3 Issues Carry

Voters approved three issues presented in a special election called by the Deaf Smith County Commissioners' Court Saturday in a very light turn-out. Margin of approval was better than two to one. There were just 830 votes cast in the election.

Gaining citizens' approval was a special tax allowing the issuance of $260,000 in warrants for purchase of right-of-way on U. S. Highway 60 from Hereford east to the Randall County line, some $200,000 in bonds for a new county jail and $185,000 in bonds for the renovation of the present courthouse. Final unofficial tabulation from all voting precincts gave the right-of-way proposal 598 votes for and 232 votes against. The new jail received 585 votes in favor and 224 votes against, while the courthouse repair got 564 votes in favor and 244 votes against.

Around Town

It surely was quiet in Hereford Friday and Saturday, as a huge delegation trekked to Austin to whoop and hollar for the Whitefaces. Voting on the county issues was real slow.

As a matter of fact there were so many folks out of town that the Merchants Committee of the C-C had only eight people showed up Friday morning. Dub Reeves was worried for a while, claiming that there weren't even enough members present to vote for adjournment.

Sugar beet raisers of Deaf Smith and surrounding counties will meet again Monday night at 7:30 in the County Courtroom to continue action in forming their Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association. All area sugar beet producers are urged to be present.

Public Schools Week in Hereford was a big success. School officials said there were a large number of visitors during the many activities.

Only thing we saw wrong with the entire week of school events we covered was when we had to stand with the students of one school for "The Eyes of Texas". It sure does rile us to have to stand for the University of Texas school song. Here and now we'd like to declare that "Texas, Our Texas" is the (Continued on page 2)

She was born Thursday at 7:52 p.m. Survivors include the parents, a brother, Robert J., of the home; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Lyons of Hereford and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. The 19th District Grand Jury Thursday indicted Mercedes Castillo, 26, grocery store owner at the Labor Camp, on a charge of murder with malice in the fatal shooting of Antonio De LaCorda, 41, of the Labor Camp, on the night of Feb. 28. Bond for Castillo Wednesday was set at $5,000 after Castillo waived examining trial. He paroled on Friday. (Continued on page 2)

Only Mayor's Post Contested

Election of mayor and two city commissioners will be held April 7, according to City Manager Dudley Bayne. Filing for the post of mayor were Dr. R. R. Wills and Woodrow "Woody" Wilson. In the contest for commissionships, Don Little filed for re-election to Place One and Gid E. Brown filed as a candidate for Place Two.

Police Report On 1958 Work

A report of Hereford Police Department activities was released this week, covering the 1958 calendar year. Chief Henry Aycock submitted the statistical study to the mayor and members of the City Commission. More than 65,000 miles was covered during the year and there was an average of about one dispatch for each hour during the year. . . . Some 8,600 for 1958. There were fewer accidents and fewer injuries during 1958 than the preceding year, but the financial loss from the accidents was higher. This, Chief Aycock commented, indicates that most of the vehicles involved were travelling at faster speeds. There were 183 accidents in 1959, compared with 190 during 1957. Injuries were down from 26 to 22, but financial loss jumped from $40,125 to $54,273. Moving traffic violations numbered 1,113, an increase from 1,070, and traffic fines also went upward from $6,803 to $7,697. There was a slight increase in the number of criminal offenses, from 167 to 178, but the (Continued on page 2)

64-52 Win Puts Smiley Wins 58-42

By RICHARD LEGGITT
 BRAND SPORTS WRITER
 AUSTIN — A herd of Hereford Whitefaces stamped over the tall Kilgore Bulldogs here Friday afternoon in a 64-52 win that kept the crowd on its toes from beginning to end and blasted the Herd into the state AAA finals.

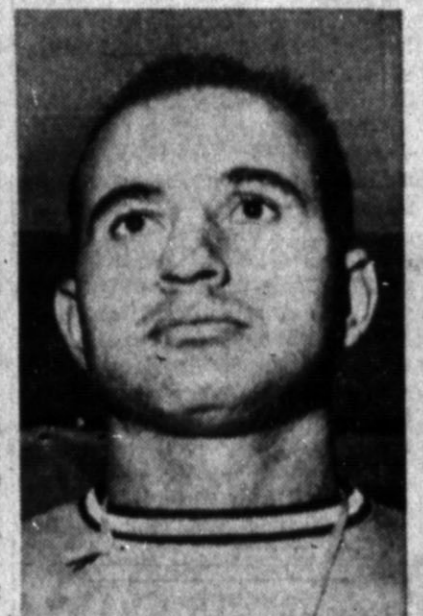

The Whitefaces were slated to meet the Smiley Eagles from Houston Saturday at 8:45 p.m. in a championship game that promised to be the best in the tourney. Smiley, led by 7-11½ Lewis Qualls, slopped down the outclassed South of San Antonio, 56-40, in an earlier game. The Whitefaces from West Texas kept the pace hot and heavy during the first half to gain a 21-point halftime margin and then toyed with the Bulldogs for the last two quarters. Hereford was the favorite of the crowd of about 8,000 from the minute they saw the Herd's whirlwind attack and ball-stealing antics until the action-packed game was over. Kilgore was a game crew, led by 6-4 Norman Bonds, a second team All-Star, but they just couldn't quite figure out how to handle the Herd's full court press.

At the start of the game, Kilgore got the first tip but before they had gone ten feet with the ball, hustling Bobby Shelton stole it for the Whitefaces. This pace kept up with Donnie Renfro, Ken Clearman and Shelton taking turns taking the ball away from the Bulldogs. Renfro, Shelton and Steve Slagle slammed the nets during the first quarter to send Hereford to a 17-6 lead before Kilgore could recover. Kilgore came back slightly and managed to make the score 17-10 at the end of the first period. During the second quarter Ken Clearman and Milner Duvall joined the Whiteface riot squad to push the score up to 41-20 at halftime. During the second half, Kilgore came back strong for a few minutes and managed to close the gap to 38-52 at the end of the third quarter. In the fourth period the Herd again poured on the steam and tempers flared high as Kilgore fell beside the path of the roaring Whiteface express. Whiteface Bobby Shelton and 6-4½ Cliff Britt of Kilgore nearly (Continued on page 2)

With mammoth Lewis Qualls playing goal-tender, the towering Smiley Eagles of Eagles of Houston grabbed off the state AAA championship Saturday night in Austin from the hustling Whitefaces from Hereford. After a close first half, the difference in height paid off from Smiley, as they romped to a 38-42 victory and the class crown for 1958. It was the second AAA title won by the Eagles, who turned the trick in their first try in 1957. Hereford moved up two notches this year, as they took the runner-up spot. In their first trip to Austin last year they were knocked out in the first round by Waxahachie, the tournament victors. Qualls, who stands just 7-1½ as the tallest cager in American high school ranks, seemed even taller as he controlled the backboards and rammed in his team's missed shots. The Herd made a contest of it during the first half, as they fought on even terms with the Eagles. They tied the score twice and trailed just 10-12 at the end of the first eight minutes. Ken Clearman scored seven points during the first quarter to keep the Whitefaces in the contest. As the second quarter opened, Clearman pumped in two quick baskets to give Hereford its first lead, 14-13. Qualls and Harold Jones countered for Smiley, but Clearman and Bobby Shelton came through and the Herd led 18-16. Moments later, Hereford went in front again, 21-18, the last time they were in front. Smiley's huge team sacked up nine quick points and took a strong 29-23 edge at the end of the first half. Sammy Knight started ripping the nets apart in the third period and Qualls and Company romped to a 39-29 lead, as they held Hereford to six, four of them on charity tosses. Bobby Shelton, who had been delighting the crowd with his ball-stealing tactics, fouled out late in the third period, weakening the Herd's now-famous all-court defense. Hereford got within six points early in the final period, but it was a futile effort as Smiley allowed few shots and piled in the points to win going away. With 20 points and 17 rebounds, Qualls set college coaches to drooling as he blocked shots and looked like he was surrounded by linebackers. He already has 55 college offers and undoubtedly will get still more before he graduates this spring. Hereford had a weak shoot (Continued on Page 2)

COACH CUBY KITCHENS led the colorful Hereford Whitefaces through a rough and successful season and to the battlefield of the final game of the state tournament, which the Herd dropped, 58-42, to a powerful Smiley of Houston squad Saturday night. This year marks the first time the Whitefaces have reached the final game berth.

Trace Growth Of Hereford School System Since 1900

As Public Schools Week comes to a close in Hereford, it is interesting to review the history of the past. The first school in Hereford was a one-teacher school held in a building which had been moved to Hereford from old Dawn. The next year a four room, two story building was erected on the site of the present Central School. Two more rooms were added in 1902 and a three room building was built in 1908. The brick building that is now Central School was first used in 1910. The Hereford schools became an independent school district in 1908. The following year, boundaries were established which lasted until 1947. During that 39-year period, the enrollment doubled. The old Hereford Christian College building was used for about 10 years, until the high school got a new building in 1925. Eight classrooms were added to Central in 1935. In 1947 the Hereford Rural High School District was formed, with an area of 703 square miles, one of the largest in Texas. As enrollment increased about 100 students per year, barracks were moved from the prisoner of war camp for the seventh and eighth grades. Shirley School was completed in 1949, but enrollment caused officials to add another six rooms the following year. Parkview, Hereford's first Negro school, opened in 1953. In 1954 the present High School building was completed, and Alkman School was occupied in 1956. The Dawn School has been a part of the Hereford (Continued on Page 2)

Guilty Of DWI

Weldon Eugene Malone, 28, of Alamogordo, N. M., pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated, first offense, in County Court Saturday morning. County Judge Homer Henslee assessed a fine of $150 and costs and sentenced Malone to 10 days in County Jail. Malone's driver's license was suspended for six months. Malone was arrested four miles north of Hereford on U. S. 385 Friday morning by Deputy Sheriff L. R. Cherrymores. Formal charges were filed Saturday morning.

