

Clean-Up, Fix-Up, Paint-Up Drive Begins

Hereford citizens are requested to launch "spring cleaning" activities this week as the city's annual "Clean Up, Paint Up, Fix Up Week" gets underway.

In order to provide a more attractive appearance throughout Hereford, the annual campaign against litter, tall weeds and other such unsightly sites is slated for April 14-20.

As designated in an official proclamation by the Mayor of Hereford, clean up week is set in order to encourage local residents to continue "spring housecleaning" on the outside, as well as inside.

Purpose of the week is explained in the mayor's proclamation, which reads as follows:

"WHEREAS, the City of Hereford and its citizens are desirous of improving the general appearance of our community, both businesses and residences, and

"WHEREAS, clean living conditions are conducive to the health and welfare of all citizens, and

"WHEREAS, the appearance of our community reflects the business and living conditions thereof, all to the promotion of better business and living conditions for the citizens thereof,

"Therefore, I, Ray Cowser, Mayor of the City of Hereford, Texas, do hereby proclaim the week of April 14 through April 20 as official Clean Up, Paint Up, Fix Up Week, and request the assistance and cooperation of all citizens in the community improvement.

For the best method of fighting the dandelion menace see Dale Young's cartoon on the editorial page of this issue of the Sunday Brand.

"S/Ray Cowser, Mayor of the City of Hereford"

In cooperation with the effort, many local businesses are offering special buys on items suited for the occasion. City manager Dudley Bayne reports that extra trucks will be available to pick up trash resulting from the clean up activities. He urged residents to join in the campaign, and instructed that discarded items be placed in the regular trash containers.

In outlining plans for clean-up week, sponsors of the program pointed out that the city will benefit from a cleaner, shiner, repaired appearance as called for in "Clean Up, Paint Up, Fix Up."

Benefits will come not only from a more eye - appealing scene, they point out, but also from the added inducement for people to live in the city, trade here, and visit here.

Walcott Bonds Will Be Called In, Re-Issued

County Commissioners met Thursday in a session recessed from Monday's meeting to take care of some unfinished business.

They formally passed an order for the issuance of $100,000 in Walcott Common School District bonds to finance an expansion project.

Bond advisor Bob Davis of Columbian Securities in Amarillo explained that the bonds will be issued, then recalled and re-issued immediately in order to save about $35,000 in interest charges. This will be done by issuing the bonds for a shorter period than had been anticipated originally.

Commissioners also paid the election expense and talked briefly with County Attorney Ed Line about the county's legal obligation to the Texas Employment Commission. No further action was taken.

TOP COUNTY FARMER AWARDS were presented to George C. Warner (left) and H. H. Miller (right) at the Wednesday noon meeting of Hereford Lions Club. Named as Deaf Smith County Farmer of the Year was Warner as Miller was recognized as the Deaf Smith County servation Farmer of the Year. Presenting the farmer of the Year award was Tony Baros while Luther Lesly of Tierra Blanca Soil Conservation District presented the conservation award.

Two Deaf Smith County farmers were honored here Wednesday as Hereford Lions Club named the Deaf Smith County Farmer of the Year and the Conservation Farmer of the Year. Named for the conservation award was H. H. Miller of the Dawn Community. Presentation was made by Luther Lesly, director of the Tierra Blanca Soil Conservation District.

Presented with the farmer of the year award was George Warner of Hereford. The award was given by Tony Baros.

As the award was presented, Miller was cited for his conservative use of irrigation water and the maximum use of rainfall in growing his crops.

It was pointed out by Lesly that the long - time county farmer uses an underground tile system in conjunction with a lake pump system to irrigate his crops and grasses.

"Miller consistently maintains minimum use of irrigation water and maximum use of rainfall," stated the conservation district director. "He has the least amount of waste water of any farmer in the district."

Miller's crops consist of wheat, feed grain and cattle as well as irrigated grasses for feeding purpose. In his farming program, the county resident uses a stubble mulching program.

"Truly, Mr. Miller is a steward of the soil," commented Lesly as he concluded the presentation.

In citing Warner as the outstanding farmer of the year Baros pointed that he had come to the community 12 years ago with the idea of doing something that no one had ever done here.

Warner, in those 12 years, has been experimenting with the growing of grasses and sorghums for seed. He is also recognized as one of the leading grass men in the state.

Livestock Show Group Schedules Monday Meeting

Persons interested in the formation of special organization to sponsor and manage the Hereford Junior Livestock Show and Sale have been invited to attend a meeting Monday.

Stated for 3 p. m. Monday in the First National Bank, the meeting is being held for the purpose of forming an organization to take over the four-county show, which has been sponsored for the past 17 years by the Hereford Rotary Club.

Recently the Rotarians announced that, in keeping with traditions of Rotary International, the local club would discontinue its sponsorship of the annual show.

Since Rotary's policy is that no club shall adopt a project on a "permanent" basis, the club decided this year to leave an organization especially formed to handle the show.

In its 17 - year history, the Hereford Junior Livestock Show and Sale has grown from a meager beginning to become one of the most successful junior shows in the region.

"But it can grow more," a Rotarian spokesman stated, "with the aid of an organization which can devote its full purpose to managing the event."

For this reason the Monday meeting has been slated in order to organize the sponsoring group. A board of directors and officers for the Hereford Junior Livestock Show and Sale will be elected at the meeting.

Sprinklers Spawn Interest

Farmers in the northern portion of Deaf Smith County have been intrigued by a monstrous contraption which has been placed into operation by one farmer as a conservation means.

Buster Baker, who farms 35 miles north of Hereford, installed a valley irrigation system on his farm last month. The strange looking device, which resembles a row of windmills/letting off steam, promises to help conserve both water and land on the Baker farm.

In fact, Baker forecasts that sprinkler irrigation systems may become the salvation of much local farmland which is difficult to water by other methods.

With the peak irrigation season approaching the area, the unit occupies more than passing interest as area farmers examine the success of sprinkler irrigation on the Baker farm.

One of the first sprinkler systems of its type to be used in the immediate area, Baker's commercially manufactured system is a self propelled unit which can water 40 acres at a setting.

"Baker is irrigating almost 500 acres of land with the unit. By using the system, he is able to water much land which he could not previously irrigate.

"I am very pleased with the operation of the system so far."

Baker explained, "In fact I want to get another unit this summer which will allow me to water 160 acres at a setting, instead of the 40 acres which I can now get.

"The sprinkler system has attracted a lot of interest from farmers around here," Baker pointed out. "In this area our irrigation is not so strong as it is nearer to Hereford.

"I have connected one good six inch well and another six inch well, which is pretty weak, to use in the system. Aluminum pipe joins them, and with the aid of a booster pump, I push 800 gallons per minute through the sprinklers.

"This lets me water much faster. But I think that the main advantage of the system is that it conserves water and land both.

"The land around my place is pretty uneven in some places. Using irrigation ditches, I had Levelland went down in order in the second and Hereford made its move. Frank Cain got on by error, moving around to third as his grounder went between the third sacker's legs and then rolled under the fielder's glove and to the fence. With one out, Cain, steamed home on a squeeze bunt by David Stevens.

It was a fine present Thursday for the team which had won its only other games on March 22 and 23. It gave the Whitefaces and the Levelland Lobos 1-2 records, while Dumas still leads the pack with a 2-0 mark.

Hereford will host the Nansareth Swifts here Tuesday afternoon at 4 p. m. in a late-scheduled non-conference game.

Hereford picked up an unearned run in the second inning, but saw Levelland go ahead in the third and fourth. However, a single, two doubles and a triple saved the day for the Whitefaces. They got tough and shutout Levelland - for the last three innings in an exciting climax.

Lobo pitcher Ted Warren singled in the first, but was stranded as Hereford played tight defense.

Charlie Moreno then led off for the Herd with a walk and moved to second on a sacrifice bunt by Ronnie Duncan. The throw to second was wild. But three strike - outs by Ware on nine pitches shut off any scoring chance.

Herd Finds Golden Easter Egg In 5-4 Win Over Lobos

On the day Easter vacation started, Hereford baseballers found eggs on the scoreboard most of the time. But they also found the golden egg in the fifth inning, when they bunched their four hits of the day for a 5-4 win over Levelland here.

It was a fine present Thursday for the team which had won its only other games on March 22 and 23. It gave the Whitefaces and the Levelland Lobos 1-2 records, while Dumas still leads the pack with a 2-0 mark.

in the third. Vic Hines doubled to start things out and Wayne Burton was safe on a dropped fly ball. With runners on second and third, Joe Coffman gathered in a fly ball to center and fired home to keep the runners from advancing.

But Warren tried to win his own game as he slashed a double to drive in two runs. With two away, Don Stephenson got on by error as Warren scored. Dennis Deel singled and went to second as the play failed to get the runner at third. Then a fly ball deep to the shortstop cut off the extra runs as Levelland led 3-1.

