County Funds Are Higher; Court Lauded

Howard county funds on hand are up $14,952.18 as compared with a year ago. County Treasurer Claud Wolf reported to commis-

"Dive Bombing" mosquitoes—"Four Motor" flies—are just two of the insect-enemies that wage war on our soldiers on many battlefronts... and two reasons why the army uses such vast quantities of FLIT and our other insecticides.

For these super-slayers kill many vicious foreign pests just as they mow down household insects here at home!

ioners in session Monday. His report commended the court for the splendid manner in which it has handled the financial affairs of the county during the past twelve months.

The August report also recommended that since there is not enough money in the officers salary fund to take care of salaries for the month of September, a transfer of $3,000 from the general fund to the officers salary fund be made.

Fund accounts as of September 11th, 1943, compared with September 10th, 1942, showed that last year securities owned by Howard county interest and sinking fund was $4,000. During 1943 $2,000 was collected and $16,600 in securities were bought to bring the total cash and securities to $102,912.27. This compared with last year's $67,960.09.

Actual status of funds as of September 11th this year shows $8,788.64 in the jury fund; $41,212.28 in the road and bridge fund; and $19,608.93 in the general fund.

Officer's salary fund balance is $2,585.50 permanent improvement, $1,069.25; road refunding bond, $3,081.84; and special road bond, $5,276.69. The courthouse and jail warrants balance is $843.40 and warrants balance is $843.40 and make a total balance of $84,312.27.

A breakdown of expenditures by funds shows road and bridge funds spent $6,811.12. General fund expenditures amounted to $1,819.43 with $237.39 going for medical fees and hospitalization and $88.70 for pauper burials.

Officers salary fund expenditures amounted to $3,057.57 and jury fund $324.55. Permanent improvement fund was $104.05 and interest and sinking fund $65.00. Total checks issued during August were $12,181.72.

Book Issued A Year Ago Today Philips' 'Big Spring' Has Brought Comment From All Over The World

That book that Shine Phillips wrote—"Big Spring, The Casual Biography of a Prairie Town"—does the funniest things.

It started out as a time-killer for Phillips during his convalescent period following surgery. Later he was passing it around to entertain friends in hospitals and other shut-ins. It fell into the hands of a publishing house agent and ended up as a book which had its publication a year ago today.

Now "Big Spring" has been turned into an instrument for buying bonds, for Phillips is taking all revenue from it and matching it in war bond purchases.

Since the book first left Prentice-Hall, Inc., it has fanned out all over the globe. In bulging files of "fan" mail, Phillips has had letters telling of how it has been read and enjoyed in almost every state in the union and in England, Australia, Costa Rica, North Africa, Mexico, Hawaii, the Aleutians, and the seven seas.

Service Men
He has letters from people in all walks of life—college presidents, celebrities, bank presidents, old cowpunchers, school teachers, soldiers, sailors, and a world of "homesick" West Texans.

"You said in the back of the book for everybody who read it to come by Big Spring and visit you," wrote a marine aboard a hospital ship. "When I get back to the states and get fixed up with a couple of legs to take the place of the ones I lost on Guadalcanal, I'm going to take you up on that."

One stalwart in the merchant marine delivered his message in person. Home on leave to visit his family in Lamesa, he stopped in Shine Phillips' drug store.

"That damn book of yours almost cost me my life," he complained. "We got torpedoed in the Atlantic, and when we got orders to abandon ship, I happened to think of the book. I ran back to get it and nearly got drowned before I got out."

As a result of the book, the bald-headed druggist has struck up some interesting friendships.

One was with the late Dr. William Lyons Phelps, beloved Yale professor and man of letters, who was one of the most avid boosters for the book. He signed his notes to Phillips—"affectionately, Billy."

Among many others is the Rev. T. Mosier of the Oblate Fathers. The padre gets around and always writes whenever he settles down. He has developed a passion, too, for sending stamp covers from all manner of countries to Phillips.

Collectors and amateur historians have written him by the dozens, and one wanted Phillips to share with him his joy over having secured a bow which belonged to Geronimo, the cruel Indian chief who loved pale faces only when they were dead.