Homicide Trial Follows Youth's Tractor Death

Silas Wesley Durham, 20, a farm employee west of Hereford, in County Court Friday morning pleaded guilty to charge of negligent homicide, second degree, in connection with the death of William Arlis Stephenson, 16, of Pasadena, Tex., who died Wednesday night when a farm tractor overturned on him. Durham was given a sentence of 100 days in Deaf Smith County Jail by County (Continued on page 2)

Higgins Calf Takes Honors At Houston

Jimmy Higgins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Karroll Higgins, Route One, Hereford, showed the first place calf in the middleweight division of the huge Houston Fat Stock Show last week. Competing in the largest class in the show, with 105 entries, Jimmy's sleek Hereford took the judges' eyes for class honors. The calf, which previously had been named Grand Champion of the Hereford Junior Livestock Show, weighed 990 pounds. The calf, groomed to perfection by the 12-year-old member of the Hereford 4-H Club, was born on the Renfro Ranch in Deaf Smith County.

Congressmen Pledge Fight To Hike Milo Price Floor

An area meeting of milo producers was held recently in Hereford and other regional men drafted plans to fight the announced cut. A telegram to The Brand from Congressman Walter Rogers said: "Congressman Walter Rogers today delivered a stinging attack on the current administration and on Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson, in particular. (Continued on Page 2)

Two United States Representatives from the northern part of Texas, George Mahon of Lubbock and Walter Rogers of Pampa, have hopped on the bandwagon in decrying the price support for grain sorghum for the coming year. Cotton Quality Meet Thursday

How to improve cotton quality will be the central theme for a meeting of the Plains Cotton Growers Association in Hereford Thursday. The meeting will start at 8 p.m. in the District Courtroom. All cotton producers in the county are invited to attend the meeting. Talks will be made by George Pflieffenberger, executive vice president of the Plains Cotton Growers Association, from Lubbock and Dr. T. C. Longnecker, director of the agricultural experiment station at Halfway. There are about 565 cotton producers in Deaf Smith County, with about 10,000 acres devoted to the crop. Deaf Smith County cotton ranks last in quality, with about 78 per cent of all production cut because it is spotted. This type of cotton is below the minimum standards set for milling quality. Joel Hodges and W. H. Andrews are directors for Deaf Smith County in the PCGA.

Vegetables Shouldn't Be Secondary Crops...Renfro

Vegetable grower - shipper Jack Renfro of Hereford told approximately 20 vegetable growers that vegetables should not be considered as a secondary crop by individual farmers to realize future profit when he opened the meeting of the vegetable committee of the Deaf Smith County Program Planning Committee at the Bull Barn Friday morning. Giving past and future viewpoints on the vegetable industry, Renfro described vegetable production as one of the most complicated businesses in the United States. "Vegetable farmers must produce, manufacture and wholesale crops," Renfro said, "and they must do the (Continued on page 2)

three jobs in one day as there is no way of storing the crops." Renfro said that the county has outgrown its market. At the present time, he said, there are enough vegetable sheds to pack five times as many vegetables as farmers can actually sell. Main problem of marketing local vegetables, he said, is the fact that when vegetable harvest takes place here, all other cities, at the same time, are consuming vegetables they have produced in their own localities. In the Rio Grande Valley, in contrast, farmers place vegetables on the market when other localities cannot produce crops, he said. Renfro said that to a certain (Continued on Page 2) point, farmers could widen markets for vegetables by producing higher quality crops. But, he cited, only a limited amount of vegetables can be "moved." Joe E. Cole, associate county agent, said growers in this area need to make a "slot" for sales in national markets to gain more success in vegetables. Programs to produce higher quality vegetables will be undertaken in this area during the coming year, he said. Through organized effort, Cole said, the "gamble" taken by the farmer can be cut down considerably. He urged the farmers to make thorough plans before planting crops for the coming year. Grant Hanna, president of the Deaf Smith County Grain Producers Association, reported that work is still underway to change the lowered mill price supports for the year. After a meeting of grain sorghum producers to study production and research in Amarillo last Wednesday, Hanna met with representatives of 12 other area counties to discuss the problem. Frank Moore of Plainview, president of the Grain Producers Association, and four other delegates, to be named later, are slated to meet with Secretary of Agriculture Benson in Washington on Friday, March 13. The Producers Grain Association, the Farm Bureau and the Farmers' Union also have appointments to talk with Benson about the sharp cut.

financial loss to crime dropped off from $7,421 to $6,654.
A slight decrease in the number of criminal arrests was shown for the past year, from 315 to 293, with an attendant drop in criminal fines from $4,486 to $3,984. There were 119 warrants served, 15 more than in 1937.
Parking meter revenue took a healthy rise, going from $10,701 to $12,281, which would tie in with the drop from 5,585 parking violations listed in 1937 to the 7,600 in 1938. During the same period, overparking fines brought in $4,211, slightly less than the $4,857 received in 1937.
Reluctant guests of the city cost $777 for meals, an increase from $841 for feeding costs in 1937.

Ken Clearman provided the only scoring punch for the Whitefaces as he swished in 18 points, 16 of them from the floor, Steve Slagle, who took a beating from Qualls most of the night, was next best with nine.
Aiding Qualls were Sammy Knight with 14 and Harold Jones with 11.
For Coach W. H. "Cubby" Kitchens it was a sad end for a wonderful season, which saw his Bobber Band rack up 29 wins against just six losses.

squared off during the middle of the fourth quarter but finally agreed to shake hands at the assistance of the referee.

Hereford opened with a full court press and stayed in it throughout the contest, which was never close after the opening minutes. Leading Hereford were Bobby Shelton and Steve Slagle with 17 points each. Kilgore's Bobby Parks scored 14 and Cliff Britt had 13. Highly touted Norman Bonds had to settle for eight.

Hereford hit 42.4 per cent of its shots from the floor and Kilgore, when the Whitefaces would let them get a shot, did even better as they netted 48.8 per cent.
Kilgore opened the game with a field goal, then Hereford got two. Bulldog Crouch fired in a basket to knot the score at 4-4, the last time Kilgore got within waving distance of the fast-moving Herd.

With two minutes remaining and a 61-42 advantage, Coach Cuby Kitchens poured his tall sophomore reserves onto the Gregory Gymnasium floor. Kilgore added ten points during the last two minutes, as the young sophs garnered three.
Kitchens praised his six seniors endlessly, pointing out instances when each of them had come through with the pressure on. Paul Higgins started the game and played well on defense and helped control the backboards. Milner Duvall relieved little Donnie Renfro as the fireball guard picked up four fouls early in the contest.
In their second consecutive year at the state meet, Hereford surpassed the 1938 squad, which lost in the first round to Waxahachie, the ultimate state champs. Slagle and Shelton were starters on last year's contenders.

$1.52 cwt., in addition to the difficulty he experienced in securing an appointment with the Secretary of Agriculture to discuss the matter.

"Of all the injustices perpetrated on the farmer by the Secretary of Agriculture, this beats them all. He has not only set the support price on grain sorghums at a figure actually below the cost of production, but he has broken faith with the expressed intent of the law fixed by Congress by showing rank favoritism to the corn producer at the expense of the grain sorghum grower," Rogers said.
"It was only after repeated requests from me and other members of Congress that Secretary Benson finally agreed to a meeting for discussion to be held on March 6th (Friday) at 4 p.m. It is notable and typical of Agriculture departmental policies that this meeting will be held at the convenience of the Secretary, rather than at the convenience of members of Congress - the elected representatives of the people," Rogers went on.

"The Pampa congressman expressed hope that something might be done legislatively to change the announced price support level. Hearings are scheduled on 1939 support levels for feed grains in the Livestock and Feed Grains Subcommittee of the House Agriculture Committee on March 13th (next Friday)."

"This is the situation which many of us in Congress felt might develop when we attempted to put a floor under support levels in the 85th Congress. When the President vetoed the bill, I prayed the Secretary of Agriculture would not go so far as he has just done in forcing many of our farmers to abandon their livelihood. Unfortunately, much of the damage which will be effected in this most recent edict of the Secretary will be irreparable, not only to the farmer, but to many small businesses and industries in grain sorghum producing areas."

Rep. George Mahon said that the price cut "has been a shock to the members of Congress from grain sorghum producing areas."
He went on to say, "In view of the language of the law, it was anticipated that the support price for milo in 1939 would be approximately the same as corn, inasmuch as both have approximately the same feed value. This is not the case, and an explanation is being demanded and ways are being sought to remedy the situation."

Judge Homer Henslee. Stephenson, a visitor on the farm of his uncle, A. W. Powers, had arrived at his uncle's farm Wednesday. Powers lives near Bootleg, about 30 miles west of Hereford.

Investigating Highway Patrolman J. R. Kirkwood of Vega said the boys were apparently headed for Glen Rio, N. M., with the farm tractor, when the accident occurred between 7 and 7:30 p.m. Stephenson was a passenger on the tractor.
Kirkwood said the tractor overturned as it passed over a fill on a country road. The Stephenson boy was pinned beneath the vehicle, Kirkwood said. The accident occurred about eight miles south of Glen Rio. The tractor was travelling northwest at the time of the accident.
Durham was not injured, Kirkwood said. The accident was reported to the Highway Patrol unit in Vega by Durham.

Funeral services for Stephenson will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday, Clara Wright, minister of the north unit of Jehovah's Witnesses in Amarillo, will conduct services. Burial will be in Rest Lawn Memorial Cemetery, under direction of Kreig-Marcum Funeral Home.
The youth was born March 16, 1942, in Tulsa, Okla. He is survived by his father, William Stephenson of Beaumont; his mother, Mrs. W. L. Mayo of Pasadena; two brothers, Stephen T. Stephenson of the U. S. Marines in San Diego, Calif., and John Austin Mayo of Pasadena; a sister, Mrs. Nancy Rainwater of Beaumont, and his grandmother, Mrs. Cora Stephenson of Pampa.

