Ramirez takes witness stand

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

Accused murderer Johnny Ramirez took the stand Tuesday, while a hastily-called witness caused some tense moments during the closing hours of Ramirez' first degree murder trial.

Final arguments were expected to begin this morning in the 22nd District Court trial that commenced with jury selection Friday.

Ramirez presented his version of the shooting which occurred in the early morning hours of Sept. 13 when he left Gerardo Guzman, a 40-year-old Olton man, dead from two shotgun blasts to the head.

The defendant admitted the shooting happened in the middle of the night rather than around noon the next day as he originally told an investigator with the Potter-Randall County Special Crimes Unit. He said he tried to change the time of the incident to keep his wife out of trouble. He said his wife was asleep when he and Guzman began arguing, and she left after he told her Guzman was dead.

Admits heroin addiction

A former funeral home maintenance man, Ramirez admitted to having a heroin addiction that became more expensive during the months he did business with Guzman. He said he obtained the drug from Guzman for his own use and also helped Guzman sell it to other users.

Ramirez said he met Guzman in the winter of 1984, and that Guzman was at his house nearly everyday and sometimes spent the night. "I thought he was my friend," Ramirez remarked more than once.

Ramirez was up watching television the night of the shooting, he told jurors, and he knew when Guzman knocked on his door about 1:30 a.m. that he was looking for the $600 Ramirez owed him for heroin. He said he had $2,000 which Guzman had recently paid him for a car, under his mattress but he wanted to spend that money on another vehicle.

"I told him I didn't have any money. I didn't want to pay him because I needed a car to go to work," Ramirez said.

According to Ramirez, Guzman became angry and told him he was going outside to lock his car. He told jurors Guzman returned with a sawed-off shotgun, which he pointed at Ramirez.

"I told him, wait a minute, put that up, I'll get you your money," Ramirez testified. "Then Lalo sat down and cocked the gun. I thought he was going to kill me."

Ramirez said he pretended to walk into the kitchen, then turned and grabbed the gun. "I didn't want to hurt him. I was just trying to get the gun away from him."

A struggle followed, during which Ramirez claimed the gun went off. He said his first thought was that Guzman's brothers would come after him, so he wrapped the body in a blanket and made ready to dispose of it.

Ramirez then told of driving the body in Guzman's car to the location north of Umbarger where it was found later that day. He testified about going to work the next day, then meeting his wife at the park and renting a motel room where they spent the night.

The next day, Friday, Ramirez was arrested after admitting to the killing.

Budget negotiators tentatively agree on farm program cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Budget negotiators for the White House and the Senate Republican leadership are turning to the "hot button" issues of education, defense and Social Security after reaching tentative agreement on a package of farm program cuts designed to save about $14 billion through 1988.

"They seem to have worked something out" on the controversial farm issue, Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., told reporters Tuesday evening. Other sources close to the talks confirmed the tentative agreement and said it would save slightly less than $3 billion from price supports, crop insurance and other farm programs next year, and an estimated $14 billion through 1988.

Several other sources stressed that the agreement was contingent upon completion of an overall deficit reduction package of $55 billion to $60 billion next year and roughly $300 billion over three years, including a sizeable cutback in President Reagan's defense buildup.

Even so, the apparent resolution of the farm issue was the first solid indication of progress since the Reagan administration and the Senate GOP leadership began an intensive effort last week to resolve their differences on a 1986 budget.

Without changes in spending — or a tax increase that Reagan has ruled out — deficits are projected at $230 billion next year.

Word of progress also came at a critical time in the secret talks, with Senate Republican Leader Robert Dole saying he intends to bring a deficit reduction plan to the Senate floor by April 22, even if no agreement is reached by then with the White House.

TUESDAY'S HIGH: 75 LOW: 41

OUTLOOK: Clear tonight with with temperatures in the low 40s. Sunny and breezy Wednesday with highs in the mid 60s.

Dole said the goal of the talks remains to come up with a package of spending cuts that "the White House can support and not just tacitly approve." But barring that, he said, "we'll do the best we can to get a fairly good consensus and then bring it up" on the floor of the Senate.

The farm proposal would cut $8 billion from federal farm price supports over three years, according to a source who asked not to be identified. Additional savings would

Arrest made for intoxication, shoplifting

Hereford police arrested a person for shoplifting Tuesday and also charged the subject for public intoxication.

Two suspicious vehicle reports were filed. One case involved some junior high girls who told police a person in a vehicle was watching them. In the other report, a woman said a suspicious person watched her and her daughter while in a park, then followed them home. The suspicious parties in both cases were gone when police arrived.

Theft reports were filed for some jewelry missing from a residence and a stolen license plate.

Looking to surprise an older friend or couple? You might arrange for a birthday or anniversary card from President Reagan. Birthday cards are limited to people 80 years and older, while anniversary cards will be sent only to those couples married 50 years or longer. Simply write Mrs. DeCain, Greeting Office, The White House, Washington, D.C. 20500. Be sure to allow her one month's notice.

If you've been keeping up with the controversy in our public school system and reading the "Letters to the Editor" expressing opinions as to the cause of the problems, you know why we're having a lively campaign among school board candidates. From our viewpoint, we think the problems started with the so-called school reforms of House Bill 72, which included some questionable mandates and created problems all across the state.

The situation was compounded locally by the implementation of a mastery learning program. Whether that program is good or bad, there is little doubt that the method of implementing it into our system has met with strong resistance. As most school board candidates have indicated, part of that problem was communications.

There are times when elected representatives, with good intentions, decide they know what is best for the public to know. Usually when that happens, communications goes out the window and well-made plans are resisted by a suspicious public. As a veteran reporter, we've seen a number of bond elections fail because the public was not informed.

Some administrators say teachers are afraid of the word "accountability" which has been introduced in the school reforms. Teachers, on the

Japan says U.S. tariffs discriminatory

TOKYO (AP) — Japan reacted sharply today to growing pressure in the U.S. Congress for retaliatory trade legislation, charging that a Senate committee vote for tariffs and quotas was discriminatory, and hastily dispatching a senior official to Washington.

Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone was quoted by the Kyodo news agency as saying Tuesday's vote in the Senate Finance Committee was "very severe," and that Japan must make efforts to prevent the United States from taking stern measures against Japan.

Good Garden Weather

Warm weather is a blessing for area gardeners, such as these Noon Kiwanis who are working on a triangle-shaped plot at U.S. 385 and Lee in the bottom photo. Lending a hand to city beautification are Bub Sparks, Larry Pennington and John Stagner. Another plot at Park Avenue and Lawton has been landscaped by the Golden K Kiwanis.

The Senate committee vote 12-4 for mandatory tariffs and quotas unless Japan further opens its markets to U.S. exports.

Also on Tuesday, the U.S. House of Representatives urged Reagan in a non-binding resolution approved by a vote of 394-19 to take "all appropriate action" to gain new markets for U.S. products.

Resolution sponsors said plans by Japanese auto makers to boost exports to the United States by 25 percent demanded a tough response.

Japan's Foreign Ministry issued a statement saying "the legislation that passed yesterday in the Senate Finance Committee is not only a discrimination against Japan, but a threat against the free trade system."

"We are strongly concerned with the bill. We strongly hope that this bill will not be enacted on behalf of U.S.-Japan relations and on global trade," it said.

The Senate committee action reflected the growing pressure within Congress to force Japan to drop barriers that have helped create a trade imbalance that grew to $36.8 billion in Japan's favor last year.

If approved by Congress, the measure would compel President Reagan to retaliate with tariffs and quotas unless he could obtain full compensation for alleged "unfair trade practices" by the Japanese.

Also today, Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe decided to send Deputy Minister for Foreign Affairs Reishi Teshima to Washington on Thursday to discuss the congressional action, a Foreign Ministry official said.

