Bentsen Doubts Economic Reversal

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen says he wishes he could be as optimistic as some economists who are predicting the American economy will begin turning around in the second quarter of 1982.

"I hope they are right, frankly, but I doubt it," the Texas Democrat said during a brief news conference Wednesday with Texas reporters.

He said he hasn't regretted voting for President Reagan's economic program, the chief features of which have been cuts in domestic spending and personal and business tax cuts. Bentsen pointed out he has long supported both concepts.

He blamed the sagging economy on high interest rates, which he said have hit small businesses particularly hard.

"Interest-sensitive companies, such as car dealers, are really suffering, while energy people next door to them may be doing very well," Bentsen said.

"I don't buy the rhetoric that deficits under Democrats cause inflation, whereas deficits under Republicans cause employment."

Because of discontent by Americans concerning the economy, polls are showing that Reagan is losing much of the support he once enjoyed, Bentsen said.

Consequently, Democrats will regain in next November's elections some of the U.S. Senate seats they lost in 1980, the 60-year-old Rio Grande Valley native said. But because 20 Democratic and only 12 Republican seats are up, it will be unlikely his party can claim a majority by next year, he added.

Republicans now have 53 seats and the Democrats 46 in the 100-member Senate. There is one independent.

Bentsen declined to speculate on possible Democratic entries in the 1982 Texas gubernatorial race, saying too many aspirants are his friends.

"There are several fine individuals, but I'm not going to try to pick one. Several of them are my friends," he said.

The Democratic Party was split after the bitter 1980 primary battle between former Gov. Dolph Briscoe and former Attorney General John Hill. Republican Bill Clements then upset Hill in the general election.

Bentsen said he has played the role of a peacemaker in the past, and will do his best to mend fences after next year's gubernatorial primary so the Democrats can present a united front in their effort to unseat Clements.

"I don't think there's much headway that can be made on that now. I'll do my best afterward to try to heal any wounds and divisiveness."

Bentsen said.

Bentsen hasn't announced for reelection yet, but has left little doubt he will be seeking a third six-year term in the

Dissident Shareholder Group Apparently in at Holly Sugar

COLORADO SPRINGS — Holly Sugar Corporation has announced that a preliminary count of stockholder votes at the Dec. 10 special meeting indicates that a dissident shareholder group headed by Michael Buschbaum probably will elect its own slate of new directors.

The preliminary vote tallies, subject to verification, indicate shareholders cost about $67,875 shares, or approximately 62 percent of the 1,583,140 common shares outstanding, for the dissident slate, while about 183,687 shares, or approximately 12 percent, were cast for the directors' slate proposed by the company.

"Under the circumstances, it is reassuring for our employees, shareholders, and sugarbeet growers to learn of Mr. Buschbaum's concern expressed at the recent shareholder meeting for their welfare and the continued growth of Holly Sugar Corporation," Holly president Ben H. Slothower said. "We will continue to share this same concern, as we have in the past."

The news of the changeover at Holly is one that pleases the Texas-New Mexico Sugarbeet Growers Association, according to president Bill Cleavinger of Wildorado.

"We have already met with the group of people who will be taking over, and they have assured us that this (Hereford) plant will continue to operate," Cleavinger said. "They told us that the Hereford plant is their newest, most efficient plant, and they intend to run an efficient company."

Cleavinger said that indications are that the new directors will discontinue with a sugar cane and a corn processing plant, both located in California, and "be strictly a sugar company and not branch out into other things."

Holly recently rid itself of a health food company as well, Cleavinger said.

"The new directors said that they felt the marketing in the company has been poor in the past and they pledged a much better marketing system under the new management," Cleavinger added.

About 400 persons are employed at the Hereford plant, and some 250 area growers supply beets for processing.

"We have a verbal commitment from the new directors to attend our business meeting in January, and this will give the local growers and workers the chance to ask any questions they might have," Cleavinger said.

After completion of the review of the preliminary voting, the inspectors of election will submit the final results of the shareholder vote at a seven-o'clock meeting tomorrow in Colorado Springs.

Luv Ya Herd

Luv Ya Herd Day Proclaimed

Tomorrow will be "Luv Ya Herd" day in Hereford as the city and the chamber of commerce voice their appreciation to the 1981 Hereford Whitefaces who represented the town so well this football season.

Mayor Bartley Dowell signed a proclamation naming tomorrow "Luv Ya Herd Day," and the team will be honored at a special pep rally at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow at the high school gym.

School officials are letting students out of class at that time to allow them to attend the rally. "But, we want everyone in the community to know about this and come help us honor the Whitefaces," chamber exec Mike Carr said.

Speakers at the pep rally will include Herd coach Don Cumpton and HHS principal John Walch. In addition, chamber sports committee chairman John Stagner and KPAN announcer Tom Simons will make a presentation to the school on behalf of the citizens of Hereford.

The HHS cheerleaders will also be doing several cheers during the pep rally, and Carr said that HHS seniors will close out the celebration by leading the school song.

The 1981 Herd completed its stellar season last Saturday night in a 10-7 semi-final loss to Richardson Lake Highlands at Jones Stadium.

Our new staff artist, Randy Quick, drew a special logo for the occasion and you will see it in today's issue of The Brand. The pep rally will serve as a rousing climax to the great year recorded by our high school football team. An undefeated regular season, then going all the way to the semifinals is a first for HHS. From time to time, we preach from this column about shopping at home. Regardless of the incentives, prodding or leading for loyalty, some folks are going to shop out of town. We don't expect all people to do all their shopping here—just percent of it!

Some people complain that there's not enough variety and prices locally, but it's a two-way street. If the stores here have enough volume, they can stock more items and display a wider selection.

It's "harvest time" for local stores. The Christmas shopping business makes the difference for many firms. Those who go around asking for contributions to their favorite charities, or pet projects, would surely remember who is supporting such community activities.

And, again, there is the matter of convenience and service. Sure, the big-city lights sometimes blind people as to real savings and satisfaction on merchandise purchased. It makes good common sense, and good business sense, to

Tax Appraisal District Approves 1982 Budget

The Deaf Smith County Appraisal District approved a 1982 budget of $224,800.69 when they met Tuesday in the board room of the district office. According to Chief Appraiser Fred Fox "the budget covers all operations of the office, plus the lease-purchase of a computer and equipment, and some salary increases."

The computer was purchased by the district from J.W. McMorris & Co. of Hereford, with programming and maintenance through Digital Systems of Amarillo. Cost of the unit was $40,003.20, plus some $8,000 worth of programming work.

"Part of the computer has already been installed in the office," Fox reported. "They will probably start programming next Monday, and we look to have everything going by the first of the year."

Fox said the new computer, which is costing the district "about half of its $80,000 value" will handle total office functions, including payroll, tax rolls, and statements and receipts.

"This will save us greatly because we will not have to have computer printing done down state as we do now, and after the first couple of years we will be saving the taxpayers somewhere around $12,000 per year," Fox said.

The tax district was paying $22,500 per year in computer costs, and was expecting a 10 percent increase of that amount as well.

In other matters Tuesday the board discussed insurance and retirement for district employees, and appointed board members

James Gentry and Melvin Jayroe to work with Fox in selecting an insurance company and handling district employee retirement funds.

The board also discussed a Chief Appraiser Seminar scheduled for Austin next month. Fox said that he would be attending the seminar along with "a couple of the board members."

Mrs. S Not Looking Forward to Christmas

Mrs. S is not looking forward to Christmas—she's too busy trying to provide for her five children and a niece.

It has been a trying time since her husband left home and has not been in contact with his family. Mrs. S has five children, ranging in age from 4 to 10, and she's also keeping a niece, age 9.

Mrs. S has been doing housework, when she can find work. She is receiving food stamps and welfare and, fortunately, the children in school are under the free lunch program.

This is another example of the case histories which have been provided to volunteer workers in Hereford's Christmas Stocking Fund. All money contributed to the fund will be used by the anonymous group of men to help needy families this Christmas.

Brumleys On 700 Club Show

Viewers of the "700 Club" are getting a glimpse of Christmas Deaf Smith County style today as a county family is spotlighted on the nationally broadcast program.

The Mike Brumley family of Westway was featured on the show this morning at 9 a.m., and were to be seen again at 2 p.m. The final showing of the special program filmed some three weeks ago at the Brumley home at Westway is set for 8 p.m.

Brumley, his wife Janice, and children, Jason, Caleb, Johanna, and Amber, were visited by a CBN crew on Dec. 4 to film a segment spotlighting a rural American family celebrating Christmas.

The film crew spent some 11 hours at work in the Brumley home. Mrs. Brumley prepared a turkey, and the family got the tree trimmed and house decorated for the special.

The "700 Club" is broadcast locally on Hereford Cablevision Channel 2.

House voted 14-10 against a compromise $11 billion farm bill, but the measure passed the House by a two-vote margin and was sent to President Reagan for his signature.

The measure had passed the Senate last week after being reported favorably by a conference committee, despite heavy lobbying by a coalition of farmers and consumer advocates in favor of increased subsidies.

Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, of Mission — chairman of the House Agriculture Committee — was only lukewarm in his support of the measure but drew applause from other House members for his closing argument in support of the bill.

"This is not the perfect bill," he said. "... it's not the bill I would write."

But he said Reagan had promised to sign the compromise measure and veto any bill that called for more spending.

"I've been to the White House. I've been to the Executive Office Building," he said. "I can see no alternative."

We're Helpin' Santa Claus

With all the time spent following the Herd this year Jolly Old St. Nick now finds himself behind in processing orders from Hereford and Deaf Smith County children. Santa has asked The Hereford Brand to help him this year and act as a collection point for letters to Santa from area youngsters.

Letters to Santa can be delivered to The Brand office between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, or can be mailed to Santa in care of The Hereford Brand, Box 672, Hereford, 79445.

As a special treat all letters to Santa sent to The Brand will be featured in the newspaper in its big Christmas Edition on Wednesday, Dec. 23.

The Brand staff is more than happy to help Santa out in his time of need, after all, we want him to make a stop at our house on Christmas Eve too!

White Officially In Campaign

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Attorney General Mark White says he wants to be governor because Gov. Bill Clements' administration "has forgotten about people and their problems."

White formally announced Wednesday as a gubernatorial candidate in the Democratic primary. He appeared first at his hometown of Henderson and then held news conferences in Houston, Austin and the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport.

"It all adds up to a state government that keeps telling us how efficient it is but has forgotten about people and their problems," White said of Clements' administration.

White, 41, a self-labeled moderate conservative, said he will campaign on economic issues affecting Texans, keying on high property taxes, skyrocketing utility bills and interest rates.

Already in the Democratic primary race are Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong and state Sen. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler.

McKnight later welcomed White into the primary race.

"I'm sure we Democrats won't lose sight of our main goal, which is to best Bill Clements in November," McKnight said.

White said in a Capitol news conference that he did not see any need for new taxes or increased taxes to carry out his program.

Hightower Scoffs At Brown's Fire Ant Plan

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Jim Hightower says Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown did not discover a fire ant "emergency" until he started running for re-election. Hightower, who is opposing Brown in the Democratic primary, told a news conference Wednesday that he thought Brown "bungled the fire ant program from the start by committing his department to a single-shot solution that can not work because it is too expensive, ineffective and unacceptable to the people of Texas."

