out a 15-hit barrage to down the Dodgers.

Dodgers drew first blood with two runs in the first on three singles, a hit batter and a walk. They added another in the second on an error, two stolen bases and a single. They were blanked the rest of the way.

Catching fire, the Cards got two runs in the third on three singles and a stolen base. Their big inning came in the fourth, when they got six runs on five singles, a double and a three-run homer by Lynn Cook. There were four errors, a walk, a stolen base and a wild pitch chalked up in the inning.

The Cards added two more runs in the sixth on two singles and three walks.

Ed Milms took the win while Lynn Warren was tagged with the loss.

In the minor league games, the Yankees downed the Giants 8-0 and the Cardinals and Dodgers played to an 8-8 tie that was called by time limit.

Pennant winners Johnson and Norton, incidentally, were first to submit scores for their league shortly after attending the kick-off breakfast for the drive in the Jim Hill Hotel Tuesday morning.

"Both leagues are working hard," Thompson said, "and by the end of the summer we hope to attain our goal for new membership and increased dues among Hereford businesses."

A total of 36 participants on 18 teams will continue to strive for points until Sept. 1, when the winning team will receive four tickets to the 1959 World Series and $100 for expenses.

The 'major league campaign' was divided into the National and American leagues, and were subdivided into two-man teams. Thompson said a team must score a minimum of 100 points to be eligible for the baseball tickets.

Scoring is being determined by: a "home run", acquiring a new member with money or a signed bank draft submitted with the application, four points; a "triple", an increase in dues by a present member, three points; a "double", acquiring a new member with no money or bank draft submitted with the application, two points; and a "single", making a contact with no membership or increase in dues sold, one point.

The membership drive was set up by the C of C after it was announced that there was need for a $5,000 increase in the group's operating budget. It is the first membership campaign in four years.

OPTOMETRY: The Art and Science of Visual Care

Oh, but I DO have my glasses on!

Today, this is becoming a fairly common statement. Many people are being fitted with CONTACT lenses, with perfect success, eliminating heavy spectacles. In many instances, much better vision is achieved with contacts.

Progress in this field of vision care has been tremendous even in the last two years. Use of contacts now may be possible for you even if unsuccessful before.

Not all optometrists fit contact lenses. Those who do not will refer the work to those with special training.

For information, write Texas Optometric Association, Contact Lens Section, Bolm Bldg., Austin, Texas.

Mother Superior Joins Do-It-Yourself Craze

PHILADELPHIA — A toolbox isn't standard equipment for a nun, but Mother Mary Agnes of the Sacred Heart Manor for the Aged finds hers just the thing for her work — particularly when the manor's oil burner is acting up.

Mother Agnes, a member of the Carmelite order and superior of the home for the elderly, has a lot of bills to pay on the new building the home now occupies. And it costs a good deal of money to provide the "kind, loving care" prescribed by the order for the aged residents.

So when the oil burner went out of kilter and repair men couldn't seem to find the trouble, Mother Agnes took a hand. The trouble was three-fold. Great billows of black smoke poured from the chimney, parts of the manor were not getting any heat, and one of the glass-enclosed thermostats on the big burner didn't work.

Mother Mary Agnes attacked the thermostat first. She rolled up the sleeves of her habit and poked around until she found a loose connection leading to it. Her tool kit didn't have anything to fix that, so she dug down into her pocket and came up with an adhesive bandage. Mother Agnes wrapped it firmly around the loose connection. Sure enough, it worked.

That victory behind her, Mother Agnes investigated the burner further. She found the smoke was black because a preheat switch hadn't been thrown to warm the oil. And the reason some parts of the building weren't getting enough heat was that workmen's jackets, hanging on switchesboxes, had pulled the switches and cut off the flow of heat to certain areas.

After that, Mother Agnes began watching the serviceman who checked the burner each month. She also sent to the factory for a book of instructions. After the serviceman's final visit last spring, she took over the work of caring for the burner. The manor's 165 residents were comfortably warm all through the past winter, and Mother Agnes saved the $125 yearly maintenance fee.

Mrs. J. J. Durham, American Field Service sponsor, was also present at the meeting.

Each of the exchange students gave short talks and arranged displays concerning the countries they had visited.

Experimental Substation Releases Sorghum Data

Texas Agricultural Experiment Substation No. 8 in Lubbock recently released research data on grain sorghum. Principal objective in the research is the development of varieties and hybrids and of production techniques which will result in a greater net return to the producer of the crop.

Under the inheritance section of research, the report stated the breeding and improvement is concerned with the development of varieties and hybrids superior to present materials in (1) better adaption to growing conditions; (2) better adaptation to methods of production, particularly harvesting; (3) improved resistance to hazards such as disease, insects, and storms; and (4) improved use values.

The development of a large number of combine grain sorghum varieties and hybrids has resulted from this work. The sorghum hybrids recently released are producing yields 20 to 40 percent above those of comparable varieties.

Some of the most promising current breeding work is concerned with the incorporation of yellow endosperm and better standing ability into adapted grain sorghums. Yellow endosperm in sorghum, similar to that of corn, is being incorporated into combine grain types such as kafir, shallu, feterita and hegari.

Yellow endosperm adds carotene (vitamin A) and xanthophyll pigments to sorghum grain, thus improving its feeding value and its market position.

Resistance to lodging and good standability for field drying and delayed harvest is one of the most-needed improvements in sorghum. A character for thick rind and stiff stalk is being transferred types as rapidly as possible; a number of selections with this character are in preliminary tests.

A new forage sorghum similar to Honey sorge but with more leafiness at harvest, better standability, and much greater seed production, has been increased and should be available in 1960.

A new dwarf broomcorn has been increased for trials. It has very good quality brush, is tip-seeded, and has tan plant color which greatly reduces straining of the broomstraw.

Much of the rapid progress in sorghum improvement has been made possible by continuing research on inheritance in sorghum. The results of genetic studies are not directly evident as new varieties and hybrids, but they provide information that makes it possible to plan breeding programs for specific objectives and to reach those objectives in the least possible time.

Similarly, research on methods of hybrid seed production provided much information on

Ex-U.S. Engineer Recalls Long-Forgotten Settlements

ARANSAS PASS — Bob Mercer is 82, but he remembers adventure when at 30, he started to work for the U. S. Engineers.

During the 26 years he worked for them he saw the Intra-coastal Canal get its start through areas where ghost towns of early Texas left their mark.

"That was back in 1904," Mercer says, "and the Engineers surveyed the route of the waterway through coastal swamps and bays."