The official said Teshima would meet with members of Congress to explain Japan's efforts to open its markets.

Mesquite candidates dislike ratings

Blights city's reputation

MESQUITE, Texas (AP) — A group's grading of candidates on the basis of how much morality they're judged to have is a blight on the reputation of this southeast Dallas suburb, Mayor Brunhilde Nystrom says.

On a morality scale of 0 to 15, Ms. Nystrom was given a rating of 4.73, and her opponent in Saturday's city elections was given a 12.87. Two other candidates also got significantly higher ratings than their opponents.

The mayor and City Council candidate Steve Bennett, who also received low marks for morality, character and citizenship, said they doubt the evaluation, mailed community-wide, will influence voters. But they expressed concern about a small group's effect on the city's reputation.

"This just perpetuates Mesquite's image as a stupid, backward, one-horse town, and it isn't any of those things," Bennett told the Dallas Times Herald.

Ms. Nystrom calls the ratings "vindictive" punishment for her vote last year to liberalize liquor ordinances against the wishes of the city's religious leaders.

Ms. Nystrom's opponent in Saturday's election got a rating of 12.87. Bennett got a character rating of 6.66, but his opponent, Patt Deik, got a rating of 12.13 points.

Candidates received questionnaires two weeks ago from the "Intellivote Network" political action committee, with a cover letter from Mesquite resident John Guthrie. According to the letter, Guthrie planned to share the results with "friends and acquaintances."

The questionnaire asked candidates for a brief statement of their religious beliefs and a list of civic and religious group memberships. It also asked whether pornography, gambling and prostitution should be severely prohibited or restricted by law and whether homosexuals should be permitted to be hired as city employees.

Ms. Nystrom and two other council candidates said they never spoke to members of the group and refused to return the questionnaires.

William Brown, 36, one of the evaluators, said he and 14 other "conservative Christian men" used newspaper clippings and campaign literature to rate the candidates who declined to participate.

According to literature mailed with the evaluation results, "Intellivote's bedrock commitment is to honesty and impartiality in evaluation. The organization operates independently of any political party, or any preconceived prejudices, or any financial influences."

It adds that the group is rooted in "the Biblical concept that righteousness exalts a nation" and is devoted to the "Judeo-Christian principles upon which the nation was founded."

The mayor said, "I don't know why they want to impose their religious views on everybody else, but they seem intent on it."

The Rev. William Sipes of the North Mesquite Assembly of God Church told the Times Herald that several conservative congregations are informally allied with the In-

Mandatory sentencing for child molesters supported

AUSTIN (AP) — A woman who said she was molested for nine years as a child says she could support mass executions for those who sexually abused children.

Ramona Benson, a 31-year mother and student at Texas A&M University, supported a bill to force persons convicted of sexually abusing a child to serve at least one-third of their prison sentence.

"The problem is that I here today can speak for this bill but I would just as soon come and speak for mass executions," said Ms. Benson.

She appeared Tuesday at a news conference with Sen. J.E. "Buster"

Brown, R-Lake Jackson, and several women who presented two petitions to Brown.

One petition, with 2,405 names, called for mandatory prison sentences for child molesters. A petition with 1,060 names protested the early release from prison of man convicted of abuse of a 2½-year-old child in the Killen area.

Previously, a petition with over 7,500 names had been presented to Brown, who said Tuesday, "This is an area that the public is no longer going to tolerate."

Debbie Combs of Bryan-College Station said over half of the people convicted of child abuse are released on probation or "merely fined." She said 21 other states have mandatory sentencing in child abuse cases, which "tears at the moral society of America."

"These signatures make it clear that Texans prize their children's safety and security from the threat of sexual molestation, and they expect their Legislature to do everything possible to insure that protection," Ms. Combs said.

Prisoners make 'clean' escape

LINDEN, Texas (AP) — Three Cass County Jail prisoners made a clean escape after soaping themselves up and squeezing through a hacksawed vent cover, but one has surrendered, authorities said.

Two other escapees and a pickup truck taken shortly after the escape were still unaccounted for late Tuesday, deputies said.

Thomas Tucci, 37, of Easton, Pa., Martin Welchel, 21, and Donald Fincher, 22, both of Atlanta, Texas, escaped about 9:30 p.m. Monday, said Chief Deputy Ralph Allen.

Allen said the three prisoners apparently got a hacksaw blade and sawed through a vent in a dayroom and covered themselves with soap to slide through the narrow opening.

"It (the sawing) would have been over several days," he said. "They broke the fan part loose, pulled the blades back and soaped themselves up and went through."

Judge voids results from race

BRYAN, Texas (AP) — Because of a large number of contested ballots by Texas A&M students, a state district judge has voided the results of November's Brazos County sheriff's race and ordered candidates Howard Hill and Ronnie Miller to face each other a second time.

Judge Arthur Leshner of Houston would not comment after he ordered a second election Tuesday, but said in his order he found a enough illegal votes to change the outcome of the race that Miller won.

Miller's attorney, Chris Kling, says he will ask the Court of Civil Appeals in Houston to prohibit the county from calling another election — tentatively scheduled for Aug. 10 — until appeals have been exhausted.

Miller will remain in office in the meantime, the secretary of state's office said Tuesday.

Capital murder complaints filed

BROWNWOOD, Texas (AP) — Capital murder complaints filed against two suspects in the shotgun slaying of socialite Grace Beadel allege the victim's step-grandson promised to pay $10,000 to have his grandparents murdered.

Authorities filed the complaint late Saturday night with Justice of the Peace Joe Bob Morgan.

Lawmen allege the execution was planned by Michael Gillett and carried out by Gary Zachary in hopes Gillette "would gain a substantial sum of money from the estate" of wealthy businessman J.R. Beadel Sr. Gillett and Zachary are still at large, officials said.

Grace Beadel, 73, died to death within minutes after she was shot at close range March 18. She and her husband had answered their home's doorbell together when a gunman fired a shotgun through the screen door.

Beadel, 80, was slightly injured in the attack.

Dickie Thon may start

KISSIMMEE, Fla. (AP) — Houston Astros Manager Bob Lillis says he'll probably start Dickie Thon at shortstop in Tuesday's season opener against Los Angeles.

"Let's say it's more than likely," Lillis said. "He's certainly blossomed out in the last week to 10 days. He's eased a lot of doubts."

A starting assignment would be another significant step in the comeback by Thon, who was struck above his left eye by a pitched ball last April and missed the entire 1984 season.

When Thon first reported to spring training, there still were doubts about his ability to come back from the career-threatening injury. He struggled through three games in the Puerto Rican Winter League before deciding he wasn't ready to play.

But going into Tuesday's exhibition game against the Pittsburgh Pirates, Thon had erased many fears by hitting .379 with 22 hits on 58 at bats. Over the past 10 days, Thon hit at a .419 clip and has shown fielding improvement.

Murder suspect attempts escape

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A murder suspect who "should have been shackled so tight he could hardly breathe" was hospitalized under heavy guard today after an escape attempt in which he killed an attorney and wounded a bailiff, officials said.

Ronnie Lee Gardner was being taken to the Metropolitan Hall of Justice for a hearing on a first-degree murder charge when the state's key witness "walked up and handed him a gun," said Salt Lake County Sheriff Pete Hayward.

Gardner, 23, was shot in the shoulder by a prison guard before he opened fire and was surrounded and captured moments later in front of the downtown Metropolitan Hall of Justice, Hayward said.

"It appeared to be well-planned," he said, adding that a bag containing men's clothing was found under a sink in the women's basement restroom.

An unarmed woman arrested on foot a mile away and identified by Hayward as Darcy Perry, 34, was under arrest today and likely would face a capital homicide charge for slipping Garner the gun, Hayward said.