He said Brown's whole fire ant program is based on aerial spraying of an experimental insecticide, Amdro. Hightower said at least seven other chemicals are available that are proven safe, much less costly and just as effective as Amdro.

He urged a series of public hearings on the fire ant problem to help shape public policy. "The spread of fire ants is something we have to deal with, but there is no invasion," he said.

Asbestos Plants Want Cigarette Companies To Share Blame

TYLER, Texas (AP) — When the first lung-damage suit against a Texas asbestos company comes to trial in March, cigarette companies should share the cost of any adverse judgment, a lawyer for an asbestos company said.

Tyler lawyer Richard Grainger represents Standard Asbestos plants throughout Texas in the lung-damage suits. He is petitioning U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice to say what percentage of liability the cigarette makers ought to share if a jury finds the asbestos maker liable.

Thousands of individuals have sued asbestos manufacturers, claiming their exposure to the material caused permanent lung damage. "We've filed petitions against the cigarette companies in 18 cases so far," Grainger said Wednesday. "There must be 3,000 cases pending in East Texas. Of those 3,000, possibly 2,000 are smokers. We will file this request in every case, claiming they (tobacco companies) must share the responsibility."

Those plaintiffs contributed to any possible lung damage by smoking, Grainger argues.

Mengden Names Campaign Consultant

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State Sen. Walter Mengden, a Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate, announced Wednesday that Eddie Mahe will serve as his campaign consultant.

Mahe managed Pete Dominici's 1972 U.S. Senate campaign in New Mexico and served as a consultant for Dominici in 1978 and also for U.S. Sen. Gordon Humphrey's successful campaign in New Hampshire.

Mahe was national campaign manager for former Texas Gov. John Connally during Connally's 1980 presidential campaign.

Mengden, R-Houston, also said Paul Teas would be his campaign chairman and George Cullen of Austin would be finance chairman.

Teas is an independent oil producer from Dallas. Cullen retired as president of Universal Cyclops Specialty Steel Co. and now is director of G.E.O. Corp.

Fire Destroys School, Spoils Pageant

ELGIN, Texas (AP) — A school for 475 elementary students has burned — destroying offices, 22 classrooms, library and cafeteria, as well as teachers' records and books.

Superintendent Paul Willis said authorities have no idea how the fire began.

Friday's early morning fire Friday ended plans for the Christmas pageant at the Elgin Primary School for kindergarten through third grade students.

"Just yesterday we had made hand prints of all the children in Elgin's colors — purple prints on white construction paper — with that little poem about fingerprints and they were going to give them to their parents for Christmas," said kindergarten teacher Dorothy White. "Now it's all gone, everything we had is gone. It's just a tragedy..."

"All my albums and records I used in class are gone," said teacher Judy Wallace. "I had a lot of personal stuff in there I used for teaching, like books I inherited from my mother, who taught for years. Some of that just can't be replaced at all."

Principal Eddie Brandt said, "It cost $1.2 million to build this, but we'll never replace it for that."

Arriving Daily Polish Refugees Fear Bloodshed

By MACK SISK Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Refugees uprooted by the political tension in Poland are arriving here almost daily to escape bloodshed they fear is inevitable if an accord is not reached between the government and the Solidarity movement, a Catholic priest says.

The Rev. Joseph Zuziak acted as an interpreter Wednesday for Ana Morawski, a young Solidarity member.

Mrs. Morawski began to cry when asked about the future of Poland during the current confrontation between the nationwide union and the Soviet-backed government.

"She's very afraid. The future looks very terrible. There will be shedding of blood," Zuziak interpreted as the young woman spoke in Polish.

"I am hopeful they can find a peaceful solution with no Russian involvement," added Zuziak, who came to the United States 10 years ago and still has a brother and three sisters living in Poland.

Mrs. Morawski, her husband Wieslaw, 31, and their daughter Sabina, 5, arrived early Tuesday at the tiny Shrine of Our Lady of Czestochowa at the end of a five-month journey from their homeland.

They were the seventh Polish family that priests and nuns at the Shrine have helped settle in San Antonio over the past five months as tension mounted in the Soviet satellite country. Twenty-five single men also have arrived and were placed in local jobs, the Polish priest said.

In addition, Alfred Grabun, co-owner of the Old Krakow Restaurant near downtown, said Wednesday that more than 25 Polish refugees have arrived there recently in a resettlement program sponsored by the World Council of Churches and Lutheran Immigration and Refugee Service.

Grabun, 47, immigrated here in 1950 from Germany after his family was uprooted from Poland in World War II.

Zuziak and Sister Hedwig conducted a morning Mass before the Polish Black Madonna at the Shrine Wednesday and planned an afternoon rosary to pray for a peaceful solution to the conflict between Solidarity and the Polish government authorities.

"That's all we can do right now. That's very important," the priest said of the prayers and hymns recited in the Shrine, built in 1966 during the 1,000-year celebration of Christianity in Poland. The little chapel consists of only six pews and is billed as the "largest grotto in the world dedicated to Our Lady of Czestochowa."

The priest and nun said they expected Polish refugees in increasing numbers to arrive in San Antonio. They appealed for Christmas toys for the children and help in finding jobs for men.

"It's very sad. I'm afraid," the elderly nun said. "We are going to have a big Christmas Eve supper here for all the refugees."

Zuziak said the Morawskis and Malysk Zofia and her daughter, Marta, 3, also present at the shrine's living quarters Wednesday, were members or were supportive of the Solidarity movement.

"They decided to leave. Belonging to Solidarity, they could lose everything and they feared aggression from Russia," the priest said.

Curing The Bellyache

You've wondered why our nation's leaders did not see our problems coming and avoid them.

Unconcern for environment, extravagant giveaways to other nations and handouts to undeserving homefolks...

With any sense we had to know that a diet like that would eventuate in a bellyache.

Why didn't somebody warn us? Well, there were voices crying in the wilderness in the 1950s and since. Ronald Reagan's was one of those voices.

Yet, every administration until this one, with "another round for the house," postponed the hangover.

Now it hurts. Now we are sobering up. Now we are curtailing pollution, we are reducing spending, reducing taxes.

Now we have inflation down to a third what it was last year. But we still persist in some other policies which we will regret tomorrow and tomorrow.

Congratulations, Robert N. Lohr, Commander Post 192 The American Legion

We know so much better than we do. We persist in rewarding athletes more than scholars so we graduate generations of muscleheads.

We hide our eyes from an immigration avalanche which will surely bury us. And look at the auto industry which helped make our nation this planet's powerhouse...

Detroit designers let foreign carmakers beat them to the draw in the development of economy cars. Now it appears Japanese manufacturers will do it to us again as three of them market "low-priced sports cars" in the United States within 48 months.

Detroit's other problem has been stated succinctly by an industry consultant from Boston. John Schnapp says, "Quite frankly speaking, I think it is very difficult for people making $6.17 an hour to buy a car which is being made by a worker who earns $12.66 an hour."

So now one-in-five cars purchased in the United States was made in Japan. And the UAW wants our government to throttle imports so Detroit workers can get another wage raise.

That won't work. Japan and Germany are already building car factories in the United States.

Also, American car markers, both GM and Ford, are leaving Detroit, establishing factories where workers work for less—in the Mexican states of Coahuila and Chihuahua.

Once upon a time labor leader John L. Lewis had the statesmanship to confess that he had driven the wages of coal miners "too high"—until Americans began burning oil instead.

Douglas Fraser of the Auto Workers has a similar opportunity now to recognize the reality of what's happened and do what he can to make American car factories cost-competitive again.

Republicans supporting the measure were Jim Collins of Dallas, Jack Fields of Humble and Tom Loeffler of Hunt.

Heading the Texans against the Farm Bill was Charles Stenholm, a Democrat from Stamford and the "only farmer" in the 24-member Texas delegation. He and de la Garza are the only Texans on the Agriculture Committee.

Other Democrats opposing the measure were Martin Frost of Dallas, Henry B. Gonzalez of San Antonio, Sam Hall Jr. of Marshall, Ralph Hall of Rockwall, Kent Hance of Lubbock, Jack Hightower of Vernon, Marvin Leath of Marlin, Mickey Leland of Houston, Jim Mattox of Dallas, Bill Patman of Canada and Charles Wilson of Lufkin.

Republicans against the conference report were Bill Archer of Houston and Ron Paul of Lake Jackson.

"It is with great reluctance I rise in opposition to this farm bill. I hate to be on record against a farm bill," Hightower said on the House floor in the final hour of debate.

The vote was one of the House's final actions before breaking up late Wednesday night for a six-week recess. Congressmen will return Jan. 25.

Since the Senate-House conference committee already had been dissolved, no changes could be made in the report. It had to be either approved or rejected.

He plans to again support the Voting Rights Act. "One of the most important rights any American has is the right to vote. I supported it before

—Although he voted against the Farm Bill earlier this year when it was passed by the Senate, he voted for the House-Senate conference report on it last week "because I decided it was the best we were going to be able to get." But he deplored plummeting cotton and grain prices and said the bill is "far from the type bill we ought to have."

—The crisis in Poland "is a threat to stability in the West, but there's not much we can do other than political and economic sanctions. There's certainly nothing militarily we should do."

—Deregulation of gas probably will be proposed next year, along with a strong move to attach a windfall profits tax to it. He strongly favors deregulation and strongly opposes the windfall profits tax, which he called "a disincentive."

In this column, following the game at Texas Stadium, we wrote about the man from Fort Worth Eastern Hills calling to apologize for the conduct of students in drilling and yelling obscenities at the Hereford band and team.

Well, it happened again Saturday night as students from Dallas Lake Highlands jeered when the band lined up on that side of the field. Some HHS band members wouldn't repeat some of the language used by the visiting students.

If that's a practice in the Metroplex, I'm sure it's one that most people could do without. Surely such conduct comes from a minority of the students. Hopefully, it's just some young men who don't have the guts nor the discipline to engage in contact sports, so they're showing off with vulgar cheerleading. The football players from those cities were not in the same category.

We have to chalk up another point for the good life in "rural" America. We don't think folks would put up with that kind of behavior in schools from this area.

Police Investigate $4,000 Burglary

Hereford police are investigating a residential burglary in which over $4,000 in goods was taken Wednesday.

Police say entry was gained into the residence at 521 Avenue G by prying open the back door. The home is owned by Andy Scott.

Items reported stolen include two television sets, a stereo, AM-FM tape player, a vacuum cleaner, a digital clock and several albums.

A mink coat was reported missing from the Hereford Country Club, however the owner was not sure if it had been stolen or taken by mistake from the coat rack.

A GMC pickup reported stolen from the Dawn Co-Op was recovered on Fifteenth Street and a Freightliner cab reported stolen from Amarillo was turned over to that city's authorities after it was found parked on the 500 block of Avenue H.

A man told police that someone had poured acid on his truck tailgate, ruining the paint. Loss from the vandalism was set at $300.

Officers also checked out a domestic disturbance and received a report of a harassing phone call.

Seven citations were issued.

Alaska Opens Second Productive Oil Field

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — First there was Prudhoe Bay. Now Kuparuk.

Atlantic Richfield added to the lexicon of the oil industry Wednesday by officially celebrating start-up of what is destined to be the second-most productive oil field in the United States.