Requests For Advice
Several have written wanting his advice on stories and books which they were preparing. Others offered him "cuts" on their profits as a collaborator. Some flooded him with poetry. Not a few passed a quick complaint to end up trying to sell something.

Army chaplains have written to express appreciation for the book. One Jewish chaplain was impressed because it gave dignity to Jewish merchants "who have been the butt of jokes since Abraham's day."

"Cousin" Nat Patton, member of congress from Texas, addressed his letter to "Cousin" Shine. Congressman George Mahon became an envoy in Washington for the book.

Clippings of reviews—many of them sent in from remote spots by Big Springers who had strayed all over the American pasture—are sprinkled in the Phillips file. There are critics' notices from the New York Times, New York World and other Gotham papers, the Philadelphia Leader, and a flock from Texas papers such as the Dallas News, Fort Worth Star-Telegram, Houston Chronicle, San Antonio Express and many others. "Big Spring" drew write-ups in more trade journals than Phillips knew were printed.

Turns Lecturer
It was natural, therefore, that the author should become a reviewer and lecturer in his own right. He has had calls for dozens of appearances and made several "tours" including swings to Fort Worth, Dallas, Houston, Galveston, San Antonio, San Angelo, Denton, and a host of cities in this area. This week he turns speaker when he addresses the graduating class of the Big Spring Bombardier School.

Today the manuscript of the book is an object of curiosity in the Texas collection of the Texas Folk Lore Society at the University of Texas library. Phillips, incidentally, has been made a member of the Texas Historical Society.

Two persons who had a hand in seeing "Big Spring" through to a happy birth are among its supporters. Margaret Cousins, Texas authoress who helped touch up the manuscript writes frequently, and Jerry Bywaters, Dallas artist who sketched the illustrations, said he hoped "it goes into 50 printings and you can buy a ranch to retire on (and let me spend my summers with you)."

Just how many copies have been printed and sold, not even Phillips knows. It is now in its sixth printing—but a printing (so he has been told) ranges anywhere from 3,500 to 5,000 copies. "Big Spring" seems to be a long distance runner as books go, for although it has been among the best seller lists, it still is selling at a steady rate. There's no telling how long it will go right on selling.

Answer these three Questions and make a good laxative choice
Ques. Are all laxatives alike? Ans. Certainly not. Ques. Are all laxatives herbal laxatives? Ans. No, some are saline, emollient, etc. Ques. Is Black-Draught herbal? Ans. Yes, purely herbal—totally astislaxative and thorough if directions are followed. Black-Draught has been a best-seller all over the Southwest with four generations. 25 to 40 doses only 25c. Perhaps a note from E. H. Vrinstool of Hollywood explains why. "It takes me back to my home town in western New York 60 years ago," he wrote. "You have described everything as I saw it in my childhood days." Soldiers at the Big Spring Bombardier School are giving it a current slant. They snatch "Big Spring" up like hotcakes as a best memento possible of their stay out here in the "land of magnificent distances."

WAC's Offer Opportunities

Many new opportunities have opened up in the WAC, according to Lieut. Mary Frances Goldmann, recruiting officer in this area, and urged that women interested in making a career for themselves as well as helping their country during an emergency contact her office for further details.

The WACs are now employed in hospitals, in the publications division of the adjutant general's office, and in aeronautical pre-flight maintenance.

A vital job is the publications division which is responsible for the reproduction of information for distribution to the army. The volume is such that the detachment works three shifts a day.

Classes in aeronautical pre-flight maintenance, stressing the theory of flight, plane, structure and inspection, is designed to introduce WACs to the ground work necessary to "keep 'em flying." This course is taught at Oglethorpe, Ga., and also at Greiner Field, N. H. WACs are repairing radios in planes, at Hondo, the WACs chalk up flights; and give radio instruc-

'No Bean Soup Today' Waiters Wait In Senate Restaurant

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15 (AP)—An institution as old as the Capitol itself fell victim to the war yesterday—the senate restaurant ran out of bean soup!

Of course, it was only a temporary tragedy, but to hear the grumbling when waiters said "You'll take noodle soup and like it" one would have thought one of the main supports of the big white dome had crumbled.

A new supply of beans for the famous 15-cent dish was promised today.

