Fry says action needed at hospital

By JGHN BROOKS Managing Editor

Deaf Smith County Hospital District board member Dr. Stan Fry Jr. said today that Deaf Smith General Hospital is in danger of closing in the future unless steps are taken to improve relations within the medical community and the general community, and more family practitioners are recruited to Hereford.

Fry also appeared on KAMR-TV on Tuesday, and said that improved attitudes at the hospital were needed to provide the quality of care needed.

"I just hope the citizens of Hereford want to take action now and won't have a knee-jerk reaction," Fry told the Brand this morning. "If people wait until the hospital closes, by then it is too late, and it is tough to open a hospital back up.

"It's not that the staff isn't capable, it's how you feel about your job. We need to get more people feeling good, get some changes made, get better public relations with the community, and it's going to bloom from there. But it's not going to happen overnight, and it's not going to happen without changes being

"Attitude comes from the top, and if you're not in a good environment ...you don't enjoy working there," Fry told KAMR-TV reporter Amy Lee. "When you don't enjoy working somewhere you don't give the quality of care people deserve."

Fry said this morning he "felt for the most part that personnel at the hospital are pretty qualified, very qualified and capable."

"We just have some attitude problems, and they come from the top," Fry said. "If people don't enjoy going to work, it affects them. It's not that they're not qualified or not capable, it's just the attitude.

"I really believe our nursing staff, for the most part, is very qualified."

Fry said the biggest problem facing the hospital right now is getting doctors. If you have no doctors, you have no patients. After Dr. Mary Birdsong leaves, and if Dr. Howard Johnson gets fed up, the maternity ward closes and the hospital closes.

The salvation?

"One salvation we have is getting two or three more family practice doctors," Fry said.

Johnson and Bidwell will be left to pick up many of the pieces that have been left by Dr. Tim moving from Hereford in November. Johnson told Channel 4 "A person can only do so much, and there comes a point in time when you say no more Medicaid patients.'

Deaf Smith General Hospital Administrator Gary Moore said this morning that "Dr. Johnson is a very dedicated physician, but there's only so many deliveries he can do a month. He's doing 10-15 (deliveries) a month, and there comes a point in time we you can't take any more because of a loss of office time and a loss of sleep.

"We only have three doctors delivering babies here now, and Dr. (Gerald) Payne and Dr. (Duffy) McBrayer choose to do only five or six (deliveries) a month. Dr. Johnson there's a limit to the number of patients Dr. Johnson can see. He is very, very busy, always busy. He works just about as hard as Dr. Revell did," Moore said, saying Johnson could be found late most nights at the hospital.

In the past 3 years, six doctors Revell, who shut his practice in July, have left Hereford or retired, including Drs. Revell and Birdsong, and Dr. Mary Birdsong, who will be family practitioners; Dr. F. Ray Jones, an ophthalmologist; Dr. David Baddour, a urologist; Dr. James Herbertson, an orthopedist; and Dr. Trow Mims, who recently retired.

The hospital has recruited Dr. Roger Billig, a urologist; Dr. Randal Vinther, an internist; Dr. Dennis Finley, an orthopedist; Dr. Robert Clark, a surgeon; and Dr. Jones.

Moore said the hospital has attempted to recruit family practitioners, but had "only chosen to recruit board certified or board eligible physicians. We had some who didn't want to do OB, or had other problems. We had a physician who was supposed to have visited last Wednesday, but that physician had

Drug war battles are being won

WASHINGTON (AP) - One year after President Bush delivered a nationally televised speech laying out his drug war strategy, his chief lieutenant in that war says some of the battles are being won.

"We think that overall, in many ways, progress is being made," said national drug policy director William J. Bennett. "Things are significantly better, by lots of measures. Things are certainly not getting worse.'

Bush and Bennett were marking the anniversary of the drug speech today by releasing a white paper on the drug war.

In an interview Tuesday, Bennett contrasted the current drug picture with the situation when he took office 18 months ago.

At the time, he recalled, people said his job was "undoable. Mission Impossible. Figurehead. Nothing can happen."