Although Kuparuk is not quite as large as the neighboring Prudhoe field about 40 miles to the east, it still ranks among the 10 largest in American history, ARCO President William Kieschnick said.

When the field hits full production in 1986, it will turn out 250,000 barrels a day, second only to Prudhoe's daily output of 1.5 million barrels.

"This is an indication the North Slope is not a one-field fluke," Kieschnick told reporters in a three-way teleconference conducted in Anchorage, Los Angeles and

Dallas. "This is a very good news day."

The field currently is pumping 50,000 barrels a day of oil into the trans-Alaska pipeline, and production is expected to reach 80,000 barrels a day within six months.

ARCO Alaska President Paul Norgaard said the additional oil will cause no problems with the pipeline which already has been tested at 1.8 million barrels a day. It currently carries 1.5 million barrels a day.

The design capacity of the 800-mile line from the North Slope to the marine terminal at Valdez is 2 million barrels a day, but some additional work would have to be done for it to carry the full amount, he said.

ARCO officials said they were pleased to get the field into production Monday, more than three months ahead of schedule.

"This is the toughest time of year to start up an oil field," Norgaard said, pointing out that it was 24 degrees below zero at Kuparuk (pronounced ku-PAR-uk) at the time of the news conference.

Although the oil temperature at the bottom of the Kuparuk reservoir is about 140 degrees, it had cooled to 7 degrees below zero by the time it was brought out of the ground and into the processing facility, Norgaard said.

Kieschnick said the oil companies already have spent $500 million developing the field and but the time it reaches full production the total investment will be $8 billion.

ARCO officials said they were pleased to get the field into production Monday, more than three months ahead of schedule.

Getting Oil Out Of Politics Would Possibly Put US Ahead

DALLAS (AP) — The United States could be 90 percent energy self-sufficient by 1995 if the oil and gas industry were not fettered by politics and public misconceptions, a Houston oilman says.

Domestic oil and gas supplies are not, as the public believes, disappearing rapidly and the nation does not have to depend on Arab-state oil cartels for its supplies, George P. Mitchell, president of a large independent oil company, said Wednesday.

"That myth must be laid to rest," said Mitchell. "The truth is that this country ... is capable of becoming 95 to 99 percent energy self-sufficient over the next 10 to 15 years and of breaking OPEC's (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) back in the process," said Mitchell in a speech to the World Oil & Gas Show and Conference.

"It is imperative that we get our energy priorities in order and get on with the job at hand," increased domestic production, said Mitchell, head of Mitchell Energy & Development Co. of Houston.

The logical order of national energy priorities would be conservation, full development of domestic oil and gas resources, vastly increased use of coal, steady growth of nuclear power and research into solar and other alternative energy sources, Mitchell said.

He said there should be two immediate goals for the oil and gas industry.

"First, we should increase outlays for exploration and production to $100 billion a year by the mid-1980s from the current level of about half that. At the same time," said Mitchell, "we should boost drilling from about 70,000 wells this year to a sustained rate of 100,000 per year."

Now You're Cookin'

By LINDA CAUDLE
Family News Editor

Bettye Owen and her husband, Bobby, have lived in Hereford all of their lives. They attended school here and were childhood sweethearts. "My grandmother, Ollie Hodges, was a charter member of the First Baptist Church here," said Bettye, and my mother, Velma Hodges, was county treasurer for 30 years before retiring. She still lives in this community."

The Owens have four children, all girls. Three of them are married and the youngest just went off to college. Becky is married to Aaron Bourland, a coach at Coronado High School in Lubbock. They own The Love Shop at South Plains Mall.

Barbara is married to Carey Eatherly, and they live in Paris, Tex. She teaches algebra in high school. Brenda and her husband, Scott Harrison, live in Cleburne, Tex. where she is an office manager for four optometrists. The Owens' youngest daughter, Beth, is a freshman at Midwestern State University, where she is majoring in music.

"Much of our life has been wrapped up with young people; especially our own children, and their activities," said Bettye. "I have also worked with the young people at church, teaching Sunday school in the primary grades." Bettye did substitute teaching in the public school system for 13 years.

The Owens have two grandchildren, both of them Becky's children. Kyle is four and Nicole is two. "All of our girls and their families will be coming here for Christmas," said Bettye, "and we are really looking forward to the time together."

Bobby is part owner of Summerfield Fertilizer. He has been in the fertilizer business since the couple married. One of his hobbies is making furniture. Among other things, he has made their dining room table, their coffee table, several hutches, and a wide variety of picture frames, some of which are framing Bettye's needlepoint pictures.

Club Members, Guests Enjoy Program Of Christmas Music

Mrs. Ray Stewart was hostess to the Dawn Music Club at her home in Dawn recently. A supper of "Finger Foods" was enjoyed by eleven members and their guests.

The program began with everyone singing "O Come All Ye Faithful" and the reading of the Christmas story in the second chapter of Luke by Arless Stewart.

Helen Caraway sang "Sweet Little Jesus Boy" accompanied by Ruby Wimberley. Then a medley of Christmas carols was played in piano duet by Ruth Hagar and her granddaughter, Rhonda Johnson.

Bill and Becky Caraway blended voices in a beautiful rendition of "Joy to the World" accompanied by Ms. Stewart. Then Ms. Stewart sang "Some Children See Him" accompanied by Ms.

Besides enjoying needlepoint, Bettye likes to sew and make other crafts including latch hook rugs. "I hardly ever sit in front of the T.V. or sit in a car while traveling without having needlepoint or something like that to work on," said Bettye.

Presently she is interested in the "Precious Moments" Collection of figurines, and has joined the Collector's club. She has part of the nativity scene and several other pieces. Bettye also enjoys singing and playing the piano for her own enjoyment.

Bettye was a charter member of La Madre Mia Study Club and has been in the Hereford Chamber Singers since they began in 1974. "I enjoy the involvement," commented Bettye, adding that "I've met lots of people through these organizations and have become close friends with many of them." She was able to travel to Romania with the Chamber Singers when they went over there several years ago.

"We both enjoy fishing," said Bettye, "and during the summer we went to Cedar Creek Lake, north of Athens.

Wimberley at the piano. The Music Club Quartet, consisting of Hazel and Arless Stewart, and Helen and Becky Caraway, sang "Silver Bells," with Mrs. Wimberley accompanying. Susie Curtisinger read "Christmas Eve With the Girls," a humorous poem depicting each member as she prepared to welcome Santa Claus. Group singing preceded the exchange of gifts.

Other members and guests present were the Rev. and Mrs. Jim Hickman and sons, Phillip and David; Melissa and Aaron Caraway; Johnnie B. Caraway; Ray and Riese Stewart; Jerry Johnson; Dick Hagar; Rose Goheen; Corinne Smith; and W.O. and Lottie Wertenberger.

The next meeting will be Jan. 15 at the Dawn Community Center.

Meeting Canceled

The American Association of Retired Persons will not meet tonight as previously scheduled. Regular meetings will resume after the Christmas holidays.

The group closed their meeting with a friendshi circle and sang "Silent Night," followed by a closing prayer led by Mrs. Roy Landers.

Other members present were Mmes. Joe Brown, R.C. Bain, Don Houle, Buck Barnett, C.E. Coleman, Coy Tice, Velma Carroll, Alease Hodson, and Bennie Manley.

This past Sunday the class met in the home of Mrs. J.K. Fore for their lesson.

When the girls were at home, we had a trailer and went to Ute Lake fairly often to fish and ski."

The Owens are also football fans, and attended most of the Hereford High School games. When the girls were at home they were involved in pep squad and drill team, and one year Brenda was the team mascot. They were also involved in choir, and Beth starred in "Oklahoma" her senior year.

The two recipes which follow are not too difficult, said Bettye, and the Pineapple Delight is a special favorite of the girls.

PINEAPPLE DELIGHT
1 lb. vanilla wafers, crushed
2 eggs
1 1/2 c. powdered sugar
1/4 lb. butter (melted)
1/2 pt. heavy cream
1 No. 2 Can pineapple
Beat eggs, add powdered sugar and melted butter; and beat together.
Whip heavy cream and beat until very thick. Add can of pineapple and mix well. Add to egg mixture and beat well.

Butter long pan, and putlayer of crumbs on bottom. Pour mixture on top of crumbs, and then top with more crumbs.

+May use strawberries in place of pineapple. Works best if both are drained.

7-UP APPLESAUCE SALAD
1 pkg. lemon orlime jello (3 oz.)
1 c. hot applesauce
1 bottle 7-up (7 oz. size)
1 t. lemon juice
1 c. chopped celery
1/2 c. sliced, stuffed olives
1/2 c. chopped nuts

Dissolve jello in hot applesauce. Add cold 7-up, blending gently. Chill, then add celery, olives, nuts, and lemon juice.
Place in desired dish or mold and put in refrigerator. This is very good with ham or pork roast.

Music Club Enjoys Christmas Program

Members of the Hereford Music Study Club enjoyed a Christmas party on Monday evening in the home of Mrs. J.R. Allison. President Mrs. Lynton Allred conducted a short business meeting and welcomed a guest, Mrs. Joe Wallace.

The hymn of the month, "To us a Child is Born," was directed by Mrs. Ken Waiser and accompanied by Mrs. Wayne Thomas. Members made a special donation to the club scholarship fund.

Mrs. Bob Sims served as program leader. She presented a beautiful poem about the holidays. The first solo on the program was "Merry Christmas, Darling," sung by Mrs. Sid Shaw and accompanied by Mrs. Waiser.

Mrs. Thomas Betzen and Mrs. A.J. Schroeter joined together to play two organ-piano duets. They were entitled "Ring Out Ye Wild and Merry Bells" and "Venita Adoremus."

A vocal ensemble sang "Winter Wonderland" and "Chestnuts Roasting on an Open Fire." Those participating in the ensemble were Mmes. Tom Burdett, Allred, Joe Reinauer, Jr., Shaw, Bill Bradley, Brent Caviness, A.T. Griffin, Sims and Wesley Fisher. Mrs. Burdett was featured soloist and the group was accompanied by Mrs. Thomas.

Members reflected upon memories of past Christmas as Mrs. J.C. McCracken gave her traditional presentation of the piano solo, "Silent Night." To conclude the meeting, Mrs. Waiser led the group in selected carols.

Co-hostesses for the meeting were Mmes. W.T. Carmichael, Paul Lyons, J.D. Neill, and Schroeter.

Other members attending were Mmes. Allen Cansler, Joe Hacker, Ed Line, Harold close, R.P. Coneway, C.J. Mountz, and S.O. Wilson; and Theresa Vines, Mary Carter, and Frances Dameron.

Study Club Meets For Annual Christmas Party

LaPlata Study Club met in the home of Carolyn Johnson Tuesday night for its annual Christmas party. Serving as co-hostesses were Clara Brown and Rosemary Shook. Gifts were exchanged by playing a game. Mrs. Johnson entertained the club by reading a poem entitled "Annie and Willy's Prayer" which was printed in a book copyrighted in 1936.

During the business meeting, which was conducted by Lucy Rogers, president, plans were finalized to assist others with the fund raising project for the Lung Association.

Mrs. Rogers read a letter from the Ken Hollingsworth family who is with the Wycliffe Bible Translators.

Refreshments were served from a table decorated with the Christmas theme.