HEALTH QUIZ

Do you have headaches?  YES  NO
Do you lack pep or vigor?
Do you get irritable easily?
Do you feel depressed—nervous?

Everybody knows that poorly digested food often causes a headache, sluggish condition.

But you may not know that Nature must produce each day about two pints of the vital digestive juice—liver bile—to help digest your food.

If Nature fails—food doesn't digest properly—you may get irregular. And the amount of this vital digestive juice may be still further reduced. Thus, digestive upset and sluggishness can follow each other in a vicious circle that keeps you feeling rotten. Therefore, take Carter's Little Liver Pills because they start bile flowing quickly—often within thirty minutes. When bile flow increases—you may help your digestion. You're on your way to feeling grand all over again. Remember—you can't get these same results from laxatives that fail to stimulate the flow of bile.

If you feel headachy, listless, irritable or depressed, get a 25¢ package of Carter's Little Liver Pills at any drugstore today. Take as directed. Tomorrow see how fit and alive you'll feel!

And every soldier who goes out to the fighting fronts must be replaced in an Army job behind the lines.

Women are needed in the WAC to take over these vital jobs. Hundreds of thousands of women are needed. You are needed—and right away.

In the WAC you'll do vital work. You'll share in one of the biggest experiences of your generation—and feel a deep sense of satisfaction in helping your country in its urgent need.

Are you an American citizen, a woman over 20 and under 50 years of age? Are you single, or if you're married, are you without dependents, without children under 14? Then you are needed in the WAC immediately. (If you are ineligible for the WAC because of age or family responsibilities, take over the job of an eligible woman and free her to join the WAC.)

Don't wait—every minute this war lasts costs the lives of American soldiers.

Are YOU Backing the Attack?

Howard County's Challenge Is Here!—All-Out Bond Buying Days

Thursday--Friday--September 16-17

A Salesman For Uncle Sam Will Call—Be Ready To Dig Down Deep!

We've got a job to do ... you, and you, and you, and I.

American forces are invading. And invasion comes high—in blood and money.

Part of the cost must be paid with human life. Part of the cost must be paid in cash—NOW.

To pay for invasion, each one of us is asked to invest at least one extra $100 Bond in September. $100 EXTRA, mind you—for everybody!

Nobody can say "I'm doing enough." Nobody is doing enough when the invasion is on.

We've GOT to dig up extra money—and we will. We will, during the next two days, when workers for Uncle Sam will call on every individual throughout Big Spring.

We WILL back the attack. We'll do it because we owe it to our boys; because it's the cheapest way out of this rotten war; because there's no safer investment anywhere than a U.S. War Bond. We'll do it because America is right smack in the middle of the biggest, deadliest, dirtiest war in history.

And we're Americans.

Schoolboys Get Early Start With 57 Games This Week

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Editor
Favored teams of Texas schoolboy football get early and decisive tests as 90 class AA schools open the season this week with 57 games.

Amorillo's Golden Sandies, rated with the top three, appear to be meeting the stiffest opposition in the Childress Robcats but Lufkin's Panthers, ranked No. 1 in many quarters, has no soft touch in Tyler, Marshall, powerhouse of East Texas, faces plenty of trouble—and possibly too much—from the Waco Tigers.

Goose Creek, long a South Texas favorite, meets a well-groomed Lamar (Houston) outfit and always-powerful Corpus Christi tangles with McAllen, heralded as the leading team of the Rio Grande valley.

Other top games match the Breckenridge Buckaroos with a strong North Side (Fort Worth) outfit. Corsicana clashes with Waxahachie and Port Arthur tackles the highly-rated Austin Panthers of Houston.

Majors Scramble For Second Slot

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
In the absence of anything resembling a pennant race, the major leagues are offering the next best thing—a spirited scramble for second place in both circuits.

The struggle between the Washington Senators and Cleveland Indians in the American league and between the Brooklyn Dodgers and Cincinnati Reds in the National is just as torrid as if the stake were first place.

Bolanos Scores Six KO's Out of Seven

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 15 (AP)—Enrique Bolanos, sensational Mexican City featherweight, scored his sixth knockout in seven starts in Southern California last night, flooring Bert White, Chicago negro, in the ninth round of their scheduled 10-rounder.