Instead, Bennett said, "The government actually can get some things done if it is given the right equipment, the right direction and the command of the president, and we made some progress."

However, he said, this is no time to let up and stop pursuing the drug strategy that stresses tough enforcement of drug laws when violated by either traffickers or users as well as increased spending on treatment and education.

"There's plenty more to do," Bennett said. "There are some places that are not getting better.' The announcement of the drug strategy last Sept. 5 was Bush's first prime-time televised speech. In it, the president said he wanted "to make our streets and neighborhoods safe." He referred to people being "mugged on the way home from work by crack gangs" and children dodging bullets as they went to school. In the past year, thanks in large part to Colombia's crackdown on the cocaine cartels that was strongly supported by the United States, the supply of cocaine to this country has decreased. But instead of making the streets of America safer, Bennett said Tuesday, the cocaine shortage increased the violence because of greater competition among drug dealers. "There will be the same number of dogs fighting over a smaller number of bones," he said.

Quayle lauded Williams as a "straightforward, straight talking, common sense" candidate.

The vice president, who visited Tyler and Fort Worth on Tuesday, in Dallas today, along with a stop at an elementary school.

Speaking to about 200 people at the Harvey Convention Center in Tyler, Quayle lumped Democratic gubernatorial candidate Ann Richards together with Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, whom George Bush defeated to win the White House.

Richards, who campaigned Tuesday in Lubbock, attacked Williams's claims of business achievements and creating jobs.

"This race has a fellow in it who plans another campaign appearance has portrayed himself to be one thing when he really is another," she said, chiding Williams for sealing court records that detail litigation involving his companies and for refusing to make public his income tax returns.

Richards said Williams doesn't understand how government works and will repeat the mistakes of reading: "Momma needs Republican Gov. Bill Clements, also a broom, not an M-16;"

Jordan flooded with more refugees

By CHRISTOPHER BURNS Associated Press Writer

As Western nations struggle to get a few hundred more hostages out of Iraq, Jordan is being overwhelmed by tens of thousands of Asian refugees who are stranded in squalid camps and fighting for slim rations.

Jordan's King Hussein, trying to keep diplomacy alive, planned to meet Iraq's Saddam Hussein even as two top U.S. officials tried to drum up allied contributions for the American force sent to stand up to the Iraqi war machine.

The Saudis also stepped up preparations for possible conflict with their northern neighbor. Thousands of young men were reported enlisting in the armed forces in response to a new call for volunteers from King Significantly, a decree issued by Fahd also opened the door to Saudi Arabia's women to join the military and expand the nursing service.

Women have traditionally been second-class citizens in the strict Moslem country and the Monday night decree could herald further liberalizing changes.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III was leaving Washington today for the Middle East, West Germany and Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady met with French officials in Paris on Tuesday, was in London today for a meeting with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, then flies to Tokyo and Seoul, South Korea.

Both are seeking financial commitments to help ease the burden of maintaining a 100,000-troop Saudi-based expeditionary force as part of the effort to pressure Saddam into withdrawing from Kuwait.

Baker said Tuesday that the Bush administration envisions maintaining a military presence in the Persian Gulf even if Iraq quits oil-rich Kuwait. He said the United States it is considering creating a NATO-type alliance to deal with future security threats in the region.

Iraq's foreign minister, Tariq Aziz, Otwell, who refused Secret Service left Baghdad today for Moscow on a short working visit, the Iraqi News Agency said without elaborating.

The trip comes a day after Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze proposed an interna-tional conference on the Persian Gulf crisis and ahead of a planned weekend summit in Helsinki, Finland, between President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

The Soviets, long a close ally of Iraq, cut off arms supplies to Baghdad immediately after the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait and have stood solidly with Washington in backing a U.N.-ordered embargo on trade with Iraq.