Attending were Mary Helen Askew, Ruby Boston, Sunny Brush, Audine Dettman, Sherry Hoover, Monelle Neill, Lavon Nieman, Carla Patterson, Margaret Schroeter, Sue Sims, Betty Taylor, Avis White, Virginia Woodford, the president and the hostesses.

The club's next meeting will be Jan. 19 in the home of Mrs. Askew.

Party Set For Friday

The Hereford Senior Citizens will be having a Christmas party Friday night at 6 p.m. at the Senior Citizens Center, 406 W. 4th. The party will also be honoring those with December birthdays.

All senior citizens are invited to attend, and everyone is asked to bring favorite Christmas goodies.

Bungalow comes from the Hindustani "bengla" meaning "of or belonging to Bengal." Bungalows were the types of houses occupied by Europeans in Malaysia, resembling the homes common to the natives of Bengal.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

All you "undecideds" out there...and you all know who you are...are going to have to shape up. You're screwing up the polls.

How can we tabulate percentages of people who are for or against something when the majority of the people are checking the little box marked, "Undecided," "No Opinion," "Don't Care," "Don't ever want to discuss this again?"

How long does it take to make up your mind about something of grievous importance? Recently, there was a poll asking whether or not the public favored Prince Charles and Lady Di having a baby the first year or waiting awhile. Thirty-three percent said Yes, 12 percent said No, and 55 percent didn't have an opinion.

Prince Charles and Lady Di couldn't wait around forever, so they're having a baby anyway and taking a chance that some of you will swing over and make it unanimous.

Sometimes I get the feeling marking the undecided box is a habit we slip into to keep from making a commitment to something. I offer as evidence a recent polling where Americans were asked if they favored clean air. Seventy percent said Yes, 2 percent said No, and 28 percent hadn't made up their minds yet.

I have never in my life met an "undecided" face to face. On the contrary, most of the people I know carry placards and bullhorns.

In my mind, I visualize them as quiet pacifists who never make waves and play it safe and conservative. They sit around evenings watching whatever the Nielsen family watches. They eat vanilla ice cream, and don't know how they feel about anything until they see a bumper sticker on it.

The difficulty in making a decision is overrated. There's nothing to it. You don't even have to know what you're talking about. I saw a show once where people on the street were asked how they felt about Mendacity. (A word meaning dishonest.)

One person said she thought they should do a telethon for it. Another said he thought he was becoming a dictator and should be removed from office by force. Fifteen people said they were undecided about how to get rid of it and would have to think about it.

My question to "undecideds" is, "When will you know?"

Kingdom Seekers Hold Party

On Tuesday evening Mrs. Billy Wall was hostess to members of the Kingdom Seekers Sunday School class from Avenue Baptist Church for their annual Christmas party. Her home was beautifully decorated for the holiday season. The refreshment table was covered with a red cloth and held a large white ceramic Christmas tree with white doves and red candles.

Members exchanged secret pal gifts and drew names for next year. Fun gifts were also exchanged as part of the recreation led by Mrs. G.W. Duncan.

The opening prayer was led by Mrs. Homer Thomas and the devotional, entitled "Praise of Jesus" was given by Mrs. Johnny Townsend.

The group closed their meeting with a friendshi circle and sang "Silent Night," followed by a closing prayer led by Mrs. Roy Landers.

Other members present were Mmes. Joe Brown, R.C. Bain, Don Houle, Buck Barnett, C.E. Coleman, Coy Tice, Velma Carroll, Alease Hodson, and Bennie Manley.

Behind the Scenes

The ultimate "Movie Game"

by J.T. Yurko
Hollywood—it has often been said that Hollywood is rapidly becoming a "business community" rather than an "artistic performing community." After all it seems that producers don't make movies, they make movie deals; they don't put together a film, they put together a package. If "Let's Make A Deal" can be a game show, then why can't "Let's Make A Movie Deal" be a board game?
Such is the thinking of 33-year-old Frank Sacks who has put together a board game entitled simply enough "The Movie Game." As a former talent agent, the game shows every sign of being so successful that the agenting has taken a back seat to his pet project, at least until the Christmas season is over anyway.
During the actors' strike of last year, the light bulb of inspiration went on and after a nine-month gestation period, "The Movie Game" was born. Basically the game is a wheel-and-dealing event based on what it takes in the real Hollywood to get a project started. The object is to get a film made, and this is done by collecting five studio cards, distribute the movie by collecting distributing cards and, of course, win the game by getting to the box-office.
Perhaps the mark of the success of the game is that it is being sold in the stores of four of the five major studios. But the game is not just an "in joke" in the Hollywood community, it's being sold all over the country in stores ranging from Macy's in New York to Penny's in Oregon. Sounds all too easy, right? According to Mr. Sacks, it was just the opposite.
"People in the game industry told me the odds of getting the game sold were 100 to one. Now that I've done it, I think the odds are closer to 1,000 to one."
Talking from his home in California, which has just been converted to an office, Frank Sacks is quietly confident that, as games go, he has a hit on his hands. "About four weeks ago I left the agency business to concentrate on the game, but I look some of my best clients with me, people I've had for years such as Camilla Sprav, Robin Clarke, and several writers and directors. I've got enough phones in my house to make it look like a bookie joint."
Coming from the movie business gave him the idea for the game, but not coming from the game business meant he had to learn as he went along. "As I put the game together and refined it I knew it would take money to launch it. I showed it to a friend Pat Reynolds, heir to the Reynolds Aluminum estate. With an initial investment of only $20,000, I produced one-thousand games, but trying to distribute them was another matter. The current toy and game industry wouldn't talk to me, so I decided to do it all by myself."
Mr. Sacks' game seems to be successful enough even to the point of "it's being played in Peoria," and like any success in Hollywood, Mr. Sacks is looking for a sequel.

"On Golden Pond," from Universal Pictures. Directed by Mark Rydell. Written by Ernest Thompson. Starring Henry Fonda, Katharine Hepburn, Jane Fonda. Rated "PG." ★ ★ ★

"ON GOLDEN POND"

By J.T. YURKO—FILM CRITIC

Certainly "On Golden Pond" is one of the most eagerly awaited films of the year. Insiders who managed to attend early screenings of the film came out with nothing but raves for Henry Fonda's performance, saying he was practically a shoe-in for an Academy Award.

REVIEW

On this point I have no argument. Henry Fonda's portrayal of a witty but cantankerous old man knowing that death is just around the corner is one of the best performances of his career, and when you've had a career like Henry Fonda's, that's saying a lot. But the film itself leaves much to be desired. For Henry Fonda as well as Kate Hepburn's performance, this film should be seen, but expect little more than that.
Notice that I've taken care to say Henry Fonda's performance, as Jane Fonda also has a key role in the film, that of Henry Fonda's daughter—definitely a role she was... born to play.
Her character is part of what's wrong with the film, and in truth, it's not really her fault. The script by Ernest Thompson, based on his own play, calls for Jane and Henry to be at odds. She was a fine daughter, but never really a friend to her father. Perhaps he wanted a son. Perhaps he was just too overbearing. Perhaps. We never find out.
To be sure, Henry Fonda has some of the funniest one-liners and comebacks seen in many a moon—lines Neil Simon would give his Smith-Corona for. Yet even that is at odds with the film's plot. Here's Jane Fonda, come to visit this wonderfully witty, delightful old man who keeps the audience in stitches, but for some reason Jane is in tears. We never know the reason why she slips into a twitching neuroses at the very sight of her father when the film has so marvelously depicted him as a crafty codger.

The other part of the story, that of Hank Fonda and a typical California 12-year-old and their relationship, is far more convincing and much more enjoyable. Director Mark Rydell makes the most of a wordy but witty script, and Thompson's script in the hand of Fonda and Hepburn is a joy from minute to minute, but in overall perspective it loses its gloss to fuzzy motivations.

Ann Landers Parents Can't Be Perfect

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The following article is by Chaplain Henry T. Close of Atlanta, Ga. While it concerns your relationships with your own parents, it can be applied as well to your relationships with your children. The message is clear: no one can be EVERYTHING to ANYONE.
 There is no question but that your parents failed you. All parents fail their children, and yours are no exception. No parent is adequate for the job of being a parent, because no parent has enough love, or wisdom, or maturity, or whatever, to succeed. This means that part of your task is to supplement what your parents have given you and find other sources of parenting. You need more mothering than your mother could give you, more fathering than your father had to offer, more brothering and sistering than you got from your siblings.
 The problem is complicated by the demands our society makes on parents. They are supposed to be 100 percent perfect, and it is a terrible disgrace if they are not.
 If parents are successful, society tells us their children will reward them with love, obedience and they will be high achievers. If the parents are not successful, we are told, children will turn out to be hateful, disobedient and failures.
 Parents who buy this notion place themselves in an impossible position. They try to be 100 percent perfect. When they fail, they try to AP-

Networks Selling Comedy May Exaggerate A Little

NEW YORK (AP) — It all boils down to credibility. If ABC's press releases constantly claim that each of its dozen comedies is a hilarious laugh riot, who's going to believe it when those shows actually are funny?
 —"Laverne and Shirley swing to new heights of hilarity when they find themselves appearing on television as part of a Latvian acrobatic act in an effort to help zany neighbors Lenny and Squiggy launch their tacky talent agency" in "Laverne and Shirley."
 —"Shock waves bowl over the Rush household with the startling announcement that Muriel, 42, is going to have a baby; throwing Henry into lofty euphoria and plunging Jackie and Sara into a sea of embarrassment" on "Too Close for Comfort."
 —"Jack faces a breathtaking comical crisis when he's forced to borrow Terri's CPR dummy in a wild scheme aimed at convincing his employer's daughter that he's really a married man" in "Three's Company."
 Just like ice cream, comedy comes in many flavors. Some people think Bob Hope is funny; some people favor "Saturday Night Live." But no network goes to greater lengths than ABC to consciously and subconsciously influence the public and television writers with exaggerated and hyped-up publicity information.
 CBS and NBC, which have inflated views about their programs — just as ABC does — also produce reams of program information, designed to advise and interest TV writers. But their copy takes a softer sell and is more likely informational than persuasive.
 ABC also has successfully brought promotion to news. Ted Koppel on a Friday "Nightline" might suggest we watch David Brinkley's Sunday morning program.

Today In History

By The Associated Press
 Today is Thursday, Dec. 17, the 351st day of 1981. There are 14 days left in the year.
 Today's highlight in history:
 On Dec. 17, 1538, Pope Paul III excommunicated England's King Henry VIII.
 On this date:
 In 1531, the Portuguese Inquisition began under Pope Clement VII.
 In 1830, South American patriot Simon Bolivar died in Colombia.
 In 1965, Britain imposed an oil embargo on Rhodesia.
 And in 1973, Arab guerrillas attacked a U.S. jetliner at an airport in Rome, killing 31 people.
 Ten years ago: The 15-day-old India-Pakistan war ended with a cease-fire in West Pakistan.
 Five years ago: The Soviet Union freed its most prominent imprisoned dissident, Vladimir Bukovsky, in exchange for the release by Chile of the jailed Communist Party leader, Luis Corvalan.
 One year ago: The Senate Armed Services Committee called for a renegotiation of the Salt II treaty with the Soviets, saying the pact would not serve the best interests of the U.S.
 Today's birthday: Author Erskine Caldwell is 78.
 Thought for today: Education is that which remains when one has forgotten everything he learned in school. — Albert Einstein, German-born physicist (1879-1955).