Inmates released from camp

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli soldiers released 752 inmates from a prison camp today as part of a plan to withdraw from southern Lebanon, Israel Radio said. Other soldiers and a convoy of armored vehicles raided a Shiite Moslem town near Tyre.

Timur Goksel, a spokesman for U.N. peacekeeping forces in southern Lebanon said an Israeli force entered the village of Teir Zebna 8½ miles east of Tyre, rounded up 300 men for questioning, and searched houses and shops.

He said Ghanaian soldiers from the U.N. force were present. Security forces, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said the Israeli force consisted of 200 soldiers and about 35 vehicles, including a bulldozer used in past raids to demolish houses where the Israelis claim they found weapons.

Israeli media said another 1,000 to 1,200 inmates of the Ansar prison camp were bused Tuesday to a new detention center inside Israel.

Hundreds die of cholera

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — At least 375 people, most of them children, have died in a cholera outbreak at a U.N. refugee camp in Somalia, a spokesman for the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees said.

Spokesman Leon Davico said Tuesday 481 cases were diagnosed by Monday at the Gannet camp, which shelters about 45,000 Ethiopians who fled their famine and conflict-stricken country.

He said 130 died on a single day, Monday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four months after a flame-suppressing fuel additive failed to prevent a huge fireball during the test crash of a jetliner, the government says the failure resulted from a quirk in the way the plane hit the ground and not necessarily the performance of the retardant.

The airlines, which have argued the additive is expensive and could interfere with engine performance, have cited the Federal Aviation Administration's test in the California desert last Dec. 1 as proof that the substance does not work.

The FAA was within weeks of proposing that the additive, known as AMK, be required by the airlines when the highly publicized test crash at Edwards Air Force Base caught embarrassed agency officials by surprise last Dec. 1.

FAA Administrator Donald Engen said Tuesday that the agency will continue to test AMK, but that no regulation would be pursued immediately.

the Killeen-Bell County area, said of early releases in child abuse cases, "We are telling the people of Texas that this is something that has to stop now."

"We cannot allow our children to be sexually molested and put them through the trauma they must go through to make the legal system work and then around and tell our children that this person is going to be released because this is what our lawmakers have done."

Ms. Benson, who said she had been abused by four relatives and a "total stranger" from the ages of 3 to 12, said, "I have no sympathy for them whatsoever ... because they did me great harm."

Brown was asked if he would seek increased state funding for psychiatric help for child molesters, and he responded, "I'm not going to include that in this bill simply because I want to pass this bill, and I don't want to mix the increased funding issue with what we're doing right here."

come from crop insurance programs and a phase-out of Farmers Home Administration direct lending programs.

FHA loan guarantees, a less costly way of providing government assistance, would increase as the direct lending program phased out by the end of the decade, the source said.

The proposal, if it remains unchanged, splits the difference between Reagan's original request for $26 billion in farm program cuts and the $2 billion figure in a plan approved by the GOP-controlled Senate Budget Committee.

At the same time, sources cautioned that that bargaining pattern might not hold as negotiators turn to other items. These sources, who insisted on anonymity, reported increasing sentiment inside the talks to accept Reagan's proposal to virtually wipe out the Small Business Administration and to eliminate the Amtrak subsidy rather than sharply curtail those programs, as the Budget Committee proposed.

With the farm issue at least tentatively resolved, negotiators said much of the discussion in the talks would center around "hot button" issues, a phrase they attributed to Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., to refer to divisive issues such as education, defense spending and Social Security.

"Tutorials, in-class suspension centers, and at-home instruction plans are not alternatives for

RAMIREZ

Ramirez told District Attorney Roland Saul that he melted the gun down at a friend's house. He said he used a cutting torch, but the friend later testified that his cutting torch was not at his house on Sept. 13 or 14.

Jurors next heard from Juan Luis Alizondo, who testified that Guzman was heavily addicted to heroin, was often violent and frequently carried firearms. During cross-examination it was discovered that Alizondo had been in the courtroom as a spectator both Monday and Tuesday.

Lesly told 22nd District Judge David Wesley Gulley that he was unaware Alizondo had attended any of the trial. He said the man approached him during a recess with evidence he felt would be useful to the defense. Gulley decided against declaring a mistrial but told Lesly the incident was "a very serious matter."

Jurors were told not to consider any of Alizondo's testimony and it was stricken from the record.

Other testimony during Tuesday's nine-hour session included prosecution witness from the Hereford Police Department, the FBI Crime Laboratory in Washington, D.C. and forensic pathologist Dr. Ralph Erdmann.

Erdmann told jurors he believed the shots were fired about three-and-a-half feet from Guzman's head if a sawed-off shotgun was used, father away if a long-barrel gun was the weapon.

Guzman's widow, Emma, also testified, telling jurors her husband and Ramirez were together at Olton the last time she saw her husband alive. She said she and their five children returned to their native Laredo several days before the shooting.

A Plainview man who once lived in Hereford and was working here last

"We have to ask ourselves, 'How effective is that fuel?'" Engen told the House Science and Technology aviation subcommittee.

Asked by Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., subcommittee chairman, whether he has ruled out a future role for AMK, Engen replied: "I certainly would not want to rule out anything."

The FAA chief said the test crash, using a remotely controlled Boeing 720 full of electronically monitored dummies, showed conclusively that AMK does not interfere with engine performance.

And, he said, although the fireball engulfed the plane, the additive "performed perfectly" as far as what could be expected under the circumstances of the crash. He said AMK reduced the intensity of the flames, which engulfed the plane within seconds of impact.

The FAA said the fireball erupted because of a fluke in the way the four-engine plane hit the ground.

It said the aircraft immediately angled to the left, causing a can opener-like cutter protruding from the ground to rip open the left in-board engine.

The engine and fuel lines were torn apart, releasing a large volume of fuel as well as other flammable fluids forward of the wing and resulting in a continuous source of ignition, the agency said.

Such destruction of an engine "probably occurs only in the rarest of accidents," and the source of ignition normally would be farther to the rear, it reported.

The test crash was designed to evaluate protection and survivability in the cabin during impact as well as test the anti-misting fuel additive.

Cablevision offering 20-hour schedule

Hereford Cablevision now offers the Arts and Entertainment Network on a full 20-hour daily schedule.

The Arts and Entertainment service will be from 7 a.m. until 3 p.m. on Channel 11-B. Previously the Arts and Entertainment Network was available from 7 p.m. until 3 a.m. on Channel 7-B after Nickelodeon. Nickelodeon will stay on Channel 7-B with no changes.

"Arts and Entertainment's exciting line-up of distinctive, high quality programming enhances our community's entertainment resources for the entire family," said Lloyd Ames, general manager of Hereford Cablevision.

Arts and Entertainment is carried to 12 million subscribers via 1,700 cable TV systems nationwide. Its programming includes dramatic and adventure series, witty comedy, classic movies, Broadway shows, musicals, dance and opera. It offers a show called "Discovery" every Sunday which focuses on the accomplishments of persons who have overwhelming obstacles.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:
I wonder if most of our county taxpayers have the same problem as I do trying to figure out why our hard earned tax money is squandered away so foolishly on trivial matters. The latest example is all the money spent on the Jerry Smith case or "whatever". So far, tens of thousands of our tax dollars have been spent on this one case, not to include what future expenditures will be involved.

As I understand it, the special prosecutors have on two occasions, tried to make the indictments against Mr. Smith stick but have been unable to. I have read that, in both cases the indictments were thrown out on a technicality—maybe so—but they have now had two opportunities to get their stories right but so far have failed, which leaves this reader to believe they really don't have any real evidence to begin with. Therefore, I say this—if they cannot gather evidence or true facts to try this case right—why in the world do they keep trying. Each and every time it takes more of our tax money. Why, though, would out of county lawyers and judges care about Deaf Smith County tax money and problems? So—I guess they will just keep on spending our money. As I understand, both Jerry Smith and Jim Bullard had requested to be heard by the Grand Jury in December of 1984 but were denied the opportunity to speak before them. I wonder—if they would have been given the opportunity, perhaps all of this could have been quashed right then and there.