Western diplomats said another jetliner full of freed Westerners, chartered by France, was to leave Baghdad today for the Jordanian capital of Amman. Seven British and four American women arrived in Amman today on the regular morning Iraqi Airways flight from Baghdad, but diplomats said hundreds more Westerners stuck in Iraq were waiting for exit visas. The evacuation of Westerners from Iraq that began over the weekend had resumed Tuesday, when two Iraqi jets chartered by West Germany and the United States flew to Amman with mostly women and children.

Twenty-five Americans were among the nearly 300 aboard the Iraq had slowed the release process by denying foreign jets landing rights and by forcing Westerners to deal with visa red tape. And while women and children could leave, men were kept behind as human shields against any possible U.S. attack.

WT, AC to host Career Day

The West Texas State University office of career planning and placement and the Amarillo College office of student job placement will host more than 100 employer representatives at the annual Career Day Thursday, Sept. 20. Career Day is open to all interested individuals from Il a.m. until 3 p.m. in the Activities Center Ballroom, Room 202, on the WTSU campus.

"This is not a job fair and even though some of the companies may have openings, the purpose of Career Day is the dissemination of information," Gene Parker, director of career planning and placement at WTSU, said.

"This is an excellent opportunity for students as well as for individuals in the community who have been displaced, are considering job changes or are returning to school."

Company agents available on

Career Day represent the government (state and federal), education, business and industry, health care agencies, the military and the professions.

"Most of the representatives are human relations specialists for personnel departments who understand the variety of careers their companies offer. Career Day is a preview for the job search and can inform individuals about the qualities and abilities people need in order to enter certain positions," Parker said.

Career Day, beneficial to hourand-wage personnel as well as salaried employees, is free and open to the public.

For more information, call the office of career planning and placement at West Texas State University or the office of student job placement at Amarillo College.

Accent on Health for whatever cause is always tragic,

More than 54 percent of the 124,563 deaths of Texas residents last year resulted either from heart disease or cancer, according to the Texas Department of Health's (TDH) Bureau of Vital Statistics.

The number of deaths from heart disease decreased slightly by 641, from 40,803 in 1988 to 40,162 in 1989. However, the number of cancer deaths increased by 1,438, from 25,880 in 1988 to 27,318 in Cerebrovascular disease ranked third among the leading causes of death, claiming 8,343 Texans in 1989, while accidents ranked fourth, with 6,540 victims.

Completing the list of 10 leading killers were: (5) bronchitis, emphysema, asthma and allied conditions--4,337; (6) pneumonia and influenza--3,869; (7) diabetes mellitus--2,872; (8) homicide--2,086; (9) suicide--2,073; and (10) chronic liver disease and cirrhosis--1,606. The letters that came with the checks were not run-of-the-mill mail, Ann. These people care so much. The outpouring of love and compassion was beautiful. DEAR ANN LANDERS: A while back you published a letter showing how considerate a young man was to his elderly grandfather, and I would now like to tell you how considerate some young people were to a complete stranger.

I was with a seniors' tour to a ski resort when I slipped and fell on the icy snow. Fearing a broken bone, the hostess advised me to stay as I was until the first-aid team could come check me over. She asked about a blanket, but none was available. One of the girls who worked on the ski lift took off her own warmly lined jacket and handed it to her, asking if it would be of help. Immediately, several other young people followed suit and for the short time I had to wait, I was made comfortable with made a successful 1990 home debut Tuesday with a 15-8, 15-7 win over Amarillo Palo Duro at the HHS Gym.

The Lady Whitefaces raced out to a 14-2 lead in the first game behind a seven-point run on Jayme Moore's first turn at serve. A pair of aces by Brek Binder brought the Herd to game point before Palo Duro was able to slow the pace.

The Lady Dons got back into the contest as Jackie Harris served up six straight points. Hereford committed five unforced errors during the run.

Hereford broke open the second game behind a three-point service by Lori Sanders to take an 8-2 lead. The Herd upped the margin to seven at 10-3 before Palo Duro closed to within four points at 11-7. Shantel Cornelius then served four straight points to end the match.

Lady Whiteface coach Brenda Reeh said the team's offensive attack was the main factor in the win.

'We looked really good on offense, she said. "We played much more aggressively and that made a difference.