Levelland scored again in the fourth, on two errors and another double by Hines. But a fine stop by pitcher Lupe Ramirez forced the runner at third and a ground ball shut off the rally.

Down 1-4, Hereford made its move. Substitute Lynn Cook slashed a single. With one out, Larry Hill batted for Ramirez and drew a walk.

Charlie Moreno doubled to right center, Duncan popped up to the short stop to make it two away. But John Willoughby doubled on a fly ball that dropped untouched to drive in the tying runs. Eugene Green tripled to right field to drive in the go-ahead score.

Hereford then tightened its defense, after making five early errors. With Ramirez pitching cautiously, the infield handled three chances and the outfield caught three flies to cut off Levelland's chances.

A happy Easter to you on the day that is most significant to the Christian world. Christmas is joyous for its celebration of Christ's birth, but his return from death is even more important. Of course, children enjoy Easter for its egg hunts and new clothes, while all of us know that when Easter arrives, real good weather can't be far behind.

Our sincere hope for today is that Clint and Margaret Formby enjoy Easter Sunday. We'll have to go into an elaborate explanation about one of the most elaborate practical jokes in some time. Clint was slated to be lay speaker at the First Baptist Church in Hereford Sunday morning in the absence of the minister. Last week, the Brand advertising manager Bill Penn got a call from Graddy Tunnell, Plainview law partner with Marshall Formby. He ordered a quarter - page ad encouraging people to come hear Clint preach and asked that the bill be sent to Marshall. Fortunately Bill checked the ad with Clint and found that it was a hoax. Bill has drawn up a fake bill for a half-page ad IN COLOR and is sending it to Graddy. Next, a large number of people in Hereford, Amarillo, Plainview and elsewhere

A BARE-BOTTOMED wanderer happened down the street on a balmy afternoon this week. With no particular destination, a small boy and his faithful companion took advantage of the spring atmosphere, as did most people in the area. However, the boy above — who did not bother to leave a name — did leave an impression of youth and springtime and the joy that both have in store.

met Thursday night in Friendship Room of the First National Bank, with Mrs. John Beasley serving as hostess. Mrs. Richard Pickens, club president, presided over the short business meeting which preceded the program.

was the subject of a talk given by Mrs. John Smith. Quoting information which appears in the new Better Homes and Gardens Garden Book, Mrs. Smith cautioned club members to "Plan ahead before you buy or plant." Mrs. Smith discussed proper landscaping, pointing out the usefulness of flowering trees, shrubs, hedges, perennial vines, and roses. She also reviewed for the club the types of flowers that are suited to local soil and climate conditions.

She concluded her presentation with a description of the various house plants which will grow in the local climate. Present for the regular club meeting were Mesdames John Beasley, Joe Brooks, James Brownlow, Ben Gollehon, Dean Herring, Jerry Landers, Joe Locke, Gerald Martin, James McDowell, Bobby Owens, Richard Pickens, John Smith, Eugene Sparks, Joe Whitley, and a special guest, Mrs. Danny Martin.

Wise Pasture Management Needed In Grazing Cattle

As summer draws near, many area farmers are beginning to think about grazing their irrigated grasses for the first time. The need for wise management of grasses is extremely important.

Grass planted late in the 1962 growing season must be stocked lightly at first until it grows off well this year and is up to a good stand.

Tall grasses such as side-outs, should assume a height of about 20 to 24 inches before grazing and about 6 to 8 inches for Midland bermudagrass. This gives the grass a head start on the cattle for a longer and more successful grazing season.

Although grasses do not require great amounts of fertilizer, it is recommended in order to get more grazing from your grasses.

If fertilizer is used, one should apply part of it before irrigation in the spring — about April 15th — and then later in the summer apply to give the grasses a mid-summer boost.

Those having a sizable acreage of 15 to 20 acres or more, rotation grazing should be considered. This can easily be attained by splitting the pasture into two or three equal fields. If two are used, graze one down to the recommended minimum height of about 10 inches for tall grasses and four inches for bermudagrass. Then transfer the cattle to the second field.

When the cattle are moved the field just grazed should be irrigated and then rested until the second field has been grazed down to the minimum height.

For a pasture cut into three fields one should be in grazing, one under irrigating, and the third resting.

One thing more must certainly be stressed and this is: Don't get into the cattle business before you get into the grass business. By this it is meant do not have more cattle than grass will invariably follow in the fall because of dissatisfaction. A simple rule to follow to prevent overgrazing is: don't graze tall grasses below 10 inches in height and Midland bermudagrass below 4 or 5 inches.

For further information and details on grazing irrigated or other management problems technical assistance is available at the Soil Conservation Service office upstairs in the Fullwood building on West Third Street.

Each pen and ink sketch depicts the characters facing into the tomorrow.

Selected incidents from the book were vividly described by Mrs. Manjeot. Urging the clubwomen to read the book, she evaluated it as conveying a rare power of feeling for the land, its nature, its history, and its greatness.

Following the review, Mrs. H. E. Miller led group singing of several Texas songs. Mrs. William Wimberley provided the piano accompaniment.

Mrs. Ralph McCullough, Pioneer Club president, presided at the silver coffee service. An arrangement of lilies centered the serving table which was covered with a pastel green organza cloth. Spring bouquets of lilies, tulips, and other blossoms decorated the reception room.

Herd...

Lupe Ramirez, a crafty sophomore who mixes a medium-fast pitch with curves, sliders and drops, went all the way for Hereford's victory. He allowed six hits, four runs, struck out five and walked no one. He was charged with one earned run.

Ted Warren, who had handcuffed Hereford last week for an 11-1 win, allowed just five runs on four hits, struck out six and walked two. He was charged with four earned runs.

The difference was that Levelland left six men stranded, while Hereford left three on base.

Don Stephenson was the Lobos' big hitter as he got two doubles in three trips up. Warren also worked hard for himself with a single and a double in four times at bat. None of the Hereford players got more than one hit.

Hereford was charged with five errors while Levelland had two.

UP YOUR OWN MIND

Learning that the Brazos River was to be diverted from its natural course by construction of dams, he determined to make a canoe trip down the river as a farewell gesture. His only companion was his dog, Passenger. The events of his trip and the historic heritage of the areas he visited are recorded in this book, which he dedicated to his daughter.

Mrs. Manjeot noted that the book had received several awards and was selected by the General Federation of Women's Clubs to be placed in a library of American books presented to the Federated Clubs of Finland.

She gave special note to the illustrations in the book, which were drawn by a Texas artist.

15 Years Of Customer Satisfaction.

I wish to thank all of my supporters for their efforts and their votes in the recent School Board Election. The reasons for my loss are multiple and interesting. I will comment on only one campaign point apparently used against me, that I am a trouble maker. If this means that one who stands up for his principles, believes in individual freedom, promotes financial stability and responsibility, believes in a sound basic education for our children, and is not hesitant to cast an unpopular vote to gain these aims, then I plead guilty, I am a trouble maker.

Congratulations to the board members — may you find it within your consciences to fight for what you believe. Sacrifice of principles for temporary harmony seems to be an accepted philosophy nowadays — I hope you do not succumb to such fallacious thinking. The times ahead promise to be complex and difficult for you with a large influx of temporary labor and other problems of change. May you see the American way through with clarity.

are cordially invited to attend Easter Services Sunday April 14th 11 a. m. First Baptist Church Hereford, Texas. Lay Speaker Clint Formby. Open House at Formby's, 3 to 5 p.m. RSVP. Clint and Margaret are extremely anxious for everyone to know that they didn't send out the invitations and certainly didn't know they were to have been hosts this afternoon for a reception. I'm suggesting that Clint rush out and put up a sign something like this. In his front yard, "WARNING: This house quarantined because of measles, mumps, whooping cough, chicken pox, beri-beri, hepatitis and leprosy." Then he should load up the kids and go spend the holidays with the Tunnells and the Marshall Formby's in Plainview, stopping at a market on the way into town and picking up about 25 sirloin steaks and having them billed to the law firm of Formby and Tunnell.

columns here Tuesday at 4 p. m. when they host the Nareath Swifts.

Oasis Shrine Club members will be in a special meeting Monday at 8 p. m. in the Jim Hill Hotel ballroom to discuss final plans to raise money that will be used in financing their seventh annual Children's Clinic here in May.

Clint Formby's Sunday reception is just an outright deception. If no one were to attend, their hearts wouldn't break or even bend!

Sprinklers...

"I had to flood parts of my fields to get water to all portions. This meant that much of the water was wasted. But now I don't think I will have this problem.

"After I experiment a little more, I think that I will be able to tell at what rate the soil will absorb the water and then I can cut out any excess watering.

The sprinklers are mounted on wheels which are driven by the water pressure. The 665-foot long unit rotates around the central axis unit, where the pipe which feeds water to the sprinklers connects with the unit.