Administration Seriously Concerned For Internments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is "seriously concerned" that large numbers of workers, intellectuals and students have been interned in Poland and that Solidarity union leader Lech Walesa is "not a free agent."

"If this is true, it will be hard to reconcile with the Polish government's commitment to continuation of the reform process and to political solutions," said State Department spokesman Dean Fischer.

Department sources say unconfirmed reports indicate some of those arrested under the Polish government's martial law decrees are being mistreated and not given warm clothing to ward off the winter cold.

Meanwhile, the White House said Wednesday, for the first time publicly, that apparent pressure from the Soviet Union caused the martial law crackdown on the Solidarity union movement.

"It is clear that Soviet pressure very likely contributed to the Polish decision," said White House spokesman David Gergen. And officials repeated warnings that any intervention in Poland by Soviet troops would have "a severe and lasting effect on East-West relations," including the likely imposition of a trade embargo.

At the State Department, Fischer said the Polish and Soviet governments have been told once again that the United States believes "the Polish people should settle their current difficulties through a process of negotiation and compromise, without outside interference."

A "special situation group" headed by Vice President George Bush and created by President Reagan met to monitor events in Poland and to draw up options for possible U.S. responses.

Existence of the group was not disclosed until after it held its second formal session Wednesday. Its members include the secretaries of state and defense, the director of the CIA, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the president's national security adviser and Reagan's three top White House aides. United Nations Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick also attended Wednesday's 90-minute session.

At the State Department, spokesman Fischer said, "The Polish military remains active but we have not seen evidence of 'unusual Soviet military activities.'"

Other U.S. officials, speaking on the condition they not be identified, said the chance of Soviet intervention would increase considerably in the event of a popular insurrection against Poland's new military regime.

Polish Ambassador Romuald Spasowski met with State Department officials for the fourth consecutive day and told reporters afterward: "It appears to me that the crisis is deepening."

He added that food is in short supply and that with the worst of the Polish winter approaching living conditions are "extremely difficult."

"Imagine what kinds of hardships the Polish people are facing," Spasowski said. "I think all over the world people should think about this and understand it."

Winner of Shotgun

Armando Torres, center, won the VFW Ladies Auxiliary shotgun in a drawing Saturday. Presenting the .12 gauge automatic rifle is Helen Sowel, Auxiliary president. With them is Ruth Stetham, who sold Torres the winning ticket.

Boy Shot; How Still Unknown

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — An autopsy has been ordered for a 2-year-old boy who died after a gun discharged while he was playing with his brother.

Rosbel Gomez Jr. died at 11:28 a.m. Wednesday at McAllen Methodist Hospital, after being taken there Tuesday with a bullet wound in the back of the head, said Edinburg police Major R.C. Garza.

"It's hard to say what happened," Garza said. "We found a pistol, a .22-caliber, lying in the bed there in the room."

Garza said the 2-year-old was playing with his 4-year-old brother when the incident occurred at their grandparents' house.

"We first heard that he fell from the bed. That was the first story," Garza said.

After examining the child, hospital officials discovered a bullet wound in the back of his head. Hospital workers notified child welfare authorities, who in turn called police, Garza said.

Also in the house at the time was a couple babysitting five or six other children while the grandparents were attending a funeral in nearby McAllen, the officer said.

The children's mother died two months ago in an accident, Garza said.

"There's been a lot of tragedy in that family," he said. "We're going to wait until after the funeral and then have a full investigation."

Reagan Accomplishments Piled High For 1981

WASHINGTON (AP) — What Republicans see as a "signal record of accomplishments," Democrats call a lost year. But both sides agree that the GOP-dominated 1981 session of Congress produced an impressive string of victories for President Reagan.

"We lost. One can't argue with the arithmetic," said a vanquished Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia.

In the House, where a Democratic majority didn't keep members from voting with Republicans on all major Reagan-supported economic bills, Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. declared, "We have given the president of the United States everything he wanted."

Congress concluded a session Wednesday in which economic legislation was the principal order of business. It returns Jan. 25, the day before the president's scheduled State of the Union address.

Since convening last January, the 97th Congress has ratified nearly everything Reagan requested — including the largest income tax reduction in history, deep cuts in government spending and a record $200 billion defense budget.

Reagan also scored an important foreign policy victory this fall when Congress went along with his plan to sell AWACS radar planes and other weapons to Saudi Arabia.

"The Senate compiled a signal record of accomplishments in domestic and foreign affairs," said Senate Republican leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee, as the Senate closed out its first year of Republican dominance since 1964. But Democratic Whip Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., claimed: "Every victory for Ronald Reagan has been a defeat for the American people. America has lost a year — a year has gone by as America has slipped backwards instead of forward."

And while the House remained under formal Democratic control, the fate of major legislation rested with a coalition of Republicans and conservative Southern Democrats — the "boll weevils" — able to deliver victories to Reagan again and again.

Because of its concentration on major economic measures, Congress produced fewer bills this year than in any recent session — less than 100 this year compared to 428 in 1980.

Delayed until next year were a variety of social issues dear to conservatives — including abortion, school prayer and busing. But Congress may be as preoccupied with the budget as it was this year.

Despite the Reagan-led effort to slash spending, the government faces a $100 billion deficit and a national debt that recently inched past the $1 trillion mark.

Reagan is expected to have a tougher time winning approval for more budget cuts, with even some of his GOP backers suggesting they don't have the stomach for another round of deep reductions in social programs — especially in what will be an election year for one-third of the Senate and the entire 435-member House.

Cities Get Tough on Parking Fine Collections

By JAMES LITKE
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — You can feel the mood darken as she enters the courtroom — smiles melt into scowls and formerly bright eyes take on a mournful hue. Demurely, the meter maid, that light of the law, that paragon of parking, makes her way to the bench.

And little more than an hour later, Richard Friedman stands in a cashier's line, and thinks, "Every dog has his day. Why not me?" Chicago, like cities everywhere, is suddenly very interested in the money that parking fines represent in these days of shrinking federal revenues. That interest has translated into get-tough policies that would chill even the most calloused double-parker.

Earlier, Friedman, his spirits high, had walked into Judge Glenn Fowlkes' courtroom, already crammed with 100 others, braced to battle the city over parking tickets.

"How do you like that?" Friedman said to no one in particular. "If she doesn't show up, we all walk."

There were sympathetic nods all around, but the fighting spirit waned when that slim, blonde woman — looking solemn in her bowtie and bright green suit — took her place beside the bench.

Although nearly half of those charged plead not guilty, the meter maid, her features impassive, faced down 73 offenders one after another and didn't lose a case.

Not all her opponents conceded.

Number 34 was a small, young woman whose pregnancy was fast nearing its end. She told Fowlkes the muffler had fallen off her car at the spot and on the day in question. Producing a receipt to verify the claim, she went on about having to find a telephone to get a ride and being unwilling to go far "in my condition."

Even as Fowlkes appeared to soften, the meter maid — who so far had stood by silently — asked in a low voice, "Every day?"

"What was that?" the judge said. "Every day?" the maid replied, turning toward the woman. "Every day? I know this (license plate) number pretty well. I ticket it just about every day."

"Twenty and ten," said Fowlkes. "Twenty dollars for the ticket and ten dollars court costs."

And the quest for parking-ticket fees is being replayed across the country:

— In DeKalb County, Ga., police are going door-to-door to collect delinquent fines, demanding a cash bond on the spot or a trip to jail.

— In Detroit, Chief Traffic Court Judge M. John Shamo signaled that city's crackdown by ordering Mabel Adamson to pay $3,000 of the $7,000 worth of tickets she ran up since 1978. Under a $100-a-month plan, Ms. Adamson won't retire her debt until August 1983.

"People thought this crackdown was a big joke, but we're just lacing up that boot until it chokes them," said Judge Harvey Baxter, pointing proudly to parking-ticket revenue of $350,000 a month, a 20 percent improvement over the previous year.

— In New York, Wilfred Flowers, an employee of the federal government earned the uncontested title of "King of the Scofflaws" by accumulating $162,000 in parking fines between 1975 and 1979. Although he claimed he sold the car to a relative, the transfer was ruled improper. He was found guilty and a judge ordered his salary garnished for $28,000.

Like California, New York has a stop-gap system that prevents motorists from renewing state license plates

By June, the city was averaging revenue of $375,000 a month from tickets against just $1 million collected during the previous year.

— In Miami and Washington D.C., a scofflaw gets a notice to make good on the fines or face the "boot" — a metallic device that locks on the wheel of an auto, rendering it immobile.

Ruiz Robbery Case Turning Into Fued

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The David Ruiz armed robbery case is developing into a battle among members of a large family, played out within the walls of a state district courtroom.

Ruiz is charged with the Nov. 15 armed robbery of an East Austin bar.

A conviction could send him back — for life — to the Texas Department of Corrections, a prison system he helped change by filing a 1972 federal lawsuit alleging violation of inmates' rights.

The players in the Ruiz family drama include Rose Marie Regalado — his once and future wife — and two nephews indicted with Ruiz.

Wednesday, during a hearing to determine if Ruiz will be released on bond until his trial, Mrs. Regalado said Ruiz was with her and friends when the Scoot Inn was robbed.

She said she is separated from her present husband and has lived with Ruiz since shortly after his June parole.

Mrs. Regalado said she is three months pregnant with her ex-husband's baby.

Kimberly Espinoza, a Scoot Inn employee, identified Ruiz in court as one of the robbers. Defense lawyer Bob Looney clouded her credibility by pointing out she has a brother in prison who comes up for parole early next year.

Two other witnesses from the bar were unable Wednesday to identify Ruiz as one of the robbers.

Ruiz is hobbled by a back injury and dislocated wrist suffered in falls, according to his ex-wife. He is a concerned ex-convict, eager to help others in trouble, she said.

She and Ruiz, one of 13 children, were married in 1967, "probably September or October," she said. They divorced while he was in prison and later went through a custody battle over their daughter Eva, now 13.

The former Mrs. Ruiz remarried in 1971.

Jeffrey Ruiz, son of David Ruiz' late brother Jesse, was called to the witness stand Wednesday but invoked his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination.

Looney wanted to question Jeffrey Ruiz about his criminal record. Jeffrey Ruiz was released from state prison two days before the Scoot Inn robbery, Looney told reporters.

David Ruiz says his nephew is cooperating with police to get a lighter sentence or immunity. Looney tried to bring that out in court Wednesday, but prosecutor Phillip Nelson said, "The district attorney has made no immunity agreement with this witness."

Mrs. Regalado's testimony placed her ex-husband in Toledo, Ohio, in November 1967. Officials in Toledo say they have an outstanding warrant charging Ruiz with killing a man in Toledo in November 1967.

if tickets are outstanding against that plate.

"That is just about the perfect system," said Anthony T. Bertuca, chief assistant corporation counsel assigned to Chicago's Traffic Court. "That would aid us immensely, but to get it done would take cooperation from the city and state that just hasn't been there yet."

"I know it has been discussed in (legislative) committees from time to time, but as yet state legislators have not deemed it important enough," he added.

But states, like the cities that stand to benefit most from any such arrangement, might change their minds by taking a look at the figures.