"We have just got to hit the ball hard," Rech added. "When the other (See SPIKERS, Page 6)

The Hereford Lady whitefaces team starts preparing for a hard hit, that's when we can start tipping it and dinking it in the hole.

Reeh said the Herd's ability to mix its shots added to the attack.

"Everybody did a good job as far as mixing the hits up," she said, "cross-court, sharp and down the line.

"We did a good job, too, of picking the ball up if they did block us. That's been a problem for us. We didn't hesitate, we reacted instead thinking about what to do.'

For the match, Moore led with nine service points while Binder and Cornelius each had six.

Binder led the attack with five while Cornelius and Jennifer Hicks had four each. Robin White and Brooke Seiver both contributed three kills to the effort.

Teresa Baker had seven service receptions passed to setter with Sanders getting five while Cornelius led the team with six digs.

The win gives the Lady Whitefaces a 5-3 mark on the year heading into their final tournament appearance at the San Angelo Invitational. Lady Whiteface JV vs. PD

MEET THE HERD:

Rovers, secondary vital to new scheme

By SAM WALLER Sports Editor

The new defensive look the Hereford Whitefaces are sporting for the 1990 season has drastically changed the responsibilities of each position in the defensive backfield.

With the addition of two rovers to go along with a pair of cornerbacks and a single free safety, Herd coach Don Cumpton said the defense will have more freedom to attack the ball.

But there's no need to worry about picking up the new scheme, Cumpton said, as the secondary is well stocked with returning players.

"We are experienced at these positions," he said. "Miguel Casas and Chris Tardy started last year and Blake Buckley played a lot. Those

Stewart beats Clemens as A's win battle of AL leaders

By The Associated Press

Can you beat that Roger Clemens? The Oakland Athletics have an answer for that, and it's Dave

Two of the American League's premier pitchers met for the third time this season Tuesday night - and for the third time, Stewart was victorious as the Athletics whipped the Boston Red Sox 6-2.

In fact, it was the sixth consecutive time in five years that Stewart had outdueled Clemens.

"It's just the luck of the draw," Stewart said after beating Boston in what may have been a sneak preview of the opening game of the AL playoffs in Boston on Oct. 6. "I've just been able to go out and do a little better against this ballclub."

The results left the two teams still holding onto 6 1/2-game leads in their respective divisions. The Athletics continued to lead the Chicago White Sox, 6-3 victors over the Kansas City Royals. The Red Sox continued to lead the Toronto Blue Jays, 3-1 losers to Detroit.

Elsewhere, it was Seattle 7, Baltimore 2; Cleveland 7, Seattle 5, and Minnesota 7, Milwaukee 1.

Stewart (18-10) allowed six hits in eight innings, while Clemens (20-6) failed to get through the sixth. Clemens, who still leads the AL with a 1.98 earned run average, gave up four runs, two unearned, in his shortest outing since June 18, when he lasted less than two innings against Baltimore.

The two-time Cy Young Award winner struck out six, going over the 200-mark for a club record fifth time, but he walked six and committed two costly throwing errors.

As they did in ending Boston's

10-game winning streak with a 9-5 victory Monday night, the A's jumped to a quick lead, scoring twice in the first inning, and kept the pressure on the Red Sox.

Willie McGee and Jose Canseco scored two runs each for the A's, while Rickey Henderson had an RBI and scored a run.

Pirates beat Phils, 11-7; overtake Mets for lead

Pittsburgh Pirates.

Carmelo Martinez, who Doughty acquired for three prospects after he misinterpreted the waiver rules, capped Pittsburgh's comeback from an early 5-0 deficit with a game-tying two-run homer and the Pirates went on to beat the Philadelphia Phillies 11-7 Tuesday night.

"I've been traded four times, so sooner or later you're going to have to face your old club," Martinez said.

After the Phillies claimed two of the Pirates' top prospects, who Doughty mistakenly put on irrevocable waivers, he worked out a face-saving 3-for-1 deal for Martinez.

