be her only hope after complications during a liver transplant forced doctors to leave the job half-done, doctors told the 8-year-old girl's family.

Surgeons performed the operation Tuesday even though they could not locate the portal vein, which links the stomach and liver and is essential to healthy liver function.

And afterwards, as the girl lay breathing with the help of a respirator, doctors told Carolyn McPherson her child's chance for survival was slim.

Dr. Thomas Starzl, head of the team of surgeons, said Cassie's condition was critical and warned her mother that no child in similar circumstances had survived. Only Cassie's will to live could save her life, Starzl said.

"Don't give up on her yet," responded Mrs. McPherson.

Even if the girl survives the next few days, doctors say they must operate again to complete the surgery.

Cassie's liver had malfunctioned because of a congenital disorder. The family of a 3-year-old New York City boy donated the liver transplanted into Cassie's body.

But since doctors could not find Cassie's portal vein, they used a smaller vein to complete the operation, "something we've never tried before," Starzl said.

It took 1,000 stitches to complete the transplant before the operation ended about 5 a.m. EST Tuesday.

Texas International Furloughs 16 Percent Of Work Force

HOUSTON (AP) — More than 500 Texas International Airlines employees will lose their jobs between now and April 25 as the company continues to seek ways to eradicate the red ink that bathes its ledgers, the new company president says.

Robert D. Galloway said TIA will furlough 523 workers — 16 percent of the current work force — introduce new marketing programs, realign routes and reduce non-payroll expenses by 7 percent.

Galloway, named president Dec. 4, said no cities would be dropped from the airline schedule although several unprofitable flights would be eliminated.

TIA also has asked its union for productivity increases and compensation cuts, he said.

The plan will go into effect in stages between now and April 25, said Galloway.

The airline's parent company, Texas Air Corp., posted a $47.184 million loss for the 1981 and "Texas International contributed to that loss," said TIA spokesman Bruce Hicks.

The airline reported a January passenger load 14.4 percent less than a year ago.

Collins To Survey Bentsen's Record Among Constituents

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Congressman Jim Collins says he is asking 85,000 Texans to say if they think Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, is more liberal than he is conservative.

Collins, one of two Republicans challenging Bentsen, told a Capitol news conference he had no plans for a similar survey questioning the votes made in the Texas Senate by his GOP opponent, state Sen. Walter Mengden, R-Houston.

"I see no reason to survey Walter's record," Collins said. "Walter says he is a conservative and everything I have heard about him shows that he is a conservative."

"Bentsen says he is a moderate-conservative but he votes like a liberal."

Collins said 85,000 "opinion makers" across the state would be asked to say which of 65 votes made by Bentsen from 1971 to now were the five worst votes.

"I'm sure his vote to give away the Panama Canal and his vote to invoke cloture (end a filibuster) and thus assure passage of the Windfall Profits Tax will be two of the worst votes," Collins said.

Collins was asked about Mengden's criticism that Collins has been ineffective and inept in Congress.

Sentenced To Three Years, Senator Refuses To Resign

By RICHARD T. PIENCIAK
Associated Press Writer

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr. says he'll fight to stay in the Senate despite a three-year prison sentence for agreeing to play a part in a $12.6 million bribery scheme.

The Senate begins debate Feb. 23 on whether to expel Williams, the only U.S. senator charged in the Abscam political corruption inquiry.

The 23-year senate veteran, a New Jersey Democrat, was sentenced Tuesday for bribery and conspiracy convictions stemming from the FBI investigation, which came to light in February 1980. He could have been sentenced to 15 years on the bribery charge.

U.S. District Judge George C. Pratt also fined Williams $50,000, the highest fine yet in the Abscam cases. The sentence was stayed pending appeal.

Williams was convicted May 1, 1981, on charges that he agreed to sell his influence to an undercover FBI agent posing as a favor-seeking Arab sheik in return for a profit on a mining venture.

The evidence consisted primarily of video and audio tapes. The jury convicted him on all nine counts.

Chief Abscam prosecutor Thomas Puccio told the crowded courtroom just before the 62-year-old legislator was sentenced that Williams acted in a "confident and brazen manner" at seven undercover meetings during which "he put his office up for sale."

But Williams refused to say die.

In an unusual move, he addressed the judge directly after his attorney, George Koelzer, made an appeal for leniency and a non-prison sentence.

"I leave this court knowing, feeling and knowing, that I'm innocent of the crimes charged and that I now stand convicted of," Williams told Pratt.

Williams noted that Koelzer had suggested he had been destroyed in several areas — reputation, political career and financial stability.

Williams said, "But I must say," the senator went on, "that this tragic episode has not destroyed the one thing that is most important to me — myself. I feel no personal destruction."

He lashed out at the FBI's tactics during the undercover investigation as a "sordid, manufactured attempt to get me to commit crime."

"I will fight my case in the United States Senate because I'm innocent and I know I didn't do anything wrong," Williams said.

His sentencing was postponed twice after an emergency hernia operation. Pratt nevertheless kept his Jan. 26 appointment with the senator's co-defendant, Cherry Hill, N.J., attorney Alexander Feinberg, who was sentenced to three years and fined $40,000.

The scene after the sentencing had a carnival air, with fundamentalist radio preacher Rev. Carl McIntire and an unidentified street preacher praising the four-term senator who once chaired the powerful Labor and Human Resources Committee.

Williams was found guilty of accepting a free and hidden share of a Virginia titanium mine in return for helping the venture obtain military contracts. In return, the "sheik" was supposed to lend the project $100 million, whereupon Williams was to sell his shares for a $12.6 million profit, according to trial testimony.

Chief Approved Illegal Acts In Breaking Drug Cases

TYLER, Texas (AP) —

Prosecutors say former Tyler police chief Willie Hardy allowed narcotics agents to use illegal means to make drug cases and conspired to hide the drug use of one of his officers.

Testimony in Hardy's federal perjury and conspiracy trial was expected to begin at 9 a.m. today. A jury was seated Tuesday and attorneys presented their opening arguments.

Hardy is accused of conspiring to deny defendants

Kenneth Bora and Johnny Allen Green due process by lying to cover up the narcotics addiction of undercover agent Craig Matthews so other drug cases would stand up in court.

During opening arguments, Assistant U.S. Attorney Bill Cornelius said Hardy approved the use of "throw-down" drugs — a bag of drugs agents used to throw down in case they made a mistake during an arrest or search — and led officers to believe they could do anything to make a drug case. But Hardy's attorney, Rex Houston, said "the government's case is based on the testimony of admitted perjurers and falsifiers."

During opening arguments, the defense attorney said the key question in Hardy's trial will be whether the chief believed Matthews was a "heavy drug user."

Matthews and his wife and former partner Kim Ramsey Matthews have told authorities they framed Bora on a cocaine charge and that Matthews used drugs while making drug cases. The two former officers were the cornerstone of the massive 1979 crackdown that netted 121 drug indictments.

They since have said Hardy knew about Matthews' drug use, although the chief testified during the trials of Bora and Greene that he had no knowledge of any drug use by his agents.

Warns

"the global Soviet military machine."

But nine American observers, led by former Attorney General Ramsey Clark, said such a judgment is premature, at best. They said a hostile America could drive Nicaragua into Cuban and Soviet embraces.

Said Clark: "What you find pervasive is a fear that the United States government means them harm. They believe they may be invaded. All of this has the effect, if we don't stop it, of making them what we say they already are."

Added Raul Maglapus, president of the Center for Development Policy, "The Sandinistas are Marxists — they apply Marxist analysis to problems — but so were the Social Democrats who are governing West Germany Marxists."

Larry Birns, director of the Council on Hemispheric Affairs, which sponsored the 4-day trip to Nicaragua, said that since the United States has denied trade and aid to Nicaragua and persuaded other Western countries to follow suit it should not be surprised if the Sandinistas take help from communist countries.

The United States has charged that the Nicaraguan government forcefully relocated tens of thousands of Miskito Indians and mistreated them.

Journalist Roger Wilkins, a member of the fact-finding team headed by Clark, said he found only 1,800 Indians in the only relocation camp and said the government was doing all it could to take care of them.

during the incident.

Although five current and former inmates testified Tuesday, two more current prisoners were found in contempt of court for refusing to answer questions in the trial. A total of 10 inmates who say they fear retaliation from prison officials and other inmates now have been found in contempt.

One inmate, Joe King, 33, a Dallas man serving a life sentence for burglary, said Pack threatened him six days before Pack died.