This fiscal year, New York — like its scofflaws, the uncontested leader in the field — took in $94 million in parking fines as the result of 9.6 million summonses.

Chicago figures to collect about $22 million in parking-tickets — four million tickets that will be handed out by uniformed policemen and Meter Maids.

Of the remaining 2.3 million tickets, an unknown number will be dismissed in court, said Bertuca. Others will be dismissed, he added, because of error.

"The smooth flow of traffic is the first priority of this system and the court does not want to be used as a revenue-raising device," said Bertuca. "But when you start taking a hard look at some of these figures, it's real money that we're talking about. And cities want to get some of that."

Law Officials At Odds On Improvement Plans

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Two dozen top Texas law enforcement officials agreed the state's criminal justice system needs help, but were at odds over whether to get tough with offenders or support alternatives to imprisonment.

Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton and other legislators heard Wednesday from police and prison officials, educators and lawyers who serve on an advisory board to the Interim Committee to Study the Criminal Justice System of Texas.

After three hours of arguing, board members agreed that any solution to Texas' burgeoning crime problem means funneling scarce state money into new or existing programs.

Jim Adams, director of the Department of Public Safety, blamed a rise in crime to the state's population boom and the "inability of the state to provide sufficient funding to deal with social problems" that accompany the influx.

"We need to look at alternatives to prosecuting these people," said Adams, complaining that juries reluctant to hand out harsh mandatory sentences sometimes turn offenders loose.

"I've never been an advocate of severe punishment," Adams said, "just the surety of punishment."

Jail terms instead of probation for first offenders were recommended by Austin criminal defense lawyer Roy Minton.

"We make a mistake in thinking we're going to try probation first and prison second," Minton said. "When a kid rips a tape deck out of a car or a stereo out of a house, they've got to know they're going to jail."

He said young offenders expected to be released to their parents or given probation, but should be sent to "community prisons of some kind."

"And put on there 'Jail' — j-a-i-l — so they have no misconception about where they're going," said Minton.

Adult Probation Commission Executive Director Don Stiles argued that Texas tried that approach in the 1960s when it handed out "20-year sentences for possession of two or three ounces of marijuana."

"We're trying to find some magic solution," Stiles said. "But the problem is simply the system has more people coming through it than the system was designed for."

But Adams insisted there are "people not in the system who ought to be" and decried any policy of "ignoring criminal activity because it won't fit into the schedule."

Pardons and Parole Board Chairman Ruben Torres called on educators to attack the crime problem at its root — the youthful offender.

"The average education level is the eighth grade in the Texas Department of Corrections," Torres said. "We need to attack crime at the junior high level, because that's when they start getting into trouble."

TDC Director Jim Estelle said 85 percent of Texas prison inmates are high school dropouts, and "most prudent people would draw a correlation" between the two.

Oldtimers Game Has Banks, Aaron

NEW YORK (AP) — For Ernie Banks, it's a chance to return to the place he loves best: The baseball diamond. "Can we play tomorrow?" Banks said as he helped unveil plans Wednesday for a baseball oldtimers All-Star Game. Then, with a line he uttered repeatedly while earning his way into the Hall of Fame with the Chicago Cubs, Banks added: "In fact, let's play two of them."

The All-Star game is being planned for next summer, with part of the revenues benefitting the Association of Professional Baseball Players of America, an organization which cares for ill or indigent ex-players.

To be played at a major league stadium, the contest will be sponsored by Cracker Jack.

Tal Smith, former major league executive and chairman of the game's advisory committee, said the exact date and site of the game are still to be determined.

The two all-star teams will be selected by fan balloting. To be eligible, a player must have participated in a major league All Star Game during his career and have been retired from baseball for at least one year.

Each team will have 30-35 players, with oldtimers also serving as managers, coaches and umpires.

Banks, who retired from baseball 11 years ago, said he is excited by the prospect of the game, which planners hope will become yearly. "We won't be stumbling and fumbling around," said Banks. "We're in our nifty 50s. This is an opportunity to start on our training program."

Turning to Hank Aaron, baseball's all-time home run king who is now an executive with the Atlanta Braves, Banks said: "After we leave here, Hank and I are going straight to Central Park and run five miles."

Aaron laughed. "Ernie wants to play," he said. "He still thinks he's going to win a pennant. But with all his good humor and charisma, he still finished in last place."

Aaron, who is eligible for the Hall of Fame for the first time in this year's balloting, said he hasn't picked up a bat in three years, but that he would work out before playing in the oldtimers game.

"No way will I go up there against some fastball guy like Tommy Boggs," he said. "But I'll take my chances against (knuckleballer) Phil Niekro."

Because of his work in the Braves' front office, Aaron said, he has been unable to play in many oldtimers events.

"But I'm looking forward to playing in this one," he added. "Because it's a game that's going to benefit... It's a tremendous thing when you can put dollars back into something that's going to benefit old-time ballplayers."

Loss of Leaders Hurting Indiana

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Indiana lost more than its top scorers when Isaiah Thomas and Ray Tolbert departed for the National Basketball Association.

The defending NCAA champions also lost their floor leaders, those who inspire everyone else to work just a little bit harder. Without that kind of leadership, says Coach Bobby Knight, no team can be truly great.

"There are very, very few naturally gifted leaders in athletics, and most (leaders) are intelligent people who understand what you're doing, who work at getting other people to also understand what you're doing," says Knight, whose new team leader appears to be forward Ted Kitchel.

The 6-foot-8 junior is also Indiana's top scorer at better than 21 points a game, but his increasing floor leadership has helped the Hoosiers to five victories in their first six starts.

"Kitchel has really done a good job at leadership the past six days," Knight said after Monday's 77-59 victory over Tulane. "He did the things he had to do to get the kids to play. You can make everyone else better as a leader, and that's a real asset to a team."

Earlier in Bloomington, Knight discussed leadership. "We have always had a tendency to recruit kids who listen," he said. "Our kids all have kind of a reserve personality and approach to things. We work hard at developing communication and developing an awareness of talking on the floor."

"Tolbert was very good. Tolbert's a talkative kid, and naturally so. As he learned what we were doing and became more and more familiar with our play, he just became a very, very good player for us in ball games in terms of direction and talking about what was going on at both ends of the floor."

"I don't think a team can develop into a real good basketball team without good, on-the-floor leadership. The really good leader is the guy who has the knack and understanding of how and when to lead."

"In (Queen) Buckner, you had the absolute best ever," Knight said of the former Hoosier guard now with the NBA Milwaukee Bucks. "Buckner was like a Pied Piper. They'd follow him anywhere. He could play very poorly and still get guys to do things. He has an incredible knack and a great way about doing it."

"And there was something about Buckner, if and when he wasn't playing well and was required to get on somebody else in the process, then it usually helped him play better, too. Because I think he was aware of his making a demand of you and then trying to fulfill that demand himself."

Johnson Says Uncertainty Reigning During Holdout

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer

Marques Johnson, the splendid Milwaukee forward who signed an eight-year contract estimated at $1 million per year last week, says that during his holdout there were times he believed he would have to sit out the season or sign with another team.

"I felt a lot of times that progress with the Bucks wasn't what I'd like it to be," says the former UCLA star now in his fifth National Basketball Association season. "I thought it might mean missing the whole season. And there was a point where I thought the best thing would be to go to another team."

Johnson said the Milwaukee media were generally fair during his holdout, which caused him to miss all of training camp and the first 18 games of the regular season.

"There was some negative press, like when it was said I turned down a $1 million a year contract for eight years," Johnson said. "I'm not dumb enough to do that."

He and the team have agreed not to publicly discuss the specifics of his contract, but he said the difference between the final agreement and what he turned down earlier had more to do with insurance, guarantees and deferred payments than dollar amounts.

"There were some boos the first night I came back, and that's understandable," Johnson said. "A lot of people thing I did something wrong, but as an all-star forward (the last three years) I wanted to be paid fairly."

Johnson had two years remaining on his original six-year contract with the Bucks and had wanted a new one for three years.

"My agent, Willie Nauls, has tried to make it clear that the whole thing was between me and management," said Johnson.

Old Dominion Star Wants 'Champion Feeling' Again

NEW YORK (AP) — Anne Donovan knows how it feels to be crowned champion. She wants the feeling again.

The 6-foot-3 center from Ridgewood, N.J., was a freshman starter when Old Dominion won the 1980 Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women's basketball title. But that was when Old Dominion was powered by All-American Nancy Lieberman and 6-3 center Inge Nissen.

Now, Donovan is the center of attraction.

She will lead Old Dominion against Cheyney State Saturday afternoon in the opening game of the third annual Manufacturers Hanover Women's Christmas Classic at Madison Square Garden. Louisiana Tech, the defending national champion and two-time winner of the New York holiday event, takes on Rutgers in the second game of the double-header.

The tournament concludes Sunday with the consolation game beginning at noon.

KPAN Will Broadcast Championship Contest

The state class 6A high school championship football game between Houston Yates and Richardson Lake Highlands will be broadcast live from the Astrodome this Saturday over radio station KPAN, Hereford.

Air time will be 7:15 p.m. with the kickoff scheduled for 7:30 p.m., said officials of the Diamond Shamrock Corporation Oil and Gas Unit, sponsors of the championships.

Yates defeated San Antonio Churchill to earn their finals berth, while Lake Highlands defeated Hereford to gain their spot in the championship game.

Saturday's first-round starts at 1 p.m. EST.

"The most important time (for on-court development) was the first year when I played with Inge. It strengthened me up and got me used to playing the college game," said Donovan, who was the most sought-after college prospect in the

YMCA Sets Bowling League

The Hereford & Vicinity YMCA will conduct a bowling league beginning Jan. 7 for youths in grades 1-4. The league will run from 4-8 p.m. on Thursdays, lasting seven weeks.

All participants will be handicapped prior to the start of the league, and the teams are designed to have two boys and two girls each.

Registration forms for the league are available at the YMCA office at Sugarland Mall. Entries are due by Dec. 31, and team rosters will be available after Jan. 4.

Cost of the league is $25 for non-YMCA members, and $15 for YMCA members. All game equipment such as balls and shoes will be provided.

Those needing more information about the league may contact the YMCA office at the mall or by calling 364-0880.

nation when she was a high school senior. "Then, during the summers, I've played international ball and it's help develop me further."

Donovan is averaging 20.4 points and 13.4 rebounds a game for the Lady Monarchs, who have won all five of their starts this year. She also has blocked 39 shots.

"I'm enjoying school for the first time," she said in a telephone interview Wednesday. "I just declared my major this year and I'm finally having some fun."

She might be having fun, but on the basketball court, Old Dominion's opponents aren't laughing. The Lady Monarchs defeated Tennessee, ranked No. 2 in the nation at the time, by 12 points.

High School Basketball League Formed

The YMCA and Church of the Nazarene sponsored High School Basketball league will start on Monday, Jan. 11. The league is open to anyone in High School who is not playing on a High School team.

Team rosters are available at the YMCA and need to be turned in no later than Jan. 7.

Anderson Named QB

Chargers, Chiefs Dominate AFC Team

NEW YORK (AP) — Ken Anderson of Cincinnati, the National Football League's top-rated quarterback, heads the American Football Conference Pro Bowl squad announced today.