Frequently, the surveying parties found traces of long forgotten settlements, some of them beneath the waves of the Gulf.

"On San Luis Island," Mercer says, "there was an old town in the edge of the water, and a lot of graves with headstones that would show at low tide."

This town was founded in 1839, and in those days, say historians, a regular stage coach and ferry operated between the tiny town of Galveston and booming San Luis. However, by 1844, tides and storms had filled the harbor, and a discouraged populace deserted the settlement.

"Down the way a little piece," Mercer said, "between the markers that now show miles 415 and 420 on the canal, there was a foundation where someone had built a house, and the remains of an old wharf, but I never did learn anything about who lived at that place.

"Just east of Port O'Connor, between it and Decros Point, present day charts show submerged ruins. There used to be a quarantine station at this point, when Pass Cavallo was used by boats carrying freight to early Texas.

"On the upper end of Matagorda Island is where Saluria stood. There once was a pretty good sized town there before the Civil War, with a fort and a lighthouse. A stage line ran down the island across Cedar Bayou to St. Joseph Island.

"There was a town on St. Joseph's then, about opposite where the old Aransas Pass lighthouse still stands. My lived there for a while before the Civil War, and then after the war they moved over to Mustang. One time when I was with the engineers, along about 1919 I think it was, I was on St. Jo where the old town had been, and wind and water had cleared off the foundations of some of them, so you could tell where they had been built."

Mercer's family followed piloting in the days before the Aransas Pass was jettied, and the little settlement was called Mustang Island, the same as the postoffice. Later this was changed to Ropesville; then, to celebrate the local fishing, it was

By JIMMIE GILLETTE Thank You! Thank You! Thank You! This addressed to all of the nice people who have called and who have personally registered complaints because this column was omitted from the paper the last couple of rounds. I had a real good excuse, but it sure is swell to know that you are missed. Come to think of it, I guess complaints about missing the Bull Column are probably the only time I really appreciate getting "chewed out".

tion —. It really was embarrassing to write "Nothing".

A lot of folks are complaining about the current "monsoon season." This is especially true among the cotton farmers, who are anxious to get on the job. Lee Kent swears he has been seeing flocks of sea gulls in this neck of the woods. I tried to tell him they were probably sand cranes, but cannot get to first base. Will somebody straighten Lee out? He even declares he has seen them in this area often. Next thing you know, he will have the "Queen Mary" docking at Third and Main.

Hearing farmers complain about too much rain is certainly new and different — and is not likely to become monotonous. However, it does prove that farmers are going to complain, come what will.

A Gold Sox agent was working here this week, and said to tell the baseball fans that Posa Rica, Mexico, will be in Amarillo May 22-23; the Vera Cruz team will follow on May 25-26-27. The man said these Tamale Eaters are really worth going to see. Posa Rica is a little oil town on the coast near Mexico City — and they drew 310,000 people when they played the Gold Sox this week. That's right, he said $310,000. I have a witness.

A lot of interest is being shown in a possible employment bureau for students this summer. In addition to The Brand "Question of the Week" last Sunday, it came up before the Intra-Club Council Friday, and C-C Manager Bill Thompson reported that Mrs. John Kelly is working on the project, and will probably have an experienced speaker down here soon for an open meeting. There are quite a few pitfalls but, all in all, it sounds like a real good deal. Certain types of firms would run into state or federal labor regulations, but most retail stores can probably cooperate. The service will be welcomed by most employers, as well as by students.

Henry Sears, who opened an office and dabbled several months after selling his elevator, always talks things over with the family in a round table fashion before making an important move. He ran into quite a deal recently when he gathered the children in to talk over buying controlling interest in the First National Bank. "Dad, it's just wonderful," chortled his 14-year-old daughter, Helen White. "I had to fill out a form at school the other day and they had a line which said, 'Father's Occupation', and I really was embarrassed to write 'Nothing'." I hear that Dr. J. H. Channer is real upset because the City is improving the new park in the north part of town, thus throwing the Little League out of a practise spot. True enough, the kids need and deserve a place to practise — but not at the expense of park development. Surely, there is another good place where some practise grounds can be operated. Hereford has more and better parks than most towns. I was real happy to see them expand the park system along with normal growth. However, out in these wide-open spaces there is no good reason why we can't have both.

D. C. Martin says it is strictly his personal opinion, but he thinks it will be a mistake for Texas to approve the House bill to allow two-year teaching certificates to anyone with a college degree. D. C. figures it will materially lower the quality of teachers in all school grades and divisions.

In this "Town Without A Toothache" country, you can still run into a lot of competition. The other day Kent Snare was telling about a couple of fellows who were talking about the merits of natural and false teeth. The argument came to an abrupt halt when one of the men declared: "Store - bought teeth may not be the best, but I'll tell you one thing, you never saw anyone who tried them and went back to the other kind!"

If you need a good club program, see the Toastmasters. Dr. M. C. Adams tells me that they have a debate on the "pros" and "cons" of a sales tax in Texas — and that it brings out both sides of the question in an emphatic manner.

Marie Sears went into the telephone office Friday morning with a big, well decorated cake. If it attracted as much interest inside the building as it did outside, it was probably welcome indeed.

The small fry are talking about nothing these days but "The Shaggy Dog", a re-run movie. I questioned Francis Hardwick, and he says he has it booked this month. He thinks around the third week.

Rev. Alby Cockrell by profession maintains great faith in the honesty of mankind, and his faith was lessened not at all this week when walking down Polk Street in Amarillo he lost two $20 bills from his pocket. The lady walking behind him picked them up, tapped Alby on the shoulder, gave them to him with mild advice to be a bit more careful in the future.

Meanwhile, I notice where the Texas Safety Association is putting on a drive to cut down the number of casualties resulting from overwork in one's yard, garden and flower beds. According to Mrs. Urlin Streu, Mrs. George McLean, Mrs. Ike Crosthwaik, Mrs. Clarence Schulz and Mrs. Jimmie Gillette, they would do well to study habits on the men folks on the 400 block of McKinley Street. These gals report that there hasn't been a single case of apoplexy on the block in more than 10 years.

Anywhere He Goes, Hogan Sets Attendance Records

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF Ben Hogan's hold on the public is a great story of sport. The little man of golf's great moments packed them in when he wasn't winning and was considered through, with no prospects of ever winning again. Hogan had become just another golfer after that grand slam of 1953 — the Masters, National Open and the British Open. He couldn't putt and he didn't have it in the clutch as he tried desperately to return to the top and do what no other man ever had accomplished — win the National Open five times.