"Through adjusting a control on the drive units, I can regulate the amount of water put on the land. This adjustment ranges from 3/4 inches to five inches at a time, depending upon how fast the unit moves over the land.

"For instance, the sprinklers put on one inch of water over 42 acres in 24 hours, or they could apply two inches in 48 hours," Baker explained.

"There are seven wheel drive units on the system. If for some reason, one of the units gets out of line, the wells will cut off automatically.

"Many people have had the idea that sprinklers were successful only on the loose, sandy soil. But now experience has proven that they are just about as efficient on the kind of land we have around here.

"In fact, I figure that I am going to be able to water about three times as much land with my wells as I could before I got the system," Baker estimated.

The unit is expensive, all right. Mine cost about eight thousand dollars, not counting the wells which I already had. On top of this a person has to buy the pipe to go from the wells to where the sprinkler system is in operation.

"But, if this thing saves me as much time, water, and land as it seems like it is going to, it will soon pay for itself," Baker declared.

A local farmer since 1957, Baker has also farmed near Vernon and in Colorado. In those areas, he pointed out, sprinklers are used to a much greater extent than in the Panhandle.

Baker forecasts that someday sprinklers may become popular in this area because of their conservation value in certain types of farming operations.

Farmers...

(Continued from page 1) Before coming to the community, Warner was with a seed firm in Waco for five years. Before the seed company job, he was in range and pasture grass research at the Texas A & M College Agricultural Experiment Station.

Besides growing native grass, millet and sorghum for seed, Warner conducts his own experimental program as an avocation.

One of his newest projects is a livestock grazing program designed to learn more about the utilization of irrigated grasses in a feeding program.

As he accepted the award, the seed grower commented that he appreciated very much the kindness, thoughtfulness, and consideration given him in the selection for the award.

But, he added: "There are a lot of good farmers in this county. They have to be to stay here and farm."

He also pointed out that all have neighbors who are good farmers. If a person is not a good farmer, his neighbors will show him up.

"When I came here," he remarked, "I had to follow the example set by my neighbors to stay up with them."

In closing, Warner praised the community and the Lions Club for the help, encouragement, and support he received "in trying to do what had not been done before."

"Had it not been for people like you who encourage newcomers to the community, I would not have been able to do what I did," Warner stated.

"This group is certainly doing its part to encourage people to be good farmers," he concluded.

The public is invited (and no joke) to attend the business meeting of the Deaf Smith County Red Cross at 11 a. m. Tuesday, April 16, in the Hereford Community Center. However, the noon luncheon will be by invitation only.

All wheat farmers, and other interested persons, are invited to hear Jay Namon, president of the Texas Farmers Union, speak on the proposed wheat program that will be voted on May 21. He will speak at 8 p. m. Monday, April 15, in the Hereford Community Center.

One of the largest gatherings of the year will be next Friday, April 19, when Hereford Camp Fire Girls honor their fathers with a dinner at the County Bull Barn. The girls are really working hard to make the event enjoyable and memorable.

A two-night Literacy Workshop will be held at the Hereford Goodwill Center, 136 West Third, on Monday and Tuesday, April 15 and 16. Classes will begin at 8 p. m. and the public is invited to attend either or both nights. Mrs. O. G. Hill Sr. of Hereford will instruct the first night and Mrs. Jack Smith of Dallas will instruct the second night.

Hereford baseball players were beside themselves Thursday afternoon as they rallied for a 5-4 victory and their third win of the season. They will try to add to their win

Tryouts...

(Continued from page 1) 1. Boys who played on any of the four major league teams last year are not required to make the try-out sessions.

Announcement of major league player assignments will be made at Little League Park at 1:30 p. m. Saturday, April 20. Boys who are not placed on major league teams will have additional try-outs in Dameron Park on Monday and Tuesday, April 22 and 23, at 5:30 p. m. There will be eight minor league teams this year.

Three coaches still are needed for minor league teams. Men who are interested in coaching this summer are asked to contact Ted Higgins or Clinton Massie.

Advance registrations already have been received from about 275 boys.

Once Doomed Farm Community Now On 'Come-Back' Road In This Area

Gone is the "Little Red School House" and with it, in most instances, have disappeared thousands of small farm communities which usually included a general store, a service station or two — and an occasional post office.

All of these things have happened during the past decade, and can be attributed chiefly to improved roads, superior automobiles, ever-rising school costs and demands for modern teaching practices. Despite the nostalgia with which many persons view this development, we doubt if the little school house is ever destined to return. On the contrary, however, there seems a definite trend in this part of the country toward re-establishment of the once-popular community trading center.

The result, strangely enough, appears to spring from the same source which once made it disappear. That development is "Progress". Just as new methods and transportation facilities crowded out the little communities so popular during the horse and buggy era, so does the advent of fertilizer and modern soil foods seem to be bringing them back. In addition, we note all over the country a trend toward community elevators and gins as yields are boosted to the point that marketing problems are created.

Far in the vanguard of establishing community nucleus is the fertilizer distributor. Storage tanks are springing up all over the Plains and, naturally enough, they seem to appear frequently in the vicinity of former community centers. Distribution and application no doubt have established the trend. In addition, several of these fertilizer plants have already moved into the mercantile business, much after the fashion of the once popular general store. They provide a meeting place, usually a telephone, cold drinks and, best of all, the opportunity for neighbors to meet and talk over the problems of the day.

While a few of the stronger communities maintained central buildings, often an abandoned school house, most of them have gradually become integrated with large towns and cities. Today, old timers may mention this community, or that one, but for the most part this important portion of Americanism appeared to be vanishing until the past three or four years when fertilizer station began reversing the trend.

All in all, it seems to us that the movement is good. While it may not reflect tremendously in our national buying habits, it can most easily once again become a part of our political habits. In a republic, the government nearest the people is always the best possible government — and this renewed community interest most certainly should contribute to expression of grassroots sentiment in elections from the tiniest precinct to the national level. Such at least was our experience when strong community centers did exist all over the country.

Let us also remember that loss of national farm population was parallel with passing of the smaller communities, one circumstance no doubt contributing to the other. In this particular territory, however, we have consistently shown a gain in farm population — rather than a loss — and we have every indication that the return of the farm community center will strengthen and bolster this trend of living on the farm.

Insignificant as it may seem to many people, the present trend toward re-established farm centers may well provide the dawn of a new era in America. Certainly, it will be interesting to observe during the next few years.

What About Our Building Boom?

With new housing starts in every direction and record new building permits from quarter to quarter, Hereford appears to be well in the throes of a building boom. Just where it will all lead has many civic leaders scratching their heads.

Some of them are downright skeptic at the possibilities of "over-building", while others will tell you that it is long over due. More conservative leaders declare that an over-built town will definitely go down hill; they say that no one wants to move into a community where vacant houses are readily available. What's more they can review the history of several neighboring towns and pretty well prove their point.

On the other hand, this yardstick works both ways, it is impossible for a town to grow further when there is absolutely no housing available, and Hereford has been pretty well in this position during recent months.

Also working in favor of limited expansion is the high cost of modern construction. No landlord is likely to build residential housing unless he is fairly well assured that it will be rented. Most landlords we have known are pretty shrewd businessmen, and it is not good business to construct unwanted or unnecessary housing.

We could definitely over-build, but currently it seems to us that Hereford is far from the saturation point on rental units, especially of the lower cost variety which are now appearing on the scene. With present day prospects for the community, we would say that building is still well in line, although we will be among the first to admit that it can be carried too far. Things probably will, and should, level out during 1963. So far we are operating amazingly close to the industrial surveys and projections made several years back — and since this information is openly available, our 1963 progress should not be a surprise to anyone concerned.

Foul Play Bearly Seen In Mule, Goat, Falcon Feud

(Editor's Note: The following article is taken from the latest news letter received from U. S. Rep. Jim Wright of Texas, who exhibits a wonderful touch of humor about a topic which has been dealt with most seriously to date.)

Once upon a time, in a fair and bountiful land where many animals lived, there stood a curious five-sided house. It nestled alongside a broad river in a big and majestic city. In this house lived a mule, a goat and a falcon. To them the other animals of the land had entrusted the job of protecting their country from an angry red bear which snorted the kind of fire from which the sun is made and, on occasion, thumped his shoe upon the table.

The mule, the goat and the falcon all were anxious to protect the land, but among themselves they were very quarrelsome. Each had his own idea on how to defeat the red bear in case he should attack.

"I shall meet him on the land, and with my great mobility and firepower, I shall kick him to death," brayed the mule, flicking a big of lint from his forest green suit.

"Tut, tut, there will be no need of that," sneered the goat, who was resplendent in his dark blue suit with gold stripes. "My specialty is the sea, and if the bear ever threatens our shores, I shall butt him right out of the water."