The San Diego Chargers and the Kansas City Chiefs each had five players picked for the team, which will play the AFC squad in Honolulu Jan. 31. Anderson was one of four Bengals chosen in balloting by the AFC's head coaches and NFL Players Association members. Other teams with four representatives included the Denver Broncos, the Houston Oilers and the New York Jets.

The AFC team, announced Wednesday, will be led by San Francisco quarterback Joe Montana, one of six others picked. He will be joined in the starting backfield by Tony Dorsett of Dallas, the NFL's top rusher, and Billy Sims of Detroit. Wide receiver James Lofton of Green Bay and defensive tackle Randy White of Dallas were the leading vote-getters in the AFC, while New England guard John Hannah topped the AFC balloting. The AFC leads the AFC in the series, 7-4, including victories in six of the past seven games. Picked with Anderson for the AFC's starting backfield were Houston's Earl Campbell, the conference's leading rusher, and Kansas City's Joe Delaney. The starting wide receivers were Denver's Steve Watson and Buffalo's Frank Lewis, with San Diego's Kellen Winslow at tight end.

On the offensive line, the voters picked Pittsburgh's Mike Webster at center, Hannah and San Diego's Doug Wilkerson at guards and the Jets' Marvin Powell and Cincinnati's Anthony Munoz at tackles.

The starting defensive line has the Jets' Mark Gastineau and Joe Klecko at ends, with San Diego's Gary Johnson and Miami's Bob Baumhower at tackles. Linebackers picked to start were Robert Brazile of Houston, Ted Hendricks of Oakland and Jack Lambert of Pittsburgh.

In the secondary, the starting cornerbacks were Oakland's Lester Hayes and Pittsburgh's Mel Blount, backed by Gary Babaro of Kansas City and Donnie Shell of Pittsburgh at safeties.

Pat McNally of Cincinnati will handle the AFC's punting, while Nick Lowery of Kansas City does the placekicking and Carl Roaches of Houston takes kick returns. The rest of the AFC starting offensive lineup included Mike Kenn of Atlanta and Pat Donovan of Dallas, tackles; Herb Scott of Dallas, guard, and Rich Saul of Los Angeles, center. On defense, the starters were Lee Roy Selmon of Tampa Bay and Ed Jones of Dallas, ends; Doug English of Detroit, tackle; Lawrence Taylor and Harry Carson of the New York Giants and Matt Blair of Minnesota, linebackers; Ronnie Lott of San Francisco and Roynell Young of Philadelphia, cornerbacks, and Gary Fencik of Chicago and Nolan Cromwell of Los Angeles, safeties.

Holmes, Cooney Slate Showdown

By ED SCHUYLER JR. AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "There's somebody on the horizon to take Larry Holmes," says the World Boxing Council heavyweight champion, "I'm getting the opportunity to shut up more mouths."

The somebody is Gerry Cooney. The horizon is March 15, when Cooney will become the 12th man to try to dethrone Holmes.

The pertinent information about the Cooney-Holmes bout already was known, but the two unbeaten fighters got together Wednesday at a news conference to kick off the promotional campaign for a fight at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas, Nev., in which each reportedly will receive $10 million and which stands to gross more money than any bout in history.

It is a fight which has all the ingredients needed for a big event — two unbeaten boxers, age vs. youth, age vs. experience, and enough questions to be answered to make any fight fan drool in anticipation.

Dennis Rappoport, who manages Cooney with Mike Jones, pointed out the age difference—Cooney is 25, Holmes 32. "Gerry's young, but he's not smarter," said Holmes.

"My prediction is to win," said Cooney who will go into the fight with just 3 minutes, 43 seconds of actual fighting in 17 months. The 6-foot-5 power puncher knocked out Ron Lyle at 2:49 of the first round Oct. 25, 1980, then ran his record to 25-0, with 21 knockouts, by knocking out Ken Norton at 54 seconds of the first round May 11. Won't the fact that many of his fights have ended early adversely affect him if he doesn't get to Holmes early, Cooney was asked?

"I hope when I get through, and I come to a press conference like this, you'll ask me the same question," replied Cooney.

Contending that Cooney has gained his No. 1 ranking by both the WBC and the World Boxing Association against generally weak opposition and has kept it with only the Norton fight this year, Holmes said. "This is a justice fight," said Holmes. "Wherever Cooney is today, we all know he doesn't deserve to be there."

"I promise you. I promise myself," said Holmes when asked if he thought he would knock out Cooney. "No prediction (on a specific round), but he's a 6-round fighter."

Holmes has defended the title four times beginning Oct. 2, 1980, when he stopped Muhammad Ali after 10 rounds. He then outpointed Trevor Berbick, knocked out Leon Spinks in 3 and stopped Renaldo Snipes in 11. But he was knocked down in the seventh round by Snipes. "I don't like to talk this

Cincinnati Wins 1,000th Collegiate Cage Game

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

At the start of this season, 24 college basketball teams had reached the 1,000-victory plateau and the Cincinnati Bearcats were on the verge of making the elite group.

Wednesday night, they joined the club. With Bobby Austin scoring 24 points and Dwight Jones 20, the Bearcats posted the 1,000th victory in the school's history with a 79-60 decision over Duquesne.

The Bearcats started playing basketball 81 seasons ago and their tallest accomplishments came in the 1959-1963 period, when they visited the Final Four five times under Ed Jucker and won the NCAA championship in 1961 and 1962.

This year's team may not be up to those earlier powerhouses, but Coach Cincinnati Ed Badger is content with a 3-1 season so far. "We really are where we want to be at this time," said Jucker. "We are young with freshman trouble. The one thing that pleased me tonight was our defense and our bench."

Jucker used all of his 12 players in the game which the Bearcats blew open in the first four minutes of the second half by taking a 37-24 lead.

"They got away from us in the second half," said Duquesne Coach Mike Rice. "I thought we had a chance when we held them to a small lead at the half (29-24) but they got away from us too fast at the start of the second half."

The 19th-ranked Georgetown Hoyas, only Top Twenty team in action Wednesday night, beat George Washington 61-48 as Eric Floyd scored 12 of his 17 points in the second half. "Eric was just doing what I expect him to do," said Georgetown Coach John Thompson of Floyd, who hit 7 of 10 shots from the floor.

"He's great. He does it when you have to have it." The presence of 7-foot freshman Pat Ewing has opened up the Georgetown offense this season.

"The shots are coming a lot easier," said Floyd. "They have to go back on Pat. Most teams would rather get beat on the outside than inside." Floyd, meanwhile, did what comes naturally. "The shots were there so I took them," he said. "If anyone else had them, they would have an obligation to shoot."

Elsewhere, Sean Tuohy hit six free throws in the last minute to help Mississippi beat Georgia 56-54; Harold Martin's 20 points led South Carolina over Brown 106-77; Kenny Wilson's 19 led Davidson past Appalachian State 64-62; Matt Houpt's free throw with 10 seconds left lifted UNC-Charlotte over Campbell 71-69.

Cosby Suggests Age Group Fights

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

Entertainer Bill Cosby was twirling his television dial the other night, when what to his wondering eyes should appear but 38-year-old Earnie Shavers, climbing into the ring once more.

A few minutes later, right after Shavers did his thing, why there was Muhammad Ali, age 39, acting out the Drama in the Bahamas.

Being a sensible sort of guy, Cos decided then and there that senior citizens like Shavers and Ali should be protected from reaching back for one more springtime when autumn has clearly set in. So he has come up with a solution which he offers, at absolutely no charge, to boxing's Social Security set.

"You know how tennis has tournaments for age classes like Men's 45 And Over, or Men's Seniors?" Cosby said. "Well, they should do the same thing in boxing. If you get older and you still want to fight, then you ought to be able to fight only against your own age group."

Cosby has a whole list of aging candidates for his tournament.

"There's Ron Lyle and Kenny Norton," he said. "Shavers, Ali, Joe Frazier, Scott LeDoux. We could even get Ernie Terrell and maybe Floyd Patterson. I don't know, though. Floyd might be past this."

There would, of course, be different rules for this group, in deference to their advanced years.

"The way I see it," said Cosby, "we would have two-minute rounds. Up till the eighth round, we'd have one-minute rest periods. Then, after that, we'd go to two-minute rests. If both men are still alive by round 11, we go to one-minute rounds with a two-minute rest."

The punches won't hurt much because Cosby's rules will require large, pillow gloves to reduce the chance of injury to the aging. And in the corners, there will be no stools.

"Nooof," said Cosby.

"We'll need recliners or maybe cots."

Cosby knows a little something about boxing. He is a ringside regular at all of the big fights in Las Vegas and, in fact, he had a ring career of his own.

"Yeah, I boxed for about one minute," he said. "I retired undefeated. I was 1-0."

His only fight came at age 12 in a Police Athletic League tournament in North Philadelphia.

"I had this terrible headache and I asked somebody why. He said 'That other man was hitting on you.' I said, 'Does that happen all the time?' and he said 'Yes.' I decided then that it wasn't a good idea."

DDT Traceable To Pesticide Plant

MISSION, Texas (AP) — Locally high levels of the toxic pesticide DDT could be traceable to a former pesticide manufacturing plant that closed 15 years ago, a television station reports.

The former Hayes-Sammons plant site in west Mission continues to show high levels of toxic pesticides which may drain off after rains, KGBT-TV in Harlingen reported Wednesday.

"We know the plant site itself contains some (pesticide) material. What we're interested in is if the material is going off the site and into the Arroyo Colorado (a natural drainage waterway)," Walker O'Brien of Black & Veatch consulting engineers told the station.

He said more studies are needed before engineers could determine if the DDT from the plant actually is seeping or running off into drainage canals or possibly the Rio Grande, source of drinking water.

The engineering firm was hired by the Lower Rio Grande Valley Development Council to find the source of high DDT levels in area drinking water and waterways.

O'Brien's second theory is that the DDT residues are left over from a time when the pesticide was widely used in the heavily agricultural region. Several farms tested showed higher levels of DDT in the soil than in water samples checked.

The Hayes-Sammons plant opened in 1952 and was operated by two other companies before closing. A company now manufactures oil field equipment inside the main building.

The EPA has sued to have the present owner seal the site to prevent DDT-laden dust from blowing over the area.

Part of the chemical plant was purchased by the Mission Consolidated Independent School District and is used to maintain school buses.

Following the EPA suit filed in 1980, the district paved its section, scrubbed the buses and treated any exposed soil that was not paved.

Some residents living across the street from the plant have complained of headaches, seizures and other reportedly unexplained illnesses they blame on the pesticide plant.

The Texas Department of Health reported this year that the plant poses no health hazard.

However, the television station reported an EPA toxicologist has warned of serious consequences from the plant.

"A farmworker could be exposed in one day to more pesticide at the Hayes-Sammons chemical site than he would in a year working in the field," toxicologist Bill McAnnelley said in an affidavit.

He reported finding large quantities of other toxic pesticides — lindane, chlordane, dieldrin and toxaphene — still present after 15 years.

Andy Hill, president of Tex-Ag Chemical which once operated the plant, said he doubted EPA claims about the plant. He said his company, which was named in the EPA suit, is considering a proposed consent order to clean up the site ...

"I don't feel there's a problem out there. DDT has been used for years and years ... Any of the GIs that came back from overseas were delighted with DDT when they were deloused."