How To Eat Well And Stay Well Tips Given

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

Here it is! A guide for those families who are interested in changing their diet to conform to research done in recent years on the relationship between coronary heart disease and cholesterol in the blood.

In "Eat Well and Stay Well" by Ancel and Margaret Keys (Doubleday $3.95) a well-known physiologist and his wife, a biochemist, have put nutrition whys and wherefores so simply that lay persons (and cooks) can decide for themselves whether they want to follow the book's diet advice.

The first part of the volume explores the reasons for many scientists' suspicion that "luxurious high-fat diets may produce the coronary heart disease." Dr. Keys would not for a moment say that fats in the diet are the sole cause of the difficulty, but he believes it well for Americans to take account of the evidence so far. This is how he sums up his recommendations.

1. Do not get fat; if you are fat, reduce.
2. Restrict saturated fats, the fats in beef, pork, lamb, sausages, margarine, solid shortenings, fats in dairy products.
3. Prefer vegetable oils to solid fats, but keep total fats under 30 per cent of your diet calories.
4. Favor fresh vegetables, fruits, and non-fat milk products.
5. Avoid heavy use of salt and refined sugar.
6. Good diets do not depend on drugs and fancy preparations.
7. Get plenty of exercise and outdoor recreation.
8. Be sensible about cigarettes, alcohol, excitement, business strain.
9. See your doctor regularly and do not worry.

A section of the book is devoted to menus for the four seasons, and the recipe section includes a number of dishes from other countries. Here is Mrs. Keys version of a famous Italian main dish.

FEGATO VENEZIANA — LIVER AND ONIONS
Ingredients: 4 large onions, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon oil, 1 pound calves' or baby-beef liver.

Method: Cut the onions into small pieces; add the salt; saute in the oil until golden. Cut liver into half-bite size pieces, discarding skin and veins. Add liver to onions, cooking and stirring 2 minutes longer. Per Recipe: 960 calories, 92 grams Protein, 37 grams Fat.

Note: Two tablespoons white wine may be added just before serving.

THE BEFORE-DINNER BIT
Dr. and Mrs. Keys have good advice about those appetizers and snacks Americans love to nibble on. Here's what they suggest: popcorn (fresh and sprinkled lightly with oil), olives, celery, and carrot sticks and a thin cheese dip with thin potato chips (which makes it almost impossible to get very many calories at a bite) can be made available in strategically placed bowls and no one will feel deprived — or overeat.

METHODIST - CATHOLICS
CHICAGO (AP) — The number of Roman Catholics who become Methodists is almost four times greater than the number of Methodists who become Roman Catholics, Dr. Albert C. Hoover, director of Methodist statistics, claims in a recent report in the church's "Together" magazine.

IN LONG-RANGE FORECASTING:

Static May Become Lifesaving Noise

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, May — (Spl) — The static that fouls your T-V or radio reception may some day save your life.

Texas A and M College scientists — who three years ago this April showed the world how to track and forecast a tornado's strike — are now trying to translate the noise of static into information that can improve long-range forecasting of violent storms or weather fronts. Static is simply the noise made when the electrical impulses which all clouds carry is discharged or "swapped" around. A and M scientists are aiming in on this static with ground-based, radio receivers, and depending on the static frequency or intensity, they can spot potential storm conditions at ranges far beyond where radar can now function efficiently.

In the future, it is hoped, static noises from far-off weather fronts will be analyzed by weather experts, who will determine if potentially violent weather is building up. Radar will then check information as the storm moves closer. Once information from both radio and radar is gathered, warnings can be sent to weather centers, which in turn will inform the proper agencies, and the public, by radio and television.

Thus, the static that is simply an annoyance to Texans today may tomorrow give signals of storms thousands of miles away — and allow more time for warnings to be given. Texans have a prime stake in his work. For Texas is at the bottom of a trough that U. S. weather scientists call "Tornado Alley." This is a four-state area composed of Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and the Lone Star State, an area through which 251 tornadoes ripped last year.

Residents of "Tornado Alley" are now in what is normally the "season" for violent disturbances of the tornado type. April, May and June are generally the worst months in these four states. Last year during this time Texas caught 104 tornadoes. Kansas was "second best" with 82.

Radar forecasting and tracking, which was pioneered in the Southwest by Texas A and M College scientists, is limited in range. The big radar set now in operation at Texas A and M sweeps up to 400 miles, but the really useful operations are generally at ranges of 250 miles or under.

Radio, however, offers possibilities in terms of many hundreds of miles, and can be used to augment existing radar procedures. The principal scientist on current radio research at the college, Dr. George Huebner, of the department of meteorology and oceanography, explains the process this way: "All clouds carry electrical charges. As they build up or break up, electrical discharges occur, which, on your radio, you hear as static. As formations become more intense, the rate of electrical changes becomes faster and heavier, and these changes are detectable at ranges up to thousands of miles away. By using radio receivers on the ground, with directional antennas, scientists beam in on the more "promising" areas of static, and the clouds act as floating radio transmitters, sending their signals to the scientists at the receivers.

By triangulation, using three sets at different locations, areas of heavy weather can be spotted at great distances. By learning to "read" the differences in intensities and frequencies of static, as they relate to different formations, the weather scientists can then tell what is coming up, and prepare other scientists for further observations by radar as the formations move closer.

Dr. Huebner explains that A and M scientists are trying to learn to translate the differences in strength, and rapidly of static noises into terms that will tell other scientists what type of weather condition is building up, where, and how it's developing. The range of frequencies covered is a broad one, going from 10 kilocycles to 200 megacycles.

The work is being done for the U. S. Air Force's Cambridge Research Center, Cambridge, Mass. "The present Air Force nets are used primarily in location of severe storm centers," Huebner says. "We're investigating methods that can augment radar observations, and provide more detailed information, and can, consequently, give more time in forecasting."

Huebner points proudly to the record in weather tracking and forecasting of storms made by fellow scientists of A and M oceanography and meteorology department. The department, in work done for the A and M Research Foundation, set up the first practical radar tornado warning network in the nation, and back in 1956 gave an efficient, if somewhat frightening demonstration, to residents of the College Station-Bryan area.

On April 5, 1956, radar observers at the college spotted what they thought would turn into a tornado, about 60 miles west of College Station. About 10 minutes after the original sighting, they tagged it as a tornado, headed for Bryan, and calls went in to the Bryan police, to schools and civil defense units.