Mahon further stated, "Since the drastic drop in support levels for milo was announced, I have appealed to the Secretary of Agriculture and others in the Department to reconsider the action taken. I have received complaints in regard to the situation from Mr. Frank Moore of Plainview, President of the Grain Sorghum Producers Association, and many others. If the drastic cut in supports remains in effect, grain sorghum producers will sustain losses totalling many millions of dollars. A more effective program for all feed grains is needed, but action is made most difficult by reason of the well known attitude of the Secretary of Agriculture."

J. B. Snead's Father Dies

Funeral services for J. B. Snead Sr., 70, father of J. B. Snead Jr. of Hereford, were held Friday in the Littlefield Drive Church of Christ, with Wayne Dennis, minister officiating. He was assisted by Dr. Lee Hemphill, pastor of the First Baptist Church.
Mr. Snead died at 2:30 a.m. Thursday in Littlefield Hospital and Clinic.
He had been a resident of Littlefield for 10 years, moving there from County Line. He was a retired farmer.
Mr. Snead was born June 5, 1868, in Fannin County.
The family has authorized C. C. Stone to accept contributions to a heart fund in memory of Mr. Snead.
Survivors include his wife, Hattie, of 506 E. 14th St., Littlefield; two sons, J. B. Jr., 125 Ave. D, Hereford, and Rene Edward of Friona; two sisters; three brothers; and six grandchildren.
Burial was in Littlefield Memorial Park.

Vegetables...

Dr. Clyde Singletary, horticulturist, agreed with Renfro that vegetables should not be considered a secondary crop by the farmer. If the farmer considers it a secondary crop, he said, it will become a neglected crop of poor quality.

Dr. Singletary said too many farmers are producing vegetables, but there is still room for good vegetable growers. The growing of vegetables, he said, is an "in-and-out proposition" - some realize profit from their crops and others lose money. A great deal of the success of a crop depends on the individual farmer, he added.

He said vegetables, in general, are a stable crop, not a luxury item. He said growing vegetables is not a gamble unless the farmer makes it that way.
Dr. Singletary said important phases of growing a good crop are a good rotation program, clean cultivation and well-planned preparation.

Other speakers at the meeting were J. F. Rosborough, horticultural marketing specialist, Connie F. Garner, assistant entomologist, and Dr. Harlan E. Smith, plant pathologist. The meeting ended with a question period at noon.

Currently construction is under way on a huge addition to the Stanton Junior facilities and an eight room elementary school in the northwest part of Hereford.
In 1913, there were two buildings for the 13 teachers and 445 students. Two buildings housed 26 teachers and 610 students in 1923. At the end of the next ten years there were 28 teachers and 830 children in two buildings, while in 1943 there were 33 teachers and 935 students.

By 1948, there were 58 teachers and 1430 students in three buildings.
There were five buildings in 1953, with 82 instructors and 1905 students. Last year there were 123 teachers and 2450 students in seven buildings.

Enrollment in January of this year was 2540, with 130 persons on the instructional staff. There are an additional 80 persons on the business and service staff.
Current budget totals about $923,000, with estimated receipts of $925,000. Revenue is divided almost equally between local and state sources.
Current building program totals $630,000. Repair costs will be about $10,000 for Central and $79,000 for Stanton. Three new buildings are contracted as follows: elementary school, $105,000; junior high addition, $273,000; and administration-canteen building, $118,000. Equipment will add another $47,000.

Outboard Craft Most Versatile

By FRANK ECK
At the risk of offending my boss, his wife, my wife and a thousand and one other sail-boat enthusiasts, I'll still take an outboard runabout with a 35 horsepower motor purring over the transom.

If a sailboat has advantages over an outboard I've never seen them. Certainly there's nothing prettier than a 20-foot or larger sloop under sail. But I've seen too many in a calm and have seen too many people struggle to get them, on to a four-wheeled trailer come season's end.

I'd love a big sailboat or an auxiliary sailor but that runs into money. And it's only good to go into this size if you're running for office and can afford to write off your friends as tax deductions. I'm not in that bracket. Anyway who wants to become a bookkeeper?

With my little 17-foot outboard runabout I can afford to spend $2 for six gallons of gasoline (that was last year - new taxes are being added this year) and one pint of oil, buy three dozen sand worms and troll for striped bass. Caught 29 last year in a five-mile Long Island inlet called Cold Spring Harbor. And it's the prettiest sailing harbor in the world because there's no commercial boating and only one little boat club.

Of course, none of the strippers were above five pounds but they felt like 20 pounders with that spinning tackle. I'm certain it was more fun holding the rod in one hand and netting the fish in the other than running up a sail.

On hot days when would-be sailors sat out the calm I'd scoot to another part of the harbor for a breeze and another troll. Nothing beats it, unless the wife fails to net a fish and wants to put up on the beach for a dip at high tide. You can't do this with a sail boat unless you have a dingy along or use a center board for a keel.

Last year 37 million people went boating. One fifth of them owned boats. Of these 7-million-plus boat owners, a half million owned sailboats without inboard power. Of these same 7 million, half owned outboard boats and

NEW 50 horsepower electric starting motor costs $850. The manual starting type is $100 less. Less horsepower means less cost.

ALUMINUM outboards such as this 15 1/2 footer, product of an aircraft maker, cost $645. A protective paint can be used for salt water. The 20-footer in the rear lists for $2,215.

The two-count indictments were on charges of burglary of the Star Theatre and Sunset Lanes bowling alley in February. Formal charges in the burglary of the bowling alley were filed against the trio by Hereford police last week. They had earlier been charged for the burglary of the Star Theatre.

Beauty At Home

Q. What steps can one take to avoid any danger of body odor?
A. Daily bathing and fresh underclothes are, of course, the prime requisites to body cleanliness and sweetness. If a medicated soap is not sufficient to keep you sweetsmelling, use a little ammonia in your bath water or several heaping spoonfuls of powdered borax. Salt baths are good, too, and especially for overtaxed nerves. Into a tub of tepid water throw several large handfuls of sea salt. Lie in this bath at least ten minutes. Wash the body with a rough cloth, and rub dry.

Q. What rouge placement will seem to add fullness to my rather thin face?
A. Rouge away from the nose and don't bring it very far down on the face. Avoid pacing rouge in the hollows of the cheeks, but bring it around these depressions, thus making the contour of the face seem rounder.

Q. How can I remove egg stains from one of my unwashable dresses?
A. After the stain has dried, scrape off as much of the egg as possible with a dull knife. Then remove the remains with some cleaning fluid.

Q. What exercise will encourage a slim and supple waistline?
A. Stand erect with feet comfortably separated. Slide the fingers of both hands down the left leg toward the toes. Then drag the fingers up the leg and bend the trunk BACK to the right. Continue, alternating the hands on each leg.

Q. What is an easy way to soften and bleach the skin?
A. One good way is to add some lemon juice to your regular cleansing cream. You should keep this in a cool place to avoid any danger of its becoming rancid. Some women like to keep lemon juice in their hand lotions, too.

Fry French toast in bacon drippings, then serve with crisp bacon and maple syrup or honey.

Nowadays the words "string beans" are a misnomer; modern varieties of snap beans have no strings.

RECEIVES HARD JAR

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Dorris Nichols swears this is how she got a black eye:

She stepped out of a car carrying a purse, briefcase and jar of hand cream. She spied a friend and waved. The jar of hand cream flew out of her hand and hit her in the right eye.

note that ten of the top 22 best-dressed women are women who work away from home — among them, three school teachers. Several of the 22 make most of their own clothes and one of these several happens also to be the wife of a minister. It will be fun to tell about each woman individually, and in order to do this I plan to devote a portion of this column every week to a thumbnail sketch of one woman on the list, beginning next week with Mrs. Jimmy Witherspoon.

I understand that tickets have gone on sale for the B&PW Style Show to be held Monday night, March 23, in the high school auditorium. Atha McIlver, who heads the ticket-sales committee, no doubt keeps a ready supply with her at all times during working hours at The Brand office. Me thinks tho that any B&PW member would be more than glad to sell you a ticket. And, in case you haven't heard, the proceeds are slated to go to the Hereford Community Center.

long for Hereford folks to "catch on".

Speaking of bridge (and don't I usually!), Betty Paatzold may be wondering what the world is coming to. It's unusual, to say the least, when you are planning to attend an affair and then you can get a call inviting you to please stay home instead!

To make a long story short: when there are eleven players for bridge, you must either add three more or subtract one. . . subtracting one is simpler than finding three available players at the last minute. . . unless it's a case of the odd player not being so agreeable and sweet as is Betty Paatzold (even tho she's all dressed up and ready to go to the bridge session at the time she's called and UN-invited).

As it happened, Betty decided to attend the affair anyway and practice to become the world's greatest kibitzer, as well as the most gracious un-invited guest.

My retraction for the day comes as result of word from Reba Zorns that she and husband Tommy live at 604 Christopher, in Clovis, and that they do receive their mail there — this, as you recall, is the opposite of the report given by me in this column. But I'm glad for the chance, not only to redeem myself, but to set matters straight and also add that the Zorns send word they'd love to have their Hereford friends drop by said address when over Clovis way.

My apologies go also to Mrs. Earl Holt, whom I listed, as Mrs. Charlie Holt among the honorable mentions of the best-dressed women last week. . . and still more, apologies to Earl's bachelor-brother Charlie, who I'm sure has been razed aplenty as result of my error.

I also owe a moral debt to Mrs. Ben Childers, whose votes rated recognition for her in my contest, and I failed to give it to her. Mrs. Childers' name ups the number of "honorable mentions" to twelve.

Players Have Sho' Proved Their Worth

IT'S: HEP POINT OF VIEW

By BETTY BABIONE
Somehow or other, apologies and retractions seem to be as much in order as anything else today. I don't really mind that, except on this particular day, because I'm wishing I were in Austin with the other Hereford fans who are cheering Cuty Kitchens' team on to victory (we hope!)

Whether or not our White-face cagers have copped a State Championship by the time you read this, they have sho' proved their worth and the town is mighty proud of them. The town is proud of Coach Kitchens, too. . . and some individuals of the town were proud to the tune of a party, new '59 station wagon . . . and how about that!