Texas Almanac Fresh Off Press

If you want to know the 1980 census counts of Houston or Loving County or any other incorporated city, county or metropolitan area, you can find it in the 1982-1983 edition of the Texas Almanac, which is just off the press.

The new edition, published by The Dallas Morning News, features the 1980 Census along with an analysis of Texas' population shifts written by R.L. Skrabanek, professor of sociology and demographer at Texas A&M University. The book also contains tables of 130 years of population growth of Texas cities and counties.

Milazzo, director of University Archives at Southern Methodist University and a book critic of The Dallas Morning News.

Other special features include "Texas Energy: Trends and Outlook," by Dr. W.L. Fisher, director of the Bureau of Economic Geology at the University of Texas at Austin; and "History of the Republican party" by Kingston, a veteran Texas political writer.

An enlarged sports section provides what is probably the most complete account of records of Texas professional and amateur athletic teams.

The Almanac also features a special article on East Texas, written by Bob Bowman, author of several books on the region. Titled "East Texas: A Changing Region," Bowman's article says that at first it seems the sleepiest of lands - tall-timbered, a gently rolling piece of Texas pushed into its eastern corner, almost more southern than Texas.

"But when you look beyond the verdant forests and saddle-sloped hills, you begin to sense a livelier land - a region being reshaped by industrialization, tourism and an influx of Sunbelt newcomers lured here by a moderate climate, scenic beauty and an outdoors ethic...."

West Texas is also featured in a comprehensive article on McDonald Observatory, located in the David Mountains. Its author, Mike Kingston, Dallas Morning News editorial page writer, notes that the unpolluted view of the stars available from the observatory makes it one of the top astronomical sites in the world.

Persons who want to know more about Texas are provided a reading guide in a special article, "44 Books About Texas," written by Lee

World's Best Pilot Keeps On Learning

NEW YORK (NEA) — George Chrest, who is the world's best helicopter pilot, claims he still has a lot to learn about flying. After all, he's been doing it for less than three years.

Chrest, a U.S. Army chief warrant officer who flies as a scout pilot in OH-58 Bell Kiowas, admits he knows the secret of how to become so good so fast. Explains CWO2 Chrest: "You work at it, sir."

And he really does have the right to be called the best.

In a "sporting" event that gathered few U.S. headlines, Chrest, 30, earned the gold medal last August at the Fourth World Helicopter Championships in Poland. He dethroned Soviet ace Valdimir Schmirnov, the 1978 winner.

Flying helicopters is a far bigger sport in Europe than in the United States. In America, the Army — with 8,000 of the aircraft and 14,000 pilots — dominates the field of helicopters.

By contrast, the Soviet Union has a "sports" flight team that trains year-round in helicopters. As many as 8,000 Russian pilots competed for the few places on the Soviet national squad.

Talking about the enthusiasm among Russians for helicopters, Capt. Stephen Kee, a U.S. Army air operations officer, says, "It's probably comparable to what stock car racing is here."

Kee flew with Chrest as co-pilot/navigator at the world helicopter trials. He says Chrest really has what it takes to fly a chopper.

"We're talking about his ability to manipulate those controls and to fly that aircraft as the best pilot I have ever seen," says Kee.

Chrest and Kee are both members of Delta Troop, 1/9 Cavalry, First Cavalry Division, which is based at Fort Hood, Texas.

Together they led the United States to a team victory at Piotrkow Trybunalski, about 75 miles southwest of Warsaw. The U.S. debut at the civilian-oriented trials was sponsored by the Helicopter Club of America. Next after America in order of finish were West Germany, Poland, Russia and Britain. France was an unofficial participant.

An intense pilot who views himself as a pro rather than a hotshot, Chrest credits his world title to rigorous military training. He enlisted four years ago in order to learn to fly. Eventually, he joined a hand-picked Army flight team that was assembled to practice for the 1981 world competition.

About that unit, Chrest says, "I became a more proficient pilot, there's no doubt about that."

He was training for the four key trial events:

— Simulated rescue, a timed 30-minute flight that requires a helicopter to fly the last 5 kilometers without snaking, hovering, slowing up or visibly changing air speed. At the finish, a wine bottle on a short rope is lowered through a hole by the co-pilot to simulate the rescue.

— Precision hover, moving the helicopter on a constant heading forward and backward and from side to side above a 50-meter-square course of boxed lanes. Attached to the aircraft are ropes of 10 meters and 2 meters that determine the maximum and minimum heights.

— Navigation course, a timed 150-kilometer reconnaissance flight over a specified course — towns and farmland — marked by checkpoints and lettered panels. ("That is by far the most difficult event," says Kee.)

— Slalom course, a low-level flight over a course marked by gates. A bucket of water carried by the co-pilot at the end of a 5-meter rope must pass through the gates and be set precisely on a table.

Was Chrest nervous about trying to meet such tough standards?

He says, "The hardest part about it is the five minutes beforehand leading up to the event, going out there, starting the aircraft, hovering the aircraft over to your wait line."

"You look around and you see 2,000 people sitting there looking at you with a stopwatch in their hand. That's difficult."

Maj. Roy Mann, a flight training officer who led the U.S. Army team, says his flight crews were prepared in somewhat the same way that NASA trains astronauts.

Foreman Says Faulty Weld Possible Cause Of Collapse

HOUSTON (AP) — A man supervising ironworkers on a north Houston construction site says a faulty weld probably is what caused a ninth-floor iron canopy to collapse, killing one man and injuring three Wednesday.

Tim Ellis, 27, said a weld apparently broke on metal clips holding the beams together, hurling to the ground two men trying to weld the steel together. He said the clips, part of an 8-by-10-inch clamping device, were apparently not strong enough to hold the structure's weight.

"I heard everything snap," said Steve Jackson, an ironworker who was standing on the ground. "The man that's dead was off the beam and free-fell to the ground. The man that lived held onto the beam, which he was sitting on, and rode it down sideways to the ground."

Jim Young, 32, was dead at the scene of the midday accident. Witnesses said he was crushed beneath falling girders after the 135-foot fall.

Jeff Warwick, 21, who clung to a section of iron as he fell, suffered internal injuries and was listed in stable condition in a local hospital.

A falling beam struck Randy Green, 18, as he worked on the eighth story. He suffered a broken leg and was listed in stable condition. Eric Bernal, 21, hit by falling debris as he stood on the ground, was in good condition with an ankle injury.

Firefighters said the building under construction, the International Energy Center, was about half completed. Fire Capt. Tommy Skinner said it was owned by Jim Brunson.

"The part that collapsed was an extension off the top of the building sort of like a canopy. About four beams fell altogether," Skinner said. "The steel tore loose from the bolts holding it to the building."

Ernest Anderson, director of the local Occupational Safety and Health Administration, said an inspector would visit the site today to try to determine the cause of the accident.

Bob Jones, who was working on the sixth floor of the building when the accident occurred, said, "All of a sudden I just heard a lot of noise. I looked up to the side of the building and all I saw was the steel just come tumbling down."

"I just froze. Then when it stopped, I just ran," he said.

Despite falling eight floors among the steel beams, Warwick was conscious and able to get up, Jones said. He said Warwick walked away from the rubble but was later taken in an ambulance to a hospital where he underwent surgery.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — When my son was born, I decided to save the newspaper published on the day of his birth. When he is older, he'll be able to read all the news that happened on his birthday. Since then, I've also saved other papers covering his major events. How can I preserve these papers so they'll stay in readable condition? — DEBBIE

DEAR DEBBIE — What a marvelous idea. I can't think of any better, more enjoyable way of studying history than to read first-hand news accounts of major events. Probably the best way to preserve the papers is to cover them, front and back, with clear, heavy plastic. You could either make sleeves taped together with plastic tape along the edges, or you could use adhesive plastic, sticking the newspaper right to the plastic sheet. This is quite a project, especially if you've saved many papers, but your son will have a lifelong souvenir of his birthday. On the other hand, I've saved newspapers for quite a few years without giving them any special treatment. They're certainly still readable, although they do require careful handling since the paper has become brittle and yellow. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — You can skin a chicken quickly by pulling the skin off. Use a square of nylon net to hold onto the skin for a secure grip while pulling.

DEAR POLLY — A reader recently complained about a mineral deposit on her canning jars after processing. Adding 1/4 cup of vinegar to the water in the canner will prevent this deposit from forming and will even remove some of the old deposits on the jars. — M.H.M.

DEAR POLLY — Want a lovely smelling linen closet? Store your soap powder or powdered laundry detergent in the linen closet. It leaves a nice clean scent. — MRS. G.G.L.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Maybe a reaction to stress

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm 61 years old, working and have a mild case of hypoglycemia. I'm under a doctor's care. I would like to double check with you. Why do I have to go every six to eight weeks for a blood test and urine test? Can hypoglycemia be cured? I get no medication or needles, just diet and I have to carry a candy bar or sugar at all times, in case of weakness or dizziness. My blood pressure is mostly on the low side. Please explain this disease and send me a diet.

DEAR READER — Since only about one in 50 people running around with a diagnosis of low blood sugar really have hypoglycemia, I am reluctant to assume that you do.

It is a popular diagnosis with the public and with some doctors. I am afraid it is often used as a wastebasket for ill-defined symptoms that the doctor needs a diagnosis for and the patient demands an explanation for. And usually the patient demands a diagnosis other than anxiety — even when that is the real cause.

For some reason people are much more comfortable in believing those sweet palms, fast heart beat and faint feelings are all because of low blood sugar rather than a reaction to stress or anxiety.

There are some people who have weakness, dizziness, sweating and may even collapse from a very low blood sugar level. In rare cases this is caused by a tumor producing too much insulin. It can also occur in a diabetic who takes too much insulin. In a small number of people it is termed "a faulty release or overproduction of insulin in response to eating stress and starches."

These people have true reactive hypoglycemia and you may be one of them. The diagnosis cannot be made without demonstrating the low blood glucose level during an attack or at least demonstrating the same symptoms and low blood glucose during a glucose tolerance test.

This is all very complicated and I am sending you the Health Letter number 18-2, Hypoglycemia: The Low Blood Sugar Problem, to give you more details. Others who want this issue can American painter James A. McNeill Whistler flunked out of West Point. He would have graduated in the class of 1865 had he not failed chemistry.

send 75 cents with a long-stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1581, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10410.

Meanwhile I would suggest that you wear some support hose or pressure bandages around your legs. If you are dizzy from low blood pressure that may help by preventing pooling of blood in your legs. Also avoid sweets and starches. The candy and sugar is only for an emergency.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read your column about doing exercises to enlarge the muscles over the chest to increase your bust measurements. You said that once your pectoral muscles are as large as you want you can maintain their size by doing exercises once a week. Why just once a week? I'm sure other readers wonder the same thing. Does this apply to all ups, leg raises etc?

DEAR READER — There have been careful studies on how to exercise to build the size and strength of muscles and how to maintain their size and strength. A proper set of strength exercises three times a week, spaced to provide at least one day of rest between exercise periods will produce the maximum development.

And once you have achieved your goal doing these exercises once a week will maintain your muscles in that state. This applies to all muscles. But it applies only to the use of exercises to enlarge and strengthen muscles. If you are exercising to use calories or develop endurance then you need to follow a different schedule. Too much exercise may even slow the optimal rate of muscle development.