White took a bad beating. He went down for a count of five in the fifth round from a right to the jaw, was down for seven in the eighth, and couldn't get up in the ninth, the telling punch being a left hook to the chin.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15 (AP)—With the major league pro football season opening Sunday—and it'll outlast the college brand this year just the way big league baseball does—this corner offers a scouting report from one of the biggest and best scouts in the business. . . . The Bears and Packers will have another race in the western division but the Bears, as usual, seem to have the ball club. . . . They have those two big guards, Fortmann and Musso, and a good-looking boy named Merkel from Kansas—also Sid Luckman and Bill Geyer, who is stronger and better than last year. . . . Curly Lambeau has been roasting inside the Packers' line but the isn't as good as he claims. Tony Canadeo's passing to Don Hutson is Kay and so is a new back named Fritsch. . . . Detroit's Lions have a good passing club so far their running attack hasn't looked so hot. . . . Frankie Sinkwich may improve that department. . . . ### 17-Year-Old Sparks Texas Longhorns

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
AUSTIN, Sept. 15. (AP)—Probably for the first time in his long and successful career as a college coach, Dana X. Bible is depending upon a 17-year-old boy to lead his football team.

Bible, University of Texas mentor, says frankly he's not too sure of the result, although it isn't because the youngster doesn't have the ability to get the job done. In fact, it's because the boy is so valuable to the team.

But for the time being Lee is leading the charge of the Orange and White down a trail most critics figure will end with another Southwest conference championship.

George McCall, who took Lee's passes last season when the Austin high team surged to the Texas championship, will pair with Parker at end. Marcel Gres, letterman at Santa Clara in 1942 and coming to Texas in the V-12 program, and Jim Kishi, who played freshman football at Texas A. & M. are slated to start at tackles. Guards will be Bill Simons from Santa Monica Junior College of California and W. J. Davis, who lettered at Schreiner Institute of Texas. Center is the chief problem boy; Jim Plyler, 230-pounder from Lamar Junior College of Texas is expected to be the starter. He has been shifted from tackle. Lee, Park, Magliolo and Joe Baumgardner, who also was on the 1942 Austin high team, will make up the backfield.

Shipping Problem Still Here

An impression has grown up that the crisis in shipping is finished, that the United Nations have so speeded production and so whipped the U-boats that we now have more cargo capacity than is needed for war purposes.

That is wrong. We have done a job of shipbuilding for which even Hollywood's press agents could not find an adequate adjective. We have brought the submarines well under control, temporarily at least. But before the balance was struck and the trend turned our way, there was so great a deficiency that it will take months—enough months to make years—before we shall have any surplus of ships above real war requirements.

The popular fallacy grew out of a hasty, ill-considered remark by official Washington. We were told, not long since, that the problem had ceased to be one of finding ships and had become one of finding cargoes. That probably was true at a given moment. The tides of war wax and wane. There must be breathing spells when the driver parks beside the road and consults his maps.

But if it was true for a few days or even a week or so, it is not true generally. The official who spoke prematurely could have ascertained easily that the moment invasion activities began our facilities once more would be strained to the breaking point. It will be the end of 1944 before the Allies can hope to replace, net, their early war tonnage losses. By that time, if the best qualified experts are correct, our requirements will have increased enormously, so that still there will be no surplus.

We hope and to an extent expect that by the end of 1944 the fighting in Europe will be needed. But that does not mean that the demands on shipping will disappear.

On the contrary, we must use huge tonnage to supply the relief and rehabilitation needs of the liberated victims of the Axis, and at the same time must provide colossal facilities to carry on the war in the Pacific.

Don't begin counting on ample supplies of sugar, bananas, natural rubber, spices, gasoline and fuel oil for the east coast, or any of the things for which ships are needed. You won't get them until Japan is licked.

Dewey Steals The Show At Republican Parley

By JACK STINNETT
MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich.—For the second time in four months, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, walked into a conference of national importance and stole the show from some of the best politicians this country has—outside the White House.