I think it is high time for more of our good citizens to speak out against all the foolish expenditures of our tax dollars.

Dear editor:
Enclosed is my recipe for putting our town back on the positive footing that has been Hereford's trademark: INGREDIENTS: Take a Jimmy Witherspoon, a Clint Formby, a Gerald Mann, one Earnest Langley, one John Douglas Pitman, one Bill Gentry, one H.C. "Hank" Williams, one Myron Morgan, one Lewis Block, one Darrell Rose, one Carl McCaslin, one Harlan Vander Zee; SEASON WILL with: A Dyalthia Benson, one Marshall Formby, a Virgil Marsh, and a dash of Jimmie Gillentine and some Jack Renfro. SPRINKLE some: Howard Gault, Paul Stevens, Scat Russell, Jim Sears, some Paul Harvey and a little bit of Clete Corliss.

Take all of the above ingredients and blend well with some foresight, self sacrifice, hometown pride. Remove all doubts, differences, power struggles, all unnecessary criticism and distrust and personalities.

GARNISH this with optimism and respect and faith in our leaders and serve to our community with pride! The above were men of vision, "hell-bent for leather" types of individuals who forged ahead so that Hereford could evolve from a sleepy farm community to the progressive and exciting community that we have today.

Will the new recruits please answer roll call?

Why do they sell things three-for when you need only one-of?

Lunch-hour jogging in the business district is popular because chasing secretaries has gone out of favor.

The hospital auxiliary met Monday in the conference room for its monthly meeting.

Theda Seiver, president, conducted the meeting by opening it with a prayer. Karen Barela read the minutes of the last meeting due to the absence of the secretary, Bertha Dettmann.

Lupe Cerda, treasurer, gave the report for March. Selected for the nominating committee were Jane White, chairman, Helen Brown and Baxter London.

It was reported that the members gave 1,990 hours of their time the past year in addition to donating 13 reclining chairs to the hospital.

Kim Lapin was welcomed as a new member at the last monthly meeting. Letters were ready by the president pertaining to the convention to be in Dallas June 3-5, West Texas State University's "Weekend With Wellness," and Lifeline.

Members present were Grace Covington, Peg Hoff, Brown, Mary Williamson, Bonnie Sublett, Bea Hutson, Ann Stuidt, Barela, Cerda, Seiver, Olga Harris, London, White and Irene Reinart.

Machine wash down pillows

DEAR POLLY — How do you clean down pillows? My dry cleaner will not clean them. Can I wash them at home? If so, how? — PAIGE

DEAR PAIGE — Down pillows — or those filled with feathers, foam or polyester for that matter — can be machine washed easily. Washing two at a time works best. If you have a large capacity machine, you may be able to wash three at a time. Use the highest water setting. I use cold water with good results, but you may use a warm wash with a cold rinse if you like. Use only a minimum amount of detergent. If you use too much, it may not rinse out of the center of the pillow. After the washer has filled with water, you may want to shut it off, then push the pillows down under the water, since they have a tendency to float if not forced to absorb water. The pillows may be washed on the normal cycle, but you may want to use the delicate setting as a precaution (too vigorous agitation could cause some of the down or feathers to leak).

The pillows should be machine-dried. If you don't have a dryer, it's best to take them to a laundromat, since they will take forever to air dry. The pillows can be dried on normal heat. Remove the pillows from the dryer two or three times during the drying period to punch them up. This redistributes the stuffing, making drying more even and fluffing them. Or, you may put a couple of clean tennis shoes or tennis balls in the dryer with the pillows, which will have the same effect. Make sure the pillows are thoroughly dry before ending the drying period. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — We recently moved to a retirement home. Not wishing to put up anything using screws or nails, but badly in need of a towel holder, I placed a spring bar between two dish cabinets above the sink. Now I have a place for tea towels and a hand towel. — MRS. B.F.G.

Children's Display

From left, Eric and David Sims, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Sims, displayed their collection of miniature cars and trucks at the Deaf Smith County library Monday afternoon. The boys have been collecting the models almost all their lives. Eric is a fourth grader at Bluebonnet, and David is a first grader at Aikman. The collection will remain on display through April.

Ann Landers

Words of encouragement

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A recent column carried a letter from a bitter young man who advocated getting away from mentally ill or suicidal friends "before it's too late." Thank you for not condoning his advice.

I wrote to you a year ago after seeing a letter from a woman whose son had killed himself. I wanted to thank you for publishing that letter because I had been contemplating suicide for quite some time. It helped remind me of the people who would suffer if I carried out my plan. I chose to live and get therapy, which included antidepressant medication. Today I feel like a different person.

My life has been greatly enriched since people realize I have a mental illness. It was months before I could tell anyone, but once I did the reaction was amazing. Friends have been patient, supportive and honest, and I have learned of others who share my problem — people I never dreamed were suffering as I was.

I am so glad I decided to stay around and work at making my life better. How foolish it would have been to end it all while in a dark mood.

Please print my letter, Ann. Maybe it will help someone as that other chap's letter helped me.—BRIGHTER OUTLOOK IN THE ROCKIES

DEAR BRIGHTER: You found a new life through therapy and medication. Others can, too. Thanks for encouraging them to do so.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I started to write a letter to my uncle tonight and gave up because I couldn't spell the words I wanted to use to express myself. I am a high school graduate. I'm 32 now and feel the impact of not being able to spell correctly. I need help, but there is no one I can turn to because I'm ashamed of being so illiterate. It has held me back all my life.

Please tell everyone how important it is to learn the basics. Parents need to impress on their children the necessity of a good foundation. If kids don't learn the fundamentals, there will be nothing to build on. It's a terrible handicap not being able to write, or speak properly. I know, because I've—BEEEN THERE

DEAR B.T.: Your letter should be required reading for every third grade teacher, as well as every parent of an 8-year-old.

Students who fail to do satisfactory work in English should not, repeat NOT, be passed on to the next grade until remedial work is done and that student is able to meet the standard requirements.

Adults such as you, who feel inadequate because of semi-literacy, should not give up. There is too much at stake. The inability to read and write imposes a crippling disadvantage.

I checked with several educators in Illinois and was told by all that the self-taught method is the best for adults. Buy a good dictionary and some books on spelling and sentence structure. A person who is serious about educating himself or herself can improve writing and speaking skills enormously.

If it is possible to take some English courses in a community college or a junior college, by all means do so.

Ann Landers' booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," explains every aspect of sexual behavior—where to draw the line, how to say no, the various methods of contraception, the dangers of VD, the symptoms and where to get help. For a copy, send $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Spring revival scheduled

This service will be the only service of the day for the church. All members of the community are encouraged to come.

Employment opportunities available in engineering

A number of employment opportunities for professional electrical engineers exist with the Tulsa District, Corps of Engineers, Lt. Col. David L. Wooden, acting Commander, announced today.

The positions involve work in electrical design of buildings and electrical distribution systems and are located in the Tulsa headquarters office. A position of Electrical Test Engineer is also available at Fort Gibson, Okla.

These are Federal Civil Service positions GS-9 and GS-11 with starting annual salaries of $26,893 and $29,018.

Although no written test is required for these positions, minimum qualifications include a bachelor's degree in engineering and at least 2 years of professional engineering experience for the GS-9 level and 3 years of experience for GS-11. Applicants who have either an Engineer in Training or professional registration are preferred.

The Corps provides an excellent benefit package including paid holidays, a retirement plan, health and life insurance coverage, and vacation and sick leave programs. Selected individuals are also eligible for relocation allowances.