Around half-a-hundred people were on hand at McClure's Diner Thursday night to participate in the first session of regular, weekly Open Duplicate bridge here. Gladys Click and John Pool teamed up to score the highest points of the North-South players, and Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Fluitt were the high-scoring partners for the East-West side. Several Amarillo people came over to play and to assist directors Wilma Hall and Geneva King in seeing that the affair ran according to Hoyle.

The why's and wherefore's of Duplicate are so new to so many that it will take a while for most folks to catch on to the method of scoring, earning points, and the progression of players and boards (this is called "movement" in Duplicate). But from the interest already shown in the weekly play, I predict that it will be more than successful — it doesn't take

Area Farming Operations Slowed By Strong Winds

By MRS. CARL WIMBERLEY

The storm which came Wednesday brought enough snow to cover the ground until the wind blew it in drifts. Dust blew before the snowfall. Little work has been going on this week because of the strong winds.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Smith returned home last week from a trip through the southern states in which they visited many points of interest.

In New Orleans, where they spent two days, they attended the opening night parade of the Mardi Gras which they reported to be very colorful and elaborate. The old French quarters was another point of special interest which they saw in that city.

The Smiths went from there to Florida, visiting Warm Springs, Ga., where they saw the Little White House which was occupied by the former president F. D. Roosevelt.

Quite some time was spent in Florida. At Miami special points of interest were the Silver Springs and the Sunken Gardens. The Stephen Foster Memorial was seen at White Springs and at St. Petersburg the Smiths attended church services at the First Baptist Church, the largest church in that city.

On the way home a visit was made in the home of a niece, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Bendiman, at Selma, Ala. At Vicksburg, Miss., a visit was made to the national park and other points of interest.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith reported that the weather was rainy and cold, except in Florida where it was very lovely, almost too warm in Miami for comfort.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Ramsey and son, Scott, visited Sunday with their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. David Lee and sons, in Amarillo.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Bezner and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gentry, attended a Farmers' Union meeting last Friday evening in the Hub Community Center in Parmer County. The men told about their recent trip to Washington, D. C., and Gentry showed slides he had taken while gone.

Alex Dickie of Denton, president of the Texas Farmers' Union, was present at the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Thompson and children of Fertile, Minn., who visited several days here with Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Miller, left Tuesday morning for Gruver where they planned to visit Mr. and Mrs. Burton Olsen in the Oslo Community before returning home.

Joe Pruet and his roommate, Bob Sanders of Dumas, both students at West Texas State College in Canyon, were dinner guests Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wimberley.

The Woman's Missionary Society met Tuesday afternoon at the Dawn Church for a Day of Prayer for Home Missions. The program leader was Mrs. Ray Polan. Others on the program were Mesdames R. L. Johnson, W. H. Gentry, Muri Little, Charles Davenport and Carl Wimberley.

Others present were Mesdames H. S. Fuller, Kate Wilson, Emily Nelson, R. T. Stewart and Alfred Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Poe and family of Amarillo visited Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Smith.

Mrs. Carl Wimberley, vice president of the seventh district, Texas Federation of Music Clubs, was guest speaker Monday afternoon at the meeting of the Philharmonic Music Club in Amarillo. The club met in the home of Mrs. Garland Martin. Radio Britain, composer of California and a former member of the club, was a visitor.

Attending mission study classes at the church Wednesday for the junior and intermediate ages were Lucy Beth, Gail and Billy Miller, Ann, Bobby and James Gentry, Peggy Jean, Linda and Beverly Lemons, Buddie Stewart, Diana Orsborn, Doyle Joe and J. S. Fuller Jr., Betty Hagar, Wainne Beavers, Gary Richardson, Dennis Rickman and Ted Wimberley.

The Rev. and Mrs. Charles

Davenport taught the classes. Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Lemons and children left Thursday morning for Overton where they planned to visit the Rev. and Mrs. Paul McClung and family.

Trustees of the present school board were hosts to all past members at a meeting Thursday night and Supt. Fred Cunningham showed the group some of the new-fangled visual aids used in modern day school work. The one that really took the cake, though, was a machine which is used to test reading speeds. There I sat, straining to barely able to keep up with the story and Fred announced, "That speed is for the lower elementary group. Now we will move up to 200 words a minute, which is maybe a little bit under Junior High averages."

When he got up to 380 words a minute, Lyle Woodford and I flat admitted we didn't know what the fool thing said. Leo Forrest made out like he was going right along, but I personally figured his wife would have to tell him most of the story after they got home. Earl Plank was another old boy who admitted it was a little fast for him.

"If folks have to read that fast all of the time," said Earl, "I can see why they have so many uclers."

I didn't get too upset, however, because I didn't think it was a very interesting story in the first place. Something about how to catch poison ivy. Like someone said, "When you get poison ivy, you don't have to read it out of a book to know that something is wrong."

No kidding, they are really doing a lot of things with visual aids these days. Mr. Cunningham pointed out that the scanning plan was strictly to improve reading speeds, and it was one of the most interesting programs I have seen in a good many months. They have other types of projectors to help in teaching science, geography, anatomy and numerous subjects.

Some of these gadgets, according to Cunningham, may well be the reason Little Junior surprises you ever once in a while with an answer to something you never dreamed he would know about.

Current reports say that our territory produces probably the poorest grade cotton on the Plains. The cotton growers will get some expert help, come Thursday night and, based on current price supports on milt, it is possible that the entire 565 eligible growers might show up for the meeting in the courthouse.

Speaking of basketball, I wonder if anyone else got caught in the same squeeze that occurred around our place. Last year, our kids were yelling their heads off to make the trip to Austin. In a stupid moment, I said: "No, you can't go this year, but if the team goes back next year, you can make the trip."

I ask you, who could expect any team to repeat as district champs? To make a long story short, I forgot all about the deal until a few weeks back, when the kids reminded me. I still didn't get to make the trip, but the wife and kids seem to have had a lot of fun.

It just goes to prove the old statement about being a lot better off if you can learn to keep your mouth shut. Even that doesn't make much difference, sometimes. I think this was one of those cases when you just can't win.

The Lions Club is again selling tickets for their pancake supper, March 12, at the hotel. Slim Wester had sold 81 tickets Friday afternoon. He is trying to win a pair of cufflinks, although I don't know of anyone who probably needs them less. Meanwhile, I hear that Joel Hodges is giving Slim a run for his money.

So far, I have missed the Lubbock circulation man, who came by to straighten me out on the week day price of the Lubbock paper, which is still 5 cents on the news stands. I said that it was going to 10 cents, and this is what the Amarillo distributor told me. Since both papers are owned by the same corporation, I figured he knew what he was talking about, but he seems to have been in error. The lower price, along with better coverage on the Hereford team in Austin, has sold a lot of Lubbock papers in Hereford the past week.

Clarence Morrison and Merilyn Kaul, Westway neighbors, report that they didn't mind the 15 cents Sunday Brands at all. Fact is, they say they saved a nickel. Previously, each of them bought a Brand at 10 cents per copy but, when it went to 15 cents last Sunday, they just bought one copy — and passed it around. This is another one of those situations where you just can't win. What if everyone else gets a raise on their mlt supports, and they leave Morrison and Kaul right where they are? However, these two boys raise the best roasting ears in the country, and I sure don't want to make them mad. Corn on the cob is one of my favorite foods.

No one knows, but estimates place the Hereford delegation in Austin this week-end at 3,500. Rooms are rough. I hear that Clint Formby cleared his room over the telephone before he left out but, on arrival, was told that he had no place to sleep. They say that Clint reached across the counter, got a firm grip on the desk clerk's tie — and wound up in the pent house, no less! Some of the others did not fare so well. Several people who had confirmed reservations wound up on cots in hotel spare rooms and halls. This was what happened to my wife. She was blazing mad when she called Friday night and, I know from experience, that gal can get riled up when she halfway has an excuse.

I just told her that old folks who can't sleep in their cars shouldn't be going around the country to ball games, in the second place. Even this sage observation didn't seem to improve her temper, however.

May we recommend The Wet Acid Process as the process to be used in chemically delinting your grain seed? — Here's Why

1. Seed stays in contact with the acid for a period of 30 seconds or less.
2. Water is used as a neutralizer.
3. Does not eat the bags.
4. Wet and green seed can be safely delinted.
5. Seed can be safely stored and used for a period of several years.
6. Does a more thorough job on angular leaf spot and other seed borne diseases.
7. Heat is used only to dry the seed after the acid has been washed off.
8. Planting 12 lbs. per acre the cost is less than 10c per acre, more using wet acid.
9. More uniform planting.
10. More even stand.
11. Quicker emergence.
12. Plant faster.
13. Get bigger yields.
14. Gravity table floats out weak seeds.
15. Treating prevents seed rotting even in cold, damp weather.
16. No sticks, stems or lint to clog the planter.
17. In warm soil seed will sprout in 12 hours—a stand in 5 days.
18. Less moisture required for germination.
19. For only 1 lb. of lint cotton per acre you can have your seed chemically delinted using the safe WET ACID PROCESS.

London Museum Buys A Famous British Vase

By PETER GROSE

LONDON — The Luck of Edenhall — brought to England by a returning Crusader in the 13th Century — has been sold to a London museum, and at a bargain.

What is the Luck of Edenhall? To begin with, it's an enameled glass vase — one of the most beautiful and historic pieces of glass in the world.

"The Luck" has been owned by the family of Sir Nigel Courtenay Musgrave, Bart. for six centuries. Eden Hall is the name of the family seat in Cumberland.

But "The Luck" is also a legend, idolized over the centuries by poets and chroniclers. Woe betide him who breaks it!

London's Victoria and Albert Museum has now bought it from the Musgrave estate for $15,400.

A spokesman for the museum explained that on the open market the vase is worth three times that amount, but by selling to the museum — a state institution the Musgraves have avoided inheritance taxes.