First it was at the annual conference of state governors at Columbus, Ohio, in June; second, it was here at Mackinac Island where 19 governors, four senators and as many more representatives and GOP party officials assembled for the Republican postwar advisory council meeting. The jaunty, smiling young executive of the Empire state ruffled the waters of Lake Huron in a breezy hour-long press conference in which he didn't duck a single question or dodge one important issue.

Smoking cigarettes in a moderately long holder that made many of the press corps feel that they were questioning a young edition of the President, Governor Dewey laid down his thesis for postwar foreign policy in no uncertain terms. He reiterated to his previous declaration that the U.S. should join "other nations to secure the peace of the world, by force if necessary."

Continuing with a blast at the New Deal, which he said in effect, started off wrong and had been getting steadily worse for ten years on the domestic front, Dewey revived his theory that ex-presidents should be life members of the Senate; vice-presidents, life members of the House, and that a place should be found for all experienced government officials, regardless of party affiliations.

Even when it came around to answering the query of "can you comment, Governor Dewey, on the report that Sen. Charles McNary has predicted that you will be the Republican presidential nominee next year?" Dewey didn't duck.

He said: "If the report is true, Charlie has been having a pipe dream." But when one veteran Washington political reporter observed: "Senator McNary has very few," Dewey joined in the general laughter.

I couldn't find a member of this council, who would talk at all on the subject, who didn't feel that if the convention were held tomorrow, the floor fight would be between the backers of Thomas E. Dewey and Wendell L. Willkie. The alternative expressed was that the convention might be deadlocked and Sen. Robert A. Taft, of Ohio; Gov. John W. Bricker, from the same state; Gov. Earl Warren, of California, or some other dark horse might be advanced as the 1944 nominee. Some old timers, however, scoffed at the idea there could possibly be any deadlock.

All of which brings us back to the governor of New York. Some felt that the old line Republicans tried to relegate him to oblivion when they left him off the permanent foreign policy and international relations committee; made him a member of postwar enterprise, industry and employment, and chairman only of the reform

Texas Today We May Lose No. 1 Oil Position

By BRACK CURRY
Associated Press Staff
Russia and the Near-East in future years probably will replace the United States as the world's number one oil producer, predicts Petroleum Administrator Harold I. Ickes.

By consuming a greater portion of its total reserves than have other oil producing countries, the United States faces "a decidedly disturbing production problem" within two years writes Ickes in his new book, "Fighting Oil."

Termining Russia and the Near Eastern countries "our most likely successors" as the world's prime oil producers, Ickes says:

"The oil producing areas in the Near East have by no means been explored thoroughly, but a casual analysis of the geological structures and a comparison with the results obtained in areas already drilled enable us to be quite certain that substantial unknown reserves underlie this sun-baked portion of the earth."

"Likewise, there are extensive regions throughout Russia that are undeveloped."

Since May 28, 1941 Ickes has grappled with the nation's petroleum problems—first as petroleum coordinator for national defense, then as petroleum coordinator for war and more recently with the title petroleum administrator for war.

Secretary of the Interior in President Roosevelt's cabinet, Ickes as petroleum administrator is charged with meeting the petroleum needs of the military forces, the nation's war industries, the homes and the millions of motorists who must be kept rolling to work.

"Fighting Oil" sketches the probable future of the United States' oil industry and telescopes the oil positions of Germany and Japan.

Ickes' conclusions on the U. S. petroleum outlook are summarized:

1. Since 1938 the discovery of new crude oil reserves has NOT equalled the volume of crude oil consumed.
2. In 1940 the U. S. produced 63 per cent of the entire world production. This heavy drain on our reserves will have to be continued without "the bright prospect that other countries have of replenishing a diminishing supply."
3. The paucity of new big discoveries, coupled with the increasing essential demands for production, is resulting in a continual drain on our accumulated crude oil reserve at a time when the outlook is for even greater essential petroleum requirements.
4. There is NO immediate prospect "that we will wake up some morning and find that all of our oil is gone out of the ground."
5. Eventually oil will have to be imported or distilled from oil shale or coal.
6. The U. S. cannot maintain the 1943 rate of petroleum production without damage to (the productive capacity of existing oil fields.
7. Petroleum stocks on the Atlantic seaboard are at an all-time low.