King, who previously was convicted of rape and and who has spent 14 years in prison, said the warden called him into his office and told him he had heard he was a troublemaker.

Pack told him "he might have something did to me," King said.

Asked what he thought Pack meant by such a statement, King said: "It was a threat to me, that's what it was."

Although other inmate witnesses did not give specific examples, all agreed under questioning that Pack had a reputation for violence.

In the wake of Monday's uproar over prison records, State District Judge Henry Dalehite Tuesday issued general guidelines to attorneys concerning which portions of such records can be revealed to jurors. Dalehite added that he would review each case individually.

Bell Says GTE Hike Would Penalize All

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. has complained that a $110 million rate increase requested by General Telephone of the Southwest would, in effect, penalize Bell customers.

A ruling was expected today on whether the Public Utility Commission will allow Bell to intervene in GTE's rate case.

The commission on Tuesday set an April 15 hearing on the proposed increase.

It also agreed to allow three cities — Sherman, Grand Prairie and Post — as well as the Texas Association of Telephone Answering Services, Communication Workers of America, Texas Municipal League and American Airlines to intervene in GTE's case.

Bell contends that GTE has proposed specific increases of only $80 million and is trying to obtain an additional $30 million from another pending case involving intrastate long-distance charges.

"The law does not allow some additional $30 million to suddenly materialize out of the sky months hence without having given all parties affected adequate notice of the specific tariff revisions proposed," Bell said in its motion.

Bell said assuming the full $30 million comes from its customers, GTE's request for increased revenues from Bell would average $7.50 a year per Bell customer.

thought we both had had it," said check-in agent Bob Dundas, 28, who along with agent Oscar Guzman, 22, had planned to frisk the "jittery" man before he reached the door of the plane. Both were caught in the crossfire instead.

"The man looked nervous and was dressed in a sloppy, too-big jacket — the kind you would pick up at Goodwill," Dundas said. "You can conceal a lot of things in a jacket like that."

"I told him I had to search him, and he kept saying, 'No quiero, no quiero (I don't want to),' Dundas said.

The man was taken by Dundas into a 25-foot gangway leading from the gate to the airplane. Guzman, who had given the passenger a close look and grown suspicious, said he went ahead to warn the crew.

"Oscar came down the Jetway and looked at me and immediately I knew something was wrong," Ms. Seaton said, and she quickly shut the plane door.

Villa broke away from Dundas and raced toward the plane, firing the automatic pistol, Dundas said. Within 30 seconds, the area around Gate F6 was swarming with police, and the gunman was subdued after exchanging several shots.

Villa was charged with attempted first-degree murder, attempted air piracy and use of a firearm to commit a felony, police said.

The 25 passengers aboard Flight 34 to Key West, scheduled to leave at 9:15 a.m., were herded to the back of the 128-seat plane and were asked to assume an "impact" position, their hands clasped behind their necks and their heads bent to their knees, Ms. Seaton said.

The passengers were later put on another flight.

The plane's crew was given the day off, and Guzman and Dundas were given the option of going home or finishing their shift. Both left.

"I need a drink," Guzman said. "We both need a drink," Dundas said.

engineer from Weslaco. Rabb told the farmers that as far as onion equipment goes, a good harvest still relies on what is done in the fall. Ground preparation such as fitting beds to machines, makes an easier harvest, regardless of what kind of tool is used.

Rabb said that some problems of onion harvesting have been solved by research in other fields. For example, weeds posed massive problems with digging out onions until herbicides were better developed.

Clodded dirt also made for tough digging, but Rabb said some of that could be remedied by planting onions at a uniform depth and by running a rig at an even speed.

He noted that onions have not reached a point of having many hybrids and neither have there been many kinds of harvesters developed.

Current developments in harvesting equipment is centering on a cutdown of man handling.

Tax Tips

Are Educational Expenses Deductible?

Third in a series of "tax tip" articles sponsored by a public service by the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants.

Q. I am a public school teacher, but I want to sell real estate in my spare time. Can I deduct the cost of my real estate course as an educational expense?

A. No, educational expenses incurred as part of a program of study that will qualify you for a new or different line of work are not deductible.

For your educational expenses to be deductible, the education must be necessary to either maintain or improve your skills as a public school teacher. If the applicable law or statutory regulations require you as a public employee to take courses, then the expenses incurred are deductible.

These can include costs of tuition, books, tutoring and the cost of transportation to and from the classroom, if you are not reimbursed for these expenses by your employer.

If a personal car is used, the lump sum mileage allowance of 20 cents per mile can be claimed as an expense, or the actual cost of operation, whichever is greater. However, you must substantiate your expenses by actual records.

Q. I am an injured oil field roughneck. Can I exclude from income the worker's compensation I received during the year?

A. Worker's compensation received by you or your beneficiaries for your injury is fully tax exempt. If you turn over your payments to your employer and all or part of your regular wages or salary continues, the excess of your wages or salary over the amount of worker's compensation is taxable income.

If you return to work after you qualify for worker's compensation, you must pay income tax on any payments received after that date.

Q. What about other amounts I receive as compensation for injury or illness?

A. Most other compensations received for injury or illness are not taxed. This includes damages received or benefits received under an accident or health insurance policy attributable to premiums you paid.

Disability benefits received for loss of earning capacity as a result of injuries under a no-fault automobile policy is not taxable.

Compensation received for permanent loss, or loss of use of a part or function of your body or for disfigurement is also not taxable.

Ann Landers 'Depression' Gene

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I suffer from depression and have periods when I am suicidal. I have gone, on my own, to the crisis unit of our local hospital many times after overdosing. I see a therapist once a week and am a member of a group therapy "family."

I live in fear that I will OD again and die waiting for the doctor to call me back. (This almost happened last time because his receptionist didn't take me seriously.) I wish people would stop telling me to pull myself together and "hang in there." They have no idea how hard I am trying.

I know I am not alone. There are thousands—maybe millions—like me...I have so much to live for, but when I go into a deep, black depression, I can't face the pain of living and want to end it all.

Can you tell me something about the recent discovery of a gene that causes severe depression? If you say this is true, I would feel less ashamed and more hopeful that a cure might be found. Please reply.—Salem Reader chromosome that they believe makes people susceptible to chronic depression.

Dr. Stancer said doctors have known for many years that depression runs in families, but they have not understood the genetic pattern. Now that the troublemaking gene has been identified there is hope that the scientists can go on from there and find ways to prevent as well as treat major psychiatric illnesses, alcoholism and antisocial behavior. Both doctors warned against over-optimism, but it certainly looks promising.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A person who ranks several rungs above me at my place of employment has a mind that is in the gutter and a sense of humor that must be connected to a sewer pipe. Almost every day he has a filthy joke or some gadget or picture or crude gimmick he must buy through the mail. I never see such things for sale when I shop.

I wish you would tell me how to react when he springs these tasteless "surprises." Please remember, I need my job.—Revolted In Florida

DEAR REVOLT: Register nothing. No shock. No disgust. No amusement. No approval or disapproval. In other words, play dumb and walk away.

Curtsinger Conducts School Of Instructions In Friona

District Deputy President Susie Curtsinger conducted her final school of instructions Monday evening in Friona as Friona Rebekah Lodge No. 308 was host to members of all lodges in District No. 5. Those present enjoyed a salad supper in a beautifully decorated hall, using a Valentine motif.

Wilma Wise, Noble Grand of the Friona Lodge, presided as the meeting was opened. Visitors were recognized and Ms. Curtsinger was welcomed with honors and presentation of a "money" corsage.

Dimmitt Rebekah Lodge No. 54 demonstrated how not to present the flag, then showed the correct procedure, to point out errors. Using the same procedure, Muleshoe Rebekah Lodge No. 114 demonstrated the incorrect and correct way to "ballot."

Roberta Combs and Lydia Hopson, of Hereford Rebekah Lodge No. 228, did a humorous skit of what could happen between Noble Grand and secretary of any lodge. Ms. Curtsinger read a poem, "When I was Noble Grand," to show what can happen when a new officer is installed.

Gifts were presented to each lodge to express thanks

The onion is a lily that has been bred through the centuries for development of its bulb and suppression of its top.

Fems Fall In OT

Plainview Sweeps Herd

The Hereford Whiteface girls closed out the season on a sour note Tuesday night as Plainview took a 55-53 overtime victory, and the HHS boys weren't enough to keep the Bulldogs out of the loop throneroom as Plainview scored a 76-66 win at the Bulldog gym.