Martinez homered in the fifth inning and Bobby Bonilla added a three-run shot in the sixth. Meanwhile, the New York Mcts, who begin a three-game series in Pittsburgh tonight, lost in St. Louis 1-0.

Elsewhere, it was Chicago 3, Montreal 1; Atlanta 7, Cincinnati 4; Houston 10, Los Angeles 8; San Francisco 6, San Diego 4.

Two-run homers by Dale Murphy in the first inning and Darren Daulton in the second helped the Phillies to a 5-0 lead against Bob Walk.

With the Phillies leading 7-3 in the fifth, Jeff King singled and Andy Van Slyke drew a one-out walk ahead of an RBI single by Bonilla, who drove in five runs. After Don Carman replaced starter Pat Combs, Barry Bonds hit a sacrifice fly and Martinez followed with his ninth home run and first as a Pirate to make it 7-7.

Darrel Akerfelds (5-2) replaced General manager Larry Doughty's Carman in the sixth and immediately goof may turn out to be a gift for the got in a jam when pinch-hitter Wally Backman doubled. King grounded out, Jay Bell was hit by a pitch and Backman scored the go-ahead when shortstop Dickie Thon couldn't hold first baseman John Kruk's throw on Van Slyke's apparent double-play grounder.

Bonilla followed with his 31st homer.

Joe Magrane, with help from two relievers, beat New York for the third time in less than six weeks and ended the Mets' seven-game winning streak.

Magrane, Omar Olivares and Lee Smith combined on a five-hitter and Terry Pendleton's double in the fourth inning, only his second RBI since Aug. 8, drove in the only run.

Sid Fernandez (9-11) held St. Louis to three hits in seven innings but two of them came in the fourth.

Cubs 3, Expos 1

Ryne Sandberg hit his 32nd homer, a tie-breaking two-run shot in the ninth inning.

Home runs by Ron Gant and Dave Justice on consecutive pitches in the fourth inning brought Atlanta from behind and Justice added another solo shot in the eighth.

Tom Glavine (7-11) scattered six hits over eight innings.

The Braves trailed 4-2 when Lonnie Smith singled with one out in the fourth and Gant followed with his 26th home run. Justice hit his 21st on the next pitch, chasing Reds starter Danny Jackson (5-3). Justice also homered off Randy Myers in the eighth.

Giants 6, Padres 4 Pinch-hitter Bill Bathe hit a tic-breaking two-run homer off former teammate Atlee Hammaker in the seventh inning.

Bathe's homer made a winner of Mike LaCoss (5-3), who gave up seven hits and all the San Diego runs in six innings. John Burkett worked three innings for his first save. Astros 10, Dodgers 8

Houston overcame two home runs and six RBIs in the first two innings by Kal Daniels and rallied from a 7-0 deficit.

The Astros' comeback also included Eric Anthony's three-run pinch homer and Glenn Davis' two-run triple, both off starter Ramon Martinez. Daniels hit a two-run homer in the first inning and a grand slam in the second, both off Mark Portugal.

Dairy growth in '90s could be in Hereford-Clovis area

Now less than dozen dairies in area; three located in Deaf Smith County

By ORVILLE HOWARD Special Feature Writer

California dairymen are following the trend of the beef industry 25 years ago in a pullout for the Southwest--a 10 million-acre spread of blue skies, fresh water and golden grain.

And right in the middle of this billion-dollar move is the rich irrigation district of Hereford's Golden Triangle, the three-county area of Deaf Smith, Castro and

Though the bulk of the most recent new dairy developments have been in the Pecos Valley to the Southwest and in the rolling sandhills of Hartley and Dallam counties that the Golden Triangle will be smack dab in the middle of national milk expansion in the 1990s.

"I think you will see vast expansion of milk production to the general area of Hereford, South of Muleshoe, west to the New Mexico nia farming regions have caught area of Portales and Clovis then back in sort of a circle to Hereford," said Louis Hinders of Canyon, a veteran Panhandle dairyman who has seen the highs and lows of the dairy business for more than 30 years. "I have never understood why the immediate Hereford area never developed its potential dairy production to its fullest...maybe the farmers had an easier way of making money. But I believe that with the big environmental squeeze of the dairymen on the West Coast and at about all points east of Vernon, you'll see more and more dairies either developed new in the Hereford-Clovis area or relocated to that area."