The tornado hit Bryan two minutes off the predicted time of arrival and about 200 feet west of the expected point of impact, ripped a million-dollar hole in a residential area, and roared on out of town. Residents, given better than an hour's warning, were out of the way. "Up to that time," Huebner reflects, "some people seemed to regard radar tracking as a kind of gimmick for scientists to toy with."

He doesn't have to add that it's no longer the case.

Family Dwelling In 203-Yr.-Old Cabin

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., May 14 (AP)—Antique collector Hal Clayburne won't be stumped by distance. He moved his 203-year-old log cabin here from Virginia.

The cabin, still sound after a cross-country trip by rail serves as a rustic home for Clayburne and his family. Clayburne learned about the old homestead during visits with friends in the Shenandoah Valley. Later, hearing it was about to be razed, he made a hurried trip east.

The San Antonio contractor found the dwelling in a sad state of repairs. Its owner was happy to take $65 for it and Clayburne figured it could be fixed up.

Most of the massive yellow pine, walnut and oak logs in the two-story, five-room house were sound. He had it dismantled and turned it over to the railroads.

Once here, Clayburne took liberties with the original floor plan when remodeling. He placed the downstairs flooring upstairs, replacing old handmade floor nails with wooden pegs.

Three of the old mantels are still in use. Six fireplaces keep the cabin warm.

"We heat altogether by wood. I'm sorry to say," Mrs. Clayburne told Shirley Deviney, writing for the Houston Chronicle.

"Taking out ashes is a nuisance. When my husband removes them, ashes settle all over my antiques." Clayburne's few concessions to modern times are a wall stove and refrigerator, electricity and indoor plumbing. Then he installed a front door lock which came from an old Texas jail. The key weighs a pound.

More than 300 antique clocks line the walls in Clayburne's office. His wife displays part of her 500-piece pressed glass collection on shelves above the kitchen fireplace.

A split-rail fence of Virginia chestnut encircles the home. Clayburne's daughter, Pam, 13, says it makes a dandy hitching rail for her sorrel horse.

Household Scrapbook

Washing Upholstery
A good method for washing upholstery is: In four cups of boiling water dissolve one cup of shaved mild soap, or soap powder; after cooling, beat with egg beater until fluffy. Then dip a small clean brush into the fluff and scrub only a small area of the upholstery at a time. Wipe the suds off quickly with a clean cloth and rinse thoroughly with another cloth frequently wrung out in clean water. Change water often. Wipe as dry as possible with a soft cloth.

Potato Chips
Potato chips will keep fresh much longer in bags that do not permit strong light to reach them, than in clear or opaque waxed-bags. A tight tin container is best.

Suede Shoes
The shiny spots on suede shoes may be removed by rubbing them with fine sandpaper.

Removing Old Varnish
Old varnish can be removed from surfaces by making a solution of one part caustic soda and three parts lukewarm water. Apply with a brush or sponge. Let stand a moment, then scrape off.

Pimple Scars
The scars from pimples will soon disappear if they are bathed with a solution of boric acid, followed by an application of zinc ointment.

Eggs
If eggs are to be stored, store them with the small ends down, and they will keep much better.

Appetizers
Tempting appetizers to serve with cocktails can be made with hardcooked eggs. Remove the yolks and mix with pickle relish, sardines and dressing, then replace in the egg white cases.

Varnish Stains
To remove varnish stains from materials, rub the spots with turpentine or benzine. Then wash the garment thoroughly.

Cheesecloth
Cheesecloth is the best material for dusting, as it spreads no lint, is most absorbent, and can be washed out readily.

Cleaning Paintings
One method of cleaning oil paintings is to heat a saucer of milk to the tepid stage by adding hot water, then wring a cloth from this solution very tightly and go over the surface of the painting lightly. Do not allow the surface to become even slightly wet.

REMEMBER WHEN?

By CHARLIE SEEDS
This happened a long time ago, but there's hardly a sports fan around who hasn't heard of it... and a lot still remember the time Red Grange ran wild against Michigan, in the most amazing running exhibition ever seen on a football field. Mighty Michigan was led by the incomparable Benny Friedman that year... and they were supposed to win. Canny Illinois coach Bob Zupke had only Red Grange. He didn't need much more, for in his college career Grange gained some 4,000 yards in 3 seasons. On this one glorious day he couldn't be stopped... literally. In the first 12 minutes he carried the ball four times. Each time he ran right through the Michigan team for touchdowns. A few minutes later they gave him the ball for the fifth time—and another touchdown! Five carries, five touchdowns, run from almost every point of the field. Meticulously, they took him out of the game then... to an ovation such as few players have ever heard. Remember the year? America was in the middle of its first big touring boom, those days. We were seeing our country... hitting the road in a new car... flapping side curtains and all. The year was 1924. Americans are traveling more than ever today... but in 1924 no one dreamed of the luxury you'll find in the new 1959 FORDS. Hit the road in style—for far less than you think—in a powerful new FORD from your dependable dealer, CHARLIE SEEDS MOTOR CO., INC., 146-E. Second, Phone EM 4-2727.

Opportunity Plan Explained By WT Students, Director

Milton "Buff" Morris, executive secretary of the Ex-Students Association at West Texas State College, explained the "Opportunity Plan" offered at the college to Hereford Lions Club members Wednesday noon in the Jim Hill Hotel.

Other speakers were Barbara Sheppard, Virginia McGee and Sharon Shelton, who are attending college at WT this year under the unique loan plan.

The plan was originated in December, 1953, by Morris, and since that time, 750 students have used money from the loan fund. Morris said that less than one per cent of money borrowed by students will not be paid back. The other students, he said, will pay what they borrowed in full as soon as possible.

Today, he said, any student desiring a degree need not be handicapped for lack of funds. The community, likewise, cannot afford not to lend a helping hand to students desiring to attend college.

The Opportunity Plan is a thrift program, Morris said. Requirements include recommendations from at least three persons before a student may be considered to attend school under the plan.

"The main requirement," Morris said, "is that the student must mean business in getting his education. Most of the students under the plan are seeking a degree, and have a average or better grades."

Students repay loans by working at school and summer jobs. They keep an accurate account of money spent on budget sheets. Even if a nickle is spent for a soft drink, that amount is recorded.

Morris explained that the program definitely is not a charity. The students are expected to pay back any money they borrow under the program.

Miss Sheppard is sophomore elementary education major of Amarillo. She works in the speech department as an office secretary and plans to work at a job this summer. She said Morris helps students find part-time jobs.

Miss McGee, a freshman elementary education major of Skellytown, works at the Panhandle - Plains Historical Society Museum and has been under the plan since she enrolled at the college. Miss Shelton, a freshman business education major, plans to work this summer to pay back her loan.