Plainview girls outscored Hereford 6-4 in the overtime to register the win and move them to 3-1 in the second half of district play. Hereford fell to 2-2 in the second half and 5-3 overall in district play.

The Whiteface fens closed out the year with a 20-5 record.

"Plainview is always fired up over there, and their gym is almost like it's in a pit," HHS coach Larry Sowers said after the loss. "We just made too many mistakes. It was a real physical game, and we didn't take advantage of it."

The two teams were tied at 12 after one period before the Herd took a 27-26 halftime bulge. HHS extended the lead to 37-34 after three stanzas, but the Bulldog gals fought back to knot the game at 49-49 at the end of regulation.

Joyce High led Hereford with 12 points in the game, while Sherri Ellis added 10 more. Jamie Shores led Plainview, now 17-13, with 16.

In the boys game Plainview raced to a 24-11 lead after the first period, and the Whitefaces couldn't catch up.

The Herd did cut the margin to as few as six points in the late going, but a 23-point performance by Gil Wright was enough to get the 'Dogs into the playoffs.

Alan Wartes led the Herd with 21 points in the game, while Steve Welch scored 14. The Herd, now 1-1 in the second half, will host Lubbock High Friday, and then close out the season on the road at Monterey next Tuesday.

Tigers Roll By Cyclones, 100-71

By JOHN NELSON AP Sports Writer

The Missouri Tigers let Iowa State dictate the tempo, but the Cyclones just couldn't hit the high notes.

Fourth-ranked Missouri shot a club record 73.8 percent from the floor Tuesday night, with Jon Sundvold contributing 18 points, to defeat Iowa State 100-71.

The Cyclones shot 40 percent as they set a fast pace that Missouri did not try to change.

"They ran with us, and it got down to who could get the ball in the hole more," Tigers guard Prince Bridges said. "We just kind of opened it up."

The victory assured Missouri of at least a tie for the Big Eight Conference title with an 11-1 record. The Tigers are 22-1 overall, their only loss coming to conference foe Nebraska, 67-51, two Saturdays ago.

The game was the only one Tuesday night involving a nationally ranked team.

Missouri put it away in the early part of the second half. The Tigers led 50-32 at halftime, then outscored

Iowa State 28-16 to lead 78-48. Missouri's biggest lead was 32 points, 95-63, with 2:12 to play.

Cyclones Coach Johnny Orr said his team couldn't match speed with Missouri.

"We cannot get up and down the court like they can," Orr said. "They moved the ball well, and we couldn't unload against them."

Four other Missouri players scored in double figures. Ricky Frazier had 16, Bridges 15, Michael Walker 11 and Marvin McCrary 10. Ron Harris had 14 points for Iowa State, now 7-16 and 2-9 in the Big Eight.