Those who meet the above qualification requirements should forward a resume to: Department of the Army, Tulsa District, Corps of Engineers, ATTENTION: Personal Office, Post Office Box 61, Tulsa, OK 74121-0061. For further information, call 918-581-7370.

Due to Federal regulations, U.S. citizenship is required.

Health Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D. Types of surgery

DR. LAMB — I am a 78-year-old female and have had a cataract for several years. It is now fairly well developed in one eye. The doctor says my eye is in good condition except for the cataract. I have heard that cataracts can be removed by a needle without removing the lens. Is that true? How safe is this procedure and how long do the results last?

DEAR READER — You must not fully understand what a cataract is. While there are several different procedures for removing a cataract, all of these involve removing the lens. A cataract is an opacification of the lens itself. You could say the cataract is the lens. In the early stages of a cataract, a small area of the lens might show the cloudy changes. However, as more and more of the lens becomes involved, the cataract is said to be mature. Whether a cataract affects your vision or not depends on how much of the lens is involved and if the area involved interferes with the transmission of vision to the more important areas of the retinal screen at the back of your eye.

You are probably referring to the phacoemulsification technique. This involves making a very small incision and destroying the lens with ultrasound waves. The lens fragments are then sucked out through the needle. Phacoemulsification is a good technique. The choice of surgery depends a lot on the condition of your eye and if you are going to have an implanted lens or not. More than 70 percent of cataract operations today involve replacing the lens with an implant inside the eye.

To update you cataracts and what can be done, I am sending you The Health Letter, Special Report 34, Cataracts. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My 77-year-old father has arthritis in his shoulders, hands and knees. Twice within a few years he was given a steroid shot, once in the shoulder for bursitis and once in the hip for pain. Some articles I have read link steroids to cancer. We hear of athletes taking these drugs for muscle and bone building and for masculinizing. Why would these steroids be given to arthritics for pain? A female arthritic surely would not want such a masculinizing medication.

DEAR READER — You are mixing apples and oranges. "Steroids" is a term used for several different hormones, including the female and male hormones and the hormones from the adrenal cortex (corticosterone). The latter are used in treating inflammation.

Bursitis and some forms of arthritis are inflammations. It is not unusual to use corticosteroid injections at least once to try to correct the problem. This steroid hormone does not have a masculinizing effect, nor will it build bone or muscle. It is not related to cancer in any way.

The anabolic steroids that athletes have abused are synthetic male hormones that stimulate growth. They have an "anabolic" function, which is the opposite of "metabolic," which tears down.

The side effects of some of these do produce some masculinization, but they also may suppress normal sperm-cell production. They always have been suspected of having the potential of causing liver cancer, and they can cause liver damage. This past year, one young weight lifter using these did die of liver cancer. However, they have nothing to do with the corticosteroid type of steroid used to treat arthritis or bursitis.

Planning behind is what you do to try to justify your failure to plan ahead.

"Parfum" is French for perfume that costs you about nine dollars a dram less without the fancy name.

Sutton replaces Hall

Hog boss goes to Kentucky

By ANNE S. CROWLEY Associated Press Writer

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Eddie Sutton says he "would have crawled all the way to Lexington" for a shot at being University of Kentucky basketball coach. So when the Wildcats called, Sutton jumped.

Sutton, who two weeks ago told the Arkansas Legislature he wanted to retire with the Razorbacks, took charge Tuesday of Kentucky's Wildcats, winning unanimous approval as successor to Joe B. Hall.

Sutton, 49, boosted Arkansas from the basement to the top of the Southwest Conference since 1975, capping his career with a string of nine 20-win seasons and trips to the NCAA Tournament.

"They couldn't get Bobby (Knight) or Dean (Smith) or Denny (Crum) or John (Thompson), so I guess I was next on the list," Sutton joked, referring, respectively, to the coaches of Indiana, North Carolina, Louisville and Georgetown.

"All my life, I have grown to the point where this is where I belong," he told about 150 reporters, Kentucky administrators and trustees and members of the Athletics Association board. "This is where I want to be."

Sutton said the selection committee, headed by Kentucky Athletic Director Cliff Hagan and President Otis Singletary, contacted him Monday. Before Georgetown and Villanova tipped off for the NCAA title in Rupp Arena Monday night, he said, it was all wrapped up except for Tuesday's vote by the Athletics Association board.

"When Dr. Singletary called me, believe me, I would have crawled all the way to Lexington," said Sutton, sporting a Wildcat necktie.

"Fortunately, I was already here for the Final Four... If you had seen the smile on my face (Monday night) at the game, you would have known. This is the No. 1 coaching job in America, and that includes the NBA."

Sutton, who coached five years at Creighton before going to Arkansas, started out at Arkansas with 17-9 and 19-9 seasons. His 1978 Razorbacks were 32-4, losing 64-59 in the 1978 NCAA semifinals in St. Louis to Hall's only national champions. The schools haven't met since, reportedly one of the search committee's criteria. It wanted a coach whose team was not a Wildcat opponent.

Sutton, AP's national coach of the year in 1978, forged a record of 260-75, and his Razorbacks won or shared five league titles and finished second four more times. Like at Kentucky, Arkansas basketball games have for years been sold out at home before the season began.

'Move against underdogs'

Tourney to adopt clock

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

Villanova's gallant overachievers sprung one swell April Fool's joke on powerful Georgetown the other night, but it was nothing compared to the knee-slapper college basketball's Rules Committee has pulled on the entire sport.

On the day after one of the greatest upsets in the game's history, the rulesmakers decided to move against future underdogs with legislation that will make Villanova-type stunners more difficult to achieve.

And the irony is that it was done with the approval of the population most effected — the college coaches.

Armed with survey results supporting the move, the NCAA has put the clock in the college game, which is about the last thing the sport needed. Now a team will be forced to shoot within 45 seconds of possession, with no option for other strategies.

The stall is gone. Taking the air out of the ball to keep a racehorse team from running up and down the court on you is no longer a coaching option. Now, you must shoot the ball, whether you want to or not.

Rollie Massimino, coach of victorious Villanova, thought the Wildcats might have subdued mighty Georgetown in either of their earlier confrontations this season had it not been for the Big East Conference clock, which forced his team to take shots it didn't particularly want.

In Monday night's no-clock tournament game, the option was all Villanova's and Massimino's court-smart kids made the most of it.

The intent of the rule change adopted Tuesday is to eliminate the farce game where a team in over its head simply holds on to the ball to keep it away from the other guys. The flip side of that action, however, is to deprive underdogs from whatever slim chance they might have to control their own destiny against powerhouses.

Villanova was the perfect example. The Wildcats did not freeze the ball on Georgetown. They simply controlled the tempo, shooting when they wanted to, being selective on the shots they attempted. Had they been forced to fire within the confines of the clock, you can be sure they would have had a much more difficult time achieving that astounding 78.6 percent accuracy.

With under two minutes remaining in the first half and Georgetown clinging to a one-point lead, Villanova's slick point guard, Gary McLain, motioned to his teammates to spread the court. The Wildcats went for one last shot, controlled the ball, and made the basket. It was thinking man's basketball.

With three minutes left in the game and leading by a point, Georgetown tried the same spread strategy. It backfired with a turnover. Had John Thompson gone to the delay too soon?

"I'd have gone with nine minutes to go," said the Georgetown coach, "if it meant I could get them out of their zone."

It was point and counterpoint, like a chess game. That is part of the beauty of basketball. Forcing the action with a clock robs the game of that quality.

The rules committee did not rush into this, though. Dr. Ed Steitz, athletic director at Springfield College and editor of the rules manual, conducted an extensive survey of various populations concerned with the game. The results supported the clock.

NBA roundup

Lakers can win in Denver, too

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer

The runniest-gunningest teams in basketball took turns doing what they do best, and when it was over the Los Angeles Lakers left Denver with a victory, something no one else had done in nearly three months.