There are no set amounts for repayment of a loan. They pay what they can afford, Morris said. Allotment of loans is under a supervisory system, and before receiving a loan, the student fills out an application estimating what he feels it will cost him to attend school for a semester. If he feels he needs more money later, he consults Morris for supervision.

Students under the program may join a social club if they wish, and fees and dues come under the budget program.

The guest speaker was introduced by Lion Fred Cunningham, superintendent of Hereford schools.

Bobby Williams, high school football coach, was welcomed to the club as a new member. Lion W. C. Quattlebaum introduced guests.

Guests were Charley MacMahon of Ft. Worth, Bob Winters of Lubbock, Ray Dunn and Bob Ferrin of Amarillo, and Larry Summers and Johnnie Sims of Hereford.

Antiques Provide Interest To Collectors In Hereford

MRS. RICHARD JOWELL dates her interest in antiques to the time when she visited her grandmother as a little girl and found many old and beautiful things to remember.

Mr. Jowell's interest stems from a family appreciation of fine old things. When they established their own home they began to collect beautiful antiques which led them into shows, auctions and shops in many parts of the country.

In the picture, Mrs. Jowell sits beside one of her most prized possessions, the lovely old hand-carved walnut organ which she refinished and he electrified. The chair and the lamp not only match the organ, which is well over 100 years old, in period but in design. This is one of four organs they have owned, they have sold two.

Mr. Jowell likes clocks and keeps adding to his collection. In the picture is one three-tiered Seth Thomas-Plymouth-hollow Wright clock, one Dresden, late 19th Century French clock, all china clocks and some with porcelain faces. They have many beautiful pieces of antique furniture china, cut glass, silver and beautiful lamps.

MRS. MEREDITH IRELAND started her antique collection in 1942 when she began keeping house. She fell heir to some fine old furniture and numerous antiques and soon she became interested in this type of living and started out to find more interesting pieces.

When questioned, she said, "I do not have a great collection of any one specific item, but all my antiques are in use and placed to give the desired effect. The table in the picture is drop-leaf Duncan Fyfe mahogany. The bulb type lamp dates back to 1860 and came from a Mississippi plantation.

"The compote is Italian from the Arthur A. Everett collection in Dallas. This is a very old and rare piece of ribbon majolica, which is very difficult to produce. Its colors range from blues to yellows and green and white with the handle-like sides of delicate leaves. The tiny birds perched on top are yellow.

O'BRIEN PAINTS

MRS. JEFF GILBERTH lived with lovely antique furniture in the home of her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. John L. Wilson, and when she married Karl Shirley she found the home of his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Shirley, was furnished throughout with beautiful antiques.

At that time, she preferred new and modern things for her home, but after her husband's death, she and her children fell heir to some of the fine old furniture which is now very rare and hard to find and she became interested in the study of antiques. Soon she began searching for added pieces that would harmonize with what she had and with her own period furniture. She remembered the oval marble top table (seen in the picture) that her mother had once sent to the ranch for the cowhands to use, and tracked it down.

She searched for a "Come With the Wind" lamp, like the one on the table, in Arkansas, and Tennessee. Then one day while she and Mr. Gilberth were visiting a sister-in-law in Tennessee, the sister brought out one of the lamps she had started housekeeping with. It is hand painted with brass base and trim and is still oil burning. The sideboard with its lovely Italian marble top, came from the Shirley family.

It is hand carved and as beautiful today as it was 100 years ago. The silver tea and coffee service and the syrup pitcher, on the little shelf at the right are fine Old Sheffield and are both decorative and practical. The butter dish at the left is American antique and the small pitchers are French haviland. Mrs. Gilberth also has two complete sets of twelve in French Haviland and two complete services for twelve in sterling silver (both now out of production).

Other prized possessions are a carved walnut bedroom suite with marble topped dresser and a light walnut secretary with brass pulls that T. E. Shirley purchased when a young man. Three antique exquisite, so dear to the hearts of our grandmothers, hang on the walls.

They are landscapes done by the late Mrs. T. E. Shirley in 1884 while in school at Lexington, Ky. Their gold leaf frames are as bright now as then. She also prizes some antiques sent to her from Japan and Panama by her son, Karl Shirley, and varied art pieces from South America.

Garden Club Holds Workshop Session

Hereford Garden Club held a workshop in preparation for the annual flower show, to be held soon, at the home of Mrs. S. S. Williams Friday. Mrs. R. L. Criswell served as assistant hostess.

Mrs. A. L. Manjeot, national accredited instructor, served as leader, assisted by flower show committee chairmen.

All members made entries in both the horticulture and artistic divisions for the model flower show. Mesdames O. G. Hill Sr. and A. L. Manjeot served as judges of arrangements.

Those present were Mesdames Jennie Clark, C. C. Ferguson, O. G. Hill Sr., W. C. Hromas, A. L. Manjeot, Norman Moore, G. W. Newsom, E. Ramsey, Frank Brinkman, Glenn Boardman and the hostesses.

Mrs. Terry Kirby, was traveling in Europe one summer. Some of the steins, which also belong to Ted, were found in antique shops in the various countries they visited while in Europe and others have been collected over a period of years. Mrs. Hennen holds one of the most unusual which is in the shape of an owl.

Before moving to Hereford, after Mr. Houston's death, Mrs. Hennen fell heir to some heirlooms from the A. C. Houston family. Among them was a lovely gold French display cabinet and a shadow box table where she keeps a treasured fan some antique opera glasses and some antique figurines.

Also among her treasured antiques are a large music box that belonged to Mrs. A. C. Houston, and some unusual crystal chandeliers. She also has some Meissen ware and some Rose in the Snow glassware.

One of Mr. Hennen's treasures is a low walnut tea table with four small chairs which even antique shops find hard to locate now. Mrs. Hennen's hobby is collecting white bisque angels which are also very hard to find now.

People don't get weak eyes from looking at the bright side of life.

Beauty at Home

By Lynn Carter

Q. Is there a good facial beauty mask that will help to bleach freckles?

A. Some claim success with this one: Mix the white of an egg and the juice of a lemon, add sufficient almond meal or oatmeal to make a thin paste. Spread this over the freckled area, and let dry. Then rinse off with warm water.

Q. What is a good lipstickting procedure for the girl who has a rather heavy lower lip?

A. She can create an optical illusion by using a lighter, brighter shade of color on her upper lip than on her lower lip. This makes the upper lip appear to be fuller, and calls attention away from her heavy lower lip.