"Nonsense," jeered the falcon, proudly displaying the silver wings on his light blue suit. "If the bear should attack, I shall fly to his homeland, peck out his eyes and destroy his ability to fight."

So it went for many years, with the three animals incessantly bickering among themselves.

Nowhere did these arguments cause more concern than a gentle hill which lay just across the river. Here lived a great head of donkeys and elephants. Even though they themselves were not immune from petty jealousies, they realized there was a desperate need to eliminate the tumult within the great five-sided house. After the donkeys had done much braying and the elephants had done much trumpeting, they decided that another animal should be chosen to take complete charge of the occupants of the five-sided house.

Now it happened that in a large white house not far from the hill there lived an eagle. It was decided to let the eagle choose the animal to be in charge of the five-sided house, provided, of course, that the donkeys and the elephants approved of the eagle's choice.

Many years passed, and several different eagles moved in and out of the large white house. Each eagle chose an animal to live in the five-sided house. Alas, however, the mule, the goat, and the falcon never really stopped their bickering. They seemed to resent every animal that was put in charge of them, and each continued to go pretty much his own way. Finally one day a new eagle moved into the large white house. This eagle had some very definite ideas about the animal that should be put in charge of the five-sided house. He wanted a wise, but young, owl.

It so happened that just such an owl lived in a busy city to the west. This owl made a living by providing engines to be used in crossing narrow inlets on the shore of a large lake — the fjord motor company, some animals called it.

The owl consented to take charge of the five-sided house, and the animals on the hill generally approved.

"He's very wise," nodded the

Senior Class Prepares For Graduation Program

Members of the Senior class of High School are beginning to feel the strenuous work that always precedes closing days of school. The graduates this year are Lois Garrison, Neil Wilson, Edgar Webb, Earl Lust, Jim Lipscomb, Mary Blacet, Coita Sisk, Jewel Buster, Jennie Wyche, Alma Norton, and Clara Lambert. To encourage simplicity and economy in dress, the high school is offering a prize for the young lady in the class whose graduating outfit is most appropriate and least expensive. Three ladies of the town, Mrs. Murphy, Mrs. R. N. Mounts, and Mrs. Parker, have been asked to act as judges in this contest.

MAYOR ISSUES STATEMENT

To the public: In order that all may understand what our present fire protection is at this time, I wish to state that the City has sold its horse and chemical wagon and team. At present, we have a hand drawn two-wheeled reel cart at the fire station. Should the alarm be sounded the city will pay $5. to the team of automobile that will first hook on to the reel and haul it to the fire.

25 YEARS AGO

With a scant three weeks remaining before the annual Pioneer Day Celebration in Hereford, Wednesday, May 11, a wide interest was this week being advocated in the coming celebration. Of major interest will be the gigantic parade which is planned for the event. Pioneers of Deaf Smith, Oldham, Farmer, and Castro Counties have been invited to join the Pioneer division of the parade, which is expected to be three to five miles long. The coming celebration marks Hereford's 40th birthday, and is expected to be the greatest in the history of the area.

Besides, even if we were over-building — and knew it without question of a doubt — how could we stop it? They can put people in jail for a lot of things, but not for merely being stupid.

Meanwhile, let's take an optimistic outlook. Frankly, we feel that the present boom is based upon practical business judgement and healthy growth — and this is what all of us most desire.

MAYOR OUTLINES ECONOMY SURVEY

A new city administration got off to a forward-looking and congenial start Thursday night with the swearing in of a new mayor and two new members to the four-member council. After the swearing in, the mayor and council then moved into a first hand look at their new jobs with a review of city finances by City Manager J. W. Harrison. Harrison brought them up-to-date on the status of the city's $400,000 budget for 1962-63, and was commended by Mayor Bill Armistead "for the excellent condition of the city operation." The mayor then outlined plans for appointment of a new special "Committee on Economy in City Government." This group, not yet selected, will take a look at all departments with a view to effecting savings where possible. "This will not be a permanent committee, but can serve a valuable purpose now," Armistead said.

RECORD NUMBER VOTE IN ELECTION

The city election is over, but the aftermath of pros and cons may never be. Folks here still were discussing the history making vote, at times heatedly, Wednesday. No one was more surprised at the 592-vote turnout than the election officials. Previous high turnout for a city election was 441 in 1960. The final unofficial count earned an equal spot in this town's record books. Only one vote separated the apparent winner in the mayor's race, retired farmer Gene Wilson, from runner-up Bill Thomas, tax accountant and real estate man. Only three votes came between the number two man in the council race, auto service manager, Bill Kemp, and the third place finisher, G. A. Bodkin, retired farmer and businessman. Even with the closeness of the election, there were no known plans for a recount as of late Wednesday.

CRASH KILLS CANYON MAN

A Canyon man was killed about noon Tuesday in the fiery crash of his light plane as he attempted to land the craft in a strong crosswind. Dead is William Leo Cooper, 53, prominent area farmer. The crash occurred about 12:10 p. m. on City Club Road about two and a half miles northwest of Canyon. Officers believed Cooper died instantly. He is believed to have been attempting to land on the City Club Road pavement when the wind threw his craft into high tension wires on the east side of the road. The aircraft came to rest on its back in a plowed field about 50 yards east of the power line. It was demolished.

THE BOOTLEG —Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his bindweed farm discusses managed news this week, his letter reveals. Dear editor:

I've been reading about managed news out of Washington the last few weeks and I'm not sure I understand what all the talk is about.

For example, one complaint is that Washington officials like to see their achievements printed, will even help reporters get the facts, but are out to lunch and unavailable when their failures come to light.

The complainers seem to feel the officials ought to be as energetic about getting their mistakes into print as their achievements.

I guess they should, but that ain't the way I operate this bindweed farm. If I'm talking to a banker on a financial matter, I don't mind telling him how much wheat I made last year, how high the yield was per acre, provided it was pretty good, but if it wasn't, I emphasize something else. Nobody in his right mind seeks a loan or runs for office, as the case may be, on a crop failure or a Bay of Pigs. The only time I'm interested in listing my failures is on my income tax report.

However, I've found it's pretty hard to keep a banker or the American public in the dark very long, and most things eventually come out. The average man makes so many mistakes he's not going to be too harsh on an official when he makes one, and most people are judged not on how many mistakes they make but what they do in between mistakes. At least that's what I try to tell my banker.

Now in Russia they've got managed news all right. When the government owns the newspapers and the television and radio stations, it's no trick at all. That is, it's no trick to keep it out of print and off the air, but keeping it out of the people's minds is another thing. The Russian people may not be able to read about Russian crop shortages, but I have a notion they know something happened to the food.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Miss Pool Becomes Bride Of Eddie Coplin Saturday

Jane Elizabeth Pool, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bacon Pool of 513 Avenue J, became the bride of Eddie Lee Coplin, son of Mrs. Alfred Monroe Coplen of McCamey, on April 6 at 3 p. m.

The scene of the wedding was the First Presbyterian Church of Hereford. The Rev. Russell Wingert, pastor, read the single ring ceremony. An arrangement of white gladioli, pom-pom chrysanthemums and blue carnations centered the communion table, flanked by candelabra.

Attendants were the bridesmaid, Miss Vera Miller of Darrouzett, and the best man, Bill Bradford of McCamey.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a sheath of white schiffli embroidered eyelet over ice blue lawn. Small white embroidered scallops outlined the peplum, cap sleeves, and hem line. Her hat and accessories were white. She carried a bouquet of frenched white carnations and a white prayer book.

Members of the family and wedding party attended a reception at the home of the bride's parents. The table and centerpiece were done in the bride's colors, blue and white. Mrs. Russell Wingert served at the refreshment table.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Coplin are students at West Texas State College. An elementary education major, Mrs. Coplin will graduate in May. The groom is a junior government major.

Chrysanthemums Are Discussed For Club

Meeting in the home of Mrs. Roy Smith, the Garden Beautiful Club enjoyed a program on "World of Chrysanthemums." The speaker, Mrs. Ann Perry of Levelland, used colored slides of many beautiful chrysanthemums from her own garden. Making a hobby of the art of growing chrysanthemums, she and her husband enjoy giving flowers to many of the churches and civic clubs and to the sick and shut-ins.

Mrs. Perry explained her method of rooting cuttings, the method of planting, the type of fertilizer recommended, the type of insecticide that is most suitable for this area, and the method of forcing chrysanthemums to bloom early.

Colored slides of flower arrangements which were made at flower shows in Kansas City, Mo., in Lubbock, and in Levelland were also shown by Mrs. Perry. In conclusion she named the most beautiful varieties of chrysanthemums and presented each club member with a "Peggy Ann Hoover" chrysanthemum plant.