Standing 6 3/8 inches high, its yellow glass is brilliantly enameled in red, blue, green, white and gold. The vase is an example of mid-13th Century Syrian glass, characteristic of the once-famous glass factories at Aleppo.

The museum spokesman called it one of their "most striking acquisitions."

An article in the "Gentleman's Magazine" in 1791 recounted these stories about "The Luck": "The late agent of the family had such a reverential regard for this glass that he would not suffer any person to touch it, and but few to see it.

"When the family had a desire to drink out of it, a napkin was held underneath, lest any accident should befall it."

The tradition is, the article continued, that a party of fairies was interrupted by curious mortals. "The fairies were frightened and made a hasty retreat, and left the cup in question, one of the last screaming out.

"If this cup should break or fall "Farewell the luck of Edenhall!"

In 1934 Henry Wadsworth Longfellow described what might happen if "The Luck" was broken: "As the goblet ringing flies apart, "Suddenly cracks the vaulted hall;

"And through the rift the wild flames start, "The guests in dust are scattered all.

"With the breaking luck of Edenhall!"

To protect the vase, someone back in the 14th Century — perhaps an early Musgrave — had a fine leather case made for it, decorated with stamped and cut work.

"The Luck" and its case have been on loan to the Victoria and Albert Museum since 1926, but the directors have always feared that one day the Musgrave family might want it back.

Now the Luck of Edenhall has left the Musgrave family for good.

REMEMBER WHEN?

By CHARLIE SEEDS

It went on every day for six months, around the clock, never stopping. The men who took part in this fantastic operation were heroes of a new kind of war...the "cold war."

This was the famous "Air Life"...the Allied answer to Russia's blockade of Berlin. The city was jointly occupied, but it lay in the Russian zone of Germany, and the Soviets had sealed off the city, stopping all rail and road traffic from the Western sectors.

The Air Lift was a bold, dramatic answer. Every few minutes planes roared into the isolated city, bringing vitally needed food and supplies. Day after day the planes flew, an endless stream. Finally, one day in May, the Russians tacitly admitted defeat. The roads were opened to trucks bringing food. The trains began to move once more.

It was a bloodless victory in the new kind of war. Remember the year? That year Americans at home were signing long waiting lists for new cars. Production hadn't caught up with demand...and a buyer took what he could get in model, color and accessories. He didn't worry about getting the best deal. He just wanted a car.

The year was 1949. Today it's a different story. You'll find exactly the model you want in our big stock of brand new 1959 FORDS. Tasty Shrimp Elusive Game

By JIM BOWMAN

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — The delectable shrimp, which has touched off more Gulf Coast sea battles than the pirate Jean Lafitte, may be pulling a disappearing act.

Shrimp boats which pulled in 2,000 pounds a day 10 years ago now settle for a daily catch of 500 pounds.

Could be only that the demand is at an all-time peak, say marine scientists. More shrimp boats than ever are going searching for the evil looking but delicate tasting shellfish once considered little more than fodder for a hot tomato sauce.

The sweet, tangy shrimp tickles the palates of Americans to the tune of about a pound per person annually.

Supermarket frozen food counters now carry everything from the old cocktail standby to the french fried and creole varieties.

John Mehos, president of the Shrimp Assn. of the Americas, says the industry does about $3 million dollars worth of business a year. Shrimpers who marketed only about 50 million pounds in 1930 produced four times that much last year.

Time was when the American housewife wouldn't touch a brown shrimp and the white shrimp was the only strain thought suitable for eating. But with the frozen food era came the rise of the brown-flecked beauty and its sister shrimp, the pink — and the gradual disappearance of the white.

Now not more than 15 per cent of the industry's total catch is white and at least one scientist says Mrs. Housewife doesn't know the difference.

"Some claim they can tell but I doubt it -- although I've never given taste tests," says research biologist Ed Chen of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service here.

Shrimpers haul in the pink chiefly off Florida's west coast and Mexico's Campeche Banks. The brown — and what whites remain — are found off the Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and northern Mexico coasts.

In lean seasons the shrimper strays farther from his home port in search of a payload. With demand on the increase, competition gets rougher.

Mexico lifts an irritated eyebrow at any foreign fishing boats camped off the 12-mile limit she claims. Often it has led to naval action.

A Mexican gunboat fired on a Texas shrimp boat she claimed was within her coastal waters last year, wounding its skipper. His craft was towed to a Mexican port and its shrimp confiscated.

Chen says government shrimp production figures go back only two years and that the drop in the size of catches could reflect only the substantial increase in the size of the fishing fleets. Shrimpers' figures, he says, are prone to lean on oddtimers' memories. But he adds that if shrimpers claim their evasive crustacean is declining in number, there must be something to it.

Shrimper Mehos, one of Texas' largest producers, says shrimp conservation is a must. "Thirty or 40 years ago," he points out, "crop rotation was thought to be sheer malarkey."

One bright spot, Chen says, is the discovery of new shrimp strains such as the Royal Red found by government scientists in deep water off the Florida and Louisiana coasts.

Not yet fished commercially, it's of jumbo size and could prove to be the seafood enthusiast's delight.

But big or small, the shrimp has won its spurs as a delicacy. Except, possibly to the shrimp boat crewman. He's a man known to take a dim view of the shrimp once it's off to market.

How Can I?

Q. What is the best way to take care of paint brushes?
A. Always clean the brushes thoroughly before putting away. Hardened brushes may be soaked in raw linseed oil for 24 hours and then placed in a pot of benzine. Work the bristles until they are separated, when the paint will soften so that it will wash out.

Q. How can I clean suede shoes?
A. Clean suede shoes by wiping with a cloth that has been dipped in vinegar. To restore the nap that has become worn, apply sandpaper gently.

Q. What is the best way to apply lip stick when the lips are chapped and dry?
A. Try using a very greasy lipstick. Or, rub a little cold cream on the lips before using the stick.

Q. How can I remove grease spots from over-stuffed furniture?
A. To remove them from furniture or rugs rub baking soda liberally into the spots. Allow to dry. Then remove the baking soda with the vacuum cleaner or carpet sweeper.

Q. How can I stuff dates and prunes?
A. First wash, dry, and stone the fruit, then cut almost in half and fill with a half marshmallow, blanched almond, or chopped nuts and raisins. Roll in sugar.

Q. How can I relieve the pain of frost bite?
A. Rub the frostbitten parts vigorously, and bathe in cold water until the blood circulates freely; then rub with mutton tallow.

Q. How can I avoid the unpleasant taste of medicine?
A. When medicine is disagreeable to take, hold a piece of ice in the mouth for two or three minutes before taking. The medicine will then not taste nearly so bad.

Q. How can I relieve an irritating cough?
A. Prepare a mixture of the juice of two lemons, one tea-

Eyeglasses
Mist will be prevented from forming on eyeglasses if the following solution is used: Mix olein-potash soap with about three per cent glycerin and a small amount of oil of turpentine, and polish the lenses with this solution.

Lace Tablecloths
The lace tablecloth will hang evenly after laundering if care is taken to match the corners evenly and it is ironed with the grain of the material. Be careful not to pull the cloth out of shape by heavy pressing.

Curling Feathers
Ostrich feathers may be curled by sprinkling them with salt and shaking them in front of a hot fire or over a radiator.

Cough Remedy
A good cough remedy can be made by mixing equal parts of strained honey and glycerin, and adding to this a few drops of lemon juice. Take a spoonful of this preparation whenever troubled.

Ham
If one wishes to test the freshness of ham, run a knife into it right close to the center knuckle. The ham is good if the knife comes out sweet and odorless, but if smeary and with a strong odor, the ham is not fit for eating.

Frosting Windows
You can make a frosted window from ordinary glass by dissolving some epsom salts in cold water and painting this on the glass.

Hole in Glass
To bore a hole in glass, use a regular steel drill and keep the point of contact saturated with camphorated oil or turpentine. The ease with which this is done will surprise you.

Water Stains
If water has been spilled on hardwood floors, rub the spots with a cloth dampened with turpentine, using a circular motion when rubbing. Dry with a clean cloth.

Silverware
Lay the tarnished table silver in a pan of sour milk. Allow to remain for about a half-day and then wash in sudsy water. All tarnish will be removed.

Laundry Bluing
Wrap a piece of muslin over the top of the bluing bottle and tie securely around the neck of the bottle with a string. The bluing will not come out in too big a stream and it will also come out strained and free of particles.

Curiosity And Background Help Make A Good Cook

"Good cooks are born that way," says Mrs. H. E. Miller, although she admits she had some good background for making a good cook, even as a child. She was reared by an aunt who taught her own daughter and Mrs. Miller to cook while they were growing up. A curiosity about foods and a keen desire to try out new recipes became sort of a hobby which has lasted through the years. New recipes continue to offer her a constant source of pleasure and enjoyment. After she married and established her own home, Mrs. Miller began to collect recipes and now her files contain well over 4,000 recipes. Some of her cook books are so worn that she is now in the process of re-making them. As she uses recipes they contain she copies them in a new book for preservation. Where does she get them? From just about everywhere. For many years she and her husband and five children lived on a farm at Dawn and when the family would take trips she would come home laden with new recipes to be tried out on the family. When visits were made to relatives or when relatives or friends visited her, they would exchange recipes, and every magazine or newspaper would be gleaned for something new and good.

She bought many cook books from which she culled her favorite recipes and made them her own and she still tries out any new ideas that sound good.

One of her latest is French-fried cauliflower. She takes a package of frozen cauliflower, salts and peppers the flowerlets and rolls in meal, then fries in deep fat. She does the same thing with brains (either hog or calf) rolling the brains in flour rather than the meal before frying.

Here are some of Mrs. Miller's favorite recipes for Lent:

OYSTER BISQUE

6 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
4 small carrots
2 small turnips
4 celery stalks
2 dozen oysters
salt and pepper
1 teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce

Few sprigs parsley
1 pint light cream
Melt the butter and stir in the flour until smooth. Add the milk gradually and season with salt. Cook slowly until it is smooth and slightly thick. Then keep sauce hot over boiling water in double boiler.