8. The U. S. produces the major part of the world's aviation gasoline—perhaps as high as 95 per cent.

9. Construction of pipe lines from Texas to the east coast will not permit removal of restrictions on civilian fuel for oil has been 100 times greater in this country than elsewhere—and consequently the opportunities for new discoveries have been correspondingly reduced.

11. The oil industry in pre-war years overrated its ability to produce.

Delving into the problems of gasoline rationing and domestic oil shortages, Ickes asserts that the choice before the American people is less driving next winter, or more freezing next winter.

Ickes stresses this point: "The indisputable fact is that the underlying basic cause of our oil problem stems from the withdrawal for military services of tankers which normally supplied the east coast and the Pacific northwest area."

Fading away from the nation's oil supply (though, as tankers were withdrawn and submarine attacks started, were approximately 90,000,000 barrels of oil normally imported to the east and gulf coast from Mexico and South America, he writes.

This deficit in the supply pool had to be shored up from domestic producing areas.

Refuting suggestions that Germany's military juggernaut may collapse for want of oil, Ickes declares "there is NO apparent limit to the amount of liquid fuels and lubricants that Germany could produce synthetically or to the quantity of substances that are available to it."

The only really serious limitation is the ability to find the manpower and the materials, particularly steel, for the construction and the operation of the plants required for full production, he suggests.

Synthetic lubricants are being derived in Germany from bituminous coals, lignites and coal tars.

Japan, Ickes reports, worked up a substantial synthetic oil production and filled all available storage facilities before the war. For nearly five years before Pearl Harbor, Japan regulated the use of oil by its civilian population.

In addition Japan now taps the

THE LONG NIGHT

By Eleanor Atterburg

Chapter 20
For what seemed hours, they fought their way through the tiny opening between the two pincer-like points of the cliffs protecting the harbor. Then just as Bette thought surely they must give up, the tide caught them, flung them out to sea. For minutes they rode swiftly on the boiling current, powerless to guide the tiny craft.

Once outside the sea flattened out guilelessly. Dawn seeped rapidly into the sky and the storm disappeared.

"Whew!" Scott whistled. "That was a close one. Now, do you suppose our luck still holds?"

He grinned at her as he turned, crawled back to the stern and the little gasoline engine. For minutes while Bette held her breath and prayed, he tinkered with the motor.

He whirled the starter. The engine coughed dispiritedly and refused to turn over. Scott swore softly and tried it again. And again. When, the third time, it took hold, began running unevenly Bette felt tears of relief slip down her cold cheeks.

"Thank Heaven," she murmured; but her relief was short-lived.

An instant later, Scott suddenly switched off the engine, peered out toward the horizon.

Bette followed his glance, saw the outlines of a ship coming toward them. A chill crept down her spine. Undoubtedly an enemy ship. Had they seen the little motor boat?

"Duck!" Scott ordered sharply. "Keep that red hair of yours out of sight." He flung a tarpaulin toward her. "You don't make a very good Jap."

"What are you going to do?" she demanded and crawled under the heavy covering obediently.

"They can't miss seeing us," he said as if thinking aloud. "Our only chance is to count on their thinking we're—or rather I am a Jap doing a little scouting. Maybe if we look business-like and unconcerned they won't stop to ask embarrassing questions."

Coolly turning his back to the rapidly approaching vessel, he pulled his jacket collar high to cover most of his face, jerked off his flying helmet so that his blue-black hair showed plainly. He started the engine again, heading boldly down the coast.

Bette, half-smothered under the dirty canvas, lived a life-time in that half hour. She dared not move. Neither could she make herself heard to the man sitting stoically beside the engine.

Release came finally. Scott jerked off the tarpaulin, his face wreathed in smiles, his voice jubilant.

"It worked!" He grasped her hands, pulled her to sitting position. "You must be the one with a charmed life, carrot-top. Lady luck has never stayed loyal to me this long."

Bette, her nerves strained to the breaking point, snatched her hands from his, said crossly, "Please don't call me carrot-top and what makes you think it's so darned lucky to be out in Alaskan waters in a motor boat!"

He laughed—a deep, heat-warming sound that released some of Bette's tension.

"You're absolutely right. Still, we've got a good chance of making it now."