Hinders pointed out that the Golden triangle area is perhaps one of the most ideal locations in America for the production of milkabundance of locally-produced grain, fresh water, available land space, a relatively dry climate, moderate temperatures and an adequate labor force.

All of these plus factors add up to high production of milk on a percow basis and lower overhead on the same ledger. Since the Great Depression days of the 1930s, California and Washington State had held national records in percow milk production, but in recent years, the West Coast dairy barons bowed out to New Mexico which has become the production pacesetter for the American dairy industry.

HEREFORD

And the perimeter of this big milk boom is only about an hour southwest of Hereford where the Portales Valley laps over into Texas.

As one example of the cost factors on investments in dairy production, the capital outlay in the Hereford area is now running between $2,000 and $3,000 per cow, whereas at about any point on the West Coast or east of the 100th to the north, food executives predict Meridian, the capital investment will run between $8,000 and $10,-000 per cow, depending on the diary's proximity to urban develop-

Though the West Coast urban encroachment into the rich Califormost of the national headlines in farm news, almost any point in America which receives more than 20 inches of rainfall a year is in big trouble with the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) when it comes to confined cattle production-dairies and beef feedlots. As one EPA Agent put it, "We really don't have all that new laws on the books....we've just begun to enforce the old ones."

When you receive more than 20 inches of rainfall a year, the environmental problems increase dramatically," said Hinders, a Randall County dairyman who has been president of the Western Division of Associated Milk Producers Incorporated (AMPI) since 1970. "And I understand there are many dairy producers in the heavier rainbelt who are looking at this area for relocation."

The Pecos Valley of Eastern New Mexico doubled milk production in 1989, the same year that AMPI announced plans for the construction of a new milk plant in Roswell. Hinders predicted that another new milk plant will be constructed in the Clovis region in the near future if dairy expansion continues at the present rate in the western half of the Texas Panhan-

At the present time, area milk plants includes Affiliated Foods, Inc., at Clovis, Borden and Bell at Lubbock and Plains at Amarillo. There are a number of relatively small cheese plants across the High Plains, but most of these units are family operations which have little effect on the output of the large commercial dairies.

Following the dairy buy-out in 1986, the number of dairies serviced by AMPI offices in Amarillo dropped to around 18, but this dairy count is now on an upswing as result of the higher costs of milk production in other regions of the nation. There are now less than a dozen commercial dairies in the Golden Triangle, with three located in Deaf Smith County. These include Hi-Plains Dairy near Ford. Long Corral Dairy 17 miles southwest of Hereford and the John Halfliger Dairy located west of Hereford on Six Mile Road.

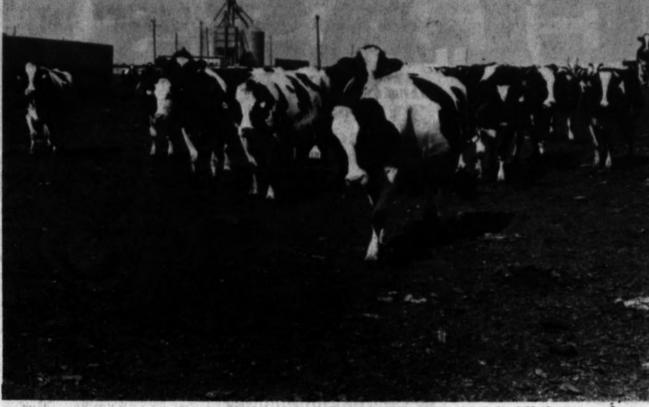

Though the three dairies are classed among the larger units of the Texas Panhandle, none of the operators are natives of this region. The John Halfigers came from the Riverside, Calif., area three years ago and are now milking 850 cows, the Jimmy Links came here from Wisconsin five years ago (after having made their initial land investment in 1977) and now are milking 400 cows and the Randy Snellers are transplanted dairy farmers from Iowa who manage the Hi-Plains Dairy that now has 560 cows in production.