The Lakers, trailing 86-84 after the Nuggets outscored them 36-26 in the third quarter, revved up their own running game in the final period, outscoring Denver 34-18 Tuesday night to pull away to a 118-104 National Basketball Association victory. The triumph snapped a 20-game home winning streak for Denver, dating back to Jan. 5.

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was

Milwaukee 109, Boston 103; Cleveland 122, Washington 107; Detroit 124, Indiana 121; Philadelphia 102, Atlanta 91; Chicago 108, New Jersey 94; Phoenix 119, Seattle 109; Dallas 127, Golden State 121 and Portland 127, Houston 113.

Bucks 109, Celtics 103
Milwaukee stopped Boston from becoming the first team in NBA history to make it through the season without ever suffering consecutive losses.

Sidney Moncrief, Terry Cummings and Paul Pressey scored 18 points each for the Bucks.

Kevin McHale had 25 points and Robert Parish 24 for the Celtics, who played without injured starters

Larry Bird and Danny Ainge. Boston, which had lost its previous game to Detroit on Sunday, still has the best record in the league at 59-16. Suns 119, Sonics 109

Phoenix, whose playoff berth was threatened when it lost nine of its previous 10 games, handed Seattle its seventh straight loss.

Alvan Adams scored 13 of his 28 points and Mike Sanders nine of his career-high 19 in the fourth period for the Suns, who now lead Kansas City by 2½ games in the race for the Western Conference's final playoff spot.

Bulls 108, Nets 94
Chicago tightened the race for fifth place in the Eastern Conference behind Michael Jordan's 31 points against New Jersey.

The Bulls now trail the Nets by one game and fifth-place Washington by 1½.

Cavaliers 122, Bullets 107
Cleveland beat Washington for its fourth straight victory and extended its lead over Atlanta to 2½ games in the race for the final Eastern Conference playoff spot.

World B. Free scored 13 of his 32 points in the third quarter. 76ers 102, Hawks 91

Philadelphia damaged Atlanta's playoff hopes as forward George Johnson hit eight of his 20 points while the 76ers held the Hawks to three points in the first 6:12 of the fourth period.

Moses Malone had 22 points and 14 rebounds and Charles Barkley 21 points and 15 rebounds for the 76ers. The Hawks, who trailed only 77-74

District 3-5A baseball

Ponies stampede past Herd

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor

The Hereford Whitefaces continued their almost hitless ways Tuesday while the Coronado Mustangs made the most of the middle innings to defeat the Herd, 12-2.

Hereford managed just five hits over the seven-inning District 3-5A affair and saw its loop record drop to 1-5. The Whitefaces recorded no hits in the second, third, fourth and sixth innings.

Hereford now sports an overall record of 4-7.

Losing pitcher Sammy Suarez, now 2-3, worked out of a near disaster in the first inning to hold the Mustangs scoreless. However, the Lubbock team crossed the plate twice in the second, three times in the third, five times in the fourth and once in the fifth en route to the romp.

The Ponies managed another run in the seventh for their final total.

"It's nice to finally just win one," said Coronado coach John Dudley, whose team now is 1-4 in league play, 4-10 overall. "We have really struggled this year, but I'm proud of our defense and just pleased with the way we played today."

Dudley added that his team had almost "looked for ways to lose this year." It was the Whitefaces, however, who could do little to win Tuesday.

After CHS's Phillip Belliveau grounded out to second baseman Mike Scott to open the game, Dale Simpson reached on an error and didn't stop until he was a third base, the result of another error.

However, he later was thrown out stealing home.

Hereford, in its half of the inning, picked up two hits from the first two batters. Paul Maes was thrown out stealing second, however, and Stefan Hacker was forced at second on a fielder's choice.

"We're in a rut," said Hereford coach Don Long. "We know we're in a rut, and everybody's pressing trying to get us out. We just can't seem to get it together."

"The players try as hard as they can, there's a lot of talent on the team, but I can't figure it out."

The Whitefaces on Monday were held to just one hit, losing to Tascosa, 7-2.

Simpson scored four times on just two hits for Coronado to lead the assault. David Rodriguez, now 3-2, recorded the win for the Mustangs, striking out three and walking two.

For Hereford, Chad Stephan came on in relief of Suarez in the fourth. Suarez gave up nine total runs, eight of them earned, struck out three and walked three. Stephan allowed three runs, two of those earned.

Stephan struck out four and walked four. He also threw three wild pitches.

Keith Herrera, a courtesy runner for Stephan, scored once. Kurt Simon scored Hereford's other run.

Monterey is in town Friday for a single game beginning at 1 p.m. The Plainsmen lead the district with a mark of 5-0. Overall, Monterey is 15-1.

Other games in District 3-5A saw Monterey defeating Caprock 4-0, Lubbock beating Tascosa 6-2 and Plainview beating Palo Duro 8-7.

Doug Flutie needs help

NEW YORK (AP) — United States Football League owners will be confronted at their next meeting with another one of those off-the-field squabbles they seem to face so often — a request that they help Donald Trump and the New Jersey Generals pay Doug Flutie's multi-million-dollar salary.

USFL Commissioner Harry Usher confirmed Tuesday that he had received from Trump and disbursed to the league's other teams a letter asking that they share the burden of Flutie's $8.3-million, six-year contract. Trump's reasoning, Usher said, was that other owners had urged him to go all-out to sign the Heisman Trophy-winning quarterback from Boston College for the good of the league.

Head First

Hereford's Paul Maes, a designated hitter, makes a head-first slide into first base during first-inning action Tuesday at Whiteface Field. Coronado's Scott Smyer holds up a hand to prevent a throw. Maes later was caught stealing second base on this turn at bat, but managed three hits in four tries off Coronado pitching.

NBA

entering into the final quarter, were led by Dominique Wilkins with 14 points.

Pistons 124, Pacers 121

Isiah Thomas had 29 points and 17 assists as Detroit won a fight-marred game with Indiana, which lost its 11th straight.

Earl Cureton of the Pistons and Steve Stipanovich of the Pacers were ejected after the second of two elbowing incidents involving Cureton in the fourth quarter.

Trail Blazers 127, Rockets 113

Clyde Drexler scored 33 points and Kiki Vandeweghe added 10 of his 24 in the pivotal fourth quarter to lead Portland past Houston.

The Rockets, who got 23 points and 15 rebounds from Akeem Oluajuwon and 22 points and 11 rebounds from Ralph Sampson, trailed only 98-93 after three periods. But the Trail Blazers outscored Houston 29-20 in the final 12 minutes, including 11-0 at one stretch.

Mavericks 127, Warriors 121

Mark Aguirre scored 41 points, his fifth time at the 40 mark this season, to carry Dallas over Golden State.

The Warriors got 33 points from Purvis Short.

Camp Fire bean supper scheduled April 12

To kick-off the Camp Fire Supporting Membership Drive currently underway, a bean supper is scheduled from 5 to 8:30 p.m. Friday, April 12, at the Hereford High School cafeteria. The event is being sponsored by CF board of directors.

Tickets are priced at $3 for adults and $2 for children 12 and under. They may be purchased from board and Camp Fire members at the CF office and at the door.

The menu will consist of beans, cornbread, cobbler and all the trimmings.

The supper is being held to raise money for new programs, support on-going programs, to expand new areas of concern such as the "I'm Safe I'm Sure" program and to promote educational skills as well as skills for day to day living.

Holy Week observance to begin at St. Thomas Church

Father Charles Threewit of St. Thomas Episcopal Church announces that the church's principal observances of Holy Week will begin with Footwashing and Holy Eucharist on Maundy Thursday at 7 p.m.