Refreshments were served to the guests, Mrs. Ann Perry and Mrs. Nola Ray of Levelland and Mrs. Mary Weaver of Edmondson, and to members Mesdames B. E. Roberson, Wayne Edwards, Bruce Burney, Wynne Owen, Leo Witkowski, Ansel McDowell, Robert Veigel, T. E. Seigler Sr., Charles Hood, Ray Cowser, E. W. Young, Jesse Stanford, Helen Pipkin, G. P. Owen, Jess Robinson, Charlie Noland, J. Howard Walker, and the hostesses, Mrs. Roy Smith and Mrs. Verma Lyons.

donkeys. "And he can bring to the house the valuable cost-cutting lessons he learned in private enterprise," trumpeted the elephants.

Soon after moving into the five-sided house the owl discovered that the goat and the falcon were planning to buy new swords. Separate kinds, of course.

"Why can't you both buy the same type of sword and save money?" the owl asked.

"That's quite impossible," said the goat with a patronizing smile. "Yes, quite," agreed the falcon. When the owl asked why, the goat tried to explain.

"You see, my sword is to be used at sea," he said. "I have always bought a sword shaped sort of like a 'T'."

"And my sword," put in the falcon, "is to be used for the air and must have something of an 'F' shape."

The wise young owl pulled a slide rule out from under his under his wing and appeared quite thoughtful. "Perhaps an 'X' shaped sword might serve you both," he observed. "We could call it the TFX, and it would save a billion dollars."

Panic gripped the goat and the falcon.

"It won't work!" cried one.

"It's never been done before!" shrieked the other.

The owl consulted his slide rule again. "Nevertheless I think we should try it. Even though the TFX might not exactly suit your individual preferences, I will promise you that it will provide a far better sword than either of you now has."

Crestfallen and bitter, the goat and the falcon left the owl.

"Whatever shall we do?" cried the goat.

"We shall march straight to the hill and complain to our powerful friends," said the falcon.

"One of the donkeys is a particularly close friend of mine."

The goat appeared puzzled.

"But aren't the elephants and the donkeys on the hill also very close friends of the owl?" he asked.

Ed Dziuk Sr. Will Receive Church Honor

Ed Dziuk Sr. is among the 13 lay men and women in the Amarillo Diocese to have honors conferred upon them, by Pope John XXIII, it was announced this week.

The Deaf Smith County resident is to receive the papal medal, Pro Ecclesia et Pontifice. Presentation of the medals will be announced later by the Right Rev. John L. Markovsky, Bishop of the Amarillo Diocese.

The decoration, meaning "for the Church and pontiff," had its origin in 1888 with Pope Leo XIII on the occasion of the observance of his jubilee. The medal bears his likeness and is given in recognition of services to the Roman Catholic Church.

HEREFORD RESIDENTS IN AMARILLO HOSPITAL

Hereford residents who have been hospitalized at Northwest Hospital in Amarillo during the past week are Mrs. Charles Skelton and Mrs. Mary E. Osborn.

PATIENT IN AMARILLO HOSPITAL

Mrs. Wilda Jowell of Hereford is a patient at St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo.

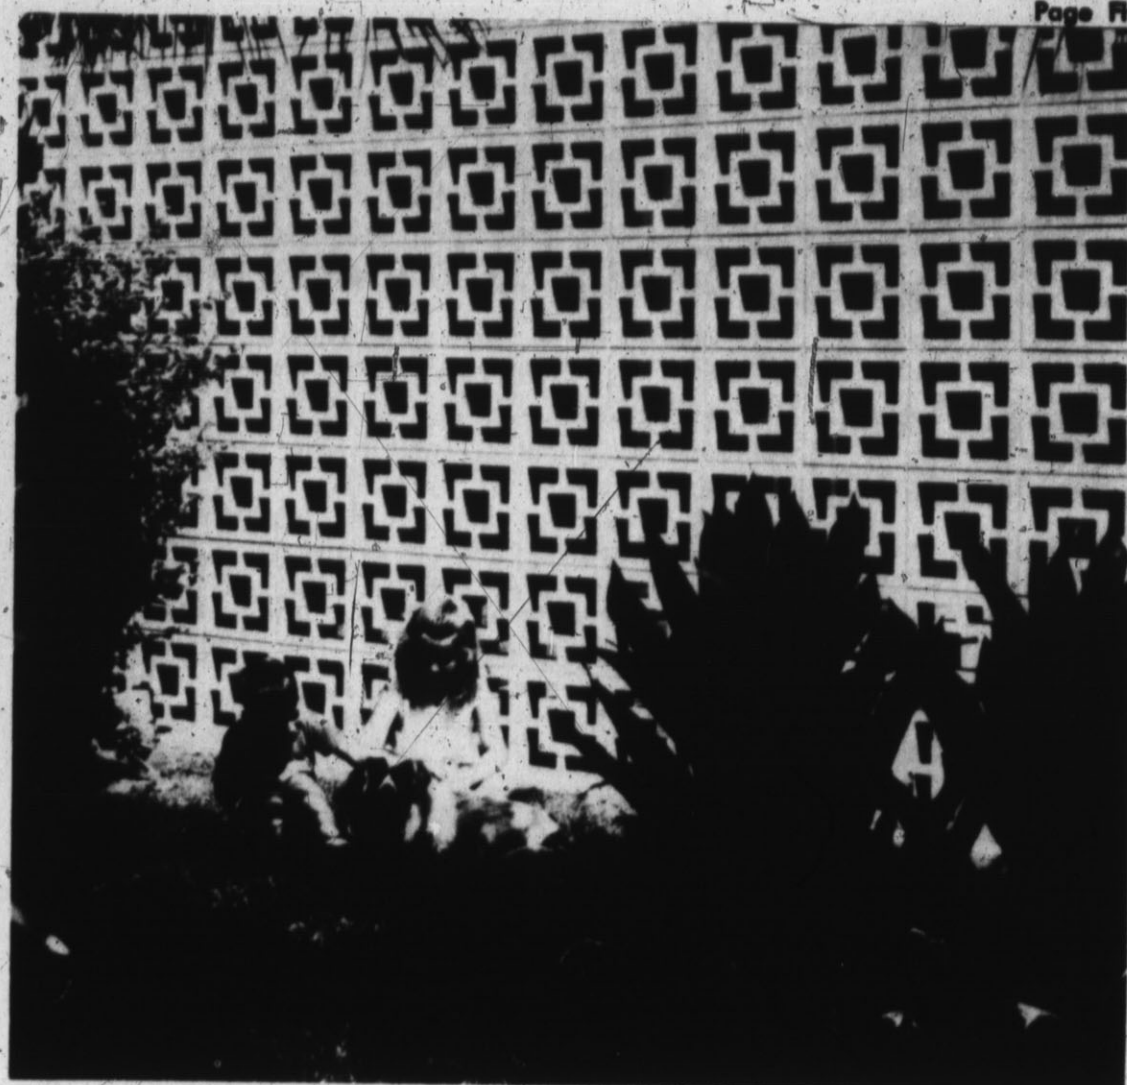

"They have been," the falcon gloated. "But they may change their minds if we tell them that the owl is robbing us of an effective means of protecting the country, and that it would be cheaper and better to build two different swords."

"But is that true?" demanded the goat.

"Sure it is," smirked the falcon, winking and nudging the goat in the ribs. "Sure it is."

Moral: As long as we're going to have an owl, we ought to believe in him because he seems to be the only one who gives a hoot.

Maverick on Wall Street Affords Old Masters, Buys Contemporary

By SID MOODY
 AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Roy Neuberger clashes with his Wall Street background as discordantly as would a Picasso nude on a dollar bill.

To the average broker, the prettiest sight is the unbroken ascent of the old profit curve. Neuberger's cramped suite of offices flamed with the brilliant hues of 90 contemporary paintings against which the lights of the stock board flicker dimly like distant stars.
 He is an art lover who mastered the art of making money believing that painters should be acknowledged with a pat on the back while living instead of a pat of a shovel after they're not.

THE FIRST STROKES of what became a singular Wall Street career were sketched in the unlikely backdrop of the upholstery department of a large New York department store where Neuberger began work as a very young man. He became more rectly to painters but to encourage others to buy. In a spiritual sense more than economic, a painter must have a consumer for his work, just like every one else.

"I'M FAIRLY CERTAIN a large percentage—say 50 out of the 150 artists I've bought—will live in posterity. It's difficult to evaluate an artist in his lifetime, but a human can learn a great deal from art if he applies himself."

For Neuberger the mixture of business and pleasure has been mutually enriching.
 "Millions can't be painters, just like millions can't make money on Wall Street," said Neuberger. But, he feels, the paint pot and the pot of gold have "great compatibility."

"In appreciating painting, you must know human values. So, too, in securities. And, in the monetary sense, any prudent person prefers to use money intelligently when there are so many opportunities to use it unskillfully," said the Connecticut-born Medicis feasting back in a contemporary swivel chair.