Cut all the vegetables into little pieces and cook slowly in 2 tablespoons butter until softening and partly soft. (The vegetables scorch easily if skillet is too hot). Melt the remaining 2 tablespoons of butter in sauce pan, add oysters, oyster liquor and a sprinkling of salt and pepper and cook only until oysters curl at edges. (If over-cooked oysters will be tough). Heat the cream, making sure it does not boil.

Now the bisque is ready to be assembled. Stir the vegetable mixture into the cream sauce. Add the cream and then add the oyster mixture. Pour into a pre-heated tureen or soup plates and serve (hot) with your favorite cracker or wafer. (Crackers are best when heated in the oven just before serving.)

CHEESE PUDDING

Spread butter generously on five slices of bread from which the crusts have been removed. Cut bread into small cubes. Put cubes into a buttered casserole alternately with 1/4 pound graded sharp cheese. Then combine the following ingredients and pour over the bread and cheese:

3 eggs (slightly beaten)
2 cups milk
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1/4 teaspoon pepper

Let the casserole stand in the refrigerator overnight. In the morning set dish in a pan of water and bake at 350 degrees

F for about one hour or until done. Serve hot.

Left-over crusts from sandwiches may be used for this dish. They are not as pretty as the other way but are just as good.

GREEN RICE

2 cups rice (cooked) 1 cup raw
2 eggs beaten
1/2 cup Wesson oil
1 large can carnation milk
1/4 can parsley flakes
1 clove garlic
1 green pepper
1 small onion

1/4 lb. grated cheese (cheddar)
Beat eggs and add to milk, then add all seasoning and rice. Bake 45 minutes to one hour at 300 degrees F. in buttered pan. Set in pan of warm water for baking.

Miss Alexander Speaks At Meet

The beauty of Denmark was pictured and described Tuesday evening at the La Plata Study Club meeting in the home of Mrs. T. E. Seigler Jr., when Miss Eugenia Alexander presented the International Relationship program.

A rush party and program entertained members and guests of Kappa Iota Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, Tuesday evening in the home of the sponsor, Mrs. Bess Moore.

The party featured an Hawaiian theme, with members wearing colorful Hawaiian costumes and leis.

Refreshment appointments also accented the party theme with the use of fish nets and other accents suggestive of the island.

Hostesses with Mrs. Moore were Mesdames Irving Alexander, Charles Bell, Hicks Robertson and Ann Woodward.

Mrs. Harold Beauchamp, president, presided over a short business session, when plans were made to conduct a project for funds for the community center, and the state convention, which will be held in Fort Worth on May 28-30, was announced.

"Tools For the Art of Life" formed the topic for the program, which was presented by Mrs. Charles Bell.

Speaking for the most part on "Speech," Mrs. Bell told of the good or words as tools of expression and communication, the origin and history of words and the subsequent evolution of words into language, both oral and written. She spoke of the truth of words as tools of thought and understanding, mentioning synonyms and antonyms to show shades of meaning, and gave examples of word patterns pleasing to the ear, such as verse, prose and dramatic form. In conclusion, she said, "The use of correct English in well-chosen words speaks much in portraying the character of an individual."

Games of Wahoo and bridge provided entertainment for the remainder of the evening.

Special guests were Mrs. Don Baugous and Mrs. George Warner.

Members attending were Mesdames Harold Beauchamp, Bob Brotherton, Carl Hollingsworth, D. R. Johnson, Bill Kendall, Jess Robinson, Max Stipe, Leonard Watson, Vern Harris, Bedford Forrest, J. R. Hickman, T. B. Thomas, Robert Tyler and the hostesses.

Musical Festival Slated March 14

The Junior Festival of the Seventh District, Texas Federation of Music Clubs, which will be held in Hereford Saturday, March 14, points up the never-ending activities of junior individuals and groups in the realm of music in this area. Youngsters of all ages will be represented in one of the eight divisions including piano solo, vocal solo, snare drum solo, junior concerto, concerto, hymn playing and piano quartet.

A total of 178 entries have been received from Borger, Pampa, Dumas, Phillips, Amarillo, Dawn, Friona and Hereford. The session will open Saturday morning in the sanctuary of the First Methodist Church with registration beginning at 8:45 a.m. Mrs. A. J. Schroeter, seventh district chairman, will preside.

Mrs. John Jacobsen Jr. will play an organ prelude and will accompany the group of contestants, teachers, counselors and visitors in the singing of "Texas, Our Texas." A short devotional period will be observed and Mrs. Schroeter will give instructions to entrants who will assemble in various rooms of the First Methodist and First Baptist churches in sectional programs which will run simultaneously, with judges for each section.

A luncheon for teachers and counselors will be held at noon in the Jim Hill Hotel. Three Amarillo musicians will serve as judges for the piano, voice, percussion and woodwind sections. They are Mrs. Jean Siler and Mrs. Nova Bair of the Musical Arts Conservatory, and Mrs. Fred Sanders. YOUR RED CROSS ON THE JOB

By CORINNE J. NEELY

Since March is Red Cross month we are making some awards and giving recognition to various ones. This column is devoted to changing personnel-incoming and those leaving our volunteer group.

The chapter has been fortunate the last few years in getting some Red Cross trained personnel from other chapters but at the same time we have lost some valued trained workers. One important arrival was that of Henry W. Aycock a fine First Aid instructor from Tulia. Through his efforts and that of Marlin Gilliland, our chairman of this service, we have doubled our instructor force to eight.

But before that, we lost Gerry Patterson Bennett who in a few weeks taught several classes, in school, adult class and one group of Camp Fire Girls. She was some one else's gain. Recently we have acquired a new trained Social Welfare worker in the person of Rev. Joel Treadwell who has accepted a place in our Home Service work and is already doing some case work. This is a service we have not had before and are happy to add to our chapter. This past week we met Barbara Dameron Kendrick, in Amarillo, who asked that we transfer her records to the Potter County Chapter. Barbara in the past worked in Water Safety, first as an aide before she was old enough to become a trained instructor at 18. The year she completed her instructor course she gave many and long hours to teaching classes in beginners through the Sr. Life Guard course.

The past two summers we have missed J. B. Wills — also W. S. instructor. Both he and Barbara were at the Tascosa County Club last year. J. B. spent several summers in our program here at the pool, to make many boys and girls water safety conscious.

Before that we lost Jack Ramsey another fine W. S. instructor to Amarillo and he continued his volunteer work there in Red Cross.

This week we added "Bill" Thompson, chamber of commerce manager, to our personnel. He has a Red Cross background as did publicity before coming here and his father was a Red Cross Field Director on military bases at one time. Mr. Thompson will act in a newly created position in the chapter that of survey chairman. This is to aid us enlarge our services to the community and keep us in touch with its needs and give even better service we hope.

SPANISH PRODUCT
NEW YORK — Broadway often gets shows from Paris and London, but fans rarely get a chance to inspect other foreign stage hits. Now that situation is to be corrected somewhat with "The Case of the Slightly Assassinated Wife."

Described as "a cockeyed love story with just a touch of murder," and elsewhere as "a marshmallow filled with prussic acid," the play was a hit in Madrid in 1950.

Warner LeRoy has secured the local rights to the script by Miguel Mihura and Alvaro De Laiglesia.

In the Mississippi River flood of 1927, more than 45 million dollars worth of property was destroyed.

No Great Statesmen, Perhaps, But We Have Good Politicians

We may not be producing so many statesmen these days, but we are certainly turning out some of history's best politicians.

Take the grain sorghum business, for instance. Most of the farmers seem pretty well satisfied to blame "Mr. Benson," that "Republican administration" or the "Democratic Congress"—and let it go at that.

We are not saying this is bad, nor do we say that someone else might have done a better job. We do remember the day, however, when each and every Texas congressman and senator would have really been on the spot.

Our representatives and senators may not be able to handle Mr. Krushchev in the most effective manner, but they certainly do know how to keep out of the dog house back in their home districts. Down through the years, hundreds of politicians have been defeated for, events beyond their control, because a district of voters simply would not accept any substitute for success.

Some people say this is a result of higher educational standards; others will tell you that people are less ambitious and more understanding. Still others attribute the circumstance to generally good economic conditions, pointing out, "people seldom get riled up while their bellies are full."

Regardless of the reason, it does exist. Constituents now shrug off government developments which would once have sent a rash of candidates to the filing posts. Instead of venting their unhappiness on the candidates, the average man is today likely to become angry with his neighbor because of the way he chose to vote, or with a store operator because of some political stand he may have taken.

While this development may occasionally slit a church congregation, along with being a bit rough in inner-community relations, it does keep our elected officials on the job long enough for them "to learn the ropes." It has also pretty well abolished the old fashioned political plat-

School Methods Due To Change

Residents in the gigantic Hereford Rural High School district probably noticed with interest recommendations of a school survey, which indicated schools graduating fewer than 100 students each year to be impractical.

Such was the thinking back in the early 1940's, when the huge district was established in this area. Previous to the organization, in fact, most of the common school districts had dropped their smaller operations and were transferring wholesale into the Hereford district.

Since our area seems to be a good 10 years ahead of the federal recommendation, they might well check results here with an eye toward testing their theory. To us, the situation does have many advantages—and several disadvantages.

On a per capita student basis, the mass education system offers greater variety of curriculum, more specialization, better trained teachers, complete administration, better facilities—and at a cost much cheaper per student. By necessity, we would say that the students perhaps get less personal attention, tend toward mass production normals and that they spend thousands of unproductive hours each year riding a network of busses to-and-fro across the huge district.

However, education is currently undergoing radical changes—and this is not greatly different from other phases of the American Way of Life. Generally speaking, the large consolidated district came into existence from practical and economic necessity. It has many foes, along with several friends.

The trend will probably continue, at least until someone comes up with a better answer.

The POWER of FAITH by Howard Brodie

Each Friday, amid the tensions, wars and tyrannies of the Middle East, a dedicated band of Franciscan Fathers relives the events of the Via Dolorosa, the last path of Jesus Christ from His condemnation to His tomb.