The Watch of Gethsemane will follow before the Altar of Repose until 12 noon on Good Friday, at which time the Watch of Golgotha will begin. This traditional Good Friday service will last until 1 p.m., timed especially to allow workers to attend during their lunch hour.

At 4 p.m. the children will walk the Way of the Cross, stopping at each of the 14 Stations for devotions. The Stations which adorn the walls of St. Thomas were made as a gift to Father Threewit by an art class in a federal prison made up of convicted murder serving life sentences.

At 6:30 p.m. the Good Friday Liturgy and the Way of the Cross will be celebrated.

Marker scheduled to be unveiled

A Texas Historical Marker for the Summerfield-Dameron Corner will be unveiled Sunday, April 14, at 2:30 p.m. on Highway 86 five miles east of Dimmitt.

This corner has been important in the world of surveying since 1876 when John Summerfield built an earth monument eight feet across and three feet high as a survey site. It became a beginning point not only for surveys in Castro County, but for the counties of Deaf Smith, Swisher, Hale, Randall and other Panhandle counties.

W.B. Dameron, who owned the land where the monument had been built, set a corner post in the center of the monument in 1893 when he fenced the section.

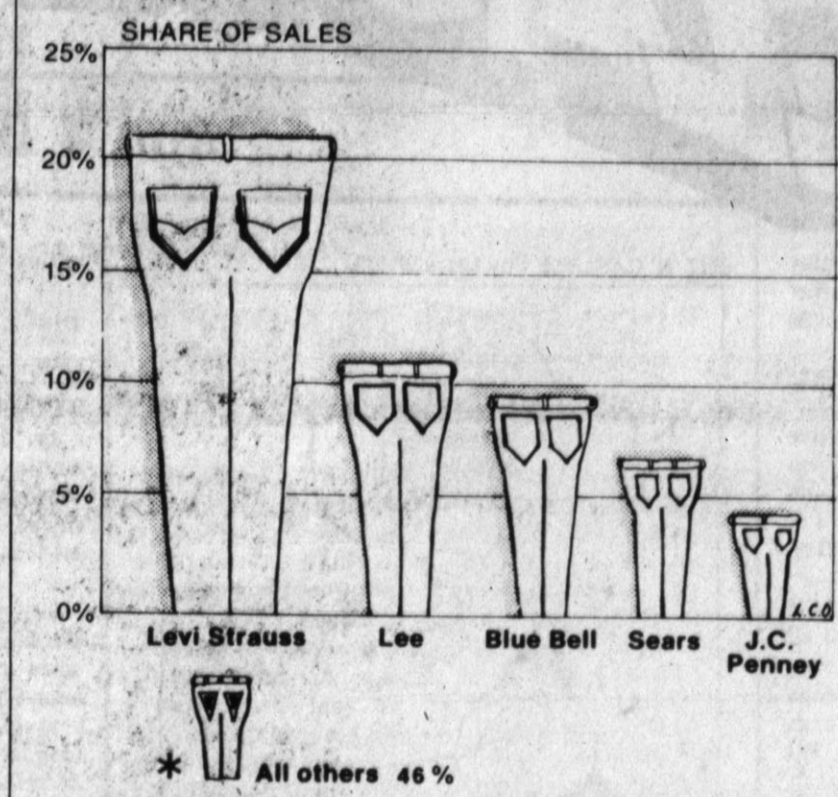

In 1925, when the mound was almost eroded away by wind and rain, and trampled down by cattle, a group of Castro County citizens placed a three foot high concrete monument, with a marble slab imbedded in the top stating the significance of the site, where the post had been. Roger Haberer placed his hand print in the wet concrete.

In 1958, a road was proposed in the area so the marker with the plate was buried below ground level to allow the road to be built. Today there is nothing to see at the site, but the "Summerfield Hub" has been preserved through the years in this way.

It's chicken's biggest week

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The Easter bunny gets the credit, but the nation's hens are the ones laying the millions of eggs that will be painted and placed in baskets or tucked away in hiding places in yards and parks Sunday.

With one Easter egg hunt by itself accounting for 60,000 eggs, the week is the biggest of the year for egg producers.

Egg City of Arkansas, which sells eggs to 600 stores in 16 states, will nearly double its normal sales this week, sales manager Carolyn DeVenney said by telephone Monday.

The Hope, Ark., company normally sells 1.4 million eggs a week, she said, but this week expects volume to reach to 2.7 million.

It doesn't matter that hens can't double their output of eggs for that week, said Don Allen, executive vice president of the Arkansas Poultry Federation. "There's always an oversupply of eggs," he said.

Nationwide, Allen said, egg producers can cover the demand during the spring holiday. But doing so means fewer eggs for "egg-breakers," businesses that mix eggs with other ingredients to make products such as cake mixes, Allen said.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Arkansas, California, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Georgia and Florida produce more than one-third of the eggs consumed in the country. The national output in 1983 totaled more than 68 billion egghe USDA said.

Al Pope, president of United Egg Producers of Decatur, Ga., a promotional organization, said the industry generates $3 billion a year.

But it runs into problems after Easter.

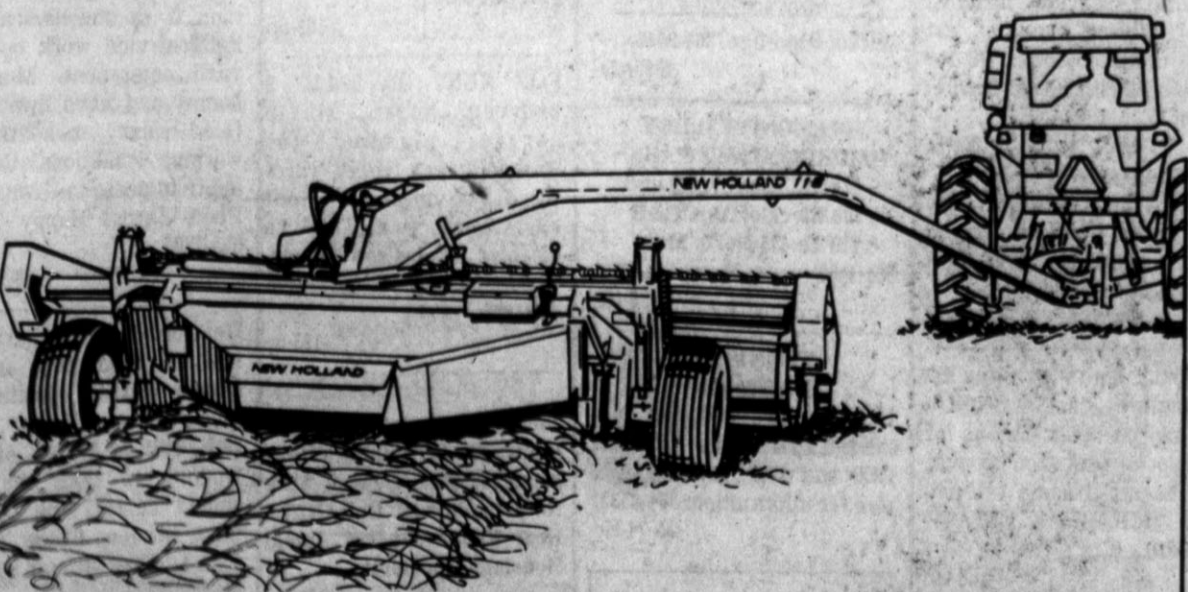

"You can't turn the hens off like a spigot," he said. "Traditionally, the egg market takes a nosedive after Easter for six to eight weeks."

The American Egg Board in Washington — a promotional and research group — has designated the week after Easter as National Egg Salad Week in an effort to inspire people to eat all the eggs they have decorated, hidden and found.

Feathers foul jet engines

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Air Force workmen were preparing early today to haul away a training jet that glided to a "miraculous" landing after a flock of birds stifled its engines and forced the crew to bail out, officials said.