Q. What can I do about the cracked and calloused heels on my feet?

A. Begin by scrubbing them vigorously with a stiff brush to dislodge dead cuticle. Apply a softening cream after each bath, and at night you can tie on little heelcaps to keep the cream from messing your bed linens.

Q. My skin is quite dry, and my foundation cream makeup always seems to dry on my face. Is there something I can do about this?

A. Try leaving a thin film of your cleansing cream on when you apply your foundation makeup.

Sprinkle leftover French-fried potato sticks with grated cheese and reheat by broiling.

Livestock Feeding Program Still Offers Practical Answer On Milo

Milo has provided the "64 Question" in this area during the past few months following lowered government props on that commodity for the coming year.

No one, it seems, has a sure-fire, guaranteed answer to the argument. However, we were talking with a feed-lot operator this week, and he made the following statement:

"I cannot find enough milo to feed out cattle—even at $2 a hundred."

Considering the source, we admit that it sounds like an old maid telling a mother of 12 how to rear children, but honestly a general livestock feeding program in this area provides our only practical answer.

In the first place, this country is a "natural" when it comes to livestock. Highly important is the fact that Texas now provides one of the nation's best beef and pork markets—and this was the factor which previously hampered such a program.

Small, on-the-farm feeding programs are highly practical and probable. Large scale feed lots have been profitable in the past, and will continue to become more profitable in the future.

In California swine feeders can pay market prices up to $2 a hundred and haul grain from Deaf Smith County to California, then why can't local swine feeders profitably produce and feed their own grain—especially with ready markets in Amarillo, Lubbock, Ft. Worth and Dallas? Meanwhile, possibility of two profits is always better than a questionable loss on government loan grain.

Incumbent with a shift into livestock feeding will come an element of possible loss, along with plenty of hard work. No one especially appreciates these two factors but, when you stop to think about it, they are still the same two factors faced by the people who moved into this country a half century ago to establish a veritable empire on the Staked Plains.

Chamber of Commerce Endorsement Means Continued Growth For Area

For the first time in four years, the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce is conducting a membership and finance drive.

Clean Up Week, May 16 to 23

Clean Up Week, May 16-23, has been designated to make Hereford a cleaner, healthier and more attractive town.

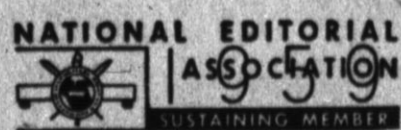

Most of the things connected with Clean Up Week we already know. Like a 12-year-old boy when it comes to taking a bath, however, we must be shamed, cajoled or driven to the chore.

Following are five points which the committee urges us to check during the next seven days:

- 1. Boy Scouts, in so far as possible, will clean up vacant lots. If there is one in your neighborhood that particularly needs attention, call Raymond Fletcher, Boy Scout Executive, at EM 4-3577.
2. Check your own yard for trash. Place as much as possible in barrels, stack tree limbs and other trash that won't go in barrels in alley.
3. Now is a good time to do that paint or repair job that has been waiting for the right time.
4. Why not have your house wiring checked for possible fire hazards now?
5. Check your garage or storage room for uncovered paint cans, rags, papers and other fire hazards.

The POWER of FAITH by Howard Brodie

FAITH THAT AMERICANS LIVE BY—7

With man on the threshold of space exploration, I cornered one of America's leading space scientists in a Buffalo hotel and asked him if faith would be significant to the first space man.

"It will be important to him," said Dr. Everett T. Welmers, who is assistant to the president of Bell Aircraft for long range planning, and director of the Research Center, "because in the loneliness of space he will know he is not alone."

There is no contradiction, he went on, between religion and science. "One of the first commandments of the Bible is that man should take dominion over and conquer the earth. Man is expected to understand and control it. Science helps towards that end."

As for his own faith, Dr. Welmers asserted, "It's been a natural part of my life since childhood."

On Sundays, he teaches the men's Bible class in Central Presbyterian Church. He has been an elder, a Sunday school superintendent, president of the presbytery council. Also he is a vice president of the New York Synod Council of Presbyterian Men.

"I feel I'm accomplishing as much on Sunday morning," he commented, "as any other day. Accomplishments in the field of religion are as real as in the field of science."

Letters To The Editor

Dear Sir:
As an early citizen of Hereford I, would like information concerning your annual Old Settlers' Day, which I understand is held during this month. My father, H. W. Renfro, came to Hereford in the summer of 1902, built a house north of the cemetery, and in December following moved his family. Hereford was young then, having been moved recently from a former location in order to be on the railroad. The main street was very much like the streets of pioneer towns that we see in movies and in television now. The Hereford House was next to the railroad, Gass & Son Dry Goods just opposite and various businesses mixed with some dwellings stretched north for a number of blocks. A Mr. Vanderburgh (or Vanderpool) was editor of The Brand then which was the only paper. Judge Ferguson was the banker. I believe Mr. Black had the furniture, Stambaugh & Lipscomb dry goods, O.F. Smith who later became a minister, had the drug store and later on, Mr. Fox built a store at the north end of the street, with inside balcony which was an innovation for Hereford. There were other business houses of course, but I do not remember their names at the moment. The town had no paved streets, no electric lights and no water system. Each residence had its own windmill and sanitary conveniences. During the summer of 1903 an epidemic of typhoid fever struck the town and many people died, but our physicians, Dr. Estes, Dr. Rogers and others, brought many through safely, including our family. I've always thought of my father as the "father of irrigation" around Hereford. He made an earthen tank and at intervals placed pipes in the side. From them he was able to water a large garden, which produced the finest vegetables and berries. When prospective settlers came to Hereford the real state men always brought them to our place to prove what water and good soil would grow. I frequently read of the wonderful crops being grown on land that was bare in those days.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Citizens Present Ideas In Naming New School

What name would you suggest for the new Hereford elementary school? Why?

MRS. HOWARD WALKER—Since it is located down there in that section which is called Sunset Terrace, I think it might be a good idea if it were named Terrace School.

MRS. ERNEST HARDER—I think it might be a good idea to name it after an educator or maybe even some state hero.

MRS. VANCE CRUME—I really haven't given it much thought, but I think I might be in favor of naming it some way or other pertaining to the location of the school.

PACK BROGDON—Well, since it is in the new Sunset area, I think it might be a good thing if it were named Sunset Heights.

BOB LAMM—Since it is in the Sunset Terrace area, and since this school has been needed for a long time in that district, and since the man who has been largely responsible for getting it there is Fred Cunningham, I think it would be nice to name it after him.