Unranked Teams

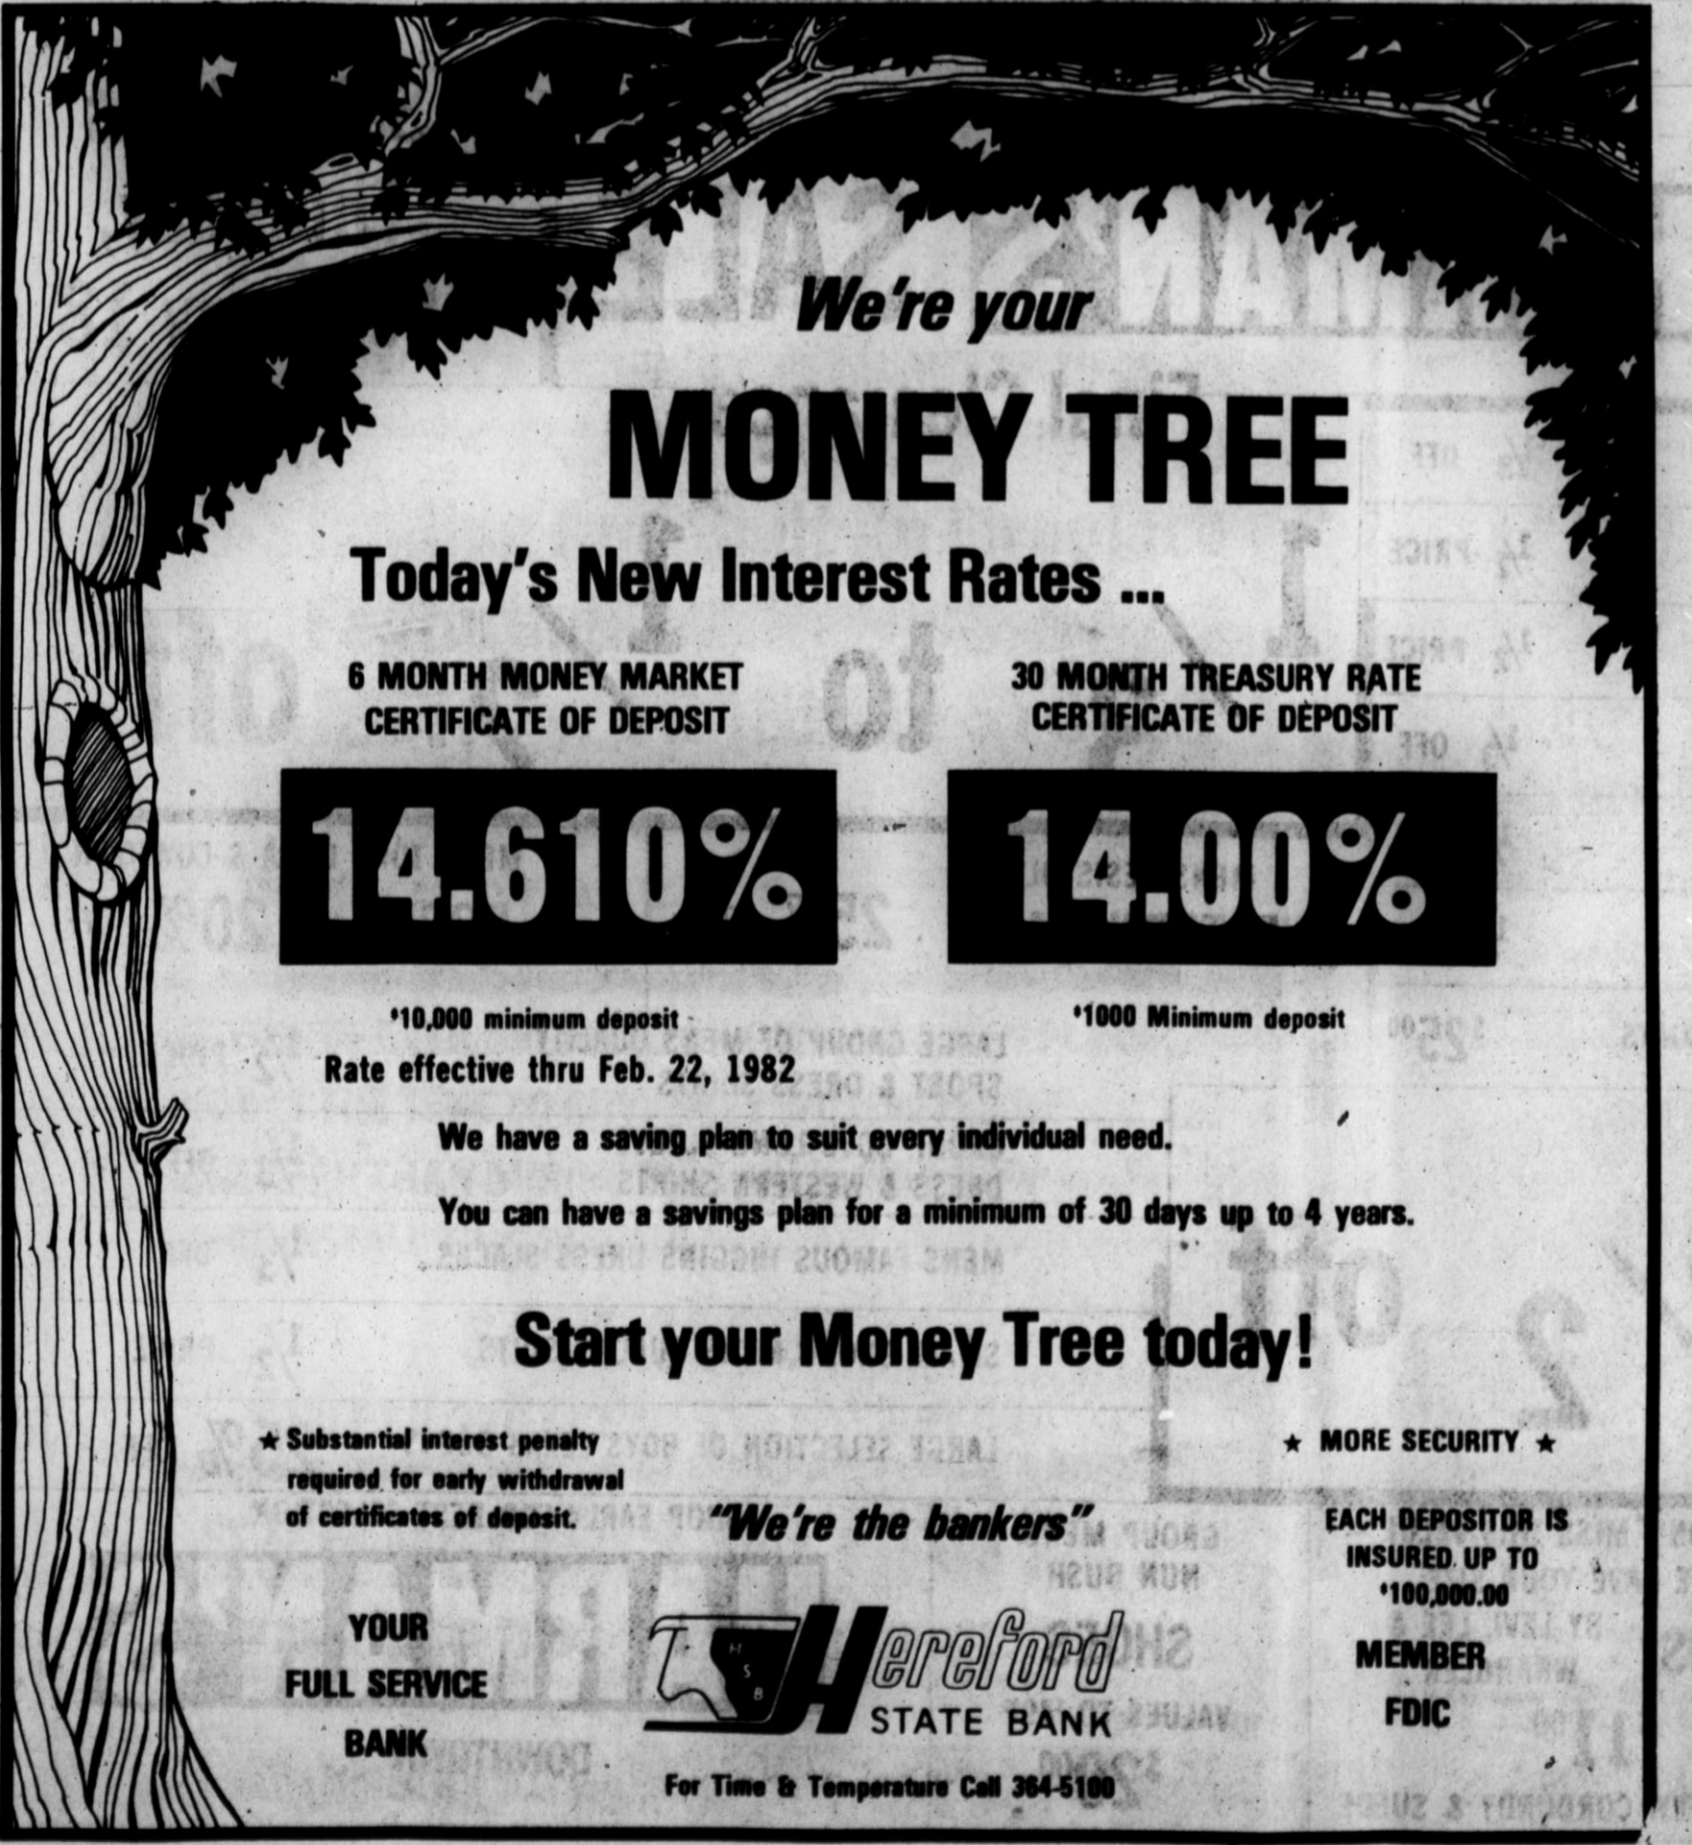

In the Atlantic Coast Conference, Thurl Bailey hit a career-high 24 points to lead North Carolina State to a 72-56 victory over Duke. Dan Callandrillo scored 23 points and Seton Hall snapped an 11-game losing streak by beating Connecticut 61-59 in the Big East Conference.

Glenn Rivers and Marc Marotta scored 12 points apiece to help Marquette open an early lead and defeat Duquesne 69-55.

Garvey Says Players, Owners Still 'Apart'

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Ed Garvey, executive director of the National Football League Players Association, says he believes the gap between players and owners probably widened during the first day of talks on a new collective bargaining agreement.

"If anything, we're further apart than we were before we began," Garvey said Tuesday after the talks, aimed at producing a contract to replace the one that expires July 15, were recessed until Thursday.

Representatives for both sides met about two hours Tuesday morning to discuss procedural matters and after a lunch break returned for the start of actual negotiations.

But almost as soon as the negotiating teams sat down to exchange opening proposals, the first bargaining session was over.

Jack Donlan, executive director of the NFL Management Council, emerged from the bargaining room at the Diplomat Hotel less than an hour after the afternoon session began and expressed disappointment with the NFLPA's proposal.

He described the proposal, which included a demand for a greater percentage of the owners' gross revenues, as a "self-serving, rambling 11-page statement with very little specificity."

"It was not a traditional labor proposal where you address certain problems and express demands," said Donlan.

NFLPA President Gene Upshaw, meanwhile, criticized the owners' opening proposal, saying it lacked substance and calling it "an insult to our members."

Upshaw said the 20-man NFLPA group, which attended Tuesday's session, also was "insulted" that Donlan had arrived with only four other negotiators — none of them owners or a representative of NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

"We brought in 10 active players and a bargaining team with full authority to negotiate for all the players. What they brought was virtually a subcommittee," said Upshaw.

Donlan said the management proposal sought to make "corrections and adjustments" to the current player contract, which expires July 15.

But Garvey said some of the changes sought to take away advances the union had made in the past 14 years.

The NFLPA earlier said it would seek 55 percent of owners' gross revenues. Owners have claimed that 42 percent already goes to players' salaries.

Teagle Slumps, But Bears Still Win

By JOE STROOP Associated Press Writer

It is no secret that the Baylor Bears lived and died with super forward Terry Teagle all last year and much of this year. If Teagle did not get his points, Baylor usually did not get the win.

Tuesday, the Bears played Texas in Austin's unfriendly Super Drum, Teagle got only 16 points — well below his average — and missed the front end of two one-and-one free-throw chances late in the game.

But Jay Shakir made up the difference, Baylor took a narrow 62-59 win over the Longhorns and the Bears think being able to win without a standout performance from Teagle marks a significant change.

"We have the right chemistry going for us now. We've got five people who want to play as a team," said Shakir, who finished with 17 points that helped Baylor to its sixth win in a row and best conference record, 9-5, since 1948.

"We're playing as a true team now," Teagle chimed in. "This isn't a one-man show at all. We're not as nervous as we were at the first of the year and the defense is carrying us."

The Bears are alone in second place, a half-game behind 9-4 Arkansas.

"It was the biggest win of the year for us," said Baylor coach Jim Haller.

In other SWC games Tuesday, Houston moved into a third-place tie with Texas A&M by whipping Texas Christian 74-65 in Houston and Rice clubbed hapless, helpless Southern Methodist 70-48 in Dallas.

Shakir's unlikely heroics included a 9-of-16 performance at the free-throw line where he was a shaky 58-percent performer entering the game. On the other hand, Teagle — whose career free-throw average is better than 75 percent — was 0-for-3 at the line.

The irony was not lost on Texas coach Abe Lemons.

"Baylor is about eighth in the league in free-throw shooting," Lemons grouched. "Their best guy was missing them at the end and their worst guys were making them. I guess that's what happens to you when things go bad."

Lemons watched his club lose its sixth game in eight tries since losing forward Mike Wacker to a knee injury at Baylor Jan. 26.

In Houston, Cougar center

Akeem Olajuwon set a SWC mark with eight blocked shots as Houston ran away — literally — from TCU, using its team speed to score on break after break.

And in Dallas, Rice turned Ricky Pierce loose on defenseless SMU. Pierce responded with 25 points and the Owls flew to their best season record in 11 years.