HE RECALLED how the Medicis had used their financial touch to sponsor the great artists of the Renaissance. Why shouldn't Roy Neuberger become a Medicis, to bring recognition to painters in their own lifetime?

"I disliked the idea of a career devoted to making money but when I saw what needed to be done, I decided to make money. So, I thought, where do you make money?—Wall Street."

For to Neuberger money doesn't talk, or just make more money. It is the gold he hopes will help launch another golden

Thus in 1928 when many were leaving Wall Street—some via the window—Roy Neuberger arrived, making a job as a runner. No longer a runner, Neuberger has been moving fast ever since. "My income has gone up every year," he recalled, and in 1937 he began to buy art of living American painters.

"Most people thought the United States was crass, materialistic. I thought culture would be a big thing for the destiny of America and, I think, I helped call attention to this."

He's called attention to it by purchasing almost 1,000 paintings of such artists as Abraham Rattner, Stuart Avery, Rufino Tamayo, Jackson Pollock. Besides the 90 pictures in his office just off Wall Street, he has filled his New York apartment and a country home.

"I helped by buying pictures. I didn't want to give money di-

As Homebuyers Women Are Shrewd

By PATRICIA RUSAK

TORONTO (AP) — Women are far more practical than men when it comes to buying a house, says Mrs. Shirley Brunke, chairman of the women's division of the Toronto Real Estate Board.

"That would be a lovely house if we didn't have to live every day," is a comment made by women to Mrs. Brunke.

The everyday little things that influence a woman's choice of a home are such things as a door directly from the garage into the house for bringing in groceries, an entrance through which service people can go into the basement without passing through other parts of the house and, especially if she has children, a main floor washroom.

Women consider whether the furniture they already have will be appropriate for their new house. "If they have been accustomed to modern design and furniture, they are hesitant about older and colonial styled homes."
 "Women are also tired of being chauffeurs, and want to live near libraries, schools, shopping centres."

The kitchen is one of the most important factors in a woman's choice of a home, says Mrs. Brunke. "If a woman likes two houses that are about the same price, she will probably choose the one with the nicer kitchen."

Although women are practical, they usually ask for houses that are "different" or "oneaky." They also look for charm in a house, says Mrs. Brunke.

"When you walk into some houses, you don't feel anything. When you walk into others, you feel as though you would like to get to know the people that live there or did live there. Women notice this difference right away."

FORTRESS REBUILDING

LOUISBOURG, N. S. (AP) — The French fortress of Louisbourg, the most powerful stronghold in the New World before it was captured by the British in 1758 and reduced to rubble, is being rebuilt.

Much of the work, to include construction of likenesses of some of the original French buildings, is expected to be completed in time for Canada's centenary celebrations in 1967.

The fortress came into being in 1713 when, in accordance with the Treaty of Utrecht, France transplanted 180 settlers, mostly fishermen, to Havre a L'Anglaise, now Louisbourg.

War between the English and France was declared in 1756 and in 1758 James Wolfe was one of the major contributors to the fall of the French fortress. Two years later, on orders from the British government, the fortress was demolished.

WAITING AT WRONG CHURCH
 CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) — Richard M. Acree of Cedar Rapids drove to Huxley, Iowa, the other day to attend the wedding of a business associate. He went to one of two Lutheran churches, but when the bridegroom made his appearance, Acree realized that he was, literally, in the wrong pew.

He slipped out of the church as quietly as possible, but he had to go to the reception room—to retrieve the gift he had left there, then hustle to the right wedding.

Beer-loving West Germans consumed 462,000,000 gallons of draught beer in 1960, a postwar record.

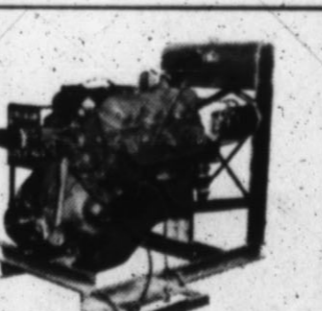

Style Briefs Clothes Patched

Penalty is popular as long as it extends no farther than the clothes you wear. Patches, the hallmark of poverty, are all the rage. Sewn together in a million pieces, they are worn as hostess skirts—which is enough to keep people from asking for second helpings.

They've been popular on the elbows of women's sweaters and blouses, and on the knees of blue jeans. Now sun smocks made from mattress ticking, have four or five bright patches, which also double as pockets, scattered from shoulder to hem.

Childrenswear designer Bill Beaton would have little girls wearing matching bloomers with ruffled garters all the way down to the knees.

'Music In The Home' Topic For Music Study Club Meet

On April 8 the Music Study Club met in the home of Mrs. B. Y. Crosthwait. The subject of the program was "Music in the Home." The presiding officer was the president, Mrs. Ellis Coombes.

The speaker, Mrs. Cliff Estes, pointed out that occasionally a composer writes a melody that becomes detached from the work in which it originally occurs and lives on as an independent tune of lasting popularity. People are usually unaware of the source of the tune.

A popular melody, continued Mrs. Estes, is easy to sing because of its rather narrow range of tone and simple turn of phrase. Often sentimental or sugary tunes, these melodies do not usually represent the composer's best work. For example, Handel's "Largo" has become one of the world's most popular melodies, a tradition at funerals and other solemn occasions. Originally it was an aria from the only comic opera ever written by Handel.

Organ and piano selections were Adam's "The Holy City" and Frank's "Panis Angelicus," played by Mrs. Crosthwait at the organ and Mrs. Schroeter at the piano. "The Lost Chord," by Sullivan, was played by Mrs. Brady at the organ and Mrs. Bill Thompson at the piano. Mrs. Sharp then played an organ medley of Easter music.

After a recital by the Rhythm Band, led and directed by Mrs. Young, the hymn of the month, "Hosannah, Loud Hosannah," was sung by the club.

At the close of the program, Mrs. Coombes presented Kathy Knox with a plaque recognizing her splendid musical accomplishments and her contributions to her school and community. Kathy was made an honorary member of the Music Study Club.

Guests of the club were Mrs. Stan Knox, her daughter, Kathy, and Mrs. Eugene Brink, wife of the pastor of First Christian Church.

Members present were Mesdames J. R. Allison, Bill Brady, Ellis Coombes, B. Y. Crosthwait, Bill Dameron, Frances Dameron, W. E. Dameron, Cliff Estes, Dick Godwin, Paul Lyons, J. C. McCracken, C. J. Mountz, Frances Parker, A. J. Schroeter, Lowell Sahrp, Jesse Stanford, A. O. Thompson, Bill Thompson, Dale Young, R. P. Coneway, J. T. Gilbreath, and H. K. Fox.

MADE AN HONORARY member of Music Study Club is Kathleen Knox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stan Knox. The presentation of a plaque honoring the Hereford High School Student was made by Mrs. Ellis Coombes, club president, at a meeting Monday. Miss Knox was recently named to the United States of America High School Band. (Staff Photo).

Other examples cited by Mrs. Estes were Rachmaninoff's "Prelude in C-sharp Minor," "The Lost Chord," by Sullivan, "Flight of the Bumblebee," by Rimsky-Korsakoff, and Greig's "I Love Thee."

Following the group singing of the National Anthem, Mrs. Fox began the musical program by singing "A Legend," by Tchaikovsky. She was accompanied by Mrs. McCracken.

Made $3 Million, Went Back to School

By SID MOODY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The grass on the other side may look greener but few ever get the chance to jump the fence and find out.

Seth Glickenhau, at the age of 44, did. It happened this way.

Some 20 years ago Glickenhau and his partner, Lawrence Lembo, each scraped up $500 and formed a partnership to deal in securities. They prospered. Glickenhau as a boy had toyed with the thought of becoming a doctor. But after graduation from Harvard, cum laude class '34, and some experience on Wall Street, he found he had another talent.

"It was the ability to see how a company was going to do, a handicapper if you will, I found I had this far above the average."

He also had a gambler's boldness. "There are two types of people in this world: those who can't sleep if they owe money and those who don't feel fit if they owe less than $20 million. I'm one of the latter."

But he tempered it with caution. "The primary question we always asked was how much we could lose. Only then did we consider how much we could make."

Several years ago Glickenhau and Lembo saw possibilities in American Telephone and Telegraph Co. convertible bonds, a security that can be converted into common stock.

"I like convertibles," said Glickenhau with commendable understatement. "It's like spinning a coin. Heads I lose a little, tails I win a fortune."

The partners spun the coin in 1959 and won $3 million each after taxes — by converting. It was called the "shrewdest deal in years."

"WELL, I GOT THINKING," Glickenhau recalled. "You can only eat a certain amount. Wear one suit at a time. I thought it was a great chance to do something more worthwhile than just making more tiddlywinks."

It was, in fact, the long deferred chance for Glickenhau, M. D. to become Glickenhau M. D.