Recently, I joined them in their sad journey past the stations where Jesus received his cross, where Simon of Cyrene helped Him to carry it, where He met the women of Jerusalem, and on to Calvary.

I marveled that, throughout the years of man-made violence that have swept the Holy Land, this simple act of devotion has prevailed for six centuries, demonstrating that the enduring love Christ taught us is stronger than the passing tensions of the day.

UNDERPASS UNDERWAY

Construction on the new underpass and highway improvements in Southwest Tulsa were begun last week by Gilvin & Terrill, contractors. Heavy equipment is cutting the new roadbeds which are a part of the new system. The project calls for 250 working days. A temporary roadbed for the Santa Fe railway will have to be constructed for use during the construction of the new underpass.—TULSA HERALD

AREA HOUSING ANNOUNCED

The first planned area housing development in Canyon was announced this week by Hosea Foster and Carroll P. Vaughan, with construction of the first two houses to begin by the end of this week. The two received FHA commitments for five homes in the 36-home area on Monday. The commitments will allow down payments of $350 plus closing costs, and monthly payments of about $75, including taxes and insurance. The first houses will be built in the 2600 block of Twelfth Ave., and Cooper Homes of Amarillo will do the constructing. The development will be three-bedroom houses with masonry trim. Three floor plans will be available, and all have attached garages and storage rooms. Plans call for building two houses now, one will be used for a show house and the other will be for sale. The remainder of the houses will be built as the demand requires. Sale price will be $11,000, according to the developers. It is expected that it will take about six weeks to complete the first two houses. Construction on other houses will begin as orders are received from purchasers, according to Vaughan.—CANYON NEWS

GAS LINE TO BE RE-LOCATED

Pioneer Natural Gas Co. has re-located a gas pipeline which county officials feared might stall a future widening project on U. S. Highway 84. Pioneer's original plan called for the pipeline, which will run along U. S. 84 from Sudan to the Bailey county line, to be laid along present right-of-way. County Judge Pat Boone Jr. wrote the company explaining that a bond election for widening the highway was expected to be voted upon in the near future. He asked that Pioneer re-locate the line to provide the possibility of the road being widened. A reply to Boone's letter came this week from R. H. Spikes, right-of-way agent for Pioneer. Spikes said the line will be located from 160 feet to several hundred feet from the south line of the highway, providing ample room for the proposed widening project.—COUNTY WIDE NEWS (Littlefield)

STREET SWEEPER PURCHASED

Prospects for cleaner streets in Perryton looked brighter this week with the purchase of a new street sweeper, which is expected to be delivered in two or three weeks. The new machine is a Wayne model, four cubic yard capacity, equipped with revolving and rotary brushes for maximum efficiency. The low bid was $8,793 plus the old street sweeper, for which $1,942 was allowed. The city then bought back the old sweeper for $307 and it will be used on a stand-by basis, available for extra duty. The city bought a broom rack for $650, and the total investment in the street sweeping equipment came to $9,750. There were four bids on the new street sweeper, ranging from the low of $8,793 to a high of $7,820.—OCHILTREE COUNTY HERALD (Perryton)

The BOOTLEG Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his bindweed farm this week discusses, of all things, music. Dear editor:

I don't listen to the radio much, mainly because with a radio you have to listen right then or you'll miss what's said, while with a newspaper you can wait around till you're in the mood and have a chance to prepare yourself to face what happened in the world yesterday, but once in a while I do listen and something about radio that has puzzled me a long time has now been cleared up, although I'll have to admit it took a newspaper to do it.

Here was my problem: when I'd tune in to hear some news, lots of times a music program would be on, and since I figured the news would be on in a few minutes and there wasn't any use in going to the trouble of changing the dial, I listened.

What puzzled me was how some of the music I heard got there. "Here's a record that's zooming upward," the announcer would say, I think they call him a disc jockey, although I ain't up on that phase of culture, and what came over the air was unbelievable. And when the singer started singing, well, if I had a calf that couldn't bowl better than that, I'd have it rendered for soap.

I couldn't figure out how such a record ever got played, not to mention how anybody could claim it was zooming.

Well, this has been cleared up. According to a newspaper I read last night, the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee has turned up some evidence that racketeers have been forcing juke box owners to buy phonograph records.

I knew somebody must have been holding a gun on somebody else to get such music played.

But it'll never succeed. I mean, while maybe the racketeers can force record distributors to buy their records, it's going to take a lot of mobsters to hold enough guns on enough people to make them listen.

On the other hand, I've heard some records that weren't forced on anybody, they're played night and day, on radio, TV, juke boxes and kids' portable record-players, and I'll tell you it's going to take an expert to tell which record was forced on the public racketeers and which one by teenagers. I'm glad I'm not on the Senate Investigating Committee when this problem comes up. Turn that music down and let me read. Where's my copy of the Sunday Brand? Or something. Anything will do.

Yours faithfully, J. A.

Filing Claim For Land Was A Risky Business

By MRS. E. L. CRISWELL

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Hardy, 330 Ave. B, have lived on the Staked Plains for many years and have seen the country progress from miles and miles of prairie to the many irrigated farms and ranches with lovely homes that we see dotting the countryside today.

"I first saw Hereford in 1900," said Hardy, "when my father, brothers and I, along with a couple of neighbors, threw our fat cattle into a single herd and drove them from Lubbock County to Hereford to load them on the train for shipment to the Kansas City market. We had 1,000 head and held them south of Tierra Blanca Creek for several days, waiting for the train to come in with enough cars to load them out. We got from 24 to 2 1/2 cents per pound for them and thought we were doing very well.

"I bought a farm in Hale County and the wife and children lived in Hereford for the children to go to school during the twenties. In later years we sold the farm and moved to Hereford, buying the house in which we now live.

"Our children live in Dimmitt and Muleshoe, but we could not buy a house in Dimmitt, so came to Hereford. I was not sorry, as I had traded in Hereford for years and had learned to know and love the people and the little town.

"I was born in Montague County in 1882 and moved with my parents to the Indian Territory of Oklahoma as an infant. I remember very well our move to Lubbock County in 1899.

"We made the trip in covered wagons and camped out every night. This was in November and we carried a tent but had no reason to use it until the last night of our trip. A norther blew in and we stretched the tent as a protection from the wind. It was a mild norther and we did not suffer any from the cold.

"We came through Ringgold, Okla., into Texas through Henetta, Seymour, Dickens, City and on to Lubbock. I doubt if there were more than 150 people living in Lubbock at that time. It took us 11 days to make the trip.

"The next morning father went to see a land agent and bought 40 sections of land northeast of Lubbock. He paid $1,150 for the whole acreage. Those sections were in the middle of nowhere. Since we children were in our teens and had been living in a thickly settled area, we begged father to go where there were more people. Our nearest neighbor was seven or eight (Continued on page 5)

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

We have a great problem facing us. One that a great many people do not realize the importance of in our great high plains irrigation district. We are in the process of extracting the water from the underground reservoir. In times past I have thought that our water was fed by some sort of river or in some way from the Rocky Mountains. There are a great many people that think the same thing, but the hydrologists claim that it is fed by our local rainfall. They seem to have proven that it is very unlikely that the source is otherwise. Regardless of the source the fact remains that we are extracting more water than is being replaced in the water formations. Our water table is receding at the present rate of about three feet per year on the average. Some localities are more or less than this, but over this region the average is three feet. Over our area the country which has a redbed that is less than 200 feet is approaching the point where they are going to realize that their water is not inexhaustible.

In ten years the area that is in the shallow water layer with a high redbed will be farming with a very small amount of irrigation if at all. The point of economic irrigation will have passed as we know it today.

I do not mean to imply that all of the water will be gone in ten years, but I do believe that in the weaker water areas that may be true. There are those areas where the water sands are good and the water is still not deeper than 100 feet to the static level, and that sand formation reaches to 300 and 400 feet deep. Surely that much water-bearing formation will last (Continued on page 5)

QUESTION OF THE WEEK Residents State Ideas For Future Projects

After the community center is built, what do you think the community should undertake as a project, or projects? Why?

PAUL SCHROETER—I'd like to see a recreation area like a picnic and lounge area that is really in good shape. Something a little better than the Sewer Creek Park.

MRS. J. J. BOYDSTON—I would be more interested in an Old Folks' Home than anything else.

GLENN WILLIAMS—I think an important project would be to get the youth of the community to participate in organized activities at the community center.

REV. A. C. HAMILTON—One thing would be a good place for outside activities. I think we need an expansion. I've noticed that the parks we have are crowded but I really believe it would be worthwhile to provide ample space for the many people who like to have outings during nice weather. Then I have come in contact with a lot of old people and I think an Old Folks' Home would be nice. I also believe the town should get behind and equip our schools with adequate recreational facilities.

MRS. DEWARD ROBERSON—It seems to me it would be a good idea to concentrate on the proper use of the Community Center. I think that would be enough to concentrate on for the time being.

MRS. HARRELL MAYS—Well, I can't think of any projects that are outstanding right now. I think we have enough on our minds with the community center as it is now.

United Fund On The Spot

Hereford's United Fund drive went over the top for the second consecutive time in 1958 but, according to some donors, solicitors then may well run into some new questions when drive time rolls around in 1959.

The trouble, in a nutshell, rests in complaints that the United Fund—billed to end other donations—has been followed for four separate solicitations during the four months since the UF drive was completed.

Two of the drives, heart fund and polio, occurred because the national agencies refused to cooperate with United Fund on grounds that they needed educational publicity resulting from the individual drives. The other two drives, both of a local nature, definitely do not fall into the categories covered by the United Fund organization.

Despite these complaints, United Fund is still a good deal to a lot of merchants, who will tell you: "I would still rather have four drives than 12 drives." Certainly, they have a point.

Meanwhile, it is important to recognize the fact that all agencies cooperating within United Fund do submit planned budgets and, consequently, operate their organizations on a more efficient and businesslike basis. On the other hand, we can sympathize with the donor who stretches his United Fund donation to cover "all drives," then comes face to face with an extra $100 to $500 in additional donations.