"I am proud of our players because with this win we have 14 for the year ... that equals the most by a Rice team since 1971," said Rice Coach Tommy Suitts. "If we can win another that would be the most since 1964."

Saturday's SWC schedule is rife with meaningful games.

Texas visits Texas A&M for a regionally televised afternoon game, Arkansas is at hungry Rice, Houston goes to big, drafty Heart O' Texas Coliseum in Waco where strange things have happened to Baylor opponents all season and SMU travels to Texas Tech.

Seattle SuperSonics Give Way To Los Angeles Lakers, 108-101

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

Although the Los Angeles Lakers and Seattle SuperSonics have the best records in the National Basketball Association's Western Conference, neither has had much success lately. Something had to give when they played Tuesday night, and it was Seattle.

Cooney Injured; Fight Postponed

NEW YORK (AP) — With only an official announcement standing in the way of a postponement of the March 15 World Boxing Council heavyweight title fight, the battle between champion Larry Holmes and Gerry Cooney's camp has deteriorated into long-distance name-calling. Holmes, suggesting that Cooney had created the injury to his left shoulder in his mind, labeled the New York heavyweight "Looney Cooney," at a news conference Tuesday in Las Vegas, Nev., site of the scheduled fight.

Dennis Rappaport, Cooney's co-manager, replied that Holmes "was so absolutely lacking in any type of comprehension of the problem, it's obvious he is no nuclear scientist." Holmes also charged that the report of torn muscle fibers in Cooney's left shoulder was a means of delaying the fight, for which each fighter is guaranteed $10 million, to the May-June date he said they wanted originally.

"Those who are doing a good job of conniving and scheming," Holmes said of Cooney and his co-managers, Rappaport and Mike Jones.

Rappaport said Holmes was suffering from delusions and that Cooney would take care of that by "putting him to sleep ... by knocking him

Although the Sonics outscored the Lakers 19-3 in a four-minute span late in the game, it wasn't nearly enough as Los Angeles took over first place in the Pacific Division with a 108-101 victory.

The Lakers, who snapped a three-game losing streak, improved their record to 35-17, and now have a half-game edge over the Sonics, who have lost four straight.

Rappaport said Cooney was in "extreme pain" and added: "He (Cooney) couldn't throw a softball. He has limited motion with the hand. If I let him into that ring I would be derelict in my ultimate responsibility, both to him and the public."

"The easiest thing for Gerry to have done was to go into that ring and collect $10 million, but that's never been the objective. The objective is to win the heavyweight championship, and he's going to do it."

While there seemed little doubt that the bout would be put off, Rappaport said a formal announcement of the status of the fight will be made today or Thursday.

And, he warned that if there is a postponement, Holmes could be in violation of their contract if he has another fight before meeting Cooney.

The contract has a 60-day injury clause during which time neither fighter could have another bout, a source said, adding that the contract would be nullified if the bout was not held in six months.

Holmes said he had to fight regularly to stay in shape and that promoters were "looking for someone for me to fight" next month.

There has been speculation that the new date for the Holmes-Cooney fight would be in early May.

"I'm very pleased with our effort in the second half, but there's no question that physical and mental fatigue hurt us," said Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens. "We've done a lot of traveling before and after the All-Star break. The Lakers looked very good, but they still have to come up to Seattle. They were the better team tonight."

In other NBA games, Dallas edged New York 112-110, Detroit trimmed Houston 111-109, Phoenix tripped Chicago 91-86, Denver bombed Kansas City 119-106, Washington nipped Portland 100-97 and Atlanta beat San Diego 102-91.

Starters Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Norm Nixon led the Lakers with 26 and 22 points, respectively, but Coach Pat Riley was most pleased with the play of his bench.

"Jim Brewer came in and did a great job of neutralizing Lonnie Shelton," said Riley of his substitute forward, who had a game-high 12 rebounds in just 22 minutes of play. "And Bob McAdoo is really coming around lately. The hunger is back in his heart. By playoff time, he'll be a big factor for us. He's an excellent acquisition for this team."

McAdoo had 15 points in 21 minutes in his 21st game since being acquired from New Jersey.

"Our third key reserve, Michael Cooper, also played very well," added Riley. "When we can bring in players like Brewer, McAdoo, Cooper and Eddie Jordan, it shows how strong we are on the bench."

Seattle rallied from a 62-48 halftime deficit in the third quarter and trailed 84-78 at the end of the period. But the Lakers made their first nine field-goal attempts in the fourth quarter to take a 102-82 lead with 5:42 left.

Then the Sonics put on their 19-3 rally and trailed 105-101 with 1:42 remaining. They didn't score again, however, and the Lakers added one free throw by Earvin "Magic" Johnson and a field goal by Nixon for their final margin.

Seattle's Gus Williams was the game's leading scorer with 30 points, 21 in the second half, while Shelton and Jack Sikma had 18 each.

Mavericks 112, Knicks 110
Rookie Jay Vincent scored 40 points, but it was a corner jumper by Wayne Cooper with one second remaining that gave Dallas its third straight victory.

Another rookie, Rolando Blackman, had 15 of his 17 points in the fourth quarter to help the Mavericks beat New York, which got 29 points from Michael Ray Richardson.

The Mavs had a 110-107 lead before Campy Russell's three-point goal tied the score with 14 seconds left, setting up Cooper's game-winner.

Suns 91, Bulls 86
Phoenix snapped a seven-game losing streak on the road by beating Chicago, which has lost nine of its last 10.

Dennis Johnson led the Suns with 18 points and Kyle Macy scored 10 of his 16 points in the fourth quarter.

Ricky Sobers paced the Bulls with 18 points.

Nuggets 119, Kings 106

Denver kept Kansas City on the losing track on the road as the Kings lost their 12th straight away from home. Alex English, who has averaged 30 points in five games against the Kings, scored 24 to pace the Nuggets. English had 14 of his points in the second quarter, when Denver outscored the Kings 23-10 in the final six minutes to take a 62-50 halftime lead.

Pistons 111, Rockets 109
Rookie Kelly Tripucka

Richard Sheppard, DDS
General Dentistry

celebrated his 23rd birthday by scoring 30 points as Detroit snapped Houston's eight-game winning streak.

Tripucka, who has been averaging just under 30 points in the last seven games, joined guard John Long in a second-half flurry that helped Detroit take a 104-94 lead.

The Rockets, who got 34 points from Moses Malone, outscored the Pistons 14-6 to cut the lead to 110-108 with 22 seconds remaining. But a free throw by Kent Benson gave Detroit a three-point lead with six seconds to play.

Hawks 102, Clippers 91
Eddie Johnson scored 29 points, 10 of them in the first quarter when Atlanta took the lead for good over San Diego, which has lost six in a row.

The Hawks led by as many as 19 points in the first half and had a 57-41 halftime edge. San Diego cut the deficit to five points with 2:16 left, but Johnson scored the last six Atlanta points to salt the victory.

Rookie Al Wood, who was traded to the Clippers from Atlanta last month scored a career-high 26 points.

Bullets 100, Blazers 97
Guard Frank Johnson's three-point play with 42 seconds left lifted Washington past Portland.

Johnson's basket and free throw gave the Bullets a 98-96 lead. After Portland's Billy Ray Bates made one of two free throws, the Bullets iced the game with free throws by Spencer Haywood and Don Collins.

Greg Ballard led Washington with 22 points.

FARM NEWS

By Farmers, Consumers

Food Prices Being Eyed

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — As it looks to Agriculture Department economists, farmers once again will get very little of whatever extra money consumers will be forced to pay for food this year.

Even so, many people will be keeping an eye on what happens to food prices, particularly as a result of policy changes that will affect the supply of basic agricultural commodities.

The Reagan administration is requiring farmers to reduce acreages of wheat, feed grains and cotton in order to qualify for price supports and other benefits on their 1982 crops.

When the government does this, consumer advocates and others watch to see whether there is any significant price impact at grocery stores.

Another reason food prices may get a bit more attention is the department's push to increase exports of farm commodities, particularly grain.

The aim of the acreage programs and larger exports is to help reduce some of the commodity supply — and thus boost prices and improve farmers' income.

A new report by the department's Economic Research Service offers some updated observations about food prices and the farmer's role in them.

On the average, retail food prices rose 7.9 percent last year and are expected to rise about 7 percent in 1982. That would be the smallest annual increase since 1977, when it was 6.3 percent.

Looking at what happened in 1981, the report said, "If the farm share of the food dollar were the sole determinant, retail food prices would have risen only slightly more than 1 percent."