But Bette was too utterly weary to help her hopes lift any wings. Her mind, with fine disregard of relative values, refused to consider the fact that they were still a long way from the Post in unfamiliar waters. All she could worry about now was that Scott still treated her like a small boy companion, or at very best, a much-younger sister who was a responsibility and a nuisance.

The sea's calm mood held. The small craft moved steadily over the rolling swells. Huddled in the prow, Bette tried to force herself to consider what might happen next. But wearily her thoughts lagged and she relaxed a little, found a fairly comfortable spot and, in another moment, was sound asleep.

She was awakened by the

Hollywood—Casting 'Errors' Lead To New Parts On The Screen

By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD—Our comedies of error:
Leslie Brooks, assigned to a role in "Cover Girl" that required dancing, went to work and danced herself footsore, learning how. But she mastered her routines, and somebody told Arthur Schwartz, the producer, that Leslie was a terrific hoofer. He was pleased, but not surprised—hadn't she danced in musicals over at Warner's? Wasn't that the reason she was cast?
"I never danced before in my life," says Leslie. "I was in musicals, true. But just as a show-girl, walking around."
Thus out of a slight mistake may spring a new dance star. Just as, a few years ago, a slight mistake brought a chap named Pat O'Brien into pictures. They were making a movie of "The Front Page" and they tested many actors for the role of reporter Hildy Johnson. They sent this O'Brien out for a test because he'd been doing the play in stock in the east. O'Brien won the part, and he was playing it before the camera before it came out that Pat hadn't played Hildy at all, he'd played the stormy manager—editor—but the O'Brien movie career was safely launched.
A youngster named Dolly Loehr, who played the piano, was under contract at Paramount, drawing a salary but getting no work. A picture came up requiring a 12-year-old, and Dolly heard about it. She is 17 now, but its wonderful what a "cost" dress and a kiddish hair-do will do. That's how she went in for an interview on the part, and she won it right there. She played in "The Major and the Minor" and now a lot of people at her studio still think of her as a 12-year-old. They probably will, too, until they see her as "grown-up" Emily Kimrough in "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay"—under her new movie name of Diana Lynn.

An M-G-M executive once heard a record made abroad by a foreign coloratura. It was a wonderful recording of a marvelous voice, and nothing would do but that the studio seek out its owner and sign her immediately. It was done, and at last came the great day when she would step from the train.

She stepped, and the studio delegates gaped and gulped. The lady was beautiful, blonde, and tremendous. The greeters spirited her away with sinking hearts. But the lady was put on a diet. She exercised, swam, walked, starved. After many months she made her first picture, "The Great Waltz." She was no longer fat but "statuesque." They could bill her—Milla Korpus—as "the gorgeous Korpus."

Paramount knew what it had signed, but the greeters didn't when they went down to meet a new blonde honey, no less, from Australia. The "blonde honey" had to greet them—"she" was the pudgy character actor known as Cecil Kellaway.

But the commonest error, made every day, is signing up so many girls under the impression that they're actresses.

THE LONG NIGHT

jolting of the narrow boat as it slid up onto the beach.

"Are we here?" she asked, rubbing her eyes.

"We're here—but the Post isn't!" Scott's voice harsh with new anxiety.

Bette was awake instantly. Sitting bolt upright she looked up the beach, recognized the curve of the little bay, recognized the towering mountain wall surrounding the narrow valley, saw then what Scott meant. Not a building standing where the Post had been. Not a plane on the open landing field. Not a sign of life.

They scrambled out of the boat, and then she was amazed when he fairly threw her to her knees in the wet sand and flung himself prone beside her.

"What in the world—" she gasped angrily.

He pulled her down. "Here put this on." He pushed his flying helmet toward her.

"Thanks, I—" "Put it on."

Meekly, she pulled the heavy leather cap over her bright head. Then he smiled at her slowly and very wearily. "You have the prettiest hair I ever saw on a woman—and it makes the most conspicuous target a Jap sniper could want."

But Bette ignored him. She had seen now the gutted remains of what had once been the hospital. The shell of the Recreation building and radio station.

tion. She'd seen too the great craters yawning in the beach headland.

"What happened? Where are—What—" But she couldn't say it aloud.