MRS. KENNETH COWAN—Well, I don't think there could be any better name for the new school than New Elementary School. If it is named after an educator, years from now the reason for its being named that would be forgotten.

MRS. FRED RULAND—I think Northwest Elementary School would be a good name for it because it's in that part of town and then it would simplify things a lot.

MRS. D. R. HOLT—Well, I think Sunset Elementary School would be a good name for it because it is in the Sunset district and it has a nice sound to it.

AIRPORT WORK WAITS

Dumas' City Commission opened bids Friday afternoon on two projects for the county-owned airport and accepted the low figures on both, pending approval of the Civil Aeronautics Administration. Three bids were made on both the administration building and on the water well and its relative equipment. Jesse Bennett had the lowest figure for the water well, pipe and pump, at $3,893.50. Others were Arnold Winter, $4,624.76; and W. D. Jones, $4,748. Immediately after the bids were opened, City Engineer L. D. Burns met with the county commission and got that group's approval for acceptance of the low bids that had just been received. However, final letting of the contract must wait until approval is given by the CAA. That federal agency has shared in the cost of the purchase and development of the airport site. The well and building are the final stages of the first plan approved by the CAA.—MOORE COUNTY NEWS (Dumas)

TULIA GETS EXCHANGE STUDENT

John Wilson Henderson of Dunedin Otago, New Zealand, will attend Tulia High School for the 1959-60 term as an American Field Service foreign student. He will live in the William Kirk Hulsey home. The high school senior was born Aug. 16, 1942, in Invercargill. According to records he submitted, he has a 20-year-old sister who is studying to be a dental nurse. Henderson is a Presbyterian and is a stud sheep farmer and the family live 10 miles from a village of 1340 persons. They are 30 miles from Invercargill, population 35,104. The youth has attended boarding school the past six years. He has been a "full member" of the pipe band at John McGlashan college for 2 1/2 years, and has been pipe major for the last 18 months. He is particularly interested in history and English. His sports are rugby, football, golf and skiing. He will arrive in Tulia next September. This is Tulia's first year to participate in the exchange student program. The project was sponsored locally by the Woman's Study Club. It was necessary to collect $650 to finance the project.—THE TULIA HERALD

NEW HIGH SCHOOL APPROVED

Taxpayers of the Panhandle Independent School District approved the sale of $580,000 in bonds to finance construction of a new high school, to remodel buildings and convert the present high school into a junior high school recently. The school board will meet with the architect, Herbert Brasher of Lubbock, to complete plans for the new building and improvements. It is hoped to let a contract to the Municipal Securities Corporation of Dallas through Bob L. Davis, Amarillo, for approximately 3.7 per cent interest.—PANHANDLE HERALD

OFFICE BUILDING TO BE BUILT

The Equity board of directors awarded a construction contract Monday afternoon for a new, modern office building to house the general offices of the organization, general manager Aldon Bell has announced. The Lee Wilson Construction Co., Woodward, was low bidder with a price of $115,540 for the structure. There were eight bidders seeking the contract. The new Equity office building is to be located a block south of the present offices, on property acquired by the Equity some time ago, at the corner of S. The BOOTLEG Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his bindweed farm discusses the housing situation this week. We think that's what he's doing.

Dear editor:
Every time the Russians criticize us, it's not necessary to answer them, but I was especially interested in a criticism Premier Khrushchev made the other day about American houses, which he is an authority on since he has never been in one.

According to him, American houses look all right, but they're not made to last over 20 or 30 years. "Such a method wouldn't suit us in Russia," he said. "We will build in the Russian manner, so that the houses may be used not only by us and our children, but also by our grandchildren and great-grandchildren."

Well, maybe so, but things don't always work out like the Russians claim. You don't notice Stalin's children living in the house Stalin used, do you? Khrushchev has a pretty good house at the moment, but I wouldn't bet on any of his children taking over when he's gone.

Also, I don't know how a Russian can leave his house to his children when he can't own it in the first place. As I understand the Russian position, if she built any houses, she'd build durable ones, but in the meantime the people can have one room per family in a state-owned apartment house.

And when it comes to building homes that last only 20 to 30 years, if Russia keeps brandishing its military power around, the average Russian house may not last that long, regardless of what it's built out of.

Now as to American houses, I don't know how long they'll last, but the one I'm living in has been here a lot longer than 30 years and will be here a lot longer, if I can ever get around to patching the roof and fixing the front porch.

Moreover, when a man builds one of those modern new fancy houses, he doesn't want to put too much permanence into it, he never knows when a new super-highway will come along and pass right through the middle of it.

But even so, I believe I'd rather live in a house of my own that's going to last only 30 years, than live in one that's going to last for 200 years, if it was owned by Mr. Khrushchev.

Yours faithfully, J. A.

TEXANS IN WASHINGTON

Allred Thick In Washington Scene

By TEX EASLEY
 WASHINGTON (AP)—A young man with a name familiar in Texas political circles is in the thick of the Washington scene as an aide to Sen. Ralph Yarborough (D-Tex).
 He is Dave Allred, 25, son of Federal Dist. Judge James V. Allred of Corpus Christi, governor of Texas back in the 1930s.
 As a researcher and press relations man, Young Allred works directly under Bob Bray, former Houston Chronicle and Amarillo newspaper man who directs public relations for the senator. Allred himself worked 15 months with The Associated Press in Montgomery, Ala., before joining Yarborough's staff in Austin last October.

 Prior to joining the AP, Allred worked for the Corpus Christi Caller-Times and the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.
 Young Allred, who is single, was graduated from T. C. U. in 1955 with a B. A. degree, majoring in journalism. He had two years in the Army, and was commissioned a lieutenant after R. O. T. C. training in college.

the venerable Bonham congressman.
 Rep. J. T. Rutherford of Odessa, commenting on lobbying said:
 "While there have been abuses, our system of government has always recognized the right to lobby being held by the people, so long as it is conducted by legal and ethical means."

"Lobby - control laws enacted by Congress have caused the practices of lobbyists at the Washington level to remain surprisingly clean and aboveboard."
 Retired Air Force Col. Edgar T. Noyes of San Antonio has a hobby which led to his appearance before a congressional committee in support of a Troy, N. Y., delegation.

A special bus load of Troy folks came down to Washington plugging a resolution which would recognize Sam Wilson, a Troy meat packer who supplied food to the soldiers in the War of 1812, as the original "Uncle Sam."
 The boxes with the foods he shipped were stamped "U. S.," and that the soldiers soon were saying this stood for "Uncle Sam," the affectionately and widely known packer.