If United Fund continues to gain in popularity and prestige, it seems to us that the budget committee must anticipate some of these additional needs, budget for them and make a serious effort toward reaching their original goal, which is the elimination of all other solicitations.

An Orchid To Our Amarillo Friends

Many citizens of this area, along with neighboring towns, are perhaps a bit inclined to be critical of Amarillo, its newspaper, TV and radio outlets. In recent weeks, however, the city along with the regional news agencies seem to have gone all out to help the grain sorghum farmer in reaching a solution to his problems—The Brand feels that they deserve a pat on the back.

In addition to area meetings, the news disbursing mediums have surveyed findings and are doing their best to help encourage a feeding program among farmers of the territory. The current appeal, like a Brand editorial of several weeks ago, is based on feeding out surplus grain to cattle, hogs and poultry with the idea of finding a profit on the animals, instead of placing grain in government loans.

To us, this still stands as the only possible long-range solution to a really serious problem. In addition, it might easily prove to be the best possible thing which could have happened to us as a community.

A prosperous territory, in turn, means a prosperous Amarillo—just as it means a prosperous Hereford and Deaf Smith County. Too often, though, the larger cities overlook this fact and fail to make any effort to help people in the surrounding territories. We can remember, in fact, when it seemed that Amarillo had adopted just such an attitude.

In recent weeks, however, they have put their shoulders to the wheel, along with townsmen, producers and citizens from the smaller communities, and have conscientiously made an effort to help the grain producers in every way possible.

Like farmers all over the area, we appreciate this spirit of cooperation. It is natural for a fellow to appreciate help when he needs it most. The Amarillo C-C, along with the news agencies, certainly have come through in fine style at just such a time. It is a bit of assistance all of us will long remember one which will help pave the way toward a more prosperous "Golden Spread."

Filing...

 We did not go to school that day but rode horseback eight miles a day the next year. We did this for two years. There were only 12 or 13 pupils in the school and, of course, only one teacher. Our school days then were rather few and far between as there was always work to be done, and we were taught to work in those days. We were taught that "idle hands are the devil's workshop," and I guess that would apply to old hands as well as young ones.

In 1903 I filed on four sections of land in Cochran County, which is west of Lubbock. I worked on the land long enough to prove my claim and then sold for $1 per acre. Most of the land had already been claimed, but we heard of a number of sections near the line of New Mexico that was to open for filing at a certain date.

"Seven or eight young men talked it over and decided to go and file on as much land as they could. The filing fee was $75 for four sections. The filing papers were made up in Austin and sent out on the mail-hacks of that day. These hacks ran twice a week. We learned that the papers were expected in during a certain week. We left Lubbock on a Sunday and were ready to get in line early Monday morning.

"The county had built a chute, almost the length of the courthouse hall to the County Clerk's office. This chute was made of boxing plank and was about four feet tall, with a shelf a long each side. This shelf was used to lean on and sleep on.

"We could lean over and rest our heads on it and get enough sleep to stay in line. The chute kept the men in line and also kept them from losing their places. Only one of our group would leave the line at a time so the others could hold his place. Thus, we could get out to eat and shave, then return to the line. We went into the line Monday morning and stayed until Saturday evening.

"Some of the cattlemen were very angry as some of the land was choice and lay in the middle or at advantageous places of their grassland. They came to join the line, carrying their guns, some rifles, but the sheriff told us to stay in line as they were there to protect us, and this they did as there was no trouble and everything went very smoothly. When the papers came in, we filed through the clerk's office quietly, paid our filing fee and left by way of the window on the outside of the office.

"It did not go so smoothly with a number of the men who had filed on the choice land, as I remember one of them was killed. He was hauling supplies to his land and lumber to build a house and make other improvements. His wife reported him missing, and his body was found about two weeks later some 300 yards from a windmill. His team had been stripped of harness and tied to the windmill tower so they could get water.

"His body was badly mutilated and one arm was never found as it had been shot from the body and it was supposed the coyotes dragged it away. As boys, we did not think of the danger that might be entailed in filing for land, but ours was not choice farm land and that probably saved our necks.

"Later I sold the land and bought a section near my father. This was 15 miles out of Lubbock. We had few neighbors and we would take turns going for the mail and would deliver to each of our neighbors. One day I stopped to leave the mail at a certain neighbor's home and a pretty girl came to the door. That girl was my future wife.

"She was Isia Stoker. My heart did a flip and landed at her feet. I had never met her, but I decided then and there that I would see her again and soon. This I did and later, after a horse and buggy courtship, I married her.

"She was from Mississippi and I like to tell on her that she made three trips to Texas before she landed me, but just between us, I would have been going to Mississippi if she had not had relatives to visit in Texas. I had a nice rig, a brown buggy with yellow wheels, and drove a brown horse. I am sure that helped me in my courting as much as anything.

"We have never had too much money, but it has been a very good life — one that we can point to with pride. We were married Dec. 31, 1909, and have reared four children, three girls and one boy. We have eight grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. God has been very good to us, as all our immediate family are living. Death has not entered our immediate family," he concluded.

"I was born in Mississippi," said Mrs. Hardy. "I was a farm girl and was very timid.

"I was working in a furniture store as bookkeeper when my brother asked me to come to Texas and file on land for him. I still wonder why I was allowed to go alone. I really had butterflies in my stomach and wondered just how in the world I would ever find Lubbock, Tex., and how I would find the family I was to visit if and when I should reach Lubbock.

"A friend of the family saw me, and when he learned that I was going to Texas and that I would have to change trains, he looked concerned and boarded the train and stayed with me until I was on the train bound for Texas.

"A lady came in carrying a caged bird. It was a pretty thing — I love birds, and soon we were talking about birds. I told her I was on my way to Lubbock and learned that she was Mrs. Boyd, the lady I was going to visit in Lubbock County. We left the train and boarded a stagecoach. Later we were to change again, and on going to the coach, found it loaded down with luggage. There was no room for a single passenger, much less two. Mrs. Boyd talked, argued and pleaded with the driver until he left a part of the luggage and took us aboard.

"I suppose I would have been in the stage depot yet if she had not taken me under her wing. That was one time I know the Lord cared for me.

"I spent the summer with them, filed on the claim for my brother and returned to Mississippi. Later, my brother married the sister of Mr. Hardy and I visited them and enjoyed living in Texas.

"I did not lose my heart to Milton at first; that came after I came to know him. When I saw him at the door that day for many years after the shallow formations are dry.

If we continue to use and waste our water at the rate (which is increasing) that we are now, there are some of us that have known our irrigation from the beginning that will also see the ending of our great garden spot of the earth. We have 20 per cent of the irrigated land of the United States. It is time now for us to be doing something to conserve our life blood, and not waste it. There has not been any definite move to prorate the water yet, but the time may come when that may be necessary. I think that first we should use every means possible to return all of the rainfall possible, and cut down on the waste of irrigation water.

I do not believe that anyone will say that to cut off the tail-water will solve all of our problems, but I believe that is a step that we must make first. It would seem foolish to start prorating water and not first stop the waste. There are many that are in water trouble now that advocate proration now. It seems that only those that are beginning to hurt for water are very serious in their concern about the situation that is developing. Unless we can see and realize the thing that is developing and can get the public to cooperate in the move to prolong the life of irrigation, we of the High Plains Irrigation District (that is the envy of many people on the outside) will surely face a slow death that is sure to come. I do not believe that the people will let this happen, but if they do not wake up now some of our lands will be dry before they do.

COSTLY SCENERY

NEW YORK (AP) - The high cost of outfitting a Broadway show with scenery draws a sad sigh from Joe Schenker, one of the producers of the current hit, "Shadow of a Gunman."

The single set for the Sean O'Casey drama cost $10,000. "For the same money," said Schenker, "I could build a house with cement, tile, wood, kitchen equipment and so on that would serve a family for generations and that might even have a play written in it."

OFF THE Shelf

"Until the Lord have given rest unto your brethren, as well as unto you, and until they also possess the land which the Lord your God hath given them beyond Jordan: and then shall ye return every man unto his possession, which I have given you." The word of God as given to Moses in Deuteronomy.
Exodus, by Leon Uris, is a story 6000 years old and yet as new as today's headlines. The distinguished author of Battle Cry and The Angry Hills and screen playwright for "Battle Cry" and "Gunfight At The OK Corral" has woven a moving novel about the lives of many people who fought and died to establish and hold the little State of Israel.
The story is fiction only because the names have been changed for the principal characters. Yet many real persons enact prominent roles during the story.
Exodus opens as the fiery Ari Ben Canaan comes to Cyprus shortly after World War II to break the British blockade against Jewish immigrants flooding into Israel. Posing as a British officer he organizes a fake Army transportation company, buys a ship and prepares to sail.

had lost her husband and baby. Kitty followed the Jews into Israel, trying to get Karen to come to America with her and stayed because of her love for the unloving Ari Ben Canaan. In Israel, the reader comes into contact with the people who had been fighting for a nation of their own for years, carving out a frontier country.
Two brothers, Ari's father and uncle, split because of their differing beliefs in how this should be accomplished.
For the first time in centuries, Jews became fighters, making up in boldness and daring what they lacked in manpower and equipment. It was typical for the boys and girls to be experienced soldiers before they were out of their teens. Staff officers and generals were in their middle and late 20's.
Uri is at his best when he describes fierce battles between the Jews and the Arabs. Exodus is filled with fighting, as the Jews stand up under tremendous odds thrown against them by the Arab nations, and even the treachery of the British.
The old colonial system of the British is sharply attacked by Uri as he describes endless incidents of betrayal.
But finally there is "The Miracle of Lake Success" when the United Nations votes to recognize the infant State of Israel. When the British pull out, the tiny nation has to fight with renewed vigor to keep from being completely erased.

Exodus probably will rank as a top-flight text on the early history of Israel. In addition, it certainly qualifies as best-seller fiction.