The T-38A Talon trainer skidded across Texas Highway 281 and into a field about three miles from downtown at about 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, according to Sgt. Jerry Hopkins of the Texas Department of Public Safety.

"It was miraculous that nobody was hurt because there was a lot of traffic," Hopkins said. "But nothing besides a highway sign was even damaged."

He said the jet itself was hardly damaged, he said and that "it looks like you could pick it up with a hook and haul it away. That's what they're going to do later."

The jet's engines apparently sucked in a flock of birds and immediately cut off in mid-air, said Master Sgt. Tom Sargent, a Sheppard Air Force Base spokesman. He said the cause of the crash was still under investigation.

After the two-man crew ejected safely, the jet glided in at a shallow angle, skidded across four lanes of highway and landed about 50 yards from the road in front of a manufacturing plant, Hopkins said.

Sargent identified the two crewmen as USAF 1st Lt. Gerald P. Green and West German Navy Ensign Manfred Streibel, who were both in good condition in Sheppard Regional Hospital.

Witnesses told police they heard a "boom" and then saw parachutes pop open, and Hopkins said the pilots stayed with it as long as they could to try and steer for an uninhabited area.

TOUGHER ON YELLOW NUTSEDGE

Dual® controls yellow nutsedge - at the same low rate it takes to control annual grasses.

Whether you grow corn sorghum, cotton, potatoes, or peanuts, Dual gives you the best control of nutsedge. And Dual gives you longer control of annual grasses than other "nutsedge" herbicides.

If you have yellow nutsedge - you'll get better control with Dual.

For more information contact your local chemical dealer or Joe Neumann at 806-655-9735.

'Baking oven' renews interest in whole-body heat treatment of cancer

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Putting patients in a fancy "baking oven" to help kill cancer cells proved safe in preliminary studies, renewing interest in the once-risky process of heating the entire body instead of just tumors, researchers say.

By heating the whole body, along with radiation or chemotherapy, it is possible to attack cancers that have spread throughout the body — something that can't be done when heat is applied with electrodes only to localized tumors, according to Dr. H. Ian Robins of the University of Wisconsin.

Earlier efforts to utilize whole-body heat through baths of water or wax or by putting a person in space suit-like heating devices fell from favor several years ago because it was hard to avoid overheating that caused harmful side effects and death.

"We reasoned that a radiant heat system — the kind of heat we get from the sun or a light bulb — might solve our problems," Robins said Tuesday during the American Cancer Society's annual science writers' seminar.

So Robins and Enthermics Inc. of Menomonee Falls, Wis., developed the oven — which looks like an iron lung machine and is called a "radiant heat device" — to allow precise control of body temperature.

He said the device has been used more than 160 times on about 30 patients without causing death and the other adverse side effects of previous whole-body heating methods, which included heart failure, abnormal heart rhythm, nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, nerve damage, strokes, seizures, bleeding, burns and sores.

The preliminary studies, approved by the Food and Drug Administration and funded by the National Cancer Institute, were aimed only at proving the device's safety. Large-scale studies at eight medical centers are planned to determine if the technique, coupled with radiation or chemotherapy, actually improves survival for cancer patients, Robins said.

One preliminary study of 12 patients with certain blood cancers found cancers regressed in three and were arrested in five when heat was coupled with chemotherapy, and regressed in two others when heat was coupled with radiation, he said. Two patients didn't benefit from the technique.

The technique also is cheaper, faster and simpler than other whole-body heating methods. It takes eight minutes to prepare a patient before technicians "roll them into the baking oven," said Vanderbilt University's Dr. Benjamin Byrd Jr., who believes Robins' method will renew interest in heat therapy.

While there is unequivocal evidence that heat can kill some cancer cells, no single type of treatment can kill all types, so heat must be used with radiation or chemotherapy, Robins said. He added that there is evidence heat amplifies the beneficial effect of radiation and drugs.

Newspaper Bible

You have no right to criticize your brother or look down on him. Remember, each of us will stand personally before the Judgment Seat of God. For it is written, "As I live," says the Lord, "every knee shall bow to me and every tongue confess to God." Yes, each of us will give an account of himself to God.

So don't criticize each other any more. Try instead to live in such a way that you will never make your brother stumble by letting him see you doing something he thinks is wrong.

As for myself, I am perfectly sure on the authority of the Lord Jesus that there is nothing really wrong with eating meat that has been offered to idols. But if someone believes it is wrong, then he shouldn't do it because for him it is wrong. And if your brother is bothered by what you eat, you are not acting in love if you go ahead and eat it.

NOT BANKING ON IT

Plant turns garbage to energy

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — They come from Los Angeles and New York, from Canada and Germany, to see this city's 13-year-old trash-to-steam plant, hoping to find how to dispose of their own city's garbage.

"I should start charging, as an additional revenue source, for tours," Mayor Stephen Reed said, jokingly, of the two-furnace facility.

The plant, located on a knoll on the south side of town, can burn 740 tons of garbage daily, the amount that would be produced by a city of 423,000. Harrisburg itself has a population of about 55,000.

The heat produces steam that is sold for revenue. One day officials hope the plant will generate electricity, too.

"We're going to see a good many of the plants built in this country during the rest of this century," said Charles Johnson, technical director of the National Solid Wastes Management Association in Washington.

Although less than 5 percent of the nation's trash is now hauled to such plants, they could be handling 25 percent of the country's garbage within 10 years while landfill space continues to diminish, he said.

Getting rid of trash is becoming an acute problem in many communities. In Pennsylvania alone the number of operating landfills has plummeted from more than 1,000 in 1970 to about 115 today. Sites close when they reach capacity or do not meet regulations. New landfills are often blocked by opposition from local residents.

"We are, in fact, promoting trash to steam," said David Mashek, a Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources spokesman. "They will probably increase in importance in future years." Trash-powered facilities are being planned in some suburban Philadelphia counties and in Erie, he said.

The city-run plant in Harrisburg is "sort of a pioneer" that has become "rather famous," Johnson said. It is one of about 12 large trash-to-steam plants in the United States that burn more than 500 tons of waste daily.

Trucks pull up to the facility and dump cereal boxes, beer bottles, busted toilet seats and all the other elements of household garbage into a 30-foot deep pit, with refuse spilling over into a holding room.

A grapple lifts the garbage, a ton at a time, and puts it in furnaces heated to 1,800 degrees. Steam produced by the burning material is sent through pipes to the center city. Unused steam is vented at the plant, billowing around the building. The process is not entirely clean — a thick layer of dust settles on metal walkways in the heart of the plant.

For years, money earned from steam sales and dumping charges did not cover operating expenses. The city typically spent $1 million to $2 million annually to subsidize the operation.

Still, Mayor Reed noted that without the plant the city "would have been paying through the nose" to discard its trash.

Harrisburg had previously dumped its garbage in landfills, open dumps, swine farms and a 40-year-old incinerator. City officials now are confident the plant will be a money maker. Reed believes it will go "from our major loss leader to our major profit center."

Clay can transfer energy

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — The theory that life arose from a chemical soup in the oceans is being challenged by scientists who have found evidence that a common clay possesses basic properties essential to the generation of life.

"The functional attributes that we associate with life are not necessarily confined to organic systems," said Lelia Coyne, a San Jose State University chemist who led the research team.

The researchers have verified that clay can store and transfer energy, which would allow it to act as a chemical factory for the generation of life, they told a symposium Tuesday at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Ames Research Center.

The "clay-life theory" first proposed in the 1960s by chemist Graham Cairns-Smith of the University of Glasgow, challenges the long-favored notion that life emerged from the primordial oceans after millions of years of chemical reactions between simple organic molecules.

It also is reminiscent of the Bible's account of the Creation in Genesis, which says, "And the Lord God formed man of dust of the ground," and refers to it commonly as clay.