In other words, it said, farm prices accounted for only about one-sixth of last year's retail food price gain. The remainder was due to higher prices for transportation, processing, packaging, labor and merchandizing food products after they left the farm.

"For 1982, the farm value is expected to rise only 1 to 4 percent, largely due to last fall's huge harvest," the report said.

The report, based on work done by economist Denis Dunham of the Economic Research Service, put it another way: "Food that on the average cost $1 in 1981 will cost $1.07 this year. And of that additional seven cents, less than a penny will go to farmers as higher gross returns."

The reason rises in farm value often play a small part in the retail price of food is that most of what consumers spend goes to pay the "middlemen" costs of getting it from the farm to stores.

Farmers got about 36 cents of each dollar spent on food last year. But the percentage varied widely from product to product.

For example, they got about 59 cents of each $1 spent on choice beef, 47 cents for pork, 58 cents for milk, 60 cents for eggs, 40 cents for frozen orange juice, 32 cents for fresh vegetables, 20 cents for processed vegetables and 10 cents for all the farm ingredients in white bread.

Mormons comprise 72 percent of Utah's population.

Researcher Seeking Alternative To Grain As Livestock Feed

LUBBOCK — Producers will gain, not lose, should consumer demand for grain decrease its availability for livestock feed.

Dr. Arthur G. Matches is working toward that gain. Matches, who holds the Thornton Distinguished Chair in Plant and Soil Science at Texas Tech University, is researching grasses and legumes which could decrease the dependency on grain as livestock feed.

"As the world food problem intensifies we will need more grain crops for human consumption," Matches said. "We may have to carry cattle longer on forage and limit the amount of grains used."

As a researcher, Matches hopes to supplement native range lands with pastures of improved forages which will give better performance in livestock gains.

"To decrease the livestock industry's dependency on grain we need to make greater use of the forages. But we need higher quality forages which will produce on a limited amount of water," Matches said.

In his research, Matches will be screening forages for quality and adaptation.

"Forage makes up 55 percent of the livestock diet," he said. Translated to the human diet, where 45 percent is animal products, man's daily intake of food nutrients derived from forage is 27 percent.

"Animal weight gains on grain are today two to three times higher than those gains on forage," Matches said. "Grains have a higher concentration of energy or calories. But through the use of legumes with grasses we can expect higher animal gains."

Matches will also be looking for forages which have greater efficiency in water use.

"We will be evaluating livestock production through greater use of forages as an alternative to crop farming. We need to find out if, in fact, it is economically feasible," Matches said. "Research may also show that certain forages, which require limited amounts of water, interspersed among cotton fields will cut down on wind erosion now a problem in the High Plains."

Improved forages may one day lead to new grazing systems to better meet livestock nutritional requirements. The new systems will, he said, be tailored for the different types of livestock production, that is, steers versus cows and calves.

"I've tasted meat which has been forage fed in New Zealand," Matches said. "It does taste a little different but I found it very acceptable."

The researcher doubts that forages will be used exclusively as livestock feed as in New Zealand. "But we know we can use more grass and legumes to reduce grain requirements," he said.

Small Scale Processors View Higher Profits

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department scientist says small-scale food processing facilities could help turn small, part-time farmers into full-time operators.

Donald D. Bills of the department's Agricultural Research Service says "processing and marketing" for the small farmer has usually meant selling fresh produce at seasonal roadside stands, farmers' markets and pick-your-own operations.

But Bills, who is chief of plant science at the agency's Eastern Regional Research Center at Philadelphia, says processed farm foods would have a much higher profit margin.

A report by the agency said processing "might entail washing, sorting and packaging fresh produce for restaurants and supermarkets" or shelling and packaging dried beans, nuts or sunflower seeds for health-food stores.

Researchers at the center have invented "inexpensive means of producing premium maple syrup" and preventing its spoilage through pasteurization by ultraviolet light or chemical treatment.

"The production of partially processed foods, such as apple slices ready for pies, and edible sprouts, is also under study," the report said. But the establishment of a food processing operation "will require capital and risk," it said.

"From moral and legal standpoints, the food sold must be safe. The liability publicity and cost of product recall surrounding a single outbreak of a food-borne illness have bankrupted some companies."

Neanderthal man, who lived as recently as 60,000 years ago, may have been more sophisticated than the brutish creature traditionally pictured. Block Wants Changed Forestry Management

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary John R. Block says some changes are needed in the way the nation's public forests and their wildlife are managed.

Block said Tuesday the proposed changes will "clarify and simplify" methods of managing the 191 million acres under the jurisdiction of the Forest Service, an agency of the Agriculture Department.

But a lawyer for a leading environmental group said the changes as proposed would be a set-back for many wildlife species which now are protected by the agency's regulations and would open the door wider to more timber cutting in the West.

Block said the current regulations which guide the management system were issued in September 1979 and were required by Congress in the National Forest Management Act of 1976.

The regulations were selected last March by the Presidential Task Force on Regulatory Relief "for reassessment and possible modification" because of their length and complexity, he said.

Thomas D. Lustig, an attorney with the National Wildlife Federation, said the proposal "cuts the environmental safety net or at least frays it a little."

The old regulations, he said, require that the Forest Service maintain or improve the habitats of a number of "management indicator species" such as those that are threatened or endangered, as well as a number of others that have been specified by the agency.

Under the proposal, he said, that no longer would be mandatory.

"It takes away from wildlife with one hand and on the other it kind of gives to the timber interests," Lustig said.

FEEDING AMERICA

SOURCE: Department of Agriculture

The American farmer, long the most productive in the world, is becoming more so. A half century ago, the typical farmer produced enough food on a 145-acre farm to feed 11 people — one consumer for every 13 acres. Today, he feeds 78 people from an average-size farm that has expanded to 450 acres — one consumer to less than six acres.

1982 Cotton Acreage Will Be Reduced 18 Percent

DALLAS — A producer survey by the National Cotton Council in early January indicates farmers at that time intended to plant 11.8 million acres of cotton this spring, an 18 percent decline from last season's 14.3 million.

Results of the survey, taken before announcement of a government acreage reduction program for cotton, were revealed Friday at a meeting of the Council's Producer Steering Committee.

Joseph T. Wyrick, staff agricultural economist, said more than 1,700 responses from producers all across the Cotton Belt were incorporated into the results.

Planting intentions by regions were southeast, 635,000 acres, down 18 percent; mid-south, 2,583,000 acres, down 18 percent; southwest 6,340,000 acres, down 22 percent; west, 2,213,000 acres, down 3 percent.

Wyrick said producers in the southeast and the mid-south indicated much of their acreage shifted out of cotton would go into winter wheat and soybeans. Southwest growers planned to step up their wheat and sorghum plantings to compensate for their downward shift in cotton acreage, while Western growers listed wheat as their primary crop for acreage increases.

He said most of the acres intended to be taken out of cotton apparently are slated to be used for alternative crops since cotton farmers indicated they planned to reduce their plantings of all crops by less than 2 percent. The economist emphasized that early season intentions are much more subject to revision than those nearer planting time.

Factors cited were: (1) the 7.67 cent target price deficiency payment which the economist said will give producers a better understanding of this income protection feature of the farm bill; (2) the government acreage reduction program for cotton and alternative crops which requires that producers comply to be eligible for CCC loans and deficiency payments; and (3) net return prospects assuming both compliance and non-compliance with the acreage reduction program.

"It's possible that some producers could find it necessary to plant more cotton than originally planned in order to adhere to acreage requirements for other crops while minimizing idled crop lands," the Council economist stated.

Others, he added, may consider the costs of laying out land and complying with conservation requirements to be greater than expected benefits from program compliance.

Wyrick said USDA economists, using computer models to compare production costs and market and target prices of cotton and alternative crops, have estimated cotton producer participation in the acreage reduction program at 75 percent in the southeast, 65 percent in the mid-south, 50 percent in the southwest, and 55 percent in the west.

The USDA model assumes that non-participants would reduce acreage only about 5 percent and this—added to the 15 percent reduction by participants—leads to an estimate of 12.8 million acres planted to cotton in 1982.

The Council's survey, however, suggests this estimate may be somewhat high since non-participating producers appear likely to reduce their cotton plantings by a significantly greater amount than USDA's model assumes.

Noting that USDA's estimate of 12.8 million acres may be on the high side and the Council's survey findings on the low side, he said the "best guess" of planted acreage is about 12.5 million.

"This, we believe, reflects both the bullish and bearish impacts of the government's program while considering the stated intentions of producers who might choose not to participate."