Scott shook his head. "Japs of course. But what I can't understand is why they let us land. Probably—" his lips twisted, "we're not worth wasting ammunition on."

He began crawling forward over the wet sand.

"Where are you going?" Bette pulled herself up beside him.

He shrugged. "If there are Japs hiding in fox-holes up there the sooner we know it, the better. This suspense—" Again, he turned that irresistible grin toward her. "—is killing me."

Bette caught herself being glad that if she had to die at the hands of a sneaking Jap, at least she managed a smile at Scott in return—she was in excellent company. There weren't many men who could look death right in the teeth like this and smile.

With the exception of Marshall, all were slated to testify today. The army chief is expected to appear Monday.

Senator Wheeler (D-Mont), author of a bill already approved by the committee to defer the induction of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers for the remainder of this year, told the senate he did not object to the hearings but served notice he would call up his measure for debate and vote at the first possible opening.

President Roosevelt disclosed at a news conference yesterday that he has been discussing the father draft question with congressional leaders. One thing might be made clear, he said—the fact that if a man is in an essential war industry he would not be drafted. However, he remarked, a good many fathers are neither in the army or navy nor performing any essential services.

Reports circulated on Capitol Hill that the president would tell congress in a message Friday that

British Ninth Army Reported To Be On Move

LONDON, Sept. 15. (AP)—Unconfirmed reports reaching London from Stockholm via Ankara today said that the British ninth army—a force which the Germans assert has been designated for an Allied drive into the Balkans—was on the move today from its Middle East bases facing the island pathway into Greece.

British military officials had no comment to make on the Ankara reports, published in the Stockholm Svenska Dagbladet, which said that ninth army had embarked for an "unknown destination."

The dispatch coincided here, however, with authentic accounts of ferment in the Balkans, a sweeping new successes by Yugoslav guerrillas, and reports of fierce fighting between German and Italian troops in the Dodecanese islands off the Turkish mainland.

Bases of the ninth army in Syria and Transjordan are only 400 miles from the island of Rhodes and less than 600 miles from Crete, axis outposts in the Mediterranean.

A nominating committee includes James A. Mars of San Antonio, Tex.

BUY WAR BONDS

None of us will be completely happy until the day of Victory. The day our boys are back; our sons, brothers and husbands. We want our way of life to go on, and we're fighting to make sure it does. We want Jim or Bill (you know his name) to be sitting right there in his easy chair with his pipe or studying in his own room. We want to have friends in for dinner again... and a big roast beef for them. We want to be able to take a long drive in the country, buy a new car, have fun, be happy. We want to live again on that sunny side of things of which Coca-Cola, itself, is such a symbol. There are so many things we want back. Yes, so many. None of them will come unless we win. All, and more, will come when we win. The War Bonds you buy will hasten the day... the day of Victory.

Joseph Calleia Visits Post—Villain On Screen, But A Gentleman In Real Life

Movieland's menace, Joseph Calleia, confessed to surprised soldiers at Big Spring Bombardier School Tuesday that he is a man of contradictions.

On the screen he has averaged more than 20 murders a picture in his 22 screen roles; in real life his hobbies are the composition of classical music and the culture of flowers. On the screen he is almost invariably cast as an Italian; his parents are English and Spanish. On the screen he is shown as a product of Hell's Kitchen; his home is Malta where he was reared at a Jesuit college and where his brother is still a priest. On the screen he has a knife-edged voice calculated to throw chills down the calmest of spines; his natural voice is that of a quiet college professor.

Calleia visited the bombardier school Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday morning. His personal appearances were made in the mess halls, day rooms and on the flying line.

The villain of many a screen mystery story—he has often been cast as the murderer in Hollywood's hearse-operas—Calleia said that his ambition is to play the role of Father Damien, the leper-

So that "Fighting Men" may be supplied... Please use your party line sharingly

Every little bit counts these days. Every piece of copper and rubber that may be used to help make new telephone equipment is now needed to turn out war material.

What does that have to do with party-line telephone service?

Plenty.

Because telephone materials have gone to war fronts, more people are finding it necessary to use party lines.

So, more than ever, it's necessary to be considerate—remember to share our party lines—give the other folks a fair share of time to talk.