OFF THE Shelf

By H. A. TUCK
 A pair of non-fiction books struck the fancy this week. Lewis Nordyke has written a soft-pedaled expose in The Truth About Texas. The other is a travel story, Poet On A Scooter by Harry Roskolenko.
 Nordyke takes his reader on a thorough trip through the cities and hamlets of the Lone Star State, pointing out many of the long-standing fallacies that have grown into legend. In 16 detailed chapters he describes the state's inhabitants, their progress, feuds and prospects for the future.
 His narrative is interspersed with some excellent anecdotes, many of them true. He drops names with casual abandon and good effect as he tells of the growth of such places as mighty Houston, Fort Worth, Dallas, Lubbock and Amarillo. But he doesn't neglect the smaller places, such as Hereford, Ysleta, Gonzales and many others.
 The Truth About Texas includes, not only the physical and human aspects, but the problems created by three races in various percentages. Intwoven through the book is the story of prejudice and exploitation of the Latins and Negroes, as well as the progress they are making.
 All in all, The Truth About Texas is a primer for newcomers and a refresher for the natives.
 A successful writer and poet, Harry Roskolenko fled to Paris in the wake of a divorce. After a period of readjustment, he started on a motor scooter tour that was to take him around the world.

He opens with his going-away party in Paris and his first meeting with an Italian three-wheeled scooter in Genoa. After his first precarious wobbles, he puts steadily into Yugoslavia, Greece and Turkey, battling red tape and bureaucracy with a fine sense of freedom.

With a poet's knack for phrases, he describes the people, and the animals, as they confront an American who is not rich and does not spout fountain pens from every pocket.

He camps in the shadow of Mt. Ararat, fights blinding sand storms and hungry wolves in Iran and Turkey and cats, like, and with, the natives.

From Pakistan he goes to India, where he and his scooter are twined in a mass of bruises and dents by a wandering bus. It is there he finds himself chased by a hungry tiger in a comedy sequence that would do credit to the Three Stooges.

An ocean voyage puts him in Perth, Australia, a desert away from Melbourne and the 1956 Olympic Games. After bouncing across a desolate track, called a road, he lingers to report on the huge athlete event, then chugs to the coast and a trip to San Francisco.

Nearly blinded, thoroughly exhausted, he finishes his trip, with a swing around the southern United States that ends at New York City. His worst moments came in his homeland as high trucks seemed devilishly intent on swooshing him off the road in their wake.

During his 37,000-mile trip he had scootered 21,000 long miles, finding himself and discovering the world. His experiences are as revealing as they are entertaining, in the odyssey of the Poet On A Scooter.

 Dead center in the Capitol, just off the vast rotunda teeming with tourists, is a small private office occupied by D. B. Hardeman, former Texas state legislator from Denison.

The office is created out of a "lost" space between huge air conditioning conduits. It is quiet and private notwithstanding that a constant stream of persons trek the main Capitol corridor only a dozen paces away.

Here Hardeman, a scholar and writer, does research for his boss, Speaker Sam Rayburn, and works on a biography of

Tourney Probably Will Be Continued--In Spite Of PGA

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
The Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament at Fort Worth, one of the finest of them all, paid a handsome profit recently and that pretty well indures that it will be continued even under some pretty strict demands of the PGA.

The PGA has asked that the field be increased from 48 to 54 with it naming the first 40, that the purse be increased from $27,500 to $30,000 and that a service fee of $4,000 be paid instead of the $2,000 as present.

This means that colonial would have to pay $4,700 more and allow the PGA to name the bulk of the players.

Colonial will make its decision when the board of governor meets.
Indications are that the PGA's demands are not ironclad — that it will be willing to negotiate.

Colonial wants two things above all others; that it be allowed to continue to pay the club house privileges of the competitors and that the field be small enough that it can be put on for the benefit of the crowd. A small field makes this possible — the fans can see all of the players in action and know exactly what's going on.

Colonial also would like to continue to do the inviting — name the players itself although it might not contend for it if that was necessary to continue the tournament without competition. The PGA said it would allow Colonial to go on inviting its players but there would be a competing tournament. However, there are indications that if Colonial meets the money demands and allows the field to be increased to 54 it can go on inviting its own players without competition.

The PGA has asked for a $2,000 top tournament players fee but this actually is optional. Also, Colonial started this year paying each player who failed to finish in the money $100. If this were continued it would mean about $1,900 more.

Colonial would wind up paying about $3,600 more, which it obviously is able to do, and have the same kind of tournament as in the past.

However, it could be that Colonial will bow its neck, say it's going to have its own tournament as it sees fit and the PGA can just lump it. Of course, that would mean it might have trouble getting a good field with the competing tournament. Some half-dozen top golfers have said they could come here anyway though. It would mean defiance of the PGA but it has been done before.

Best chances now, however are that Colonial will pay the PGA about $8,700 and $1,900 more on its own to players who don't finish in the money, and go right on having its great, fine tournament under the present setup.

Detroit Tiger infielders Gail Harris and Ozzie Virgil were teammates on the New York Giants of 1957.

Beauty At Home

Q. Just what can I do about getting rid of the "spare tire" around my middle?

A. All you really need is a little exercise and, perhaps, pushing yourself away from the table when the dessert arrives. Sit-ups are especially good to strengthen stomach muscles and to help trim the waist. Remember, don't cheat and lift your feet off the floor as you sit up!

Q. What is a good treatment for a "winter-weary" skin?

A. Try this: Combine a teaspoon of salt with two tablespoons of petroleum jelly, and rub this firmly over face and on the spots that look especially flaky or coarse. Tissue this off well to remove all traces of salt and oil. This is an excellent treatment at any time you detect signs of flakiness in your complexion.

Q. How can I subdue the appearance of a "sloppy," thick-looking neck?

A. By use of a darker foundation makeup base on the neck than the one you are using on your entire facial area.

Q. How can I prevent my fingernail polish from chipping?

A. Your nail polish will be less likely to chip if you allow plenty of time between your two coats, and if you do not submerge your hands in water for a few hours after finishing.

WAR ABOUT WOMEN

VAXJO, Sweden (AP) — A new "confessional front" has been formed by some clergymen and laymen in the Church of Sweden to protest the Church's decision to ordain women. The opponents claim the change constitutes a "decay of pure church doctrine."
If it is found the group cannot "remedy this debasement" by working within the church, Dean G. A. Danell said, "then there will be no other course than to establish a free church" separate from the state church.