Restaurant Association Renews Attack On Federal Grade Standards Changes

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cattle producers say they can turn out premium beef for the dining-out crowd but that doesn't seem to be convincing the National Restaurant Association.

The association renewed its attack Tuesday on the Agriculture Department's proposal to change federal grade standards which would mean leaner cuts of beef for consumers.

Walter Conti, chairman of the association, told a department hearing that proposed grading changes should be set aside so an independent advisory committee can study the situation.

He said the panel will "advise USDA on how to modify the beef grading system so it will reflect the needs of producers, distributors and consumers alike."

Department officials began a series of hearings on the proposed beef grade changes last week. The one here was the third. Two more are scheduled next week — in Des Moines, Iowa, Feb. 22, and in Dallas Feb. 25.

Basically, the proposal would affect the quality grades of beef only. The yield grades, which reflect the amount of usable meat a carcass provides, would not be affected.

The proposed changes would allow beef containing less marbling — small streaks and flecks of fat — to qualify for higher grades. That could mean savings to farmers and feedlot operators by reducing the time cattle are "finished" or fed before they are sent to slaughter.

Conti said that if approved the new system could mean more prime — the top grade — but that it "will not be prime as we know it today." More choice beef — the second grade — would be available, but he said much of that would be "what we now know as good" — the current No. 3 grade.

"In our view, the product is being degraded for the convenience of the producers,"

Conti said. "Ultimately, the consumer is being ripped off."

Rep. Peter A. Peyser, D-N.Y., agreed with Conti's view, telling the hearing that the grading system — which is a voluntary program operated by USDA — was designed to protect and inform consumers.

"The changes as proposed by the USDA would do nothing more than exploit and confuse the consumer," Peyser said. Moreover, he said, it would "result in consumers ... paying prime prices for choice beef and choice prices for the good grades of beef."

But the National Cattlemen's Association, which is pushing for even leaner specifications than proposed by USDA, disputed claims that changing the standards to leaner beef would hurt the restaurant business.

Sam Washburn, president of the association, said cattle producers are "confident we could produce desirable beef for this market as well as the retail stores" under leaner rules.

"Those restaurant operators who want extra marbling, as in prime, can specify they type of beef they want, and feeders like myself can and will produce it," Washburn said. "As long as there is a price incentive, they can readily get the type of beef they specify."

Soviet Rice Imports Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has been importing large quantities of rice, perhaps to offset some of its poor food crops, says the Agriculture Department.

Officials said Thursday in a monthly analysis that estimated Soviet rice imports in 1980-81 have been revised upward by 300,000 metric tons to a record total of 850,000 tons.

In 1981-82, the report said, Soviet rice imports may rise to 1 million metric tons. A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds.

The revision pushed the Soviet Union's import total of all grains in 1980-81 to 34.8 million metric tons. This year's total is expected to be about 42 million, a level indicated the past two months.

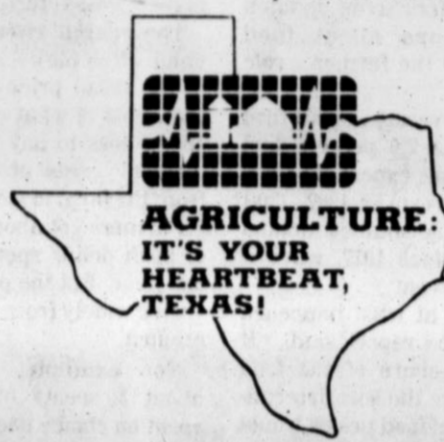

The report said Soviet rice imports have grown steadily since 1973-74 and that domestic rice output also has crept upward during that time.

"Some of the growth in (rice) imports might be attributed to recent poor harvests for substitute food crops (such as wheat and potatoes), and changes in Soviet consumption patterns," the report said.

But it also could be "a reflection of an alteration in Soviet trade policy following the 1980 embargo" of grain sales by the United States.

"At that time the USSR was compelled to seek grains and other agricultural commodities from virtually all sources, and countries like Thailand and India — which were not party to the embargo — became major suppliers in addition to traditional ones such as North Korea," the report said.

Farm Exports To Be Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — After setting value records for 12 consecutive years, U.S. farm exports are expected to decline in 1981-82, says the Agriculture Department.

"Export volume may increase about 4 percent to 169 million metric tons, but lower prices for most major products will likely reduce the value to around $42.5 billion," officials said Tuesday.

In the fiscal year that ended last Sept. 30, farm exports rose to a record $43.8 billion. Last fall, department experts predicted a further rise this year to $45.5 billion.

But sagging commodity prices dampened the optimism and by late January the decline was indicated after October-December export figures were reported — a decline of 4 percent from the same three months a year earlier.

Looking at what happened during the first quarter, the latest report said "sharply lower feed grain shipments offset volume gains for soybeans, wheat and most other products."

Export prices also were lower for most items except tobacco and some fruits and vegetables," the report said.

"Weakened export demand is most evident for corn. Despite abundant supplies and lower prices, first-quarter volume fell 25 percent from a year earlier."

FEBRUARY FIREWORKS!

CBSO AMARILLO

TIA Has
'Fly Free' Program

HOUSTON, - Texas International Airlines has announced its new "Guaranteed Fly Free" program, the most generous frequent flyer plan offered by any airline, and the only one that includes both frequent flyers and their secretaries.

A passenger who takes only five round trips on Texas International's domestic system can receive a free round trip to any city TI serves, plus substantial savings on hotel accommodations in the U.S. and Mexico. And a secretary who books 20 round trips on TI can earn a free round trip.

"TI's is the simplest, most generous frequent flyer program ever developed," said Ron F. Woestemeyer, TI vice president-marketing programs. "You don't have to tally mileage or follow lots of complicated rules. Just use TI whenever possible, and earn free trips for yourself and your family, and let your secretary earn free flights just for booking you on TI."

"Unlike some airlines which require as many as 111 trips to earn a free flight, five round trips by a frequent flyer on TI earns one free trip, seven round trips earn two free trips, and nine round trips earn three free round trips. It's simple to earn credits, even simpler to redeem them," explained Woestemeyer. "And if one executive takes 20 round trips, or if 20 executives take one round trip each, the secretary who booked them wins a free flight."

To receive a free round-trip ticket, a frequent flyer saves boarding passes and passenger copies of tickets for every domestic TI flight taken between Feb. 15 and midnight, May 31. One-way tickets count as single credits for free trips, and may be redeemed between April 13 and Sept. 30, 1982.

Applications for the "Guaranteed Fly Free" program, excluding the secretary's plan, are available at TI ticketing locations, including city and airport ticket offices. Applications by mail are also available upon request from TI's reservation office. Participants in the secretary's program may call TI's reservations number to enroll and begin earning credits.

Participants in TI's "Guaranteed Fly Free" plan can earn credits based on any trip taken by them or a family member, as long as the tickets are issued under the same name and family members fly together on the same flight. Participants are also eligible for discounts of up to 33 percent at selected Holiday Inns in Mexico and Ramada Inns in the U.S.

WHO AM I?

Call me a Pete Rose-type. To keep sharp, you have to hustle. I've been doing that since my high-school days in Mississippi. I'm not a complicated person, I'm just myself. And I can't complain. The rewards are sweet.

Hayden Running Again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tom Hayden, one-time firebrand leader of the anti-war movement and unsuccessful candidate for a U.S. Senate nomination, is running for office again. And this time he is given a good chance of joining the political establishment he once fought in the streets.

More than 600 people paid $200 each last week to be served by black-tie waiters and to rub shoulders with a galaxy of television and movie stars at the kickoff of Hayden's campaign for a seat in the state Assembly.

The scene was a ballroom in Los Angeles' posh Century Plaza Hotel, the same room that every president since Lyndon Johnson has used to court the monied elite of California. The Tom Hayden of 1982 is seeking acceptance as part of the political establishment of the California Democratic Party.

Declaring it is time for "a new generation of leadership" in California politics, Hayden is campaigning against President Reagan's "new federalism" as a "mean-spirited" doctrine "which contains a very dangerous sanction of selfishness that will be a disaster for our people."

Hayden says he believes the California Legislature "will become a major battleground of the '80s" where Democrats will forge alternatives to Reagan's economic plans.

Hayden, who in 1969 shouted outside the walls of Folsom Prison to "free the leadership of the revolution" from prison, in 1982 is talking about the need to put more police on the street to fight the "crisis in crime."