After some consideration by both parties, Glickenhau was accepted as a med student at Einstein Medical Center in New York — provided he take some pre-med courses. So for 18 months the millionaire broker found himself packing his books and leaving, as his two young children were doing, for school.

He brought back a good report card — mostly As except for one C. "In organic chemistry, notoriously a tartar." He was the oldest boy in class but there were some older women for company.

While Glickenhau found a middle-aged dog could learn new tricks, he also found he was all thumbs in the lab.

"I had no manual dexterity," he was also doing homework or in the library when he felt he should be home with his wife or playing with the children. He missed the personal contacts of the street. It was one thing to be a struggling med student of 26 with a career before you and another to be struggling while financially independent with your career half over.

"Don't get me wrong. I liked being in the library, but this was going to be a five-year grind.

Finally I decided it would be unfair to have had my reservations and take the place (in med school) of someone who would carry through."

SO, WISER and still wealthy, he bade school adieu. But, since he "finds the idea of a perpetual vacation repugnant," Glickenhau went back downtown to Wall Street, opening his own firm where two phones are always off the hook to expedite calls and a projection of the stock-ticker marches silently across a screen out in the paneled wall.

But if Glickenhau had decided he couldn't mend mankind with medicine, he figured he could with his M.D. touch. "I like this work and I make a lot of money — and can use it for philanthropy."

And he does, contributing to causes he believes in, particularly in the field of civil rights. His gain is theirs.

He doesn't regret his back to school days. "I learned things a guy my age normally wouldn't. It was enriching, absorbing. When you're young, you like to say I'd like to be this or that. That's asinine. There's no way to know unless you do it."

But having jumped the fence and back again, Glickenhau hasn't lost his taste for exotia greenery.

"When I get back in the routine here, I'm going to take some more courses."

In Russia Party Isn't Open Sesame

By ROBERT TUCKMAN

MOSCOW (AP) — The Communists say that being a member of the party in the Soviet Union doesn't give you more privileges, only more duties.

And, they claim, carrying a membership card doesn't open any doors for a big job.

Taking its cue from Premier Khrushchev, the English-language newspaper Moscow News noted: "Communists are accountable not only for their own actions, but for those of the people working alongside of them. The higher the post a Communist occupies, the greater his responsibilities."

"So one could say that a Communist's privileges amount to greater obligations than other citizens, while enjoying the same rights as everybody else."

The newspaper went on to point out that in the present Supreme Soviet (parliament) there are 349 deputies — nearly one fourth — who do not belong to the Communist Party.

It listed some prominent non-party men, among them author Mikhail Stelmakh, propagandist and writer Ilya Ehrenburg and academician scientist Trofim Lyssenko. Moscow News added:

"As can be seen, the fact that these people do not hold party cards is no obstacle to their activities, just as a party card is not open sesame to a responsible post."

The newspaper concluded by quoting Premier Khrushchev's

EDITOR'S NOTE — To Communists, cartoonists and the old lady from Dubuque, Wall Street is a jungle. It crawls with monsters who have decimal points for eyes and stock tickers for a heart.

Bull battles bear for dollar and dominance and if John Q. Public stands too close, he gets clawed. John Q. prefers to stand off at a distance from which point he thinks he sees the men of the financial district marching by with the emotionless monotony of the ticker tape.

But a closer look shows there are mavericks in the jungle. The following articles, intended for serial use, reveal three of them in all their exotic plumage.

Speech at last November's Central Committee meeting.

"We should always be guided by V.I. Lenin's behests that party members have no advantages or privileges over all other working people, but have only greater duties."

MENA, Ark. (AP) — High on a mountain in western Arkansas stands a memorial to the late Dutch Queen Wilhelmina.

It's the Wilhelmina Inn, built in the late 1890s for an expected visit the queen never made.

The Kansas City Southern Railroad built the hotel, but considerable Dutch money went into the project. A suite was prepared for the queen and the hotel was opened in 1896.

Important people from Europe and this country visited the scenic place, but the queen never came, and in three years the hotel was closed. Queen Wilhelmina died at her palace in the Netherlands Nov. 28.

The inn stood abandoned atop 3,000 foot high Rich Mountain until 1958 when leading citizens of Polk County bought the property and turned it into a state park. Reconstruction of the inn is in progress and it is expected to be opened to tourists this spring.

The Sunday Brand, Hereford, Texas, Sunday, April 14, 1963
EVERETT, Mass. (AP) — Somebody mention twins? Mrs. Rose Marie Brandano, 30, can tell you. Recently she presented her husband, Albert with twin girls, Rose Marie and Ann Marie.
Five years ago twins Albert and Charles Brandano were born. Two of Mrs. Brandano's sisters are twins. There are two sets of twins among her aunts. Two sets of mixed twins also are counted on her side.
Brandano has to buy a new twin carriage and a new twin stroller. He and his wife were so sure they'd have no more twins they disposed of their original twin equipment.

Today marks the beginning of Hereford's annual clean up, paint up, fix up week, and we think it's an ideal time to get the old homestead spruced up for the summer months ahead. Personally, we can think of lots of things that we'd rather do than get out and dig dandelions, but our crop is already blooming so it's either dig them or move out of the neighborhood. But a little honest labor probably won't hurt us too much.

Generally speaking, we have a cold spell just before Easter, but perhaps this year we're going to miss it. Certainly the weather has been wonderful for the past week. We have had a little blowing dirt, but we can remember years that have been much worse, so all-in-all it hasn't been such a bad situation.

We had hoped that this year might be a good one for fruit, but Wallace Cox was telling us yesterday that his peach trees have had it for this year. Wallace says he's not real sure when it happened, but his trees have begun to leaf out without any sign of fruit blossoms. According to Wallace, the trees always bloom before they put out their leaves and this year they didn't. Wallace has been around this country for many years and is considered somewhat of an expert on fruit trees. He says that this will be the first time in several years that he hasn't made a few peaches.

The lack of moisture has taken its toll on the dry land wheat. Jack Brown was by the office the other day to report that a number of folks have been plowing up the remains, particularly in the areas where they planted early. Of course, a good rain right now could save many acres, but we need not look forward to a bumper crop from the dry land section. Otherwise, things are looking real good around the country. The irrigation wells are running night and day and the crops generally look okay. Some potatoes are beginning to come up and the onions that have been set out seem to be doing fine.

The farmers are all pretty busy this time of year getting their land bedded - up - and ready for row - crop planting. Lee Cocanougher and Claude McClure are about the only regulars left around the coffee shops any more, and we can't get much information out of either. Lee wants to talk about registered cattle, and Claude just wants to argue politics with us. Not knowing very much about either one, we usually come out on the short end of the stick.

Jasper Jones, "Pappy" Tinnen and Ross Latham along with "Huck" Nichols of Black and J. B. Crawford of Level-land have just returned from Falcon Lake down on the Rio Grande and report that the fishing is real good. Falcon Lake has become quite popular with the fishermen of this area, in spite of the distance. We've never been down there but understand that you sure don't want to be out on the lake when the wind starts blowing, and like the Panhandle, the wind can get pretty stiff in that area. We never did get the fellows to tell us how many fish they caught, but knowing that bunch, we probably wouldn't have believed them anyhow.

Which reminds us of a story we heard recently.

An angler at the fisherman's club was describing his toughest catch. "After three hours I landed this terrific monster of the sea," he said.

"I saw the pictures and he Apparently this is the theme of the Optimist Club's Annual Bike, Safety Week which has been designated as the week of April 22 to 27. Children in elementary schools around the nation will learn the tenets of the traffic safety code through practical demonstrations, skill tests, and safety of the Bike.

HE MORE OR LESS GAVE FIRE ALARM
PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Eddie Lee Manista, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Manista of Phoenix, wandered out of his bedroom shortly after he was ordered to take a nap.
 When his mother asked why he wasn't in bed, Eddie answered, "Can't sleep for that smoke."
 Mrs. Manista found a fire had started in a pile of clothes. The blaze was extinguished before it could spread to other rooms.

Maverick on Wall Street Figured Odds on a Homemade Computer

By SID MOODY
 AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—David, armed with a sling, slew Goliath, William S. Morris, armed with a $960 homemade computer, slew him twice.
 Goliath, in this case, was the Bank of America, the biggest in the world.

Actually, the bank survived as did Morris. But if the bank emerged wiser from the fray, Morris emerged richer—almost $2 million worth.

For years the Bank of America had won the lion's share and then some of the underwriting of California State Bonds. That means the state of California floats a bond issue and the firm that submits the bid with the lowest interest charges to California gets to market the bonds. The delicacy involved for the bidder is to offer the lowest interest rate for California yet still sell the bonds at a high enough return to entice buyers. It involves figuring out to four decimal places and somewhere in there the underwriter must allow for his cut for services rendered.