Link pointed out that while his milk production comes from a basic count of around 400 cows the year around, he has around 850 head of dairy cattle in inventory, including replacement stock that comes from his own herd. His plans, however, calls for expansion during the 1990s. The Link family has owned their present dairy site since 1971 but leased the dairy to a West Coast operation until 1985 when they moved from Wisconsin to take over their Hereford operations.

"This is really good country for dairy cattle," said Link.

followed his parents in a move to Dallas County from Iowa as newly-Community to take over manageha a total dairy count of around 1200 cattle.

Having a staff of 11, the dairy looks more like a small village rather than a Deaf Smith County farm which fronts on U.S. 385 about 22 miles north of Hereford. Due to the travel time from town,

'Big mamas' at Hi-Plains Dairy are milked twice a day but fed II times a day or two above freezing to ensure most of the dairy employees live in mobile homes located on the farm, with the Snellers occupying the main house, a brick-veneer job that would fit in most communities of big city suburbia.

Sneller pointed out that he and his wife have a working agreement whereby they are buying into the dairy, with the majority--owner being a local investor. Using the Hi-Plains Dairy as an example of most area dairy outfits, average milk production per cow runs about 64 pounds a day, milking twice a day - some dairies milk three times a day. As with most other dairies, the Snellers breed their seedstock with artificial insemination and raise their own replacement stock from their heifer calves. Bull calves are sold shortly after birth to local commercial cattle feeders who in recent years have created a bullish demand for the milking stock.

Sneller pointed out that a few years ago bull calves were sold at almost give-away prices, but the big trend to leaner beef fits right down the dairy alleys, alleys filled with long, lean calves straight from their Holstein bloodlines. However, with a new trend toward protein pricing rather than butterfat pricing, the dairy industry is taking a close look as such old-time dairy favorites as the Jersey and Guernsey cattle. Since the very beginning of the weds about 10 years ago, and five commercial dairy industry in the commercial dairy years ago they moved to the Ford America, whole milk has been America. marketed on the basis of butterfat ment of the Hi-Plains Dairy which content, but due to the public outcry on fat in food, the dairy industry on Jan 1, 1991, will switch from butterfat pricing to protein pricing. Thus, the protein pricing may lead to breeds other than the everpopular Holstein cows which are recognized worldwide for their volume of milk production, but are a little light on the protein end of the business.

"I'm experimenting with the Brown Swiss right now," said Sneller, who was reared in the Midwest dairy industry. "I'm not saying that we're going to suddenly make a big switch from the Holstein to the Brown Swiss, but we sure are taking a close look at them (Brown Swiss). A point or two in higher protein sure could make a big difference in the paychecks."

Sneller is also a living testimonial to the quality of life in the Texas Panhandle--"We would never go back to the Midwest. This Texas Panhandle is really a great place to live...beautiful weather and lots of grain. I can't understand why this area is not filled with dairies."

The trans-planted Texan also pointed out that he buys all of his feed supplies from Deaf Smith County farmers, rations that generally include grain sorghum, corn, silage, sugar beet pulp and cotton by-products, when available. Even his professional veterinarian services comes out of Hereford, a place which he and his wife refer to as "hometown." They have one child, Bryan, a blonde-haired toddler who has the run of the 320-

Sneller said their present plans call for a gradual expansion to a daily milking herd of 800 -- "We believe 800 cows is the ideal herd under today's marketing system. We could probably handle 800 cows with about the same size staff milking facilities as we now have...-maybe a little more."

At the present time, there is someone milking cows 12 hours of every 24 in the Hi-Plains Dairy barn, a sophisticated unit which siphons milk directly from the cows in Iowa and artificial insemination to refrigerated tanks without ever being touched by human hands. ing operations in 1938. And the milk is kept at just a point

Since 1945, average annual milk production in the U.S. has more than tripled, increasing from 4,700 pounds at that time to more than 12,000 pounds of milk per cow per year. And butterfat per cow increased from 190 pounds to 458 pounds per cow. This kind of gain is not only a tribute to improved breeding and feeding, but also to good management and improved herd health.