"We must help citizens with the immediate shadows that are stalking their lives. I am referring to crime," Hayden said. "I will support state assistance for community-based crime prevention programs combining more police on the streets with more citizen involvement."

The announcement marks Hayden's second bid for political office in California. Six years ago he ran unsuccessfully for the U.S. Senate in the Democratic primary against the incumbent, John Tunney.

But there are several major differences between that campaign and Hayden's 1982 campaign.

In 1976, he had no realistic chance of winning. It was a campaign to establish political credibility. This time, Hayden is seeking a lower office, and he could win.

He will face Steve Saltzman, a aide to Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley, and Alan Katz, a former federal Securities and Exchange Commission attorney in the June 8 Democratic primary. The seat is currently held by Democrat Mel Levine, who is seeking a seat in Congress.

Hayden is, if not the favorite, a strong contender, with far more political experience than his two Democratic primary foes and more acceptance among party leaders. And with the Hollywood connections of his wife, actress Jane Fonda, Hayden has far more ability than his rivals to raise campaign funds.

His announcement dinner netted more than $100,000, raising his total to $250,000, a vast sum even in 1982 for so early in a legislative campaign.

The dinner was a good example of Hayden's new political standing.

Little rules to live by: If you've come to the end of a perfect day, you can make book the evening will be a monumental disaster.

What this country needs is a jogger so out of breath that he can't bore you stiff with gab about his mania.

If what you see in your mirror pleases you, you're probably catching the reflection of someone else in the room.

A SQUAD LEADER conceals his face as he and his men march at Camp Cuba-Nicaragua on the edge of the Florida Everglades. These "Sunday soldiers" are said to be training with impunity both here and in the California desert to overthrow the Sandinista government of their native Nicaragua. They boast that 100 of their number have already slipped into the Central American country.

HEALTH Look for a medical cause

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Can you give me some information on impotence? I'm 61, in good health, jog and exercise daily, but I have borderline high blood pressure. I take Dyazide and Combipres for it. My wife and I had intercourse at least once a week with no trouble at all prior to her passing away a year ago. I have since remarried to a wonderful woman who is 10 years my junior. I can always be ready but then I lose it, which is quite embarrassing to both of us. I asked my doctor if the drugs would cause this. He says no, that it is probably from the thought of losing my wife and might be a mental block that would pass.

DEAR READER - In the past 10 years medicine has begun to come out of the dark ages about impotence. It is a very frequent problem and it is a symptom of many disorders that deserve medical attention. There is a bad habit in medicine of assuming that if you do not understand something a patient has, it is "all in your mind." Impotence is a classic example. Recent studies suggest that as many as two-thirds of men in your age group have a medical reason, not a psychological reason, for developing impotence.

That does not mean your doctor is wrong. He could be absolutely right and you may feel guilty about sex with a new partner after years of a happily married life. But before any man is assumed to have psychological impotence he deserves a proper medical examination. That includes blood glucose measurements to be sure that the man doesn't have diabetes as a cause of his impotence, measurements of testosterone and prolactin. A surprising number of men develop an increase in prolactin, the hormone from the pituitary gland under the brain that stimulates milk formation in women. If there is an increase in prolactin, taking bromocriptine usually solves the problem.

Combipres contains Catapres (clonidine) which has been reported to cause impotence in from 0 to 24 percent of patients using it.

DEAR DR. LAMB - We ate some salmon that was not cooked thoroughly. It was barbecued and the ends did not get cooked through. We found a worm, similar to a pin worm or longer, in the small part that was not cooked through. The Health Department said it was possibly a form of tape worm found in fish. Could you tell me how I can find out if we have this in our system? What is the cure? I'm worried sick.

DEAR READER - There is a fish tapeworm and it can infect salmon and pike, but tapeworms are flat, like noodles. The only way to identify them is from stool examinations. They may not cause symptoms except anemia from their use of vitamin B-12 and folic acid. If you have a fish tapeworm it can be treated with medicines taken by mouth. Your story is another example of the importance of adequately cooking one's food. Fish frozen at minus 10 C for 48 hours will also be free of any such tapeworms.

A common source of fish tapeworm infestations is the process of making gefilte fish and sampling it in the process.

DEAR DR. LAMB - The other day I read an item that really frightened me. It said that a lot of the meat we buy contains germs that can cause food poisoning. It also said that most butcher shops actually contaminate the meat before it is sold in handling. I always thought that the meat you buy would be clean and not dangerous to your health. The article also said that food poisoning from germs was a far greater threat to our health than the problem of chemicals.

I don't want to poison my family. I always knew about potato salads and cream pies but didn't know about meat. What can we do to avoid getting sick from eating infected meat?

DEAR READER - You are probably overreacting but there is a lot of truth in your comments. The food poisoning from potato salads and cream pies is from a toxin released by the staphylococcal germs. The toxin is already there when you eat it so you get sick right away.

The germ that causes food poisoning from meat, which includes poultry, is salmonella. It acts differently. The germs set up housekeeping in your intestine and then release toxins to make you sick. Studies have shown that about 40 percent of turkeys sold have salmonella on their surface. And beef and pork can be contaminated. It is true that the butcher's block often has salmonella on it from processing one piece of meat after another. But as long as you cook your meat adequately that will not hurt you because adequate cooking will kill the bacteria.

You'll be shocked to learn that your own kitchen counters are likely to be contaminated with salmonella, too. In cooking if you use a modified sterilized technique you can help avoid contaminating your own food. Try not to handle the meat or food with utensils that have touched uncooked meat or poultry, as the utensils may contain salmonella. The same applies to dishes and pans. An internal meat thermometer will help you achieve and maintain a temperature adequate to kill bacteria.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have been dating a man who has had a vasectomy. If marriage should be considered, I realize that there can be no children. You said that a tubal ligation can be reversed in some women. I would like to know if this is also true for a vasectomy. If so, is it a painful procedure?

DEAR READER - You are on the right track. In some instances a good reconnection can be accomplished. The percentage of good results has been improved by a special technique using microsurgery. The tube is very small and this makes it possible to make a better connection.

Just connecting the two ends of the tube (vas) that have been severed is not enough. Even with good surgery not every man will be able afterward to produce enough viable sperm to produce a pregnancy. So I think men must still consider a vasectomy a permanent form of sterility. But perhaps as high as 50 percent of men become fertile again after the microsurgical technique.

POLLY'S POINTERS
Polly Fisher

Sticky butcher block

By Polly Fisher
DEAR POLLY - My butcher block top has become sticky. No matter what I scrub the wood with, it remains sticky. I would appreciate any Pointers to relieve this problem. - HELEN

DEAR HELEN - You don't say what you've scrubbed the wood with, but if you haven't tried chlorine bleach, I recommend that. Wash with mild soap and water, rinse thoroughly, treat with the bleach and dry quickly and thoroughly. Then rub a very light coating of mineral oil into the wood to recondition and preserve it.

If bleach does not remove the stickiness, try rubbing the board with salt or conchard, then wash as indicated above, rinse and again recondition with mineral oil. - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - In response to the reader with shrinking pie crust, here's my solution: Turn the pie plate upside down and fit the unbaked crust onto the OUTSIDE of the pan. Prick all over with a fork and bake, upside down. When the crust is baked, it will probably have shrunk just enough so that you can remove it from the outside of the pan and fit it perfectly into the inside for filling. - MRS. J.M.

DEAR POLLY - To avoid shrinking, buckled pie shells, I nest an empty pie tin on top of the unbaked crust. This can be removed halfway through the baking process to allow the shell to brown. - MRS. K.S.

DEAR POLLY - My eye doctor recommended what I think is the perfect cleaner for hard contact lenses: toothpaste! Just rub a tiny amount of toothpaste on both sides of the lens between your fingertips, then rinse thoroughly. Use your regular wetting solution before inserting the lens in your eye. The toothpaste has just the right amount of abrasive to safely polish the lens. Do be sure to rinse thoroughly, though. Any trace of toothpaste could sting when you put the lens in your eye. And use this on hard lenses only! - MR. K.

DEAR MR. K. - Thank you very much. I tried this and it worked beautifully. I also checked with my own eye doctor first to make sure it was OK for me to use. Since the toothpaste idea is a bit controversial, I suggest any readers interested in using it give their own doctors a quick call as well. - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - I've discovered a convenient way of having "popcorn salt" on hand all the time. I just take regular salt and whirl it in the blender for a few seconds. It comes out fine and powdery - great for sticking onto popcorn. Costs less than commercial popcorn salt, too. - SHAR LEE