Morris, who had formed a partnership in 1959 with one Thomas C. Plowden-Wardlaw, an Albany, N. Y., attorney, had been a very minor member of the big Bank of America team. Morris's firm, which started with capital of $120,000, would get tossed a few bones. But as their capital grew, Morris thought the growth merited a little meat.
 "We assumed the bank would give us a couple of hundred more bonds," Morris recalled. One thing led to another, however, and the bank finally sent Morris a letter freeing him from his ties to its syndicate.
 "I was not overly sorry to see this," said Morris, who was already looking for pebbles for his sling.

stalled behind glass partitions in the heart of the office suite. Trim secretaries glide through the thick carpets and around the polished wood and metal desks, where Morris used to have six employees B.C.—before California—he now has 15.
 But if success has made him, it hasn't spoiled him.
 He's bought a new house. "But outside of that it hasn't changed us much. We go out to dinner a little more, maybe. But I get the same train."
 And around a corner, out of sight of the glowering IBM machine, he still has his $960 computer.

THE BANK OF AMERICA played the game so well that no one had bid against it for California bonds since 1956. Until last fall.

MORRIS, 45, had graduated in 1937 from Princeton University with honors in math. He took a job in the actuarial department of the Equitable Assurance Society — "It was about the only opening for a mathematician then" — and eventually ended up working on their bond portfolio. After World War II he worked for several Wall Street firms in bonds until he set up his own firm in three small rooms overlooking an air shaft.
 All the while he was selling bonds, Morris saw a growing field for computers to cut corners in figuring interest charges in submitting underwriting bids.

"I never took any computer courses but I read a lot of books — it's a long trip to New Canaan," said Morris who lives on the commuting fringe in Connecticut.

So, having already built his own hi-fi set, Morris built his own small computer from a $960 kit. His TV repairman built him a second.
 Flicking a switch and waiting for his creation to warm up, Morris set out after the Bank of America.

THE BATTLEFIELD he chose was a $100 million portion of a $225 million underwriting California put up for bid last August. He couldn't afford to bid on the whole thing because the required $100,000 good faith bond on the first $100 million took up most of the firm's capital.

Use of his computers and 15 minutes rental of an IBM computer's time down the street for $20 helped Morris cut his bid very fine.

The surprise of the Bank and California treasurer Bert Betts when they found a second bid had been entered turned to astonishment for the bank and pleasure for Betts when they found it $1.8 million lower than the big syndicate's. There was some doubt on Wall Street Morris would be able to sell all his bonds but he did and, as he says with a modest smile "we made a little over a million."

The next month Morris and Plowden-Wardlaw underbid the Bank on another $100 million issue, saving California over $1 million in interest charges and making $700,000 for the tiny firm.

The Bank has recouped since, outbidding Morris recently. But Betts has hailed the "restoration of competitive bidding in California bond sales."

AND MORRIS has moved to an elegant suite in the new Chase Manhattan tower just above Wall Street. From one side of his modern marble-top desk you can look out over the Hudson. From the other you can see the $600,000 IBM computer being in-

The Suit Floats

NEW YORK (AP)—A swim suit that floats is the newest safety aid for youngsters.

It is so buoyant that it holds a child safely on the surface of the water while he develops the confidence and the know-how to swim without it.

Contoured to the shape of the body, the suit can also be worn as protection by toddlers who go boating or fishing with their parents, instead of the bulky life jackets usually strapped to them.

Jerrold Robinson, swimming instructor and director of teenage boating activities in Mamaroneck, N. Y., for the past 12 years, developed the suit after learning of a new buoyancy principle which had been worked out in England.

Buoyancy in water is accomplished by trapping air, a lighter substance, explains Robinson, who calls himself "the original bug on water safety." However, air-filled containers, such as the usual swimming aids and water toys are bulky, unpliable, and leak easily.

Robinson uses a polyethylene foam substance with a cavity in the middle. As the swimmer moves the suit breathes, pumping air into it. But when the suit is wet the material automatically seals the air in until it dries again.

Actually the one-piece bib-type garment is an underliner which is not visible beneath a girl's bathing suit. The buoyant principle extends across and supports the whole front body, as if the child were lying on a sled.

Yet the beginning swimmer does not build undue reliance, Robinson claims, because the material is so light in weight and body-molding that the child is not conscious of having it on.

Thus far girls up to 6-years-old are the only ones to benefit from Robinson's sinkproof suit because boys wear trunks.

The buoyant suit must cover the entire front of the body to keep the child from flipping in the water. But one with a T-shirt top is in the making for boys.

Robinson also hopes to enlarge upon the buoyant swimsuit idea soon for the vast number of adults who still can't propel themselves through the water.

CAN'T STAND SELF?
MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Doctors have reported cases of husbands and wives being allergic to each other.
 Now Dr. Samuel M. Feinberg told a medical seminar it appears possible a person may have auto-sensitivity—allergy to himself. He didn't prescribe a cure.

Cobbler Frau, 75, On the Job

BERLIN (AP)—Agathe Haemmerling, 75 years old, is Berlin's oldest female shoemaker. She is still at the job. Partly because of the Berlin wall, she says she plans to keep on repairing shoes for some time to come.

Before the East German Communists built it, Frau Haemmerling had two helpers from East Berlin.

The wall barred some 60,000 East Berliners from jobs they held in West Berlin. Among them were two young helpers who worked for Agathe Haemmerling.

"The day the Reds started their wall, my two young lads didn't turn up anymore. Ever since I've been working on my own."

"You know," she says, "It was then and there that I discovered I really don't want to retire yet. Why should I? I'm not old enough for an old age home."

Vigorously, she hammers away at a shoe she was fitting out with a new sole.

She learned from her late husband. In 1935, the Haemmerlings opened a small shoemaker shop at Regensburger Strasse in Schoenberg district, now in the American Sector of West Berlin. Some of her customers have been coming for over 25 years.

The old doorbell still rings frequently as they enter the dimly lit basement shop.

Occasionally, somebody comes around to sit with her for a little chat. Otherwise, her black cat, Pussy, is her only company.

A sewing machine, nearly 65 years old, is hardly used.

"It's too old," the shoemaker says. "I'd rather do everything by hand. That guarantees a more solid job."

Frau Haemmerling has no children and no relatives in Berlin. "I'm not complaining about loneliness," she professes. "My work is my company. I think I'll be working when I'm 100."
 "Work keeps you young."

Vonita Henzen Exchanges Vows With David Drager

Vonita Henzen, daughter of Mrs. Elsie Henzen of Clinton, Iowa, and David Drager, son of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Drager of Westway, exchanged marriage vows Sunday, April 7, at 5 p.m. at the Immanuel Lutheran Church, with the Rev. Fredrick Beversdorf officiating.

Before the ceremony Twyla Springer, organist, played "Whither Thou Goest" and "When Thou Art Near." As the bridal party assembled at the altar, she played "Let Us Ever Walk with Jesus." Sue Springer sang "O Perfect Love" as the couple knelt for prayer at the conclusion of the ceremony. The recessional, played by the organist, was "Gavotte."

Candles at the altar, which was flanked by spring bouquets of tulips and spirea, were lighted by Aaron Drager, Deborah Batenhorst, niece of the groom, was the flower girl. She carried a lace parasol basket tied with pink tulle. Steven Batenhorst, nephew of the groom, carried the rings on a white satin pillow.

The groom was attended by his brothers, Paul and George. Ushers were Henry Batenhorst and Aaron Drager.

Elizabeth Drager, the maid of honor, wore a dress of pink nylon over net and taffeta with a lace bodice. Her accessories were white.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Lillian Batenhorst, a sister of the groom. She was attired in blue nylon over net and taffeta and used white accessories.

The groom's mother chose a gown of taupe and white crepe with white accessories.

Given in marriage by the groom's father, the bride wore white Alencon lace over satin. Of street length the gown had a fitted bodice, dipped in back with thin satin-covered buttons, and long, fitted sleeves tapering to points over the hands. Her fingertip veil of tulle was held in place by a crown of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and orange blossoms.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlor. Mrs. R. L. Bone registered the guests.

Laid with pink net over white satin, the table was centered with a white and pink wedding cake between white candles in tulle bow holders. The bride's bouquet also graced the table.

Punch was served from a milk glass bowl by Mrs. George Drager and Miss Belinda Davis. Mrs. George Drager served the cake.

The bride attended high school in Clinton, Iowa. George Drager for the past 15 months has been stationed at Savanna Army Depot in Savanna, Ill. The couple will return to Savanna shortly after Easter.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. George Drager and children, Jeff, Calvin, and Jimmie, of Killeen; Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Stufflebeam Jr. of Clovis, N. M.; Mr. and Mrs. William H. Drager and son, Joe of Clovis; and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Davis and children, Belinda and Sharon, of Clovis.