Friezes found in Africa show domestication of cattle dating back to 9000 B.C. While cattle have been beasts of burden as well as a source of meat and milk, written records as far back as 6000 B.C. of old Mesopotamia (now Iraq) indicate dairying was highly developed at that time. Egyptian records show milk, butter and cheese were used as early as 3000 B.C.

Wherever man has traveled cattle soon followed. Columbus brought cattle to the West Indies in 1495, with the first recorded importations to mainland U.S. made to Jamestown, Va., in 1611, and to Plymouth Colony in 1624.

In 1851, the first cheese factory our efficiency in production. Randy and Wanda Sneller the Brown Swiss and possibly even was built in New York, followed by a butter factory in 1856, a point in time that marked the beginning of

was introduced to the dairy breed-

Western Europe and the British Isles provided most of the early breeding stock for dairy herds in the United States, with the more common breeds being the Holsteins, Jersey, Guernsey, Ayrshire and Brown Swiss. The Ayrshire cattle, a stylish breed imported from the county of Ayr in Scotland, have been billed as the "Aristocrats of the Dairy Breeds"--a line that also produces some of the highest protein milk in the world. Though Hereford is a giant step from being the Dairy Capital of Texas or the world, as it is in fed beef production, the potential is here. Deaf Smith County has everything it takes to produce the highest quality of milk at the lowest possible cost. Hinders verified this point in showing where Texas-produced milk is now being shipped to Eastern and Upper Midwest markets as result of the higher costs of production in such milk sheds as Wisconsin and Michigan.

"We can just do it better and cheaper," said Hinders, "Where Wisconsin was sending milk down to our Southwest markets a few years ago, we're sending it back up to them because they can't match

Consumer Groups Storm Local Grocery Stores!

Stores point finger at newspaper

Today saw one of the largest consumer responses of the week to offers made by local grocery stores for discounted prices. Across the city, shoppers were redeeming coupons cut from the local paper in record numbers.

"We know any offer we make will be highlighted most by the newspaper," commented a grocery store spokesman. "Our goal is simply to inform the consumers that these discounts are available. We are confident they will respond if they see it in the paper." His statement was backed by recent Consumer Data Service reports that indicated grocery store ads triple volume on discounted items and double volume on regularly priced items. It also revealed grocery ads are read by well over 70% of newspaper readers.

Grocery store representatives unanimously agreed that newspaper advertising was the only way to get immediate consumer response. One grocer remarked, "Most people read the paper, and a bunch of those readers clip our coupons. It's that simple." His comments reflect the well known Manufacturer's Coupon Center report which stated that over 80% of all families use coupons.

"When consumers want more for their money, they always go to the newspaper," a grocery official said. When pressed by reporters for the best offer he could make to the consumers he replied, "Look in the paper, it's all right there. Green leaf lettuce, two heads for 79¢ ... with a coupon of course."

office of career planning and placement will sponsor a "You and the Job Market" seminar each Wednesday at noon from Sept. 19-Oct. 17 in the Classroom Center, Room IOI. Each noon program will focus on different topics including interviewing skills, how to write an effective resume, understanding the application process and how to research potential employers. Admission to professional school, career testing and internship opportunities will also be discussed.

The programs will be presented by Gene Parker, director of WTSU career planning and placement, and guest personnel directors.

Convention set Sept. 17

A Texas Baptist Regional Sunday School Convention is scheduled at Paramount Baptist Church in Amarillo on Monday, Sept. 17.

The Amarillo convention is one of 24 scheduled throughout the state by the Sunday School Division of the Baptist General Convention of Texas to help strengthen Sunday School work in local churches.

Breakthrough: Reach to Win Texas" is the theme of the convention to motivate and provide information to help Sunday School workers "breakthrough" barriers in reaching people for Bible study.
